Boone County Recorder.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1883. NUMBER 10.

BLOWING BUBBLES.

Children are we, our airy bubbles blowing;
Laughing, we see them lightly float away;
Life's sterner side unheeding, or unknowing,
We clutch at pleasure while 'tis called to-day.

To-day, and yet to-day, and so Time wingeth,
And armor rusts the while, and hearts grow cold;
The bubble's gone e'en with the mirth it bringeth,
Cheerless and lone, we wake to find us old.

For wind-blown fame we see men striving, dying;
'Tis self hood all—a bubble at the best.
We sacrifice to self all else denying,
Upon the altar of a vague unrest.

While Life, the hydra-headed, round us teeming,
Demands our hearts and brains, to work and fight,
And burning questions press, while we lie dreaming,
And wrongs cry out, which we might help to right.

On one hand Ease, all earnest labor shirking,
Ignoble ease, ere noble Rest be won;
Upon the other—in the furrows working
Through noon's fierce glare, and in the end:
"Well done!"

—London Argosy.

HIS DEAREST FRIEND.

When Norman Van Elst told people that Frank Garnet was his dearest friend he meant a great deal, for although Van Elst claimed but few friends, he clung to those he had like drowning men cling to whatever can save them from sinking. He had been more unhappy during his early days than boys usually are, for he had lost both parents when he was a mere child, and had been reared by a childless pair of relatives who loved him dearly, but knew no better ways of showing their affection than by withholding his pennies, so that he might not squander them at a toy-shop, and by delivering to him an endless course of lectures. He met Garnet almost as soon as he reached his majority, and came to New York with the small patrimony to which he was entitled. Garnet was so cheery that he was a steady stimulant to Van Elst's sober wit, while Garnet found in his new acquaintance an earnestness so unusual in young men that, with a New Yorker's quick appreciation of whatever is worth having, he returned in hearty measure the regard bestowed upon him.

After the friendship of the two had grown for a year, however, Van Elst began to feel almost guilty over the fact that Garnet was not as much in his mind as he had been. For Van Elst had fallen in love. During the fortnight's vacation granted him by the firm with whom he was reading law, he had several times met Miss Florence Ashmore, a very pretty damsel from Baltimore, and as in manners and conversation she was far superior to any one he had known in the country town in which he was reared, as well as to any young lady he had met in New York, he did not wait a moment to analyze his feelings, but pronounced himself irrevocably in love. As he was very bashful, and Miss Ashmore was quite sprightly and brilliantly sarcastic on the subject of young men who imagined themselves in love, he did not declare his passion. The lady was unable, however, to prevent her merry face sobering a little and her honest eyes ceasing to laugh whenever Van Elst quoted poetry or talked of music, or raphsodized over beautiful scenery, and although he never made love to her in the conventional manner, he talked of the tender passion in a way that made the young lady not only unable to laugh at him, but constrained her to listen as if she longed to hear more; and what pleased him more than anything else was that Miss Ashmore was kind enough to hear, without showing signs of weariness, all of Van Elst's praises of Garnet. She even was so good a listener that she asked questions about Van Elst's dear friend.

Van Elst returned to the city full of hope. He had asked nothing; Miss Ashmore had promised nothing; but could he be mistaken when he believed that her face had said far more than she had meant to divulge? Naturally reserved and secretive, he nevertheless could not keep his joy to himself; so on his return to town he hurried to Garnet's room, determining to tell all, yet wondering how he would be able to put his story into words. He found Garnet in high spirits, although, when they had parted two weeks before, Garnet bemoaned the fate that compelled him to remain in town all summer. Garnet's spirits rose still higher when he saw his friend looking, as he declared, far better than ever before. He laughingly demanded an explanation of the change, and suggested that perhaps his friend had fallen in love, upon which Van Elst blushed like a girl, and then Garnet insisted that he should at once hear the whole story. Van Elst turned his face away, for he felt that in his happiness he must be looking extremely silly. He leaned against the mantel, looking at Garnet's little collection of curiosities as intently as if he had never seen them before.

"Go on, old fellow," said Garnet, encouragingly; "you couldn't have a more sympathetic listener, for I'm in the same condition as you."

This remark might have enabled Van Elst to open his mouth, had not his eye just then strayed to the end of the mantel and fallen upon a small photograph of Florence Ashmore.

"Speak boldly, I tell you, and don't delay," continued Garnet, "or I shall get ahead of you and tell a love story myself."

"All right," said Garnet, gayly; "it may be selfish of me to speak first, but I've given you the chance and you've neglected to avail yourself of it. Well, old boy, the long and short of it is this: I'm not only in love, but an accepted lover, and there's the picture of my darling—right there on the mantel. Why, I believe you're looking at it now."

"What is her name?" asked Van Elst, hardly able to believe what he had heard.

"Floy Ashmore," said Garnet; "and she is the dearest, sweetest—"

"What did you say her first name was?" asked Van Elst.

"Floy," replied Garnet; "or, to be precise, Miss Florence Ashmore. Isn't she pretty—isn't her picture just the loveliest thing you ever saw in your life? Confound you, Van, what do you mean by standing there without saying a word to me while I'm in the seventh heaven of bliss and with a million rosy clouds floating over me? Speak—just one word, won't you?"

"Garnet," said Van Elst, turning slowly and displaying a very white face, "I congratulate you with my whole heart and soul and strength."

"That sounds well," said Garnet, after a meditative puff or two at his meerschaum pipe, "but you might say it with a little more spirit, I think. Hang it man, I didn't say I was going to die; I said I was the accepted lover of the sweetest girl in the world."

Van Elst made a mighty effort, smiled brightly, grasped his friend's hand firmly, and replied:

"My dear fellow, you're the luckiest man in the world, if that picture does the lady justice, and Miss Ashmore is as lucky as you."

"That's better," said Garnet, hastily, withdrawing his hand and thrusting two knuckles into his mouth, "but, my dear fellow—oh, how that finger hurts!—you needn't crush my seal ring right through to the bone, with that terrific grip of yours. Eh?—looking at her picture again? I shall be jealous of you in a moment."

"You've no reason to be," said Van Elst, "but I can't help staring at her picture, for I've met the lady, and I admire her almost as much—"

"You've met her? For heaven' sake, where?" demanded Garnet, springing from his chair.

"At Bloomgrove," replied Van Elst, quietly; "where I spent my vacation."

"The little witch!" exclaimed Garnet; "and she allowed me all the while to imagine her at home in Baltimore! I suppose she thought if I knew she was so near New York I would run out there to see her. Ah, these Baltimore girls are very particular, Van. And you've actually been looking at that angel for a fortnight, and I only thirty miles away and entirely ignorant of what was going on! Why, you blessed old rascal, I'd like to choke you right here and now. How did she look—what did she say? Did she ever mention my name?"

"No," said Van Elst; "but I did to her and I was grateful to her for the attentive manner in which she always listened."

"What did you say about me?" asked Garnet.

"Everything that was good," replied Van Elst.

"Certainly you did, you honest old friend!" exclaimed Garnet, taking both of his friend's hands; "and I've no doubt that's why I got her definite answer within a few hours. But oh, Van, I'm only beginning to realize what lies before me. Her family is not very rich, but they are very proud; how dare I make a formal proposal to her while I'm only a poor clerk?"

"Buy an interest in some business," said Van Elst, "have your name known as that of a member of a reputable firm."

"Oh, Van, you're too modest," protested Garnet sarcastically; "why don't you advise me to buy a railroad or a gold mine? It would be no harder to a man without a dollar beyond the demands of the week."

"I've about $10,000 drawing interest," said Van Elst, "you're welcome to use all of it."

"Van!" exclaimed Garnet, "you're almost as much of an angel as Floy! But I'm not going to use your money; some day you'll find yourself as deep in love as I am, and then you, too, will have a business-like father to face. At that time you'll need the money to make your own position good."

Van Elst tried to laugh, but he did not succeed, although he managed to say:

"Nonsense, I shall never fall in love."

"Why, half an hour ago I was sure you were as far gone as I. I think I know the signs."

"You don't know anything; men in love never do—they are utter fools," replied Van Elst with such savage emphasis that Garnet clapped his hands and shouted:

"Capitally acted! By Jove, old boy, you ought to go upon the stage. But say, let me read you her letter—she'll forgive me, I guess, for letting so dear a friend know its contents. Here it is; she says—"

"Don't please, Garnet," said Van Elst; "a woman's heart shouldn't be opened to more than one man—not even to the man who most dearly loves her lover."

And the end was that Garnet married Florence Ashmore, and Van Elst is the dearest friend of both husband and wife, and although he fondles his little name sake as tenderly as if it were his own, no one has ever suspected what he endured for the sake of his dearest friend.—N. Y. Hour.

The Moon and the Weather.

A great many people believe the moon has more or less to do with the weather, and they watch the changes of that luminary and from it judge of what the weather is to be.

Some persons believe if the moon changes at certain times the weather for the next seven days, or until the moon changes again, will be so and so. For instance, if the moon's change takes place between the hours of twelve and two o'clock in the morning, then the next seven days will be good weather—and so on throughout the various hours of the day and night. I have for some time been in the habit of keeping a daily record of the weather, and as I had just heard it predicted that the seven days, beginning with the 12th of October and ending with the 19th, would be mild weather because the moon had changed about one o'clock in the morning, I took our almanac and note-book and compared results. Going back with its beginning of the year up to this time, I find the moon has changed thirty-eight times. Out of these at the time of day of change the weather changed seventeen times, while the other twenty-one times there was no change of weather at all. Now, these weather prophets or moon believers, always anticipate a change of weather when the moon changes. This rule does not hold good as it has failed more than half the time.

I kept an account a year ago last summer at each of the moon's changes, but as we had such an unprecedented long drought I hardly considered it a fair test; but this year the weather has been very changeable and I think the test given a fair one.—Cor. Prairie Farmer.

—It has been decided in Boston that a husband who prosecutes his wife must pay for her defense.

PITH AND POINT.

—Some one has discovered that Mrs. Langtry was born in the year ——, and and is therefore — years old.—Norristown Herald.

—Pails are now made of straw. We wonder if that's where all the "straw bail" goes to, of which we hear so much?—Lowell Courier.

—Are you a bull or a bear?—Ex. We couldn't bear to be a bull, and 'twouldn't be bully to be a bear.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—The opossums of Hart County are so fat, says a good deacon, that they leave greasy tracks where they walk.—Savannah News.

—A New York "critic" says that when Mrs. Langtry "puts her foot down it is there." Many persons, it appears, have been laboring under the erroneous impression that when she put it down it wasn't there.

—Are you afraid of the dark?" asked a mother of her little daughter. "I was once, mamma, when I went into the dark closet to take a tart." "What were you afraid of?" "I was afraid I wouldn't find the tart."—Philadelphia Ledger.

—The dresses of Lollia Paulina, the rival of Aggripina, were valued at $2,764,480, not including her jewels, which cost as much more. It has slipped our memory whether Miss Paulina was the daughter of a plumber or an editor, but our impression is that she was.—Norristown Herald.

—Sings a sweet poet:

The stars are sweet at eventide,
But cold and far away.

Which shows how much a poet knows about botany. The stars are far away, we admit, but cold? Not very cold. The poet who puts a star in his pocket and tries to walk away with it, will make up his mind to steal a stick of phosphorous the next time, and cool off.—Burdette.

—A fashion journal says: "The large fourageurs and frondsbourns are very becoming to slight, youthful figures." H'm; we always thought they were becoming to such figures; but for embonpoint figures of a conundrum age the fifteenaboangeres and blondfaborgeo's are more en regle and recherche. A newspaper man would feel lost if he didn't understand French.—Norristown Herald.

—A philosopher once Found a Woman weeping over the Grave of her child. "How foolish of You to Weep," said he, "for, had the child lived, he might have become a Poet." Hearing this, the Woman dried her eyes and Went on her way Rejoicing. This Fable Teaches that we should not Repine before considering what the Future Might have Been.—Denver Tribune.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Lord Houghton's newly-purchased estate in Florida comprises 60,000 acres. Lord Houghton is largely interested in sugar culture in Jamaica.

—The waste of the wild cocoons, gathered in the woods of China, Japan and Australia, is made into felt one half the size of hair felt, and is used for the manufacture of hats and for furnishing purposes.

—A Wilkesbarre paper asserts that it takes a keg of powder to mine a ton of coal, but the Scranton Republican wants it to explain, if so, the fact that a keg of powder costs more than the mine price of two tons of coal.

—Many an injured workman's life has been lost through his frightened comrades' inability to perform a simple operation. An Ambulance Association in Glasgow has begun a useful work by establishing courses of plain lectures for operatives, showing what ought to be done at once with a bleeding artery, a burned limb, a half-drowned body, etc.

—Fourteen factories, located chiefly in New England, supply this country with pins, the annual production of which for several years past has been about seven millions. Exportation of American pins is confined to Cuba, South America, and parts of Canada. England supplies almost the whole world outside of the United States, although her pins are no better than the American. The machinery and material used in the manufacture of American pins are entirely the product of American resources.

—Hard-wood blocks must now be used by the workmen in Dantzig to hold the amber when they are removing the outer, weather-worse portion of that prized fossil gum. Formerly the crude mass was held by the left hand in a block of lead. This was done for the purpose of preventing a dulling of the edges of the knives. But lead-poisoning of the men and women engaged in the industry ensued, as cases of the peculiar colic caused by that metal and other symptoms abundantly proved, and an official investigation has compelled the abandonment of lead in the dressing of amber.

—Flour is peculiarly sensitive to the atmospheric influences, hence it should never be stored in a room with sour liquids, nor where onions or fish are kept, nor any article that taints the air of the room in which it is stored. Any smell perceptible to the sense will be absorbed by the flour. Avoid damp cellers or lofts where a free circulation of air can not be obtained. Keep in a cool, dry, airy room, and not exposed to a freezing temperature nor to intense summer or to artificial heat for any length of time above seventy deg. to seventy-five deg. Fahrenheit. It should not come in contact with grain or other substances which are liable to heat. Flour should be sifted and the particles thoroughly disintegrated and then warmed before baking. This treatment improves the color and baking properties of the dough. The sponge should be prepared for the oven as soon as the yeast has performed its mission, otherwise fermentation sets in and acidity results.—American Miller.

—Judge Deady, presiding over the United States District Court in Oregon, has decided that Chinese laborers who are only temporarily employed in a particular county are not liable for road taxes therein, as the statute applies only to residents. Some 1,500 Chinamen who were employed on a railroad were thus assessed by the Sheriff, the sum involved being $6,000.

Paved With Gold.

"The gold of that land is good." So wrote Moses in describing the land of Havilah at the beginning of the world's history, and it is no less true after a lapse of six thousand years' time, and of the delving for the precious metals in this favored region of God's creation. Before the acquisition of this portion of Georgia from the Cherokee Indians, it was known that gold existed in large quantities in the gulches and streams of the foot hills of the Blue Ridge, and the white man, with that capacity that has ever characterized his search for the precious metals, came over the line to dig for it, contrary to law, and those are now known as the days of the intrusion. Gold was first found within a few miles of Dahlonega, and this place, then as now, was the center of trade for the miners after the United States had bought it from the aborigines. The immediate site of Dahlonega was chosen more by accident than choice, as was many of the other country towns of this State, and it has since been determined beyond a doubt that the site was laid upon what is now known to be one of the richest gold mines in the country, and were it not to-day the center of life and business for all the miners around, it would be the scene of busy hands and stamps crushing the gold out of the bonanza beneath us. That each business house upon the public square stands upon a mine rich enough, if the gold was all extracted, to build a fire proof brick building upon the premises, is familiar to all who are acquainted with the grounds. The stranger when he arrives here and is told he is walking on streets of gold, may well believe the fact after a very little investigation. The celebrated Pigeon-Roost belt passes directly under the town, the northern wall of it being near the top of the hill on the northwest side of the court-house square and passing on through crosses the hill under Prof. Singleton's residence, and on in front of Mr. Frank Stow's. The southern division of it passes under the stores of F. W. Hall, A. G. Wimpy, and Witt Brothers. That peculiar formation of brickbat and soft slate which accompanies this belt crops out in many places. The public square is almost a solid mass of brickbats interspersed at short intervals with small, gold bearing veins that come to the surface all over the square, and from which gold is often panned in fair paying quantities, and on the south side of the square is a vein that is known to pan, but it has never been looked into closely. As a proof that at this particular point of the belt it is so very rich, many fine gold-bearing specimens of quartz and lumps of pure gold have been picked up at different times for many years past. To note some of them: In 1879 Mr. J. C. Lawrence found several pieces amounting to 11 1 2 dwts. in all, the largest one weighing 4 dwts. George Teal found one piece that weighed 12 dwts. The superintendent of the Columbia mine wears a solid nugget as a shirt-stud of 1 dwt. and 3 grains that was picked up but a few days since after a rain. These pieces were found on or near Chestatee street, near Capt. James Kelley's residence. Just below the present signal office building J. C. Lawrence found on Warwick street a piece that weighed 3 1-2 dwts. One nugget was picked up just below the store of Burnside & Bro. that weighed 9 dwts. William Cook and many others have at different times found in various places lumps of the pure metal of which no specified record has been kept. There are gold-bearing veins also that deserve special recognition. The Lawrence vein that runs under the old machine-shop on the north side of the town and lies against the northwest wall of this belt was worked very successfully at one time, and after reaching a depth of eighty to 100 feet it ran into the sulphurets that have assayed as high as $160 per ton, and to-day, was it not within the corporate limits, and all other advantages equal, would be in active operation, turning out a large profit, worked by means of open cut. From the Burnside Hotel, on the square, a big color can be panned at any time. In front of Hall's and Wimpy's stores a chute is supposed to be, as panning is often done there that would excite even an old miner.

In fact, in every foot of the court-house square the color can be had, and in some places many colors of gold can be panned. Often after a rain, the little boys (embryo miners) and sometimes bearded ones may be seen gathering up the sand and gravel in the streets, and panning in the pools of rain water, as industrious as beavers. And the little fellows often get a good stock of pocket change from the city's gold mine, which is indeed to the boys a never-failing bank. In front of Mr. A. G. Wimpy's residence on Singleton street, just in the sidewalk, a vein was found two years ago that, by a working assay, ran from $50 to $85 per ton, and Capt. W. J. Worley found a vein in the orchard on the present premises of Col. G. W. White that panned "surprisingly." But perhaps the richest vein yet known within the village limits is the one in the lot below the signal office on Warwick street, from which rocks are often picked up on which the gold can be seen shining in many places. Indications point to this as the vein that has furnished the lumps of pure gold that have been found in the gulch below at different times. And just in the hollow beside this vein is a placer deposit which, if it could be worked, would pay several dollars per day to the man. In the village cemetery, on the same belt, westward from town, there are several rich little veins that show gold freely, and often when digging graves specimens of quartz sprinkled over with gold are thrown out to view, and while with the miner is ever prominent, he has the assurance that when he has lain down his pick and shovel, and panned out his last "clean up," his weary bones will be laid to rest within a tomb, the walls of which are glittering with the yellow metal for which he toiled his life away. And may it be his hope to rise from his bed of sordid metal, and, entering the pearly gates

The ruling passion, strong in death,

On golden hinges turning, to walk the golden streets above, with a crown of gold upon his head, "a golden harp within his hand," throughout the golden cycle of eternal ages that

"On the margin of the river,
Washing up its silver spray,
We will walk and worship ever,
All the happy golden day."

Occasionally we are asked: "What shall we do to save our dust gold?" It is true that from twenty-five to thirty per cent. of the gold that is contained in the ore is lost by the present stamping process, but at the same time it is better that this should be than to go to more expensive methods to save it all. It is better to get seventy-five per cent. contained in the quartz at a cost of twenty-five cents than to get ninety to ninety-five per cent. at a cost of several dollars. We can say that the present method of treating our ores is undoubtedly the best. Of course some few of our miners do not take advantage of all the cheap and practical methods which we have for saving gold. They should all be adopted so that when one fails the others will not. Occasionally the copper plate and a short line of riffled sluices is all used—and again the California riffle is added, but in order to save as much as is possible without going to a great expense—the amalgamated copper or electroplated plate, the common riffled sluice, California, and lowland should be used. These, with the proper amount of water and mercury in the batteries are all that we think practicable in order to obtain the largest possible per cent. without going outside the bounds of economy.

The mines are running as they have been for some time past. We would give the news in detail, but there has been but little change since our last issue, so we feel that it would bore our readers if we should rehearse the same items as read last week. Since miners have done away with underground mining to some extent, and adopted the open cut system, oftimes a week's work will be done and no change can be observed, only that the cuts are somewhat larger, and at some mines the excavations are so large that a thousand tons or so taken away would hardly be noticed.—Dahlonega (Ga.) Cor. Atlanta Constitution.

Annoyances of an Author.

It may surprise the uninitiated to know that authors labor under any disadvantages whatever, it being popularly supposed to be all glory and couleur de rose with the fraternity, that their plots thicken as readily as their ink, their treatises spring into existence without a throe, and their fancies sing themselves into measure and rhythm as spontaneously as roses blow or ferns unfold. School-girls fill their day-dreams with visions of authorship, while to see their name on the title-page of a novel seems to them the apotheosis of mortal bliss; that any one should be willing to give a consideration for the privilege of reading their thoughts suggests a fate which should lift one above the petty ills and vanities of every-day life, and they envy an author accordingly, and regard him with as much interest and veneration as a naturalist would bestow upon some unclassified fossil of the pre-Adamite world. But this admiration can be hardly looked upon as a disadvantage, except when it assumes the shape of a chronic request for autographs. Every one seems to feel that an author is a sort of public edifice which he or she has helped to erect, and consequently said author is deluged with letters begging not only for photographs and autographs, but for recommendations of people of whom he never heard before for positions of which he is equally ignorant. This one applies to him for influence to get a son into West Point; that one, for money to set up an honest man in the grocery line; another, to know if his grandmother came over in the Mayflower, if the heroine of his novel married after her lover's death, if he borrowed his plot from an old Italian play, if he was educated at Harvard or self-made, whether he believes in protoplasm or revealed religion.

All this may be amusing to the recipient, and may show what a deep hold the author has upon the public mind, but it is none the less annoying. He has neither the time nor the inclination to answer them all, but he hesitates to defraud them of the inclosed postage stamps. It would require quite an outlay to supply each of his admirers with a photograph, and there is a great deal of sameness in writing one's own name over and over, however distinguished the name may be, which no flattery can disguise, and yet to refuse an autograph seems churlish—some invalid or some gushing girl may have set her heart upon it. But perhaps his greatest annoyance is the manuscript with which he is overwhelmed, accompanied with the polite request that he should read and inwardly digest it, point out its defects, suggest measures for improvement, and generously recommend it to an editor, which is pretty much the same as if one merchant should entreat another to offer his sample's to that other's customers. As good wine needs no bush, so an article which is worth publishing requires no recommendation.—Harper's Bazar.

A Doctor's Substitute.

He was a young man with a wild, disordered look. He rushed into the office of a prominent city physician yesterday, placed a small cup on the desk, took off his coat and bared his right arm and whispered: "Stick me!"

"Do you want to be bled?"

"I do! Open a vein and let me catch the blood in this cup!"

"Too full in the head!"

"Alas! too full in the heart! My affianced will not believe me when I tell her that I love her better than my life. I will write my love. I will write it in my own blood! Proceed!"

"Is that all you want?"

"All! Is not that sufficient!"

"Young man, you are a dodo! Put on your coat! I keep a red ink here for the very purpose you desire, and I will sell you a whole gill for a quarter!"

And the young man was not stuck.—Detroit Free Press.

—Because his father refused to give him five cents wherewith to buy a lead pencil, young Rhodes, of Waseca, Minn., ran away from home and assumed the guise of a Missouri bandit. The desperate Mr. Rhodes is four years of age. It may be added that he was duly spanked in keeping with his tender years.

Our Young Folks.

QUESTIONS.

Can you put the spider's web back in its place,
That once has been swept away?
Can you put the apple again on the bough,
Which fell at our feet to-day?
Can you put the lily-cup back on the stem,
And cause it to live and grow?
Can you mend the butterfly's broken wing,
That you crushed with a hasty blow?
Can you put the bloom again on the grape,
Or the grape again on the vine?
Can you put the dew-drops back on the flowers,
And make them sparkle and shine?
Can you put the petals back on the rose?
If you could, would it smell as sweet?
Can you put the flour again in the husk,
And show me the ripened wheat?
Can you put the kernel back in the nut,
Or the broken egg in its shell?
Can you put the honey back in the comb,
And cover with wax each cell?
Can you put the perfume back in the vase,
When once it has sped away?
Can you put the corn-silk back on the corn,
Or the down on the catkins—say?
You think that my questions are trifling, dear?
Let me ask you another one:
Can a hasty word ever be unsaid,
Or a deed unkind, undone?

—Wide Awake.

UNCLE ZED'S WOLF.

A True Story.

"Baa! baa! baa!" sounded in noisy, frightened chorus underneath Parson Darius Miller's windows one cold April morning about fifty years ago.

So loud and so persistent was the chorus that Parson Miller's three sturdy boys were awake and on their feet before it had grown light enough to distinguish anything in the gray outside.

"Father! father!" shouted James, the second boy, clattering down the stairs in his heavy boots, "what ails the sheep? They're all huddled up close to the house, right under your window. Don't you hear them? Say, father, wake up!"

In response to all this outcry, good Parson Miller, who was a hard-working farmer as well as a Parson, and slept the sleep of the just, gave forth a feeble and only half-intelligent "yes."

Presently, however, he joined the boys, and then discovered that not all the sheep were huddled together underneath the windows, but that two of them were missing, and that large, dangerous-looking tracks were all over the light snow—a regular "sugar-snow"—which covered the ground outside.

"I'll bet it's a wolf," ventured Daniel, the eldest boy.

"Guess it's nothing but a wild cat," said the parson.

"Too big for a wild cat," said Tom. "A great deal bigger than the one Squire Taylor caught in his trap."

Tom was the quiet boy, but somehow when Tom spoke even the older ones paid attention. Tom's eyes were always on the alert and though they were of a gray and by no means beautiful color, and were set in a sallow and "peaked" little face Tom was considered a vastly good-looking boy by all of the family and his intimate friends on the principle of "Handsome is that handsome does."

Just then Squire Taylor, their next neighbor, came tramping hastily across his field, his two boys, of about the same age as James and Tom Miller, following after him.

"Wolf tracks all around my barn," said the good Squire, excitedly, before he had come near enough to see the sheep lying on the snow.

"There!" said Daniel, nodding significantly to Tom.

"Where's the fellow gone?" queried little Tom, who was only fourteen, and who didn't look so old as that by reason of his small stature.

"That's it! that's it!" cried the Squire, slapping Tom approvingly on the shoulder. "Where's the varmint gone? Let's track him, to be sure. Hullo! there's Uncle Zed."

Sure enough, old Zadok Cummings, familiarly known as "Uncle Zed," was hurrying along through the fields toward them, and carrying his old shotgun in his hands. The news had evidently traveled fast.

"Seen him?" shouted the old man, all on fire with excitement, while drops of sweat ran down his russet face, in spite of the chilly weather. "Jest tell me what d'rection he's took, 'n' I'll ketch him! The critter! I'll ketch him oh, I'll ketch him!" And Uncle Zed looked so fierce and funny that all of them began to laugh. But they finally succeeded in convincing the old man that he couldn't possibly "ketch him," for a few moments at least, and that the case was too serious for them to decide at once on the best course to pursue.

"He'll be around to-night, too, and bring some more with him, if we don't ketch him," put in Uncle Zed, whenever a good chance occurred.

Two or three had started out to follow the trail of the wolf, and they came back to report that the tracks ended in Squire Taylor's woods.

"We must make a ring right around the woods, and hem him in—that's the way," said the Squire, quickly.

Tom, standing back behind his brothers, was seen to nod, approvingly, whereupon the other boys did the same. Indeed, the proposition seemed to commend itself to the entire company, and they started toward the woods, those who had not brought guns hurrying off to get some.

"I could do it it jest as well alone," muttered Uncle Zed. "They hain't ben no wolves around here for several years now, but I hain't forgot how to ketch 'em. I guess I hain't."

The men were disposed, and then everything was profoundly quiet, excepting for the sound of the beating of the bushes, or of a stray shot, when some over-confident hunter was "sure he had him."

At last Uncle Zed heard a low growl in a thicket, and he had hardly time to raise his gun when out sprang an enormous wolf, and came directly toward him. The old man, almost paralyzed with fright, pulled the trigger, but his hand trembled so that his shot went a yard above the wolf's head, and the animal bounded past him unhurt. Uncle Zed shrieked: "Wolf! wolf!" and a half-dozen men were soon in hot pursuit of the discovered game.

Tom Miller, feeling very disconsolate because he hadn't any gun, had not accompanied the rest: but his mother, who felt no fear for Tom, and sympathized deeply with the courageous little fellow, had advised him to go to a certain neighbor's and see if he couldn't borrow one. It was necessary to go quite a distance, but Tom had made it on old Sorrel, the mare. He had come back in a wonderfully short time, bringing a trusty little shot gun with him, and was making his way up the hill just as the wolf dashed out of the woods, heading in his direction.

Tom's heart came up in his throat, but he ran for a clump of bushes close by that he thought would afford a good position for a shot, stationed himself among them, and waited.

The cries of the men in pursuit came nearer. Then the gallop into which the wolf had broken from its quick trot when it left the woods seemed to shake the very ground under him. Spring—spring—spring, came the terrified brute. He was in sight. Tom steadied his gun and fired. The wolf uttered a cry, half bark, half screech, and giving a few lame and wounded leaps, lay bleeding on the ground. Then shot after shot from the men behind was poured in upon the poor creature, until he lay thoroughly dead. Tom Miller was quite the hero of the day, and it was voted unanimously that the wolf-skin belonged to him.

"Well, Uncle Zed, why didn't you 'ketch him,' as you said you were going to?" inquired Squire Taylor, jokingly, as the men were separating to go to a late dinner.

"Don' know what in thunder ailed my gun," complained Uncle Zed, rapping that unfortunate weapon crossly; "but, after all"—straightening up proudly—"you'd never have ketched that wolf if it hadn't 'a been for me."

"How's that?" asked the Squire.

"Why, goodness gracious! didn't you hear me holler? I hollered an' started you all up. My," continued the old man, reflectively, as he turned away amid a general laugh, which did not appear to damp his spirits in the least, "how I did holler!"—Harper's Young People.

Friskie and the Lobsters.

Friskie was the perfection of dog beauty and accomplishments. She would lay back her long glossy ears and drawing her upper lip away from the lower one, show her white teeth in the loveliest of smiles. She could jog, waltz, walk on two feet, hide her breakfast and very innocently come for more; she knew the butcher and baker and grocer boy, and was always around when they were, and her delicate nostrils vibrated with life and the interest she felt in everything. She had one fault—curiosity. A few successful pilferings made her very daring. Her investigations led her into grave troubles sometimes, as when she unrolled the eggs, for instance, and scratched a hole in the paper bag holding the flour, which got into her eyes and all over her, making her look like a dusty miller. Her look of disgust when she put her paw into the broken eggs and hobbled off on three legs, with Bridget after her, looking meanwhile at the dripping member, was very laughable. But the time came at last when Friskie received her most impressive lesson, reproof and punishment, all at once. A covered basket had been brought in and left on the kitchen floor. Something was inside, she knew, and she sniffed and pawed around, poking her nose under the cover, which resisted all her gentle efforts. Finally she thrust her paw in—to find it clutched and pinched and held fast. In the struggle to get free the cover came off and she dragged out of the basket a most hideous-looking thing, of a bluish-black color, with two round black eyes sticking straight out from its head. It did not even wink, but stared in the most solemn manner, while it held on and pinched harder the more poor Frisk tried to get away. There was no shaking the horrible thing off, and she cried and trembled as much almost from fright as from pain. Bridget, too, was afraid, and called a man, who chopped off the claw, thus releasing poor Frisk, who darted off with a yelp, looking very shame-faced and sorry. It was only a lobster. For a while a covered basket always aroused Frisk's wrath, but she kept away from it, barking at it from a distance—for this lesson so dearly learned could not soon be forgotten.

We do not wonder at Friskie's fright, for a lobster is about the ugliest-looking animal we know, but it is also a very curious one. In the first place, it frequently changes its shell, and while the new shell is hardening grows as fast as ever it can, because that is its only chance, until time for it to get another shell. Its claws are very strong, and the fishermen have to be exceedingly careful to manage them right until they can drive little wooden pegs into them to keep them closed. Frisk can testify that a nip from one is no slight thing. Lobsters fight a great deal with each other, and their limbs are frequently torn off, but this makes no particular difference to them, except for the time being, for immediately another begins to grow in the place of the lost one, only it will never be quite as large. Then, in travelling, it moves backward instead of forward, swims easier than it walks, and uses its tail as a propeller. It seeks clear water to swim in, and when it scents danger, almost springs through it to some hiding-place. It eats everything, and all the time. We call them voracious, because they eat a great deal, and pugnacious, because they fight a great deal, and crustaceous, because they live in a shell.—Little Gem.

A Dress With 1,800 Buttons.

It almost seems incredible, and had I not had ocular proof I should not dare to state it, that a single dress should have on it 1,800 buttons of varying sizes. Ten days were consumed in arranging and sewing on the buttons by a seamstress. On each sleeve there were 100 buttons; on the body, basque and collar 350, and on the skirt 1,350. Those on the skirt were arranged in triangles, squares, crosses, stars and other curious shapes, on a foundation of black satin. The dress had a satiny appearance and was very weighty—so much so that it would require a lady of considerable strength to wear it. The intention was to have 2,000 buttons on it, but the entire surface of the dress would have to be covered. The buttons were all black, some round and others flat, and many of them quite expensive.—N. Y. Cor. Detroit Free Press.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JAN. 3, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
"	½ "	40
"	¼ "	20
½ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE Ohio legislature met yesterday.

THE county levy for this year is two dollars.

CHOLERA is raging in southern Mexican cities.

THE civil service bill passed the Senate like a flash.

IF you have a stock or crop item write it on a postal and send it to us.

INDIANA has a new presidential aspirant in the person of Wm. E. Niblack.

THE Louisville Post now issues a semi weekly edition. It is a handsome and newsy sheet.

THE St. Louis and Chicago brewers have determined to increase the price of beer $1 per barrel.

WE are glad to learn that the Hebron Hall Company were so successful with their entertainment last week

COURT was in session when our columns closed Tuesday; therefore we will give the proceedings in our next issue.

So far stock have required but little feeding. Fall left a good supply of grass which has relieved the work of feeding.

THE Georgians will, on February 12, celebrate the 150th anniversary of the first English settlement in the old Colony.

THE mayor of Portsmouth, Ohio, and the marshal of the same city engaged in a fisticuff in which the marshal came out second best.

THE city auditor and an assistant city assessor of Louisville, are being tried on articles of impeachment for some official crookedness.

THE Cincinnati Gazette and the Cincinnati Commercial have consolidated. The first issue of the Commercial-Gazette appeared Monday.

THE race for governor in this State is overshadowed by the approaching contest for the speakership for the next House of national representatives.

A LITTLE precaution at this season of the year may save you a large doctor bill. An ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure. Pneumonia and rheumatism are abroad in the land.

FROM some cause the County Judge entered an order on his records declaring the office of Sheriff vacant. Monday. J. R. Clutterbuck was appointed to fill the vacancy. We leave the Judge and ex-Sheriff to explain,

THE Christmas entertainment given for the benefit of the Hebron Sunday-school, was a grand success in every particular, but it could not have been otherwise with Mr. Jacob Tanner at the head of it. Many elegant and costly presents were made.

DR. W. D. H. HUNTER, editor of the Lawrenceburg (Ind.) Register is a candidate for one of the directors of the state prison south in Indiana. The state legislature elects these officers, and if Mr. Hunter is as popular with the members of the legislature as he is with the press gang of Indiana his election is assured.

THE Governor has just pardoned a party who has been indicted for murder in Boone county, and had never been tried on the indictment.—Item of Kentucky news in Rising Sun Recorder.

[illegible] a charge against our Governor of which he is not guilty. No such pardon as the one mentioned was ever granted a Boone county party.

RALPH SHELDON, Register of the Land Office and a candidate for reelection, and his chief deputy, Linn Boyd, who is a candidate for that office, have had a disagreement which resulted in Boyd's being bounced. Boyd made some statements about the loose way in which Sheldon discharged his official duties, and he took umbrage thereat,

THE democratic state central committee met at Louisville and issued a call for the democratic executive committees to meet with them on the 10th instant, in that city, for the purpose of fixing the time and place for holding the state convention to nominate candidates for governor and other state officers.

BIG BONE comes to the front with two Christmas shooting scrapes. On last Thursday night, W. H. Galespy, who lives at Big Bone Springs, invited a party of men to stay all night with him, and some time in the evening a difficulty arose, in which Mr. G. was shot through the neck, and is considered dangerously wounded. It is not clear who did the shooting, and Eddie Baker, R. L. Roberts and Wm. Steward are under arrest for the offense, while Benny Allphin has not been found but is wanted. The boys were on a Christmas spree. The examining trial will be held to-day. At Hamilton, on Friday, James Allphin and James Kite had a fuss which resulted in Allphin's being shot in the arm, the ball lodging in his vest pocket. That looks like a close call,

THE Western Tobacco Journal publishes the following statement of stocks of leaf tobacco in the open makets of the world on December 1, 1882 and same date last year. The number of hogsheads in western markets December 1, 1882, were 24,842 against 24,402 same date last year. In the seaboard markets there were 66,032 hogsheads against 78,189 same date last year. In the European markets there were 65,216 against 87179 same date last year. There were 11,717 hogsheads of tobacco less in the markets of the United States on the 1st of December 1882 than there were on the corresponding date the year before. The falling off in the European markets for the same period is 21,963 hogsheads. The total decrease in both the United States and Europe as shown by the report is 33,680 hogsheads.

A WASHINGTON special to the Cincinnati Gazette says: The most significant feature of the midnight session of Saturday was the angry colloquy between Messrs Butler, of South Carolina, and Hoar, of Massachusetts The correspondents made full reports of it, some of them verbatim reports, and it will probably be remembered by all present as the most striking event of the day. The record of the last part of the proceedings of that night did not appear until this morning. In it there is no trace of this exciting passage. The language which gave the provocation and excited the retort has been stricken out. There is nothing to show that there was a passage at arms. A forgery, in short, has been committed by somebody. The records of the people have been mutilated. The official organ of the Senate has been made state a lie by the suppression of facts. This could only have been done by the consent of all the parties concerned. It has once more been demonstrated that Congressmen can say to each other, in the heat of debate, things that they are ashamed to see in print, and that they are willing to impose upon the people false and mutilated reports of their proceedings.

THE Somerset Reporter is shaking Brother Barnes up thusly: "Geo. O. Barnes is still in New York and is sending circulars out to his friends in this State, begging money but not for himself. Oh no, but for the dear Lord,' who, according to Mr. B. needs a little filthy lucre exceedingly bad, just now, in that wicked city, with its millions of untaxed church property, and millionaire church members. Now, the wonder to the average sinner is to account for this begging business without predicting a change in the gospel he taught in our mountains before 'the Lord led him into a strange land.' While here he disdained the idea of even accepting money (but would tell them to hand it to Marie), and would ecstatically tell how 'the good Lord' provided all his wants for the mere trusting. But now we hear the god-protected evangelist crying at the top of his voice 'Money! Money!' to advertise his sermons—to get people to go to hear him preach. For this purpose $10,000 will do. He is not afraid of the devil, but proposes to give him a bitter fight if he can only get money enough to whet 'the sword of the spirit,' which gets awful rusty and dull where 'the Almighty dollar' is not comeatable. To be consistent, it seems a man should practice in New York what he preached in the mountains of Kentucky."

—A correspondent of the Cynthiana News gives the following cure for diptheria: Take a clay pipe fill it with tar, put on a coal of fire, and let the patient inhale the smoke, and the lump in the throat will turn white and drop out.

STATE NEWS.

—Corn $1 75 per barrel in Frankfort.

—Lexington horses have the epizootic.

—Uniontown will ship 6,000 hogs this season.

—Cornfield thieves are numerous in Pulaski county.

—James Hicks, jailer of Grant county died of erysipelas.

—Corn $2 a barrel at Lexington with a dowuward tendency.

—One firm paid citizens of Harrison county $15,000 for turkeys.

—"Raccoon" is the name of a new postoffice in Floyd county.

—Hogs are dying with cholera in some portions of Spencer county.

—The Harrison county jail has been without an inmate for three months.

—The Christian church at Frankfort was damaged $1,500 by fire Monday.

—An average of 150 car loads of coal per pay is being moved south of Earlington.

—The western citizen, published at Paris, was seventy-five years old last Friday week.

—The court-house at Franklin is to be adorned with a $1,500 town clock and bell.

—Henderson is burning a splendid article of coal at six and two-thirds cents a bushel.

—Mercer county furnished 10,000 turkeys for the Northern and Eastern market this season.

—A powder canister used during the revolutionary war is still doing service in Hart county.

—The Gazette says pneumonia is prevailing to an alarming extent in Lexington and Fayette county.

—The Sentinel says that Henderson "as a tobacco and grain market is by far the most reliable in the West."

—Sumatra tobacco is the newest thing in Maysville. It is dark and strong, and is used mostly for cigar wrappers.

—A Harrison county lady sent a thirty-pound dressed turkey-gobbler for the convicts' Christmas dinner at Frankfort.

—During the year 20,410 Kentuckians applied for pensions, of whom 8,042 were admitted, 2,033 rejected, and the other cases are pending.

—Woodford Sun: The corn crop is all shucked and cribbed. The crop was quite abundant, but the demand is limited, and prices ruling low.

—Harrison Brown, colored, for the shooting of Stuart Brown, also colored, at Lancaster, has been held in $200 bonds to the Circuit Court. Brown claimed that the shooting was accidental.

—Stanford Journal: R. L. Ewell didn't get to Congress by some 800 or 900 votes, but he has been given his reward. It is in the shape of general Storekeeper and Guager for the Eighth Kentucky district, and is a bigger thing than he ever expected to get.

—The barn of Charles M. Adams, about two miles south of Gwenton was destroyed by fire last Saturday night, together with about 2,500 lbs. of tobacco, 1,000 sheaves of oats, a lot of hay, farming utensils, &c. Loss about $800; covered by $600 insurance. Mr. Adams was visiting his father near Bethany, and says it was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

—Nashville American: Information was received here yesterday to the effect that a white man named James Newton killed a negro at Bowling Green, Ky., on Sunday. It appears that they were in a grocery when the altercation ensued. Four negroes and one white man jumped upon Newton, and had well near worn him out, when he arose with a knife in his hand and cut one negro on both sides of the neck and then his throat, when the negro soon died

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—The Tennessee legislature met last Monday.

—The Masonic Hall at Williamsburg, Virginia, is said to be haunted.

—Virginia spends $15,000,000 per year for spirituous and fermented liquors.

—The Nashville Street Railway Company has reduced the fare to 2½ cents per trip.

—At Toledo, Arkansas, Sallie Burnes fatally stabbed her lover Jeff Burns, of whom she was jealous.

—Dennis Burns, of Pensacola, will enter into ostrich farming, the birds to be procured in South Africa.

—Two Nashville men stood at a distance less than 15 paces and exchanged ten shots without any effect.

—The Virginia wheat crop is in fine condition, and the farmers are counting on an abundant crop next year.

—The contract for dredging the Vicksburg, Miss., harbor has been awarded, and work will commence about the 15th inst.

—At Knoxville, Tenn., Matt Posnell and Wm. Montgomery fought over a game of cards, and the latter was shot and instantly killed.

—The Northern Methodist church has decided to locate its Southern University at Chattanooga, and will put up a building to cost $100,000.

—In a poker-room at Nashville, Wm. Davidson shot and seriously wounded Charles Altmeyer, who objected to his taking a hand in the game.

—At Macon, Georgia, a large hawk swooped down on a cage containing three canary birds, fought away the woman who went to their rescue and then carried off one of them.

Hilson and Dubois, the Mormon Apostles who were jailed at Clinton, Alabama, on a charge of abduction, broke jail and succeded in making their escape. Their conviction was certain.

—R. J. Harp, of New Orleans, has brought suit against the Methodist Publishing House, at Nashville, to recover $35,000, the alledged value of services rendered by him while acting in the capacity of agent.

STOCK ITEMS.

Gov. Standford, of California, owns 500 blooded horses.

Kentucky short-horn sales this summer included 455 animals, and they sold at an average of $300 each.

Mr. James A. Hughes bought of Col. Lamberton a pig that weighed 600 pounds for $42—Ashland Independent.

An Anderson county farmer has engaged to kill and deliver his hogs in March at thirteen cents net, and the lard at fourteen cents.

R. L. Hubble, of Lincoln county, sold to Dr. Caldwell, of Barren county, the jack Ponto, 3 years old, 14½ hands high, for $700.

F. C. Fench, of Shelby county, sold a lot of second-class cattle, upon which he had put an average of 586 pounds in one year.

In Madison county, M. M. Harber sold to C. D. Chenault an aged mule 17½ hands high, weight 1,170 pounds, at $185. The pair weighed 2,300 lbs.

NOTICE.

The undersigned are authorized to employ a keeper and receiver for the Poor-house for the year 1883, and for that purpose will receive sealed bids until 1 p. m. next Saturday. Persons desiring both offices can make one bid for each, or include both in one bid. Persons desiring either office can bid on it.

L. H. DILLS.
E. H. BAKER,
O. GAINES,
Committee.

1883 1883

W. E. PIPER

Wishes all of his patrons a Happy New Year, and would have them remember that he still sells Goods at

BURLINGTON, KY.

And he humbly asks a portion of your patronage. By integrity and fair dealing, he has been permitted to sell Goods in your place for 5 years, and would be pleased in 1883 to show you good and cheap lines of General Merchandise, such as

DRY GOODS,
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES,
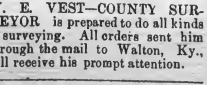
HATS,
CAPS,
QUEENSWARE
GROCERIES,

And other Goods usually found in a general retail store. Goods exchanged for country produce, and orders for goods not in stock promptly filled.

SURVEYING.

W. E. VEST—COUNTY SURVEYOR is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, Ky., will receive his prompt attention.



Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ½ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.

☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

Ladies!

All the Ladies are hereby notified that Harper Bro's Patterns will be kept at Colter's Fashionable and Enterprising House from the first day of December.

Please inquire around if you are not thoroughly acquainted with the great name these Patterns have for elegance and popularity. They positively excell any other Patterns in the world.

The people are getting tired of the old go-easy sing-song Patterns that have been sold heretofore, and want something new and striking.

Harper Bro's Patterns will be arriving every week, as the styles are out in New York.

The Agency of nearly all the other Patterns, were tendered to us but Harper Bro's were what we wanted, and now we have them.

There will be a lot of Pattern Sheets to be given away, and would say to those wishing one, come in and leave your name, and on their arrival you will have one secured

AT COLTER'S.

PATENTS
CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT?

Send a rough sketch or (if you can) a model of your invention to GEORGE E. LEMON, Washington, D. C., and a Preliminary Examination will be made of all United States patents of the same class of inventions and you will be advised whether or not a patent can be obtained.

FOR THIS PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION NO CHARGE IS MADE.

What will a Patent Cost?

If you are advised that your invention is patentable, send $20 to pay Government application fee of $15, and $5 for the drawings required by the Government. This is payable when application is made, and is all of the expense unless a patent is allowed. When allowed, the attorney's fee ($25) and the final Government fee ($20) is payable. Thus you know beforehand, for nothing, whether you are going to get a patent or not, and no attorney's fee is charged unless you do get a Patent. An attorney whose fee depends on his success in obtaining a Patent will not advise you that your invention is patentable, unless it really is patentable, so far as his best judgment can aid in determining the question; hence, you can rely on the advise given after a preliminary examination is had. Design Patents and the Registration of Labels, Trade Marks and Re-issues secured. Caveats prepared and filed. Applications in revivor of Rejected, Abandoned, or Forfeited Cases made. Very often valuable inventions are saved in these classes of cases. If you have undertaken to secure your own patent and failed, a skillful handling of the case may lead to success. Send me a written request addressed to the Commissioner of Patents that he recognise GEORGE E. LEMON, of Washington, D. C., as your attorney in the case, giving the title of the invention and about the date of filing your application. An examination and report will cost you nothing. Searches made for title to inventions, in fact any information relating to Patents promptly furnished. Copies of Patents mailed at the regular Government rates, (25c. each.) Remember this office has been in successful operation since 1865, and you therefore reap the benefits of experience, besides reference can be given to actual clients in almost every county in the U. S. Pamphlet relating to Patents free upon request.

GEO. E. LEMON,
615 15th St., WASHINGTON, D. C.
Attorney-at-Law and Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents.

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT CURED in 10 to 20 DAYS.
THOUSANDS of references from persons cured. No pay until Cured. Dr. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, O.

☞ GIVEN AWAY.
Zimmerman Fruit Dryer
How and for Terms, Address
ZIMMERMAN FRUIT DRYER CO., Cincinnati, O.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are certainly best, having been so decreed at every Great World's Industrial Competition for Sixteen Years; no other American organs having been found equal at any. Also Cheapest. Style 109; 3½ octaves; sufficient compass and power, with best quality, for popular sacred and secular music in schools or families, at only $22. One hundred other styles at $30, $57, $66, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114 to $500 and up. The larger styles are wholly unrivaled by any other organs. Also for easy payments. New Illustrated Catalogue free. The MASON & HAMLIN Organ and Piano Co., 154 Tremont St., Boston; 46 E. 14th St., New York; 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Large List GUNS and NOVELTIES FREE! For 3c. stamp. Chas. Folsom, N.Y. City

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 66 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

IRELAND of TO-DAY $75 to $150 Per Month. New Edition Now Ready. Gives Repression Bill, Events of 1882, etc. Agents Wanted J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

G. H. LOEBKER,
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES,
36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend·
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all people should there meet.

AMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Mason, J. A. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
J. J. Dulaney.

☞ The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by thi
dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
540 MADISON STREET,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar14f23 J. W. Talbott.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

Can you write it 1888?

Be sure and get the date correct.

Mrs. James Tanner died on the 28th ult.

Cy Crisler had a forty pound turkey for dinner, Monday.

Eggs 25 cents a dozen. Worth too much to make egging out of.

It is thought by some that the hard freezes injured the wheat.

Henry Gordon and his bride went to St. Louis on their wedding tour.

Rev. J. P. Maclean will preach in the Universalist church at this place on the 14th inst.

Some of the hog buyers prophecy that the price of hogs will go still lower before the season closes.

Jno. Berkshire and others caught two foxes last week. The boys had lots of fun while on the chase.

Coon-hunting has had its day in Boone, and a coon hunter is now looked upon as a relic of ancient times.

Charles McPherson, the party who interrupted Miss Nannie Hamilton's school exhibition was fined $25.

Rev. John C. Sehrea preached a very interesting sermon at the Baptist church in this place last Wednesday evening.

There are a great many hogs in this county which are now being fed for higher prices. Six cents or less can't buy them yet.

The hands except Ott Murphy, in F. P Walton's tobacco shop struck for higher wages last week. Their demand was not acceded to.

P. W. Hardin, Attorney General and candidate for re-election, was in town Saturday shaking with the "good people of this part of Boone."

From accounts the earthquakes certainly turned out in full force in Petersburg Christmas night. The town narrowly escaped being capsized.

Friday a drove of 16 nice cattle passed through town. They were purchased by J. M. Conner in that portion of the county southwest of Burlington.

The select party in the Morgan Academy Hall last Friday night was well attended and all present had a gay time as they always do on these occasions.

Is it possible that Tim Westbay contemplates matrimony? This thought is suggested by the nice lot of meat he is known to have put up this winter.

Mr. R. E. Graves, an old resident of Covington, leaves to-morrow for Evansville, Ind., to take charge of an office for R. E. Dunn & Co. Good for both parties.—Enquirer.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Beall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

Last Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Duncan gave the young folks a christmas party. An elegant supper was served, and all speak in glowing terms of their royal entertainment.

The funeral of Mrs. Alonzo Souther whose remains is now in Hebron vault, will be preached Jan., 6th at 11 o'clock, after which the body will be interred in the family lot in said cemetery.

We call your attention to Dudly Rouse's advertisement in this issue. You can inform yourself of some good bargains, and there is no cleverer a fellow with which to deal than this same Dudly Rouse.

Rev. J. P. MacLean will commence a series of lectures in the Universalist church at this place on the evening of the 9th inst., and continue from night to night until the series is completed. The first lecture will be on the origin of the world.

In this impression will be found W. E. Piper's card. He is doing a good business and proposes to increase it by honest dealing and extending to his customers all the courtisies that occasions may afford.

Elder Houston, who has been preaching for the Deciples at Bellevue, was in town Saturday soliciting money with which to erect a church edifice for his congregation in Bellevue. He had considerable subscribed.

Mrs. Reuben Norman, mother of Esq. M. C. Norman, died at her son's near Union on the 24th inst. Mrs. Norman was the last daughter of Elder Lewis Conner, a popular Baptist minister in this county at an early day.

Last Friday afternoon, some wagons while passing through town, stopped in front of Mr. McKim's store, and while the men were in the store, one of the women had a severe epileptic fit, causing quite an excitement for a while.

The young gallant from the heights in the vicinity of Lawrenceburg should trade his buggy nag off, and get one upon which he can rely when he wants to take a bevy of young ladies to a party. On such occasions there should be no balk.

Burlington Lodge No. 264 F. & A. M. met on the 27th ult., and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: W. L. Riddell, W. M.; Everett Walton, S. W.; W. T. German, J. W.; Dudley Rouse Treas.; W. E. Piper, Sect'y.; C. L. Crisler, Tyler.

Among the pleasant evenings spent by the young folks during the holidays was one at Mr. Edgar Cropper's. Mr. and Mrs. Cropper spared no pains in making preparation for the party, and their hospitality will long be remembered by all those who were their guests on that occasion.

Judging from the heavy discussions in a room adjoining this office, the aforesaid room is the headquarters of a debating society. The discussions are always of a theological nature, and the disputants have, as yet, not been able to settle the important question under consideration.

The protracted meeting which commenced in the Baptist church here Christmas night closed last Saturday night with the following additions: Mrs. Lillie Hall, Edward Duncan, Samuel Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Palmer. They were baptized at Bellevue last Sunday.

We are under obligations to Mr. C. C. Coleman, of Clay Center, Kan., for a copy of the Dispatch published in his city, and by which we learn since he left here he has become a member of the mistic tie. We further learn from same paper that Clay Center is a business and thriving city.

The Boone County Recorder is again edited by lawyar Riddell, which explains the [illegible] it is so improved.—Paris Kentuckian.

You are a little off on the lawyer part of the item, Bro. Craddock. Neither one of the RECORDER firm make any pretentions in that direction.

Boone Recorder: Uncle Jas. N. Stephens who for 82 years (all his life) lived on Rabbit Hash, has moved to Rising Sun.

It is not strange that he should want a change from Rabbit Hash after 82 years' trial.—Paris Kentuckian.

We didn't say Mr. S. lived on Rabbit Hash. Fraid you have too much Christmas to read straight, Bro. Craddock.

A gang of fox hounds passed the residence of one of our friends who lives near town, about 12 o'clock one night last week, and their yelps being sweet music to his ears, he tore himself from his peaceful couch, donned his overcoat and shoes and joined in the chase, following the hounds about two miles through bushes and briars, and having all the fun to himself.

This is Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's opinion of dancing: "It is wicked when it is wicked and it is not wicked when it is not wicked. In itself it has no more character than walking, wrestling or rowing. Bad company, untimely hours, evil dances may make the exercises evil; good company, wholesome hours, and home influences, may make it a very great benefit." We print the above for the consideration of those who love dancing.

Our junior had a very peculiar dream the other night, which illustrates how a printers mind has constantly before it the visions of the money he don't receive. He dreamed that Uncle Sam was issuing a $10-bill of new style made especially for printers and that they were being thrust at him in quantities that defied computation, and he was going to buy a new dress and a power press for the RECORDER had not morpheus left him so soon.

From careful conducted experiments by different persons, it has been ascertained that one bushel of corn will make a little over 10½ pounds of pork—gross. Taking this result as a basis, the following deductions are made, which all our farmers would do well to lay by for a convenient reference—That:

When corn sells for 12½ cents per bushel pork costs 1½ cents per pound.

When corn costs 17 cents per bushel, pork costs 2 cents per pound.

When corn costs 25 cents per bushel, pork costs 3 cents per pound.

When corn costs 33 cents per bushel, pork costs 4 cents per pound.

When corn costs 50 cents per bushel, pork costs 5 cents per pound.

The following statement shows what the farmer realizes on his corn when sold in the form of pork:

When pork sells for 3 cents per pound, it brings 25 cents per bushel in corn.

When pork sells for 4 cents per pound, it brings 32 cents per bushel in corn.

When pork sells for 5 cents per pound, it brings 45 cents per bushel in corn.

What We'd Like to See.

Dr. Furnish's christmas present.

Pink Rice take a carriage load of ladies to a christmas party.

The roads keep good all winter.

More turnpikes and fewer dirt roads.

The price of tobacco go up to $15.

The farmers raise good crops again this year.

Our new office completed.

Dudley Rouse driving those new harness.

By request of Mr. W. R. Terrill we publish the following letter written by him to the Post-office Department, in regard to the mail route, and the Departments reply thereto.

April, 24th 1882.

Auditor:

Would it be possible to have my route continued to the railroad? That is from Florence to Erlanger, a distance of 2 miles My route is No. 20107, and is from Florence to Burlington. The mail trains are due Erlanger (formerly Silver Lake) at 8:55 a. m., and 8:55 p. m., and my time to leave Florence at 4 p. m. Then, I ask if it is at all possible for my route to be continued over said 2 miles, and the route over said 2 miles ought to be discontinued?

On the other hand I am willing to have my route discontinued for the purpose of letting both routes be made into one.

The person that runs the route from Florence to Erlanger leaves twice a day, namely: First for the 8:55 a. m., and second for the 5:55 p. m., any man who knows would say that one man ought to be able to make the two trips to Erlanger and the one to Burlington every day which would be only twenty miles altogether.

Please let me know at once, whether it would be possible for me to get the three routes in one as illustrated in the figure, for it would make it more suitable for me to run to the depot, but I would rather take the mail to the post-office at Erlanger than to put it on the train. W. R. TERRILL.

The Department sent the following reply:

Washington, May 1st, 1882.

Respectfully returned.

This route will be changed as suggested at the next letting. It cannot be done before 1884.

Christmas at Petersburg.

To the Editors of the Recorder:

The entertainment given by the scholars of the Christian Church Sunday-school, at this place, on Saturday night before Christmas, deserves more than a passing notice. The committee, Miss Mary Snyder, Mrs. R. Bush and Mrs. Mary Walton assisted as organist by Miss Theresa McNeely, had arranged a programme calculated to please, entertain and instruct.

Promptly at the hour set apart for the opening the house was filled, and after the gentlemanly and efficient ushers, Messrs. T. W. Wade and J. W. Berkshire, had comfortably seated the audience, and assigned standing room for all that could crowd in, the superintendent, D. Riggs, opened with brief introductory remarks, followed by a song of greeting by the school and prayer by Rev. Froh, pastor of the M. E. Church.

The stage having been tastefully, yet simply decorated, and the committee had the participants in the programme so well and thoroughly drilled, that not a hitch occurred to mar the smoothness and excellence of the exercises through out the whole entertainment. Songs were interspersed with recitations by the smaller scholars and duets and solos by the young ladies.

I could not well make mention of any particular part without seemingly doing injustice to others that were just as deserving. However, we make mention of a few features that were highly appreciated.

The Quarrel Among the Flowers which was rendered in music and sung by Misses Mary and Allie Snyder, Sue and Ida Smith Lena Alden, Theresa McNeely, Zenith Alloway and Cora Early, each one representing a flower, the acting of which was splendid was certainly the feature of the evening.

No Sects in Heaven was beautifuly declaimed by Miss May Terrill.

The Duets, Our Savior, by Misses Sue Smith and Mary Snyder, and Softly the Night Breeze is Sighing, by Misses Ida Smith and Cora Early elicited most marked attention, while the recitation, Rock of Ages, was most touchingly and feelingly rendered by Miss Belle Terrill. In short the manner in which each and every participant rendered their part, evinced in a marked degree the perfection to which they had been brought by the careful training of the committee.

After the vast audience had been highly and profitably entertained by the school, they were in their turn made happy by the appearance of Mr. and Mrs. Santa Clause, and each scholar received a big round orange and a box of fine confections. And at the final it might well be said, the audience was delighted, the children pleased, the committee felt complimented and the superintendent made proud, J St. Nick wished them a merry Christmas and all a kind good night.

Personal Mentions.

James Loder, of Petersburg, was in town Thursday.

Mr. Lewis Lampton, of Richwood, was in town Friday.

Dr. J. M. Grant was considerably on the sick list last week.

Mr. John Arnold, of Mo., spent holidays with his friends of this county.

Last Thursday, Mr. Elijah Hogan, of Gallatin county, was in town.

Mr. G. T. Gaines, of Texas, was in town the other day looking hale and hearty.

Mr. E. Bruce Finch, of Kansas City, Mo. is visiting his father and brother at this place.

Mr. Thos. H. Stephenson and daughter, Birdie, spent a portion of the holidays in Burlington.

Mr. Simeon Terrill and wife, of Big Bone were the guests of Dr. J. M. Grant last Thursday.

James Allen, of Indiana, was visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dempsey, of this place, last week.

Miss Sallie Hyatt, of Newport, spent the holidays with her sister, Mr. Dr. J. M. Grant, of this place.

Miss Hattie Smith, of Union was the guest of Mrs. C. L. Crisler and daughter two or three days last week.

The pleasing countenance of C. W. Riddell, of Williamstown, was seen on our streets a day or two last week.

A Mr. Graysen and a Mr. Fields, students of Bethany College were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paschal Rucker, last week.

Miss Kittie Riddell, of Constance, and Laura Zinn, of Riverside, Ohio, were the guests of Miss Nettie Gradnar Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Lou Pace, of Indianapolis, arrived in this place last Wednesday night in answer to a telegram announcing the sickness of his mother.

Mr. Alfred Voshell spent a day or two with his brother at Plattsburg last week. Alfred is now a conductor on a freight train that runs from Cairo, Ill., to Austin, Texas.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Verona.

The roads, this week, have been in a bad condition for traveling, but that does not hinder the young folks from having their sport. About forty gathered at the residence of Mr. Jas. Fry, Saturday night, and passed off their [illegible] o'clock by having music on the organ by B. L. Johnson, and singing by others.

Mr. W. B. Tanner, foreman of the Cumberland Coal Mining Works was visiting here last week.

We can now get communications at this point from all parts of the U. S., in a very short time, having a telegraph office.

Mr. Dillman has returned from his visit to Glencoe.

Plattsburg

Miss Mary Schruck, of Ind., is visiting her many friends in our town.

The Ashby Fork crossing on the Woolper Pike is in a fearful condition, and almost impassable. Something will have to be done to accommodate the traveling public or the company will get a white elephant on their hands.

Geo. Youell is suffering from a badly sprained wrist.

Owen Kinney who died so suddenly the other day never had a sick day in his life.

We would suggest that the ball players of the county organize a county league for the coming season. Say eight clubs could be organized in the county and each club put in $100, which would be $800, and at the end of the season the club winning the most games take the pile.

Christmas passed off quietly in our neighborhood.

Union.

Christmas and New years passed quietly, save a single breach of the peace, and the pop, pop of the cracker and the candle.

Wolph Rachal had a small quantity of powder to explode in his pocket—damage small.

One gentleman wears a black eye, a souvenir, presented by our young druggist, Phillip Taliafarro and his roman candle—all accidental.

The ball given by the Union Tarpsichoreans was a splendid success.

Everybody is complimenting the new RECORDER. Let it not be said that "a new broom sweeps clean."

The Union Sunday-school feast was a very enjoyable affair, and the chair presented to the superintendent, M. C. Norman, was handsome and well deserved.

Turkeys, 10 cents gross; meats, 15; Oysters, 35c a quart; the RECORDER, our own county paper, $1 50 a year.

We learn with regret of the shooting of James Allphin and Wm. Gillespy.

Personal—Orville Williams is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. H. P. Stephens...... Misses Anna Anderson and Sallie Blanton, were home during the holidays, as merry and charming as ever......Miss Lillie Jordon, of Newport, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Corbin.

Bellevue.

Our town witnessed an unusal quite Christmas, in consequence of there being no "fire crackers" for the brimstone brigade, and corn juice for the older ones.

The marriage of A. B. Corbin and Miss Matilda Rogers, took place at the Baptist church on the 27th, after regular services. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dicken, and was very impressive, being characterized by that solemnity which should always prevail on such occasions. The happy couple with the attendants W. B. Corbin and Miss Emma Barrett, and many of the friends, repared to S. D. Rice's where a kind reception awaited them in the way of an extended table loaded with all the luxuries of life. On the day following they with many of their friends, were received at the parents of the groom, where there was a table fairly groaning under the many good eatables for which the mother of the groom is noted for arranging.

The Deciples of this place are felling the timber and preparing the foundation for a 50x30 church.

Botts is on the rampage in the tobacco business, and paying tolerably fair prices for the weed.

About the richest christmas joke that took place in this "neck of the woods" was the arrival of a certain widower of about three score years, on christmas day, expressly to see a certain young lady, who, to his utter surprise was to be married the following Wednesday.

The following officers were elected by Bellevue Lodge No. 544 for the ensuing year: O Snyder, W M,; O J Ryle, S W; W W Grant, J W; T H Sutton, Treas.; D M Snyder, Sec.; Elijah Ryle, S. D.; Wm Williamson, J D; J R Akins, Tyler.

Rabbit Hash.

The chief employment of our farmers at this time is striping tobacco.

Misses Katie and Fannie Craig have been spending the past week at home.

Mrs. M. McConnell entertained a number of friends Christmas day.

Wm. Hankinson and Miss Mollie Hillis were married Dec. 21st by Elder Dicken, of Bellevue. A large number of friends were in attendance. The supper was bountiful, consisting of all the edibles of the season. A reception was given the following evening by Mrs. Z. T. Stephens a sister of the groom. A delightful supper and a happy time was the order of the evening.

Wm. McConnell is the principal tobacco buyer in this section, and expects to handle a large quantity.

Last Thursday evening Mrs. M. Ryle entertained the young folks of our neighborhood about 60 in number. At the close of the party, instead of going to their respective homes an elopement took place. They were married in Cincinnati the next day, and their return was made joyful by tinhorns cow bells, &c. in great numbers. It will take the neighborhood sometime to recover from the surprise given by this event, as it was not known that the parties were contemplating matrimony. We extend them our congratulations, and hope that happiness and prosperity may attend them through life.

The principal parties in the above elopement were Filmore Ryle and Miss Lucy Stephens.

A Good many new sleighs are in readiness for use, but the snow does not come.

Several days ago John Hankinson drew over nine hundred dollars from the Rising Sun, bank, and lost the whole amount before he got home. He has the sympathy of all, as it is known that it was earned by hard work.

Richard Stephens returned home well pleased with trip to Washington City.

Petersburg.

Mr. Jim Green has returned home from Madison, Ind., where he has been spending the holidays.

At an election held in Petersburg Lodge No. 115, Sons of Temperance, on Tuesday night, the following officers were elected: Miss Susie Lyon W. P; F. M. Cox, W A, Chas Schramm, R S; Mary Gordon, F R S; Cora Early, F S; S G Botts, Treas; R E Boien, con.; Sallie Yerks, A con.; Annie Boien, I S; Chas McWethy, A S.

Misses Hattie Thompson, Lou Hall and Lou Thompson, of Rising Sun, Ind., made our town a flying visit, last Wednesday.

THE EAGLE
DRUG STORE,
—IS POSITIVELY—
THE CHEAPEST
—HOUSE IN—
RISING SUN, IND.
Where will be found a fresh stock of
DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,
SCHOOL BOOKS
—AND—
STATIONERY,
all at bottom prices.
GIVE US A CALL.
D. C. Thorn,
Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

DUDLEY ROUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.

Has Knocked Down the Price on a lot of LADIES' and CHILDREN'S Side-lace SHOES so low that the fignres will surprise you.

REMNANTS OF PRINTS
Have been overtaken by the same Slaughter and are being Closed out at Prices which make them go in a hurry. Several pieces of nice DRESS GOODS must be sold and to make you want them they are going to be dispo[illegible] of at a sacrifice. If you want any of the above goods call early as they are being taken rapidly.

I also have a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Yarns, Prints, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, Notions, &c.

A full stock of FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES always on hand

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 2-tf

L. C. NORMAN. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

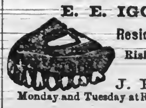
F. Adkinson. A. W. Gaines.
ADKINSON & GAINES,
Attorneys & Counseors at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. 41tf

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN

RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,



Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice.
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
32-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
Should take a policy at once.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN President, Burlington, Ky

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CASP,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.
New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.
JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun. Ind.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING!
BUT OUR ELEGANT STOCK OF CHRISTMAS AND HOLIDAY GOOD IS HERE!
WHOLE FAMILIES
Dance for joy at the sight of our Holiday Novelties.
BEAUTIFUL GIFTS,
UNIQUE GIFTS,
CHOICE GIFTS,
DELIGHTFUL GIFTS,
ELEGANT GIFTS,
SUPERB GIFTS,
At Prices Within Reason of All.
LANGSDALE & BUCHANAN,
RISING SUN, INDIAN

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
A [illegible] just rceived a beautitu
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
sOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. [illegible] Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Sat[illegible] guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON, Propri[illegible]

My Vegetable and Flower Seed Catalogue for 1883 will be sent FREE to all who apply. Customers of last season need not write for it. All seed sent from my establishment warranted to be both fresh and true to name so far, that should it prove otherwise, I agree to refill the order gratis. My collection of vegetable seed is one of the most extensive to be found in any American [illegible] and a large part of it is of my own growing [illegible] original introducer of Early Ohio and Burbank Potatoes, Marblehead Early Corn, the [illegible] Squash, Marblehead Cabbage, Phinney's Melon and a score of other new Vegetables. I invite the patronage of the public. In the gardens and on the farms of those who plant my seed will be found my best advertisement. James J. H. Gregory, Marblehead, Mass.

THE RECORDER.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY.

WHEN WE ALL LIVED TOGETHER.

How often memory dwells upon
  The days that are departed,
When we in love together lived,
  So fresh and simple-hearted;
O, happy, happy summer-time!
  O, blissful golden weather!
How bright and beautiful was earth
  When we all lived together!

I see the very corner where
  Dear grandmother is sitting,
In kerchief, cap and spectacles,
  So busy with her knitting;
I even seem to hear her voice
  Our merry tumult chiding,
As from behind her chair we caught
  The urchin who was hiding.

And when, at meal-time, eagerly
  We hurried to the table,
'Twas hard the laughter to suppress,
  Or hush the merry Babel;
And if one pulled a sober face,
  A better impulse showing,
Why, even that was quite enough
  To keep the others going.

And mother, dear, though dignified,
  Was never melancholy;
And father was so much a boy,
  Himself so kind and jolly,
That 'twas no wonder we broke loose
  From every gloomy tether,
And had a right good jovial time
  When we were all together.

The wintry days were full of sport,
  The evenings bright and charmful;
The books we read, the games we played,
  Had in them nothing harmful;
A healthy spirit filled the house,
  And Peace, with folded pinion,
Made her abode within the walls
  Where Love had true dominion.

But o'er the threshold strangers trod,
  Despite our protestations;
And then, ah me! what changes came!
  What fatal separations!
New ties were formed, new homes were made,
  By those to whom was given
A taste of blissful joy on earth,
  Or perfect bliss in Heaven.

This is the self-same sky that stretched
  Above those haunts elysian,
The dear old home that now is but
  A memory and a vision;
Yet as our hearts recall the past,
  We sigh, and wonder whether
The world is quite so fair as 'twas
  When we all lived together.

—Josephine Pollard, in N. Y. Ledger.

A RACE FOR LIFE.

Dinner is over, the ladies have withdrawn, and round the fragments of a costly dessert sit four gentlemen.

Colonel Harvie and his guests, Captain Morton and William Staines, are talking politics, while Master Tom Harvie (the Colonel's young nephew, home from Eton for the holidays, and spending them for the first time with his uncle, who has lately returned from India,) is busily engaged on an enormous pear, and wondering if it would be possible, with a little ingenuity, to get possession of the claret-bottle, which is at the other end of the table close to his uncle's elbow.

Presently he rises and strolls toward the coveted object, with a face of the most perfect indifference, and is just about to seize his prize, when—

"I should try an orange now, old boy, if you are thirsty," says his uncle.

Unhappy Tom knows what that means, and hastily retreats, baffled, but by no means beaten; he discusses the orange, which is followed by a bunch of purple grapes, and then, feeling at peace with himself and the whole world, joins in the conversation.

The Colonel and his friends being stanch Tories, and with very similar opinions on most political questions, any suggestion or theory advanced by one is carried unanimously by the other two; and, therefore, their remarks being neither very interesting nor exciting, Mr. Tom's chatter is listened to, much to that youth's surprise and pleasure.

"O uncle," he begins, "what is that extraordinary arrangement you have in the hall, facing the front door?"

"What, the bicycle?"

"Yes, I suppose it's a bicycle, but it's the nastiest old one I ever saw; and why should it stand on that splendid tiger-skin?"

"Ah, thereby hangs a tale," says Captain Morton, sententiously.

"To the tiger-skin or the bicycle?" laughed Tom.

"If you begin making bad jokes at your time of life, Master Tom, I don't know what will become of you. By the by, Staines, have you heard of Harvie's Indian adventure?"

Staines, who has only lately become acquainted with his host, says "No."

"I've written it in the shape of a story since I saw you last, Morton," says the Colonel, "and if you like, we will read it over our cigars; you, being a literary man, Staines, must listen critically."

"A story, hurrah!" shouts Tom.

The manuscript is produced, and Colonel Harvie, settling himself comfortably, adjusts his double eye-glasses, clears his throat, and begins:

Has a bicycle ever saved a man's life? A curious question, and one to which I imagine a few persons could answer affirmatively. I am one of those few, however; and as the life in question had a particular interest for me, being my own, all the details of the terrible event are firmly fixed in my memory.

The case is entirely without parallel, and will, I venture to think, interest general readers, though they may have no love for "a rubbishy bicycular thing," as I once heard an old farmer call my beloved machine. I was always very fond of bicycling, and from the time when I was a small boy, and labored for hours at a bone-shaker, to the days when I became the proud possessor of one of the first bicycles ever manufactured, I reveled in the enchanting pastime, spending hours which should have been otherwise occupied on the back of my iron horse, thus putting my physical powers a long way ahead of my mental. In fact, I hated the sight of a book, and was never happy unless scouring the country on my bicycle. My father was a doctor in a little Kentish village, and, having a large family, he was thankful, indeed, when, at the age of nineteen, a commission was obtained for me by a wealthy friend in a regiment about to sail for India. (No awful examinations in those days!) And one fine morning I found myself with the King's Own at Plymouth, starting in H. M. S. Ganges for our mighty Eastern Empire.

I will not attempt to describe my months of sea life, because every one has read of nautical adventures dozens of times before; suffice it to say, I was very sea sick and miserable the first week on board, like everybody else, and caught myself wishing I was dead. I found afterwards that was rather a common wish with people in the first agonies of this malady. Then I recovered, and enjoyed myself like everybody else; and saw a flying-fish, and was disappointed with it, like everybody else; and fished for hours, with about a quarter of a mile of line over the stern, catching nothing, like everybody else; and when we sighted land I was thankful, like everybody else.

A grand new bicycle was my father's parting present to me, and great was my delight at finding that another young "sub." in my regiment was also a bicyclist. In these days, when the "iron wheel" has so many votaries, this may seem nothing very strange; but, to realize my surprise and pleasure, you must remember that a bicycle was then a comparative curiosity, and a bicyclist a person to be stared at and admired, or otherwise.

Enormous was the amount of money betted by us on races to come, and innumerable the beauties we discovered in our own machines. Once we attempted a race on board, down one side of the deck; but a nasty lurch nearly sent my companion overboard, and the Captain soon put a stop to our proceedings.

Well, we reached our destination at last, and steamed up the mighty Hooghly to Calcutta.

Words fail me to describe the sensation which our bicycles caused. They were, I believe, the first ever seen in India; and as we rode together into the town, some days after our arrival, one would have thought it was the triumphal entry of some Eastern potentate.

Our first appearance was hailed with a cry of horror by a crowd of mendicants and children hovering round the outside of the market. Curiosity, however, soon got the better of their fear, and, by the time we had ridden a quarter of a mile, there was a regular mob at our heels, all following silently, with grave, earnest faces and quiet tread—in fact, they might have been attending some funeral.

Soon every available stall and house-top was crammed with heads; the street in front of us seemed cleared as if by magic; and on we rode as slowly as possible, trying to look like judges.

The first horse we came to nearly went into a fit. Had a native been driving, the consequences would probably have been serious; but the white soldier in the vehicle pulled the unhappy beast up, and made it follow and examine our bicycles.

These operations were watched by our body-guard with the deepest interest. We did not see many horses in town, fortunately, and the stalled oxen generally employed as beast of burden paid not the slightest attention to us. At length we arrived at a drinking-fountain, and alighted from our machines, causing another loud cry of astonishment. We had a refreshing drink and remounted.

As we reached the outskirts of the town we quickened our pace, and, finding a grand level stretch of road in front of us, began to race, soon leaving every one far behind.

I could fill a book with the curious incidents and accidents which befell us in going "up country." Our regiment was always on the move, and panics of one kind or other were very frequent on our bicycling excursions.

On one occasion, when I was riding quietly, a half-demented native (one of the few remaining followers of Juggernaut) ran out into the road in front of me, and fell down almost under my bicycle. The unfortunate man wished to sacrifice himself, as he would have done, under the huge wheels which carry his god. It was with the greatest difficulty I avoided him; and he rose with the air of a person who had quite made up his mind to leave this world, but had suddenly come back to it by a short cut. It certainly never struck him that his religious arrangements would put me out in the least.

My friend, too, met me an unpleasant adventure. Peacocks are common birds in India, and in some parts are sacred, no one being allowed to kill or shoot them; they swarm in the jungles, and are sometimes seen domesticated round the villages, strutting about like so many barn door fowls in an English farm.

My friend found out this to his cost; for one day, turning a corner at a good pace, he ran right into a flock of them, coming a nasty cropper himself, and killing one of the unfortunate birds. Endless complications followed. The owner vowed nothing we could give him would compensate for the loss of his sacred fowl, that ill-luck would fall on him and his house, and that the "sahib" would certainly die before the week was out. The "sahib," having given the man every farthing he had with him, and implored him to think no more about the matter, mounted his fallen steed and rode back to the camp, feeling somewhat crestfallen.

The affair did not end here, however; the native authorities of the village came in a body to our commanding officer; and it was with the greatest difficulty he managed to pacify them.

This occurrence created a bad impression in the place; and we were very glad to leave it for another station higher up the country. We were now approaching the hills; and the long-talked-of bicycle race I was to ride against my friend Fred Bent had not yet come off. Soon our pet pastime would have to be abandoned for an indefinite period; so one evening after mess we drew up and signed articles in the regular professional style to ride a ten mile race for a bet of five pounds a side, my opponent to receive three minutes' start (this little arrangement would have made us both forfeit our right to ever ride again as amateurs, but we did not know that then, and I daresay we should not have cared if we had). We were now stationed at the foot of the hills. The ground to our north became gradually broken, rising peak after peak, and stretching away to the region of eternal snow.

There was a grand native road within a short distance of our camp, running away for ten miles as flat as a drawing-board. It lay through the open plain, and then a deserted tract was reached, becoming wilder as the road proceeded, and finally swallowing it up in an impenetrable jungle. It was on this road I intended to train. Bent had found a circular path round some native huts a short way from the station, measuring about six laps to the mile, and here he prepared himself for the coming struggle.

After a week of such training as would make a modern athlete's hair stand on end—meat almost raw, chopped up very finely, etc.—we considered ourselves fit for the contest; and the adventure I am now about to relate occurred the evening before the eventful day. I was just starting for a last ride over my favorite course, when an officer passing stopped me, and said:

"Have you heard of the tiger, Harvie?"

"No," I answered.

"The natives have just brought word that a large tiger is marked down in the jungle about ten miles from here; so don't go too far this evening."

"All right," I laughed. "I think a tiger would find it a difficult matter to catch me—my training would tell on him."

I had not seen any large wild-beasts as yet, and my notion of a tiger was a thin sleepy-looking animal, as I had once seen in a traveling menagerie. Away I rode, my comrade's caution forgotten before I had gone a mile.

I started at a good pace, but not racing, as I intended to do all I knew coming home. In about an hour I reached my usual halting-place, ten miles from the camp; but this being the last night of my training, I made up my mind to ride another couple of miles, and then do the whole distance back at my best pace.

I rode on, and in another ten minutes found myself in the jungle.

Now for the race home.

Dismounting, I oiled my machine, tightened up every screw, and then sat down on a boulder to rest and enjoy the prospect. A beautiful scene it was, too!

Above me rose the grand mountains, their snowy tops blushing crimson in the setting sun; here a little waterfall, like a thread of gold and silver, flashing down the mountain-side, and twining in and out amongst the masses of trees and rocks; there a glimpse of fairyland through a jungle vista. A pool, or "tank," as they are called, surrounded by dense foliage, festooned by parasitical climbing plants, glowing with flowers of every imaginable hue; humming-birds, like fiery gems, flashed hither and thither, darting in and out amongst the trees. On the "tank" floated water-fowl of every kind, and the banks were alive with gorgeous birds, their plumage rivaling the flowers in brilliancy and variety of color. But now the shadows were deepening, the crimson on the mountain-tops had disappeared, and the cold snow began to look gray and ghostly. A flying fox went rushing past me, and I hastily prepared to mount; for there is scarcely any twilight in India, and I knew it would soon be dark.

As I rose, my eyes encountered something which made me start, and nearly drop my bicycle.

There, not forty yards off, was a tiger. I knew the animal well enough; but how different he looked from the lean, half-starved little beast I had seen at home! He had just come into the open space from a dense jungle-break, and sat there, washing his face and purring in a contented sort of way, like a huge cat.

Was I frightened? Not an atom; I had my bicycle and a start of forty yards, so if I could not beat him it was a pity.

He had not seen me yet, and I stood for another minute admiring the handsome creature, and then quietly mounted (the tiger was directly on my right, while the road stretched straight away in front of me). The noise I made roused him; he looked up, and then, after deliberately stretching himself, came leaping with long graceful bounds over the rank grass and rocks which separated him from the road. He did not seem a bit angry, but evidently wished to get a nearer view of such an extraordinary object.

Forty yards, however, I thought was quite near enough for safety. The tiger was in the road behind me now; so I pulled myself together, and began to quicken pace.

Would he stop, disgusted, after the first hundred yards, and give up the chase, or would he stick to it? I quite hoped he would follow me, and already pictured in my mind the graphic description I would write home of my race with a tiger.

Little did I think what a terrible race it was going to be. I looked behind me. By Jove! he was "sticking to it." I could not judge the distance; but at any rate I was no farther from him than when we started. Now for a spurt! I rode the next half-mile as hard as I could; but, on again looking round, found I had not gained a yard.

The tiger was on my track, moving with a long, swinging trot, and going quite as quickly as I was.

For the first time I began to feel anxious, and thought uneasily of the ten long miles which separated me from safety.

However, it was no good thinking now; it was my muscle and iron steed against the brute. I could only do my best, and trust in Providence.

Now there was no doubt about the tiger's intention; his blood was up, and on he came, occasionally giving vent to a roar, which made the ground tremble. Another mile had been traversed, and the tiger was slowly but surely closing up.

I dashed my pouch to the ground, hoping it would stop him for a few seconds; but he kept steadily on, and I felt it was then grim earnest.

I calculated we must be about seven miles from camp now, and before I could ride another four my pursuer, I knew, must reach me. O, the agony of those minutes, which seemed to me like long hours!

Another mile passed, then another. I could hear him behind me now—pad, pad, pad, quicker and quicker, louder and louder. I turned in my saddle for a moment, and saw there were not twenty yards separating us! How enormous the brute looked, and how terrible! His huge tongue hung out, and the only sound he made was a continual hoarse growl of rage, while his eyes seemed to literally flash fire.

It was like some awful nightmare, and, with a shudder, I bent down over the handles, and flew on.

As I now sit quietly in my chair writing, I find it hard to analyze the crowd of memories that went rushing through my brain during that fearful ride. I saw long forgotten events in which I had taken part rise up distinctly before me; and while every muscle was racked with my terrible exertion my mind was clear, and my life seemed to pass before me like one long panorama.

On, on on; the slightest slip, I knew, would be fatal; a sudden jolt, a screw giving, and I should be hurled to instant death.

Human strength would not stand much more; the prolonged strain had told upon me, and I felt it would soon be all over. My breath came in thick sobs, a mist gathered before my eyes—I was stopping; my legs refused to move, and a thousand fiends seemed to be flitting about me, holding me back, back! A weight like lead was on my chest; I was choking, I was dying. Then a few moments, which seemed a life-time, and then—crash—with a roar like thunder the tiger was on me, and I was crushed to the ground.

Then I heard shots fired, a Babel of men's voices, and all was over.

* * * * *

After many days of unconsciousness and raging fever, reason gradually returned, and I learnt the particulars of my deliverance.

A party of officers had started with a shikaree (or native hunter) to a trap which had been prepared for the tiger. A goat was tethered on the outskirts of the jungle, and the sportsmen had started to take up positions in the trees near, to wait for their game, which the bleat of the goat, in the stillness of the night, would speedily have attracted.

They were talking of our coming bicycle-race as they went along, and expecting every moment to meet me on my return journey. As they passed a clump of bushes I came in sight, about a quarter of a mile in front of them, whirling along in a cloud of dust, which hid my terrible pursuer. They soon, however, saw my awful danger. The huge brute, mad with rage, hurled itself upon me just as we reached them.

My friends stood almost petrified with terror, and did not dare to fire; but the shikaree, a man of iron nerve, and accustomed to face sudden danger of all kinds in the hunting-field, sprang quickly to within a yard of the tiger, and, putting his rifle almost to the animal's ear, fired twice, and blew its brains out, just in time to save my life. I was drawn from under the palpitating body of my dead enemy, every one present believing that it was all up with me.

Making a litter of boughs, they carried me into the camp, where I lay for many weeks lingering between life and death.

At the conclusion of the Colonel's story a general move was made, and the queer old bicycle, standing victorious upon the remains of his pursuer, and surrounded by many Indian trophies, was examined with the deepest interest.

"Allow me gentlemen, to introduce you to my valued old friend," said Colonel Harvie, "who took so prominent a part in my Race for Life."—London Society.

Feeding Pigs.

The most important business of a large proportion of American farmers at the present time is feeding swine for the purpose of making pork. Feeding pigs is a business against which there is an absurd prejudice in the minds of some persons who are not farmers. In ancient times there was a prejudice even against the pigs themselves. We read in the Scriptures that when the prodigal son had fallen to the lowest depths of his degradation and misery he was engaged in feeding swine. But a business to a great extent is made low and vulgar and degrading by the manner in which it is performed. And we also read that the poor unfortunate youth had nothing better to feed the swine with than husks. Certainly that was a poor business, and would be considered low and "ornery" by the lowest and poorest American farmer in existence. But the American pig is an animal of high degree which not only engages the attention of our best farmers and stock-breeders, who keep a herd-book for entering the pedigrees of the first families, but also that of capitalists and business men, and speculators who make corners in pork, and statisticians who figure up the amounts and values of pork products, besides the most eminent chemists and investigators in science, and moreover of statesmen at home and abroad, who find occasion for diplomatic squabbles on account of the American pig and his valuable products. And we might also note to what a large extent the pig enters into the calculations of the great bankers and money-dealers and how its value as pork, bacon, lard, and hams becomes a most serious element in the financial system, and sometimes turns a stream of gold hither or away, and raises or lessens the value of all the property in the country. For this animal, individually scorned and made an object of disgust and its name a by-word and reproach, is collectively worth $100,000,000 per annum, and then becomes an object of respect, if not of worship—an example of what so much money will do for a hog—or a man, even—to raise it or him in the public estimation. And just at this time there are about one million farmers engaged in fattening their swine and preparing them to enter into commerce, and become an object of regard to several millions more, who will have more or less to do with them before the products enter into wide and general consumption as food, and in this fattening there may be loss or profit, which may have an important bearing upon the aggregate wealth of the country, and more especially upon the farmers engaged in the business.

There have been a great number of scientific investigations in regard to the feeding of pigs and the making of pork, and the most skillful scientific men have been engaged in them. Besides this scientific and accurate information, a great number of scattering tests have been made, so many of which, however, have been undertaken in an uncertain manner and some have been so absurdly imperfect that a great deal of contradictory evidence has been brought forward which has led to error, confusion, and no doubt to loss and waste. For instance, the question is often asked if it is better to feed corn whole or ground, or dry, steeped, or cooked, for making pork, and there is so much divergence of opinion in regard to it that one may be very easily misled unless the whole case and the whole evidence are studied, and even then the result is such as not to be applicable to many cases that are always occurring.

There are many points for consideration in dealing with this question. Food makes flesh and fat only when it is completely digested. It is only then that food enters into the blood and renews its substance and produces muscular and fatty tissue. And the digestion of food depends not only upon the character of the food itself, but upon the health of the animal and the manner in which the food is eaten. Let us consider the latter first. Digestion begins in the mouth, which is the beginning of the alimentary canal. The digestive agent here is the saliva, which is a complicated fluid secreted from the salivary glands, and which has the property of converting starch into sugar. There is every reason to believe that starch is not digested until it is so changed, and that this change, begun in the mouth, is fully effected in the stomach and intestines by means of the bile and the pancreatic juice. The albuminoid portion of the food is digested in the stomach and intestines, and finally dissolved in the liver as it passes through that organ into the blood. The dissolved food and the fat emulsified by the pancreatic juice and poured into the great thoracic duct, by which they are carried into the lungs, and thence the fluid is poured into the arterial system, by which it is transported to the fine capillary vessels. From these the fibrine which is held in solution by the serum of the blood passes through their walls and is taken up by the cells of the muscular tissue and increases their growth and substance. The latter process is that of assimilation, which is the actual addition of muscular substance and fat to the body. This general view of the process of digestion gives but a faint idea of its importance, and also of the delicacy and complicated character of it, but will explain in some degree how it is that the results of experiments in feeding are so often contradictory and unsatisfactory unless made by practiced and skillful persons.—Henry Stewart, in N. Y. Times.

—A sensation of a very unusual kind occurred at a Smyrna, Del., church a Sunday or two ago. In the midst of the sermon the preacher said, "Let us praise Him," and a few understanding him to say "Let us pray," proceeded to kneel. The movement was contagious, and the whole audience were going to prayers, when the preacher exclaimed: "I did not say 'Let us pray;' I am not through yet—we will pray directly." So they resumed their seats with very broad faces and with emotions very foreign to pure worship.

—A few years ago a Lewiston man sent a present of six barrels of nice Maine apples to an aged and wealthy uncle in England. Recently the Lewistonian received a legacy of $15,000 from the uncle.—New York Tribune. A few weeks ago a Chicago man sent six nice apples to a wealthy uncle. The other day he received a bill for two bottles of Pain Killer. It is hard to head off Chicago.—Chicago Herald.

—It is said that the State capitol at Austin, Texas, will be larger than any building in this country, the National and New York State capitol alone excepted.

—A New Orleans man got so mad because he couldn't thread a needle that he kicked a chair and broke his leg.

CONSUMPTION in its early stages is readily cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," though, if the lungs are wasted, no medicine will effect a cure. No known remedy possesses such soothing and healing influence over all scrofulous, tuberculous and pulmonary affections as the "Discovery." John Wills, of Elyria, Ohio, writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' does positively cure consumption, as, after trying every other medicine in vain, this succeeded." Mr. Z. T. Phelps, of Cuthbert, Ga., writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured my wife of bronchitis and incipient consumption." Sold by druggists.

WHEN your son comes home with his feet "wringing wet" and says he hasn't been on the ice, it is fair to pronounce his story, like the ice, "too thin."

DR. PIERCE'S "Favorite Prescription" is a most powerful restorative tonic, also combining the most valuable nervine properties, especially adapted to the wants of debilitated ladies suffering from weak back, inward fever, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration, or from nervousness or neuralgic pains. By druggists.

TOM THUMB is a Knight Templar. He is the shortest Knight in the world—shorter even than the night of the 21st of June.

DYSPEPSIA, liver complaint, and kindred affections. For treatise giving successful self-treatment address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

AN exchange speaks of a certain railroad as being of the feminine gender because all her trains are behind.

IN some places a young man is not thought much of unless he owns a building lot. Out of site, out of mind.—N. O. Picayune.

COUGHS.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" will allay the irritation which induces coughing, giving immediate relief. Sold only in boxes.

MANY of the cigars labeled "Key West" bear a Kay-West-ionable resemblance to dried cabbage.—Chicago Tribune.

Henry's Carbolic Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions, etc. Get HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE, and take no other.

KLEPTOMANIA is a very stubborn and far-reaching disease. Its ravages can only be arrested by a policeman.—The Judge.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Is a cure for lung and throat diseases. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

A NEW book is titled "Short Sayings of Great Men." When are we to have "Great Sayings of Short Men?"—N. Y. News.

St. Anthony's Fire.

This is only another name for Erysipelas, one of the most terrible of human ailments. Mishler's Herb Bitters never fails to cure it. The wife of Mr. Chas. Wentzel, of Zanesville, Ohio, was cured by this remedy of a case of erysipelas of three years standing. Mishler's Herb Bitters, the most wonderful medical discovery of the 19th century, cures Dyspepsia, Ague, Sick Headache, Kidney and Liver trouble, and also purifies the blood, thus correcting a host of disorders. All respectable druggists sell it.

To GET up a dinner of great variety, cooks should be allowed a wide range.

ONE pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners.

THE weight of wealth—1,500 pounds to the ton.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

REDDING'S Russia Salve has genuine merit, as all who use it will testify. Price 25c. Try it.

WHEN a man says "cold as blazes" he means hot as ice. Take him as he means.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

SOME people object to the practice of feeing waiters, but does not the smiling morn tip the hills with gold.—Boston Courier.

SKINNY MEN. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health cures dyspepsia, impotence $1. "WELLS' ROUGH ON CORNS." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure. Corns, warts, bunions.

THE old saw "fine words butter no parsnips" is now rendered "elegant diction oleomargarines no pastinaca edulis."

D. LOTHROP & CO., Boston, a house that displays both wit and enterprise, publish four delightful pictorial magazines, adapted to various ages. Send for their prospectus.

IT was Mazzini who said: "Slumber not in the tents of your columns." But it is impossible to avoid slumbering in the contents of some columns.

MENSMAN'S peptonized beef tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Caswell, Hazard & Co., proprietors, New York. Sold by druggists.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives steadiness to the nerves, induces a healthy, natural flow of bile, prevents constipation without unduly purging the bowels, gently stimulates the circulation, and by promoting a vigorous condition of the physical system, promotes, also, that cheerfulness which is the truest indication of a well-balanced condition of all the animal powers. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

Burglars Outwitted!

A simple, sure and durable BURGLAR-PROOF LOCK ATTACHMENT. It can be readily attached to any lock and securely fastens the door so it cannot be unlocked from the outside. It takes the place of bolts and does not deface the door or casing. Every house will buy one or more. AGENTS WANTED for this and other articles which lady agents can handle. Address KENDALL & CO., "AGENCY EMPORIUM," Room 2, No. 126 Ontario Street, Cleveland, Ohio.

AGENTS Make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., N. Y.

$47 A MONTH and board in your county. Men or Ladies. Pleasant business. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Box 94, Chicago, Ill.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

A SURE CURE for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. KRUSE, 844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

BLACKHEADS or Fleshworms quickly cured. For Circulars, add. Lixaphata Mfg. Co., Bullion, Pa.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

ABSOLUTELY PURIFIES THE BLOOD, Equalizes its Circulation, Regulates its Supply, Improves its Quality, therefore Furnishes Vital Energy.

. . . . CONQUERS DISEASE. . . . .

PERFECTS DIGESTION, Improves the Appetite, Cleanses the Liver and Kidneys; Acts as a mild stomachic and Imparts Vitality and Elasticity to every Organ of the Body. Formula in use 300 years.

. . . . IT HAS NO PEER. . . . .

MALARIA GIVES UP THE GHOST upon use while the system is brought to a state of perfect health and vigor. Get it at once. $1. per Bottle.

Mishler's Green Label Bitters, a Specific for Scrofula, Old Sores, Syphilis, &c., while Mishler's Red Label Bitters are prepared expressly for Diseases peculiar to Females. $1.50 per Bottle.

All sold by Druggists.
Send for book "Messenger of Health."
MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.
Lancaster, Pa.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup works like a Charm.

PETROLINA COLD CREAM AND CAMPHOR ICE.

The most elegant and deserving preparation of Cold Cream in the world. It is delicately and exquisitely perfumed, and a valuable emollient (far excelling Glycerine in resisting atmospheric action), invaluable for use at the seashore, curing sunburn, rough skin, chapped lips, tan and freckles; it will positively cure chapped hands and face, and when used after washing and shaving, keeps the skin soft and velvety. The theatrical profession will find these preparations superior to all others for counteracting the effect of make-ups, grease paint, etc. Porcelain pots, 25c.; pound-cans, $1. Sold by Druggists and Dealers in Toilet Articles. BINGHAMTON OIL REFINING CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

This N.Y. Singer, $20

With $3 set of Attachments Free. Warranted perfect. Light running, quiet, handsome and durable. Sent on test trial-plan when desired. Happy Home Organs; 2 sets Reeds, 13 stops, Mechanical Sub Bass, octave coupler, 2 knee swells, with $3 stool and $1 Book, only $65. Also sent on test trial-plan if desired. Elegant case, magnificent tone, durable inside and out. Circular, with testimonials, free. Ask G. Payne & Co. 47 Third av. Chicago.

SEEDS

I will give you the best Seeds for the least money of any firm in America or refund. Western Seeds are best. Mine take the lead. Gardeners say they never fail. I used 500 lbs paper to print 30,000 pretty Catalogues illustrated with $2,000 worth of engravings. It beats the world, worth many dollars. FREE. Prices below all. R. H. SHUMWAY, Rockford, Ill.

Best Seeds cheap pretty Book Free.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

SUMMIT STOVE-PIPE SHELF.

Improved Extension Just Patented. AGENTS WANTED. $1400.00 made by one Agent in fifty-six days. Full particulars and lots of Agents reports, showing quick Sales and large Profits, free. No Freight or Boxing charges to Agents. Address at once and secure choice territory free.

J. E. SHEPARD & CO., CINCINNATI, O.

PATENTS PROCURED! or NO PAY! Also—Trade marks, etc. Send model and sketch; will examine and report if patentable. MANY years practice. Pamphlet free. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D.C.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment address P. W. REAM, Ada, O.

HULLERS For pamphlets describing two great Alliance Clover Hulling Attachment write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO. Mansfield, O.

PATENTS Procured by American Patent Agency, 188 5th Street, Cincinnati, O.

Barker's Green Corn Cutting Machine

Used in over 200 corn factories. Manufactured by VOLNEY BARKER, Portland, Me. P. O. Box 693.

YOUNG MEN If you want to learn Telegraphy in a few months, and be certain of a situation, address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

Send $2 in A. W. Hamilton & Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., for Dr. Chase's Family Physician; it is fast. Agents Wanted. Watson's Interest Tables $3 50.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

1000 Young men wanted. Send 3c. stamp for samples of my alphabets. J. W. Feighman, Eagle River, Mich.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL A LINIMENT

MANUFACTURED BY MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL CO. ESTD—1833 JOHN HODGE, SEC'Y.—LOCKPORT, N.Y. U.S.A.

For Internal and External Use.

CURES RHEUMATISM,
Burns, Scalds, Chilblains,
Frost Bites, Chapped Hands,
Flesh Wounds, Sprains, Bruises,
External Poisons, Caked Breasts,
Sore Nipples, Toothache,
Cramps or Spasms of Stomach,
Colic, Asthma, or Internal Pain,
Lame Back, Bites of Animals,
Galls of all kinds, Sitfast,
Ringbones, Cracked Teats,
Poll Evil, Garget in Cows, Spavins,
Sweeney, Scratches of Grease,
Foot Rot in Sheep, Stringhalt,
Windgalls, Roup in Poultry,
Foundered Feet, Fistula,
Cracked Heels, Mange in Dogs.

Ask your nearest Dealer or Druggist for one of our Almanacs for 1883.

From the Christian Leader N. Y., Oct. 3d, '71.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—We have made special personal inquiry in regard to the merits of this celebrated remedy, and find it a genuine article of rare value. It is by no means a new remedy. The establishment which produces it dates its manufacture as far back as 1833, since which time it has been steadily growing in public favor. The patentees are among the foremost business men of the city of Lockport. They are every way reliable.

From the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, July 6, 1871.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—This Old standard article, under the admirable management of John Hodge, Esq., has reached an enormous sale. It is an honestly compounded article; it has merit, and now that the best business talent of the country is handling it, there is no reason why it should not double its present usefulness. No family can afford to be without it. For family use, as well as for animals, it is simply indispensable.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

All we ask is a fair trial, but be sure and follow directions.

The Gargling Oil and Merchant's Worm Tablets are for sale by all druggists and dealers in general merchandise throughout the world.

Large Size $1.00; Medium 50 c.; Small 25 c.; Small Size for family use 25 c.

Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company.

John Hodge
Secretary.

GREAT SAVING FOR FARMERS!

—THE— Lightning Hay Knife! (WEYMOUTH'S PATENT.)

Awarded "First Order of Merit" at Melbourne Exhibition, 1880.

Was awarded the first premium at the International Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, and accepted by the Judges as SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHER KNIFE IN USE.

It is the BEST KNIFE in the world to cut fine feed from bale, to cut down mow or stack, to cut cornstalks for feed, or to cut peat, and has no equal for cutting sods or ditching in marshes, and for cutting ensilage from the silo has no equal. TRY IT. IT WILL PAY YOU. Manufactured only by

HIRAM HOLT & CO., East Wilton, Me., U. S. A.

For sale by Hardware Merchants and the trade generally.

CANCER INSTITUTE.

AURORA ILL.

Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION. 25 100

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS. Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and astonish you.

CATARRHOLINE.

A Systematic and Scientific Treatment for Deafness, Catarrh in all its Forms, and Hay Fever.

Catarrholine is a matchless treatment for that harassing, consumption-breeding, malady—Catarrh, affording not a momentary relief, but a permanent cure.

MY ENDORSEMENT IS TWO-FOLD. First I have had years of instruction under the well-known, but now deceased, DR. S. W. FORSHA, of Cincinnati, who devoted 50 years of his long life to the professional field. Second, I have positively cured 775 cases of Deafness and Catarrh since November, 1881. NASAL 2 4, DRY 1 9, CHRONIC 296 and 87 of DEAFNESS, 11 of which were totally deaf from childhood, now hear. One hundred and forty are confined to Troy and neighborhood, within reach of any sufferer who wishes to consult them. Among those cured are the following: E. F. Carver, Troy, Ohio, 70 years old, deafness and catarrh; A. J. Shidaker, Troy, catarrh; Ross Gensinger, Troy, deaf from childhood; W. W. Simmons, Troy, deafness and catarrh; Miss N. M. Wood, Ladies' Emporium, Troy, catarrh; Mrs. Lidia Swartz, Adison, O., deafness and catarrh; Miss Lizzie Gruva, Casstown, O., deaf from childhood; Kenneth Anderson, Piqua, O., catarrh and asthma; Mrs. Fisher, Piqua, chronic catarrh; Harrison Nolen, Troy, Ohio, nasal catarrh; Mrs. Reed, Piqua, Ohio, deafness and catarrh; Mr. Statoney, Amos Williams, Stannton, O., deafness and catarrh; Mr. Johnson, Troy, O., sun pain, deafness and catarrh; Mr. Curry, Troy, O., catarrh in its worst form; Mrs. Knupp, St. Paris, Ohio, chronic catarrh. For further particulars call at my office, or send for Treatise and 8 page paper, free, containing testimonials of reliable citizens right here. Mention this paper. DR. DENNISON, Troy, Miami County, O.

WHAT WILL THE WEATHER BE TO-MORROW?

Pool's Signal Service Barometer OR STORM GLASS AND THERMOMETER COMBINED, WILL TELL YOU!

It will detect and indicate correctly any change in the weather 12 to 48 hours in advance. It will tell what kind of storm is approaching, and from what direction—invaluable to navigators. Farmers can plan their work according to its predictions. Saves 50 times its cost in a single season. Has an accurate thermometer attached, which alone is worth the price of the combination. This great WEATHER INDICATOR is endorsed by the most eminent Physicians, Professors and Scientific men of the day to be the BEST IN THE WORLD! The Thermometer and Barometer are put in a nicely finished walnut frame, with silver plated trimmings, etc., making it a beautiful as well as useful ornament. We will send you a sample one, delivered free, to your place, in good order, on receipt of $1, or six for $4. Agents are making from $5 to $20 daily selling them. A trial will convince you. Order at once. It sells at SIGHT. Just the thing to sell to farmers, merchants, etc. Invaluable to everybody. U. S. Postage Stamps taken if in good order, but money preferred. Agents wanted everywhere. Send for Circular and terms. Address all orders to OSWEGO THERMOMETER WORKS, (Largest establishment of the kind in the world) Oswego, Oswego Co., N. Y. We refer to the Mayor, Postmaster, County Clerk, First and Second National Banks, or any business house in Oswego, N. Y. Write your Post Office, County and State plainly, and remit by money order, draft on New York or registered letter, at our risk. This will make a Beautiful and Very Useful Present.

READ WHAT THE PUBLIC SAY ABOUT IT.

I find Pool's Barometer works as well as one that costs $50. You can rely on it every time. Capt. CHAS. B. ROGERS, Ship "Twilight," San Francisco.

Barometer received in good order, and must say that the instrument gives perfect satisfaction in every respect. It is neatly made and wonderfully cheap at two dollars. GEO. B. PARSONS, M. C. R. R. Office, Detroit, Mich.

Pool's Barometer has already saved me many times its cost, in foretelling the weather. It is a wonderful curiosity and works to perfection. F. J. ROBERTSON, Milwaukee, Wis.

BEWARE OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS. None genuine without our Trade Mark, and signature of J. A. POOL on the back of instrument, as below:

J. A. Pool TRADE MARK.

Every instrument warranted Perfect and Reliable. Size 9 1-2 inches long 3 1-4 wide. If not satisfied on receiving the instrument, return it at once and we will refund your money. Please state where you saw our advertisement.

USE NONE BUT THE BEST, THE GREAT FAMILY SOAP MAKER SAPONIFIER THE ORIGINAL CONCENTRATED LYE SOLD BY ALL GROCERS PENN'A SALT MF'G CO. PHILA.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.

Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

ELECTRIC BELT $3; $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

50 CENTS FOR THREE MONTHS.

The new volume (nineteen) of DEMOREST'S ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY MAGAZINE for 1883 is the best and the cheapest Family Magazine published, printed on the finest tinted paper, size 8¼x11½ inches. The three numbers now ready of volume 19 weigh 1¼ pounds and contain 210 pages of large, clear print. New Novelettes, Stories, Biographies, Poetry, Travels and valuable information of the day and for the household in demand by every family. 144 Illustrations, 8 Photo Plates and 4 Oil Pictures. W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 17 East 14th Street, New York. Single copies, Twenty Cents; yearly subscription, Two Dollars.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Boone County Recorder.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1883. NUMBER 11.

THE CHILDREN'S COUNTRY.

She is sitting very silent in her little crimson chair,
With the flicker of the firelight on her pretty golden hair;
And all pleasant things surround her; but her thoughts are otherwhere.

For these little lads and lasses have a country of their own,
Where, without the older people, they may wander off alone
Into dim and distant regions, that were never named or known.

They are wearied with the questions, and the running to and fro;
For some one is always saying: "You must come," or "You must go."
"You must speak and write correctly, sitting, standing, thus and so."

So they turn at every moment, from the figures on their slates;
And the names of all the islands, and the oceans, and the States
Are forgotten in a moment when they see the shining gates.

Of their own delightful country where they wander as they please,
On the great enchanted mountains, or beneath the forest trees,
With a thousand other children, all entirely at their ease.

Oh, the happy, happy children! do they wish for anything,
Book or bird, or boat or picture, silken dress or golden ring?
Lo! a little page will hasten, and the treasure straight will bring.

It is strange the older people can not find this land at all;
If they ever knew its language, it is lost beyond recall,
And they only, in their dreamings, hear its music rise and fall.

Oh, the riches of the children with this country for their own!
All the splendor of its castles, every flower and precious stone,
Until time itself is ended, and the worlds are overthrown.

—St. Nicholas.

A RUSSIAN NOBLEMAN.

In former times the nobility of Europe held the common people in a condition of vassalage, a relation in which the serf was absolutely subject to the whim or will of his master. I never had so clear a conception of this state of society, and of its possibilities of tyranny and cruelty, as I had after hearing the stories which my Russian guide told me one day, in the little Russian village of Faboriel. The following was a part of his narrative in which he described a nobleman who formerly lived in the castle in that town. It gives also a view of the headstrong, overbearing, brutal character of one class of Russian nobles of the last generation.

"I remember one day," said the aged guide, "when I accompanied my master, the Prince, on one of his hunts. It was a bitter cold day, and there was a slight show of ice on the river below—thin enough to be broken by a small copper coin.

"We had caught a number of fine hares in the fields, and on returning the whole company of hunters paused on yonder cliff. The monastery was behind us, and the monks left off praying and came out to see our game, of which the Prince always presented them with one-third.

"Well, my master was in a merry mood. He sent off the monks to fetch him a barrel of vodka—Russian brandy.

"By-and-by a number of boy-monks were seen kicking and rolling before them a barrel of the required drink. My master took his seat upon it, broached it at once, and with a ladle began to help himself and us in turn.

"We all began to feel warm and merry, and the Prince became just a little excited. So he told some of us to make a reisak—to break the ice by plunging head foremost down the cliff on the ice on the river, and coming up in some other place.

"A few hard-headed ones threw themselves down head foremost. But on that day no one succeeded in making a reisak. Some stupidly fell on their backs on the ice, which was not the thing at all. Others never reached the ice, but struck against the side of the cliff. And one unlucky fellow named Goursky put his neck out of joint and never moved again.

"The three who really succeeded in breaking the ice never came up; they remained to take care of the fishes, or perhaps were led away down, down to the bottom of the river by the russalkas, or water-fairies.

"Oh dear, that was a great day; my poor Prince was in a foaming rage. 'I'll flog you all to death,' he screamed. At that moment his eyes fell upon his private secretary, a poor, timid, kindly-tempered man.

"'Here you,' said the Prince, addressing the trembling secretary, 'make me a reisak this instant.'

"'Your highness,' replied the unhappy man, 'I would do it if I knew how.'

"'It is time you learnt your duty, you rascal; make me a reisak this instant.'

"The trembling creature threw himself down head foremost; he also broke the ice, but he never came up again—at least we never saw him in these parts. At that my poor master was so disappointed that he burst into tears and sobbed passionately.

"'It is plain that my last days are at hand,' he cried, 'when I can not find one man among my thousands who can make a reisak. But where,' he added, 'is crop-eared Iaska?'

"Now this was none other than my own father. 'He is the man,' said the Prince, 'that can make reisaks one after the other.' My father was at work on a farm at some distance; 'Send for him at once,' cried the Prince. And off started a messenger to fetch him.

"Meanwhile the weather grew colder, a bitter wind began to blow from the north, and the ice became thicker. It was almost dusk when my father arrived, and the ice had so thickened that if he had had a head of iron, he would have been unable to make a reisak.

"'Now, you rogue,' said the Prince, 'show these ignorant hounds how to make a reisak.'

"My father, who was an iron-willed man, knew better than to disobey his Prince. He gave him one look to make sure that he was in earnest, took off his sheep-skin coat and handed it to me, saying: 'Son, keep this in remembrance of me, for I am going to Paradise.' Then he crossed himself three times, while he muttered a prayer.

"Then he threw out his arms like sails, and flung himself down head foremost. Away he sped revolving like a wheel, and having reached the river he lay on the ice in the perfect stillness and peace of the dead.

"Now I often see my father preparing to fling himself down, and I seem to hear his voice saying: 'Son, obedience is better than life.'

"Our Prince was a great man for all that, and a great lover of justice. Once he heard that a merchant in his village had cheated the wife of a poor peasant. He at once mounted his horse, galloped to the market-place, and entered the merchant's shop.

"'Ah! Tchourkin, Tchourkin,' said he, 'you have been a rascal. Now quit the shop at once.'

"The Prince installed himself in the discomfited merchant's place. With the yard-measure in his hand he stood at the door of the shop and cried out in a loud voice, so that he could be heard all through the market-place:—

"'Walk up here, ladies and gentlemen, walk up here and look at our goods. We give no change, and we will not be bothered with small money from our customers. If you pay we'll thank you for it; but if you don't, why, then it can't be helped. Only walk in and buy.'

"Every one rushed to the shop. The Prince served them himself behind the counter, measuring the goods by the yard and by whole pieces. In less than three hours the entire shop was cleared of its goods; but the sum produced by this extraordinary sale was ridiculously small.

"'There,' said the Prince, beckoning to the crest-fallen merchant to come in, 'there is your ready money, but a good deal has been sold on credit. You can now exert your wits, not in cheating my poor serfs, but in collecting your debts. But mind you never forget the people whom you cheated; lest a worse fate befall you.'

"The great event of each day was the Prince's afternoon nap. The moment the Prince, with his pipe in his mouth, placed himself in his arm-chair, a flag was hoisted from the palace turrets—a warning signal to tell that the lord of the estate was napping.

"When it was seen floating from above, the stillness of death fell upon all around. Everything stood still; not even a cat in the village dared to mew.

"There was at one time a ruined landlord of noble birth, who for want of means, lived with the Prince. Now this gentleman was a bit of a wag. One unlucky day in midsummer, while the Prince was having a nap in his arm-chair in the eastern pavilion, and the flag was fluttering from above, and peace and quiet reigned far and near, the ruined gentleman, named Rubathky, out of mere bravado, shouted the first line of a popular song called 'The Road,' and took to his heels.

"The watchmen on duty, with the resignation of their class, had also gone to sleep.

"At that instant the Prince awoke, heated and enraged. His voice was heard demanding in terrible accents, 'Who sang "The Road"?'

"The servants, terrified out of their wits, ran about like wild people, but could not discover any one who could have committed the dreadful act.

"'Who sang "The Road"?' yelled the infuriated Prince, rushing to the front door with a huge whip in his hand. 'Let him instantly come forward, or I'll beat every one of you.'

"Not a soul appeared. The enraged Prince re-entered the house and began to make a general havoc of the table-glasses and china. The butler and head-steward rushed to Vashka's room. Vashka was the Prince's hired singer. They entreated him to take the blame upon himself. Their tears and supplications had no effect, until they seconded them with a promise of ten rubles.

"Poor Vashka was unwilling to tell the untruth, or to bring his back into close contact with the knout, but then he was in dreadful need of the money. At length he yielded, and said: 'If he does not beat me with his own hands, see that you lay it on lightly.'

"By this time the Prince had worked himself into a terrible state of frenzy.

"At length voices were heard, crying that they were bringing the man. And lo! the butler and steward were seen dragging poor innocent Vashka along with them, his hands and feet tied with strong cords.

"The Prince, with a great knout in his hand, seated himself on the sofa, in order to bring his whole mind to judge this case fairly. The lookers-on were so terrified that they hardly knew whether they were dead or alive.

"'Did you sing "The Road"?' demanded the Prince.

"'I am in fault, your highness, I did,' said Vashka, in a voice full of terror, as he crouched at his master's feet.

"The Prince was silent; he gazed a few moments at the terror-stricken musician at his feet, and then said: 'You have a beautiful voice; sing the whole song to me, this instant.'

"The trembling musician, still bound, lying at his master's feet, sang the song with musical sweetness.

"When he had finished, the Prince rewarded him with an embroidered caftan and ten silver rubles."—A. H. Leonowens, in Youth's Companion.

A Romantic Career.

The story of Reuben Porter Lee, who has just been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary for embezzling $200,000 from the First National Bank of Buffalo, reads like a romance. Entering the institution as messenger boy at the age fifteen, he had filled the positions of bookkeeper, teller, cashier, Vice-President and President at the age of thirty-two. He was elected to the last position last January, at which time the stock of the bank was worth 160. Three months afterward the institution closed its doors, hopelessly insolvent. Lee obtained the money by discounting his own, his wife's and his father's notes, each in excess of the ten per cent. of the bank's capital stock, which is the highest limit allowed to any single borrower. He allowed the reserve to be drawn below the fifteen per cent. required by law and carried paper for a worthless firm to the extent of $1,000,000 at times. He received his sentence with seeming indifference, but his young wife was nearly heart-broken. He appears to have been a consummate and heartless scamp, who richly deserves all the punishment he got.—Chicago Herald.

—A cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthful weather.

THE DAIRY.

—The most flourishing branch of British agriculture during the last year or two has been dairy farming. The Mark Lane Express says: "American competition stimulated those interested in butter and cheese to set about improving their practice."

—Bitter milk is a matter of frequent occurrence every fall and winter, or soon after the cows are off from grazing. It is caused first by bitter herbs in the hay—such as May weed, Johnswort, etc., and also by the use of too much over-ripe food, such as straw, corn stover, or late cut hay. It never occurs when cows are fed on good food, and are thriving, or even holding their own, and are kept comfortably warm.

—Cows must be kept warm in winter in order to obtain a good flow of milk. Exposure to cold not only diminishes the flow of milk but increases the consumption of food. Exposure to cold in yards or open barns, according to careful experiments, requires an increase of one-half more food for the cows, and a less yield of milk is obtained than with less food in warm stables. Even exposure to cold for a short time diminishes the yield of milk.

—Dairymen abroad have been experimenting for the purpose of determining which yield of milk, the morning or evening's mess, is the richer of the two. The decision was in favor of the evening's mess being the richer for both butter and cheese making qualities. The milk of cows fed ground-feed in winter was richer than that produced by the same cows from grass in summer. This is not a matter of very great moment to the dairyman, though he should keep posted on all these little points.

—"Caird," a dairy writer, mentions a case where a herd of cows, which had been usually supplied from troughs and pipes in the stalls, were on account of an obstruction in the pipes, obliged to be turned out twice a day, while the weather was cold, to be watered in the yard. The quantity of milk instantly decreased, and in three days the falling off became very considerable. After the pipes were mended, and the cows again watered as before in their stalls, the flow of milk returned. Cows when giving milk are more sensitive to the cold than when they are dry, and exposure to severe cold interferes with the secretion of milk.

English Butter Making.

A visit to the Gloucestershire farmhouse was devoted to viewing the process of butter making. Though emphatically not a believer in "luck," properly so called, I know enough about cookery to admit that there is such a thing as a "lucky hand" in pastry, and, as in pastry, so in butter making, a cool, light hand is above all things necessary. The hand of the operator should be first plunged into hot water, and then allowed to stand in cold water until thoroughly cooled. The usual practice then is to rub it with salt; but, as this is rather severe treatment during the winter months, it will then be found better to rub it with buttermilk and flour instead. A primary rule in butter making is that everything which the butter touches must be wet in order to prevent it sticking, and a not less necessary rule is that every thing should be perfectly clean. Every utensil must be well scrubbed, the wooden pails with wood ash and hot water. It is not usual to scrub the churn inside; but it should be washed out first with lukewarm water and then with a boiling solution of soda and water, which should be left standing in it for about ten minutes. It is usually said that a quart of cream will make one pound of butter, but in order to do this the cream must be thick and good. Those who look more to the quality than the quantity of their butter will only skim the milk twice—that is, every twelve and twenty four-hours. While the cream is being collected for butter it must be changed twice a week into clean vessels, and, except in very cold weather, it is best to scald the first half of the cream, add a small piece of saltpetre to it, keep it distinct, and then, when butter day comes round, to add it to the fresh lot. Cold water should be left standing in the churn in summer, but in winter the churn should be scalded with boiling water and the water allowed to stand in it for ten minutes before the operation of butter making begins. When all is ready the cream is put into the churn with a small quantity of salt—roughly speaking, a handful of salt to about twenty pounds of butter will be enough (some people add a little saltpetre, about one tablespoonful of the above quantity); then the churning commences, and must be continued till the butter comes. As a rule in warm weather the butter may be expected in about an hour, but in winter it will take longer; be the time long or short, however, there is nothing for it but to go on until you are done. Sometimes, by the rule of contraries, I suppose, the butter will "go to sleep" in the churn—that is, it will be light and frothy, and will refuse to come. This must be counteracted by turning the churn round very slowly, just as you would do if the cream were heavy, sometimes one way and sometimes another, until the cream has returned to its duty. Under these circumstances the judicious introductions of a sixpence into the churn will occasionally prove useful in giving the cream something to beat against. When the butter has "come" (I know of no more technical word), water is poured in, and the butter washed in the churn; it is then turned out of the churn into the skeel, and the salt worked into it. This is usually done by taking first one-third of the butter, then another and then another, sprinkling the salt over it and working it lightly and deftly against the bottom of the skeel. The next operation is covering the butter with water, washing it well for the second time, and laying it on cloths to drain, then for a few minutes more it is again worked in the skeel, and it is then ready to be weighed out and printed. Those who prepare butter for sale will do well to see that their weight is good, as the butter readily loses weight by the evaporation of the water; nor can they do better than follow the example of my instructress, who makes a habit of putting a penny piece into the scales along with each one pound of butter.—London Queen.

Religious.

THE SYRO-PHŒNICIAN'S STORY.

For years my heart had longed to have a child
My own, my very own, to be to me
Helper, companion, solace in my grief,
And dear responsive friend. And when she came—
My little daughter—all my heart was glad,
And my long shaded life became so bright
That it was never darkened, and my way
Was through a laughing land all gay with flowers.
And fair with fairest sunshine. Patiently
I sought to train the child, as one might do
A sapling that ere long should be a tree,
Under whose shelter quietness and rest
Should be reward of trouble; so I thought
When the swift years had made my daughter tall,
And lighted up the sweetness of her eyes
With new intelligence, and crowned her brow
With the tightfulness and dignity, and taught
Her lips to sing the low soft songs of love,
There would be nothing, in the whole wide world,
So beautiful, so lovable as she,
My only darling.

But alas for hope
That faded into tears! My sorrow came
Like the dark dawn of an unwelcome day
Laden with trouble. Unto it at first
I would not turn my eyes, but kept them closed;
And sought to woo the night dreams back again;
For they were better than the real things
That waited for me. But it might not be:
I had to learn the anguish of my lot,
And know that evil with its tyrant rule
Had claimed my daughter! Oh, 'twas hard, indeed,
To look into her thought-disfigured face,
To see the fiendish light within her eyes,
To hear the mocking laugh, the shrieking voice;
To hunger for a gentle word of love,
And get but curses night and day to watch,
Lest others learnt the secret, and to hide
Deep in my heart the bitterness of grief
That almost slew me.

But at last I heard
Strange stories of a Healer; and for once
I wished myself a Jew, for He had come
To Israel and some could see in Him
The great Messiah. But whoso'er He was
He had such power to heal, such might to make
The unclean spirits go where'er He bade,
That I believed, if I could only take
My daughter to Him, she would be the same
As other girls, and love me back again
For all my love, and manifest to all
Meekness and goodness, purity and grace.
I could not help but mourn, because there seemed
No way to get to Him, although I strove,
And thought, and worried, aye, and almost prayed
To accomplish it. Then lo! I heard the news
That He had come away into the parts
Of Tyre and Sidon; and, without delay,
I went to find Him. And I told myself
(To give me faith and courage) that so good,
So great a man as He must surely be
The Son of David, and so pitiful
To women and their children that He fain
Must help me, and I would not come again
Unto my home, till He had given to me
That which I longed for. Yes, and all the way
I drew glad pictures of a happy home,
With a good, gentle face that made it fair,
And dear loved-lighted eyes to look in mine,
And the sweet music of a low-toned voice
Calling me mother.

Then a little crowd
Drew to itself my thought, and in the midst
He walked! I knew the Master instantly,
And going straight to Him, I cried, at once:
"O Lord, Thou Son of David, pity me,
Have mercy on me: my young daughter has
An unclean spirit, vexing grievously
Her life—have mercy on me!"
But the Lord
Kept on His way, and answered not a word.

I followed closely. Was I going back
Silenced and disappointed? Nay, not I!
I had too much at stake thus to give up
My utmost my opportunity; and so
I kept as close to Him as I could dare,
And heeded not the dark looks of the men,
And would not let them push me quite away,
And would not be forgotten by the Lord,
But lifted up my voice, and prayed again:
"Have mercy on me."

And at last the men
Spoke for me to their Master. Did they speak
For me or for themselves? And did they ask
My blessing or denial? I cared not;
"Send her away," they said (I wearied them),
"She crieth after us."

And then He spoke;
And oh, the gracious accents of His voice
Thrilled through my spirit and awoke in me
A new strange reverence. Although His words
Were ominous: "I am not sent but to
The lost sheep of the house of Israel,"
I drew the nearer to Him, and fell down
Before His feet, and worshipped Him, and said:
"Lord, help me!"

Then He slowly turned to me,
And—did He mock me? "'Tis not meet," He said,
"To take the children's bread and throw to dogs:"
And I grew bold to answer, for I read
More mercy in His eyes than in His words:
"Truth, Lord, I am a dog, and not a child,
Yet do the children's crumbs fall to the dogs,
From off their Master's table."

Oh! His smile
Was wonderful! His gracious, tender words,
Made me so glad that I could only weep.
"Great is thy faith, and be it unto thee,
O woman, even as thou wilt," He said;
And I but stayed to thank Him with a sob,
Of infinite relief; and hastened home,
To find my daughter all my heart had wished,
And more than all. And as I felt her arms
About my neck, and in her steadfast eyes
Read the completeness of the cure, I told
The wondrous story of the Merciful
Until she loved Him, too; and in our joy
We knelt together, hoping He could hear,
And praised Him, vowing that henceforth we both
Were His disciples, serving only Him.
—Marianne Farningham, in London Christian World.

Sunday-School Lessons.

FIRST QUARTER.

Jan. 7—The Ascending Lord		Acts 1: 1-14
Jan. 14—The Descending Spirit		Acts : 1-16
Jan. 21—The Believing People		Acts 2:37-47
Jan. 28—The Healing Power		Acts 3: 1-11
Feb. 4—The Prince of Life		Acts 3:12-21
Feb. 11—None Other Name		Acts 4: 1-11
Feb. 18—Christian Courage		Acts 4:18-31
Feb. 25—Ananias and Sapphira		Acts 5: 1-11
Mar. 4—Persecution Renewed		Acts 5:18-32
Mar. 11—The Seven Chosen		Acts 6: 1-15
Mar. 18—The First Christian Martyr		Acts 7:54-60, and 8: 1-4
Mar. 25—Review; or, Missionary, Temperance, or other Lesson selected by the school.

SIN AGAINST GOD.

That prince of scoffers—Colonel Ingersoll—said in a recent lecture: "I cannot sin against God, because He is a conditionless being. I can only sin against a being who is subject to conditions like myself." This, no doubt, will be regarded by many infidels as a very profound observation, and an unanswerable argument. Let us puncture it a little, and see whether or not it is not purely vapory.

We venture the assertion that there was present to the mind of the author of this no clearly defined ideas of the meaning of the terms he used. He has no true conception of the import of the term "sin;" and as to the term "conditionless" he cheated himself and his applauding audience with mere sound. Does he mean to say that God is in no way bound by the conditions of the moral government He has established. He certainly is conditioned by it as its author, as its preserver, as its sovereign and judge. He who is the author of the moral sense within man—that which, with an invincible imperative, says man ought to do right and ought not to do wrong; which says when I do wrong I am condemned—this moral imperative within me certainly indicates that I am conditioned by the law and government of God, and the conditions of a righteous government is to see that I do right. If I take the life of my fellow man do I not sin against Him who created us both? and if God is immutable in justice is He not required by this attribute to punish?

The man who perpetrated this absurdity is a lawyer and professes some knowledge of the criminal laws of his country. If I should sin against my neighbor by stealing his horse, and he recovers his property and forgives me, does that end the matter? No! Here comes in a party that, according to the argument of the infidel, I have not sinned, and arrays against me the whole power and authority of the State. It is the State versus the criminal. So also it is the sovereignty of the Lord Jehovah against the sinner. The same deficiency in conception is apparent in his use of the term "sin." His only idea of sin is an overt act whereby some one is wronged. The fundamental ideas involved in the conception are all wanting here. We may harm our fellow-man by overt act and yet not sin, and we may most grievously sin and yet injure no one of our fellow-beings. In fact, in strictness of definition, sin is only against God, because it is against His law alone. Sin involves, as essential elements, three things—volitional freedom, intention and the moral sense. The act that is necessitated and unavoidable, however much it may harm any one, is not "sin." The act that wrongs any one, but was without motive or purpose of doing wrong, cannot be "sin." And lastly, the individual must know right and wrong before he can by any act of his sin against any one. What is the moral sense but the voice of God in man, and what is the retribution of conscience but our arraignment before God as sinners! Shallow thought, superficial knowledge and sophistical reasoning are the characteristics of those who make sport of the tragical fact of sin. The speaker I name voices the practical unfaith of the worldly who think that if they keep the outward semblance of morality as it is known among men they need no forgiveness of God. It is the moral standpoint of a darkened understanding and a seared conscience.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

The Life Beyond.

That God has endowed us with faculties which carry us beyond the present life is a truth which all reflecting men are forced to acknowledge. We feel deep desires and cherish fond hopes which the present life cannot satisfy; they carry us beyond the limits of our condition; and as men come to realize this, the conviction grows settled and strong that "the life that now is" is only introductory to that "which is to come." Instinctively and irresistibly the belief possesses all thinking men that they are now only on the threshold of existence, and that beyond the present life there is a future state in which the faculties of the soul will unfold and have power to fathom what is now beyond their reach.

It is one of the pleasant aspects of the closing years of the late Thurlow Weed that he was brought to think much of the life to come, and how confidently he held the doctrine of a future life may be gathered from the following words spoken to a friend not long before his last illness: "I cannot believe," he said, "and cannot be brought to believe that the purpose of our creation is fulfilled by our short existence here. To me the existence of another world is a necessary supplement of this, to adjust its inequalities and imbue it with moral significance."

It is surprising, however, that belief in a future existence should have so little influence on the lives of the great majority of men. With hopes and fears so innate and irresistible, it might be supposed that thinking men, who acknowledge that "the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are unseen are eternal," would wisely discriminate between the claims of the two, and give their chief thought to those things that pertain to the future life. But the strange fallacy is still cherished—

"All men think
All men mortal but themselves."

And if this delusion is not universal, it is so general that the words of the moralist are sadly true that "most men live as though the present life were never to have an end, and as though the life to come were never to have a beginning." It seems fit, as another year draws to a close, that sober thoughts should occupy the mind, and that, by the flight of time, we should more distinctly realize our relation to eternity.—Baptist Weekly.

Wise Sayings.

—Every one of God's laws is based upon reason. To rest one day in seven is as reasonable as the remainder of the commandment, to work on six days.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

—My principal method for defeating heresy is by establishing truth. One proposes to fill a bushel with tares; now if I can fill it first with wheat, I shall defy his attempts.—Newton.

—A German minister, in speaking of the security of God's people and the precious promises of the Bible said: "How often the words 'Fear not' occur in the sacred volume! I have counted up into the seventies, and I thought that was enough. I need not look for any more."

—Christians need more gentleness, meekness and love toward one another. Sharp thrusts, insinuations and dogmatic [illegible] becoming when uttered by the children of light. This warlike spirit is not of God, though it be manifested in those who claim to be the children of light. Debates, evil speaking, contentions and strife are not of God. Let us not be deceived in our manner of living. God is not mocked, and cannot be deceived. We may deceive ourselves and others, but God sees us just as we are. What manner of people ought we to be, seeing we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ! God will respect our character, and we will all be judged righteously according to the purposes of our hearts and the deeds of our lives. Let us not then judge one another and contend with one another about matters of no importance. Let our lives bring sunshine to others, and we cannot walk in darkness.—Christian Evangelist.

Our Young Folks.

WHAT SHALL THE MOTIVES BE?

What shall the motives be
Throughout the present year?
Shall they be for evil,
Or shall they bring good cheer?

Shall the Angel Reapers
E'er search for wheat in vain?
Or shall they find a store
Of ripened, golden grain?

Shall my heart be growing
A crop of evil deeds?
Or carefully produce
A harvest of good seeds?

Shall my hands cease labor
Because the work is hard?
Or shall I with new vigor,
Discouragements discard?

Shall my life be wasted,
And time be spent in vain?
Or, constantly improve
Each moment for my gain?

Shall I cultivate the thorn
And let the roses go?
Or tares cast in the fire,
That flowers sweet may grow?

With careful watch, I'll give
The tares and thorns no room;
Rich graces from the spheres
Within my heart shall bloom.

That, when the Angel Reapers
Bind up the golden grain,
They find in me a harvest—
A life not spent in vain.
—Ada S. Cummings, in Golden Rule.

FAIRY WISHES NOWADAYS.

Tinkey lay under a wide-spreading apple-tree, upon a bed of half-dried grass, that was not yet hay, but sending out the most delicious perfume of clover blossoms. The thick leaves of the tree made a cool shade where Tinkey was lying. He speculated as to whether Mrs. Davidson would have ice-cream at the party to which Tinkey and his brothers and sisters were invited that afternoon.

"It must be lovely to be as rich as Mrs. Davidson," thought Tinkey, lazily, "and I might have had as much money as she, if I had only wished for it. If I had another such a chance——"

"Well, what would you do with it if you had?"

Tinkey sat bolt upright and stared. That sharp, clear voice was certainly one he had heard before, and right in front of him, daintily balanced upon the tallest of hay-cocks, was the little old-woman fairy, in her red cloak and pointed cap.

"Oh!" said Tinkey, "are you going to let me have another wish?"

"H'm!" said the fairy, "you don't seem to make much out of one wish. Suppose I give you a dozen or twenty."

"Oh!" cried Tinkey.

"Yes," said the little old woman. "I am going to see to-day how much you are to be trusted with having your own way. So, between now and sunset, I am going to let you have everything you wish for. Only, remember this: you can have but one wish for one thing. No 'taking back,' you understand. So if you wish yourself a goose, a goose you will have to remain. Good-bye."

Tinkey tried to decide upon the treasures he should collect between that hour and sunset. To test his power, he said, with an air of command:

"I wish for a plate of ice-cream."

There it was, right in his hand, cold, white, delicious, and, to Tinkey's amazement, no matter how fast he ate, the white heap upon the plate did not grow any smaller; but when he had had enough, and put down the plate on the hay, it melted in a second,—spoon, plate and cream vanishing like a dew-drop in the sun.

But, while he was still thinking of that, the dinner-horn sounded faint and far away.

"Oh dear!" sighed lazy Tinkey. "I wish I was at the table."

The wish was scarcely formed before he felt himself lifted up and shot across the meadow, in at the kitchen door, and plump into his chair, with a whizzing rapidity that took his breath away, and raised a serious doubt in his mind whether walking was not preferable to this sort of fairy locomotion.

There was a great confusion of voices all through dinner, the children hurrying through the meal to dress for Mrs. Davidson's.

"Your clothes are all on your bed," Tinkey's mother said, as he went up-stairs, "and remember your new suit must be your best one all summer."

Tinkey rushed to his room, entirely forgetting the fairy and her promise.

The new suit, a pretty light gray, lay upon the bed, while on a chair were his new shoes. Tinkey took up the pretty pair of gray pants. It was the very first city-made suit he had ever possessed, his usual dress being the outgrown clothing of his older brother. But this one suit was all his own, made for him, fitting him, and he handled it carefully. It was still buttoned up, as it had come home, and, taking his seat upon the side of the bed, Tinkey unbuttoned one button, a second, but the third seemed to be too large for the button-hole, and would not come through. He twisted it and strained it, coaxed it and jerked it, pulled it to the right, pulled it to the left, till he got red in the face, lost his temper, and cried out:

"Bother the old pants! I wish they were in Jericho."

One jerk freed them from Tinkey's hold, and they soared into the air, as if with wings, escaping his outstretched hands, and flying out through the open window like some huge, awkward bird, the new blue suspenders dangling provokingly out of reach.

Tinkey was ready to cry, but, instead, said: "I wish for another pair of pants."

But the wish was unheard or unheeded in fairyland, and he sadly remembered that he could not have two wishes for any one thing. "Why can't I remember to think before I speak?" thought Tinkey, ruefully taking up his every-day pants, thrown aside with such contempt.

"Perhaps they won't show much with a new coat and vest," thought Tinkey.

A call from down-stairs hurried him.

"We're all ready, Tinkey! Come!"

All ready! There was no time, then, to lose.

Tinkey caught up his new shoes and thrust in one foot. Voices from down-stairs were impatiently shouting: "Tinkey! Tinkey!" as he tugged violently, but without avail, at the shoe his mother had thought had better be "one size larger."

"Oh, come on!" said Tinkey. "I wish the shoes were twice as big!"

On slipped the shoe as easily as if it had been greased, Tinkey's foot lost in its suddenly increased size. Twice as big! To the round eyes gazing at them they looked as big as the barn, and if any little reader doubts it, let him measure twice the length and breadth of his boot, and put his foot upon the measure.

Tinkey kicked the shoe into the corner of the room with a passionate sob.

"I won't go!" he cried. "I won't wear my old pants and shoes with a great patch on them!"

"Are you never coming?" shouted Bob from down-stairs.

"I'll walk over! Don't wait for me!" Tinkey answered, and could hear them all laugh as Fannie said:

"Tinkey's primping! Won't he be fine!"

Should he go? Mrs. Davidson's annual party was not to be lightly set aside, and was one of the great pleasures in Tinkey's quiet country life. Perhaps, among so many his dress would not be noticed. Very listlessly he took up the blacking-brush, and polished his old shoes to such perfection that, after all, the patches were scarcely seen, and with a lighter heart, Tinkey sprang to complete his dressing. The mirror, by the aid of which he arranged his collar and neck-tie, did not reflect his pants, and the pretty silk tie was very becoming. Actually, Tinkey was whistling when he took up the comb to part his hair.

Now, Tinkey's hair was what old nurses call "stubborn," and the more Tinkey brushed, the more persistently it stuck out. He parted it on the left; he tried a parting on the right; he made a lovely white line down the middle; he "banged" it over his forehead, and each way looked worse than the last.

"Oh, I wish I hadn't any hair!" cried impatient Tinkey.

Was there a rain of feathers? What was that flying into his eyes, up his nostrils, tickling his ears, down his throat, through a mouth opened wide in amazement! Hair! hair! hair! The whole room seemed to be full of it, flying here and there, as if every hair was fairly laughing at Tinkey's dismay. And when at last it had all swept itself with one grand rush out at the open window, Tinkey's head was as bald as a china door-knob.

He gave one despairing glance at the mirror, caught up his old coat, crammed his polo cap tightly over his bald pate, and ran helter out of the house. Nobody noticed him as he ran, not to Mrs. Davidson's, but into the woods, into the deepest shadow he could find under the tall trees, where he threw himself down and cried like a baby.

"No wonder father says: 'Think first, speak afterward,'" sobbed Tinkey. "A pretty looking object I have made of myself, and I cannot imagine what mother will say about my spoiled pants. And they must be having such a nice time now, playing all sorts of games. I've half a mind to wish it would pour rain. No, I won't! I am not quite such a beast as that anyhow! Oh dear, how hot it is! I wish—no! no! I don't wish anything. Dear me! I was just going to wish I was in a snow-bank! Now, I won't make another foolish wish; not one! And as I can't go to the party such a guy, I'll just think, as hard as ever I can, of real sensible things."

"Oh, what shall I wish for first?" he thought, sitting down upon a fallen tree-trunk. "I wonder if it isn't best to wish for a million dollars, and then I can buy everything I want. I don't believe I would get it. I wish for a dollar!" he cried aloud, and felt in the palm of his hand a pressure of something round. There it lay, a bright silver dollar, shining as if it had just left the mint.

"I do believe I can have them!" thought Tinkey, who had been rather scared at the magnitude of his proposed wish, but I must hurry up; the sun is certainly going down." He stood up and waved his arm aloft.

"I wish for a million dollars!" he cried. In a second the great silver dollars rained down upon him, as if every leaf in the trees above his head had been turned into coin. They flew into his face, striking him with their sharp, metallic edges, bruising his cheeks, his nose, his eyes; they piled up round him, each one hitting a blow as it fell. His feet were prisoned fast, his legs his knees; he was being banked up in a silver prison, and yet the air was full of this novel hail-storm.

"Oh, I shall be smothered, buried alive!" cried poor, frightened Tinkey, trying vainly to run away, and thrashing out his arms in every direction, as he tried to beat back the stinging, bruising pieces of coin, that were threatening to cover him entirely.

"Oh, what shall I do! Stop! I wish you to stop! I shall be killed!"

Then he heard a mocking little laugh, and on one silver dollar that balanced itself in the air, just before his eyes, he saw the fairy herself, laughing at his dismay.

"Stop!" she cried, moving her crutch, and the dollars settled down upon the tree, the bushes, the grass; on Tinkey's shoulders, on his cap and on the pile in which he already stood waist-deep.

"So you don't want a million dollars?" she said. "I can't find out what you do want! I give you everything you wish for and still you are not satisfied!"

She sat down on the dollar that rocked gently in the air.

"There is nothing like a million dollars here yet," she said, "but you can have what is wanting to complete that sum in one minute."

"No! no!" cried Tinkey, seeing the crutch lifted. "What is the use of a million dollars if you are buried alive in them? I wish you would go away, and let me alone!" he burst out, in an angry sob. The fairy leaned forward and gave him one smart blow with her crutch, right on the tip of the nose. It was such a dreadful blow—for she was very angry—that Tinkey, for a moment, lost all consciousness.

When he recovered his senses he was lying under the apple-tree, but the sun was hidden behind thick clouds, the wind was blowing a gale, scattering the half-ripe apples upon the ground, and threatening rain so decidedly that even lazy Tinkey was roused to running quickly until he was safely in-doors again.—S. A. Sheilds, in St. Nicholas.

Lyukas, the Hungarian Poisoner.

The London Standard describes the execution at Steinamanger, in Hungary, of a peasant woman from Szerdahely, named Lyukas Kathi, for a series of crimes which had excited universal horror. The criminal was fifty-two years of age, short in stature, and of a placid aspect. She procured a large quantity of arsenic upon the pretense that her house was overrun with rats, and mixed the poison in little cakes, which she disposed of at a high price to persons who desired to get rid of their relatives. Her customers were chiefly wives who had got tired of their husbands, lovers who thought the removal of a rival would facilitate their own purposes, and even some children purchased the cakes, that by offering them to elderly relatives they might the more rapidly come into the possession of their property. Lyukas killed two husbands of her own, and she was accused of twenty-six other murders, six of which she confessed she had committed. At her trial the arch poisoner assumed an air of great piety, and stood a whole day with a rosary in her hand, she being a member of a rosary club founded by the Dominicans. The result of the trial was that she was sentenced to a long term of penal servitude, but the Crown appealed against the inadequate issue, and the Court of Appeals sentenced her to death. During her imprisonment Lyukas spent all her time praying or receiving consolation from the priests, to whom she confessed. Upon the scaffold she blessed the bystanders with an air of great fervency. The convict's only daughter attempted to be present at the execution, but she was prevented from entering the yard, and as she turned away she barely escaped being lynched by the mob assembled outside.

False Prophets.

Among the many isms that are prevalent these days is Vennor-ism. For sheer humbug the guesses of Vennor in forecasting the state of the weather months in advance outdoes everything else in that line, not excepting the new Canadian candidate for popular favor who has broken out with predictions of what terrible havoc will be made by storms in March next. Of course neither of these imaginative creatures can know anything about the weather we are to have six weeks hence; no more than they can predict the exact spot on one's anatomy where the next carbuncle will make its appearance. It is said that all they do is to study the storm record of the previous years, and then make as good a guess as they can.

The fact is, they guess right less than one-fourth the time, and yet they are credited, by many intelligent people, with a peculiar weather wisdom which it is physically and scientifically impossible for them to possess.—Laramie Boomerang.

—The rate of vibration of the rattle-snake's tail has been determined by Dr. Ott to be sixty per second. The method of experiment was to attach a pen to the snake's rattle, the record being received on a revolving drum.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JAN. 10, 1883.

THE Civil Service Bill has passed both Houses of congress.

IN many of the counties in the state the sheriffs failed to qualify.

THERE are now in the Treasury $171,000,000 gold coin and gold bullion.

GAMBETTA'S brain weighed five pounds nine and twenty twenty-fourth ounces.

THE Robertson County Tribune is making war on the sale of whisky in Mt. Olivet.

CARLISLE, Thompson and Willis, of the Kentucky delegation, voted for the Civil Service Bill.

A. O. HALL has been appointed superintendent of the Poor-house, and John G. Gaines, receiver.

FROM some cause the Poor-house was not let out Saturday. The letting was postponed until to-day.

SENATOR WILLIAMS has very poor opinion of the Civil Service Bill and thinks it will amount to nothing.

THE reduction of the public debt for the month of December last, in round numbers, aggregated nearly $15,000,000.

HOGGISH—Heavy shippers, $6 45@$6 60; fair to good packers, $6 25@$6 45; fair to good light, $6 10@$6 35; common, $5 50.

IT is said that there are but two in the Kentucky delegation who are for Blackburn for Speaker, and one of those is the Hon. J. C. S.

IN Baltimore, last week, it was estimated there were 1,200 cases of small pox. It broke out in the jail, and over 300 prisoners were liberated.

THEY had a little breeze at Mount Washington, the other day, that moved along at the rate of 144 miles per hour, while the temperature was at zero.

THE Louisville Commercial has eschewed Republicanism, and begins the new year as an independent journal. There has been a change in the staff.

IT seems that Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn is determined to make Carlisle's defeat for the Speakership a certainty. It is clearly a case of "dog in the manger."

THE Boone County Pomona Grange will meet in Golden Grange Hall, on the 3d Friday in this month, at which time officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

THE Court of Appeals has recently decide that the fee of justices sitting in felony cases is two dollars per day and not two dollars per case as some of the justices have construed it.

THE democrats have fought for twenty years to get control of the government offices, and on gaining the victory, their representatives pass a law to keep the republicans in office. Good joke!—State Journal.

THE Attorney-General has decided that the Public Printer will be entitled to pay for publishing the list of pardons granted by Governor Blackburn. The list is now in the hands of that officer, and will appear in a short time.

ONE of the Tennessee state Senators has introduced a bill making it a crime punishable by a fine of twenty five dollars for any legal voter in that state to fail to vote. A law like that whould take the whole laundry off the bush.

A NEVADA penitentiary convict says that he was sent to prison for being dishonest, and is there kept at work cutting out pieces of paste board to put between the soles of shoes in place of honest leather.

THE Court of Claims ordered the roads in the county redistricted, and for that purpose the justices were authorized to call to their assistance the road supervisors in their respective districts, and, if necessary, to employ anyother person whose assistance is necessary. Redistricting the [illegible] this county is no small job.

JUDGE CHILDRESS, of Grant county, appointed Thomas Stroude, sen., to fill the vacancy in the office of jailer in that county, occasioned by the death of James Hicks. Stroude says he will give the widow, Mrs. Hicks, the full proceeds of the jail, and reserve the proceeds of the Court-house and if he is elected in August he will continue to give her the benefit of the jail, and furnish her a house to live in.

WE take the following from the report of Messrs. Oscar Gaines and S. W. Tolin, who were appointed a committee at the November term of the Court of Claims, to investigate the cost of running the Poor-house from January 1st, 1882, to January 1st, 1883:

"We find that the total cost of actual necessary supplies, consisting of food, fuel and clothing, to maintain the Poor-house for the year ending January 1st, 1883, is $1,357 45, and from the superintendent's report we find that the average number of persons, including three members of the superintendent's family, has been twenty-three and one-half for the year ending January 1st, 1883, and that the actual cost for maintaining each person for the past year has been about $56 50, which this committee thinks is as cheap and economical as could have been done, considering the high price of bread stuffs and meats, which prevailed during the past year. We find the whole amount disbursed by the receiver for the past year, ending January 1st, 1883, to be $3,174 88."

WE condense the following, in regard to the crops in this state, from the last report of the Commissioner of Agriculture:

There were 2,875,041 acres of corn raised in 1882, which yielded 60,918,238 bushels, and which was gathered in good condition.

The small grain crop for 1882 produced the following figures:

Wheat—1,436,705 acres; yield, 17,156,646 bushels. Oats—305,974 acres; yield, 5,498,740 bushels. Rye—251,667 acres; yield, 3,118,669 bushels. Hay—664,386 tons. Grass—2,778,048 tons.

There was a little over a full acreage grown to tobacco. The crop is very generally satisfactory as to product and quality. The house burning about which correspondents were so much alarmed when it was being cured amounts to very little.

There was a large wheat crop sown this fall, and about the usual acreage in barley. All wheat and barley sown from the 15th of October on is reported to be thrifty and healthful; almost all sown before that date is damaged by the fly. In some instances whole fields were plowed up and sown over. The best remedy for fly is close grazing with sheep.

Tobacco Culture.

Our last article on tobacco raising was confined to the plant-bed; in this, we will speak of the preparation of the soil, cultivation, &c.

Land intended for tobacco next season should be thoroughly broken this winter, and in the spring, about the first of May, rebroken with a double shovel and harrowed smooth and fine, exercising about as much care in preparing the ground for the plants as we did in preparing the plant-bed to receive the seed. The ground can be worked much easier before the plants are set out. Many planters make a great mistake in setting tobacco in poorly prepared ground, expecting to prepare it after the plants are set, which, if done at all, is done under the serious disadvantage of having the young plants in the way.

Though preparation of the soil stands second in importance to good, early plants, these two essentials acquired our chances may be considered favorable.

After preparing the soil thoroughly, it should be laid off in rows four feet apart on hill-sides, and three and one-half on level land, and the plants should be set two feet or two feet and one-half apart in the rows on the lower edge of the furrow.

The setting should be done from the middle of May to the middle of June, according to season and the size of the plants, and should be done in the rain or shortly after. If your plants are early you are seldom at a loss for a season, but, if your plants are late, you may have no season at all.

After the plants have taken hold of the ground, which will be in about two weeks after planting, keep the plow and hoe going constantly, plowing thoroughly and deep until the plants have grown too large to admit of further cultivation, which will not be long, as there are but few crops, if any, that will grow as rapidly under thorough cultivation as tobacco.

Erom the present outlook, if we expect to get remunerative prices for our tobacco, we must improve its quality. There is too much common tobacco, and the markets are crowded now with tobacco that is selling below the cost of production.

Our next will be on worming, topping, cutting, curing, &c.

Proctor Knott denies the charge that he and Senator Williams have formed a combination to assist one-another in their political aspirations.

THE Madisonville Times asks if nothing can be done to put a stop to the reign of crime and violence that is deluging our fair state with blood? The Times adds: If the courts and juries would do their duty and punish crime as it deserves, many of the crimes which now stain our calendar would not occur. It is well enough to temper mercy with justice, but there has been too much leniency shown criminals. The people need to be aroused on this subject and a healthy public sentiment created that will firmly and unyieldingly demand the rigid enforcement of the laws. When punishment, swift and sure, follows crime there will be less crime. In heaven's name let us have achange

WHILE it is plain that our new sheriff is a man well calculated to fill the office which he now holds, and that all the business entrusted to him will receive prompt attention, we can say nothing disparaging of the official career of T. W. Finch, who has given satisfaction in the discharge of his official duties. Finch has made a good sheriff and Clutterbuck will make one.

STATE NEWS.

—Diptheria in Williamstown.

—Several cases of small pox in Bracken.

—Horsethieves have been doing Owenton.

—Last year 60,490 hogsheads of tobacco were sold in Louisville.

—Clay Conrad has been made deputy sheriff of Grant county.

Many voters in Scott county want T. J. Burgis to become a candidate for the legislature.

—S. T. Noe, of Washington county, is losing his fat sheep. He thinks feeding them corn is the cause.

—W. B. Ship's house, near Williamstown was burglarized and about $300 taken the other night.

—Mean whisky and an ax got in their work at a negro dance in Bourbon county. One negro badly hurt.

—F. M. Curry, said to have been pardoned by the Governor is in jail at Georgetown, charged with horse-stealing.

—There are now about 600 convicts at work on the Kentucky Central extension between Winchester and Mt. Vernon.

—Miss Lee Carlton has rented the "poor farm" of Hancock county, and will take care of the paupers for one year for $800.

The friends of Hon. John E. Cooper will urge his nomination to succeed Hon. Robert Riddell as judge of Estill Circuit Court.

—James W. Linn, of Scott county, got drunk and laid down on the Railroad track Cristmas night. The coroner had a job next day.

—The hog crop is much larger than was thought. Young hogs have done well and are in fine condition.—Clinton Democrat.

J. C. Caldwell, of Boyle county, had 300 head of cattle, 100 head of which averaged 1,600 pounds. They brought him (the 300) $12,390 60.

—The Kentucky Republican says that a number of colored citizens of Lexington are endeavoring to get up a negro company of State Guards.

—Edna Roberts, killed at Owensboro, was shot in the mouth, the bullet entering the brain without touching her lips, teeth or tongue.

—Near Carsville, John Morris a respectable citizen, was assassinated while presiding over a debating society. Four persons were arrested for the crime.

Mr. Stephen Watts delivered on Saturday 4 head of fat cattle, average weight 1,500 pounds, sold last summer at 5½ cents per pound.—Lebanon Standard.

—Six hundred and thirty-eight marriage licenses were issued were issued in Kenton county last year, and three hundred and fifty-six were issued in Campbell county.

—Morris' store at Doudsville Grant county, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 21st ult. Incendiary. On the night of the 20th ult., Newt Price's store met with same fate.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—Augusta, Georgia, is confident of getting a $100,000 public building

—There were 466 more liquor saloons in Georgia in 1881 than in 1882

—The Range Battallion is still maintained in Texas at a cost of $75,000 per annum.

—An overdose of worm medicine caused the death of a child of Sylvia Smith, at Atlanta.

—Two-thirds of the inhabitants of Laredo, Texas, are said to make their living at the gaming-table.

—James Steely, of Scottsburg, Tennessee, drank enough mean whisky at one drink to kill him.

—Montgomery Advertiser: The receipts of cotton at this point are 25,662 bails ahead of this date last year.

—A farmer living near Maplesville, Alabama has practically demonstrated the fact that fine rice can be grown in Alabama.

—The school fund in Virginia has been increased by $500,000, one-fifth of which sum is to be devoted to the maintenance of a colored normal school.

—The assistant Commissioner of Agriculture of Georgia says that the farmers of that state are in a better condition than they have been for ten years.

—In Dyer county, Tennessee, Alexander Crous bored a hole in astump filled it with powder, placed a large block over it and then touched it off. He's dead now.

—Nashville American: A fruit distiller in Warren county, has, lately, from 100 bushels of fruit made 112 gallons of proof spirits. This is something unprecidented.

—Vicksburg leads in the matter of quick funerals. A colored man dropped dead on the street, and 30 minutes later he was buried, a coroner's inquest having been held in the interim, —New Orleans Times-Democrat: One million standard dollars were Friday transferred from the vaults of the Sub-Treasury, in the Custom House, to the United States Mint. One of the large wagons of the Southern Express Company was used, and, although large loads were taken, it required over half a dozen loads by the wagon to make the transfer.

—Richmond, Virginia, has a floating debt of $150,000.

STOCK ITEMS.

Ansel Shropshire sold to Capt. J. C. May, ten extra good feeding cattle, all reds, of about 1,200 pounds weight, 4½ cents per pound. Mr. S. bought them in Iowa.—Georgetown Times.

J. B. Kennedy's three show cattle which took premiums at the Bourbon fair last fall, were sold in New York at 9 cents live weight, $1 50 per hundred more than any premium animals in the show yard.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that all persons indepted to the estate of the late John Glen, or having accounts against the estate, are requested to call on the undersigned and procure a settlement.

JESSIE L. GLEN, Admr'x.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

Public Sale!

The undersigned will, as administratrix of Lewis Aylor, decd., sell publicly to the highest bidder at his late residence, on the East Bend Road, five miles South of Burlington, Kentucky, on Friday, Jan. 26.

A lot of Drygoods, Groceries, Tinware, Quensware, 24 Stands of Bees and many things too numerous to mention.

Sale to commence at 10 a. m., and continue from day to day till completed.

Terms made known on day of sale.

All persons indebted to the estate of R. L. Aylor, decd., will come forward and settle the indebtedness. All persons having claims against said estate will present them properly proven as by law required.

ELIZABETH M. AYLOR,
Admr'x.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The WORLD & SOLDIER, (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

Special SALE, Special!

To close down our entire stock before taking an invoice, and in order to reduce our stock, we make special Prices to do so at once. We have not taken an invoice since we moved into this house, which is nearly two years and we certainly ought to give our customers the "benefit of a deep slaughter" for three or four weeks. But don't put it off, come in at once, as the very thing you want may be the first sold.

The first slash that we make is in our entire line of Heavy Half Wool Hose at 15 cents per pair, that were 30 to 40 cents. The next is, we throw the 7c. Prints all over on the 5c. counter, and let them go. The next is, we slash the price on Lonsdale Muslin down to 8½c per yard, 12 yards for $1. The next is, one Bale of Heavy Sheeting slashed down to 6¼c. or 16 yards for $1. The next, a Wool Hood, heavy, lined nicely, and with long streamers that answer the purpose of a scarf, at the nearly give away price of 25c sold at from 60 to 80c. before the clearance sale. Another lot of Hoods slashed down to 15 and 20c. They must go, and the sooner you come in the better. The next is a lot of Wool Filling Dress Goods slashed to 10c per yard. And all are marked down at once. We split the price on Silk Handkfs., and slash them out at 38, 50 and 75c. that are really worth 75c. to $1 50 each. All Fancy Christmas Hdkfs. slashed to warrant quick sales. All Gloves shall go at these closing prices, and all salesmen have orders to slash goods out and use their judgment in making prices from COST to 50 PER CENT. less than cost, as this stock must be closed down before inventory, as it would be almost an endless job to invoice it as it is. Please bear in mind that this is a genuine clearance Sale, and not an advertising dodge, and you will think so if you will come and see the prices.

CASHMERES, SILKS & BROCADES,

Large Canton Mittens, double, 10c. per pair. Men's and Ladies' Mittens and Glove must be sold. Large Wax Dolls, with hair, that open and close their eyes, at closing prices.

Cloaks, Jackets and all kinds of Wraps, you can get at your own prices. On Boots and Shoes you will be astonished to see the slash we have made. Bed Blankets at $1 50, was $2, Large 11 quarter Blankets (Schofield's) at $5, was $7. Mens' Casimere Hats 30, 40, 50 and 60c. These prices will sell them on sight. Young Mens' Hats, latest patterns out, at $1 50 to $2 75.

Overcoats at $2 50 was $5 00
" " 4 75 " 8 00
" " 8 " 13 50

Overcoats at 3 75 was 6 00
" " 6 " 11 00
" " 11 " 16 00

Men's Suits $3 50 to $6, which is less than half the real value. In fact, our entire stock of Clothing must be closed down, and our clearance Sale will do it at once. Job lot of Wool Vests (Boys' size) 25c each. You may all take warning that such rare chances as this are very scarce, and it will be to your interest to take advantage of it at once, and not wait until its too late. Black Cloaks trimmed in Velvet and Fringe, $1 75, was $4 00. Black Cloaks trimmed in Silk and Velvet. $2 25, was $5. Wool Jackets $3 was $6. Wool Freed Circulars at $2 50 was $6. Wool Beaver Cloaks at $4 50 and $6 75, was $8 and $12—and we mean what we say. Come in as early as possible. Respectfully,

Wm. COLTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - - OHIO.

Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

PATENTS

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT?

Send a rough sketch or (if you can) a model of your invention to GEORGE E. LEMON, Washington, D. C., and a Preliminary Examination will be made of all United States patents of the same class of inventions and you will be advised whether or not a patent can be obtained.

FOR THIS PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION NO CHARGE IS MADE.

What will a Patent Cost?

If you are advised that your invention is patentable, send $20 to pay Government application fee of $15, and $5 for the drawings required by the Government. This is payable when application is made, and is all of the expense unless a patent is allowed. When allowed, the attorney's fee ($25) and the final Government fee ($20) is payable. Thus you know beforehand, for nothing, whether you are going to get a patent or not, and no attorney's fee is charged unless you do get a Patent. An attorney whose fee depends on his success in obtaining a Patent will not advise you that your invention is patentable, unless it really is patentable, so far as his best judgment can aid in determining the question; hence, you can rely on the advise given after a preliminary examination is had. Design Patents and the Registration of Labels, Trade Marks and Re-issues secured. Caveats prepared and filed. Applications in revivor of Rejected, Abandoned, or Forfeited Cases made. Very often valuable inventions are saved in these classes of cases. If you have undertaken to secure your own patent and failed, a skillful handling of the case may lead to success. Send me a written request addressed to the Commissioner of Patents that he recognize GEORGE E. LEMON, of Washington, D. C., as your attorney in the case, giving the title of the invention and about the date of filing your application. An examination and report will cost you nothing. Searches made for title to inventions, in fact any information relating to Patents promptly furnished. Copies of Patents mailed at the regular Government rates, (25c. each.) Remember this office has been in successful operation since 1865, and you therefore reap the benefits of experience, besides reference can be given to actual clients in almost every county in the U. S. Pamphlet relating to Patents free upon request.

GEO. E. LEMON,
615 15th St., WASHINGTON, D. C.
Attorney-at-Law and Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are certainly best, having been so decreed at every Great World's Industrial Competition for Sixteen Years; no other American organs having been found equal at any. Also Cheapest. [illegible] cases, sufficient compass and power, with best quality, for popular sacred and secular music in schools or families, at only $22. One hundred other styles at $30, $57, $66, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114 to $500 and up. The larger styles are wholly unrivaled by any other organs. Also for easy payments. New Illustrated Catalogue free. The MASON & HAMLIN Organ and Piano Co., 154 Tremont St., Boston; 46 E. 14th St., New York; 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Large List GUNS and NOVELTIES FREE! For 3c. stamp. Chas. Folsom, N.Y. City

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 66 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

IRELAND of TO-DAY $75 to $150 Per Month. New Edition Now Ready. Gives Repression Bill, Events of 1881, etc. Agents Wanted. J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

G. H. LOEBKER,
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES,
36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

AMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, J. S. Mason, M. C. Motch, J. A. Mersman, Sam Hind, A. R. Mullen, J. J. Dulaney, E. J. Hickey, L. H. Dills, E. J. Green, F. P. Helm.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
540 MADISON STREET,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS
Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

Local News.

The front end of the year was i-c.

No marriage license issued this month.

Read the administratrix' sale in this issue.

The price of hogs is not going up very rapidly.

There has been but little ice in the river this winter.

W. E. Piper has put in a fire and burglar proof safe.

We have had a good deal of dismal weather lately.

The Assessor enters upon the duties of his office to-day.

Mrs. Pem Finch fell during the sleet and sprained her ankle.

The boys took advantage of the sleet and had a jolly time skating.

Dr. J. M. Grant gave the young people a candy pulling last week.

Geo. Smith, of Gunpowder, was hauling tobacco to this place last week.

There will be an election next August to fill the vacancy in the office of sheriff.

Mrs. Joseph Cowen, who has been quite sick, we are glad to learn is some better.

Frank Russell, of Florence X-Roads, will grind on Tuesday and Friday of each week.

Uncle Church Clore says that the travel through his farm must be stopped. Do you hear?

Our prospective landlord has broken ground for the building of our prospective office.

James Blythe starts to Grand Island, Nebraska, to-day to make it his future home.

The prosperous farmer now looks after work necessary to the preparation for the coming crop.

All the pupils have returned to their schools from whence they came to spend the holidays.

Those who scattered ashes on the pavements Monday morning were sowing seeds of kindness.

It is thought that Harvey Moore was seen in this county several days after his escape from jail.

The Central came in for its portion of the holiday celebrities and gave a nice dance on the 2d inst.

Drs. Smith, Grant and Furnish have contracted to do the pauper and jail practice in this district for 1883 for $300.

Rev. C. C. Connor will preach at the Universalist church next Sunday evening. Subject—"The practical in Christianity.

Mr. John Herndon, representing Bradley & Gilbert, of Louisville, called on the County and Circuit Clerks last Saturday.

The Universalist church bell got out of whack some time since, and last Saturday some of the brethren readjusted its bellship.

New Years night the Boone House was the scene of a gay party of youngsters, who spent the evening tripping the light fantastic.

TAKEN UP—By W. L. B. Rouse a red bull, about 2 years old, weight about 1,000 pounds—has been at his house about three weeks.

The Burlington Recorder is much improved under Riddell & Hall. They understand their business.—[Robertson Co., Tribune.

Two very valuable horses, the property of Joseph Chambers, of Covington, are missing from the pasture of A. S. Ganies, supposed to have been stolen,

About this season of the year, of late, there has been much preparation for the planting of a large tobacco crop; but now it is seldom that crop is mentioned.

In our court report we did not mention several claims that were allowed because they will appear in our published list, which is now being prepared by the clerk.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Beall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

Miss Bertha Foster, daughter of Mr. Sap Foster was adjudged a lunatic last Saturday Miss Bertha is about 20 years old, and lost her mind some time last month. She will be taken to the Asylum at Anchorage.

Last Friday Mr. Cy Crisler raised quite an excitement by ringing the dinner bell of the Boone House at half past 10 o'clock There was a general rushing out of doors to see where the fire was. Don't do it again Cy, it racks our nerves.

The parties arrested, and who participated in the Galespy shooting scrape at Big Bone Christmas. were held over for a breech of the peace. Allphin, who did the shooting and wounding had not been apprehended at the time of the examining trial.

Mrs. Sallie Strouse, who has been suffering from that dread destroyer, consumption, died on the 4th inst. She was a member of the Baptist church of this place, where her funeral was preached last Saturday by Elder Dickens. Her remains were interred in the burying ground on the late Elder John Underhill's farm.

Mr. B. W. Campbell, of second street, has the sympathy of all his friends in his affliction. During the past week he has lost by death his most lovely and estimable wife and two lovely and interesting children.—[Sunday's Enquirer.

Mr. Campbell has a large and extensive circle of friends in this county who sympathize with him in his sad affliction.

On last Saturday week, near Middle Creek, an excited lot of fox hunters tried to turn over a large stone supposed to weigh about one hundred tons or more, under which a fox had secreted himself. They tried to undermine the rock and let it roll down the hill, but after an hour or more of fruitless effort, they abandoned the job and decided that the the old fox couldn't run anyhow.

Saturday as D. M. Hewitt, one of the jurors in Miss Bertha Foster's inquest, was putting his autograph to the verdict, Miss Bertha grabbed the piece of paper on which the verdict was written, and tore it to pieces. Dan was the picture of surprise as he stood there with pen in hand and the verdict in shreds on the floor before him, but when he had time to collect his thoughts he was glad it was the paper that she assaulted instead of him.

The boss hog of the season was displayed at Collins' store on the south side Tuesday morning. It was a three-year-old of the Whitechester variety, raised by Mr. Polk Moore, of the Benson neighborhood. It weighed 760 pounds gross, and netted 630 pounds. Mr. Collins paid $50 40 for it, and thinks he will get his money back upon the lard, which will probably weigh 400 pounds. It was the largest hog we have ever known to be raised and slaughtered in this neighborhood.—[Yeoman.

Last Monday Mr. James R. Clutterbuck executed the three bonds required of the Sheriff by law. As a proof that his bonds are of the most substantial kind it is only necessary to enumerate the names of his securities. The amount upon which each pays tax in this county is placed opposite his name.

H T Snyder	$ 4,100
W H Carpenter	17,000
J Z Tanner	7,100
B Von Bokern	2,975
R J Clutterbuck	850
Buttler Carpenter	5,250
Gaines Robinson	6,600
Reuben Conner	16,090

The above bond is worth at least $250,000 some of them owning property other than that listed in this county. Mr. Clutterbuck appointed no deputy.

Real Estate Conveyances.

James Delph, &c., to R. L. Crigler, 18 acres on waters of Gunpowder near Florence X-Roads.—$150.

J. J. Tanner to Thos. Aylor, 12 acres, being lot No. 1 in Mrs. Rhoda Aylor's dower—$625.

Jno. C. Underhill to Richard Underhill an undivided ⅛ interest in Elder John Underhills farm—$200.

E. L. Grant to Nicholas Schwartz, about 9-10 of an acre—$30.

Caroline Harrell to Joseph Quinn, lot in Verona—$450.

County Court.

The will of John Glenn was probated and Miss Jessie L. Glenn was appointed admr'x. Geo. W. Gaines and John Stephens, sureties. J. W. Duncan, E. H. Baker and John G. Gaines appointed appraisers.

The viewers' report on Barnard Dollehie's application to make new road was confirmed and road as laid out in said report established.

R. W. Cooper's will, probated. J. A. Gaines Exr., W. W. Gaines, security. J. W. Duncan. Geo. W. Gaines and John Stephens appraisers.

Robt. Mosby's will probated. Elijah Parker Exr., G. W. Terrill, security. J. W. Barnett, Frank Hartmann and Henry Terrill, appraisers.

A. G. McConnell qualified as justice of the peace in Rabbit Hash district. E. H. Ryle, security.

Commissioner filed, and acknowledged deeds to Andrew Sheet's heirs.

Came T. W. Finch, sheriff elect of Boone county and refused to qualify as such. Thereupon said office was declared vacant.

N. Schwartz and Jno. L. Tarrill, road supervisors, filed statement declaring a bridge across Woolper Creek on the Bellevue and Petersburg road was necessary and asked that that the county build a bridge at that point. The court refused to make any appropriation for that purpose.

Claim of H. J. Foster for $60 for making settlement with road supervisors rejected.

Claims of H. C. Lassing and Dr. Slater rejected.

L. H. Dills allowed $51 claim as clerk.

Sheriff directed to pay Benjamin Rouse $1,134 67 amount of said Rouse's note against the county.

Sam Hind's claim rejected.

L. H. Dills, E. H. Baker and Oscar Gaines appointed committee to let out pauper and jail practice in Burlington district.

Joseph Wagstaff, E. H. Baker and T. H. Sutton appointed a committee to examine and report on recommendations made by the grand jury.

SECOND DAY.

M. C. Norman, Joseph Wagstaff and W. B. Craven appointed a committee to investigate and report on the expense of running the poor-house for the year 1882. Report filed and adopted.

County Attorney ordered to advertise and sell delinquent list.

L. H. Dills, E. H. Baker and O. Gaines appointed a committee to let out poorhouse for 1883. Committee empowered to borrow money, furnish supplies and contract with the supervisor and receiver and to do all things necessary for the well being and comfort of the inmates for the year 1883.

Justices and supervisors in their respective districts to redistrict their magisterial districts into 4 road districts before the 15th of February 1883.

Magistrates in districts authorized to let out pauper practice in the districts as follows: Not to exceed $50 in Burlington, Union, Florence, Petersburg and Taylorport: $40 in Rabbit Hash, Verona and Walton; $35 in Hamilton, Beaver and Bellevue.

Jan'y. 3d—Boone Rogers released from articles of indenture binding to him a negro boy.

Mrs. Elizabeth Aylor qualified as admr'x of R. L. Aylor and guardian of Lutie Aylor.

The Ball of the Season.

A few evenings since we sent out a reporter to write up a party for the RECORDER, with postive injunction to take particular notice of the costumes worn by the belles of the evening, and here is the result of his labors:

The parlors were crowded with the elite of the town, and among the most prominent belles were,

Mr. Timothy Westbay, with mustache heavily waxed, hair parted in the middle, knee pants and pig-feet ornaments, and was the belle of the ball.

Mr. John L. Connar wore low-necked vest, sailor jacket and bloomer pants, no ornaments.

Mr. C. L. Crisler wore sack coat cut bias and darby hat with turkey feather ornaments.

Mr. Joe Reed wore a six inch smile, pea-green cut-a-way, hair dress low on the forehead, oyster shell ornaments, and was just too utterly too, too.

Mr. James Westbay wore a horseblanket with trail, knee pants, flesh colored socks, a polished boot, hair smooth on top and rough behind, with goose feather ornaments.

Mr. R. C. Green wore knee pants, pigeon-tail coat, ruffled shirt, low shoes, quill ornaments and was the boss waltzer of the evening.

Mr. J. M. Conner wore sheep-skin vest, cow-hide shoes cut high, hog skin cap, ornaments, bull's eye breast pin.

Mr. W. L. Gedge wore sack coat, gourded in the back, sailor pants, low shoes and feather ornaments.

Mr. James Armstrong wore cut away boots, standing collar, crosseyed necktie and spike tail coat, no ornaments.

Mr. Harry Blythe wore a lefthanded rose colored shirt and a Prince Albert without sleeves, no ornaments.

Mr. T. W. Finch wore a narrow brim hat, tow-string necktie and standing down collar with spectacle ornaments.

Personal Mentions.

Mr. David Blythe has returned to Hanover College.

Judge O. F. Roberts, of Aurora, was in town Friday.

B. K. Sleet was the guest of Mrs. Arta Sleet, Monday

Mr. Ben Rice who had the varioloid is able to be on the street again.

Mr. H. C. White, of Grant county, was visiting his brothers near this place last week.

Capt. Hyatt, of Newport, was the guest of his daughter Mrs. Dr. J. M. Grant, last week.

Mrs. L. H. Slade and Mrs. K[illegible] P. Fowler, of Cincinnati were visiting Mrs. R. H. Pace, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Rouse, of Mt. Zion, spent New Years day with Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bruce, of this place.

Miss Lucy Ryle and Miss Fannie Duncan have returned to Glendale, Ohio, where they are attending College.

We have enjoyed nothing lately, more than the shaking of hands, last Thursday, with our old school-mate and teacher, C. G. Ingram, now a resident of Saline county, Mo. The western breezes have developed him into a portly gentleman, and he still possesses that genial disposition that wins for him friends wherever he goes. His sojourn in Boone was brief.

Married.

SHEEHAN-KLETTE—On the 4th inst., at Independence, Kenton county, Mr. William Sheehan and Miss Dora Klette.

Billie and h's bride will accept the RECORDER's best wishes for a long and happy life.

CARPENTER-BROCK—On Tuesday the 19th inst., Mr. Nat Carpenter, of Sparta, Gallatin county, to Miss Sallie Brock, of this city. Miss Brock, was for several years engaged in the Millinery business with her sister, Mrs. Ella Dawson, and as Miss Sallie was a highly respected and agreeable lady, her departure from our midst will be muchly regretted by those of her acquaintance.—[Williamstown Courier.

The RECORDER on behalf of Mat's host of friends, in Boone county, wishes him and his bride all the happiness that mortal beings can enjoy on this mundane sphere. Mat, "Here's to your health, and the health of your family. May you live long and prosper."

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

Christmas and New Years passed off as usual, if anything a little more so.

The select party given at the Hebron Hall on the 27th ult., was largely attended

Mr. James Riley has purchased a house and lot near Constance for the sum of $2,500

L. C. Conner and W. A. Clayton have opened up a nice little hardware store at this place.

The dance given at the residence of Thomas Rouse on the night of the 1st inst., was an enjoyable affair.

Misses Nina and Aletha Smith entertained quite a number of guests on last Saturday night and Sunday.

Stripping tobacco seems to be the order of the day. Mr. Ray Snyder has stripped about 5,000 pounds and has about 15,000 pounds more to strip.

Florence X-Roads.

Wheat looks badly.

[illegible] hogs about all sold.

Eli Rouse is overjoyed—it's a boy.

Wood sawings have commenced for 1883

Rev. C. C. Barnett, of Dixon, Tenn., preached at Hopeful last Sunday.

The roar of the shot gun has ceased. Game won't pay for the ammunition.

Jerry Beemon had a fine hog shipped to him the other day, from Oxford, Ohio.

We are sorry that some of our friends had such bad luck visiting Bellevue during the holidays.

Lewis Weaver and family, of Sunbright, Tenn., will be among their friends in this county in a few days.

D. M. Snyder has been investigating our school, and will come again soon. The past proceedings do not seem to suit him.

Tobacco stripping not through with. The agitation of the tobacco tax in Congress has stopped the sale of the weed.

Several persons have been losing sheep. There are a good many lambs in this neighborhood. They range from 2 to 12 in flock.

A pedestrian tin peddler stopped here the other day, and Joe Souther purchased a large lot of tinware, with the understanding that the peddler was to take them to his house, and deliver them and get the money. The last heard of the peddler he was hunting Joe's house.

Plattsburg

There is a very fatal desease among the cattle in this neighborhood.

Our largest wheat raiser says that the crop will be light this year.

John W. Berkshire is paying the highest price for tobacco—$10 and $5.

Mr. B. F. Crisler and mother have returned from a very pleasant visit to Lafayette, Ind.

Bob Smith says that when he loans his gun again, he wants every fellow to shoot off his own load.

Mrs. A. Cloud had her watch and chain stolen from her at Parkersburg, West Virginia, one day last week.

A floater was found on the Laughery bar last Saturday evening. Squire Loder held an inquest, and the remains were buried near where it was found.

Elijah Parker sold one day last week, 36 hogs that averaged 350 lbs. at 6½ cents per pound. He had an offer of $10 and $5 for his tobacco, if put in three grades.

We have an old gentleman in our town who says that he carried a bedtick full of shot across the Ohio river, and fought a mud turtle for two days. We don't vouch for the truthfulness of this, but guess it is true.

It is so seldom that any thing of a sensational nature occurs in this vicinity, that the elopement of Mr. Henry Shuman, of Dillsboro, Ind., and Miss Laura Barnett, of this place, has caused quite a flurry in society circles in which they move. They were married in Lawrenceburg, last Wednesday.

What We'd Like to See.

The man that struck Morgan Davis.

Uncle Jim Westbay build up a large trade in his Goose Business.

John G. Carlisle next Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Ed Philipps as reporter for the Daily Times-Star, of Cincinnati.

The stockholders in the Woolper pike build two bridges on their road.

Petersburg.

Miss Mary Wendell is on the sick list.

Mr. Mat Sebree and Cass. Lodge, of Cincinnati, were here last week.

Mr. Park Berkshire and wife, left for Owensboro, last Saturday night.

Mr. Froh is still holding meeting at [illegible]'s place, but will close next Sunday night.

The Odd-Fellows, of this place attended the funeral of Mr. Riggs at Aurora Sunday

M[illegible] Irene Buchanan, of Rising Sun Ind., is visiting her father, Mr. Alloway, of this place.

If we may judge by the new d[illegible] a young lady got last week, we would say there will be a wedding in town soon.

Rev. Mr. Taylor, of Carrollton, Ky. preached at the Christian church last Sunday to quite a large and attentive audience

Several of our boys spent New Years in Rising Sun, and took in the dance last Monday night, and from appearance of things now they will soon take in some of the—girls.

Funny to see.

Mote Christy acting as Marshal.

Geo. Berkshire with his checker board on Some of our boys coming home last Tuesday night.

Chas. McWethy on the rampage for Rising Sun.

Rabbit Hash.

Some tobacco is being hauled to market.

Our young folks are still having a pleasant time attending parties, &c.

Messrs Reuben Hagar and Will McConnell will run a corn boat south this winter

Misses Della and Lou Allen have been spending the past week in our neighborhood

Rev. Geo. Froh preached in East Bend Sunday morning and evening. He is an interesting speaker, and all are glad when his day to preach draws near.

Entertainments were given the past week at J. J. Piatt's, Mrs. McConnell's and Mr. S. S. Moore's. The last is pronounced by all as the most enjoyable one since the Christmas festivities began. Thanks to Mr. Moore, and hope the pleasure will be repeated.

THE EAGLE
DRUG STORE,
—IS POSITIVELY—
THE CHEAPEST
—HOUSE IN—
RISING SUN, IND.
Where will be found a fresh stock of
DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,
SCHOOL BOOKS
—AND—
STATIONERY,
all at bottom prices.
GIVE US A CALL.
D. C. Thorn,
Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

DUDLEY ROUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Has Knocked Down the Price on a lot of LADIES' and CHILDREN'S Side-lace SHOES so low that the figures will surprise you.

REMNANTS OF PRINTS
Have been overtaken by the same Slaughter and are being Closed out at Prices which make them go in a hurry. Several pieces of nice DRESS GOODS must be sold and to make you want them they are going to be disposed of at a sacrifice. If you want any of the above goods call early as they are being taken rapidly.

I also have a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Yarns, Prints, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, Notions, &c.

A full stock of FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES always on hand

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 8-tf

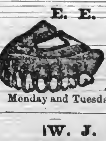
E. C. NORMAN. H. D. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

F. Adkinson. A. W. Gaines
ADKINSON & GAINES,
Attorneys & Counselors at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. 41tf

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y



E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
Should take a policy at once.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN President, Burlington, Ky

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
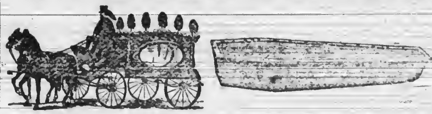
WORKS,
Aurora. Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CASP,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.
New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.
JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun, Ind.



UNDERTAKING
We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
sOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Also Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Satisfaction guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON, Proprietors.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar3-4f28 J. W. Talbott.

My Vegetable and Flower Seed Catalogue for 1883 will be sent FREE to all who apply. [illegible] All seed sent from my establishment warranted to be both fresh and true to name, so far, that should it prove otherwise, I agree to refill the order gratis. My collection of vegetable seed is one of the most extensive to be found in any American catalogue, and a large part of it is of my own growing. As the original introducer of Early Ohio and Burbank Potatoes, Marblehead Early Corn, the Hubbard Squash, Marblehead Cabbage, Phinney's Melon, and a score of other new Vegetables, I invite the patronage of the public. In the gardens and on the farms of those who plant my seed will be found my best advertisement. James J. H. Gregory, Marblehead, Mass.

THE RECORDER.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY.

FAIRIES.

I had rather be Cinderella,
And live upon water and crust,
Than either of her proud sisters
Who doomed her to dwell in the dust.

She sat so sweet and so humble,
While they in their satins swept by,
And sung to herself, when they left her,
Despite the stray tear in her eye.

It is only the old, old story,
Such as good grandmothers tell
At night by fireside and bedside,
And children love it well.

But it has such a sweet, deep meaning
That, though I am a child no more,
My heart holds ever the echo
Of the story loved of yore.

Yet to all there cometh some fairy;
She may not bring coaches and gowns,
But she scatters an inner sunshine
That is better than kingly crowns.

She sends them to labor smiling,
Helps them to sing when alone,
To rejoice in birds and blossoms,
And to bless their own hearthstone.

Have you ever seen such fairies?
Do you know the way they went?
For they love to work sweet wonders
And to banish discontent.

—Frances E. Greno, in Our Continent.

PUSH AND PLUCK.

"Push—push—push! Yes, it's got to be push all the times with me if I'm ever going to amount to anything, and I'm bound I will!"

Jim Brand drew as close as he could to the little end window of the garret in which he slept, trying to catch the last rays of light on his worn book.

"It's a tussle!" he presently exclaimed, looking off into a dark corner of the room, with a face which showed a mind hard at work over some knotty problem. "If I only had some one to show me a bit! The words are all straight enough—I've got them pat, but where the sense comes in's more than I can see. 'The square of the hypothenuse of a right angle triangle is equal to the squares of the other two sides.' To be sure, but how to get at it is what beats me."

Jim closed the book, one he had dipped into because he had exhausted everything else within his reach. But the expression of full determination to conquer some day what now baffled him was fixed on his bright, homely face and seemed to extend to every stout limb of his stubby frame. The boy's sturdy resolve to obtain an education grew and throve under what might be considered great disadvantages, were it not that it has been abundantly proven by many brilliant examples that to the best order of minds obstacles seem only to furnish stepping-stones to higher success.

He lived with his widowed mother in a small country village, and for the last two years had worked for a farmer—hard work, poor pay and a scant taste of schooling in the winter. His aspirations now were for something better in the way of instruction than the country school afforded. Four miles away, in a larger town, was a good teacher, and Jim wanted now to stay at home, study harder and recite to this man, but how to accomplish this he could not see, for he must still earn his living and help his mother.

A tri-weekly mail was carried through their village, it being off any regular routes. The carrying of this had been offered to Jim and had excited him greatly, for the same road would take him to the teacher he was anxious to reach, thus enabling him to kill two birds with one stone. But difficulties were in the way. A scrubby pony had been placed at his disposal for a very low price—his carefully hoarded savings would cover it—but its keep was a serious matter. Jim had been cherishing another project for a year past.

Last summer he, in company with an Irish farm-laborer, had been driving an empty hay wagon along the road when something appeared in the distance which astonished both. It was surely neither man, horse nor dog. It came toward them with marvelous speed, and as it drew near developed a human, yet inhuman, aspect which had something frightfully comical about it. The horses grew restless at the uncanny sight, and Jim sprang to their heads, while Pat, fervently invoking the protection of the Virgin Mary and an untold number of saints, showed his lack of faith in their efforts in his behalf by immediately tumbling himself over the hedge, where he lay concealed.

As the thing came near it ran to the side of the road opposite to which Jim had turned his horses, and there fell to pieces, and while one part of it leaned against the fence, the other, in the shape of a well-looking, blue-flanneled boy, ran toward Jim.

"Oh—did I frighten your horses?" he cried, in a tone of frank politeness. "Well, I'm sorry. I ought to have stopped sooner, but where I live the horses are getting used to them and I didn't think. Whoa, now—poor fellow," patting them, and the well-meaning creatures looked an immediate recognition of the friendly voice and touch.

"What have you got there?" asked Jim, looking in great curiosity at the thing leaning against the fence.

"A bicycle—havn't you seen any? I guess there are not very many about yet, but my father's a machine man and that's how I came by the luck of getting one. We're boarding at Farmer Merrivale's down there, and I can make the distance out here in less than no time." This was indefinite, but it was three miles, and Jim had seen for himself how lithe a thing of life the wonderful skeleton steed moved. He examined it with thoughtful eyes.

"It doesn't have to eat, does it?"

"No," said the boy, laughing, "only a little oil once in a while."

But its cost was beyond that of a pony. Jim watched in delight and longing as it, with its owner, were spinning down the road, while Pat crept from his hiding-place with many an exclamation over the "wan-legged wheelbarry."

From that hour Jim had never given up the idea of possessing a bicycle, and in dreams had seen more than one picture of himself flying over the roads carrying on his back a bag of mail-matter and a sachel of school-books.

"I think I'll go down to the State Fair next week, mother."

"To the State Fair, Jimmy?" she said, in surprise. He did not often go on a frolic.

"Yes, I'm going to try if I can't make a little money there."

"How, my boy?"

"I'm told the fair-grounds are more than a mile out of the city, and that there's always a great demand for teams to carry passengers to and from it. I've been talking to Deacon Granger, and he's willing to trust me with his pair of grays, and I'm going to hire Brown's big new spring wagon, and I believe I can make a good deal over what I shall have to pay for team and wagon."

"And their keep, and your own—?" this mother and son were used to very close calculating.

"Yes, I think I can do it."

He was on the alert for passengers early on the first morning of the fair. Exhibitors only were arriving on that day, but he found plenty to do among those who desired the carriage of light articles and fancy wares. On the second day the people came pouring in from all directions, and the accommodating boy with the well-governed, light-stepping grays was in constant demand. The third day was brilliant in sunshine, and city and fair-grounds and the space intervening seemed alike overflowing with the busy, merry, chattering crowd.

About the middle of the forenoon came a lull in Jim's work, the arriving stream having about ceased and the returning one not yet begun. Jim went for a look at the machinery, much of which had arrived since he had been around that way before. He gazed for a while awe-struck at the great power engine, quietly moving its ponderous arms and wheels in such fearful, masterful strength for good or for ill. He was then examining with intelligent interest the beautiful perfection of some improved farming implements when his attention was drawn to something which moved in and out among surrounding on-lookers with almost the swiftness and lightness of a sunbeam. It was a graceful, boyish figure mounted on a bicycle which gleamed and shone in polished steel and nickel-plating. And as he came nearer and sprang lightly to the ground, Jim's face beamed with surprise and pleasure as he perceived that it was the same boy whom he had seen more than a year before.

"Halloo!" he said, as Jim modestly approached to look at the bicycle. "Havn't I seen you before somewhere? I have, I know; why yes, don't you remember the time I frightened your horses?"

Jim was charmed by the cordial recognition, and the two boys were soon in earnest discussion over the merits of the different machines. Harvey Glenn was able to point out to Jim many excellencies he had not before appreciated, laying his hands familiarly on some of the swift, moving intricacies with a daring which made Jim tremble; impressing him deeply, too, by the information that his father represented the great machine company which had sent a number of these magnificent things on exhibition. The bicycle, a model in beauty, strength and adaptation to the use for which it was intended, came in for its full share of admiring attention.

"This is an exhibition machine," explained Harvey. "Most of these made for sale are a little heavier built, for greater strength, and are not got up quite so finely."

And in the course of chat Jim confided to Harvey his hopes and intentions as to himself owning a bicycle some day. And Harvey insisted on his mounting this one, giving him instructions in the way of managing it; which Jim did, and after a few turns of the wheel, during which he felt as if he or his fairy steed, or both, had taken wings, the big wheel began to wabble unreasonably and Jim to incline wildly first to one side and then the other. Then the little wheel grew skittish, and as it rose obstreperously behind Jim went down before, amid shouts of good-humored laughter.

But it was hushed all of a sudden, for there came a loud and terrible sound which struck fear to every heart—a stunning report, then quick rending—tearing—crashing. And as Jim gathered himself up, dazed, deafened and bewildered, cries of alarm and suffering arose on the one moment of dread silence which had followed the shock. It was some little time before those who gathered frantically around could understand that a steam-boiler had exploded with awful violence, dealing destruction and death among the assembled multitudes, but it was only a breathing time before a wail of anguish went up from stricken ones whose own had been smitten down at their very sides.

Jim was blinded by quick coming tears as he bent over the apparently lifeless form of his just now joyous companion. A dark line of blood slowly trickled from under his hair, and Jim turned half faint as he saw blood gathering under him on the grass. He was about to raise a cry for help when a tall man knelt down by the boy with a white face and trembling hands. Tearing open his coat he applied his ear to his chest.

"I am a physician," said another man, hurrying up, and together they made a hasty examination of injuries which were found to be serious but not probably fatal.

"What shall I do?" said Harvey's father, looking about him in distressed perplexity. "I ought to take him to the hotel at once—and then again, I ought to be seeing after more of these poor souls—and the mischief my wares have worked."

"If you will trust him with me," said the physician, "I will go and take care of him. See, there are already more doctors than patients here."

Harvey opened his eyes.

"Yes—I'll go, father. Dont be anxious—I'll soon be all right."

Mr. Glenn asked Jim to run for a hack which stood a little distant from them. But as he pointed to the wounded boy with a few eager words the driver stood stolidly and shook his head.

"No—I can't have my carriage spoiled with that sort o' work. I couldn't use it again to-day and I can't afford it."

With a face ablaze with indignation Jim hurried to another driver with much the same result.

"I'm here with a party—can't do anything else." Some drivers quietly moved their vehicles to another part of the grounds to avoid being called on to assist in the removal of wounded and dead.

"I've got a light wagon," said Jim, going back to the doctor, almost choked with anger. "May I bring that?"

"Yes—quick!"

The seats were torn out with little ceremony. Straw was placed in the bed of the wagon, upon which Harvey was tenderly laid. Then the horses were led round to where other sufferers lay and two more were added to the load. Again Jim's heart grew sick at sight of torn, bleeding bodies and anxious friends trying to improvise comforts and bring some relief, and he turned his half dizzy head the other way as they passed a building in which he knew were lying those suddenly called out of the sunshine and the summer air and the business and the pleasure.

"Come back," whispered Mr. Glenn as Jim took his slow way to the town. "There's hardly one of these heathen drivers will bear a hand."

Jim came back and carried two more injured men, unknown by any one there, so far as he could learn. Then again for others whose mourning friends followed in a carriage. At night, over-excited by the sad scenes through which he had given such ready, self-forgetting aid, he went to his bed, feeling as if he never could close his eyes again. But sweet sleep watches in kindliness on the steps of such, and the country boy's rest was unbroken by dreams of the day's tragedy. When he awoke the sun was beaming as benignly as if it had not last shone on hearts shadowed while time should last on what it had then witnessed.

He first went to the hotel at which he had left Harvey, and was cheered by hearing fair accounts of his condition and that his mother had come to him. Then he turned his attention to his wagon, spattered and dripped with the marks of his fearful loads of the day before. It took him hours to wash it, requiring such an amount of energetic scrubbing that he soon perceived that a thorough repainting would be necessary to put it in condition to return to its owner. It was not fit to offer for passengers now. He drove out to the fair grounds, thinking he might see something of his seats, and did, indeed, spy what looked like them in a huge pile of ruins from the disaster, but they were quite beyond reach. He caught sight of Harvey's father, who turned at his approach and gave him a warm shake of the hand, but his attention was instantly claimed again by those who passed about him.

As Jim turned his horses homeward he was ashamed of himself that he felt much depressed at realizing how utterly his expedition had been a failure in a money point of view. Ashamed that his heart, which had so stood still before the woe of others, could give a thought to his own light loss. In his innocent respect for the afflicted he had not for a moment thought of applying for what was justly his due, and would, of course, have been willingly paid for his most valuable services in a time of such a need. The loss would throw him back a year, perhaps more, in his pursuit of learning. But he was made of the stuff which occasionally sends a boy from the prairie or the log cabin to the White House—more of them to high places in civil and military life, and, perhaps, better, sends boys all over the length and breadth of the land to fill worthy places as exemplars of all that is noble and honorable in American manhood.

Arrived at home he made terms for the complete putting in order of the wagon. This, with his horse hire, used up a little more than he had made at the fair before the accident occurred.

"Halloo, here—Jim? You're Jim Brand, ain't you?"

"Yes," said Jim, thus hailed by a farm-hand who drove up to his mother's gate and spied him at work in the garden.

"Well, here then." He turned away as Jim took a bulky letter from his hand.

"Any answer?" shouted Jim.

"Guess not. Not as I was told of."

Jim carried it in the house and sat by his mother as he opened it. This was nearly a month after his venture at the fair.

Several sheets of paper, headed each with the device of a steam-power and business-like lettering, were covered on one side with boyish-looking handwriting. From among these fell a small piece of paper. Jim had never seen many like it, but his hand shook as, first looking at it, he passed it to his mother.

This was the letter:

"DEAR OLD FELLOW: Father wanted to write to you just as soon as he could think straight about anything, but I teazed him to wait till I could do it, so that's why you haven't heard from us before. Father expected to see you again at the fair, but couldn't find you. Other people wanted you, too. They said you didn't go for your pay for helping folks. Why didn't you? You were a goose. Father's had quite a time finding out how to address you, but the Merrivales told him.

"I've been brought home, but the doctors think I'll have to lie still a long time yet. I don't like it at all, but mother says it's sure to be all right somehow or it wouldn't be so. Mother's that sort. I'm glad she is. I think that sort is the best to have when you're in trouble and when you're out of trouble, too.

"But what I want to tell you most of all is that the Co.—that means, you know, all the folks of the machine works, think you did the right up and down square thing by them and by everybody else that day of the explosion, so they send you this two hundred dollars just to make sure you didn't lose anything by it, and father hopes it's enough, and he says you behaved admirably, and if you ever want a friend you're to come to him, and lots more of that kind of thing.

"By the time this letter reaches you you'll find my bicycle waiting for you at the railroad station, so you'd better go and get it. Father was going to send you one himself but—now you needn't mind about it at all, for I don't believe it's going to be so at all—but some of the doctors think perhaps I won't ever ride a bicycle any more, and I'm fond of mine and don't want any other boy should have it but you.

"We'll all be up to Merrivale's next summer and then I'll see you. Mother says she'll never be satisfied till she sees Jim's mother to tell her how you stood by us that time. I can't write any more now. You write to me and I'll write again. HARVEY GLENN."

"Ho! Bother it, mother," said Jim with a great assumption of indifference, "they must be the queerest folks—making such a fuss over what you've done when you haven't done anything at all!"

But "Jim's mother" was crying as she kissed him and thought of the mother whose boy might never again ride a bicycle, and Jim went out into a corner of the garden and looked very hard at nothing for a long time.

Less than a year afterward Jim, flying swiftly along with a mind intent upon a knotty Latin construction, was scarcely aware of being overtaken and passed by something which then ran into the side of the road, where a bicycle fell into the grass and its rider suddenly confronted him. In his overwhelming astonishment Jim entirely lost control of his own vehicle, and went down in the dust with it. Picking himself up, hardly knowing whether his eyes did not deceive him, his hands were warmly grasped, and two happier boy-faces never, surely, looked into each other.

"Harvey!"

"Jim!"

Jim stopped to gather his books in the little silence which followed.

"Pegging at them yet?" said Harvey.

"Yes, pushing away—but it's slow work."

"Ah, but mother says you're a chap that's sure to go skiting straight up to the very top notch—I don't mean, you know, that she says just those words, but"—his face grew grave at the memory of the circumstances under which he had last seen Jim. "she says when folks push with their heads and hearts both they're sure to win—and she says you're that sort."—Sydney Dayre, in Chicago Standard.

—A number of experiments have been made in this country to test the value of different materials for doors that may be exposed to fire, from which it appears that perhaps the best door yet devised is one made of wood and covered with tin. The door is formed of solid planks, or boards matched and fastened together and crossing at a right angle, or at forty-five degrees. There should not be less than two thicknesses in any door, and as many more should be used as the size of the opening to be closed demands.—Chicago Herald.

—Uncle Sam has 1,008,741 farms under his jurisdiction, with 180,972,678 farm animals, of which 10,357,981 are horses, 12,4[illegible] are milch cows, and 23,337,856 cattle.

—A medical student while in the dissecting room filled up his pockets with a lot of ears and fingers and toes and such, and then loafed around to the butcher's shop and slyly scattered them about in odd corners near the sausage machine. And customers coming in saw them and were horrified, and demanded explanations, which the wretched butcher could not give, and the story of the scandal spread and the whole neighborhood became aroused, and the butcher had to escape across roofs to avoid being lynched, and will never return to the city, unless brought back by officers to answer a frightful charge of murdering men for sausage meat.—Boston Post.

—Benjamin Gordon, better known as "Charlie Howard," whose murder in a Leadville gambling house has been recorded, was one of the depraved fraternity who make the worst possible use of conspicuous gifts and graces. He was a member of a good Virginia family, was well educated, had acquired several languages by foreign travel, and possessed a winning and genial nature, all of which advantages he deliberately devoted to the profession of gambling, in which, though only thirty years old, he had attained great proficiency.—Chicago Times.

—A practical joke with a sad sequel was recently perpetrated by a boy employed in the Ascutney Mills at Windsor, Vt. A girl employed in the same room had removed her shoes and left them lying on the floor near one of the spinners. In her absence the boy nailed the shoes to the floor. Subsequently the girl, in attempting to pull them up, thrust her left hand into the gearing of the spinner, crushing all her fingers nearly to the knuckles. Her whole hand had to be amputated.

—Two Italians, arraigned for violating the New York Sanitary law were brought into Court, where they immediately fell on their knees and began praying. "What's that?" asked the Court. "We are kneeling at the throne of justice and hollering for mercy," explained the interpreter. "What's your plea?" was the next question. "Guilty, guilty, guilty," they cried in heart-broken accents. "One dollar," said the Justice from his throne, when they "hollered" worse than before.

—A New England Senator who arrived at his Washington residence recently was surprised to find that the servants who had been left in charge had kept the handsome mansion open during his absence as a boarding house and had accommodated boarders, both white and black. The owner's visit was unexpected, hence the discovery, which, one of the servants states, proved embarrassing.—Boston Post.

—A Nashville negress arrested for some misdemeanor asked the court to release her as she wanted to get her baby out of pawn. On being questioned she said there were places in that city where babies were taken in pawn, and returned, on payment of the sum advanced with 15 cents a day interest; but she would not reveal the name of any of these dealers.—Detroit Post.

—Two more big wrecks of name and fortune chargeable to oil. Cheap refined oil kills its hundreds in the kitchen, but $1.30 crude has wrecked its thousands in the counting-house.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

—A Chicago girl's excuse for marrying a young man whose face was badly marked with scars of smallpox was that he had a poetic look. She thought he was weighed down with some secret sorrow.—Free Press.

—The same law which says that a note of hand made on Sunday is not legal, says that a marriage contracted on that day is all O. K. in the eyes of the law.—Detroit Free Press.

—A Chicago paper is reponsible for the statement that a St. Louis young man has composed a poem, commencing: "I am sitting in the shadow of my loved one's shoe."

—A man in Thomaston, Me., put an owl in his cellar to kill the rats. The next morning the man found the owl dead and half-eaten. This was rough on the owl.

—The worst about kissing a Pittsburg girl is that you carry the marks of coal dust about your nose and other features until you reach the nearest pump.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—Life for the hopeful youth is full of to-morrow. The old man who lives on yesterday has a slender diet and little comfort.

—The Georgia House has passed a bill taxing news agents $100 a year for selling disreputable police and other papers.

An Age of Suspicion.

Truly, this is an age of suspicion. Nevertheless, Captain F. M. Howes, of the steamer William Crane, Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Line between Boston and Baltimore, who suffered severely from rheumatism, caused by the exposure incident to his profession, was cured by St. Jacobs Oil. This is no suspicion.—Boston Globe.

A MOVEMENT on foot—trimming corns.

MEAN men are the best at guessing conundrums. This comes from the fact that they hate to give anything up.—N. O. Picayune.

A JAPANESE woman delights in a doll, while an American girl dotes on a dolman.

"YES," said the fair but false young vocalist to Bumbleton, "that is an old English song with a refrain." "Ah!" replied the crusty critic, "that just suits me. Refrain from singing it."

A LIQUOR dealer in a Massachusetts town received a postal card reading: "Please attend the funeral of a man you have been ten years in killing."

WHEN the average man laughs, he gets fat. When the printer gets fat, he laughs.

"Oh, aunty," cried little Amy in the nursery, "make Freddy behave himself; every time I happen to hit him on the head with the mallet he bursts out crying."

ANY noisy boy can beat a drum all hollow. You can't cut a ham from a pig of lead, but you might contrive to shoulder it.—N. Y. News.

MANUFACTURERS of lucifers are not pugilists, although they are often engaged in boxing matches.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

BALTIMORE claims to have the champion mean man. She can have him; we've got enough second-rate ones up here to last for some time.—Lowell Courier.

ONE would think from the numerous bank defalcations which are reported that Burns was prophetic when he sang about "the chiel amang ye takin' notes."—N. Y. Herald.

ASTRONOMER PROCTOR declares that Jupiter is in the state that our earth was 34,000,000 years ago. Those who can remember back 34,000,000 years will understand what this means.—Boston Transcript.

A REAL-ESTATE transfer made on Sunday is not legal, notwithstanding the old saw, "Better the day, better the deed."—Chicago Tribune.

EVEN half a loaf is better than loafing all the time. Many poor people of the working class will testify to this version of the proverb.—Chicago Times.

Chicago's First Citizen.

The Chicago Tribune, in closing an elaborate article on Hon. Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of that city, gives the following as Mr. Harrison's opinion of St. Jacobs Oil: "When I first found myself suffering from the rheumatism, my leading thought naturally was to call a physician, but my neighbors all advised me to try St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy. I procured some of it immediately, and found it excellent for that ailment."

ELDEST DAUGHTER (aged ten): "I wonder what made ma marry pa? He is not at all the sort of man I should have cared for!"

What Physicians Say.

SAN LEANDRO, Cal.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have employed your "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" in my practice for the last four years. I now use no other alterative or cathartic medicines in all chronic derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. I know of nothing that equals them. J. A. MILLER, M. D.

THERE is a marked difference between getting up with the lark and staying up to hear one.—N. Y. Herald.

How Women Would Vote.

Were women allowed to vote, every one in the land who has used Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" would vote it to be an unfailing remedy for the diseases peculiar to her sex. By druggists.

"I'M a matron of husbandry," said the widow who made her fourth coupling.

DR. PIERCE'S "Golden Medical Discovery" has become so thoroughly established in public favor that were it not for the forgetfulness of people it would not be necessary to call attention to its power to cure consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, and other blood diseases, as eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers and "liver complaint."

THERE is nothing like a molasses-candy pulling to make young people candid when giving taffy.—New Haven Register.

"Washington Top."

This is the singular name of a town situated four miles from Zanesville, O. Mr. Wm. Alexander, resident of the former place, was afflicted for seven years with Kidney disease and inflammation of the bladder. Mishler's Herb Bitters cured him after all other so called specifics had failed. This remedy is an invaluable household article, and always cures Kidney and Liver diseases, Dyspepsia, Cholera, Cramps in the stomach, Indigestion, Dysentery, etc.

A POINTER: If you can't spell, write such a bad hand that nobody can tell what the letters are.

A Case not Beyond Help.

Dr. M. H. Hinsdale, Kenawee, Ill., advises us of a remarkable cure of consumption. He says: "A neighbor's wife was attacked with violent lung disease, and pronounced beyond help from Quick Consumption. As a last resort the family was persuaded to try DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. To the astonishment of all, by the time she had used one half dozen bottles she was about the house doing her own work. I saw her at her worst and had no idea she could recover."

A PIECE of steel is a good deal like a man—when you get it red-hot it loses its temper.

GET Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners for those new boots or shoes before you run them over.

WHOLLY uncalled for—A dead letter.—Lowell Citizen.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Cures coughs and colds. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

NO, PAUL, the window of the soul is not a pane in the stomach.—Marathon Independent.

FOR THE CURE OF A COUGH OR SORE THROAT, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are a simple remedy. Sold only in boxes.

MR. P. S. GILMORE has lost his favorite cornet. The new year starts out well.—Chicago Tribune.

THE Frazer Axle Grease is the Standard Axle Grease of the world. Use it and save your horses and wagons. One greasing will last two weeks.

WHY is a shoe like a house girl? Because it is made of saw-work.

PURE cod-liver oil, from selected livers, on the sea shore by Caswell, Hazard & Co., N. Y. Absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians declare it superior to all other oils.

CHAPPED hands, face, pimples and rough skin cured by using Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York.

That Husband of Mine

Is three times the man he was before he began using Wells' Health Renewer. $1.

DON'T DIE IN THE HOUSE. "Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK

THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

CANCER INSTITUTE. AURORA ILL. Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

25 PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION. 100

Barker's Green Corn Cutting Machine
Used in over 200 corn factories. Manufactured by VOLNEY BARKER, Portland, Me. P. O. Box 693.

GOOD COFFEE How to Make It AT HALF COST. Agents' Profits $5 to $10 per day at home. Address SHEPARD BROS., Cincinnati, Ohio.

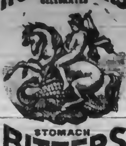
ASTHMA CURED by using Moore's CURE. Send 25c. in stamps for sample package by return mail to Moore & Harris Vincennes, Ind. Large Size, $1.

TURKEY FEATHERS. Save them; we will pay a good price (cash) for them. DEARBORN DUSTER CO., 46 So Canal St., Chicago.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS. Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and ASTONISH you.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED



STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives steadiness to the nerves, induces a healthy, natural flow of bile, prevents constipation without unduly purging the bowels, gently stimulates the circulation, and by promoting a vigorous condition of the physical system, promotes, also, that cheerfulness which is the truest index of a well-balanced condition of all the animal powers. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

STRONG POINTS ABOUT
MISHLER'S
HERB BITTERS
ARE AN ABSOLUTE CURE FOR KIDNEY TROUBLES,
LIVER COMPLAINT,
Dyspepsia and all Bowel Disorders.

They supply tone to the stomach, reinvigorate the digestive organs, stimulate the secretions, promote a regular action of the bowels, and enable every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption. In use in U. S., since 1855, and in Germany for over 300 years. ☞ For the complaints peculiar to all of the FEMALE SEX, they are unequalled by any medicine in the world. With the trade mark "Hope," they have proven a boon to millions of distressed people. Compounded with as much care as any extract. Proved best. A Reliable Household Remedy thoroughly adapted to assist nature. Highly commended as a general Tonic and Appetizer. Send for "Messenger of Health." Mishler Herb Bitters Co., Lancaster, Pa. All Druggists sell it.

☞ Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup Never Fails.

PETROLINA
COLD CREAM
AND CAMPHOR ICE.

The most elegant and deserving preparation of Cold Cream in the world. It is delicately and exquisitely perfumed, and a valuable emollient (far excelling Glycerine in resisting atmospheric action), invaluable for use at the seashore, curing sunburn, rough skin, chapped lips, tan and freckles. It will positively cure chapped hands and face, and when used after washing and shaving, keeps the skin soft and velvety. The theatrical profession will find these preparations superior to all others for counteracting the effect of make-ups, grease paint, etc. Porcelain pots, 25c.; pound-cans, $1. Sold by Druggists and Dealers in Toilet Articles. BINGHAMTON OIL REFINING CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are certainly best, having been so decreed at EVERY GREAT WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL COMPETITION for SIXTEEN YEARS; no other American Organs having been found equal at any. Also CHEAPEST. Style 109; 3 1-4 octaves; sufficient compass and power, with best quality, for popular sacred and secular music in schools or families, at only $22. ONE HUNDRED OTHER STYLES at $30, $57, $66, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114, to $500 and upward. The larger styles are wholly unrivaled by any other Organs. Also for easy payments. NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE.

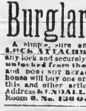
PIANOS This Company have commenced the manufacture of UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOS, introducing important improvements; adding to power and beauty of tone and durability. Will not require tuning one-quarter as much as other Pianos. ILLUSTRATED CIRCULARS, with full particulars, FREE. THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO., 154 Tremont St., Boston; 46 E. 14th St., N. York; 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

LANDS 500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. Full particulars FREE. Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS. IN WISCONSIN.



This N.Y. Singer, $20 With $8 set of Attachments Free. Warranted perfect. Light running, quiet, handsome and durable. Sent on test trial plan when desired. Happy Home Organs: 4 sets Reeds, 13 stops, Mechanical Sub Bass, octave coupler, 2 knee swells, with $3 stool and $1 book, only $75. Also sent on test trial plan if desired. Elegant case, magnificent tone, durable inside and out. Circular, with testimonials, free. Ask O. Payne & Co. 47 Third av Chicago

Burglars Outwitted! A simple, sure and durable BURGLAR-PROOF LOCK ATTACHMENT. It can be readily attached to any lock and securely fastens the door so it cannot be unlocked from the outside. It takes the place of bolts and DOES NOT DEFACE THE DOOR OR CASING. Every house will buy one or more. AGENTS WANTED for this and other articles which lady agents can handle. Address KENDALL & CO., "AGENCY EMPORIUM," Room 8, No. 136 Ontario Street, Cleveland, Ohio.

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS or any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, WASHINGTON, D. C.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR Forces luxuriant Mustache, Whiskers, or hair on bald heads in 20 to 30 days. Both prepared and used without injury. With directions, sealed and postpaid 25 cents, 3 for 50 cts., stamps or silver. L. L. SMITH & CO. Sole Agts. Palatine, Ill.

SAW MILLS The Best is Cheapest. For Descriptive Circular and Prices write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, Ohio.

$47 A MONTH and board in your county. Men or Ladies. Pleasant business. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Box 94, Chicago, Ill.

A KEY THAT WILL WIND ANY WATCH AND NOT WEAR OUT. SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. BIRCH & Co., 38 Dey St., N.Y.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment address P. W. REAM, Ada, O.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

MANUFACTURED BY MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL CO.
MERCHANT'S
ESTD.—1833
GARGLING OIL
A
LINIMENT
JOHN HODGE, SEC'Y.—LOCKPORT, N. Y. U. S. A.

For Internal and External Use.

CURES RHEUMATISM,
Burns, Scalds, Chilblains,
Frost Bites, Chapped Hands,
Flesh Wounds, Sprains, Bruises,
External Poisons, Caked Breasts,
Sore Nipples, Toothache,
Cramps or Spasms of Stomach,
Colic, Asthma, or Internal Pain,
Lame Back, Bites of Animals,
Galls of all kinds, Sitfast,
Ringbones, Cracked Teats,
Poll Evil, Garget in Cows, Spavins,
Sweeney, Scratches or Grease,
Foot Rot in Sheep, Stringhalt,
Windgalls, Roup in Poultry,
Foundered Feet, Fistula,
Cracked Heels, Mange in Dogs.

Ask your nearest Dealer or Druggist for one of our Almanacs for 1883.

From the Christian Leader N. Y., Oct. 28, '71.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—We have made special personal inquiry in regard to the merits of this celebrated remedy, and find it a genuine article of rare value. It is by no means a new remedy. The establishment which produces it dates its manufacture as far back as 1833, since which time it has been steadily growing in public favor. The patentees are among the foremost business men of the city of Lockport. They are every way reliable.

From the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, July 6, 1871.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—This Old standard article, under the admirable management of John Hodge, Esq., has reached an enormous sale. It is an honestly compounded article; it has merit, and now that the best business talent of the country is handling it, there is no reason why it should not double its present usefulness. No family can afford to be without it. For family use, as well as for animals, it is simply indispensable.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

All we ask is a fair trial, but be sure and follow directions.

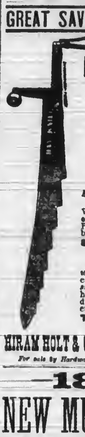
The Gargling Oil and Merchant's Worm Tablets are for sale by all druggists and dealers in general merchandise throughout the world.

Large Size $1.00; Medium 50 c.; Small 25 c.; Small Size for family use 25 c.

Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company.

John Hodge
Secretary.

GREAT SAVING FOR FARMERS!



—THE—
Lightning Hay Knife!
(WEYMOUTH'S PATENT.)

Awarded "First Order of Merit" at Melbourne Exhibition, 1880.

Was awarded the first premium at the International Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, and accepted by the Judges as

SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHER KNIFE IN USE.

It is the BEST KNIFE in the world to cut fine feed from bale, to cut down mow or stack, to cut corn-stalks for feed, or to cut peat, and has no equal for cutting sods or ditching in marshes, and for cutting ensilage from the silo has no equal. TRY IT. IT WILL PAY YOU. Manufactured only by

HIRAM HOLT & CO., East Wilton, Me., U. S. A.

For sale by Hardware Merchants and the trade generally.

—1883.—
NEW MUSIC BOOKS!

Minstrel Songs. Old and New, is a collection of those songs which are the people's favorites. Words often errant nonsense, but the melodies some of the sweetest and best in the world. The Success of the Season and is selling rapidly. A fine, large volume, pages full sheet music size.

94 Songs, including "Old Folks at Home," and all of Foster's best, "Old Uncle Ned," "Rosa Lee," "Kentucky Home;" also "Lily Dale," "Twinkling Stars," and, in fact, a large part of the popular favorites of the last thirty years. $2, boards; $2.50, cloth.

VERY EASY INSTRUCTION BOOKS, with very entertaining airs for practice, are, Winner's

IDEAL METHODS
For Violin, For Piano, For Cornet, For Flageolet, For Fife, For Flute,
Price of each 75 cts.
For Guitar, For Cabinet Organ, For Accordeon, For Clarinet, For Banjo.
Simple instructions, and nearly 100 tunes in each.

GOUNOD'S REDEMPTION, $1. Only edition with Gounod's orchestration.

BALFE'S BOHEMIAN GIRL, $1. Only copy with Libretto and Business.

MUSICAL FAVORITE, (Just out.) New Book of Bound Music. Fine selection of Piano Pieces. $2, Plain; $2.50, Cloth; $3, Gilt.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 843 Broadway, N.Y.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world: 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit Mich.

YOUNG MEN If you want to learn Telegraphy in a few months, and be certain of a situation, address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

WHAT WILL THE WEATHER BE TO-MORROW?
Pool's Signal Service Barometer
OR STORM GLASS AND THERMOMETER COMBINED, WILL TELL YOU!

It will detect and indicate correctly any change in the weather 12 to 48 hours in advance. It will tell what kind of storm is approaching, and from what direction—invaluable to navigators. Farmers can plan their work according to its predictions. Saves 50 times its cost in a single season. Has an accurate thermometer attached, which alone is worth the price of the combination. This great WEATHER INDICATOR is endorsed by the most eminent Physicians, Professors and Scientific men of the day to be the BEST IN THE WORLD! The Thermometer and Barometer are put in a nicely finished walnut frame, with silver plated trimmings, etc., making it a beautiful and as well as useful ornament. We will send you a sample one, delivered free, to your place, in good order, on receipt of $1, or six for $4. Agents are making from $5 to $20 daily selling them. A trial will convince you. Order at once. It sells at SIGHT. Just the thing to sell to farmers, merchants, etc. Invaluable to everybody. U. S. Postage Stamps taken if in good order, but money preferred. Agents wanted everywhere. Send for Circular and terms. Address all orders to OSWEGO THERMOMETER WORKS, (Largest establishment of the kind in the world) Oswego, Oswego Co., N. Y. We refer to the Mayor, Postmaster, County Clerk, First and Second National Banks, or any business house in Oswego, N. Y.

Write your Post Office, County and State plainly, and remit by money order, draft on New York or registered letter, at our risk.

This will make a Beautiful and Very Useful Present.

READ WHAT THE PUBLIC SAY ABOUT IT.

I find Pool's Barometer works as well as one that costs $50. You can rely on it every time. CAPT. CHAS. B. ROGERS, Ship "Twilight," San Francisco.

Barometer received in good order, and must say that the instrument gives perfect satisfaction in every respect. It is neatly made and wonderfully cheap at two dollars. GEO. B. PARSONS, M. C. R. R. Office, Detroit, Mich.

Pool's Barometer has already saved me many times its cost, in foretelling the weather. It is a wonderful curiosity and works to perfection. F. J. ROBERTSON, Milwaukee, Wis.

BEWARE OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS. None genuine without our Trade Mark, and signature of J. A. POOL on the back of instrument, as below:

J. A. Pool TRADE MARK.

Every instrument warranted Perfect and Reliable. Size 9 1-2 inches long 3 1-4 wide. If not satisfied on receiving the instrument, return it at once and we will refund your money. Please state where you saw our advertisement.

USE NONE BUT THE BEST THE GREAT FAMILY SOAP MAKER SAPONIFIER THE ORIGINAL CONCENTRATED LYE SOLD BY ALL GROCERS PENNA SALT MF'G CO. PHILA

Sawing Made Easy. The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW. Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

50 CENTS FOR THREE MONTHS.

The new volume (nineteen) of DEMOREST'S ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY MAGAZINE for 1883 is the best and the cheapest Family Magazine published, printed on the finest tinted paper, size 8¼x11½ inches. The three numbers now ready of volume 19 weigh 1½ pounds and contain 210 pages of large, clear print. New Novelettes, Stories, Biographies, Poetry, Travels, and valuable information of the day and for the household. In demand by every family. 144 Illustrations, 6 Photo Plates and Oil Pictures. W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 17 East 14th Street, New York. Single copies, Twenty Cents; yearly subscription, Two Dollars.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

A. N. K.—E. 903 2—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Boone County Recorder.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1883. NUMBER 12.

CUPID'S MISTAKE.

Blind Cupid, on a summer's sultry eve,
Went on love's errand, as we may believe—
But lost his way, and stumbled to a cave,
Dark as the night and silent as the grave.
But, pray, behold the strange reverse of fate!
Death, who to Cupid ever bears a hate,
Happened, likewise, to stroll in there to hide,
And idly dropped his darts near Cupid's side,
Where weary lay the lad, thick mists arose,
And hid his senses in a doze.
Awaking from his nap, strange news to tell,
His pointed arrows from the quiver fell.
Not quite awake, he stretched his arms around,
To gather up his arrows from the ground;
He took his darts, he thought, but thought in vain,
So like they were, he knew them not again.
Cupid took some of Death's, O fate unkind!
And left some part of his, for Death, behind!
Hence many sprightly youths in blooming prime,
Struck with the darts of Death, forestall old Time;
While greybeards, just preparing for their graves,
Struck with Love's bolts, become his doting slaves.

—S. B. Foster, in Century Magazine.

FAIR HESPERUS.

The Interesting Discoveries of Science in the Study of the Planet Venus—Our Nearest Neighbor Not Habitable According to Any Theories Known to Us—Her Brilliant Career.

It was natural that man, in the earliest times, turning his attention from the earth over which he roamed and of which he may have fancied that he knew much to the heavens of which he was conscious that he knew but little, viewing the grand procession of the night, the immortality of the great mass of shining stars, and the unaccountable wanderings of the planets, phenomena over which he possessed not the slightest control, should be struck with awe at the imposing display and readily yield his reverence to what had already won his admiration. The scepter of the mind, which the understanding is unable to wield, is readily grasped by the imagination, and, accordingly, the early history of astronomy is a mixed record of poetical fancies, gross superstitions and uncouth conjectures.

With the dawn of exact science a new era opens in human history. The philosopher, unappalled by the uncongenial sentiment of his surroundings, proceeds to tear away the fairy curtain which the fancy of the poet had woven as well as the gross fabric with which art had endeavored to impose upon credulity. In the attempt, however, to construct an edifice of reason on the ruins of poetry and superstition, success has not always been complete nor enduring, and, even down to our own day, the process of construction and reconstruction goes on, with no evidence that the work draws nearer to a close, but, on the contrary, that the foundations must be laid ever broader and deeper.

Of all celestial bodies, after the sun and moon, none should seem to command at once the attention and admiration of the gazer as fair Hesperus, the loveliest of the heavenly train. Yet, notwithstanding the scrutiny which she has invited, our knowledge of her is provokingly limited. Second in the train of planets which circle about the sun, following an orbit between that of Mercury and the earth, when she approaches us the nearest she turns away her face, which is steadily fixed upon her great lord and sovereign master, the sun, and when, at last, with bewitching coquetry, she displays her charms, she has receded to the further side of her orbit, and her distance has become so great that human vision, aided by the appliances which science has created, is unable to study her appearance with any satisfactory results. To add to the difficulty, the very splendor of her disk is so great that its dazzling brightness betrays very little of the physical features of which it is composed. Venus, having her orbit inside that of the earth, never departs from the sun, but is always seen in the western sky after sunset, or in the eastern sky before sunrise, and is the most brilliant object in the heavens of any which are popularly called stars. When at its greatest brightness one can see a shadow cast by its beam. This fact can be easily verified by admitting a beam from Venus into a room from which other light has been excluded. When at its greatest brightness the planet can be seen in the daytime with the naked eye. As the relative positions of Venus and the earth are nearly repeated every eight years, whenever it occurs its repetition may be expected in eight years following. As a matter of fact, however, it does not require circumstances producing an exceptionably favorable position of the planet, and the planet appears visible in the daytime at intervals more frequent than the eight-year period.

Unlike Jupiter, its nearest rival in splendor, Venus can never make a visible circuit of the heavens. This is due to the fact of its orbit being situated inside that of the earth, so that it is never seen in the heavens farther than about forty-five degrees from the sun, whether in the evening or morning.

These two appearances of evening and morning star misled people of remote times, who imagined that there were two bodies to which separate names were given—Hesperus, designating the evening star, and Phosphorus, the morning star.

The great variations in the appearance of Venus are due to the vast difference between the distances of her nearest and farthest position from the earth, when nearest she comes within 25,000,000 miles and when farthest she recedes to 100,000,000; her distance from the earth, at her nearest approach, being the difference between the radius of the orbit of the earth and that of Venus, while her greatest distance is equal to the sum of these radii.

When viewed through a telescope, Venus presents phases similar to those of the moon, and for a similar reason. As the illuminated surface must always be presented to the sun, its appearance, as seen from the earth, will depend upon the relative positions of the two bodies, so that we shall sometimes see it as a crescent, sometimes globous, and sometimes full. In this last appearance it is a very difficult object even for a telescope to distinguish, for it is not only surrounded by the solar blaze, but has itself, on account of its great distance, shrunk to comparatively insignificant proportions. The phases were first observed by Galileo in 1610, and were received by him as a convincing proof of the truth of the Copernican system, according to which the sun was the center about which the planets revolved, contrary to the previous supposition that sun, moon and planets revolved about the earth. Venus, being a body very similar to the earth, a sphere of about 7,660 miles diameter, while that of the earth is 7,918, we should suppose there would be other physical resemblances.

Sharp observation of the planet has been made to discover whether it revolved on its axis. In order to ascertain whether a planet revolves, and in what time, search is made to detect some feature of its surface which can be recognized, and which, by its disappearance and reappearance, will indicate the fact and time of revolution. Spots on the sun have been utilized in this way to determine the revolution of that great body, which has been found to turn on its axis once in about twenty-five days.

In the years 1666 and 1667 the elder Cassini, being then in Italy, studied the disc of Venus for the purpose of discovering means to determine its rotation. At length, on the 27th of April, 1667, he discovered a bright spot, which, on repeated observation, seemed to return to the same position on the planet after intervals of twenty-four hours. In 1726 Bianchini, the domestic prelate of the Pope, after studying some dark spots which he detected on the planet's surface, announced that its period of rotation was twenty-one days, eight hours. This was, indeed, a wide divergance from the time found by Cassini. The young Cassini, however, came to the rescue of his father. Making a critical discussion of the previous studies of astronomers on the subject, he remarked that Bianchini's observations were interrupted by the Bartarini palace, which hid the planet from his view for some time every evening, and that the spots were seen in a position but slightly changed night after night, because they had in the interval made a complete revolution and something more. Other astronomers of that epoch and somewhat later found a result agreeing with that of Cassini. Herschel, however, was unable to see permanent spots, and the astronomers of our own day, though provided with telescopes far superior to those formerly in use, have been unable to reach definite results, so that the older astronomers, if right, must have been favored with physical changes in the aspect of the planet which have not been vouchsafed to their successors.

The next object of inquiry would be as to whether or not Venus possesses an atmosphere full of cloud, obscuring the body of the planet, would sufficiently account for the difficulty of observing points by which to determine her rotation.

During the transits of 1761 and 1769 a luminous ring was seen encircling the planet. A similar phenomenon was observed during the late transit at Harvard observatory and elsewhere. In the observations of the transit of 1874 many observors, not expecting the appearance, were surprised to find, when Venus was partly projected on the sun's disk, that the portion outside the sun was surrounded by a delicate line of light. These observations all seem to indicate that the planet has an atmosphere surrounding it.

All the planets revolving outside the orbit of Venus are attended by one or more moons. Mars was long supposed to be a moonless planet, but the astonishing discovery of his satellites in 1877 completes the similitude in this respect between the planets, counting from the earth outward. It is a subject of curious inquiry whether Venus is also provided with a handmaid of this description.

Various astronomers, from time to time, have fancied they discovered a faint object near, presenting phases like those of the planet itself. If they were correct in their observation it has since departed, for nearly a century has elapsed since the last report that it was seen. After the discovery of the moons of Mars, however, one may be prepared for anything in the shape of a satellite, one of those tiny bodies being apparently not more than two and a half miles in diameter.

According to some observers, mountains of enormous height exist in Venus, some of them being over twenty miles high. Such gigantic elevations as those would indicate scenery on a scale far more grand and majestic than what obtains on the earth, and the presence of earthquake forces which upheaved them of frightful power and destructive energy.

Is Venus inhabited? Gazing at the bodies which, like the earth, revolve about the sun, the question naturally arises: Are they inhabited, like our earth, by intelligent beings? There seems to be a repugnance in the conception of these great spheres rolling through space, and performing to our seeming a useless and eternal revolution.

It was long supposed that the moon was tenanted by beings similar to ourselves, and some enthusiastic individuals went so far as to propose the construction of a great triangle or other mathematical figure on the plains of Asia, as a sign to our nearest celestial neighbor, and with the expectation of seeing some similar figure constructed on her surface in response. It is now pretty well conceded that the condition of the moon is such that anything like life, as we perceive it, could find no sustenance upon her surface. Whether, however, the beautiful planet which revolves next between us and the sun is occupied like our own by a set of intelligent beings is a fair subject of speculation. That this should be requires that the conditions of life there should, in a general way, [illegible] to those to which we are subjected. Now, Venus, being much nearer to the sun than we, receives a much greater share both of light and heat. This might be compensated for by a denser atmosphere. But there is another consideration. The observations of Italian astronomers seem to give her axis a large angle of inclination. This being the case, the north pole of Venus, during her summer, would be brought directly under the sun's rays, and during her winter be turned with almost the whole of her northern hemisphere out of the region of sunshine. This would subject her northern hemisphere to the accumulated heat of a never-setting sun during summer, and to the frightful cold of an unlit and unheated atmosphere during winter. Such extremes as these are certainly not favorable to the development of the human species as it exists on our planet. The vast accumulation of ice in her frigid winter would, when set free, cause floods, compared to which our spring freshets are as lilliputian cataracts, while enormous icebergs would go crashing over her surface, destroying every edifice of human hands, if, under such conditions, any edifice of human hands could be erected.

It may be broadly stated that whatever fate awaits Venus that fate also awaits the earth. Locked in the embrace of the same laws, governed by the same great luminary, they are whirling around the sun, and, with him, whirling through space in a direction which has been, in a measure determined, but under the influence of a power which is altogether unknown.

The life of Venus, like that of the earth, depends upon the life of the sun. If the continual light and heat which the sun emits are part of a store the waste of which is not replenished, it is only a question of time when the last ray shall fall from a dying sun upon a train of lifeless satellites. No man need discomfort himself, however, about the catastrophe. Myriads of years may roll away before the possibility of its occurrence. Meanwhile, in the far space toward which we are hastening, other forms of destruction may await us which we wot not of. There is evidence that other systems meet with accidents destructive of their integrity, and why not ours? Had science achieved the means of prolonging human life indefinitely, the possible distribution of our system might be a subject of melancholy contemplation. But so far a thought can carry us, no evidence of its destruction appears.

The writer recalls an occurrance which illustrates the opinion of a genial and talented astronomer on this subject. A clergyman somewhere in Kentucky or Tennessee had figured out from the Bible that the world would come to an end at a date long past, and wrote to the late Prof. Winlock to know if there was anything in astronomy to show the correctness of his views. Prof. Winlock wrote back that so far as astronomical science was concerned, nothing could be perceived pointing to the destruction of the earth during the next 100,000 centuries. Accepting, then, the opinion of the lamented and learned professor, we need feel no misgiving about the immediate fate of the earth, nor, consequently, about that of our fair sister planet.

Indeed, long after the present generation, with all its deeds and misdeeds, are forgotten, she will still form in the future, as she has in the past, a theme for the song of the poet and the speculation of the philosopher.—Boston Herald.

Aphorisms From the Quarters.

When you make de jail too nice, you better strenkin' de hog-pen.

Mule don't kick 'cordin to no rule.

Black sheep hide mighty easy in de dark.

Better keep de rockin' cheer in de cabin lof' tell Sunday.

You can't coax de mornin'-glory to clam de wrong way 'round de corn-stalk.

Sat'day night he'p de roomatis powful.

High-l'arnt nigger ain't much service at de log-rollin'.

Blind bridle can't hide de fodder-stack fum de lean horse.

Hot sun make de blades dull in de harves'-fiel'.

Mule don't unnerstan' de wheelborrer.

Smart rabbit go home 'fo' de snow done fallin'.

Dead limb on de tree show itse'f when de buds come out.

Dribin' de steers wid mule-talk is thowin' 'way your bref.

Tin plate don't mind drappin' on de flo'.

Cussin' de weather is mighty po' farmin'.

It takes heap o' licks to dribe a nail in de dark.

Good signs o' rain don't always he'p de young crap.

Books don't tell when de bee-martin an' de chicken-hawk fell out.

Don't take too big a chip on a saplin'.

De public road ain't free for de rattlesnake.

De plow-p'int is close kin to de meal-bag.

Dar's some fac's in de wul' dat don't slide 'long on de telegraph-wire.—J. A. Macon, in The Century.

A Base Conspiracy Defeated.

A close guess was made in a Hartford saloon the other day. In one partition of a money-drawer was a large number of pennies. Among the frequenters of the place was a man who was always ready to make a bet. It occurred to the proprietor of the place, who had been taken in a good many times by the betting man, to lay for him. He took a friend into his confidence, and the pair made up their minds to beat the fellow with the contents of the money-drawer. So they counted the pennies and found there were just 625 of them. Then they laid low for their opportunity.

That evening the betting man was on hand, and in a manner not to excite suspicion the saloon-keeper said to his friend: "I wonder how many pennies there are in this drawer?"

The betting chap pricked up his ears and remarked: "Let each of us put up $5, and the one who comes nearest to the number shall take the pot."

This was agreed to, and the saloon-keeper marked 624, his friend 626, and the fellow that was really ignorant of the number, and whom they expected to trap, by the merest chance put his fingers at 625. The astonishment of the two sharpers was no greater than the wonder of the other at such remarkably sharp guessing. After this the betting man was boss of the saloon.—Hartford (Conn.) Times.

—A passenger on the New Haven Road the other day, riding between Hartford and Boston, gave the conductor a ticket twenty years old in payment for his fare. It was issued by the old New Haven, Hartford & Springfield road in 1862. Having never been used before, it was honored on presentation.

—They call Mrs. Langtry the Jersey Lily for the same reason that the Dutchman called his boy Hans. Lily is her name.

PITH AND POINT.

—Fannie: You are right. It is better to return a kiss for a blow; and a great deal sweeter.—Christian at Work.

—There are some people so eaten up with curiosity that they would turn a rainbow to see what color its back is.—N. Y. Herald.

—One reason why the girls won't kiss the cigarette-smoker is because his face is so pale and sallow. He doesn't look healthy.—Trenton (N. J.) Times.

—Whoever doubts that the newspapers have a mission should enter a car and see how useful they are to the men when a fat woman with a big basket is looking around for a seat.—Lowell Citizen.

—A lunatic in charge of his keeper, while stepping aboard a train the other day, stepped on a banana-peel and slid under the car. "Ah!" exclaimed the keeper, "I am like a disabled locomotive, for I've slipped my eccentric."

—"Detrain" is a new word in use in England. When a body of soldiers alight from railway cars they "detrain." Pretty soon the papers will teem with "dehorsecar," "deomnibus," "dehack," "decanalboat," and so forth.—Chicago Herald.

—Minister Hannibal Hamlin is home. Minister John Russell Young is coming home, and Minister Sargent wants to come. Somehow the glitter of foreign courts never can take the place of American buckwheat cakes and pumpkin pies in the winter season.—Philadelphia News.

—Little Willie, son of Mrs. Jennie Jones Cunningham, has been quite ill for some time, and sleepless and suffering. The other night, "in the still, small hours," he suddenly repeated his prayer, and then said, "Grandmamma, ask God not to let the night be so long!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—A rare pleasure—

Deep on the country roads the snow
Is sparkling to the moon,
While, flecked with foam, the swift steeds go,
Spurning the streets of ice below,
And, huddled up in soft, warm fur,
Quite hidden from the traveler,
The lovers softly spoon,
O, what is so rare
As a ride in a sleigh
With a maiden fair,
And none to say nay?

—"Morning! Cold as blazes's morning," greeted a business man yesterday. "Pretty cold, certainly; but why utter such an absurdity as 'cold as blazes?' Blazes are hot, you know." "What would you say?" "Oh, say it's cold enough to freeze two dry rags together, or something of that sort." The lesson in etymology being over, both passed on.—Boston Globe.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—M. Curls states that the discovery of the great comet was announced at Rio on September 10, but it was not seen at the observatory there until the morning of the 12th.

—The youngest inventor on the records in Washington is Walter Nevegold, a lad fifteen years of age, of Bristol, Pa., who has patented improvements in rolling mill machinery.

—Four German expeditions are now prosecuting their researches in Africa, two from the east and two from the west side of that continent. Very interesting and accurate reports of the several journeys are looked for after the explorers have revised their journals.

—Paper in a variety of forms, which shall be both luminous and proof against damp, is made up of the following substances: Water, ten parts; paper pulp, forty parts; phosphorescent powder—by preference slacked for twenty-four hours—twenty parts; gelatine one part, and saturated solution of bichromate of potash, one part. The gelatine resists the damp and the phosphorescent powder secures luminosity.

—The fact that silk is soluble in chloride of zinc, in acetic acid and in ammonia, is well known, and this fact has suggested the possibility that linen threads might be permanently coated with a layer of silk, if steeped in such solutions at a certain pressure and temparature, and then submitted to a process like wire drawing. It is found, however, that silk, when dissolved, loses its luster, and the difficulty is to restore it after being deposited on cotton and linen.—Detroit Post.

—According to H. C. Hovey each female oyster is estimated to contain from 1,000,000 to 10,000,000 eggs, of which not a tenth can be said to be vitalized in the course of nature. But he is of opinion that by a proper system of oyster-farming fully one-half of the young may be matured to that stage when they can take care of themselves. "Seed oysters" are between one and two years old, and those known as "saddle rock" require four years to attain their high commercial value.

—The last invention for the protection of theater audiences is a "penetrable safety wall," which has just been patented by an engineer at Kottbus, Germany. The plan is to make the interior wall in all parts of the theater of papier-mache, made after a certain method. Such a wall will have the appearance of massive stone, but, by pressure upon certain parts where the words are painted in immense letters, "To be broken open in case of fire," access to the exterior corridors is to be obtained, whence escape to the outer air can be made.—Boston Post.

—In what is estimated to be the most delicate pair of scales in the world, according to the account given in the scientific papers, the beam [illegible] rye straw, and together with the pans, which are made of aluminum, weighs only fifteen grains. In the most delicate scale heretofore made the beam and pans weighed sixty-eight grains—the beam being made of aluminum—and the instrument was capable of weighing to the one-thousandth of a grain. This new scale, however, weighs to the one-ten-thousandth of a grain. A piece of hair one inch long, on being weighed with this wonderful apparatus, was found to represent the almost infinitesimal quantity of one-thousandth of a grain.—N. Y. Sun.

—An action for malpractice has been brought against a New York hospital, the claim for damages being based on an alleged shortening of a leg, by an inch or so, which followed treatment for a compound fracture of the hip.

Corruption in Russia.

A Moscow paper has just published a list of the principal thefts and embezzlements that have recently been committed in Russia, the trials concerning which are at present going on or have lately been concluded. First, mention is made of Melnizky, who carried off 340,000 rubles from the great Foundling Hospital in Moscow, and who has just been sentenced to banishment to Siberia. The cashier, Swiridoff, defrauded the Association for Mutual Credit in Moscow to the extent of 257,000 rubles. A certain Safjano managed to defraud the Southwestern Railway of 400,000 rubles. The deficit of the Skopin Bank amounts to no less than 12,000,000 rubles, of which sum "Uncle" Rykoff is said to have got at least one-half. One evening the Agricultural Bank at Kherson was found on fire. After the flames were extinguished a revision was ordered of the bank funds. There should have been 170,000 rubles in coinage and 8,000,000 in paper currency, but a careful count revealed a deficit of no less than 2,000,000 rubles. Where the money went to no one knows. The director of the Sujourtsch Bank, in Wladikawkas, can not explain the loss of 1,700,000 rubles from the treasures in his charge. In Kranstadt former members of the board of management of the bank there have been arrested, as a deficit of 3,000,000 rubles has been discovered. In Kostroma the cashier of the Communal Bank was satisfied with merely taking a bagatelle of 20,000 rubles, and the chief of the railroad station at Kischineff with a paltry 44,000. The recent commissariat process at Odessa has reference to a steal of 6,000,000 rubles. The so-called quinine process (frauds in connection with quinine contracts during the Russo-Turkish war) treats of a theft of 250,000.

In Archangel the crown apportioned 80,000 rubles for the construction of a lighthouse, which cost, according to the examinations made by a special commission, only 20,000 rubles, 60,000 sticking in the hands of officials and contractors. An official named Argustoff, in Wilna, stole 25,000 of the Government funds, and the postmaster of Jelissawetgrad "annexed" 42,000 rubles. A Moscow merchant named Solodownikoff, has been found guilty of fraudulent bankruptcy to the amount of 509,000 rubles. In Odessa a criminal process is to be instituted against a certain Matkowsky, who forged a certificate of baptism for the purpose of getting unlawful possession of 1,000,000 rubles. And so on, not to mention the bagatelle of 20,000 rubles and under. The conclusion arrived at by the Moscow paper is that Siberia has no terrors that are sufficient to check the mania for frauds and embezzlements in Russia, and to anybody who has been in Siberia it seems strange that the idea could ever have prevailed that simple banishment thither is a severe punishment at all. There is to-day a sentenced Russian bank cashier living in Tomsk, who, being a cultured and intellectual man, really enjoys a very prominent position in his place of exile, and his crime, that of taking about 1,000,000 rubles out of the bank funds, is almost entirely forgotten. Of course, to live well in banishment in Siberia the embezzler must have put something by in a dry place for such an eventuality, and if he is willing to hide the temporary inconvenience of being under police supervision in a town that, beyond its distance from civilization, has nothing particularly disagreeable about it he will in due time get his reward. He may return to Russia after the lapse of his term of exile or if he made enough out of his transactions he will prefer to live in Paris or Nice or some other resort, and there enjoy the fruits of his former delinquencies, and which, having suffered punishment therefor, in due time he thinks that he has fully earned. Such crimes have in the past been undoubtedly punished most leniently, and sterner measures will in all probability soon be adopted.—Berlin Cor. N. Y. Herald.

Gas and Electricity.

When electricity was first successfully used for illuminating purposes there was a great fall in the price of gas stocks in all the large cities of the civilized world. There has been a recovery since then, and it really seems that Dr. Siemens was right when he claimed that the use of gas would increase, notwithstanding the employment of the electric light. He expressed the opinion that the latter can never be used economically in the household. But gas, he said, would take the place of coal for heating and cooking purposes, and this prediction is being partially verified. We are now promised a revolution by the use of petroleum to produce a gas which gives out an intense heat. A patent has been taken out in every civilized country for the production of a gas by some combination of petroleum with lime. The companies have been formed, and it is said that within a short time, and by the pipes used for carrying ordinary gas, that burning material will be introduced into our households which will heat our rooms and cook our food at one-third of the cost now necessitated by the use of coal or wood. The recent speculative excitement in petroleum is said to be due to the practical application of this patent by some of our gas companies. Petroleum has never commanded a fair price in view of its production in excess of the demands of the consumers. Our wells have pumped out about 27,000,000 barrels per annum, but heretofore the world has been searched in vain [illegible] this ocean of mineral oil. Should we make use of it, however, for a heat-producing and cooking gas, there will be an abundant demand for all the petroleum we could produce. It would add marvelously to human comfort if so bulky a product as coal could be dispensed with, and our dwellings were warmed by a cleanly and comparatively inexpensive gas.—Demorest's Monthly.

—Some boys stole a barrel of kerosene the other day from the front door of a grocery, placed it in the middle of Water street, New York, bored a hole in the top, inserted a lighted fuse and fled. A loud explosion ensued. Edward Hanley, who was passing by, was fearfully burned. Many windows were shattered, and the whole street for a while was a sheet of flames, and the buildings were in danger.

Religious.

"ALL THINGS BEAUTIFUL."

I love Thy beautiful green earth, O, Lord!
Thy hills and valleys, and Thy flower decked plains,
Thy snow-crowned mountains and Thy forests grand,
And Thy broad meadows, rich with waving grains.

I love Thy silent, holy crimson dawn,
When earth seems fresh from the Creator's hand;
I love the hour when Thy sunset's glow
Falls like a benediction on the land.

I love Thy radiant noontide, O my Lord,
The gladsome hour so glorious and bright;
I love the quiet evening's rest and peace;
But more I love Thy silent, star-lit night.

I love the budding spring-time of the earth,
The time of joy in earth, and air and sky;
And the sweet summer's music, light and warmth,
When nature sings bl the songs unceasingly.
And Thy rich, fruitful autumn, too, I love,
The season of earth's bounteous harvest-time;
And hoary winter, with its robe of snow,
Its dazzling whiteness and its merry chime.

I love Thy happy birds so glad and gay,
That fill the air with strains of trustful song;
I love Thy lilies and Thy roses well,
That breathe such fragrance all the summer long.

And, Lord, I love Thy sea; its mystic depth
And boundless wideness precious are to me,
Because an emblem of the depth and breadth
Of the great love wherewith Thou lovest me.

Lord, loving Thee, I love Thy glorious earth
Which Thou hast made, and made so very fair,
And over which Thou watchest from Thy throne,
Guarding and guiding it with tender care.

And, loving this fair earth with earnest love,
How shall I hope my holier love to tell,
When Thou hast made new heavens and new earth,
Where righteousness shall dwell!

—Chicago Standard.

Funerals in the Time of Christ.

The touching Gospel account of the funeral procession that wound out of the gate of Nain—probably down the steep road which now leads toward the ancient sepulchral caves west of the village—as our Lord and His disciples came nigh, gives us probably the most familiar idea of the ordinary mode of committing the dead to their "long homes" in that day. First in order came the women, according to an ancient commentary of the Jews, which explains, that as "woman brought death into our world, she it is who ought to lead the way in a funeral procession." Among them, how easy, for any one, much more the Lord, her Maker, to recognize the widow, about to hide away forever from her eyes an only son. Behind the bier followed "much people of the city," and last of all the hired mourners and musicians with their distracting and discordant wailing and piping. According to prevailing custom, our Lord and His companions should have joined the procession, and wept with them who wept, or shared in bearing the burden of the open bier on which lay the young man, "the only son of his mother, and she was a widow." The Apostle pauses in his record of this glorious miracle to emphasize the Savior's compassion for this bereaved mother, whom He must comfort with a gentle "Weep not," though in a moment more He should place the dead son alive in her arms. May He not at that moment have beheld, as in prophetic vision, the sorrows of that Virgin Mother for the death of her only Son, of which Simeon had testified, saying: "Yea a sword shall pierce through thy own soul, also." (Luke ii. 35).

It was contrary to the law that a a high priest should attend the funeral, or observe any of the customary rites of mourning for any relative, not even for his father or mother; the priest might be "defiled" for his mother, father, son, daughter, brother, and unmarried sister, but for no other relation in life (Levit. xxi. 1-4, 10, 11).

In the time of Christ it was the custom, the moment the body was carried out of the house, to reverse all chairs or couches, or seats of whatever sort. The mourners sat on the floor, except on the Sabbath and on one hour of the Friday, the day of preparation, and on some feast days in which "mourning" was prohibited. On the return of the family from the burial with their friends, they were served by their neighbors with a symbolical refreshment in earthenware consisting of bread, hard-boiled eggs, and lentils. The friends and funeral guests, however, partook of a generous meal, but at which the supply of wine was limited to ten cups. These "cups" may have been a relic of the ancient custom referred to in Jeremiah: "Neither shall men give them" (the mourners) "the cup of consolation for their father or for their mother" (xvi. 6. 7). An illusion to funeral banquets is supposed to be found in the circumstance after Abner's death, as recorded in this text: "When all the people came to cause Devin to eat meat while it was yet day, David sware, saying, So do God to me, and more also, if I taste bread, or aught else till the sun be down." (II. Sam. iii. 35.)

• • • • • •

With the return from the grave began the formal mourning, when the passionate expressions of grief, loud and demonstrative, before the burial, were, if possible, redoubled and intensified. The prescribed reason for deep mourning was seven days, the first three of these being those of "weeping," the others those of "lamentation." These being fulfilled, there followed a lighter mourning of thirty days or more, according to the nature of the bereavement. Under the Rabbis, children mourned for their parents a whole year. The anniversary of the death of a relative was also to be kept; while, for a season, the Jewish "prayer for the dead" (not, however, intercessory in its character) was to be offered.—Home Life in the Bible.

Carlyle's Submission to God's Will.

Many years ago, whilst I belonged to another cathedral, I met him in St. James' Park, and walked home with him to his own house. It was during the Crimean war: and after hearing him denounce with his vigorous and perhaps exaggerated earnestness the chaos and confusion into which our administration had fallen, I ventured to ask him: "What, under the circumstances, is your advice to a canon of an English cathedral?" He grimly laughed at my question, paused for a moment, and then answered in homely and well-known words, but which are, as it happens, especially fitted to situations like that for which he was asked to give counsel: "Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might." That is, no doubt, the lesson which he leaves each one of us in this weary world—the world of which he felt the weariness as age and infirmities grew upon him, but a lesson which in his more active days be practiced to the full. He is at rest. He is at last delivered from that burden of the flesh against which he chafed and fretted. In his own words "Babylon, with its deafening inanity, rushes on to the dim, innocuous, unheeded forever." From the silence of the eternities of which he so often spoke there still sound, and will long sound, the tones of that marvelous voice. Let us take one tender expression, written three or four years ago, one plaintive yet mournful thought, which has never yet reached the public eye:

"Three nights ago, stepping out after midnight, and looking up at the stars, which were clear and numerous, it struck me with a strange new kind of feeling. In a little while I shall have seen you also for the last time. God Almighty's own theater of immensity, the infinite made palpable and visible to me—that, also, will be closed, flung to in my face, and I shall never behold death any more. The thought of this eternal deprivation even of this, though this is nothing in comparison, was sad and painful to me. And then a second feeling rose upon me. What if Omnipotence that has developed in me these pieties, these reverences, these infinite affections, should actually have said: 'Yes, poor mortal, such of you as have gone so far shall be permitted to go further.' Hope, and despair not. God's will, God's will not ours be done." Yes, God's will be done for us and for Him. "The Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away."—From Dean Stanley's Funeral Sermon.

The Scape-Goat.

The word translated "scape-goat" in our authorized version, "Azazel," occurs only in this chapter, and has been the source of some perplexity to commentators. But the Hebrew word, "azal," meaning to separate or put away, gives the clue to what is the most ancient and most probable rendering. The redoubling of the opening syllable, so as to read "Azazel," seems to intensify the meaning, and to imply complete separation or sending away. While critics speculate whether Azazel may not be the proper name of some region to which the goat was to be led, and others maintain it must refer to an evil spirit, or the evil spirit, we prefer the plainer and more practical interpretation. We believe, with thankfulness, that by this symbol was taught the fullness and freeness of pardon through atonement. We hear God saying: "I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and iniquities will I remember no more."

This letting go of the scape-goat was a special and singular part of the ceremonial service of the day of atonement. But this was not the only occasion when the same truth was typified, and the same principle illustrated and applied. In the law of cleansing from leprosy, two birds were taken, one of which was slain and the blood sprinkled on the infected house: but the priest took the other bird, and let it go out into the open fields, as a sign of the atonement being complete. In all these types of ancient days the Israelites were taught deeper truths than the mere ceremonial observances.

And we, too, see the Gospel in the old dispensation as well as in the new:

"The scape-goat on his head
The people's trespass bore,
And to the desert led,
Was to be seen no more.
In him our Surety seemed to say,
'Behold, I bear your sins away.'

"Dipt in his fellow's blood
The living bird went free;
The type, well understood,
Expressed the sinner's plea,
Described a guilty soul enlarged,
And by a Savior's death discharged.

"Jesus, I love to trace,
Throughout the sacred page
The footsteps of Thy grace,
The same in every age!
Oh grant that I may faithful be
To clearer light vouchsafed to me!"

—N. Y. Observer.

Who Was Thomas A'Kempis!

Many have seen this name after some sage piece of advice or quaint criticism, and have wondered who he is or was. His name was not Kempis, but Hamerken. He lived in Kempen, and as a means of distinguishing him from other Thomases he was called Thomas Kempen. He was born in 1379, and when twenty-one determined to devote himself to the service of God, and so entered a monastery, where he led a secluded life for more than ninety years. His character for sanctity and learning stood very high among the people of his own time, but his name has come down through ages more on account of his writings, which consist of sermons, treatises on moral virtues and theology, pious biographies, letters and hymns. Of these only one now remains famous; it is the celebrated treatise "On the Following (or Imitation) of Christ." The original is now in the Burgundian Library at Brussels, and, next to the Scripture, has had the largest number of readers of any book in sacred literature, ancient or modern. Dean Milman said that upon its pages there "is gathered and concentrated all that is elevating, passionate, profoundly pious in all the older mystics."

The handwriting in the original volume is good and generally clear. The [illegible] first belonged to the Monastery of Mt. St. Agnes, in which Thomas A'Kempis spent his life. Beside being a very rare old book, with an everlasting treasury of good things in it, it has had quite a history.—Scholar's Companion.

—Two New York youths tried to kiss a young girl, whose "fellow" interfered. One of them struck him, when the screams of the girl brought her mother to the door. The other assailant, who was blind, knocked the mother down with a cane. Notwithstanding his excuse that hearing his friend calling for help, he thought he was being beaten by roughs and struck out "blindly," he had to go to jail with his friend for one month. They will try, hereafter, to get along without kissing the wrong girl.—N. Y. Herald.

THE RECORDER.

R DDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JAN. 17, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
[illegible]	[illegible]	40
[illegible]	[illegible] "	20
[illegible] "	1 "	20
"	[illegible] "	10
"	[illegible] "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE Yeoman of the 10th inst. contained nearly two columus in defense of Luke and Joe.

IN this state there were raised last year 226,127 acres of tobacco which averaged 756 pounds per acre.

IN the Tennessee house of representatives there are thirty-eight doctors, while in the senate there are eight.

THE Milwaukee fire is only another demonstration of the necessity of providing public buildings with ample arrangements for easy and rapid exit in case of a fire.

THE democratic state convention to nominate candidates for the various state offices to be filled by the August election, will be held in Louisville on the sixteenth of next May.

AN earthquake had the people at Paducah out in their night linuen one night last week. Clocks and mantle ornaments were shaken from their places, and intense excitement prevailed. The earthquake lasted about thirty minutes.

THE Cincinnati Price Current publishes its usual midwinter preliminary report on porkpacking in the West, showing the total number of hogs killed to date since November 1 4,050,000 against 4,220.000 a year ago, making a decrease of 170,000.

AT a mass meeting held in Carter county, the other day, it was declared that Neal and Craft will be afforded a peacable trial so far as the citizens of that county are concerned. The citizens of Carter want no reckless and inexperienced boy soldiers invading her sacred soil. Don't blame them.

POLK, the defaulting Tennessee Treasurer, was captured in Texas and returned to Nashville, where he is now confiued in jail. The state of Tennessee had to offer more for his capture than he could give for his liberty. Some of the Texas officials made a paying thing out of Polk's defalcation.

TENNESSEE repudiated a portion of her public debt, then her Treasurer decamped the other day with all the state funds on hand, and finally she is to give ten thousand dollars for the return of the fleeing official. It looks like Tennessee will be forced to make an assignment.

IT has been so dry up in Maine the past month or two that many of the mills have had to shut down for the want of water, throwing many persons out of employment at this the worst season of the year. This is the first time that a drouth ever prevailed in that section at this season of the year.

THE Eminence Constitutionalist says. "The name of Smith is going to figure prominently among the multitude at the next state election." If we mistake not two of Henry county's noble sons by the name of Smith want to incumber state offices which are to be filled at the August election: Zack and A. B., both good men.

THERE will be twenty-seven legislatures in session before the close of this month. The states thus afflicted are Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Deleware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and Wisconsin. Kentucky will escape the plague this winter.

THE destruction of the Newall House in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on the 10th inst., was one of the most dreadful holocausts that has occurred in this country for some time. The building was six stories high and capable of accommodating about 800 guests, and at the time the fire broke out there were about 200 persons in the house including the employes engaged about the building. The servant girls were sleeping in the sixth story, and nearly all of them perished in the flames. The total number of the victims is estimated at 100. The cause of the fire is unknown.

HERE 's a fellow who may say if I'm not my own grandfather, who in the d—l am I? He says: "I married a widow who had a grown up daughter. My father visited our house very often, felt in love with my daughter and married her. So my father became my son-in-law, and my stepdaughter my mother, because she married my father. Some time afterward my wife had a son. He is father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he is a brother of my stepmother. My father's wife, namely, my stepmother, had a son. He is my grandchild, for he is the son of my daughter. My wife is my gradmother, because she is my mother's mother. I am my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I am my own grandfather."

WE may just as well prepare ourselves for the worst. If the prophets are to be believed the year that now epens is destined to be afflicted with storms of exceeding magnitude, panics of direful consequence, wars and rumors of wars, political and social upheavings, assassination of crown heads and the terrors of communistic war. Mr. Swormstead, of Cincinnati, goes the length of predicting no less than seven great comets. Mr. Drake, of the Empire City, is strong on famine, pestilence and earthquakes, and another New York gentleman predicts a sesession of the Western States and a limited monarchy in New England. It is strange that no one has predicted a grand national lunatic asylum for cranks. —Com. Ad.

The Louisville "Weekly Commercial" announces that hereafter its yearly subscription price will be One Dollar. This reduction will make the "Commercial" the cheapest and best newspaper in the state.

It will also be greatly improved. On January 1st it will appear in an entire new and handsome dress, and will contain, among other valuable features, Whyte Melville's celebrated novel, "KATERPELTO." The adventures of the hero and his thoroughbred mare, "Keterfelto," with the charming and yet thrilling of Waif and John Garnet, make the tail one of profound interest throughout. There is not a dull chapter in the entire novel.

In order to obtain the first chapter of this tale of unparalleled popularity, subscriptions should be sent to the "Commercial" at once.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $6 50@6 65; fair to good packers, at $6 30@6 55; fair to good light, $6 10@6 35; common, $5 50@6 10; culls, $4@5 35: stock hogs, $5 50@6 10.

STATE NEWS.

—Eighteen prisoners in Richmond jail.

—A Logan county hog netted 600 pounds.

—Nelson county is to have a $16,000 court-house.

—Wharfage collected at Louisville for the year just closed, $15,000.

—Simeon Banks, colored, was frozen to death near Bowling Green,

—The Glasgow Times thinks the wheat is badly damaged by the severe freezes.

—Corn is worth 33 cents per bushel delivered at Foster.—Falmouth Democrat,

—The delinquent tax list sold county court day for $460.—Robertson Tribune.

—The Capital Hotel in Frankfort was on fire for ten days before the fire was discovered.

—The Memphis coal mines in Muhlenberg county have suspended operations indefinitely

—A large tobacco barn burned near Mt. Sterling. Loss, twenty-five hundred dollars. Fully insured.

—John Furkin, of Adair county, leaned carelessly on the muzzle of his gun. The funeral was a large one.

—Joe Renfro was shot and mortally wounded while in the act of robbing a saloon in Warren county the other day.

—There is a family in Milton consisting of a father, mother and six children, every one of whom chew and smoke tobacco, the youngest is only two and one-half years old.

—An old servant, Jas. Riddle, col., has been in the family of Wm. Riddle for 46 years. He is now 123 years old, and is able to do many chores about the house.—Owen News.

—Three thousand barrels of whisky were sold at assignee's sale in Lexington last week. It brought from 32 to 62 cents per gollon. L. N. and R. L. Crigler bought largely.

—John Sager has been in jail at Paducah for nearly two years on a charge of stealing a mule. He has just succeeded in getting a trial, and was dismissed, proving the mule to be his own.

James Long sold to Thos. Hedges and Taylor Offutt 25 hogs, 6 months old, of the Poland-China breed, that averaged 326 pounds. He sold to same parties one hog, the sire of the above, that weighed 700 pounds.—Georgetown Times.

—Marshall & Co., have struck oil on Otter creek, in Wayne, and excitement runs high. "Everybody" is talking oil in that region now. Capacity of well at present ten barrels a day, with prospects flattering. —Somerset Reporter.

—Owensboro has twenty-three tobacco factories, and only eight are in operation. The cause assigned for so many shutting down this season is that the buyers are afraid to pay the high prices that tebacco is bringing in the market.—Messenger.

—This time last year two thirds of the tobacco in the county was sold at fair prices. Now scarcely any tobocco has been sold. The buyers are afraid to make an offer of any reasonable character, because of the uncertainty of the maket.—Warsaw Independent.

—Henry Carpenter, the negro who had his neck broken last summer while harvesting, spent several days in the city, during Christmas, having recovered from all his damages. At the time of his accident his neck was broken, skull fractured, and one leg broken, but he held on and pulled through.—Bowling Green Gazette.

—Thomas and Mitchell Allen, twin brothers, were tried in Elliott county on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The men were so much alike that they could not be identified by their names. Several witnesses had seen one of them draw a pistol, but could not tell which it was. Finally a witness was found who had seen them both draw a pistol.

—Dr. Luke P. Blackburn will probably organize a theatrical troupe at the close of his governorship. It is conjectured that the stars will be the Forde brothers, the same who assassinated the train robber and murderer, Jesse James. In case Frank, the brother of Jesse, gets out of jail in time, he may make a valuable addition. If the above happens, a special comedy will be written by assistant secretary of state, Thomas A. Harris, entitled "Two Dollars a Clip." —Richmond Herald.

—The jury in the Egbert murder trial at Frakfort failed to agree, and he was admitted to bail in $2,000.

—Redmond for the killing Secrest, and Stivers for killing Scully have been refused bail at Paris.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—They are killing all the surplus dogs in Chattanooga to prevent the spread of small pox.

—The Charlestown News and Courier are opposed to renting out convicts.

—A correspondent of the Nashville American says the South needs 20,000 cooks, and cries out for cooking schools.

—Architects have been instructed to draw plans for a court-house to be built at Houston, Texas, costing between $75,000 and $100,000.

—Messrs. Sterzing & Bro., of Austin, Texas, are meeting with wonderful success in the raising of the Angora goats of the purest and finest breeds.

—The Governor of North Carolina does not occupy a residence at the capital, built and furnished by the state, but has to take pot luck at the Raleigh hotel.

—E. P. Andrews, of St. Augustine, Florida, caught a sawfish which was fourteen feet long, had a saw three feet ten inches, and weighed nearly 800 pounds.

—The Macon Library has received the breast-plate and arm-pieces of the armor recently unearthed in Florida, and supposed to have belonged to one of DeSoto's soldiers.

—At Macon, Georgia, while Alex. Mobley and his wife were riding on a cart, the cart upset and Mrs. Mobley was caught and smothered by the cotton seed with which the cart was loaded.

—At Maryville, East Tennessee there is a factory which manufactures buttons of mussel shells gathered from the various rivers. The buttons are said to be very fine and give much satisfaction. The demand is fully equal to the capacity of the mill.—Dixon Press.

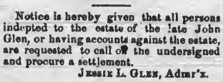
NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that all persons indepted to the estate of the late John Glen, or having accounts against the estate, are requested to call on the undersigned and procure a settlement.

JESSIE L. GLEN, Admr'x.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.



Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1300, Corning, N. Y.

LIST OF CLAIMS ALLOWED
—BY THE—
COURT OF CLAIMS
OF BOONE COUNTY,
—AT ITS—
NOVEMBER TERM 1882,
—AND—
JANUARY TERM 1883.

November Term 1882.

Claims payable out of the levy of 1882

J W Kirk for tree boxes	$ 1 50
Sallie Underhill keeping pauper	100
W F Mckim for medicine	3 65
T W Finch Co. levy refunded	2 50

Claims payable out of levy of 1883

J C Hensly holding inquest and burying pauper	6 00
T W Finch serving road notices	52 50
W A Goodridge holding inquest	24 00
Judy Peno & John Hankins for burying drownded men	16
H Kennedy burying pauper	5 50
Geo Reeves do do	6
Geo Phelps do do	6
H J Foster & Son for printing	19 30
J W Kirk making drawer	1 50
James Hughes (col) conveying pauper to poor-house	3 00
E Fowler burying paupers and furn'ng milk for poor-house	41 00
R C Green county attorney	425
Cy Riddell county judge	333 33

January Term 1883

Claims payable out of the levy of 1882

Ben Rouse note, with interest thereon, also interest on two notes for $1,000 each	1,134 67
Sam Cowen jail account	77 00
do do for coal	21 00
J H Callahan constable	8 20
F P Walton funds fur'hed Co.	68 41
" " receiver	150 00
Ed Fowler superintendent	45 00
Dr Furnish pauper practice	68 75

Claims payable out of the levy of 1883

L H Dills ex-clerk	51 00
W O B Rich constable	18 54
Joseph Rich do	8 46
Curly & Edwards two coffins	12 00
Joseph Rich constable	7 60
F Hartmann burying child	6 00
L A Loder holding inquest	6 00
A D Riley constable	6 60
Ed Fowler milk for poor-house	15 00
same for sowing rye	6 50
S W Tolin as committee	12 00
Oscar Gaines same	6 00
E H Baker same	3 00

Justices present at November Term 1882

J Wagstaff	$3	L A Loder	$3
J C Hensly	3	W M Rouse	3
O Gaines	3	E H Baker	3
S T Johnson	3	W L Norman	3
W B Craven	3	M B Green	3
T H Sutton	3	B H Ryle	3
G W Baker	3	M C Norman	3
W A Goodridge	3	H Bannister	3

Justices present January Term 1883

W B Craven	3	T H Sutton	3
S T Johnson	3	J Wagstaff	3
J C Hensly	3	W M Rouse	3
L A Loder	3	O Gaines	3
E H Baker	3	G W Baker	3
M B Green	3	M C Norman	3
H Bannister	3	B H Ryle	3
A S McConnell	3	W A Goodridge	3

Justices present 2d day January Term 1883

M B Green	3	O Gaines	3
S T Johnson	3	T H Sutton	3
W M Rouse	3	J C Hensly	3
L A Loder	3	E H Baker	3
M C Norman	3	J Wagstaff	3
H Bannister	3	B H Ryle	3
W B Craven	3	W A Goodridge	3

Judges August election 1882

Wm Rouse	2	J O Roberts	2
J M Robinson	2	Geo Moore	2
J G Snow	2	M P Riley	2
J P Duncan	2	Z T Kelly	2
C Hurd	2	S S McWethy	2
Wm Wilkie	2	M L Rouse	2
G L Miller	2	W W Grimsly	2
J Breedon	2	W B Craven	2
J D Conner	2	I P Crisler	2
Alex Murray	2	Wm Allen	2
F M Underhill	2	J C Hughes	2
D M Snyder	2	Cyrus Kelly	2

Clerks August election 1882

H C Botts	2	J O Griffith	2
E S Rice	2	T O Graves	2
B S O'Neal	2	J L Johnson	2
C C Talbott	2	J K Latham	2
J P Craig	2	L P Sanders	2
W B Grubbs	2	E W Duncan	2

Sheriffs of August election 1882

Ed Fowler	2 00	S J Hedges	2 64
A S Arnold	3 20	L S Stephens	2 80
M V Cave	2 80	N Talbott	2 48
J W Eldred	3 00	G Stephens	3 20
Chas Helm	2 40	G H Aydlotte	2 48
A B Corbin	2 56	G R Griffith	2 88

Judges November elec.ion 1882

J S Noell	2	F M Underhill	2
J S Ransom	2	J Breedon	2
L C Yager	2	Alex Murray	2
J T Duncan	2	Z T Kelly	2
B S Kirk	2	E W Duncan	2
Geo Moore	2	J M Robinson	2
D M Snyder	2	Cyrus Kelly	2
J D Norris	2	C Hurd	2
V Dickerson	2	Wm Wilkie	2
J S Snow	2	M P Richy	2
J D Conner	2	Jno Stephens	2
J W Eldred	2	F M Jackson	2

Sheriffs November election 1882

J H Rich	3 00	Chas Helm	2 40
A S Arnold	3 20	A W Bristow	2 48
J K Latham	2 89	J A B Corbin	2 56
J A Riddell	2 64	J A Cowen	2 00
L L Stephens	2 80	G H Aydlotte	2 48
G Stephens	3 20	J Rich	2 88

Clerks November election 1822

W M Rouse	2	J M Sleet	2
C F Pettit	2	J D Craig	2
H J Foster	2	W B Grubbs	2
T H Sutton	2	A B Parker	2
J D Gaines	2	L P Sanders	2
C S Balsly	2	G W Cayton	2

Special term February 28, 1882

James Westbay allowed	$6

Special Term May 23d

Samuel Cowen for fence	$50

Special Term July 18th

L H Dills	$12 75

August Term

G L Miller	$3

COUNTY LEVY $2 00

Attest | M. T. GARNETT, Clerk.

Special SALE, Special!

To close down our entire stock before taking an invoice, and in order to reduce our stock, we make special Prices to do so at once. We have not taken an invoice since we moved into this house, which is nearly two years and we certainly ought to give our customers the "benefit of a deep slaughter" for three or four weeks. But don't put it off, come in at once, as the very thing you want may be the first sold.

The first slash that we make is in our entire line of Heavy Half Wool Hose at 15 cents per pair, that were 30 to 40 cents. The next is, we throw the 7c. Prints all over on the 5c. counter, and let them go. The next is, we slash the price on Lonsdale Muslin down to 8½c per yard, 12 yards for $1. The next is, one Bale of Heavy Sheeting slashed down to 6¼c. or 16 yards for $1. The next, a Wool Hood, heavy, lined nicely, and with long streamers that answer the purpose of a scarf, at the nearly give away price of 25c sold at from 60 to 80c. before the clearance sale. Another lot of Hoods slashed down to 15 and 20c. They must go, and the sooner you come in the better. The next is a lot of Wool Filling Dress Goods slashed to 10c per yard. And all are marked down at once. We split the price on Silk Handkfs., and slash them out at 38, 50 and 75c. that are really worth 75c. to $1 50 each. All Fancy Christmas Hdkfs. slashed to warrant quick sales. All Gloves shall go at these closing prices, and all salesmen have orders to slash goods out and use their judgment in making prices from COST to 50 PER CENT. less than cost, as this stock must be closed down before inventory, as it would be almost an endless job to invoice it as it is. Please bear in mind that this is a genuine clearance Sale, and not an advertising dodge, and you will think so if you will come and see the prices.

CASHMERES, SILKS & BROCADES,

Large Canton Mittens, double, 10c. per pair. Men's and Ladies' Mittens and Glove must be sold. Large Wax Dolls, with hair, that open and close their eyes, at closing prices.

Cloaks, Jackets and all kinds of Wraps, you can get at your own prices. On Boots and Shoes you will be astonished to see the slash we have made. Bed Blankets at $1 50, was $2, Large 11 quarter Blankets (Schofield's) at $5, was $7. Mens' Casimere Hats 30, 40, 50 and 60c. These prices will sell them on sight. Young Mens' Hats, latest patterns out, at $1 50 to $2 75.

Overcoats at	$2 50	was	$5 00	Overcoats at	3 75	was	6 00
"	" 4 75	"	8 00	"	" 6	"	11 00
"	" 8	"	13 50	"	" 11	"	16 00

Men's Suits $3 50 to $6, which is less than half the real value. In fact, our entire stock of Clothing must be closed down, and our clearance Sale will do it at once. Job lot of Wool Vests (Boys' size) 25c each. You may all take warning that such rare chances as this are very scarce, and it will be to your interest to take advantage of it at once, and not wait until its too late. Black Cloaks trimmed in Velvet and Fringe, $1 75, was $4 00. Black Cloaks trimmed in Silk and Velvet. $2 25, was $5. Wool Jackets $3 was $6. Wool Faced Circulars at $2 50 was $6. Wool Beaver Cloaks at $4 50 and $6 75, was $8 and $12—and we mean what we say. Come in as early as possible. Respectfully,

Wm. COLTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - - OHIO.

Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

PATENTS

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT?

Send a rough sketch or (if you can) a model of your invention to GEORGE E. LEMON, Washington, D. C., and a Preliminary Examination will be made of all United States patents of the same class of inventions and you will be advised whether or not a patent can be obtained.

FOR THIS PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION NO CHARGE IS MADE.

What will a Patent Cost?

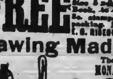
If you are advised that your invention is patentable, send $20 to pay Government application fee of $15, and $5 for the drawings required by the Government. This is payable when application is made, and is all of the expense unless a patent is allowed. When allowed, the attorney's fee ($25) and the final Government fee ($20) is payable. Thus you know beforehand, for nothing, whether you are going to get a patent or not, and no attorney's fee is charged unless you do get a Patent. An attorney whose fee depends on his success in obtaining a Patent will not advise you that your invention is patentable, unless it really is patentable, so far as his best judgment can aid in determining the question; hence, you can rely on the advice given after a preliminary examination is had. Design Patents and the Registration of Labels, Trade Marks and Re-issues secured. Caveats prepared and filed. Applications in revivor of Rejected, Abandoned, or Forfeited Cases made. Very often valuable inventions are saved in these classes of cases. If you have undertaken to secure your own patent and failed, a skillful handling of the case may lead to success. Send me a written request addressed to the Commissioner of Patents that he recognize GEORGE E. LEMON, of Washington, D. C., as your attorney in the case, giving the title of the invention and about the date of filing your application. An examination and report will cost you nothing. Searches made for title to inventions, in fact any information relating to Patents promptly furnished. Copies of Patents mailed at the regular Government rates, (25c. each.) Remember this office has been in successful operation since 1865, and you therefore reap the benefits of experience, besides reference can be given to actual clients in almost every county in the U. S. Pamphlet relating to Patents free upon request.

GEO. E. LEMON,
615 15th St., WASHINGTON, D. C.
Attorney-at-Law and Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. W. Garretson & Co., 2 Collins St., Nashville, Tenn.

IRELAND of TO-DAY $75 to $150 Per Month. New Edition Now Ready. Gives Repression Bill, Events of 1882, etc. Agents Wanted. J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, [illegible] E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.



Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW

Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

G. H. LOEBKER,
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES,
36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

AMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, J. S. Mason, M. C. Motch, J. A. Mersman, Sam Hind, A. R. Mullen, J. J. Dulaney, E. J. Hickey, L. H Dills, E. J. Green, F. P. Helm,

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE,
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
540 MADISON STREET,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

Local News.

Friday night was pretty cool.

The Sun was welcome l yesterday.

J. M. Conner purchased S. A. Palmer's organ.

Corn is selling for 45 cents a bushel in the crib.

Another installment of ice was put up last week.

The dirt roads were too rough for nice sleighing.

Born—To Wm. Bondurant and wife, a daughter.

Come down off the perch is the latest slang phrase.

The mosquitoes don't bother a fellow much these nights.

Mr. Edward Fowler has moved into his house here in town.

Last Saturday was a very disagreeable day for pedestrians.

Died—One day last week, an infant child of James Love.

The blacksmiths have enjoyed a feast in the way of work this week

Sunday was a bright day, and sleighs were going in every direction.

The sale of R. W. Cooper, of Bullettsville, is advertised in this issue.

It is said that the supply of white burley tobacco in the country is very large.

Burlington and Florence should have telephone connection with Covington.

A blinding snow storm swept over this section last Wednesday afternoon.

Some of the gallants from this place attended the ball at Hebron the other night.

Dennis Beemon claims to hold the reins on the finest pair of sleigh mares in his section.

The clatter of the sheep bell was recognizable occasionally when a sleigh would glide by.

It was very difficult to pass along the street Saturday without colliding with a snow-ball.

A. O, Hall and wife have moved in to the poorhouse, to take charge of the institution and inmates.

James Jones lost his horse one day last week, death caused from a kick from another horse.

Attorney Tolin was in Frankfort, last week, looking after some business in the Court of Appeals.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Erastus Garrison who has been very low with typhoid fever is improving.

Sleighs made their appearance last Thursday and the clatter of the bell was heard in every direction.

Our town now has two butcher-shops, and the meat market has been quite bearish since shop No. 2 opened out.

The firm of Graham & Brent, saw-mill men, has been dissolved, Brent selling his interest in the mill and stock to Graham.

We understand that the Bellevue Baptist Church is to be enlarged, and that the congregation is going to provide itself with a fine organ.

Henry Hoffman has sold his house and land adjoining Burlington to G. T. Gaines, and bought the land belonging to Geo. White on Woolper.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Beall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

Some of the light fingered gentry went through Mike Clore's drygoods store and Conner & Claytons hardware store in Hebron a few nights since. Goods and money to the amount of $20 were taken.

The snow storm which commenced on the 10th inst., was general in all parts of the United States where snow visits. Traffic on railroads in the northwest was suspended on account of the heavy fall of the beautiful.

Mr. McLean's lectures are pronounced by those who have heard them, to be very interesting. He will conclude his series to-morrow evening. The weather all last week was so inclement that his audience was small.

J. O. Huey came to town the other day in a sleigh, bringing with him a box of hen fruit which was fearfully pulverized while enroute, Had there been three or four sick eggs in the lot he would have had quite a pleasant ride.

Last Sunday week the superintendent of the Sabbath school at this place submitted the following question for answer on last Sunday: "How many times was the Saviour seen after his resurrection ?"—The answers ranged from 10 to 13 times.

Our young friend Ben F. Akin was in town Monday and we thought his eyes had a pecular sparkle, and upon investigation we ascertained that he had secured a license to wed Miss Mary Schruck. The nuptial knot is to be adjusted in Burlington to-day—Here's to you Ben!

A social party will be given in the Odd-Fellows' Hall in Florence on the night of the 25th inst. John M Reed is general manager which alone is a guarantee of a nice time. He will be assisted by a corps of young men who are very efficient in the management of such affairs.

The types made us say last week that Joseph Chambers' two horses were missing from the pasture of A. S. Gaines, when it should have read the pasture of Alfred Chambers. The horses were found and appraised at less than $100 each instead of the fancy figures at which it is said they are held.

Only twenty-five of the public schools in this county made the report necessary to draw the forty per cent. of the funds when the school is half out, which has to be before the tenth of this month. Commissioner Snyder sent his report off on the 10th inst., and the total amount drawn for the districts reporting schools half out will be nearly $1200.

The store of John Connar, in Walton, was broken open on the night of the 10th inst., and jewelry and money to the amount of about $40 taken. Suspicion pointed to Dan Cummings, a young man of about 20 years of age, and who resides in that vicinity, as the guilty party, and he was accordingly arrested. The examining trial was held by 'Squires Norman and Johnson, who fixed the bail at $300, in default of which Cummings was lodged in jail at this place to await the coming of Circuit Court. The entrance to the store was effected by cutting out the glass in the store door. Cummings had been about Walton that day and night, and had cut one of his fingers, which Mr. Conner's son tied up for him, and the rag which young Conner says he put on Cummings' finger, was found behind the counter in the store. Cummings showed the agent at the Short Line depot some jewelry which answered the description of that taken from Conner's store.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Normansville.

Our public school has a large attendance. All the pupils who had measles have recovered.

Miss Katie Kennedy spent the holidays at home.

Mr. Oscar Huey who has been for some time attending school at Georgetown, Ky., is now at home, and thinks he will remain out of school the balance of this winter.

Mr. Willie Riley, a young theologian of Hanover College, spent two weeks very pleasantly with friends in this vicinity. His brother Orland Riley is still here with relatives and friends.

J. D. Moore has gone to West Virginia, where he will accept a position with Mr. Geo. Meeks.

Died—On the 17th of measles, little Archie Campbell, son of Wm. Campbell and wife.

On the same day at 8:45 p. m., Julius Lucian, infant son of J. L. Johnson and wife, and on the day following at 11 p. m., little Anna, a five year old daughter of the same parents.

Bellevue.

The citizens of this place organized a literary society on last Friday evening with Dr. Piatt, President, Robt. Clore, Vice-President and Wm. Dicken, Sect'y. The first night the 19th inst., will be devoted to arranging rules, regulations, programme and general debate.

The F. C. A. have concluded their labors invoicing, but as yet have employed no clerk for the present year.

J. Harvey Akin was very suddenly stricken down with paralysis, recently, and is in a very critical condition.

W. B. Corbin and Bro., let their ponies get the start of them and capsized the sleigh broke one runner and dragged Bill on one hip for twenty yards, brusing him up considerably.

There was preaching at the school-house on Thursday eve, by Rev. Taylor, of the Christian pursuasion.

We would suggest that the Florence X-Roads correspondent reserve a considerable share of his sympathy for himself, as we have frequently seen his visage about here for the last 10 years, and so far as we know his labors have been in vain.

Funny to see—C. S. C. state the object of the literary society.

Uncle Jonas with his hat marked, "high grade flour and 20c coal."

Bob Clore stand at the gate while some other young man does the talking for him.

Lewis Sullivan away from Bellevue.

Petersburg.

Mr. Steve McWethy, who is working in the city, spent last Sunday at home.

William Turner spent last Sunday with his aunt in Cincinnati.

Mr. German, deputy Sheriff, was here last week collecting taxes.

Mr. Timothy Perry, who moved here last spring from Ohio, moved his family back there last Wednesday, as the climate here did not agree with them.

Mr. J. R Perry is building him a scow and will sail for Florida some time next spring. We would say all those wishing to explore the flowery land would do well to engage passage on Mr. Perry's scow.

About two weeks ago H. B. Fenton received $950 20 as back pension.

Mr. Bert Cloud and wife returned from Pittsburg last Friday.

Misses Hattie and Lou Thompson, two accomplished young bells, of Rising Sun, have been visiting Mrs. Bowman for the past week

Dr. Ed Terrill returned home from Florida last Wednesday, looking hale and hearty, and says Florida had advanced beyond his expectation, and says Mr. Shackley, who went from here there, has a farm worth $10,000. He raises on his land oranges, lemons, Cocoanuts, pine apples, bananas and grapes. Land that sold for $1 25 an acre when he was there 5 years ago, is now selling for $25 per acre.

What We'd Like to See.

The man that stole A. B. Parker's stove wood.

Solon Early get there—Eli.

T. W. Wade start his creamery.

Ed Terrill do as good shooting as he says he did in Florida.

Personal Mentions.

Capt. Finch is well again.

Mrs. Belle Pace, of Indianapolis, is the guest of Mrs. Carrie Riddell.

Miss Fronie Campbell is visiting friends in Williamstown.

We are sorry to learn that Miss Kate Bradford, of Florence, is very sick.

Miss Susie Rich, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. W. F. McKim, of this place returned home last Friday.

Miss Dora and Miss Sallie Rich, of Kenton county, spent last Friday in Burlington.

ILLINOIS LETTER.

QUINCY, ILL., Jan. 11th, 1883.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I doubt if more than a dozen of the Boone countyites ever had the pleasure of seeing this lovely little city; but I know that if any has seen it he will corroborate my adjective.

Quincy is situated as every school-boy knows on the great Mississippi. It was originally built upon a high bluff, but the enterprising citizens have cut through the bluff until now one might say it is an inclined plane. The number of inhabitants is 40,000. The principal business streets are Hampshire, Main, Fourth, Fifth and Third.

I certainly never saw so large a number of beautiful homes. I do not say residences because they are truly homes. All of the residence streets are bordered by shade trees so thickly as to give one an idea of the country. I arrived here in October and fortunately the late fall had preserved the foliage and I obtained quite an idea of the city as it must be in summer.

Quincy is the proud possessor of one of the finest court-houses in the State, erected in 1876. It occupies what is known as Jefferson Square

A fine system of water works is in operation. The gas works are excellent, but owing to a misunderstanding between the city and gas company, when one is giddy enough to be out after dark he is compelled to carry his lantern. There is a probability of the introduction of electric lights and if that is not done no doubt the trouble in regard to gas will be speedily adjusted.

It is very strange to me that we Kentuckians, living in a timber State should almost universally use coal as fuel, while the Illinoisans generally use wood. In that they dispense with the coal dust and smoke that renders our cities so dirty and disagreeable.

There are five flourishing newspapers. The Daily and weekly Whig, the Herald the News (both dailies) the Review and the Germania. Four banks, seven railways and a large union depot; five parks, Washington, Highland, Jefferson, Franklin and Singleton. The latter is called in honor of Gen. Singleton, the present Congressman from this district. Four Catholic and I think 14 protestant churches, 6 public school buildings and an excellent system of education.

As for the natural beauty of the place, I will only say, that Quincy is acknowledged by all travellers of the Mississippi to be the most natural lovely city on the banks of the river from its source to its mouth, and having seen it, I concur in the opinion.

Being a thorough Kentuckian and having never known anything else, I was rather prejudiced against the people here and expected to find a class entirely different from our dear State—adoring Kentuckians, but instead those whom I have met are as hospitable and sociable, (and I am sorry to say, much more cultivated) as any offspring of either of our pet States, Virginia, Maryland or Kentucky. But I solace my disappointed expectatians with the knowledge that a very great number of the most refined, intelligent people here are descended from the "F. F. V's." and the "True Kentuckians." Most of the truly business men of the city are Jews, and among them I have found friends, true friends, and without quibble the very essence of refinement and true heart and brain culture. Among most christians the Jews are rather held as second-class, but it is merely because they have only come in contact with the very lowest of the sect, (and what nation or sect is without that class of representatives?) never even imagining the real Jew. I ask any one prejuced against them to with-hold judgment until he investigates. In looking over what I have written I find very little that I really intend to say and I will probably, in a future letter, give you more entertaining facts in regard to the place which, while I admire it immensly will never crowd out my "Kentucky" and "Boone county."

A LOYAL KENTUCKIAN.

AURORA LETTER.

AURORA, Ind., Jan. 8th, 1883.

To the Editors of the Recorder:

You will please give in your paper the following announcements for me:

I will begin, on the 28th, (4th Sunday) at the church in Burlington a short series of lectures on the three articles of the Universalist faith. They will be delivered on Sunday mornings, and as follows: 1. Creed or no Creed; 2. The Bible (involving art. 1) 3. God and Destiny (involving art. 2). 4. The Inevitable, Present and Future (involving art. 3). I may then conclude with "The Mission of the Universalist Church." This will take me to May, and I will then probably close my labors with the church. A very wide field, ripe unto harvest, is open to me. I will, of course, go where the opportunity is greatest.

I am happy to say the familiar face of the RECORDER is looked upon weekly by me, and with an anxious interest. Let me compliment you on the very presentable appearance—neat and very correct typographically—and, then, in matter, with the spiciness of a riddle (Riddell). Alas! to the people of Boone if they do not give it the patronage it richly merits. And I say unto you, keep it where you have it, and great will be your reward on earth. That is the only beatitude I think of to offer you at this beginning of another year.

Your early friend in the business,

C. C. CONNER.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS, 201 York street Jersey City, N. J.

Mention this paper. Jan 17-83

Public Sale.

I will offer for sale to the highest bidder, at the late residence of Robt. W. Cooper, decd., on

FEB. 1st, '83

The following personal property, belonging to the estate of said deceased, to wit:

One Horse, Cattle, Sheep, 1 Road Wagon. 1 Horse Cart, Farming Implements, Household and Kitchen Furniture and other articles too numerous to mention.

TERMS—All sums of $10 and under cash in hand, over that amount a credit of 6 months will be given, the purchaser giving note with approved security.

Sale to commence at 9 o'clock a. m.

JOS. A. GAINES, Executor.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court Kentucky.

W B Craven, Plff. } Notice of vs } sale in
Daniel Robinson, &c. Defts } equity

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the October Term thereof, 1881, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 5th day of February 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day), proceed to offer for sale at public auction: to the highest bidder, on a credit of 6 and 12 months, at the Court-house door, in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the Judgment, to wit:

A parcel of land lying and being in the town of Verona, Boone county, Ky., bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone in the Big Bone road, running with the same to the corner of the North District church lot; thence northeast about one hundred feet to the corner of the "old ice house"; thence south about fifty feet to a stone; thence back to the Big Bone road to the beginning. Said piece of land is known as the "Old Store-house lot.

The purchaser will be required to give bonds with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Amount to be raised by sale, $134 86.
Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W. L. RIDDELL, M C B C C

Public Sale!

The undersigned will, as administratrix of Lewis Aylor, decd., sell publicly to the highest bidder at his late residence, on the East Bend Road, five miles South of Burlington, Kentucky, on Friday, Jan. 26.

A lot of Drygoods, Groceries, Tinware, Quebnsware, 24 Stands of Bees and many things too numerous to mention.

Sale to commence at 10 a. m., and continue from day to day till completed.

Terms made known on day of sale.

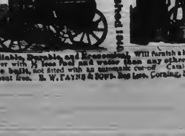
All persons indebted to the estate of R. L. Aylor, decd., will come forward and settle the indebtedness. All persons having claims against said estate will present them properly proven as by law required.

ELIZABETH M. AYLOR,
Admr'x.

THE EAGLE
DRUG STORE,
—IS POSITIVELY—
THE CHEAPEST
—HOUSE IN—
RISING SUN, IND.
Where will be found a fresh stock of
DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,
SCHOOL BOOKS
—AND—
STATIONERY,
all at bottom prices.
GIVE US A CALL.
D. C. Thorn,
Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-8m

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (Limited.) No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.



Established 1840.

Reliable, Durable and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue G sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box Lee, Corning, N. Y.

DUDLEY ROUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.

Has Knocked Down the Price on a lot of LADIES' and CHILDREN'S Side-lace SHOES so low that the fignres will surprise you.

REMNANTS OF PRINTS
Have been overtaken by the sam eSlaughter and are being Closed out at Prices which make them go in a hurry. Several pieces of nice DRESS GOODS must be sold and to make you want them they are going to be disposed of at a sacrifice. If you want any of the above goods call early as they are being taken rapidly.

I also have a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Yarns, Prints, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, Notions, &c.

A full stock of FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES always on hand

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL.
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 2-tf

L. C. NORMAN. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

S. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

F. Adkinson. A. W. Gaines.
ADKINSON & GAINES,
Attorneys & Counseors at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. 41tf

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt and studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
38-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
Should take a policy at once.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky. | J. E. DUNCAN President, Burlington, Ky

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
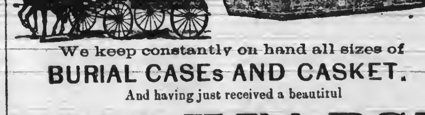
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CASP,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.
New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.
JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun, Ind.

UNDERTAKING



We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING,
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Also Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Satisfaction guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON. Proprietors.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar3-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

My Vegetable and Flower Seed Catalogue for 1883 will be sent FREE to all who apply. Customers of last season need not write for it. All seed sent from my establishment warranted to be both fresh and true to name, so far, that should it prove otherwise, I agree to refill the order gratis. My collection of vegetable seed is one of the most extensive to be found in any American catalogue, and a large part of it is of my own growing. As the original Introducer of Early Ohio and Burbank Potatoes, Marblehead Early Corn, the Hubbard Squash, Marblehead Cabbage, Phinney's Melon, and a score of other new Vegetables, I invite the patronage of the public. In the gardens and on the farms of those who plant my seed will be found my best advertisement. James J. H. Gregory, Marblehead, Mass.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—An old maid in Belgium has bequeathed the whole of her fortune of $200,000 to the Belgian army.

—A recent trial has elicited the fact that many German girls cultivate their hair for sale. Really fine hair fetches some five dollars an ounce.

—Sheffield manufacturers have large orders for hoop-skirts, and the London papers say that the ladies are going to revive the use of balloon petticoats.

—The first letter written by Queen Victoria after her accession was one of condolence to her aunt, Queen Adelaide. She addressed it to "Her Majesty the Queen." It was submitted to her that "Dowager" should be added. "I will not be the first to remind her of her altered position," was the reply.

—When Humbert of Italy—famed for his admirable horsemanship—visited Vienna, his horse, one of the best in the imperial stables, was so utterly unmanageable that he had, to his great mortification, to take his seat in a carriage. A groom, since discharged from the Emperor's service, now confesses that he, by cruelly flogging the horse on showing him white plumes such as the king wore, had been the author of the difficulty.

—A traveler in France, whose conscience would not allow him to use strong language, found that at the hotel where he was staying the waiters had been so accustomed to hear Englishmen do so that they set him down as a milksop and neglected him accordingly. He therefore hit upon this expedient to secure a proper amount of attention: Whenever he gave an order he rolled out in sonorous tones the words, "Northumberland, Cumberland, Durham." The effect was marvelous.

—Lord Derby has doubtless many a time chuckled over his sagacity in selling his fine Tipperary estates before the troubles there began. His father left to his younger son—Lord Derby's only brother—Col. Stanley, Beaconfield's War Secretary, the choice between $500,000 and the Irish property. He took the former. Lord Derby, on receiving the latter, sold it for $800,000 to a rich Dublin merchant. The tenants sent a deputation to Knowsley, entreating Lord Derby not to sell, but he said he must do so, because he could not live in Ireland and would not be an absentee landlord.

—While driving recently from Godollo to a hunting meet, near the Hungarian village of Magoroyd, the Empress of Austria saw an old woman almost on the edge of a high bank overhanging a rapid stream. Without uttering a word to any one, her Majesty sprang out of the carriage and ran to the poor creature, whom she overtook just in time to save her from falling into the river. It turned out that the old woman was blind, and the mere child who acted as her guide lagged behind. When the little girl came up the Empress gave her a scolding and the old woman a handsome gratuity.

—At a recent School Board meeting in London, the Lord Mayor allowed each candidate a quarter of an hour's speaking. Sir John Bennett was the first to speak, and when he had gone through his fifteen minutes the Lord Mayor brought down his hammer. "Is time up?" inquired Sir John. "It is." "Not yet I think, my Lord Mayor," insinuated Sir John. "I think so," replied the Lord Mayor. "I have two minutes more by my watch," said Sir John, "and you can always depend upon my watch." This neat advertisement was received with considerable merriment. Sir John is a notable clockmaker.

GENERAL.

—It is noted as a rare occurrence that robins have remained all winter in Pittsfield, Mass.

—A lady physician says that the chief reason why women are more subject to hysteria than men is that they take too little out-door exercise.

—Ex-Governor Seymour, in a long letter on canals to the Buffalo Express, states his belief that the canals in future will be chiefly used to transport coarse and cheap articles, like lumber, stone, clay, and coal, which railroads can not carry as well, and which, as our population increases, will grow in tonnage immensely. He is disposed to think that increased efficiency lies in the direction of faster boats rather than in enlarging the canals.

—An application was made in Common Pleas Court at Pittsburgh, Pa., the other day, which is the first instance of the kind that ever occurred in this country. The application of a lady, Mrs. P. S. Breckenridge, of Allegheny, for naturalization papers. Mrs. Breckridge has been in this country thirty-one years, having arrived here when under age, therefore, she needed but one paper, which was granted, her son-in-law, J. Erastus McKelvy, Esq., witnessing for her. The lady is going to Europe and desires to become a citizen of the United States before her departure.

—The Northern Pacific Railroad Company having secured nearly all the right of way over the surveyed route, are beginning preparations to build the line from Portland to Kalama. This will connect the entire system of railways in Oregon and Washington Territories with Puget Sound. The transfer across the Columbia will be made by a large iron ferry-boat, capable of holding twenty cars, which is now in course of construction in New York. It will be sent by rail in detached sections. Work next summer will be delayed by high water, but it is expected the link will be done November 1, next year.

Did Him a Favor.

A few days since a prominent member of the Board of Trade was summoned to sit as a juryman in one of the courts of record. Now, however much business men may regret that our jury system is such that incompetent and unfit men may get upon juries, they do not care to improve the system at personal loss, and each term of court sees them urging their claims to be excused. The gentleman in question made an application to be excused, and, after being sworn, stated that he could not serve except at considerable pecuniary loss to himself.

"What is the nature of your business?" inquired the Court.

"I am a grain merchant."

"Where do you transact your business principally?"

"On the Board of Trade.

"Well, I think I shall, under the circumstances, do you a favor."

"Thank your Honor," said the merchant, bowing gratefully and starting for the door.

"Hold on! Hold on!" exclaimed the Court. "The favor I refer to is this: If you were to go down to the Board of Trade you would likely get cornered on wheat (is that the correct term?) and lose your money. I'll save you from loss by keeping you here. Swear the jury, Mr. Clerk!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Union Generale Bank.

M. Bontoux, President, and M. Feder, Director of the Union Generale Bank of Paris, the failure of which the 21st of January last created so much disorder in France, have been sentenced to 3,000 francs fine and five years' imprisonment. The official record amounts to a statement that this so-called bank was hollow from its inception, and throws back upon its administrators the whole responsibility for it. The three successive emissions of shares by which the company augmented its capital are declared by the official assignee in charge of the bankrupt estate to be null and void, because they violated the law. In each instance a false declaration regarding the issue was made, either by one member of the governing body in the name of all, or, as in the case of the last increase, by a whole batch of the governors together. First of all the capital was increased from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000, and to this end 50,000 new shares were issued in June, 1879, at a premium of $4 per $100 share. Of that issue 2,653 shares were not taken up by the original subscribers, who had the first right to them—were never sold at all, in fact—and nothing was paid upon them. Nevertheless, the issue was declared to be complete, and all the money to be paid. These shares made a cross entry in the company's books. Of the second augmentation, by which the capital was raised from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, 25,935 shares, nominally worth, including the premium of $35, at which they were issued, $3,505,225, were not subscribed by the public. Instead, 22,875 of them were fictitiously taken up by eleven employes or agents of the bank, and the balance, representing the shares which should have been alloted to holders of previous issues not subscribed, were taken up in the names of four administrators and two employes of the company.

But it is in the third and last increase of the capital that this dishonest system attains to its fullest proportions. Always progressing in prosperity, according to M. Bontoux, the last issue of 100,000 shares, by which the capital was raised from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, took place at a premium of $70, part of which was to be devoted to paying up the order shares in full. It was declared, as the law directs, by nine of the Directors of the company that this issue was completely successful on Jan. 3, 1882. In point of fact, 20,920 of them had not been taken at all by the public, but were subscribed either in the name of Isoard, a convenient prete-nom of the society itself, or in that of one of its managers named Feder. In addition, a great number of the balance left was only nominally subscribed for by dummies who never paid up. From first to last all these declarations as to subscriptions were taken in faith by the genuine members of the company. No public meetings of the shareholders were ever held to verify the figures. Had the books been looked into or properly audited the fraud would have been discovered long before it was. As early as the end of 1880 the fictitious Izoard was debtor to the bank to the extent of $2,919,400, and this same account, which represented but a small part of the malversations of which the administration was guilty was made to contribute $500,000 to the net revenue declared in September, 1881. The entire dealings of the Union Generale Board in their own company's shares, including the shares carried on from account to account on the Bourse, amounted to $16,180,000 at the end of September, 1881, and at the date of the failure no less than $42,500,000 of the means this institution could command was locked up in Bourse operations, for which the only security was 28,003 of its own shares. The outlook for the creditors of the Union Generale is bad indeed. The individuals implicated may be ruined, but they can not make good the deficit nor anything like it.

MM. Bontoux and Feder were charged with infractions of the law relating to public companies. The defendants admitted having sold bonds, but maintained that they were their own property, and that they sold them with the object of preventing an exaggerated rise in the market price. The President of the court remarked that the company was irregularly constituted, as upon each increase of the capital one-third of the shares were fictitiously subscribed. He also accused M. Bontoux of having alleged that there was a profit of 3,000,000 francs on the Alpine shares at a time when the Alpine Company owed to Union Generale 17,000,000. M. Bontoux protested his sincerity, and declared that he honestly believed what he stated at the time. M. Feder affirmed that if the issue of 100,000 fresh shares had not been stopped by the downfall of the Union Generale, and if speculators had paid for the shares they had bought, there would have been no deficit in the company's treasury. M. Flory, an accountant, gave evidence at great length of the irregularities discovered in the operations of the company. The official liquidator estimated that if the legal decisions already given were maintained the shareholders would recover 50 per cent. of their losses. M. Bonneval, the chief accountant of the Union Generale, said that he drew up a balance sheet showing a profit of 36,000,000 francs, in accordance with instructions from M. Feder. The latter contradicted this assertion, but M. Bonneval maintained its accuracy.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Neglected Trifles.

If every young girl were instructed in the very common incidents of every-day life in housekeeping as thoroughly as she is in analytical geometry and metaphysics, let us say, or if she gave as much of her habits of observation to them as she does to the distinctions of shape and color of her embroidery or her paintings, the duties falling to her subsequent life as housekeeper would be very much lightened.

There are innumerable things in the course of both nice and narrow housekeeping not generally known, and not laid down in books, but which are handed down traditionally; and if the young girl does not observe them in her mother's house, she will not have them to bequeath when she leaves it for a house of her own. Perhaps they do not signify a great deal, but they do signify a certain amount of comfort, and if no one thinks [illegible] see them done, she does well to keep her own eyes open. Let her learn thus orally, and she will think her teacher daily for years to come—learn that lamp-wicks soaked in vinegar and dried will not smoke afterward; that there is nothing better to remove grease spots from carpets than ox-gall from the butcher's, used in water, and swelled as little as possible in the using; that an ounce of alum will purify a whole hogshead of foul water; that a furred teakettle may be cleansed by boiling it in a few spoonfuls of ammonia; and that if yeast is bitter, it may be sweetened by thrusting into it a red-hot poker. She may learn in school that wood ash makes hard water soft by means of its carbonate of potassa uniting with the sulphate of lime, and forming other substances, which fall to the bottom, and leave the water all right, and be glad of the knowledge in some situation where she can not buy washing soda; but she will not learn there, even though the principle be taught, that a steel pen heated in gas-light and dipped in cold water becomes as good as new, nor know anything about it unless she sees somebody do it. And she may generalise from her books the fact that if shot is used in cleaning wine-bottles, and is left by accident, the acid of the wine acts on it poisonously; but unless she sees her mother cover port and claret stains with salt, and wet them with sherry before washing with hot water, she will be helpless when some awkward elbow turns her best white damask a ruinous red. Nor, when she is in a furious hurry to boil some preparation for dessert in her "bain marie," or in one kettle set in the hot water of another, and, fire up as she may, it will not boil, is she likely to know, unless she has seen it done at home, that if the outside portion of the boiler be filled with brine the inside will boil immediately, owing to the much higher temperature of boiling brine than of boiling water. The homes of people who have thought it worth while when on earth to be comfortable are replete with such little bits of odd practice that one becomes familiar with only by observation and experience; and one may go forever to the cooking classes of learned professors, or to the chemical experiments of lecturers, and learn nothing about them. Perhaps many of them are make-shifts in a manner, but they are not used unless needed, and when they are needed they are needed so very much indeed that it is a boon to know them and their like.

There are, however, trifling bits of traditionary knowledge, of a different nature from make-shifts, that it would do no harm to drill into the memory of the young by constant repetition, till on occasion to use the knowledge it would be almost instinct. Thus every child should be repeatedly told that in escaping from a burning house it is better to go on all fours than upright, however great the haste, as the cold air falls to the floor, and one can breathe there when it is impossible elsewhere; and that, when one must pass by flames, the mouth and nose should be protected from their inhalation by wet bandages, or by a thick woolen that sifts at least a portion of the smoke and fire. Should not every girl, also, who is ever likely to bear any weight of responsibility, be forced into acquaintance with certain items in the management of diet, of advantage not only to herself, but to whomsoever may come into her hands and under her care? She will remember then that if one falls ill in a dark room, one can not get well in it, but must be moved to a room where the sunlight enters with healing on its wings; that it is well, moreover, to have a few green plants in a room, giving out oxygen and inhaling carbonic acid, but that many will produce a sort of malaria; that a room may be ventilated by pulling up the window-sash and filling all the open space with box or board, letting air in without direct draught through the open line between the two two sashes; that a fire will always ventilate by its own draught, but that, in case of infectious illness, one must not stand between the patient and that fire. Our young girl may even be made so much of a philosopher and a surgeon as to know, from seeing it done, that a strong magnet will draw out a broken needle from the flesh it has penetrated, and distinguish between a sudden attack of apoplexy and drunkenness by tickling the soles of the feet, which in apoplexy causes a spasmodic drawing up of the whole limb, and in drunkenness causes no effect at all. Of course it is neither necessary nor best that every young girl, irrespective of inclination, should be educated as a surgeon or a sick-nurse, but she could easily be prepared to take care of the sick on an emergency, or till the more educated nurse can be provided, and it is only carrying out the old tradition of woman in the days of chivalry when she is able to bind a wound with fit bandages, or stanch the flow of blood with tight ones in the proper place, or lance an ulcer without shrinking.

Life in boarding-houses, that has become so general a mode of life in our cities, and even where there is a family winter home, but whose inmates pass six months in the year as summer boarders, is doing a great deal to hinder the transmission of the small facts of housekeeping of a nature kindred to such as those which we chance to have enumerated, and to foster habits of reading, lounging, fancy-work, and pleasure that do not serve their owner very well when she comes to the hardships of life. But when those that are dear to her demand comforts that she does not know how to render, are ill, and need the utmost she can do for them, it is there, in her inability, that she finds the real hardship, not in doing, but in not knowing how to do, those things that would have seemed to come naturally had she kept her eyes open, or had been taught by a little perseverance on the part of those who perhaps neglected only what they deemed idling and trifling things, forgetting that trifles make the sum of life. —Harper's Bazar.

The Ague.

"Speaking of chills," said the gentleman from Arkansas, borrowing a match from the train boy. "I had one at home oncet that was away up in G. Stopped a train, that chill did."

They crowded around to hear the particulars.

"You see, they turned me out of the town and run me off the turnpike, so I took to the railroad, and I shook it up so the through express had to wait until I got over it."

"Right smart of a chill, that," assented a gentleman from Louisiana. "Had 'em myself; but I only delayed a train a little while."

The gentleman from Arkansas eyed him, but declined to ask any questions.

"Tell us!" shouted the chorus.

"Well," said the gentleman from Louisiana, with a glance at the gentleman from Arkansas, "they ran up to where I was shaking, and found they couldn't get past."

"What did they do?"

"All hands turned out and tunneled right through it," replied the Louisiana man, "and in the spring the icicles hung down from the roof of that chill so thick and so strong that they had to blast them out before they could transact any bus—!"

But the Arkansas man was climbing over the tender toward the cab, and even the chorus lost interest in the rest of the details.—Drake's Magazine.

—A Carlisle (Pa.) woman threw a pair of diamond ear-rings, valued at $1,000, in a fire at a Harrisburg hotel, by mistake the other morning. The jewels were recovered subsequently at the expense of burnt fingers and melted gold mounting.

Meerschaum.

The place most productive of this mineral is known to be near the town of Eski-scheir, in Anatolia, Asia Minor. A recent account by Herr Adler states that the preparation of one hundred boxes of meerschaum there takes twelve to fifteen persons two months, and costs about £120. In Eski-scheir the average cost of the box of mercantile ware has varied since 1873 between about £6 to £10 (last year it was about the former). Refuse ware can be had at about an eighth of the price. There are ten qualities, and each is to be had in four sizes, there being twenty-five to forty pieces of the first size per box, and 450 to 1,500 pieces of the fourth (the box is thirty inches long, eight inches broad and 15½ inches deep. In the last two decades the export of meerschaum has considerably increased; from 3,000 boxes in 1855, is has risen to 11,100 in 1881. In Constantinople the trade is managed by about fifteen firms—Austrian, Bulgarian, Greek, Armenian and Turkish—who bring their wares into the Vienna market. The large importation into Vienna may be said to date from between 1850 and 1860, when the production of pipe-bowls and cigar-tips was greatly increased for export to England, France and North America. In 1860 a considerable export of pipes to San Francisco was first developed, while large quantities of cigar-tips were sent to America and Australia via Hamburg. Since then the conditions of the trade have altered much, chiefly in consequence of the high duties imposed in America. In that country arose, with the aid of emigrant turners from Austria, a home industry, which has successfully competed with the Vienna pipe manufacture (for the products of which America was previously the best customer). With France and Germany, the United States obtains the raw product mainly from Austria.—Chicago Herald.

An Age of Suspicion.

Truly, this is an age of suspicion. Nevertheless, Captain F. M. Howes, of the steamer William Crane, Marchants' & Miners' Transportation Line between Boston and Baltimore, who suffered severely from rheumatism, caused by the exposure incident to his profession, was cured by St. Jacobs Oil. This is no suspicion.—Boston Globe.

Two HEADS are better than one, in the opinion of a news editor.—N. O. Picayune.

"Female Complaints."

Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir —I write to tell you what your "Favorite Prescription" has done for me. I had been a great sufferer from female complaints, especially "dragging-down," for over six years, during much of the time unable to work. I paid out hundreds of dollars without any benefit till I took three bottles of the "Favorite Prescription," and I never had anything do me so much good in my life. I advise every sick lady to take it. MRS. EMILY RHOADS, McBrides, Mich.

COCOANUT shells ground in quantities and mixed with black pepper, indicate that the season will be mild.

The Dead Cannot be Raised, nor if your lungs are badly wasted away can you be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It is, however, unequaled as a tonic, alterative, and nutritive, and readily cures the most obstinate cases of bronchitis, coughs, colds, and incipient consumption, far surpassing in efficacy cod liver oil. Send two stamps for Dr. Pierce's pamphlet on Consumption and kindred affections. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

"You have lovely teeth, Ethel." "Yes, George," she fondly lisped, "they were a Christmas present from Aunt Grace."

YOUNG and middle aged men suffering from nervous debility, premature old age, loss of memory, and kindred symptoms, should send three stamps for Part VII. of pamphlets issued by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

AN exchange wants to know: "What are our young men coming to?" Coming to see our girls, of course.—Chicago Tribune.

IT is not true that kissing cures freckles. At least you can't get a freckled girl to declare that she hasn't been kissed.—New Haven Register.

A Triumvirate.

As "one star differs from another only in magnitude," so do Mishler's Herb Bitters, Mishler's Green Label Bitters, and Mishler's Red Label Bitters differ from each other only in strength. They are compounded for diseases which differ in their characteristics. For example, our Herb Bitters are universally known and appreciated as a cure for Dyspepsia, Liver, Kidney, Lung, Throat and such troubles. Our Green Label Bitters go to the root of such hereditary diseases, as Scrofula, Old Sores, Ulcers, White Swelling, Syphilitic and skin diseases—"Sins of the fathers visited upon their children." The Herb Bitters haven't strength to cure in such cases; the Green Label Bitters will certainly cure these terrible maladies. The Red Label Bitters are presented with unfaltering confidence and knowledge of their efficacy, as absolute curative agents for all the many ailments peculiar to lad es only.

THE money lender never neglects his business. He takes all the interest he can in it.—N. O. Picayune.

A Splendid Remedy for Lung Diseases.

Dr. Robt. Newton, late President of the Eclectic College of the City of New York, and formerly of Cincinnati, Ohio, used DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM very extensively in his practice, as many of his patients, now living, and restored to health by the use of this invaluable medicine, can amply testify. He always said that so good a remedy ought not to be considered merely as a patent medicine, but that it ought to be prescribed freely by every physician as a sovereign remedy in all cases of Lung diseases. It is a sure cure for Consumption, and has no equal for all pectoral complaints.

POISONING by the use of horrid hair-dyes may be looked upon as a dyer calamity.

"ROUGH on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

MOTHER SWAN'S WORM SYRUP, for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless. 15c.

ENQUIRER: How old are we? Why just nineteen. That is to say: Three years ago, a certain actress and ourself were just the same age, nineteen. She told us only a day or two ago that she was just nineteen that day.—Boston Post.

BORROWED money is a noteworthy object.

A CLEVELAND man has invented a barrel without hoops or staves. Who invented the Cleveland man is not stated by the paper which furnishes the other information.—Chicago Tribune.

DRIVERS keeping to the right cannot go wrong.

THE zodiacal sign for the opening of winter is a goat. The goat is a hard butter and hard butter is almost always a sign that the weather is cold.—Philadelphia News.

THAT young lady who made 70 words out of "conservatory" lest fall has run away from home. Her mother wanted her to make three loaves of bread out of "flour."—Detroit Free Press.

LET women be brought up to the habits of industry and economy, and learn to support a husband, and the tramp nuisance will soon cease.—Texas Siftings.

THE Chicago Times says that fogs are much more common in that city than they used to be, and it wants some genius to invent a way to suppress them.

A CALIFORNIA man has acquired a fortune in a singular way. He had a lot of mining stock of a nominal value, and pledged it as collateral for a loan. Then the stock rose very high. The person to whom it was pledged sold it. Subsequently it fell again, and he bought it back, making $295,000 by the transaction. The true owner of the stock found out about the transaction, and sued for the $295,000 as belonging to him. The Supreme Court gives it to him, too.—San Francisco Chronicle.

HORACE GREELEY once defined a "Bohemian" as "a man who would rather get one thousand dollars now and then, than fifty dollars a week regularly."

MOST of the mechanical toys are made in Connecticut.

A STRANGE REMINISCENCE.

The Escape of a Well Known ex-Army Surgeon from an Unforeseen Danger.

(Baltimore American.)

Messrs. Editors:

I seldom appear publicly in print, but the facts connected with my experience which follow are so striking, and bear so closely upon the experience of others, that I venture to reproduce them entire:

In the month of September, 1879, I was practicing medicine in New Orleans. The summer had been excessively hot and everybody was complaining of being exhausted and feeling tired. It was not an unfrequent occurrence to have patients ask for something to relieve this weary sensation, and that I should also partake of the same universal lassitude or weakness, did not alarm me. I supposed that over-work and exposure had produced a temporary physical prostration; therefore I made a trip to St. Paul, Minn., thinking that a rest of a few weeks in a cooler climate would soon reinvigorate me. Little did I dream, however, what was in store for me. After getting settled in my new quarters I took a short walk every day, and patiently awaited a return of strength, but in spite of all my efforts I seemed to be losing strength; and even any slight exercise became laborious and tiresome. During this time I had frequent dull aching pains in my head, and through my back and hips, occasional shooting pains in various parts of the body, with soreness, shortness of breath, and palpitation of the heart. My feet and hands would be like ice one day, and burn with heat the next. I had no desire for food, and what I did eat distressed me; my sleep became disturbed with the frequent desire to urinate. The quantity of fluid passed would at one time be small and at another quite profuse. Then for days I would be perfectly free from this desire and nothing seemed to be the matter; nevertheless my debility gradually increased. My eyelids were puffed out; my bowels were alternately torpid and too active, the urine would be clear some days, on others it would be of high color and deposit a brick-dust sediment, and at still others there would be a whitish appearance and a thin greasy scum would rise to the top. The pains in my head, back, chest, joints, bowels and bones were horrible in the extreme. I went in vain from place to place and consulted the best medical authorities the country affords; I would have a chill one day and a burning fever the next. I suffered excruciatingly with a numbness of my feet and hands, and at the base of the brain and between my shoulders; at times my limbs and body would bloat and physicians said I was suffering from the dropsy and could not recover.

How I could be so blind to the terrible trouble that was devouring me, I do not know; but there are thousands to-day who are suffering from the same cause and are as ignorant of its nature as I was. My skin was the color of marble at one time, and then again it would be like saffron, and this terrible restlessness, and I might say wildness, was followed by a dull, heavy, drowsy sensation. I was wasted to a mere skeleton except when the dropsical bloat occurred. I tried all the celebrated mineral waters of this country and Europe; all kinds of medicine and all kinds of doctors. Still no help came. I lay at my hotel in Philadelphia, where I was temporarily sojourning, given up to die by friends and physicians alike, when there providentially came into my hands a little pamphlet, which I carefully read, and from which I got a view of my real condition, which no other agency had revealed. Acting on its advice, I had my water analyzed at once, and to my surprise, albumen and tube casts were found in large quantities. A skillful physician was sent for and apprised of the fact. He said I had Bright's Disease, and that death was certain. My friends importuned me to take a remedy which had won a great reputation for the cure of all forms of kidney diseases, and I therefore laid aside my prejudice and commenced its use. At first my stomach rejected it and I had to use small quantities; but after the first five days my stomach retained full doses. This was one year ago last October, and my improvement was rapid and permanent. I have regained 50 of the 65 pounds of flesh I lost during my illness, and I feel as well to-day as I ever did, and I can unreservedly state that my life was saved by Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy I used.

It may seem strange that I, being a physician and an ex-army surgeon, did not have the water analyzed before; but such is the fact. I had the symptoms of every other disease, and I did not suspect that my kidneys were in the least particular out of order; and here is just where I was in the greatest danger, and where most people who read this article are in danger. I find that I am only one of thousands who are suffering from kidney disorders, which, neglected, surely terminate in Bright's disease. I also know that physicians may treat these disorders for months without knowing clearly what the trouble is, and even after ascertaining the cause, be unable to prevent it. When death, however, finally overtakes the helpless victim they disguise its real cause, attributing it to heart-disease, convulsions, apoplexy, vertigo, paralysis, spinal meningetis, blood and uremic poisoning, etc., etc.

Words, of course, fail to express my thanks to H. H. Warner & Co., of Rochester, N. Y., for giving the world such a needed and certain specific as the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, but such as they are I gladly give them; while to the thousands to whom I have lectured upon the laws of health and hygiene I commend this letter most cordially, and warn them to beware of the insidious nature of a disease over which physicians confess they have no control and which, in one form or another, is carrying more people to untimely graves than any other malady.

J. M. PORTER, M. D.,
Baltimore, Md., 94 Saratoga Street.

IS IT proper to ask a man how he is getting on, when he has just sworn off?—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

STRAIGHTEN your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again. Sold by shoe and hardware dealers.

WHAT do the wild waves say? Why, probably, "We cost a dollar and a half at the hair store."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

"BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES" are widely known as an admirable remedy for Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Coughs and Throat troubles.

WHEN Fogg saw a train on the dress of an old lady he remarked that it was behind time.—Boston Transcript.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar If timely used prevents galloping consumption. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

A PEDDLER called at a Philadelphia house the other day, and asked to see the head of the family. He was referred to the servant girl.—Philadelphia News.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

THE world moves. A New York plumber has been fined fifty dollars for slighting his work.—N. Y. Sun.

USE Redding's Russia Salve in the house and use Redding's Russia Salve in the stable. Try it.

A VERY little thing turns the head of a crank.

RHEUMATISM CURED. Send stamp for free prescription. R. K. Helphenstine, Washington, D. C.

FOR dyspepsia, indigestion, depression of spirits and general debility, in their various forms; also as a preventative against fever and ague and other intermittent fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty days' trial is allowed.

—TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

$47 A MONTH and board in your county. Men or Ladies. Pleasant business. Address P. W. Ziegler & Co., Box 94, Chicago, Ill.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

A SURE CURE for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. Kruse, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.
CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES. Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives steadiness to the nerves, induces a healthy, natural flow of bile, prevents constipation without unduly purging the bowels, gently stimulates the circulation, and by promoting a vigorous condition of the physical system, promotes also, that cheerfulness which is the truest indication of a well-balanced condition of all the animal powers. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS, Prepared from a German formula. In use over 200 Years. Skillfully compounded and not to be compared for a moment with the cheap concoctions which flood the market. A CERTAIN REMEDY FOR KIDNEY AND LIVER Complaints, Purifying the Blood and Secretions! [illegible] Mishler's Green Label Bitters is a Specific for Scrofula, Syphilis, Old Sores or Ulcers, [illegible] $1.00 per bottle. [illegible] Send for book "Messages of Health," to MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO., Lancaster, Pa. Sold by druggists.

No Worm Syrup so Pleasant as Parker's.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are certainly best, having been so decreed at EVERY GREAT WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL COMPETITION for SIXTEEN YEARS; no other American Organs having been found equal at any. Also CHEAPEST. Style 109; 3 1-4 octaves; sufficient compass and power, with best quality, for popular sacred and secular music in schools or families, at only $22. ONE HUNDRED OTHER STYLES at $30, $57, $66, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114, to $500 and upward. The larger styles are wholly unrivaled by any other Organs. Also for easy payments. NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE.

PIANOS This Company have commenced the manufacture of UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOS, introducing important improvements; adding to power and beauty of tone and durability. Will not require tuning one-quarter as much as other Pianos. ILLUSTRATED CIRCULARS, with full particulars, free.
THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO., 154 Tremont St., Boston; 46 E. 14th St., N. York; 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

PETROLINA COLD CREAM AND CAMPHOR ICE.
The most elegant and deserving preparation of Cold Cream in the world. It is delicately and exquisitely perfumed, and a valuable emollient (far excelling Glycerine in resisting atmospheric action), invaluable for use at the seashore, curing sunburn, rough skin, chapped lips, tan and freckles. It will positively cure chapped hands and face, and when used after washing and shaving, keeps the skin soft and velvety. The theatrical profession will find these preparations superior to all others for counteracting the effect of make-ups, grease paint, etc. Porcelain pots, 25c.; pound-cans, $1. Sold by Druggists and Dealers in Toilet Articles. BINGHAMTON OIL REFINING CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

CANCER INSTITUTE. AURORA ILL. Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

JUST OUT. NEW STOVE PIPE SHELF. One agent made $1100 00 in 66 days. Boxing and Freight Free. Address, J. E. SHEPARD & CO., Cincinnati, O.

ENGINES (Traction & Portable) for Farm, Saw Mill & Plantation. For prices, etc., write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO. Mansfield, O.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS. Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and astonish you.

AGENTS Make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., N. Y.

YOUNG MEN If you want to learn Telegraphy in a few months, and be certain of a situation, address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment, address P. W. REAM, Ada, O.

Agents For Circulars and Samples send Postal to ECONOMY PRINTING CO., NEWBURYPORT, Mass. Wanted

Send $3 to A. W. Hamilton & Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., for Dr. Chase's Family Physician; sells fast. Agents Wanted. Watson's Interest Tables, $3.50.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Write for catalogue. Coleman & Palms, Prop'rs.

WEEKLY CINCINNATI TIMES.
The Largest, the Oldest, and the Best. Eight pages, fifty-six columns.
Only ONE DOLLAR a Year
And a present of a Beautiful Picture, or a useful book to every subscriber. Liberal terms to Agents. Send for Specimen Copy. Address, THE TIMES, 230 Walnut St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

USE NONE BUT THE BEST THE GREAT FAMILY SOAP MAKER SAPONIFIER THE ORIGINAL CONCENTRATED LYE SOLD BY ALL GROCERS PENNA SALT MFG. CO. PHILA

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. LANDS Full particulars FREE. Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS. IN WISCONSIN.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free, Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

GREAT SAVING FOR FARMERS!
THE Lightning Hay Knife! (WEYMOUTH'S PATENT.)
Awarded "First Order of Merit" at Melbourne Exhibition, 1880. Was awarded the first premium at the International Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, and accepted by the Judges as SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHER KNIFE IN USE.
It is the BEST KNIFE in the world to cut fine feed from bale, to cut down mow or stack, to cut corn-stalks for feed, or to cut peat, and has no equal for cutting sods or ditching in marshes, and for cutting ensilage from the silo has no equal. TRY IT. IT WILL PAY YOU. Manufactured only by
HIRAM HOLT & CO., East Wilton, Me., U. S. A.
For sale by Hardware Merchants and the trade generally.

—1883.—
NEW MUSIC BOOKS!
Minstrel Songs, Old and New, is a collection of those songs which are the people's favorites. Words often absurd, nonsense, but the melodies some of the sweetest and best in the world. The Success of the Season, and is selling rapidly. A fine, large volume, pages full sheet music size. 94 Songs, including "Old Folks at Home," and all of Foster's best. "Old Uncle Ned," "Rose Lee," "Kentucky Home," also "Jilly Dale," "Twinkling Stars," and, in fact, a large part of the popular favorites of the last thirty years. $2, boards; $2.50 cloth. VERY EASY INSTRUCTION BOOKS, with very entertaining airs for practice, are, Winner's
IDEAL METHODS

For Violin,	Price of each 75 cts.	For Guitar,
For Piano,		For Cabinet Organ,
For Cornet,		For Accordeon,
For Flageolet,		For Clarinet,
For Fife,		For Banjo.
For Flute,

Simple instructions, and nearly 100 tunes in each.
GOUNOD'S REDEMPTION, $1. Only edition with Gounod's orchestration.
BALFE'S BOHEMIAN GIRL, $1. Only copy with Libretto and Business.
MUSICAL FAVORITE. (Just out.) New Book of Bound Music. Fine selection of Piano Pieces. $2, Plain; $2.50, Cloth; $3, Gilt.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 843 Broadway, N. Y.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!
DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE Lungs.
Cures Consumption, Colds, Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchial Difficulties, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Diseases of the Breathing Organs. It soothes and heals the Membrane of the Lungs, inflamed and poisoned by the disease, and prevents the night sweats and tightness across the chest which accompany it. CONSUMPTION is not an incurable malady. HALL'S BALSAM will cure you, even though professional aid fails.

30,000 COPIES SOLD
first six months of TREASURY OF SONG. The most popular musical work ever issued. Sells rapidly, has no competition in the subscription trade, consequently the best book for agents to sell. Every one who sings, or loves music wants it. Contains 300 select songs —comic, sentimental and religious in grand variety—printed in sheet music style, handsomely bound, at low price of $2.50 per copy. No knowledge of music necessary to sell it. Agents wanted in every city, town and county in the U. S. For terms to agents address, HUBBARD BROS., 51 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

SEEDS
I will give you the best Seeds for the least money of any firm in America or refund. Western Seeds are best. Mine take the lead. Gardeners say they never fail. I used 600 lbs paper to print 50,000 pretty Catalogues illustrated with $2000 worth of engravings. It beats the world, worth many dollars. FREE. Prices below all. R. H. SHUMWAY, Rockford, Ill.
Best Seeds cheap pretty Book Free.

WANTED—AGENTS, To buy and sell the [illegible] DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1,000 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO., 136 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

This N.Y. Singer, $20
With $5 set of Attachments Free. Warranted perfect. Light running, quiet, handsome and durable. Sent on test trial plan when desired. Happy Home Organs; 4 sets Reeds, 12 stops, Mechanical Sub Bass, octave coupler, 2 knee swells, with $3 stool and $1 Book, only $75. Also sent on test trial plan if desired. Elegant case, magnificent tone, durable inside and out. Circular, with testimonials, free. Ask G. Payne & Co. 47 Third av Chicago.

RUBBER ROOFING
Costs only $3.25 per square, 10x10 feet, and will last a lifetime on steep or flat roofs. Send for circular and samples free. INDIANA PAINT AND ROOFING COMPANY, New York City.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. 25 CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 100

Chrolithion Collars and Cuffs. Handsome, Durable, Waterproof, Superior to Linen, Paper or Celluloid. Sent by mail. For circular, send Postal Card to Box 916, Newburyport, Mass.

PATENTS PROCURED! or NO PAY! Also—Trade marks, etc. Send model and sketch; will examine and report if patentable. MANY years practice. Pamphlet free. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D. C.

TWO Photos of Female Beauties, 10c. Illustrated Catalogue 3 cts. J. DIETZ, READING, PA.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

50 CENTS FOR THREE MONTHS.
The new volume (Nineteen) of [illegible] TRATED MONTHLY MAGAZINE for 1883 is the best and the cheapest Family Magazine published, printed on the finest tinted paper, size 8½x11½ inches. The three numbers now ready of volume 19 weigh 1½ pounds and contain 210 pages of large, clear print. New Novelettes, Stories, Biographies, Poetry, Travels, and valuable information of the day and for the household, indispensable by every family. 144 Illustrations, 3 Photo Pieces and 4 Oil Pictures. W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 17 East 14th Street, New York. Single copies, Twenty Cents; yearly subscription, Two Dollars.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

A. N. K.—E. 809 8—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Boone County Recorder.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1883. NUMBER 13.

TWO TRIOLETS.

WHAT HE SAID.

This kiss upon your fan I press—
Ah! Sainte Nitouche, you don't refuse it?
And may it from its soft recess—
This kiss upon your fan I press—
Be blown to you, a shy caress,
By this white down, whene'er you use it.
This kiss upon your fan I press—
Ah, Sainte Nitouche, you don't refuse it!

WHAT SHE THOUGHT:

To kiss a fan!
What a poky poet!
The stupid man,
To kiss a fan,
When he knows that—he—can—
Or ought to know it—
To kiss a fan!
What a poky poet!
—Harrison Robertson, in The Century.

TUCK-OO-WA-TER-OO.

A Pawnee Incident.

'Man, while he loves, is never quite depraved."
—The Hon. G. Larne

In the year 1864 I was on duty as a military clerk in the headquarters of General Robert B. Mitchell, commandant of an Indian district comprising the Territories of Nebraska and Dakota. Within the confines of this command dwelt several fierce and large tribes of Indians, who, when not engaged in hostilities with the whites, made war upon one another. These tribes were the several bands of Sioux, Cheyennes and Arrapahoes, who roamed over the vast plains extending from Fort Kearney to the Rocky Mountains westward and from the Yellowstone River on the north to the Arkansas on the south. East of these tribes and bordering on the Missouri River dwelt the Pawnees, Omahas, Poncas and Otoes, who from time immemorial have entertained a deadly feud with the first named nations. This hatred had been constantly fanned and maintained at a white heat by continued forays, depredations and murders, in the accomplishment of which many adventures had occurred, displaying a hardihood, constancy and skill worthy of a better cause and a more enlightened race.

Our office was at the time specified in Omaha, a young and thriving city, the capital of the then Territory of Nebraska, now the initial point of the Great Pacific Railroad. Omaha is much frequented by the Pawnees and Omahas, who resort thither for the purpose of bartering their furs and trinkets for the goods of the white men, and to beg, a practice to which all Indians are as much addicted as the lazzaroni of Naples.

It was owing to the latter propensity that I was indebted, one fine December morning, to a visit from Dr. Jim, a Pawnee, and his squaw. Notwithstanding the cold, keen air, neither had on other clothing than an old buffalo robe, which scarcely protected them from the wind, and, as a consequence, their appeal for old clothes was irresistible. I likewise sent them to the messhouse, where the cook gave them a breakfast fully up to their capacity, which is almost infinite in that direction. I supposed this would terminate my acquaintance with the Doctor and his dusky spouse, but no sooner had they finished their meal than they returned, and, seating themselves at the stove, made themselves as comfortable as if they were domiciled in their own wigwam.

Not being thronged with business, I turned my chair and entered into conversation with the Indian, who spoke our language brokenly, yet intelligently. I soon found I was conversing with no ordinary savage, for the Doctor proved to be the brother of the big Big Medicine, or High Priest of the Pawnees, and a warrior of no little note in his tribe. During the forenoon I elicited from him, among others, the following incident of his savage, but eventful life:

His squaw belonged to the Omaha tribe, with which nation the Pawnees are connected by ties of the closest intimacy. Their reservations, or territories, almost join, and they invariably hunt in company. These hunts, which are annual, take place in autumn, and are the great epochs of Indian life. At such times the villages are deserted by all save the old and infirm, and the nations migrate, so to speak, en masse to their hunting grounds, which lie on the Republican and Arkansas Rivers.

At the time when our narrative commences the hunt was over, the two tribes had reached the Pawnee village on the Loup Fork of Platte River, had held their great hunting feast and dance, and the Omahas had taken up their line of march for their homes. It was late in the fall. The shallow streams which irrigate those regions were encrusting with ice; the cottonwoods which stoop over their turbid channels were leafless, and the northwest winds of winter sighed drearily through their branches, prognostic of increasing cold. The long swells of prairie were covered with dead, brown grass, which rattled dry and crispy under the returning feet of the Omahas. Yet the tribe was in high spirits. Their hunt had been successful, and their ponies were laden down with the delicious flesh of the buffalo, which enabled them to look forward without apprehension to the coming winter. Their journey was made by easy marches, for their village was near at hand, and they had no dread of hostile foe in such close proximity to their homes. But they were doomed to be cruelly disappointed.

On the second night of their journey, while encamped on the Elkhorn, a large tributary of the Platte River, they were surprised by a war party of Sioux, who, before the Omahas could rally, killed and scalped a couple of warriors and captured several squaws, among whom was the very squaw before me, who at that time was affianced to Dr. Jim, or, as he was known to the tribe, Tuck-oo-wa-ter-oo.

Word of this misfortune was quickly dispatched to the Pawnee village, and a party of warriors under the leadership of Big Buffalo, the great war chief of the tribe, and among whom was our doctor, started at once in pursuit of the Sioux.

The trail of the foe was struck at the Old California Crossing of Platte River, upward of a hundred miles above Fort Kearney. The Sioux were directing their course for the Republican, and Big Buffalo, with wary eye, followed rapidly on in their footsteps. The country they were now traversing is desolate in the extreme. Nothing but vast level stretches of weary sand meet the gaze, or hills of the same construction, furrowed and plowed by the winds. No horseflesh, save the hardy Indian pony, can endure the toil of travel in these wastes, or subsist upon the scanty vegetation occasionally found in the ravines.

Two days of such riding brought the patient Pawnees in the vicinity of their enemy, and it was determined to attack at once. The charge was successful. The surprised Sioux fled, leaving some scalps with the victorious Pawnees, who, with the rescued squaws, turned their faces homeward. In the melee the pony of Doctor Jim had received an arrow, which at first thought to be trifling, proved, indeed serious. To add to his distress the Sioux, recovered from their fright, were following in rapid pursuit, and in overwhelming force. The weather, too, became fiercely cold, and death stared the pair in the face when Big Buffalo informed them that, in order to save any, it was necessary for those well mounted to push forward with all possible speed.

The spot where the lovers were abandoned was on the banks of the Republican River, which was frozen from shore to shore. They were afoot, their pony having entirely succumbed, and they were painfully conscious of the near approach of their foes. They ran along the banks of the river with the hope of finding a hiding-place.

Fortunately, they observed a hole in the ice close to the shore, from which the waters had receded. They sprang into it, and by good luck found space sufficient under the thick ice to enable them to advance some distance from the hole. In these regions the water of the streams is always turpid, owing to the prevalent quicksands. The ice, therefore, was far from being transparent, and this fact saved the poor savages. The Sioux, suspecting them to be hidden in some one of the gullies opening on the river, trod over them again and again, but finally abandoned the search, and the two lovers emerged from their icy prison, after being confined there two days and one night. During this time they had subsisted entirely upon the doctor's rawhide quiver, an article which no warrior relinquishes excepting with his life.

Their journey to the Pawnee village was toilsome beyond comparison, and when accomplished, they were so emaciated with hunger, cold and fatigue as to be scarcely recognizable to the tribe, who welcomed them as risen from the dead. The grateful squaw rewarded her lover by the immediate bestowal of her hand; the tribe by a name commemorative of his endurance and constancy.

I could scarcely credit the exhibition of love which this narrative indicates in two such squalid objects as sat before me. Their buffalo robes were filthy beyond conception, and their coarse, unkempt hair, hanging in tangled masses over their shoulders, gave them an aspect far from lovable. But the very recital proved its existence, and it was with feelings far more respectful than I commonly extended toward the race that I opened the office door and told the swarthy pair it was time for them to depart.—Edward B. Heaton, in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Who Lived Here Before the Indians?

Have we any references to Esquimaux dwelling in regions significantly south of their present habitat? If there are such, then it is at once evident that the weapons and domestic implements of such people must now be buried in the dust of their ancient southern dwelling-places, and, these same spots being subsequently tenanted by the Indian, his handiwork must also be mingled with that of his predecessors.

The literature of this subject can be sufficiently outlined by reference to two authors. Mr. W. H. Dall, in "Tribes of the Extreme Northwest," remarks: "There are many facts in American ethnology which tend to show that originally the Innuit of the east coast had much the same distribution as the walrus, namely, as far south as New Jersey." I submit the rude argillite arrow-heads found in certain localities in such abundance, and at a significant depth, as an additional fact, tending in the same direction.

In Rev. B. F. De Costa's admirable resume of Icelandic literature there is given abundant evidence—ay, proof—that the people dwelling along the coast of Massachusetts, 900 to 1,000 A. D., were not the same race that resisted the English on the same coast six centuries later. The descriptions of the people seen by the Northmen show that, of whatever race, they were well advanced in the art of war, and used not only the bow, but hatchets and the sling. They were "men of short stature, bushy hair, rude, fierce, and devoid of every grace."

It need, therefore, only be remembered that the relationship between the true palæolithic implements and those of more advanced finish and design is evident to every one who carefully examines a complete series. At the same time, the student is confronted with reliable historical evidence of the occupancy of the Atlantic sea-board by the Esquimaux as far south as New Jersey.

Does not the impression derived from strictly archæological studies, that all the stone implements of our Eastern sea-board are not of one origin, go far to confirm the position of the historical student that an earlier race than the Indian once resided here?

De Costa remarks: "During the Eleventh Century the Red man lived upon the North American Continent, while the eastern border of his territory could not have been situated far away from the Atlantic coast. In New England he must have succeeded the people known as Skrællings. Prior to that time, his hunting-grounds lay toward the interior of the Continent. In course of time, however, he came into collision with the ruder people on the Atlantic coast, the descendants of an almost amphibious glacial man."—Charles C. Abbott, in Popular Science Monthly.

—Several bags of cloves lately received in London from Zanzibar were found to contain artificial cloves, made of soft wood, stained, and soaked in the essence of cloves to give them an odor. They were imported into Zanzibar, but where from is not known.

—Waltzing has only lately been introduced at Adrian, Oregon, and a young man broke his leg in his first vigorous attempt.

PITH AND POINT.

—"Time works wonders," as the woman said when she got married after a thirteen-years' courtship.

—Lots of people pay five per cent. more for goods in Canada for the sake of smuggling them over the border.—Detroit Free Press.

—"The best conductor of electricity at present known is silver." The best conductor into "society" at present known is gold. It used to be brains.—Norristown Herald.

—A New York genius has discovered a way of making leather out of banana skins. They will thus be able to kick the man who left them on the flag-stones to endanger human life.

—No man living walks in a straight line. The squarest-footed walker walks to the right or left a distance of thirty-six feet in a mile. In case there is a saloon on the way he may diverge as much as 150 feet.—Detroit Post.

—"Oh, yes," said the engineer, "I had a chance to become a hero by sticking to my post when the collision came, but when I reflected that my name would be spelled five hundred different ways in the newspapers I changed my mind and jumped."

—The prosperous hardware clerk is known by his stove-pipe hat.—Bloomington Eye. And the carpenter by his claw-hammer coat.—Gold Leaf. And the lawyer by his whole suit.—Bruce. But the lover you must discover by his sighs.—Elevated Railway Journal.

—"What are you looking around for so much?" asked an Austin mother of her fifteen-year-old son, with whom she was walking. "I am looking around on your account." "On my account?" "Yes. I want to pick you out a good-looking daughter-in-law."—Texas Siftings.

—When a man is excited he is very apt to talk without thinking. An Austin landlord called on his tenant the tenth time for his rent. "I haven't got any money," was the response. "Well, if you haven't got money enough to pay your rent you ought to build yourself a house."

—Two rival belles at an evening party were seated in the conservatory with their respective cavaliers, enjoying their supper. The gas was turned down somewhat, as it should be in a conservatory at an evening party. "My dear Julia," said one of the fascinating creatures, "how beautiful your complexion is—in this dim light!" "Oh, thank you," responded her rival, "and how lovely you look—in the dark!"

—Let her whistle!—

What if a girl whistle?
'Twon't make your heart bristle
Or scratch like a thistle.
A whistling lassie
Need not be sassy,
Or vulgar, or brassy.
No psalm or epistle
Has thrown the first missile
At women who whistle.
It's quite as becoming
As singing or humming,
Or playing or strumming.
Be just philosophic,
O men, on this topic;
Not misogynistic
Nor grumpy nor mystic.
—N. Y. Sun.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Some French chemists have succeeded in solidifying petroleum, in which state it burns like tallow. This solidification is effected by adding to distilled petroleum twenty-five per cent. of the purified juice of the plant belonging to the family of the Euphorbiaceous.

—Ether spray in the practice of Dr. McColganan, has not only immediately relieved facial neuralgia, but has effected a permanent cure. The intense cold produced is considered to have acted on the affected nerve, so as to have produced a complete change in the nutrition and its action.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—Instead of employing an ammoniacal double salt of nickel in an alkaline solution, for nickel plating, a new plan is to use a neutral or slightly alkaline solution, containing certain organic acids; 90 parts by weight of sulphate of nickel, 25 of citrate of nickel, and 15 of benzoic acid, are dissolved in 4,000 of water.—Chicago Tribune.

—On Long Island the sand industry has grown to extraordinary proportions. Only four firms whose invested capital did not exceed $80,000 existed five years ago. The capital invested in the business at the present time exceeds $2,000,000. An average of 4,500 tons of sand are shipped in boats to New York daily.—N. Y. Times.

—Sheep culture is no longer a matter of doubt or experiment in the Arkansas Valley. Numerous streams of pure running water, tame and wild grasses, cheap food and market facilities present great inducements to sheep owners. From a very small beginning made about five years ago the business has increased to good proportions.

—The American Naturalist says that mountain cork has been recently used in Germany as a substitute for animal charcoal for the removal of color from molasses. The mountain cork, a species of amphibole, is dried, ignited and soaked in molasses, then again dried and ignited. The process is repeated several times until some 8.5 per cent. of carbon has become fixed in the mineral, which is then ready for use. It is more efficient than charcoal in removing the alkalies from molasses.

—A new map of the mean annual rainfall of the world has been prepared by Professor Elias Loomis, of Yale College. He finds that an equatorial rain belt of fifty inches of rain a year extends continuously across all the continents and [illegible] and is nearly fifteen hundred miles wide on an average. On the other hand the regions which receive less than ten inches of rain per annum are also very extensive, although Spain is the only land in Europe where the rainfall is so scanty as this. In Asia, however, there is an area three thousand miles long and one thousand miles broad, over which the rainfall averages less than ten inches, and like tracts exist in Africa, Australia, on the west coast of South America, and the North American continent near the Great Slave Lake, in Arizona, and in Southern California. Professor Loomis estimates that one-fifth of the earth's land surface receives an annual rainfall of less than ten inches. Very little is known as to the quantity of rain which falls upon the ocean.

Religious.

"CARETH."

"No man cared for my soul."—Ps. cxlii. 4.
"He careth for you."—1 Peter v. 7.

'Twas the voice of the King in his palace,
As on princes and peers he looked down:
They had cared for his wealth and his counsels,
They had many a care for his crown;
But for him—for the heart that was human,
For the soul that no kingdom could fill—
They had scarcely a thought, or a trouble,
He was monarch in solitude still.

'Twas the sigh of the desolate widow,
At the thought of her bright, early days;
With no helper to aid or befriend her,
Must she pass through the world's thoughtless gaze?
In her sorrow how few were the visits,
Still fewer the tokens of care!
Can we wonder to hear her lamenting
In a wail of unuttered despair?

'Tis the moan of the sufferer lying
Through the hours of the long, weary day,
As he calls, with no whisper replying,
No hand the brain's pulsings to stay;
By the friends who once loved him forgotten;
They come not who once often came;
For they think he has passed to the blessed,
So seldom they mention his name.

'Tis the cry of a sinner despairing,
Turned out from society's joys;
A prodigal, wearily bearing
A conscience that ever destroys
The pleasure he seeks. Rudely driven
From the world's slamming door to the brink
Of a suicide's grave—a closed Heaven—
Left alone—an immortal—to think.

Is it true—is it true that none careth?
Oh how sweet is the answer Divine;
There is One who the burden still shareth,
On whose bosom we still may recline.
Though no other may care for our sorrow,
"He careth for you." 'Tis enough!
Without fear we can face the dark morrow,
Marching on, though the path may be rough.
—The Christian.

International Sunday-School Lessons.

FIRST QUARTER.

Jan. 21	—The Believing People	Acts 2:37-47
Jan. 28	—The Healing Power	Acts 3: 1-11
Feb. 4	—The Prince of Life	Acts 3:12-21
Feb. 11	—None Other Name	Acts 4: 1-11
Feb. 18	—Christian Courage	Acts 4:18-31
Feb. 25	—Ananias and Sapphira	Acts 5: 1-11
Mar. 4	—Persecution Renewed	Acts 5:18-32
Mar. 11	—The Seven Chosen	Acts 6: 1-15
Mar. 18	—The First Christian Martyr	Acts 7:54-60, and 8: 1-4
Mar. 25	—Review; or, Missionary, Temperance, or other lesson selected by the school.

FAITH THE BASIS OF KNOWLEDGE.

Perhaps the greatest need alike of believers and skeptics, at the present day, is some sane conception of just what reason can do, and of what it can not do. Reason has been exalted as the discoverer of all truth; and in many minds it has become a vague, unknown phantom, omnipotent to wreck or to build up. But the truth is, that reason is nothing more than a kind of higher arithmetic. It is useful in arranging knowledge, in detecting contradictions in apparent knowledge, and setting forth all that is necessarily implied in given premises. But that is all. It cannot discover any independent truth; it has absolutely no function until truth, derived from some other source, is given for it to work upon. You can never get out of it. If man is to know anything at all, that knowledge must come from some other source than reason.

Let the dogmatist in morals or in science strive to conceal it as he may, no system of knowledge can be established on a purely rational basis. Let the first principles of mathematics or of science or of metaphysics be granted, or let their truth be intuitively perceived and accepted, and it is easy to demonstrate that, since these first principles are true, certain consequences follow. But these first principles are incapable of proof, and who is to certify them? If nothing is knowledge except what is capable of logical demonstration at every stage of its genesis, then it is time that we all—religionists, philosophers and scientists alike—give up all pretensions to knowledge, and confess that nothing which is in Heaven above or in the earth beneath is capable of being known. There is no use of attempting to build a house if we cannot even lay a foundation. If we must have proof, who is to demonstrate to us that the operations of our senses and the processes of our minds are trustworthy? If we are dependent upon reason for our knowledge, we may as well give ourselves up at once to the dreariest skepticism in regard to earthly as well as Heavenly affairs; we must say with the old Greek skeptic. "I know nothing, and I do not even know that I know nothing." The so-called Agnosticism of the day would be a system of reverent and child-like faith in contrast with that self-destructive skepticism which would be the inevitable outcome of any consistent attempt to find a purely rational basis for knowledge.

The fact is that the principles of all knowledge are seen and received by faith alone. In a sense, they are the revelation of God. They are not established by any formal demonstration; they need none. And this is true of the every day facts and principles which we handle in ordinary life—as true of the scientific systems which the wit of man has built up, as it is of the truth of religion. The scientist justly refuses to permit the natural sciences to be destroyed by skepticism because the first principles on which they are founded are incapable of demonstration; and the believer in revealed religion can also afford to smile when he is met with the puerile demand for an infinite chain of proof which never existed and never can exist. If the apostle finds comfort in the thought that God is greater than our heart, why should we not find equal comfort in the knowledge that God is greater than human logic and the human brain?

Only the eye can catch the thousand varying pictures which the light paints for us; only the ear is sensible of the harmony of sweet sounds. The eye cannot fulfill the office of the ear, nor the ear that of the [illegible] it with faith and reason. Faith is the revealer of knowledge; it is the office of reason to defend that knowledge and to preserve it pure. Independent knowledge—the knowledge that comes not through faith—whether it be of things earthly or things Heavenly, never can be ours.

"We have but faith; we cannot know,
For knowledge is of things we see."

Yet if we will, the living knowledge—the knowledge which comes of faith—may be ours in religious things also, as it is already in earthly things. The light of God is falling around us; and all we have to do is to open our eyes and see. And of that knowledge and of that light we can pray:

"Let knowledge grow from more to more,
But more of reverence in us dwell;
That mind and soul, according well,
May make one music as before,
But vaster. We are fools and slight:
We mock Thee when we do not fear:
But help Thy foolish ones to bear;
Help Thy vain worlds to bear Thy light."

Long before Anselm of Canterbury had uttered the watchword, "I believe, in order that I may understand," inspiration had written: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge." And after centuries of conflict between faith and unbelief, the words of the Hebrew sage stand scathless as the clear affirmation of an everlasting truth. Only as we trust in the bodily perceptions which God has given us, do we have any knowledge of the material world. Only as we come to God in quiet, waiting trust, content to see in the light of the Spirit, willing to receive through faith the message of God, can we attain to any spiritual knowledge. And the assurance granted to us regarding spiritual things is firmer and more definite than that regarding material things. For though by faith we understand that the heavens and the earth were framed by the word of God, by faith we also know that while these shall pass away the word of the Lord will endure forever.—S. S. Times.

An Important Truth.

We have many theories in these days in which men try to tell us how the world, acting upon certain fixed laws, has made itself; that it goes on by a progress that regards nothing but certain rules of advancement, regardless of all other considerations save their own irresistible, self-compelling principles. But here we have a truth not only given us in Holy Writ, but proved by our experience, that mental regret will convert a material wrong into a blessing, or, if the offender wills, it will make the same a hundred-fold more hurtful if he rejoices in his wrong-doing, or hardens his heart against regret. Materialism, evolution, pantheism, or any of the theories which deny the government of an intelligent God, are all phases of fatalism, and are confuted by this truth, that we can, by conforming to His laws, which demand repentance, convert evil into good, or by violating them make evil ten-fold more deadly and destructive. We can, by our minds and sentiments, change the influence of material events, and vary the action of laws which govern the world. If man, with all his weakness, can do this, it can only be by the aid of a higher power which shapes, directs and regulates.—Horatio Seymour.

Choice Extracts.

—Archbishop Parley testifies: "I have seldom known any one who deserted truths in trifles that could be trusted in matters of importance."

—Two elements combine to destroy the Sabbath: one wishes to buy seven days of human work at the price of six days; the other aims to make money by open saloons, shops, theaters and shows from the unemployed crowds that stroll about cities and towns.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

—The heart determines the gravitation of a man. If you would have your interest strongly centered in the work of God, put your heart there. In order to put your heart there, put your wealth there. "For where the treasure is, there will the heart be also."

—We need to constantly watch against that secular spirit which is characteristic of our time. It is this spirit that crushes the spiritual nature under the wheels of traffic and the pomp and pride of life, and tends to displace the thought of God from the plans of men, and thus prepares the way for the reception of that materialistic skepticism which is favored in high places of learning and science—Golden Rule.

—There is one token to us that we were made for a higher and happier life than this, in the fact that sorrow and sin always come upon us as a surprise. Happy days do not astonish us, and the goodness of our beloved ones awakens no amazement. But if a sorrow comes, we cry aloud to let our neighbors know something has befallen us; and if one we love has sinned, we feel as if the heavens themselves were darkened.—Hesba Stretton.

—It is but a faint notion, no doubt, that the best man can have of God's goodness, so dull has sin made our hearts and brains; but let us comfort ourselves with this thought that the more we learn to love what is good, the more we accustom ourselves to think of good people and good things, and to ask ourselves why and how this action and that is good, the more we shall be able to see the goodness of God. And to see that, even for a moment, is worth all the sights in earth or Heaven.—N. Y. Observer.

—The Morning Star repeats an anecdote of the Duke of Wellington, in whose presence some officers had been speaking slightingly of Christian missions. It is said the old Iron Duke was mightily stirred. "When the chief issues marching orders," he demanded, "what are you, the inferior officers of the army, to do?" "We are to march," was the only reply. "Well, then, take the marching orders of your chief: 'Go ye into all the world and preach.' Your duty is to march and fight."

—Rev. H. O. Pratt was formerly a lawyer with an extensive practice in Ohio, a popular political orator, and for two terms a member of Congress. He told a Methodist ministers' convention the other day that until just before his conversion he was not at all in sympathy with the teachings of the Bible, and tried hard to make himself a confirmed skeptic. Nothing occurred while in Congress to direct his mind particularly to religion, and he was not inside of a church during a whole winter in Washington; but that was the very time when the subject of his personal salvation came into his mind, and he could not drive it away. He would often leave his seat in the House of Representatives, he said, and walk the streets to gain relief, but all to no purpose. On his return home he learned that there had been considerable religious interest in town, and that his wife and another Christian woman had unitedly prayed daily for several weeks for his conversion. His experience in Washington was no longer a mystery to him, and from that moment he believed in the efficacy of prayer. He abandoned law, turned his back upon his political prospects, and entered the ministry.

Our Young Folks.

A BALLAD OF BRAVERY.

To spread his fame I'll sing about
A little lad of ten,
Who, with no weapon, put to route
An army of brave men:

The glittering troops attacked, one day,
A quiet, sleepy town
And filled the people with dismay
As swiftly they came down.

They all prepared to hide or run,
With faces ashen pale.
All, did I say? No, all save one—
The hero of my tale.

"Cowards!" he said, with flashing eye,
"They pillage and destroy,
And yet [illegible] stand idly by!
I'll lead you, though a boy!"

He charged alone; the troops stood still;
He bravely knocked them down!
And thus, by his heroic will,
He saved the little town.

Lest this you think be hardly true,
It should be understood
That, though the boy was real like you,
The rest were made of wood!
—Malcolm Douglas, in St. Nicholas.

THE SLEIGH-RIDE;

Or Two Ways of Telling a Story.

[The following story is as good this year as in 1834, when it was written and published by one still among us, and as ready as ever with graceful pen in every good cause]:

Young people commit more faults from thoughtlessness than from intent to do wrong; and want of reflection leads children astray much oftener than want of principle. Indifference to the feelings of the aged, a proneness to make light of peculiarities, are, however, occasionally indulged in by the young, and in the excitement of the momentary gratification which such merriment may produce, all thought of the wrong and all sense of the right are equally forgotten. The proverb of the wisest man saith: "The glory of young men is their strength; and the beauty of old men is their gray head." The strength of the young should protect and defend the beauty of the old. The hoary head should ever be protected, whatever may be the outward condition of its possessor: and neither sport nor ridicule should be thrown upon him whose enfeebled strength scarce suffices to bear the weight of the many years with which time has burdened him.

The following narrative, which is strictly true, illustrates what has been observed, and proves that the just recompense of a thoughtless fault may be more speedily repaid to those who commit it than may be either expected or desired by them. The common saying of "waking up the wrong passenger" is peculiarly applicable to the case.

In one of the most populous cities of New England, a few years since, a party of lads, all members of the same school, got up a grand sleigh-ride. There were about twenty-five or thirty boys engaged in the frolic. The sleigh was a very large and splendid establishment, drawn by six gray horses. The afternoon was as beautiful as anybody could desire, and the merry group enjoyed themselves in the highest degree. It was a common custom of the school to which they belonged, and on previous occasions their teacher had accompanied them. Some engagement upon important business, however, occupying him, he was not at this time with them. It is quite likely, had it been otherwise, that the restraining influence of his presence would have prevented the scene which is the main feature of the present story.

On the day following the ride as he entered the school-room, he found his pupils grouped about the stove, and in high merriment, as they chattered about the fun and frolic of their excursion. He stopped awhile and listened, and in answer to some inquiries which he made about the matter, one of the lads, a fine, frank and manly boy, whose heart was in the right place, though his love of sport sometimes led him astray, volunteered to give a narrative of their trip and its various incidents. As he drew near the end of his story, he exclaimed: "Oh, sir, there was one little circumstance which I had almost forgotten to tell you. Toward the latter part of the afternoon, as we were coming home, we saw, at some distance ahead of us, a queer-looking affair in the road. We could not exactly make out what it was. It seemed to be a sort of half-and-half monstrosity. As we approached it, it proved to be a rusty old sleigh fastened behind a covered wagon, proceeding at a slow rate and taking up the whole road. Finding that the owner was not disposed to turn out, we determined upon a volley of snow-balls and a good hurrah. These we gave with a relish, and they produced the right effect and a little more, for the crazy machine turned out into the deep snow by the side of the road, and the skinny old pony started on a full trot. As we passed, some one who had the whip gave the old jilt of a horse a good crack, which made him run faster than he ever did before, I'll warrant. And so, with another volley of snow-balls, pitched into the front of the wagon, and three times three cheers, we rushed by. With that, an old fellow in the wagon, who was buried up under an old hat and beneath a rusty cloak, and who had dropped the reins, bawled out: 'Why do you frighten my horse?' 'Why don't you turn out, then,' says the driver. So we gave him three rousing cheers more; his horse was frightened again, and ran up against a loaded team, and, I believe, almost capsized the old creature—and so we left him."

"Well, boys," replied the instructor, "that is quite an incident. But take your seats, and, after our morning service is ended, I will take my turn and tell you a story, and all about a sleigh-ride, too."

Having finished the reading of a chapter in the Bible, and after all had joined in the Lord's Prayer, he commenced, as follows:

"Yesterday afternoon a very venerable and respectable old man, and a clergyman by profession was on his way from Boston to Salem, to pass the residue of the winter at the house of his son. That he might be prepared for journeying, as he proposed to do in the spring, he took with him his light wagon and for the winter his sleigh, which he fastened behind the wagon. He was, as I have told you, very old and infirm; his temples were covered with thinned locks, which the frosts of eighty years had whitened, his sight and hearing, too, were somewhat blunted by age as yours will be should you live to be as old. He was proceeding very slowly and quietly, for his horse was old and feeble like his owner. His thoughts reverted to the scenes of his youth, when he had periled his life in fighting for the liberties of his country; to the scenes of his manhood, when he had preached the Gospel of his Divine Master to the heathen of the remote wilderness; and to the scenes of riper years, when the hard hand of penury had lain heavily upon him. While thus occupied, almost forgetting himself in the multitude of his thoughts, he was suddenly disturbed and even terrified by loud hurrahs from behind, and by a furious pelting and clattering of balls of snow and ice upon the top of his wagon. In his trepidation he dropped his reins, and as his aged and feeble hands were quite benumbed with cold he found it impossible to gather them up, and his horse began to run away.

"In the midst of the old man's trouble, there rushed by him, with loud shouts, a large party of boys in a sleigh drawn by six horses. 'Turn out, turn out, old fellow!'—'Give us the road, old boy!'—'What'll you take for your pony, old daddy?'—'Go it, frozen nose!'—'What's the price of oats?' were the various cries that met his ear.

"'Pray, do not frighten my horse,' exclaimed the infirm driver.

"'Turn out, then! turn out!' was the answer, which was followed by repeated cracks and blows from the long whip of the 'grand sleigh,' with showers of snowballs, and three tremendous huzzas from the boys who were in it.

"The terror of the old man and his horse was increased, and the latter ran away with him, to the imminent danger of his life. He contrived, however, after some exertion, to secure his reins, which had been out of his hands during the whole of the affray, and to stop his horse just in season to prevent his being dashed against a loaded team.

"As he approached Salem, he overtook a young man who was walking toward the same place, and whom he invited to ride. The young man alluded to the 'grand sleigh,' which had just passed, which induced the old gentleman to inquire if he knew who the boys were. He replied that he did; that they all belonged to one school, and were a set of wild fellows.

"'Aha!' exclaimed the former, with a hearty laugh (for his constant good nature had not been disturbed), 'do they, indeed? Why, their master is very well known to me. I am now going to his house, and I rather think I shall give him the benefit of this whole story.'

"A short distance brought him to his journey's end: the house of his son. His old horse was comfortably housed and fed, and he himself abundantly provided for.

"That son, boys, is your instructor; and that aged and infirm old man, that 'old fellow' and 'old boy' (who did not turn out for you, but who would gladly have given you the whole road, had he heard your approach), that 'old boy,' and 'old daddy,' and 'old frozen nose' was your master's father!"

It is not easy to describe nor to imagine the effects produced by this new translation of the boy's own narrative. Some buried their heads behind their desks; some cried; some looked askant at each other, and many hastened down to the desk of the teacher, with apologies, regrets and acknowledgments without end. All were freely pardoned, but were cautioned that they should be more civil, for the future, to inoffensive travelers, and more respectful to the aged and infirm.

* * * * *

Years have passed by; the lads are men, though some have found an early grave: the "manly boy" is "in the deep bosom of the ocean buried." They who survive, should this story meet their eye, will easily recall its scenes, and throw their memories back to the "School-house in Federal Street," and to their old friend and well-wisher,

H. K. OLIVER.

—Massachusetts Teacher.

The Air at Great Heights.

During a recent stay for a month on the summit of the Pic du Midi (which is about 9,590 feet above the sea level) MM. Muntz and Aubin examined the air and aqueous meteors repeatedly, with reference to the presence of ammonia and to atmospheric nitrification. The ammonia of the air seemed to be in much the same proportion as that found in the air on low ground; but that of the rain-water, snow and fog was considerably less than on low ground for which various reasons are adduced—the greater rarefaction of the air traversed, absence of nitrate ammonia, dryness of snow preventing condensation of ammonia, fogs being formed where found, without descent, etc. In all the observations of rain, fog and snow for nitrate, an almost complete absence of these latter was ascertained. In this connection the authors had an examination made of the record of thunder-storms kept at the observatory (nitrates being formed in the air by electrical action.) Of the 184 thunder-storms observed from 1873 to 1882, only 23 had been produced at a height above 7,700 feet, where the original station of Plantade is situated; in the latter the summit of the Pic was surrounded by clouds whence the discharge came. It may be said in general, that in the Pyrenean region the violent electric phenomena of thunderstorms never exceed a height of 10,000 feet ([illegible],000 meters), and that, consequently, the formation of nitrates under the [illegible] is beyond this limit. Atmospheric nitrification seems to be chiefly produced in the zone between the sea level and the mean height of clouds. This absence of fine powders of nitrates, the authors also remark, certainly contributes to the remarkable transparence of the air in high regions, and shows that the plants on high mountains, and the soil they have formed, can only obtain their nitrogenized matter from the ammonia of the air.—London Times.

—A New York Central Railroad engineer will not take a train out on any day that a white cat has run across his path. He has tried it three or four times and has always met with accidents.—N. Y. Graphic.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JAN. 24, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
"	½ "	40
"	¼ "	20
¼ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 9 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

FRANK JAMES' trial commences to-morrow in Missouri.

THE weather has been cold enough to freeze the price of hogs up.

JAY GOULD sent $500 to the relief of the Milwaukee fire sufferers.

THE impression that congress will not remove the tobacco tax seems to prevail.

THE more the Louisville officials are investigated the bigger the steal developed.

THERE were 693 visitors at the Ohio Penitentiary during the month of December.

GEN. GRANT's name is being mentioned in connection with the presidency. He won't get there.

SOME of the New York hotels are very badly constructed as regards avenues for escape in case of a fire.

SUNDAY'S Enquirer contains nearly three pages of history of the Ohio penitentiary. Some of its reporters were there.

LAST week, Gen. Jarvis Jackson, aged ninety-six years, a Mexican veteran and the oldest man in Laurel county, died.

HON. JNO. S. PHELPS publishes a card in the Lexington Gazette declining to become a candidate for re-election to the legislature.

ENGLAND don't want the United States to surpass her in anything, not even fires, and she outdone the Milwaukee fire the other day.

SOME of the regulators that infested Morgan county are under arrest. They have caused considerable trouble in the vicinity of West Liberty.

THE Lexington Lunatic Asylum contains 635 inmates and applicants are being refused admission. The other two asylums are also badly crowded.

IF our Union correspondent does not come to time oftener we will do something terrible to him, and we are constitutionally opposed to anything of the kind.

GUITEAU cursed the jury that convicted him, and prophecied all manner of evil of them. Two of the jury have since died and one has become a pauper.

THE Governor says there is but one instance in which he is sorry he granted a pardon, and that in every other case he has been actuated by humanity.

IT is said that senator Pendleton has not been boomed as he expected on account of the civil service bill. The country may rise up and call him great, yet.

THERE is a diversity of opinion as whether it is necessary to send troops to protect Neal and Craft at their next trial. Judge Brown has not signified his opinion on that subject.

GOV. BLACKBURN says, "if these hair-brained writers would only take the trouble to get down to the facts they would find I am far behind the record in the matter of pardons." Talk is cheap.

A BILL has been introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature making it a misdemeanor for the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and members of the legislature to accept passes from railroad companies.

THE Auditor has been putting the screws to some of the parties who presented fraudulent claims to him for payment. One fellow from Louisville gets one year in the penitentiary for that offense.

THE republican national executive committee has fixed the basis of representation in the next national republican convention at two delegates for each senator, two for each member of congress, two for each territory and two for the District of Columbia. The convention will be composed of 820 delegates, of which number Kentucky is entitled [illegible]enty-six.

CHEATING THE STATE.

"Do you find a very great inclination on the part of officials to present fraudulent claims against the Commonwealth?" was a query put by a Courier-Journalist to Auditor Hewitt after he left the witness stand, having testified in the Garrity case.

"Well, rather considerable, though by diligent attention I have been enabled to checkmate many of the claims. The greatest trouble comes from the country districts. The magistrates seem inclined to get all they can from the state. Why, as an instance, in one county two magistrates held a continuous session of court for 130 days trying sixty felony cases. In some counties they have practiced it so long that a whole ring of people seem to be drawn into it, and they will hold court among themselves, one of them acting now as a prisoner and again as a witness, and in the end they fix out the claims, get the money and divide up.

"Have you been able to cut down this fraudulent practice to any extent."

"Yes; it is practiced much less now than formerly, but is very hard for me to tell a fraudulent claim from a good one. The courts allowing the claims should be more particular and know when they are certifying and allowing a claim whether it is good or not."

"How do you manage to catch up with them?"

"Well, if too many claims come in from the same person, I think something is going crooked and investigate. My attention was attracted to Garrity's case that way. Then, again, I had a list of the policemen, and I saw he was claiming to have made arrests at a time when he was not on the regular force. It seems however that several of us grew suspicious of him about the same time."

"Does this thing of presenting false claims prevail to any extent with the Louisville policemen?"

"No; this is the only case detected so far. Unless the courts here watch the matter, it might be carried on to some extent and I not detect it, however careful I might be."

"The unostentatious country man is the one who gets in his work in a wholesale manner?"

"Yes; there's where the trouble comes in. The greatest fraud practised upon the state is in the idiots; many a man is adjudged an idiot, placed in the care of a committee and draws his $75 from the state, who is not an idiot; many mild lunatics are pushed in in that way. Then again, a great many idiots are brought into the state from other states to be made a burden upon the state. The fact that the draft upon the state for the support of these poor creatures has grown immensely in the past few years is evidence that fraud is being practiced, but unless the people who try them set down on the practice there is no way to help it."—Courier-Journal.

The Louisville "Weekly Commercial" announces that hereafter its yearly subscription price will be One Dollar. This reduction will make the "Commercial" the cheapest and best newspaper in the state.

It will also be greatly improved. On January 1st it will appear in an entire new and handsome dress, and will contain, among other valuable features, Whyte Melville's celebrated novel, "KATERPELTO." The adventures of the hero and his thoroughbred mare, "Keterfelto," with the charming and yet thrilling of Waif and John Garnet, make the tail one of profound interest throughout. There is not a dull chapter in the entire novel.

In order to obtain the first chapter of this tale of unparalleled popularity, subscriptions should be sent to the "Commercial" at once.

THE cause of education has evidently advanced in this county during the past eight or ten years. One of the strongest evidences of this is the number of new and commodious school-houses that have been erected. Nearly all the little, dark log buildings have been supplanted by frame buildings, put in localities where they can be found, instead of being placed in a deep hollow at the rear of some man's farm. There yet remains a few of the "ancient" edifices for education, and they are scarcely habitable, but we predict that these will soon be superseded by better buildings, such as the times and age demand. Good school-houses, churches and turnpikes are three things that can always be found among the intelligent and prosperous.

WE have before us a copy of the last report of the Commissioners of the Kentucky Institution for the education and training of feeble-minded children. The building of the institution has been enlarged, and there is now room for fifty more inmates. This institution is doing a noble work in behalf of that class of unfortunate children. A copy of the law, together with the necessary blanks, will be forwarded to anyone upon application to the superintendent.

UNDER the provision of an old Indian treaty with the Miami tribe the commissioners of the Land Office last week issued a patent to the heirs of the Indian known as "The Beaver" for three thousand two hundred acres of land in Indiana, about 20 miles west of Fort Wayne.

BOTH wings of the republican party are accused of being dissatisfied with the way President Arthur is administering the government. They charge him with looking entirely to his own political future instead of that of the party.

GOV. BLACKBURN says if Judge Brown calls for troops to protect the prisoners, Neal and Craft, that he will send more than he asks for. If Judge Brown asks for fifteen hundred he will send two thousand.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $6 50@6 65; fair to good packers, at $6 30@6 55; fair to good light, $6 10@6 35; common, $5 40@6 10; culls, $4@5 25; stock hogs, $4 75@5 50.

STATE NEWS.

—Franklin is out of debt and has $3,500 left.

—The widow of Chief Justice Hardin is insane.

—The fine for profanity is being enforced in Lexington.

—Small-pox has caused the suspension of business at Shilo.

—Elizabethtown is scared up over the appearance of the small-pox.

—John Roller was killed and robbed, last week, in Grant county.

—Abusive husbands are receiving the atention of Regulators in Hendreson.

—During the year just closed Newport had nearly 200 deaths from small-pox.

—Several counties in the eastern part of the state have commenced cultivating tobacco.

—Rhoda Alden has sued the Kentucky Central, at Lexington, for $50,000 for killing her husband.

—Wm. Eversole, of McLean county is 23 years old, three and one-half feet high and weighs 66 pounds.

—Rev. R. Douglass, of Lexington, owns a Jersey cow two years and one month old, the milk of which for one day yielded two and a half pounds of butter.

—The Daviess court of claims has settled upon three dollars for the per capita tax, forty cents for railroad tax, ten cents for road and bridge tax and three cents for bridge tax, which, with the state levy of 47½ cts. will make the sum total of one dollar and one-half cent on the $100 and $3 poll tax.

—Henry King, of Ironton, received the 3d inst., a check for $8,628 93 being the amount of back pay on a pension just granted him. In addition to this he will draw $72 a month as long as he lives. He belonged to Company I, 32d Ind., and contracted disease at Andersonville prison, which resulted in total blindness. This is said to be the largest pension check ever drawn.—Ashland Independent.

—The grand jury has created considerable sensation by reporting seventy-eight indictments. Nearly all of them against Catlettsburg parties. The saloon keepers who have sold whisky since Judge Brown's decision against them are indicted in a number of cases. They have been arrested and compelled to give bond, some of them as high as two thousand dollars. Gambling and the selling of votes are also receiving attention from the grand jury. The jury is still at work with a fair prospect of remaining so for some time. After Catlettsburg is knocked down and dragged out the sinners of Ashland will receive all the attention to which they are entitled.—Ashland Inde'pt.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—A negro child was born near Athens, Ga., with a full set of teeth.

—It is said that fields are still white with cotton in Colbert county Ala.

—The car-drivers of Memphis, have been picking the locks of the money-boxes and appropriating the contents.

—Work on the Atchafalaya river levees is being pushed on vigorously. In the neighborhood of Simmesport the levees are being rapidly rebuilt.

—Old Ned, the alleged last domestic of Henry Clay, who assisted in digging the grave of the Sage of Ashland, is said to have died recently in Texas.

—The project for a Confederate monument at Nashville seems at last to be assuming a tangible shape, and if the line indicated is carried out the monument is a certainty.

—A test was made in Sparta on last Saturday of the amount of water a bale of cotton would absorb in about one-half an hour's rain. The increase in weight was thirty-seven pounds.

—A Young man named Hurst was instantly killed a few days since at Klein's Landing, Sunflower river, while yoking up a team of oxen, by being accidently struck on the head with the yoke.

—At Greenfield, Tenn., an agent for a St. Louis cotton firm was caught weighing cotton with a brass pea, hollow inside and packed full of shot and making a difference of about five per cent. in the quantity of cotton required.

—At Dallas, Texas, an old half-blind man named Hend, from Greenville, was fleeced out of $300 by a sharper, who pretended he was shipping a stock of goods to his town, and lacked the amount to prepay the freight.

—The sugar crop of Louisiana has exceeded very largely any crop since the war. Two and a half to three hogsheads per acre has been an average on many estates of 600 or 800 acres of cane each. Some of the best cane has yielded as much as four to four and a half hogshead.

Lincoln Reads a Poem

Honest Old Abe Entertains his Cabinet with a Little Quotation.

"Now, gentlemen, you all have more or less poetry in your souls; listen to this," and Abraham Lincoln, then President, rose from his chair, in his office in the White House, and read in trembling tones, which indicated his own profound appreciation of it, Dr. O. W. Holmes' "Last Leaf," o which the following are two verses:

"They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down:
Not a better man was found
By the crier in his round
Through the town.

Now the mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he had pressed
In their bloom;
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb."

Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., is not as old as the venerable Boston citizen of whom the poet wrote with such tender pathos, yet he is more than three score and ten. "For the past eight of those years," he writes, "I have been a perfect cripple from rheumatism, hobbling about as best I could with my cane. I took PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and am now supple and strong as a gymnast. There is no trace of the disease left about me."

Mr. R. W. Mosher, wholesale druggist, of Binghamton, writes Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of N. Y.—Proprietors of the Tonic—certifying to Mr. Guilfoyle's declaration.

Having all the properties of any preparation of ginger, PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is a remedy of infinitely greater range and power. It cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood or imperfect digestion. Dyspepsia (and all its consequences), Malarial Fevers, Sick Headache, Kidney troubles, Bronchitis, and common Coughs and Colds, vanish at its touch. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Larger size the cheaper.

Tobacco Market.

Cincinnati, Friday, Jan., 19, 1883

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 00@	$3 00
Common Smokers	3 00	4 25
Colory Smokers	4 50	5 50
Colory Trash	6 00	8 00
Good Br't Trash	10	15 00
Fine Br't Trash		none
Fancy Bright Leaf	29 50
Dark Lugs	4 00	5 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	11 00
Good Stripping Lugs	11 00	16 00
Fine Str'p'g Lugs	17	23 25
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Leaf	19	23 00
Good Br't Leaf	23 50	25 00
Fine Br't Leaf	25 50	27 50
Com Lug Fillers	7	11 00
Good Lug Filler	11 00	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	23
Com. Med Fil'rs	12 00	18 75
Good Med Fil'rs	19	22
Good L'f Fillers	23 50	25 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	25 50	27 00

FOR SALE.

The delinquent poll-tax list, both white and colored, of Boone county for the year 1882, will be sold to the highest bidder for cash at the Court-house, in the town of Burlington, at 1 o'clock, on the first Monday in February, 1883. By order of the Court of Claims, S. W. TOLIN, Co. Atty.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

PATENTS
CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT?

Send a rough sketch or (if you can) a model of your invention to GEORGE E. LEMON, Washington, D. C., and a Preliminary Examination will be made of all United States patents of the same class of inventions and you will be advised whether or not a patent can be obtained.

FOR THIS PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION NO CHARGE IS MADE.

What will a Patent Cost?

If you are advised that your invention is patentable, send $20 to pay Government application fee of $15, and $5 for the drawings required by the Government. This is payable when application is made, and is all of the expense unless a patent is allowed. When allowed, the attorney's fee ($25) and the final Government fee ($20) is payable. Thus you know beforehand, for nothing, whether you are going to get a patent or not, and no attorney's fee is charged unless you do get a Patent. An attorney whose fee depends on his success in obtaining a Patent will not advise you that your invention is pateutable, unless it really is patentable, so far as his best judgment can aid in determining the question; hence, you can rely on the advise given after a preliminary examination is had. Design Patents and the Registration of Labels, Trade Marks and Re-issues secured. Caveats prepared and filed. Applications in revivor of Rejected, Abandoned, or Forfeited Cases made. Very often valuable inventions are saved in these classes of cases. If you have undertaken to secure your own patent and failed, a skillful handling of the case may lead to success. Send me a written request addressed to the Commissioner of Patents that he recognize GEORGE E. LEMON, of Washington, D. C., as your attorney in the case, giving the title of the invention and about the date of filing your application. An examination and report will cost you nothing. Searches made for title to inventions, in fact any information relating to Patents promptly furnished. Copies of Patents mailed at the regular Government rates, (25c. each.) Remember this office has been in successful operation since 1865 and you therefore reap the benefits of experience, besides reference can be given to actual clients in almost every county in the U. S. Pamphlet relating to Patents free upon request.

GEO. E. LEMON,
615 15th St., WASHINGTON, D. C.
Attorney-at-Law and Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & Beautiful Floral Chromo Cards, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

LIST OF CLAIMS ALLOWED
BY THE
COURT OF CLAIMS
OF BOONE COUNTY,
—AT ITS—
NOVEMBER TERM 1882,
—AND—
JANUARY TERM 1883.

November Term 1882.

Claims payable out of the levy of 1882

J W Kirk for tree boxes	$1 50
Sallie Underhill keeping pauper	100
W F Mckim for medicine	3 65
T W Finch Co. levy refunded	2 50

Claims payable out of levy of 1883

J C Hensly holding inquest and burying pauper	6 00
T W Finch serving road notices	52 50
W A Goodridge holding inquest	24 00
Judy Peno & John Hankins for burying drowned men	16
H Kennedy burying pauper	5 50
Geo Reeves do do	6
Geo Phelps do do	6
H J Foster & Son for printing	19 30
J W Kirk making drawer	1 50
James Hughes (col) conveying pauper to poor-house	3 00
E Fowler burying paupers and furn'ng milk for poor-house	41 00
R C Green county attorney	425
Cy Riddell county judge	333 33

January Term 1883

Claims payable out of the levy of 1882

Ben Rouse note, with interest thereon, also interest on two notes for $1,000 each	1,134 67
Sam Cowen jail account	77 00
do do for coal	21 00
J H Callahan constable	8 20
F P Walton funds fur'hed Co.	68 41
" " receiver	150 00
Ed Fowler superintendent	45 00
Dr Furnish pauper practice	68 75

Claims payable out of the levy of 1883

L H Dills ex-clerk	51 00
W O B Rich constable	18 54
Joseph Rich do	3 46
Curly & Edwards two coffins.	12 00
Joseph Rich constable	7 60
F Hartmann burying child	6 00
L A Loder holding inquest	6 00
A D Riley constable	6 60
Ed Fowler milk for poor-house	15 00
same for sowing rye	6 50
S W Tolin as committee	12 00
Oscar Gaines same	6 00
E H Baker same	3 00

Justices present at November Term 1882

J Wagstaff	$3	L A Loder	$3
J C Hensly	3	W M Rouse	3
O Gaines	3	E H Baker	3
S T Johnson	3	W L Norman	3
W B Craven	3	M B Green	3
T H Sutton	3	B H Ryle	3
G W Baker	3	M C Norman	3
W A Goodridge	3	H Bannister	3

Justices present January Term 1883

W B Craven	3	T H Sutton	3
S T Johnson	3	J Wagstaff	3
J C Hensly	3	W M Rouse	3
L A Loder	3	O Gaines	3
E H Baker	3	G W Baker	3
M B Green	3	M C Norman	3
H Bannister	3	B H Ryle	3
A S McConnell	3	W A Goodridge	3

Justices present 2d day January Term 1883

M B Green	3	O Gaines	3
S T Johnson	3	T H Sutton	3
W M Rouse	3	J C Hensly	3
L A Loder	3	E H Baker	3
M C Norman	3	J Wagstaff	3
H Bannister	3	B H Ryle	3
W B Craven	3	W A Goodridge	3

Judges August election 1882

Wm Rouse	2	J O Roberts	2
J M Robinson	2	Geo Moore	2
J G Snow	2	M P Riley	2
J P Duncan	2	Z T Kelly	2
C Hurd	2	S S McWethy	2
Wm Wilkie	2	M L Rouse	2
G L Miller	2	W W Grimsly	2
J Breedon	2	W B Craven	2
J D Conner	2	T P Crisler	2
Alex Murray	2	Wm Allen	2
F M Underhill	2	J C Hughes	2
D M Snyder	2	Cyrus Kelly	2

Clerks August election 1882

H C Botts	2	J O Griffith	2
E S Rice	2	T O Graves	2
B S O'Neal	2	J L Johnson	2
C C Talbott	2	J K Latham	2
J P Craig	2	L P Sanders	2
W B Grubbs	2	E W Duncan	2

Sheriffs of August election 1882

Ed Fowler	2 00	S J Hedges	2 64
A S Arnold	3 20	L S Stephens	2 80
M V Cave	2 80	N Talbott	2 48
J W Eldred	3 00	G Stephens	3 20
Chas Helm	2 40	G H Aydlotte	2 48
A B Corbin	2 56	G R Griffith	2 88

Judges November election 1882

J S Noell	2	F M Underhill	2
J S Ransom	2	J Breedon	2
L C Yager	2	Alex Murray	2
J T Duncan	2	Z T Kelly	2
B S Kirk	2	E W Duncan	2
Geo Moore	2	J M Robinson	2
D M Snyder	2	Cyrus Kelly	2
J D Norris	2	C Hurd	2
V Dickerson	2	Wm Wilkie	2
J S Snow	2	M P Richy	2
J D Conner	2	Jno Stephens	2
J W Eldred	2	F M Jackson	2

Sheriffs November election 1882

J H Rich	3 00	Chas Helm	2 40
A S Arnold	3 20	A W Bristow	2 48
J K Latham	2 80	A B Corbin	2 56
J A Riddell	2 64	J A Cowen	2 00
L L Stephens	2 80	G H Aydlotte	2 48
G Stephens	3 20	J Rich	2 88

Clerks November election 1882

W M Rouse	2	J M Sleet	2
C F Pettit	2	J D Craig	2
H J Foster	2	W B Grubbs	2
T H Sutton	2	A B Parker	2
J D Gaines	2	L P Sanders	2
C S Balsly	2	G W Cayton	2

Special term February 28, 1882

James Westbay allowed	$6

Special Term May 23d

Samuel Cowen for fence	$50

Special Term July 18th

L H Dills	$12 75

August Term

G L Miller	$3

COUNTY LEVY $2 00

Attest | M. T. GARNETT, Clerk.

G. H. LOEBKER,
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES,
36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green.
J. S. Mason, J. A. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
J. J. Dulaney.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
540 MADISON STREET,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS
Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

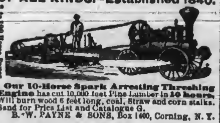
Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

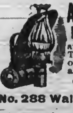
DR. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.



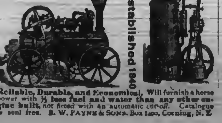
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.



AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the
CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.)
No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.



Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cutoff. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.
COLOGNE

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

One man in jail.

Saturday was a dandy day.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

Umbrella and goose weather last week.

No excuse for not having ice next summer.

G. M. Riley is doing all the work assessing.

Not many hogs about here awaiting the buyer.

This winter will be known as the sleety winter.

There is an abundance of corn in this county.

Sleighing and skating is no more for the present.

Royal cod fish at Tebbs Bros , Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Take the advice of a friend and get vaccinated at once.

The rabbit market is good, but can't say as to the rabbits.

'Possums are ripe—one was on the market the other day.

Coal was being delivered here last week at 22 cents a bushel.

The freezes and thaws have injured the growing small grain.

John E. Walton now owns land enough to make a small county.

The bottom will be dropping out of the dirt roads now directly.

The delinquent poll tax list is advertised for sale in this impression.

The farmers are not anxious to sell their tobacco at the prices offered.

The supply of daylight has increased considerably in the last month.

Wanted to buy beef cattle and hogs at Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Burlington Lodge No. 264 F. & A. M installed its officers last Saturday.

The fruit prognosticators will shortly give you a forecast of that crop.

Last week and this it has been a difficult task to obtain local items of interest.

The county officers to be elected next August are a sheriff and representative.

We are receiving fresh fish from the lakes, Tebbs Bros , Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Sheriff Clutterbuck is doing the business of his office without the assistance of a deputy.

Wanted, 1000 lbs. of country lard, will pay 12½ cents cash, Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

We have had a good deal of dark, damp, dreary, dismal, drizzling, disgusting weather this month.

Mr. R. C. Rice and wife united by letter with the Baptist church at this place last Sunday evening.

During the year 1882 there were sixty-four marriage licenses issued to whites and seven to negroes.

The Georgetown Times has been enlarged to an eight column sheet—Good omen of success.

The small amount of litigation being done in Boone speaks well for the prosperity of the county.

Our Walton friend will please continue his favors, but don't fail to sign your name to the next communication.

On the first of March Mr. John L. Conner will take possession of his business stand at Erlanger.

Dogs made a raid on Mr. Blythe's sheep the other day. None of the sheep were killed, but the dog was.

Monday morning was the most disagreeable of the season, though the thermometer at this place was 2° above zero.

We hear it said that J. M. Conner will, in the spring, move to the house now occupied by James Smith, near this place.

Lewis Bremen will have several nice lambs for the eastern market. He has had good luck thus far with his young muttons.

Those having the matter in hand are very sanguine that the christian church edifice will be built in Bellevue at an early day.

McAndrews, the Chambers lightning rod man, was in town Friday. Mc. was looking badly, having been sick for several weeks.

Nothing done in County Court since the qualifying of J. R. Clutterbuck as sheriff, except releasing John L. Conner of an erroneous assessment.

School Commissioner Snyder was in town Saturday. He is taking a great interest in education, and has been visiting the schools.

[illegible] Cummings for Daniel Cummings, deposited with the jury Commissioner $300 in lieu of bail, and Daniel was released from custody.

Any of our patrons having copies of the RECORDER of dates December 6th and 13th, 1882, will please send them to us as we need a few copies of these dates.

Georgie Piper is going to try his luck in the book business again. Hope he will have better luck than he experienced on a former venture of that kind.

The several justices of the county will confer a favor by sending us on a postal card the time of holding their respective courts. We want to get up a directory.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Beall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

The next State Convention will be composed of 742 delegates and of that number this Congressional District will be entitled to 74, nine of which belong to Boone county.

We want the news from every neighborhood in the county, and upon application, we will at once forward the necessary stationary to those who desire to assist the RECORDER in that particular.

James Hogan, who lives on the Bellevue pike, near Burlington, having become tired of waiting for a buyer for his tobacco, says he will get some empty flour barrels and a rail and prize his tobacco.

Billie Sheehan writes us from Independence as follows: "I wish you would direct my paper here, as I have permanently located."

We have heard of others who became as suddenly located.

The post office department has fixed the following schedule for the mail between this place and Erlanger: Leaves Erlanger, at 10 a. m., and arrives at Burlington at 12 m. Leaves Burlington at 2 p. m., and arrives at Erlanger at 4 p. m.

Andrew Gluckin, an aged gentleman who lives about three or four miles from Florence and near Frogtown, has the small-pox. It is said that about 150 persons were exposed to his case, and considerable excitement prevails in his neighborhood.

The Cincinnati Morning Journal says: "While Tennessee is distracted with her debt complications, Kentucky's bank account is as solid as the foundations of her monument to Henry Clay; and Florida's treasury is full, with prospective revenues far in excess of prospective expenditures."

Mr. Wm. Tanner, of Florence, has gone to New Orleans for his health. Mr. Tanner for the past four or five years has been one of Florence's most active business men, and his many friends regret to hear of his illness, and hope that the southern clime will restore his shattered health.

Geo. W. Dunlap, a Lexington Evangelist, has written to our postmaster, asking him if the Court-house can be secured for religious services. His letter was answered in the affirmative, and he will probably be here in the near future.

LATER—He arrived yesterday at noon! Services had not commenced when our formes closed Tuesday.

An intelligent farmer of Woodford county said yesterday that he thought there was a blue prospect for wheat. The fly damaged it in the fall and the winter has been hard upon it. He says the late snow did more harm than good, as it was followed by a rapid thaw and then a freeze "which stewed the roots out of the ground." —Frankfort Yeoman.

Mr. T. A. Martin, of the firm of T. A. Martin & Co., No. 634 Madison St., Covington, Ky., was in town Friday. Mr. Martin was for many years with J. M Clarkson, of Covington, and is therefore well acquainted in Boone. Boone county people wanting stoves, tinware or grates when in Covington will do well to call on the Kentucky Stove and Tin works.

One of the largest land sales made in this part of the county was that consumated last Friday between William Walton and John E. Walton in which the former conveyed to the latter the farm on which he now resides, containing 336 acres. The consideration is $12,000. This trade has been under way for twenty years. Mr. William Walton contemplates buying land in some of the western states. If Mr. W. leaves here the county will lose one of her best citizens.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Mrs. Brent is visiting at Campbellsburg.

Sam Hind, of Walton was in town the other day.

Ex-Assessor W. N. Smith was on our streets Friday.

Thomas Cowen was visiting his brother in Gallatin county, last week.

John M Hoshal and J. C. Clore, of Hebron, were in town Saturday.

Miss Alice Souther, of Florence X Roads was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rouse, last week.

Miss Sallie Hyatt who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Grant, of this place, has returned to her home in Newport.

Real Estate Conveyances.

Lewis Conner to O. P. Conner, 71¼ acres on Gunpowder.—$1,500.

Patrick Crosby to Bruce Henry, 12½ acres.—$100 cash.

John N. Humphry to W. B. Kelley, 25 acres near Aylor's Store.—$1 000.

Commission Kenton Circuit Court to Trustees of Petersburg, town lots in Petersburg. This deed was made Jan. 7th, 1871.

Master Commissioner Kenton Chancery Court to Buffington heirs.

Commissioner's deeds have been recorded as follows: To N. W. Allen's heirs. To the heirs of Reuben Norman. To the heirs of Mathew Gordon. To the heirs of Willis Records.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Bellevue.

B. F. Garnett who has been confined to the house all winter is still very poorly.

Miss Katie Piatt has typhoid fever at her brother's, Dr. L. H. Piatt's,

Our old citizen, J. H. Akin, has improved none since he was stricken with paralysis.

J. H. Walton shipped 30 hogs the other night that averaged 380 pounds.

The new organ for the Baptist church has arrived. It is a splendid instrument.

The exercises at the literary society last Friday night were intensely interesting, the disputants making masterly efforts. The question, affirmed that there is more to be learned from books than from traveling was affirmed by Elder Dicken and J. T. Marshall and denied by Orlando Snyder and Elder Houston. The negative won the decision. We hope that the interest in the society will increase, as it is evident that all who participate in the exercises will be profited there-by.

Taylorport.

Miss Queen Grubbs spent part of last week visiting her lady friends in Delhi and Home city.

Miss Mollie Sprague has had quite a protracted spell of sickness, but we are happy to say she is slightly improved at present.

The most enjoyable affair we have had recently in the way of parties was the select party at Mr. Wheatly's residence near Parlor Grove. Beacom's orchestra furnished music. The dancing lasted until about two o'clock.

Snowden Humphrey has killed almost all the game in this section of the country and now proposes to rest until next season.

Dick Fox has at last come out victorious in the race with Esquire Myers, of Delhi. The Squire hasn't been over for a long time. Good looks and accomplished manners will accomplish what riches often fail to do

Mr. Harry Piper, a former resident of our city, was in town last week. He has been promoted to the position of chief operator, general office C. I. St. L & C. C R.R. LaFayette, Ind., and fills the position admirably. He has our best wishes for success. [We would like to hear from you ever week.—EDS.]

Normansville.

On last Monday, our district school house caught fire from the stove, and for a few minutes (no water being handy) great excitement prevailed; but, fortunately, no serious damage was done.

We have had no boats this week on account of ice in the river.

Our present mail-carrier, Billy Wilson, is very accommodating, only once in awhile suggesting that the young ladies write too many letters.

R. D. Finnell, of Walton, paid us a flying visit, this week.

Our school commissioner, D. M. Snyder, was in our midst, a few days since.

Prayer meeting at Big Bone every Friday evening.

Lost, strayed or stolen from a trunk in Normansville, two letters. The finder will please return them to whom they are addressed, and no questions will be asked.

Petersburg.

Little Davie, son of D. C. Alcorn, while sliding on the pike, last Saturday night, met with a serious and painful accident. His sled, getting the advantage of him, ran violently into the toll-gate, and broke his leg just below the knee. think this will be a lesson to all lovers of the sport, and stop all sliding, especially on the pike, as it is very dangerous. We hope the officers of the turnpike will pass a law that there shall be no more sliding on the road.

The Christian Sunday-school elected the following officers for the ensuing year: D. Riggs, Supt.; J. H. Snyder, Assistant Supt.; Willie Snyder, Secy.; F. M. Cox, Treas.; Charles McWethy and Mark Gordorn, Librarians.

Quite an excitement and interesting little fight took place in the west end of town last Wednesday, between Sam Falsteen and wife in which Mr. Falsteen beat his wife severely with the poker, and she was unconscious for about four hours. A warrant was issued for his arrest, but not served, and about 9 o'clock that night a posse of about 12 men, all masked, assembled at the house of Mr. Falsteen and politely took him from his warm bed and accompanied him to the river where they gave him a severe and a cool ducking. After he was brought a shore the paddle instead of the poker was administered to him. He begged manfully and said he would never do the like again.

Capt. A. B. Holabird got a boat load of ice out of Tanner creek, last week, that was about 6 inches thick.

Mr. Walker Tolin, county attorney, was here last Thursday.

T. H. Green was not able to be out last week, as he was very sick.

J. Frank Grant is confined to his bed with a very severe cold.

Sam Buchanan, of Rising Sun, Ind., was here last Saturday.

Funny to see—O. T. Porter playing No one to love, on the organ.

Dickie Parker dance the racquet.

Bob Bolen play punch and judy.

Plattsburg

John Smith has been offered $10 all round for his tobacco.

Died—Last Thursday, an infant child of Wm. Snelling.

J. B. Tolin was sick with plurasy several days last week, and Preston Miller is dangerously sick with pneumonia.

Perry Kirtley will handle the yardstick at the Gainesville store for the next twelve months. Perry's a good one.

Rev. Geo. Froh preaches at the Ashby Fork school-house the 4th Sunday in each month, at 3:30 p. m.

Egbert Nichols will move to Bromley, Kenton county, next week. We regret to lose Egbert from our midst. He's a good wood-workman.

—There are more geese in this market than there are buyers, since all the buyers have withdrawn except Westbay.

W. T. Crisler, who has been very sick with pneumonia, is on the high road to recovery.

We have quite a freak of nature in our town in the shape of a nest of young blue birds, yet unfledged. The mother feeds them daily.

One of the most enjoyable dances of the season was at the residence of Woodford Sullivan last Monday night. There were 15 couples in attendance, and all enjoyed themselves hugely. Hensly and Barker furnished the music, which was excellent.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS,
201 York street Jersey City, N. J.
☞ Mention this paper. Jan 17-83

IRELAND of TO-DAY $75 to $150 Per Month. New Edition Now Ready. Gives Repression Bill, Events of 1882, etc. Agents Wanted J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Public Sale.

I will offer for sale to the highest bidder, at the late residence of Robt. W. Cooper, decd., on

FEB. 1st, '83

The following personal property, belonging to the estate of said deceased, to wit:

One Horse, Cattle, Sheep, 1 Road Wagon, 1 Horse Cart, Farming Implements, Household and Kitchen Furniture and other articles too numerous to mention.

TERMS—All sums of $10 and under cash in hand, over that amount a credit of 6 months will be given, the purchaser giving note with approved security.

Sale to commence at 9 o'clock a. m.
JOS. A. GAINES, Executor.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court Kentucky.

W B Craven, Plff. } Notice of sale in equity vs
Daniel Robinson, &c. Defts }

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the October Term thereof, 1881, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 5th day of February 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day), proceed to offer for sale at public auction: to the highest bidder, on a credit of 6 and 12 months, at the Court-house door, in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the Judgment, to wit:

A parcel of land lying and being in the town of Verona, Boone county, Ky., bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone in the Big Bone road, running with the same to the corner of the North District church lot; thence northeast about one hundred feet to the corner of the "old ice house"; thence south about fifty feet to a stone; thence back to the Big Bone road to the beginning. Said piece of land is known as the "Old Store-house lot.

The purchaser will be required to give bonds with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Amount to be raised by sale, $134 86.
Bonds payable to the undersigned.
W. L. RIDDELL, M C B C C

Public Sale!

The undersigned will, as administratrix of Lewis Aylor, decd., sell publicly to the highest bidder at his late residence, on the East Bend Road, five miles South of Burlington, Kentucky, on Friday, Jan. 26.

A lot of Drygoods, Groceries, Tinware, Quensware, 24 Stands of Bees and many things too numerous to mention.

Sale to commence at 10 a. m., and continue from day to day till completed.

Terms made known on day of sale.

All persons indebted to the estate of R. L. Aylor, decd., will come forward and settle the indebtedness. All persons having claims against said estate will present them properly proven as by law required.

ELIZABETH M. AYLOR,
Admr'x.

THE EAGLE
DRUG STORE,
—IS POSITIVELY—
THE CHEAPEST
—HOUSE IN—
RISING SUN, IND.
Where will be found a fresh stock of
DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,
SCHOOL BOOKS
—AND—
STATIONERY,
all at bottom prices.
GIVE US A CALL.
D. C. Thorn,
Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)
Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.
Fine Teas A Specialty.
A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

DUDLEY ROUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Has Knocked Down the Price on a lot of LADIES' and CHILDREN'S Side-lace SHOES so low that the figures will surprise you.

REMNANTS OF PRINTS
Have been overtaken by the same Slaughter and are being Closed out at Prices which make them go in a hurry. Several pieces of nice DRESS GOODS must be sold and to make you want them they are going to be disposed of at a sacrifice. If you want any of the above goods call early as they are being taken rapidly.

I also have a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Yarns, Prints, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, Notions, &c.

A full stock of FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES always on hand

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL.
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 8-tf

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

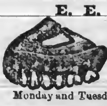
J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES.
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on small claims. G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

F. Adkinson. A. W. Gaines.
ADKINSON & GAINES,
Attorneys & Counselors at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. 41tf.

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,



Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. 2nd.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
Should take a policy at once.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky. | J. E. DUNCAN President, Burlington, Ky

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
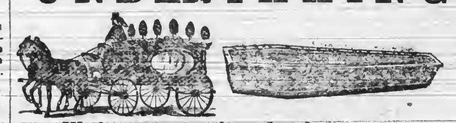
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CASP,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.
New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.
JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun, Ind.

UNDERTAKING



We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING,
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Also Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Satisfaction guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON. Proprietors.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDER,
Your Own County Paper.

THE RECORDER.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY

THE TWO WOOINGS.

In the garden sweet with roses,
Mused a maid one summer day,
Dreaming 'mid the bloom and fragrance
Of the years long passed away.
"In this very garden olden,
I have heard my mother say,
Did my grandsire, proud and stately,
Woo a maiden fair and gay.
Gay and fair, my girlish grand dame
(I have seen her pictured face),
Pure and sweet as any lily,
With a dainty, old-time grace.
He, so tall and grand and stately,
Powdered hair and quaint attire;
Yet beneath the garb of manhood
Beat a heart of youthful fire.
And he wooed in courtly phrases,
Murmured low on bended knee,
Like a true and loving subject—
Like a royal princess she.
Scarce he dared, with humble fervor,
Press her dainty finger-tips;
Lower bent his head, and lower,
When he raised them to his lips.
Ah, so grand that old-time wooing,
Timid glance and bended knee!"
"Thus" (so ran her gentle musings)
"Must my lover kneel to me."

In the garden as she lingered,
Dreaming dreams as maidens will,
Down the leafy walks there sounded
Steps that made her pulses thrill.
And a youth of modern aspect,
With a manner debonnair,
Came with words of careless greeting,
Sought the nearest garden chair.
And he chatted of the weather,
Praised the garden, plucked a rose;
Likened it to her in beauty—
Fairest, sweetest flower that grows.
Not a trace of awe or homage
On his frank and happy face;
Yet the maiden read his purpose
'Neath his mein of careless grace.
"Oh, his heart is true and tender!
Sweet the tale he has to tell!
And" (so ran her happy musing)
"Sure am I he loves me well."
Does he kneel, this modern lover?
Press her dainty finger-tips?
Ah! instead he clasps her closely,
Boldly kisses willing lips;
Eagerly, with eyes love lighted,
Gazes on her blushing face;
Calls her dearest, best and fairest,
Praises every tender grace.
"Stately was my grandsire's wooing,
On that olden summer day!
Yet" (thus runs her guileless musing)
"Sweeter far the modern way."

—Ada E. Rockwell, in Our Continent.

A GAME OF CHANCE.

BY MRS. CECILIA K. GIBSON.

"But you must admit she is very pretty, Miss Mercy," said her visitor, smiling quizically, as she once more endeavored to draw out her hostess upon the party under discussion.

"No, I am sorry to say I can not see it. 'Handsome is that handsome does,' and for my part I fail to understand why a young woman, if she is a widow, should be running around the country getting up concerts and theatrical performances, fleecing people out of their money and making herself generally ridiculous, if she has a mother and a home to stay in. Why doesn't she settle down and take in sewing, or teach school, like a respectable person, instead of flitting about from place to place making herself a laughing stock and a nuisance generally?" and Miss Mercy's black eyes snapped indignantly as she stroked down her soft, dark hair with her plump little hands, and settled herself in her chair with a decisive movement, as though to put an end, at once and forever, to the discussion.

Miss Mercy Proctor, though naturally the cheeriest and brightest of women, and one not addicted to making ill-natured or unchristian-like speeches, had been so unusually tried during the past few months that her sweet temper had become sadly ruffled, and she only needed the match applied in the shape of praise of her rival to make her break out into a sudden flame of bitterness and censure; for Miss Mercy loved John Lockwood, and had loved him for years, and on his return from the West he had treated her with such gentleness and apparent devotion that her tender heart had fluttered with expectation, and she almost felt sure she was loved in return. But then the widow, the brilliant Mrs. Hazleton, had appeared upon the scene, drawing him from his allegiance to her and diverting his attentions until she grew weary and heartsick, and almost despaired of ever winning him back. No wonder the little woman failed to discover beauty in the gay and dashing widow, for who ever knew a fellow-creature to appear to advantage in the eyes of an opponent.

Still, there was a good deal to be said after all on the other side, for Mrs. Hazleton, though indisputably gay, was far from being frivolous, while her beauty, in spite of Miss Mercy's opinion, was certainly of a high order. Married at the age of eighteen and widowed at twenty she was now, at the age of twenty-four, a still young and charming woman, "who could no more "settle down," as Miss Mercy expressed it, than the coursing mountain stream could quiet itself and become a stagnant pool. Fair and winsome, she made friends wherever she went, supporting herself by giving music and dancing lessons, with occasionally a concert or an amateur dramatic performance thrown in—for her talents were as varied as the play of her features, which were merry or sad, pathetic or demure, as the case might be. So it will be seen that Miss Mercy's summing up was hardly just, or on the whole thoroughly reliable.

And John Lockwood? John was a handsome, careless fellow, not worth half the laurels with which he was usually crowned. Some ten years before he had left his native village and gone West to seek his fortune—had been fairly successful, not so much from energy or application to business as from sheer good luck, which some how or other always seemed to follow him, like a bird of richest plumage perching on his shoulder and flapping its golden pinions in his face—even shedding its glittering moultings at his very feet. But six months ago he had returned from his journeyings, returned to find everything changed. "Everything but Miss Mercy," as he remarked, half fondly, to that patient little woman, his sweetheart of former days, and she had blushed and smiled down into her heart, thinking to herself that that at least was unchanged.

John had come back to get him a wife, he laughingly announced on his arrival, and many a maid had smiled up into his eyes, and many a heart had quickened at his advance, for John was thoughtless and distributed his attentions with remarkable evenness until the advent of the widow. But now all was changed, and Mrs. Hazleton, with her blue eyes, golden hair and infantile ways, had apparently taken possession of him; and Miss Mercy sighed and anxious mammas grew wrathful and acrimonious at the "designing adventuress," as they now secretly styled her, and wondered what in the world there was so attractive about widows that young men were ever ready and willing to fall into their toils. It had been an unusually lively fall, for Mrs. Hazleton's dancing school had been well patronized by both old and young, and the Tuesday and Thursday night "sociables" as she termed the throwing open of her doors to the general public on those two evenings each week, between the hours of nine and eleven, had insured the success and popularity of her school—for the public is always fond of dancing if some one else will only pay the fiddler.

Miss Mercy was a regular attendant, not so much because she was fond of dancing as because John was sure to be there, and he was invariably attentive and kind. Not more so to her than to the sprightly little instructress, who laughed and chatted gaily, and seemed to take his attentions quite as a matter of course. But sometimes he would invite Miss Mercy to dance, and then request her to sit in some quiet corner instead and talk to him, and the blushes would mount to her cheeks and her heart would throb with delight, which would suddenly deepen to pain when he would leave her afterward and walk off with the widow hanging fondly on his arm.

"Ah John, capricious John! Do you not know there is cruelty in such kindness?"

Thanksgiving Day was approaching, and it was generally understood that the young man was to start for his Western home the day following. The little village was in a constant state of half-subdued excitement, for Mr. and Mrs. Turner, old friends of John's father, were to have a large party on that night in order to give the young fellow a good send-off, and no end of conjectures arose as to whether it might not be a wedding after all. As far as observations went the matrimonial outlook remained about at a stand-still. Nobody was prepared to say that a trousseau was actually in course of preparation, although it was hinted that Mrs. Hazleton was having a lovely new dress made, purchased with the proceeds of her last quarters salary. "Of course it was unquestionably extravagant if such really was the case, still if she succeeded in catching a husband by that means it might be that the money was well spent." But then nobody knew much about it after all, as the lady in question was visiting a friend in the country, where it was decidedly unhandy to get at her, and John was about town as easy and off-hand as ever. It was understood he was to bring the widow to the party, however, and the older women thought ruefully of the long five-mile drive. What a chance for him to propose to her on the way, even if he hadn't done so already.

The long-looked for night at length arrived, and at an early hour the great old house was ablaze with light from garret to cellar, while the merry tinkle of sleigh-bells without announced the arrival of the first of the guests, for in good old-fashioned towns, and with good old-fashioned country people, parties assemble as soon after supper, or early candle-light, as convenient. Miss Mercy, an especial friend and favorite of the hostess, came in time to assist in the arrangements of the table, making herself useful in such a variety of ways, but in so quiet and unobstrusive a manner, that Mrs. Turner, who, at this crisis was in a highly nervous and distraught state, declared she could "never have got along without her—never." The little woman looked unusually pretty in her black silk dress, with a bunch of straw-colored chrysanthemums at her throat and another in her glossy black hair. She always wore her hair brushed smoothly behind the ears and fastened in a coil at the back of her shapely head. And how really becoming the chrysanthemums were—such a mellow, golden tinge—who would have imagined Miss Mercy would have known so well the color that suited her best!"

Mrs. Hazleton and John were the last to arrive, the latter flushed and radiant from the long drive in the frosty evening air, and looked like an old-fashioned picture just stepped out of its frame, in her pale blue silk dress cut square in the neck, her fair hair done high on the top of her head in a mass of bewildering curls, and her plump white arms but partially concealed by a fall of filmy lace.

John was in high spirits, escorting her out to supper, and afterward returning to the parlor for Miss Mercy. He finished the evening with old Mrs. Turner, sitting by her side and waiting upon her with ready good humor, but declining positively all further offers of refreshment. "Would you have a fellow kill himself outright?" he deprecatingly interposed, when she insisted upon his having "just one more cup of coffee." After supper "the mirth and fun grew fast and furious," and John became the target for many a lively sally.

"Why don't you get married, John, my boy?" asked jolly Captain McAllister, giving him a sly poke in the ribs; "I thought you'd come home for a wife."

"That is exactly what I should like to know, Captain," echoed a lady standing near. "I have come to the conclusion Mr. Lockwood is an unmitigated swindle. He made us believe we should dance at his wedding, but has never given us a chance."

"What's the matter, John? won't the party or parties, whichever it is (for on my soul I can't make out), have you—or are you in a strait betwixt the two? Can't you make up your mind which one you want?"

The young man laughed good-naturedly as he replied:

"I expect you've hit the nail on the head this time, Captain. I fear I am somewhat in the position of the party who originated the lines beginning:

> "How happy could I be with either,
> Were t'other dear charmer away—"

The Captain roared vociferously:

"Bless my heart, is that the case? And so you can't decide! Why, hang it, man, if I were you I think I'd find a way out of it, even if I had to draw cuts."

"The very thing," exclaimed a chorus of voices. "Draw cuts, John—do draw cuts, it will be such fun, and see which it shall be—the old love or the new."

The young man raised his eyes with imperturbable coolness as he replied in his usually careless tone:

"If the ladies have no objections I'm sure I have none."

"And will you abide by the decision and really marry whichever falls to your lot?"

"Unquestionably, if she will have me."

The two ladies were sought for and found; one in the library, the other in the dancing-room.

"Oh, Mrs. Hazleton, Miss Mercy," the young ladies exclaimed as they led them back to the room where a little crowd had collected, "Mr. Lockwood is going to draw cuts for a wife, and the choice lies between you two. Oh, won't it be fun?"

"Fun for the one who gets him," said the widow, laughing lightly. While Miss Mercy exclaimed, impetuously: "Draw cuts—John Lockwood draw cuts for a wife—how dare he do it?"

"I think it would be pretty, perhaps, to have the ladies draw," said Capt. McAllister, searching in his pocket-book for a slip of paper to cut into strips, "then they couldn't accuse Mr. Lockwood of unfairness or partiality. What do you say, John, have you any objections?"

"Not the least in the world," said the young man, unconcernedly—"any way to suit yourselves."

The slips were cut and the Captain arranged them in his hand. One long one marked "prize," and the others short and blanks. "Now ladies," said the Captain, "are you ready?"

Miss Mercy had a severe struggle with her heart before she could bring herself to consent. Mrs. Hazleton had not thought of refusing, and why should she hold back? Must she resign John now, at once and forever, or should she make one last effort to retain him? Her cheeks burned with excitement, and her hand trembled so she could scarcely put it out.

"Ready," said the Captain once again, smiling benignly at the two ladies as their hands were simultaneously extended.

The crowd held their breath while the choice was being made, then—"Miss Mercy has got it! Miss Mercy has got it!" was shouted on all sides.

Mrs. Hazleton turned away with heightened color, "What nonsense," she exclaimed, leading the way from the room. "Surely Mr. Lockwood will not be expected to abide by the terms of such an adventure."

Miss Mercy sank in a chair near by, unable to stand and hardly daring to raise her eyes. Had she, indeed, won him, and was it really true? or was it only an idle jest and a cruel one at that? Her heart beat wildly, and she took no notice that the party was breaking up, and the people were going home.

When she arose she found herself alone in the parlor and John with a quiet smile on his handsome face was advancing toward her. She tried to pass him without looking at him, but he stopped her, and taking her burning face between his hands raised it slowly till her eyes met his. For a moment he studied the quivering face, then whispered softly, in a low calm voice: "Be ready to-morrow dear, at ten o'clock—" and the next instant he was gone—gone to tuck the widow snugly in the sleigh preparatory to their homeward drive.

Little Miss Mercy passed the night in a state of feverish excitement, weeping and laughing hysterically at intervals. "Was John really in earnest in what he said, or was it but a continuation of an idle jest?" He had called her "dear," and his whisper was fond, nay almost tender. "Did he mean it seriously, and could it be that he loved her? or was he bent on making a martyr of himself to a mistaken sense of honor?" If such was the case she would "never marry him—no, never," even though her heart-string snapped in giving him up at last.

When morning broke she was already up putting her house in order and packing her trunk in case anything should happen.

She dressed herself with care in a soft, dark cashmere dress that might answer for a traveling dress, and after gathering a fresh cluster of her favorite chrysanthemums seated herself in the shadow of the curtained window to watch the passers-by. She wouldn't be silly enough to dress up in flowers in the morning unless— But then one never knows what may happen.

It lacked a quarter to ten o'clock when the jingling of sleighbells arrested her attention, and leaning forward she caught a glimpse of a lively procession approaching the house, headed by John and the clergyman, the Rev. Lemuel Sykes. Her heart leaped to her throat and she wanted to run away, but just then the voice of Mrs. Turner was heard exclaiming: "We've come to the wedding—but where is the bride?"

Her friend found her but she refused to appear; so John himself came for her.

"Not wanting to back out at this late hour," he cried extending his arms and drawing her to him, "Ah, little, woman, I should be heart-broken indeed."

She looked into his face incredulously.

"But, do you love me, John?" she whispered.

"Always and forever, darling."

"Why then did you hazard your chance of happiness so recklessly?" she asked. "It might have gone the other way."

"It might, indeed," said the young man, penitently, in which case I fear I should have been constrained to cry "God help me for my folly!"

"And so it came about that the wedding really did come off, and John really made his word good by carrying back to his Western home his old sweetheart and new wife. It was hinted that there was a lively scene between him and the widow the night of the party; but as the former never mentioned it, and the latter was not a woman to wear her heart on her sleeve, the facts were never fully known. However it was, she consoled herself shortly afterward by marrying a young physician, and it is to be hoped that under his skillful hand the wound was thoroughly and effectually healed.

What Is a Playa?

These areas are known locally as mud-flats, salt-marshes, borax-flats, alkali-flats, deserts, sinks, etc., the name usually indicating some peculiar feature of the valley to which it is applied. As these desert regions have an almost identical history, the Spanish word playa—meaning shore or strand—has been adopted by geologists as a generic term under which the various desiccated lake basins may be grouped. Valleys more absolutely desolate than the playas of the Great Basin can not be found, even in the midst of Sahara. They occur as mud-plains, occupying the lowest portion of arid valleys, and form a horizontal, even floor that is soft and perhaps covered by a shallow lake during the winter, but in the summer and fall becomes hard and dry, and crossed by innumerable shrinkage-cracks that give the whole broad surface the appearance of a tessellated pavement of cream-colored marble. At other times, after the water has evaporated, the salts contained in the mud of the playa are brought to the surface in solution by the action of capillary attraction, and a saline incrustation is formed on the surface of the desert when the water that held the salts in solution evaporates. In such instances the surface appears as white and dazzling as if covered with drifting snow. A journey across such a plain during the heat of summer, when the mirage renders even the most familiar land-marks uncertain, becomes the most weary and trying that the explorer is called upon to make.—I. C. Russell, in Popular Science Monthly.

—Colonel George L. Godfrey, of Iowa, a member of the Utah Commission, expresses an opinion that the Edmunds law will eventually suppress polygamy in the Territory. The younger men among the Mormons, he states, are not inclined to become polygamists. The Mormon Church, he believes, is in danger of dissolution.

—The undertaker can stand no trifling. He wants everything dead in earnest.

—A cash boy in one of the largest dry goods stores in Chicago was suspected of having stolen a ten dollar bill, but vigorously denied the charge. The money was nowhere to be found, but as the boy was the only instrumentality by which it could disappear, he was detained in custody in the office until he should confess. He was obstinate for a long time, but finally burst into tears and acknowledged that he had taken the bill. "What have you done with it?" asked the head of the house. "Please, sir, I chawed it," answered the boy. And sure enough the little fellow, fearing detection, as soon as he was suspected had chewed the bill and swallowed it.—Chicago News.

—Near Salzburg, Austria, a mine has been found which seems to have been abandoned at least 2,000 years ago in consequence of an inundation. Bodies of the ancient salt miners have been discovered among the debris tolerably well preserved. Among the implements were wooden shovels, a basket made of untanned raw hide, a piece of cloth of coarse wool, and the remains of a torch bound together with flax fibres. The disaster which flooded the mine had evidently been sudden.

—J. H. Plummer, of Brattleborough, Pa., has a rose bush ninety years old, from which more than two bushels of buds had been plucked last season.

A High Opinion.

Captain John J. Dawson, late of the British Army, residing on Love street, between Mandeville and Spain, this city, says he used St. Jacobs Oil with the greatest possible advantage when afflicted with rheumatism.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHEN the plasterer is at work upon a ceiling it may be said that he understands his business.

To Consumptives.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is a concentrated, potent alterative, or blood-cleansing remedy, that wins golden opinions from all who use it for any humor, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the formidable scrofulous swelling, or ulcer. Internal fever, soreness and ulceration, yield to its benign influences. Consumption, which is but a scrofulous affection of the lungs, may, in its early stages, be cured by a free use of this God-given remedy. See article on consumption and its treatment in Part III. of the World's Dispensary Dime Series of pamphlets, costs two stamps, post-paid. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N.Y.

GIVE the miser a knowledge of mathematics and he will cipher more.—N. O. Picayune.

A Lady Wants to Know the latest Parisian style of dress and bonnet; a new way to arrange the hair. Millions are expended for artificial appliances which only make conspicuous the fact that emaciation, nervous debility, and female weakness exist. Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is sold under a positive guarantee. If used as directed, art can be dispensed with. It will overcome those diseases peculiar to females. By druggists.

HATTERS are the people oftenest caught napping.

What's Saved is Gained.

Workingmen will economize by employing Dr. Pierce's Medicine. His "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" and "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanse the blood and system, thus preventing fevers and other serious diseases, and curing all scrofulous and other humors. Sold by druggists.

THE New York Commercial thinks there is no excuse for snoring in church when twelve clothespins can be bought for one cent.

"Buchu-Paiba."

Quick, complete cure, all annoying Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases. $1. Druggists

For thick heads, heavy stomachs, bilious ness—Wells' May Apple Pills. 10 and 25c.

SPECKLED MOON, a Pawnee Indian Chief, has seventeen wives. They ought to be able to keep his wigwarm.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Cures coughs, bronchitis and consumption. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

SPEAKING of rare coins, a twenty-dollar gold piece is rare enough with most men.

FOR THROAT DISEASES, COUGHS AND COLDS use "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

A THEATRICAL company is like a kite. To have it go up quickly sticks are necessary.

LYON'S Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes straight. By shoe and hardware dealers.

WHEN a man says "cold as blazes," he means hot as ice. Take him as he means.

THE Frazer Axle Grease is better and cheaper than any other, at double the price. Ask your dealer for it, and take no other.

"Like master, like man," may be all very well; but suppose you don't happen to like either—what then?—Our Continent.

MENSMAN'S peptonized beef tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Caswell, Hazard & Co., proprietors, New York. Sold by druggists.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old), who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

"Boss," said a darkey to a florist, "speakin' ob prices, would you say a flower am riz or has gone up?" "Well, speaking of buds," replied the dealer, pointing to a beautiful Marechal Niel, "I would say that flower is rose." The darkey blossomed out with the blind staggers.

A PHYSICIAN says an obstinate sick headache can be cured by wearing a pair of spectacles. We can't see through the remedy.

WE hope we shall not be accused of exaggeration when we say we have received 1883 calendars.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

A MAN saw advertised "a sure cure for drunkenness." He forwarded the necessary dollar, and received by return mail, written on a valuable postal card, in beautiful script, the magic words: "Don't Drink."—N. Y. Mail.

IN some cities the policemen give an alarm by rapping on the pavement. When he isn't walking his beat he is beating his walk.—Boston Transcript.

WHAT is the difference between a seal-skin hat and a vivid imagination? Why, one is a fancy fur tile, and the other is a fertile fancy.

THE Supreme Court of Indiana holds that while sleeping-car companies are not liable, either as inn-keepers or common carriers, for personal goods stolen from the occupants of a sleeping-car berth, yet a company is responsible to an occupant for the loss of personal goods resulting from the company's negligence; that the company, in accepting the price of the passenger's berth, impliedly agrees to keep watch over him while asleep, and take reasonable care to prevent the theft of his goods and money from his person, either by unauthorized intruders or by occupants of the car.

THEY have got to making rat-traps, nowadays, with looking-glasses in them. We suppose the rats run in to see how their new furs look.

THE lady trapezists are green with jealousy over a newspaper paragraph that tells of a bride who "walked on her father's arm."

FENDERSON doesn't see why an artist should be paid a high price for his paintings. His work is easily done, Fenderson says.—Boston Post.

CAUSE FOR APPREHENSION.

Why Mysterious Physical Troubles Arouse Special Dread—A Professional Experience.

Few things give more pain than dread or apprehension. Most people are able to face apparent danger heroically, but the sudden and unexpected coming of some indefinite calamity very naturally strikes terror to even the bravest. For this reason lightning and tornadoes are considered terrible; their coming and going are so sudden, unannounced and unknown. For this same reason an unknown disease, some poison in the blood, some malady that is gradually undermining the life, is specially dreaded by all thinking people. And, indeed, there are good reasons for such dread, for modern science has discovered that some virulent disorders show the least signs in their beginnings, while they have the worst possible symptoms. We know of many persons who have dull and uncertain pains in various portions of the body: whoare unnaturally tired one day and apparently well the next; who have an enormous appetite at times and a loathing of food soon thereafter. Such persons are really in a dangerous condition, even though they may not realize it. The following statement of a most prominent physician, who has had unusual opportunities for investigation, is of so striking and important a nature that it will be read with interest by all:

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES OF CINCINNATI.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

Joseph Aub, M. D.	Julius Reis.
Julius Balke, Jr.	H. A. Smith, M. D.
Mrs. M. F. Force.	H. Miller.
Mrs. George Hunert.	Rev. Chas. W. Wendte
Fred'k Lunkenheimer.	Daniel Wolf.

J. B. Wilson.

OFFICE: No. 27¼ WEST EIGHTH STREET,
O. ANDERSON, M. D., SUPERINTENDENT.
CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 2, 1882.

Messrs. Editors:

I have, during my professional career of many years' practice, treated a large number of various disorders, of which, perhaps, none have given me more trouble than the mysterious disease known as acute nephritis; and while it may seem strange, it is, nevertheless, true, that the physician is generally greatly annoyed by this mysterious trouble, especially when the case is of hereditary origin. It is, doubtless, the first stage of the well-known, but terrible Bright's disease, as the kidneys contain large quantities of albumen; and while children and young people are especially liable to its attacks, it is prevalent with all classes, and usually continues until late in life.

One obstinate case which came under my observation, was that of a fireman of this city who applied to me for treatment. The case was diagnosed parenchymatous nephritis. The man was twenty-four years of age; plethoric and light complected. He stated that he had suffered from urinary troubles from childhood, and that he had "doctored" a hundred times, each time improving some; after which, in a short while, he would relapse into his former state of misery. I prescribed the usual therapeutics known to the profession with the same result that my colleagues had obtained. He got better for a while and then worse again; in fact, so bad that he had to lay off for some time. He suffered intense pain; so much so that I confess I had to resort to hypodermic injections of morphia. My druggist, who knew how disgusted I was with the case, although not willing to desert the man, advised me to try a remedy from which he (the druggist) himself had derived great benefit. As a drowning man catches at a straw, I prescribed this remedy, not letting my patient, however, know what I was giving him; and, although not a believer in nor a patron of "patent medicines," I must confess that after my fireman had taken one bottle he grew much better. I made him continue its use for a period of two months, with the most gratifying results; it really worked wonders, and he owes his cure and present perfect health solely to the remarkable power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy which I prescribed, and he used.

Since the recovery of the man above mentioned, I have given considerable thought to the subject of acute nephritis, or kidney difficulty, and I find that its manifestations are most remarkable. It often appears without any special symptoms of its own, or possibly as a sequel to other disease. It may be a sequel to scarlatina, diphtheria, and other illnesses, and even arise from pregnancy. The first symptoms frequently show themselves in the form of high, fierce and intense pains in the lumbar region, "the small of the back," troublesome micturitions and frequent changes in the color of the urine which at times diminishes perceptibly. If the urine is entirely suppressed, the case, probably, will terminate fatally in a very few days. Dropsy is a consequence of the suppression of urine, and the severeness of it is governed by the proportion of retention. The nervous system becomes prostrated with subsequent convulsions and irregular circulation of the blood, which, in my estimation, eventually might cause a diseased heart to give out. As I have remarked, in many kidney diseases—yes, even in Bright's disease itself—there is no perceptible pain in the back, and these troubles often assert themselves in various symptoms—for instance, in troublesome diarrhoea, blood poison, impaired eyesight, nausea, loss of appetite, disordered digestion, loss of consciousness, husky voice and many other complaints too numerous to mention. Indeed, thousands of people are suffering from the first stages of Bright's disease to-day, and they do not know it.

In conclusion, I would like to state that I have, since my success with the fireman, repeatedly prescribed Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and if my professional brethren could only be brought so far as to overcome their prejudice against proprietary medicines they would undoubtedly find themselves recompensed for their supposed sacrifice of liberty, as well as by the great benefits that would accrue to the world. Most sincerely,

O. ANDERSON, M. D.,
Superintendent.

IF a weak young man finds that chess playing hurts him, he should buy a chess protector.—N. O. Picayune.

WHEN the Peak family of Swiss bell ringers were in Scranton, Pa., last, the chief violinist, Mr. J. F. Spalding, was suffering from consumption. He had used, to no purpose, about all the so-called specifics obtainable. Mishler's Herb Bitters saved his life. He sent an open letter to its proprietor to that effect. "I enjoy a new lease of life. I thought I must go with consumption, and so did my friends. I am now, however, a well man. Mishler's Herb Bitters cured me,"—these are a few of the cheering sentences in Mr. Spalding's letter. This matchless compound is a certain cure for most diseases ordinarily called incurable.

MORE especially is the theatrical manager known by the company he keeps.

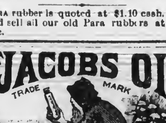
Cure that Cold.

Do not suffer your Lungs to become diseased by allowing a cold to continue without an effort to cure it. Thousands have died premature deaths, the victims of Consumption, by simply neglecting a cold.

DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS will cure Colds, Coughs and Consumption surer and quicker than any other remedy. It acts almost like magic in many cases, and in others, its effect, though slow, is sure if persisted in, according to directions.

PARA rubber is quoted at $1.10 cash. We would sell all our old Para rubbers at that figure.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK

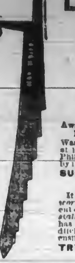


THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

25 PISO'S CURE FOR 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR
[illegible] Price per Package with directions sealed and postpaid 25 cents, 3 for 50 cts. stamps or silver. L. A. L. SMITH & CO. Sole Agts. Palatine, Ill.

GREAT SAVING FOR FARMERS!
—THE—
Lightning
Hay Knife!
(WATMOUTH'S PATENT.)



Awarded "First Order of Merit" at Melbourne Exhibition, 1880.
Was awarded the first premium at the International Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, and accepted by the Judges as SUPERIOR TO ANY OTHER KNIFE IN USE.
It is the BEST KNIFE in the world to cut fine feed from bale, to cut down mow or stack, to cut cornstalks for feed, or to cut peat, and has no equal for cutting sods or ditching in marshes, and for cutting ensilage from the silo has no equal.
TRY IT. IT WILL PAY YOU.
Manufactured only by
HIRAM HOLT & CO., East Wilton, Me., U. S. A.
For sale by Hardware Merchants and the trade generally.

MISHLER'S
HERB
BITTERS
ABSOLUTELY PURIFIES THE BLOOD, Equalizes its Circulation, Regulates its Supply, Improves its Quality, therefore Furnishes Vital Energy.
. . . . CONQUERS DISEASE, ...
PERFECTS DIGESTION, Improves the Appetite, Cleanses the Liver and Kidneys; Acts as a mild stomachic and Imparts Vitality and Elasticity to every Organ of the Body. Formula in use 200 years.
. . . . IT HAS NO PEER. . . . .
MALARIA GIVES UP THE GHOST upon use while the system is brought to a state of perfect health and vigor. Get it at once. $1. per Bottle.
Mishler's Green Label Bitters, a Specific for Scrofula, Old Sores, Syphilis, &c., while Mishler's Red Label Bitters are prepared expressly for Diseases peculiar to Females. $1.50 per Bottle.
All sold by Druggists.
Send for book
"Messenger of Health."
MISHLER
HERB BITTERS CO.,
Lancaster, Pa.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup works like a Charm.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS
Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives steadiness to the nerves, induces a healthy, natural flow of bile, prevents constipation without unduly purging the bowels, gently stimulates the circulation, and by promoting a vigorous condition of the physical system, promotes, also, that cheerfulness which is the truest indication of a well-balanced condition of all the animal powers.
For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

WANTED---AGENTS.
To buy and sell the WANLESS DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1,000 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO.,
136 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

CANCER
INSTITUTE.
Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address
DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

THE WASHINGTON (D. C.) WEEKLY STAR. Established 33 Years.
THE STAR is a large, independent eight-page paper of fifty-six columns, cut, pasted and folded. Contains reports of Congress, all Government Departments, U. S. Courts, Washington News and Gossip, Political, Personal, Society and Local Affairs, Correspondence, Sketches, Home Articles, Fashion Notes, Telegraph News (having its own wire to New York), Literary Notes, The Markets, etc. Send for specimen. Try it. Only One Dollar a year. Address
The Weekly Star, Washington, D. C.

ASTHMA CURED by using Moore's CURE. Send 25c. in stamps for sample package by return mail to Moore & Harris Vincennes, Ind. Large Size, $1.

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS or any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, WASHINGTON, D. C.

GOOD COFFEE How to Make It AT HALF COST. Agents' Profits $5 to $10 per day at home. Address SHEPARD BROS., Cincinnati, Ohio.

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

DAKOTA 80,000 acres of choice land, near Hope, D. T., for sale by E. H. STEELE, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. Send for maps and prices.

$47 A MONTH and board in your county. Men or Ladies. Pleasant business. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Box 94, Chicago, Ill.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS. Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and ASTONISH you.

YOUNG MEN If you want to learn Telegraphy in a few months, and be certain of a situation, address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me

TWO Photos of Female Beauties, 10c. Illustrated Catalogue 3 cts. J. DIETZ, READING, PA.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

MERCHANT'S
ESTD—1833
GARGLING OIL
A
LINIMENT
MANUFACTURED BY MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL CO.
JOHN HODGE, SEC'Y.— LOCKPORT, N. Y. U. S. A.
For Internal and External Use.
CURES RHEUMATISM,
Burns, Scalds, Chilblains,
Frost Bites, Chapped Hands,
Flesh Wounds, Sprains, Bruises,
External Poisons, Caked Breasts,
Sore Nipples, Toothache,
Cramps or Spasms of Stomach,
Colic, Asthma, or Internal Pain,
Lame Back, Bites of Animals,
Galls of all kinds, Sitfast,
Ringbones, Cracked Teats,
Poll Evil, Garget in Cows, Spavins,
Sweeny, Scratches or Grease,
Foot Rot in Sheep, Stringhalt,
Windgalls, Roup in Poultry,
Foundered Feet, Fistula,
Cracked Heels, Mange in Dogs.
Ask your nearest Dealer or Druggist for one of our Almanacs for 1883.
From the Christian Leader N. Y., Oct. 28, '71.
MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—We have made special personal inquiry in regard to the merits of this celebrated remedy, and find it a genuine article of rare value. It is by no means a new remedy. The establishment which produces it dates its manufacture as far back as 1833, since which time it has been steadily growing in public favor. The patentees are among the foremost business men of the city of Lockport. They are every way reliable.
From the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, July 6, 1871.
MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—This Old standard article, under the admirable management of John Hodge, Esq., has reached an enormous sale. It is an honestly compounded article; it has merit, and now that the best business talent of the country is handling it, there is no reason why it should not double its present usefulness. No family can afford to be without it. For family use, as well as for animals, it is simply indispensable.
SPECIAL NOTICE.
All we ask is a fair trial, but be sure and follow directions.
The Gargling Oil and Merchant's Worm Tablets are for sale by all druggists and dealers in general merchandise throughout the world.
Large Size $1.00; Medium 50 c.; Small 25 c.; Small Size for family use 25 c.
Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company.
John Hodge
Secretary.

A SAMPLE
FREE TO ALL!

We offer an absolute free gift of an elegant Silver-plated Sugar Spoon, triple plated solid, honest, durable goods, to any one who will send us 25 cents for a three months trial subscription to the Philadelphia weekly TRIBUNE & FARMER. Regular price $1 per year. We give this Sugar Spoon away to every three months trial subscriber, as a sample of other premiums, Tea Spoons, Forks, &c. of same design and quality. These goods are manufactured of the Finest Cast Steel and plated with Pure Nickle and Silver. All the objectionable qualities of German Silver Brass, which are known to have a disagreeable taste, and are, when a little worn, poisonous, will be avoided in the use of these Goods. They are also stronger and of greater durability than any goods produced. The TRIBUNE & FARMER is a well known, old established and reliable weekly newspaper (not a monthly), containing special features in its Agricultural Department, under the charge of Prof. Meehan. The Ladies Department has a national reputation. Fashion notes, cooking receipts, management and care of children. Fancy work. Stories all complete, none sensational or continued. Detective Sketches, exposes sharpers and humbugs. Mose Skinner's humorous letters. Personal Gossip and Biographical Sketches every week. Address
TRIBUNE & FARMER, Phila., Pa.

1883.
NEW MUSIC BOOKS!
Minstrel Songs. Old and New, is a collection of those songs which are the people's favorites. Words often arrant nonsense, but the melodies some of the sweetest and best in the world. The Success of the Season, and is selling rapidly. A fine, large volume, pages full sheet music size.
94 Songs, including "Old Folks at Home," and all of Foster's best, "Old Uncle Ned," "Rosa Lee," "Kentucky Home;" also "Lilly Dale," "Twinkling Stars," and, in fact, a large part of the popular favorites of the last thirty years. $2, boards; $2.50, cloth.
VERY EASY INSTRUCTION BOOKS, with very entertaining airs for practice, are Winner's
IDEAL METHODS

For Violin, For Piano, For Cornet, For Flageolet, For Fife, For Flute,	Price of each 75 cts.	For Guitar, For Cabinet Organ, For Accordeon, For Clarinet, For Banjo.

Simple instructions, and nearly 100 tunes in each.
GOUNOD'S REDEMPTION, $1.
Only edition with Gounod's orchestration.
BALFE'S BOHEMIAN GIRL, $1.
Only copy with Libretto and Business.
MUSICAL FAVORITE. (Just out.) New Book of Bound Music. Fine selection of Piano Pieces. $2, Plain; $2.50, Cloth; $3, Gilt.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 843 Broadway, N.Y.

FREE HOMES FOR SETTLERS.—Through THE EXCHANGE REGISTER you will receive full information concerning Free Homes by Settlement, Preemptions, Mining, Soldiers' Additional Homestead Rights, and through this medium can buy, sell or exchange your lands, city property and merchandise for various kinds of property elsewhere. Subscribers' propert advertised free. In letters requiring answer enclose stamp. Price for one year, $1.00. Address W. M. MAHIN, Publisher, Lock Box 139, Wichita, Kas.

A KEY THAT WILL WIND ANY WATCH AND NOT WEAR OUT.
SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. BIRCH & CO., 38 Dey St., N.Y.

TURKEY FEATHERS.
Save them; we will pay a good price (cash) for them.
DEARBORN DUSTER CO., 46 So. Canal St., Chicago.

HIGHEST HONORS AT EVERY GREAT WORLD'S EXHIBITION FOR 16 YEARS.

MASON AND HAMLIN ORGANS.
100 STYLES, $22, $30, $57, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114, $500, AND UP
MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN & PIANO CO.,
BOSTON, 154 TREMONT ST, NEW YORK, 46 E. 14 STREET, CHICAGO, 149 WABASH AVE

USE NONE BUT THE BEST
THE [illegible] CAUSTIC [illegible]
SOAP MAKER
SAPONIFIER
THE ORIGINAL CONCENTRATED LYE
SOLD BY ALL GROCERS
PENNSYLVANIA SALT MFG. CO. PHILA.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R.
LANDS
Full particulars FREE.
Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS.
IN WISCONSIN.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING Co., Philad'a, Pa.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free, Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

30,000 COPIES SOLD
first six months of TREASURY OF SONG. The most popular musical work ever issued. Sells rapidly, has no competition in the subscription trade, consequently the best book for agents to sell. Every one who sings, or loves music wants it. Contains 300 select songs—comic, sentimental and religious in grand variety—printed in sheet music style, handsomely bound, at low price of $2.50 per copy. No knowledge of music necessary to sell it. Agents wanted in every city, town and county in the U. S. For terms to agents address,
HUBBARD BROS., 51 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

THRESHERS The Best is the cheapest. Illustrated price list free. THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

A. N. K.—E. 910 4—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Boone County Recorder.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 31, 1883. NUMBER 14.

THE PLUMBERS' CONVENTION.

The plumbers have met in a congress,
In their rich robes of purple and gold,
The aggregate wealth of these craftsmen
Is reckoned in millions untold.

And an affluent plumber addressed them,
The chamber was solemnly still,
When he asked why their guild should not always
Be paid for concocting a bill.

He declared that his bills were so lengthy
That his outlay for paper was great,
That his clerk was kept busy till midnight
Inventing new bids on a slate.

That the making up of fresh items
Was too much for a head made of wood;
That the public should pay for trained brain work,
And the meeting resolved that it should.

And now, as the cold of the winter
Makes breaks for the pipe mender's skill,
All burghers must look for this item:
"Five dollars for work on the bill."
—Boston Advertiser.

BLIZZARDS.

"Say, John, are not all these stories about blizzards intended to amuse the small children, and the fellows who sit around beer-groceries?" inquired a correspondent of the Free Press of a resident of the treeless plains of Western Minnesota.

"If you think so, just remain here through the coming winter. No, sir, a blizzard is a little the liveliest circus that comes through this country."

"How many entertainments of the kind generally happens along during the winter?"

"Four or five. I never saw anybody who was really anxious to see more than the first one, though. Therein they differ very materially from the ordinary traveling show. They leave a sensation of completeness on the mind that is peculiar to no other exhibition I ever saw. A fellow can get serfeited on blizzards quicker than on anything else in the world."

"Trot out the best ones you have got in your recollection, and tell me about it."

"'Best one!' There is no such thing as a best one. They're all worst. The first one I ever experienced made the deepest impression upon my mind, however, probably for the reason that I then expected never to see another. Since then I have taken especial pains to be at home whenever a blizzard called. A fellow don't care to have one come along and journey with him on the prairie—it is always in such a hurry."

"So you were out in one once?"

"Yes, I was out."

"Now that's the one I want you to tell me about."

"I came out here three years ago last summer, bought a quarter section, sent to St. Paul for a bill of lumber, and worked all summer putting up a house and barn. In the fall I bought three horses and a sulky plow, and commenced turning up the black prairie soil. Before the ground froze I had about thirty acres ready to sow with wheat in the spring. Then I went East to see Mabel, and after the holidays, brought her back with me. By the middle of January we had got the furniture put to rights and were settled down to enjoy married life. A few things were wanted for the house, however, and one bright, sunshiny morning I hitched two of the horses to a bob-sleigh, and Mabel and I drove to the village, due north from my house six miles. A pleasanter morning I never saw. There was snow enough to make excellent sleighing, and the air was warm and balmy. It seemed as if spring was near at had, but a worse delusion never existed.

"The village has but one street, being merely a row of twenty or thirty wooden buildings parallel to, and about ten rods from, the railroad track. They are mainly used for stores, and when we drove up there were three or four bob-sleds or pungs in front of each store. Half the farming community of the township appeared to be in doing shopping. About one o'clock, while we were in a dry-goods store, the merchant, who had stepped out a moment before, said to us: 'I don't like to drive away my customers, but a blizzard is coming from the West, and it is coming fast. The telegraph announces that it has reached Morris. That is forty miles from here, but it is coming at the rate of forty miles per hour, so you have got no time to spare if you are going home to-day.'

"He rolled up our purchases as he spoke, and appeared to be in a hurry to get rid of it. When we got outside the store the first thing that attracted my attention was the fact that of all the teams in the street when we arrived not one excepting mine remained. Everybody had scudded for home. Even then I did not hurry. The sun was still shining brightly, with not the faintest suggestion of a storm apparent anywhere. Before we got a mile from town I had forgotten all about the coming storm, and the horses were jogging at their will.

"We were still two miles from home when suddenly the sun was obscured, and the air grew cold and chill in a moment. A darkness as of smoke swept over everything. Then I remembered why we were going home, and I gave the horses the whip in earnest, lashing them into a run. Away off to the West there appeared to be a leaden wall sweeping toward us. There was a hum in the air. A light breeze sprang up, grew stronger, and in one minute became a gale. The wall came down with railroad speed, the roar of its approach every instant growing louder. From the top of a roll in the prairie we could see our house, and it came pretty near being our last glimpse of it.

"No words will ever convey an intelligent idea of a blizzard; of the frightful roar with which it rolls down upon you; the howling and hissing of the wind. If you try to speak the wind dashes the syllables from your lips so quickly that you do not hear your own words. In thirty seconds from the time the first snow-flake fell, I could not see my horses. The atmosphere appeared to be all snow, and every flake of it was in a hurry to get somewhere before the rest should get there. I use the word 'flake' but that is wrong. No flakes could be distinguished. The whole atmosphere was filled with one big flake that hemmed us in on all sides. Although Mabel's head wasn't over a foot from mine, I could not see her features, and could only dimly see her form. I tried to peer downwards beside the sleigh and see the track, but I might as well have tried to see the earth beneath a snow bank. I could feel a motion to the sleigh, so that I knew the horses were still moving. The cold was intense. I tried to ask my wife if she was suffering, but I could not hear my own words.

"During the two or three minutes that intervened between the time I saw the storm approaching and the moment it struck us the horses had run at the top of their speed, so we were not much over a mile from home. It did not seem possible for the horses to keep the track. No one could live an hour in that storm. The only hope lay in the horses being able to keep to a track that was being buried deeper and deeper every instant. It isn't pleasant to sit still and freeze to death. In ten minutes I was chilled through and I felt that I was freezing. The horses were still moving, and although I could not see them, I lashed them with the whip. It seemed hours since the storm had shut us in, and I was just becoming convinced that the horses had got out of the path and that we were lost on the prairie, when there came a sudden lull of the fierce wind. The air was still full of whirling snow, but I could see objects about me, and it didn't take long for me to ascertain that we were in the barn and were safe. I had left the barn doors open in the morning, and the horses had found their way back; I think by instinct, but my neighbors think it was sheer accident, and declare that it wouldn't happen again in a thousand years.

"Although we had reached the barn, we were not in the house yet. From the barn to the house is about twenty yards, but as far as seeing it was concerned, the house might as well have been in the moon. The little woman helped me unharness the horses and put them into their stalls. Then I told her to remain where she was, and made a break for the house. It is difficult for any one to believe that in a blinding storm he can not go twenty yards in a line sufficiently straight to find a house, but try it some time!

"Do you see that pump? I stumbled over it. It is twenty feet to the right of the path from the barn to the house. If it hadn't a-been for that pump I would never again have found either house or barn. I knew that the handle of that pump pointed directly toward the house, and that it was not over ten yards away. I raised the handle and felt for my bearings. I let go of the pump handle and plunged toward the house. When I tell you that I ran 'smack' against it you will understand that seeing was out of the question. After I got into the house I took a ball of twine, tied one end to the door-knob and succeeded in getting back to the barn, and, by following the string, we reached the house again. For three days and nights thereafter neither of us even opened the outer door. When the storm ceased we could not see the barn, for the snow had piled in between the house and barn so deep that it covered the windows on that side of the house. On the east side of the house, however, there was very little snow. The shovel happened to be in house, and the little woman and I succeeded in tunneling through to the barn, but we had to carry every shovelful of the snow taken out of the tunnel through the house and throw it on the east side."

"Were the horses all right when you got to them?"

"You can safely bet they were glad to see me. They were about half buried in snow, and had even eaten the bedding from their stalls. It took me nearly all the rest of the winter to shovel the snow out of the barn."

"Do people out on the prairies ever get lost in these storms?"

"To be caught out on the prairie by a blizzard means death, and nothing can avert it. After a settler has been here one winter it's a sly old blizzard that catches him. Not so the new-comers. They can not imagine that there is danger at all times. Three people were lost that day in this vicinity, one of them a woman who had been over across the prairie about a mile to see a sick neighbor. When she saw that a storm was imminent she started for home on foot. She never got half way there."

"When was her body found?"

"In the spring when the snow melted."—Hancock (Minn.) Cor. Detroit Free Press.

The Capital of Madagascar.

A resident of Madagascar for seven years recently surprised his London audience in the course of a lecture for the benefit of a hospital at Tananariro, the capital of the island, by describing the civilization of the Malagasy. He found Tananarivo to be a really splendid city, with magnificent public buildings. The house he lodged at was as good as any in London, and there was a Roman Catholic Church which would not disgrace Paris. The Prime Minister, who was curiously enough husband of the Queen and almost the most intelligent, astute and clever man he had ever met, occupied a splendid official residence. The Premier knew precisely how far he could advance in the path of civilization, and where to stop. No outside people could so well control the Malagasy as the present Prime Minister. During the Queen's reign of ten years he had publicly abolished idol worship and embraced Christianity. The nobles of the land as well as the mass of the population were now Christians. The Premier was an educational reformer and had established numerous schools. He had abolished "trial by poison," a superstitious rite which used to decimate the country. It was intended to make the Queen de facto, as well as de jure the monarch of the island, and it was a great pity that any disturbance should come to the existing state of things. Among other beneficent changes which the Prime Minister had wrought was the abolition of the introduction of slaves from Africa. He did this with one stroke of the pen, and in doing it he did away with what might be called the "material wealth" of Madagascar. A man had before been considered richer or poorer in proportion to the number of slaves he owned. A natural anxiety prevailed that a country which had so far advanced in civilization should not go back.

The Phenomena of Death.

A physician of Philadelphia has made the phenomena of death a special study; by careful observation and lengthy consultation with his brother doctors, he has acquired a fund of interesting facts and suppositions regarding the fatal moment which all humanity sooner or later have to experience.

"One of the things of which I am convinced," said the Doctor in conversation recently, "is that death is painless. I mean that the moment of dissolution approaches as unconsciously as sleep—the soul leaves the world as painlessly as it enters it. Whatever be the cause of death, whether by lingering malady or sudden violence, dissolution comes either through syncope or asphyxia. In the latter case, when resulting from disease, the struggle is long, protracted and accompanied by all the visible marks of agony which the imagination associates with the closing scenes of life—the pinched and pallid features, the cold, clammy skin, the upturned eye, and the heavy, laborious rattling respiration. Death does not strike all the organs of the body at the same time; some may be said to survive others, and the lungs are the last to give up the performance of their functions. As death approaches the latter becomes gradually more and more oppressed; the air-cells are loaded with an increased quantity of the fluid which naturally lubricates the surfaces; the atmosphere can then no longer come into contact with the minute blood-vessels spread over the air-cells without first permeating this viscous fluid—hence the rattle. Nor is the contact sufficiently perfect to change the black venous into the red arterial blood; an unprepared fluid consequently issues from the lungs into the heart, and is thence transmitted to every other organ of the body. The brain receives it and its energies appear to be lulled thereby into sleep—generally tranquil sleep—filled with dreams which impel the dying to murmur out the names of friends and the occupations and recollections of past life. The rustic 'babbles of green fields,' and the hero expires amid visions of battle.

"A very large number of deaths are attributed to old age," continued the physician, "yet few, even of the oldest, die merely from exhaustion or gradual decay; some positive disease, in most cases, overwhelms the small remains of vitality. Yet death from actual old age is not impossible and must be the sweetest death of all—a sleep indeed that wakes in eternity. In regard to longevity, it is asserted that the United States is more favorable to long life than any other country. If I can not abide entirely by that opinion, I can at least agree that this country has and can produce ten centenarians to any one of any other land, and I think Washington's body-servants affirm my statement. The average of human life is 33 years. One-quarter die previous to the age of 7 years; one-half before reaching 17; so those who pass their teens enjoy a felicity refused to one-half the human specie. In every 1,000 persons only one reaches beyond the nineties: in every 100 only six reach the age of 65, and not more than one in 500 lives to 80 years. Of the upward of 1,000,000,000 inhabitants of the globe one-third die every year, 91,824 every day, 3,730 every hour and 60 every minute. Married persons live longer than single; tall men longer than short ones, and women have more chances of life in their favor, previous to being 50 years of age than men have, but fewer afterward. Persons who are born in spring generally grow more robust than those who come into the world at other seasons. Deaths are more frequent by night than by day."

"Have the hours most fatal to life ever been ascertained?"

"Yes, to a certain extent. I have the data here of some very interesting conclusions ascertained in 2,880 instances, of death at all ages. The examples are taken from all conditions of life and during a period of several years. If the deaths of the 2,880 had occurred indifferently at any hour during the twenty-four hours, 120 would have occurred at each hour. But this was by no means the case. There are two hours in which the proportion was remarkably below this—two minama, in fact—namely, from midnight to 1 o'clock, when the deaths were 83 per cent. below the average, and from noon to 1 o'clock, when they were 20 3-4 per cent. below. From 3 to 6 o'clock a. m. inclusive, and from 3 to 7 p. m., there is a gradual increase in the former of 23 1-2 per cent. above the average, in the latter of 5 1-2 per cent. The maximum of death is from 5 to 6 o'clock a. m., when it is 40 per cent. above the average; the next, during the hour before midnight, when it is 25 per cent. in excess; a third hour of excess is that from 9 to 10 o'clock in the morning, being 17 1-2 per cent. above. From 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. the deaths are less numerous, being 16 1-2 per cent. below the average, the hour before noon being the most fatal. From 3 o'clock p. m. to 7 p. m. the deaths rise 5 1-2 per cent. above the average, and the fall from that hour to 11 p. m., averaging 6 1-2 per cent. below the mean. During the hours from 9 to 11 o'clock in the evening there is a minimum of 6 1-2 per cent. below the average. Thus the least mortality is during midday hours, namely from 10 to 3 o'clock, the greatest during early morning hours, from 3 to 6 o'clock."

"By the way," remarked the Doctor as his visitor got up to leave. "I said, just now that America could produce more cases of longevity than any other country. I must except the coldest regions of Russia, as I understand there is a level country of about one hundred leagues square, sloping to the south on the borders of Siberia, where a year rarely passes in the course of which some person does not die at the age of 130. I asked a Russian physician whether the report could be depended upon, and he says they are kept by the priest of the Greek church, who, for reasons of faith, are most rigid in regard to the exactitude of age of their dead. In one year, the foreign doctor informed me, 416 persons of 100 years and upward, died in the Russian Empire. The oldest was 135 years, and there were 111 above 110 years old. I regret to own that an American record can be beaten in anything, but in this instance the land of the Czar walks over the course. Many happy new years."—Philadelphia Press.

Religious.

MY FATHER KNOWS!

I can not see His skies above,
For autumn mists obscure the west;
But in the shelter of His love
I fain would hush my heart to rest.
Though some bright hopes have tenderly
Been gathered to their last repose,
This sweet remembrance comforts me—
"He knows!"

For why the summer came and went,
He shows not yet, to me, His child;
But patience, richer than content,
Broods softly where the summer smiled,
And where the last bright leaf shall fall,
The last pale blossom find repose,
Is safe with Him who loveth all—
"He knows!"

Amid the hush of promised things
He hears His children's feeblest prayer;
The tender shadowings of His wings
Extends beyond their utmost care;
And loss that ne'er on earth grows less,
With deep and holy meaning glows;
Since loss, and pain, and homelessness,
"He knows!"

I can not tell if cross or crown
Lies next within His thought for me;
It matters not, since faith hath grown
So strong in His dear sympathy;
The clouds that o'er my pathway move;
The joys beyond its final close,
All rise from His deep heart of love—
"He knows!"

- Golden Rule.

THIS FIRST.

The young, full of hope, look forward to the future, never doubting that they will succeed and that success will bring them happiness. But the experience of the world shows that their hope will not be satisfactorily realized. A successful man is not necessarily a contented man.

Jane Carlyle, the wife of the great writer, said: "I married from ambition. My husband has attained fame and success beyond my highest dreams. And I am most miserable." And her husband was no better.

Talleyrand, one of the most successful diplomatists in history, who managed to keep a foremost place in the French Government in all the many changes of rulers, found little joy in his brilliant public life. Reviewing it in his old age, he bitterly said:

"Eighty-three years gone! What care! What agitation! What ill-will inspired! What vexatious complications! And without any other result than great moral and physical fatigue and a profound sense of despair for the future, and of disgust for the past."

Rothschild, the wealthy London banker, when greeted by a friend on New Year's Day with the usual greeting: "A Happy New Year, Baron!" sadly answered: "It will need then to be different from the last, for that brought me not one happy day."

Mr. Gladstone is the foremost English statesman of our day. Mr. D'Israeli was as eminent in debate and as strong a party leader, but he was seldom true to principle, and never commanded the confidence of the Nation. But Mr. Gladstone has not been contented with success or fame. Through his whole public life he has aimed to please God by doing good to men. He has found joy in an approving conscience and in the consciousness of being useful. In an address to the workingmen of England, after dwelling on the great achievements of the age, its rapid progress in inventions and art, its machines for lightening labor and multiplying home comforts, he said:

"Whatever I may think of the pursuits of industry and science, and of the triumphs and glories of art, I do not mention any one of these things as the great specific for alleviating the sorrows of human life and encountering the evils which deface the world.

"If I am asked what is the remedy for the deeper sorrows of the human heart, what a man should chiefly look to in his progress through life, as the power that is to sustain him under trials, and enable him manfully to confront his afflictions, I must point to something very different: to something which, in a well-known hymn, is called 'the old, old story,' told of an old book, and taught with an old, old teaching, which is the greatest and best gift ever given to mankind."

Our American life is so eager and ambitious that it pays a high price for these successes, "that keep the word of promise to the ear, and break it to our hope."

We all need—especially the young—to heed the practical wisdom of One who, knowing what was in man, said "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

The advice is based on the highest philosophy, for it bids us act upon the fact that the greater includes the less. He who strives to make the most of life by putting himself to the best use will find that he is at peace with himself, with mankind and with God—and that is happiness.—Youth's Companion.

"Now."

A very short word, but how full of significance! Expressing only the briefest period of time, yet it shapes the destiny of men and nations, and leaves impressions behind that even eternity cannot efface.

How we turn our faces toward the dim, uncertain future, and center our brightest hopes in what it may bring to us, while the plain, practical now, which should be filled with our noblest deeds, is silently slipping away and unconsciously shaping that future beyond our control. And how much time we spend in looking backward at the irrevocable "might have been." Instead of so improving to-day that it may glide into the past filled with bright deeds that memory will love to dwell upon.

Neither the past nor the future is ours; and whatever we wish to accomplish must be done in the present. A fragment of the past has been given to us, a fragment of the future may be given to us, but now is the only time we can claim as our own. And here we come to another little word, formed with the same letters, and filled with suggestive thought.

How blind we are to the beauties of the things we call our own. How fair and promising are the things beyond our reach, and which we are striving to obtain. In the mad race after wealth, how many there are who find no enjoyment in the abundance they now possess. Even our own dear friends are seldom fully appreciated until they have passed away and are lost to us on earth.

Again, we have faults of our own that look small. If our neighbor had them they would seem large, and we would wonder at his inconsistency. Have we a desire to seek out these faults and drop them? Now is the time to do it. This is one of the important duties which lie along life's pathway, and every error corrected is a victory won.

Here we use another little word composed of the same letters. How full of meaning when in this form. It refers to the completion of successful labor.

In the hour of conquest the soldier forgets the forced marches, the sleepless nights and the dangers of the battle-field in the triumphant thought that a victory has been won.

And so in every struggle on life's battle-field, this little word will cheer us on as it points to the goal and tells of hopes realized. But the grand victory over all is only achieved when the last page has been written, and life's book has been closed.

As friend after friend fails around us, we look upon the cold silent form, and think of his past life, only to ask: Was it a noble one? Was he victorious in its warfare? Has he won the prize?

And thus, from the present time to the close of life, these three little words have weighty meaning, and furnish food for our best thought.

May we so spend the now, while it is our own, that the pages of life's volume may be well filled with the bright victories which we have won.—Golden Rule.

Go To Work.

One of the best remedies for three-fourths of the ills which flesh is heir to, is good, honest, hard work. Many a sick man is cured by hard work, under the more palatable name of "exercise:" and many others never would have been sick, had they kept about their daily toils as they should. Hard, steady work is the path to recovery from vices and their results. There is little hope of reformation for any man who will not work; there is great encouragement to expect the reformation of any man who may have gone astray, if he is only ready to and willing to work! Hard work tames hot blood, subdues passion, brings appetite under control, steadies the nerves, and calms the temper, and, in a word, helps man to be what God intended that he should be.

The remedy for a large proportion of the financial troubles that surround us lies in the same direction. A great many live at their ease, and hire other people to perform their work for them, until servants have grown rich and their masters have become poor. Now let the idlers go to work themselves, exercise their flabby muscles, put their dyspeptic stomachs in working order, prove the truth of that Scripture which informs them that "the sleep of a laboring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much."

Steady, industrious, hard work, joined with thrift, economy and wise management, liquidates debt, removes mortgages, restores credit, increases self-respect, improves health, and makes a man feel as if he had a right and a place in the Lord's world.

Go to work! If not for yourself, for some one else. If you cannot get pay, work for nothing. Help some one who is in distress. Relieve the sick. Do what your hand findeth to do. You may find that the poorest paying jobs in the end bring the greatest reward. And remember, when you work, there is one Master who is over all, and He rewards the services for which men neglect to pay, and gives His inheritance at last to those who patiently fulfill His will.—The Safeguard.

Meditation.

There is a beautiful pastoral scene called up by the reference to Isaac in the world's younger days, and how he used to go into the fields at eventide to meditate. It has always seemed to us that those who are compelled to live in crowded cities are placed at a great disadvantage in this respect; it must be so much easier for a farmer, for instance, when the day's work is done and the sun is westering in clouds of shadowy crimson, to wander in solitary thought across his lands and commune with his Maker and God. The steady-going days of our fathers, who did not spend all their energies in winning wealth, but could spend an hour any day for the cultivation of their own hearts and the quiet study of the Word of God, those seem to be gone forever, and the loss of such hours is producing a superficial, thoughtless race in their place. But let us fight against this and every other pernicious tendency of the age, and make up our minds that we will not allow the world nor even the church to rob us of our thoughtful moments. We are well aware that some are of a more meditative constitution than others; it is all the more reason that we should urge those who have the least inclination to contemplate that they should regard it as a sacred duty, an obligation they owe to themselves and to God—to think of the past, and recognize where we have failed, and thank the good Lord for whatever we have achieved of right doing; to think of the present with its pressing claims upon us, and ask for Divine help to follow the path of duty; to think of the future with its unknown store of joy and sorrow, all in the hands of God, and in simple faith to leave the next step in His care. Thus quietly thinking more, we shall learn to pray more, and on the silent mountain of meditation gain strength and wisdom for the better doing our part in the great strife of life which is being waged below.—Commonwealth.

A noted Boston counterfeiter was captured in Philadelphia in rather a curious manner. Two thieves stole his valise containing a quantity of bogus coin and counterfeiting tools. In passing some of the money these men were arrested and held as owners of the valise until the Bostonian was heard making inquiries at the police station for his lost property, which he represented as being very valuable. He was taken in.

* * *

—A baby playing with a cocoanut in the second story of a house in Sacramento let it fall from a window and it hit and cracked a man's skull. No one is safe even from children nowadays.—Detroit Free Press.

Our Young Folks.

THE TRUSTFUL SPARROW.

"This crumb is mine," said Sparrow Gray,
"The only one I've had to-day,
And I should be a silly bird
To give you half, or even third.
For see! the ground is white with snow,
And may be weeks for aught I know."

"If 'tis," replied the younger bird,
"I'll tell you what I overheard;
I heard some little children say,
In that great house across the way,
How they should scatter crumbs of bread,
That every bird might be well fed,
Till all the ice and snow were gone;
So cheer up. Pray don't look forlorn;
I'd rather gaze on miles of snow
Than see a bird with looks of woe."

"You simple!" twittered Sparrow Gray,
"That's always just your heedless way.
No matter whether foul or fair,
It's 'chirp, chirp, chirp,' without a care.
And now you think you'll be well fed;
I hope you haven't been misled;
But time will tell. Good-day, good-day."
And greedy Sparrow flew away.

The little bird was left alone—
Poor wee, wee Sparrow, scarce half-grown;
The cold winds soon began to blow;
No shelter offered, high nor low;
But mindful of the promised crumbs,
To the great house at length he comes,
A little shivering, hungry bird.
Then to the window where he heard
The children's voices, straight he flies,
And with his chirping Sparrow-cries
Soon brought them thronging to his side.
Then quick the sash they opened wide,
Strewed thick with crumbs the sheltered sill,
Till wee, wee Sparrow had his fill,
And chirping soft, as if to say:
"I thank you, thank you," flew away.

Dear little children! dear wee bird!
Could we but heed the promised Word
Of One who keeps both great and small,
And notes a single sparrow's fall!
—Elizabeth A. Davis, in Harper's Young People.

A BOY'S LECTURE ON KNIVES.

[Reported for the "Wide Awake," by Mrs. A. M. Diaz.]

The second of the John Spicer Course of Lectures took place yesterday afternoon in Barn Hall, and was listened to with attention, though there was some disorder among the audience as they entered the hall. Superintendent Dick informed the assemblage that Mr. John Spicer was waiting to have a hole in his trousers leg sewed up, and would be in presently. At this moment Mr. John Spicer appeared and was greeted by the audience with that prolonged clapping sometimes called applause. Mr. Spicer bowed to the audience and began as follows, and was heard to the end with quiet attention:

Ladies and Gentlemen: My subject is knives. There are two kinds of knives. I will mention them: eating knives and jackknives. You must not put eating knives in your mouth. You can a jackknife, because then you do not have any fork. I mean when you are eating raw sweet potatoes, or raw turnips, or any raw things outdoors. You can do nineteen things with a jackknife. I will mention them: whittle, sharpen pencils, clip off finger nails and thumb ones, play multipeg, cut knots, punch holes, shuck out clams and oysters, clean fishes, cut your name on anything, eat apples and pumpkin seeds and other things, make whistles, whet it on a whetstone, cut your fingers with it, break it, swap it, lose it, find it, lend it, give it away. Every fellow that borrows a jackknife ought to give it right back again. (Applause.) I don't mean before he's done with it. (Applause.) A jackknife is made of two parts. I will mention them: The handle and the blade. You can have a knife with six blades if anybody will give you one. (Applause.) Your father and mother hardly ever give you a six-blader. They do not think it is best. Some little fellows have numb jackknives. Numb jackknives are made not to cut. Numb jackknives are good for little fellows to have. My little brother's got a numb jackknife. Jackknives are very easy to lose. A fellow most always loses his knife. He feels very sorry when he first finds out he can't find his knife. He does not believe that knife is lost. He keeps feeling in his pocket, for he believes it is there somewhere, under his ball, or his jewsharp, or his pocket handkerchief, or 'mongst the crumbles. Then he begins and he empties out all these things, and turns his pocket inside out and shakes it, and stands up and shakes his trousers leg, and looks down on the floor, and puts them all in again, and then he begins to hunt. I know some verses about losing a jackknife. I will mention one:

When a boy gets a shining new knife,
Oh a jubilant boy is he!
Capering, shouting, prancing; chattering, laughing, dancing,
All so joyfully, high diddledee!
When he loses that shining new knife,
Oh a sorrowful boy is he!
Hunting, sniffing, groping; whining, sighing, moping,
All so dolefully, oh dear me!

One day I lost my knife somewhere in the house, and I hunted for it in ninety-seven places. I will mention them: In my mother's work-basket, in her other work basket, in her darn-stocking-bag, in eight of her bureau drawers, in six cracks of the floor up garret, in the ashes pail, all over eight floors (crawling), in the cookie pot, in my mother's pocket, in the baby's cradle, in the apple barrel, on four top shelves, on seventeen other shelves, in the spoon-holder, in ten of my father's pockets, in fourteen of my big brother's pockets, in two of my little brother's pockets, in four of my pockets, on six mantlepieces, in the waste basket, in my sister's doll-house, in her bureau drawer, in the bed-clothes chest, in my mother's trunk, in four of my sister's pockets; and all the time my knife was in my trousers leg, down at the foot of the trousers leg, inside the outside part of the trousers leg, back of the lining of it.

One time when I found my knife I was sorry I found it. I will tell you about that knife. One day I had a new knife. I never had such a pretty one. It had a white handle, and 'twas a two-blader. It was as good as a man's knife. All the fellows wanted to see it, and they thought 'twas a first rate knife. It had "J. S." on the handle. I was so careful of it that I wanted to keep hold of it when 'twas in my pocket, and I kept sitting down and taking it out to see it. My uncle who had been gone five years brought it to me. When I'd kept that knife not quite two days, there was a little hole in my pocket; a little bit of a hole. It wasn't as big round as the end of my little finger. I mean the very tip end of my little finger—not where it begins to be big any. It wasn't as big as a little white bean. I don't think it was as big as a pea. I think it was about as big as a quarter of a pea. No fellow would think a knife could get through that hole. But I kept it away from that hole—I put things in between, and I kept putting my hand in to touch my knife. Well, I played round a good while, and then we played "I spy!" and we had to run everywhere: and next thing I knew I put my hand in my pocket and my knife was gone! and my finger went right through that hole! not just exactly the same one, for that little one had grown a big one. My mother said that my knife rubbed and wore the hole out bigger. Nobody could find that knife. A long time after I lost it I stubbed my toe and fell down in the field, and my hand hit something in some grass, and I looked there, and there was my knife. "J. S." on the handle. I was not glad I found it. I was sorry. It most made me cry. It was all rusty and black, and you could not start the blade one mite to make it come open. My father tried to. I never wanted to see it again, and I dug a deep hole and buried it up. I know the spot, and every time I go by there I think of that knife.

Once there was a boy lost his knife and all the boys knew it, and they helped him hunt for it; and when it had been lost about three days a boy went huckleberrying with another boy and he let his basket fall down amongst the huckleberry bushes and spilled about a double-handful—and that was about all he had—and when he was looking amongst the huckleberry bushes trying to pick up his huckleberries, he found the other boy's knife. I mean that boy that lost his knife—and he knew 'twas that boy's knife just as well as he wanted to know, but he kept it private. (Groans), and he kept the knife out of sight, and nobody knew he'd got it for about six weeks; and one day when there'd been a circus and the boys were all standing on their heads, that knife dropped out of that boy's pocket when he was standing on his head, and then a little fellow picked it up, and another fellow, one that had gone over sideways when he was standing on his head, saw it, and knew whose knife it was in a minute (Applause). And the boy was so ashamed that he cried. He told the one that lost his knife where he found it, and all the fellows looked at him so. I mean looked at the one that found it—that he kept away from playing with the boys for a long time. And when any fellow lost his knife the other ones would tell him he'd better look in that fellow's pocket. I mean the one's pocket that found the knife. Ladies and gentlemen, many thanks for your kind attention. (Applause).

One Step at a Time.

I once stood at the foot of a Swiss mountain which towered up from the foot of the Visphach Valley to a height of 10,000 feet. It looked like a tremendous pull to the top. But I said to myself, "Oh, it will require but one step at a time!" Before sunset I stood on the summit, enjoying the magnificent view of the peaks around me, and right opposite to me flashed the icy crown of the Weisshorn, which Prof. Tyndall was the first man to discover by taking one step at a time.

Every boy who would master a difficult study, every youth who hopes to get on in the world, must keep this motto in mind. When the famous Arago was a school-boy he got discouraged over mathematics. But one day he found on the waste leaf of the cover of a text-book a short letter from D'Alembert to a youth discouraged like himself. The advice which D'Alembert gave was: "Go on, sir, go on." "That little sentence," says Arago, "was my best teacher in mathematics." He did push on steadily, until he became the greatest mathematician of his day, by mastering one step at a time.

Education of Poor Girls in Russia.

The most important step recently taken in Russian education is the institution of a special school for the instruction of the daughters of the poorer class of Russians. Middle-class education is already well provided for by private institutions and the public gymnasia. For the elementary education of women, however, the existing arrangements are by no means perfect. The fewness of the elementary schools, uniting, so to speak, the primary and middle educational establishments, has led parents belonging to the less wealthy state of society to resort with their children to the gymnasia; whereas, in the greater number of cases the pupils thus placed find themselves not only without the requisite capacity for the programme peculiar to these middle-class institutions, but also hindered by poverty from completing a successful course of study. As a matter of fact, very few of these young persons ever pass the examinations prescribed. They often leave the gymnasia without knowing Russia correctly, or being able to work an arithmetical sum without error. To supply the want caused by this state of things, a new school of a special type for girls from nine to eleven years old has been founded, under the patronage of the Empress. The course of study will include religion, the Russian language, elements of natural history, caligraphy, drawing, singing, music and needlework, and the term of study will extend over a period of four years.—London Times.

Killing Rats by Electricity.

Ralph Corbit, an ingenious twelve-year-old boy of Honeybrook, Chester County, has devised a novel plan of getting rid of the rats which infest his father's cellar. He has constructed out of old fruit-jars a battery of three Leyden jars, which he connects and places upon a large iron plate which touches the tin foil on the outside. The bait is so arranged that when the rat steps upon the plate and seizes the bait he at once makes the connection between the outside and inside of the jars and they are discharged through his body killing him literally as quick as lightning. He charges the jars by means of an electrical machine, also constructed by himself. He ran a couple of wires through the floor to the cellar from the room above, and as soon as he heard a rat squeak he would immediately recharge the battery. The first time he put the machine in operation he slaughtered twenty-five rats in a space of three hours, and in a space of two days the cellar was entirely cleared of the pests.—West Chester (Pa.) Local.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JAN. 31, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$ 80
½ "	1 "	40
¼ "	1 "	20
1 "	½ "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

It is settled. Troops will be sent to guard Neal and Craft.

The Ohio republican state convention will be held on the 5th and 6th of next June.

Six Kentucky editors have announced themselves candidates for the legislature.

Senator Williams says: "The tariff reduces the revenue and increases the taxes."

Sunset Cox, of New York, has commenced a vigorous canvass for the Speakership.

Henry Waterson has been invited to address the Tennessee legislature on the tariff question.

Polk, the defaulting treasurer of Tennessee, has been admitted to bail in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars.

Some women in New York propose organizing an insurance company. They think they can succeed where men fail.

The Robertson County Tribune now comes to us with a clean face, and equally improved otherwise. It also comes in on time.

A young Cincinnati artist, Carl Henry Niehans, got the ten thousand dollar prize given for the best bust of the late president Grafield.

The indictments against Colonel John B. Gaines and Colonel Chas. E. Sears, two dueling journalists at Louisville, have been dismissed.

Beck and Carlisle were selected by the opponents of the tariff bill to conduct the fight against it in their respective branches of congress.

The report that John Kelly, of New York, has retired from politics is denied. He can not quit politics any more than he can quit eating,

The wife of John W. Acre, who resides near Gainesville, this county, suicided by shooting herself with a pistol, Sunday. We have not learned the cause.

Week before last while the mercury was registering thirty degrees below zero in the northwest, a minister had the ice cut, and immersed half a dozen converts.

An extensive cave-in took place a few days since in the Delaware and Hudson mine in Pa. Houses settled from six inches to a foot, and the inmates were terribly frightened.

Hoggish—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $6 50@6 65; fair to good packers, at $6 30@6 55; fair to good light, $6 10@6 35; common, $5 40@6 10; culls, $4@5 25: stock hogs, $4 75@5 50.

News has reached San Francisco that a schooner was lost at the mouth of Fly River, New Guinea, and that the crew, seventeen in number, were killed by the savages, their heads cut off and distributed among the native villages.

The late destruction by fire of so many public buildings is causing anxiety among a class of capitalist in this country who are investing largely in apartment houses. Tall buildings they fear will become very unpopular as hotels and boardinghouses

A mob of masked men attempted to enter the jail at Shawneetown, Ill., the other day, to take out a couple of murderers to lynch. The sheriff and deputy repulsed them. The mob then brought up a cannon and threatened to batter down the walls, but were repulsed a second time by a volley from the jail.

We don't want to scare anybody into a case of small-pox, but we do want to urge them to vaccinate as a guard against the lothsome disease. It has made its appearance in many sections of the country, and as a general thing whole neighborhoods where it appears, are exposed before the disease is sufficiently developed to be recognized. By vaccination the disease is rendered less dangerous.

S. P. Carr, of the firm of Carr & Dickerson, of Richmond, Va., commission merchants, arrived here on Saturday to work up a tobacco trade for his house and city. He said that the "tobacco growers would be disappointed."

"In what respect?"

"I find that the White Burley tobacco is raised to a great extent in Missouri, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio and even Texas, so that there will be a large quantity of it besides what is raised in Kentucky. There was a surplus in the market, and that will cause the loss of money. But besides this quality of the tobacco is inferior."

"Do you find the quality or the curing inferior?"

"Both seem inferior. In Mason county the White Burley is becoming dark. It seems to lose its bright color unless kept on new ground."—Mt. Sterling Democrat.

The next report of Auditor Hewitt, which is now in course of preparation, in addition to other new features will present an interesting table showing the gross amount of revenue charged to each county, the credits obtained for commissions, exonerations and delinquents, the net amount paid into the treasury and the percentum cost of the collections From the table of 1881, but partly made up, it is discovered that Shelby stands at the head of the list of counties whose sheriffs have collected the largest proportion of the revenue for that year:

	Per cent. paid treas'y	Per cent. cost collec'n.
Shelby	95.22	4.78
Boyle	95.13	4.78
Christian	95.02	4 98
Fayett	94.83	5.17

In contrast to the above are the counties in which are located the large cities:

Kenton	77.21	22.79
Campbell	83.97	16.03
Jefferson	87.19	12.81

Kentucky scene: Gubernatorial office:—And you are a convict. Poor fellow! And you stole, you robbed, you killed, you gambled, you—oh, goodness! The cruel laws, with its cruel courts and juries and Shylock prosecutors sent you to languish in the narrow, dirty cells of the penitentiary or jails Oh, such miserable cruelties do wring the heart of humanity! It shall not be! Here Mr. Secretary, a pardon. There now, you you miserable used unfortunate. Go now and come again. Tell your neighbors, who are inclined to become like you, that a towering bulwark of convict-love stands between them and all danger.

The Western Tobacco Journal says it is estimated that 600,000,0000 lbs. were raised in the United States during the past year. Of course Kentucky leads, with Virginia second, Pennsylvania third and Ohio fourth. The greatest yield per acre is in Connecticut—1,620 pounds. All the Seed Leaf States, Connecticut, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, New York, and Massachusetts, get a far better average yield per acre than the states growing chewing and smoking stock.

The recent discovery of a fine oil well at Rocky Hill, this state, is only one more proof of the immense wealth with which Kentucky abounds. It only needs capital to develop the hidden treasury of the state, and we predict that the time is not far distant when the attention of capitalists will be turned especially towards Kentucky, and a new era will be opened up for the grand old Commonwealth.

We have received a proposition from a company in New York to teach us stenography, saying that at the same time we can be instructing a class in the art. They have more confidence in our ability than we have, and therefore we decline giving them the forty dollars in advertising which they desire.

State Auditor Hewitt sent a circular letter to county assessors urging the importance of assessing all property at a fair and full value, the necessity of requiring persons giving in a list of taxable property to make oath to the same, and also urging care in making true and correct lists.

In Decatur county, Texas, the Mercury was six degrees below zero one morning during the recent cold snap. As the people down there had never encountered such low temperature, there was considerable [illegible]. The houses were too frail to afford comfort

Judging from the reports in our exchanges the wheat crop in this State will be a failure this year. It has been our observation that but little can be told as to the final out come of that crop so far in advance of the period of its maturing.

The grand jury at Washington has returned an indictment against Foreman Dickson, of the 1st Star-route jury, for endeavoring to influence the vote of his fellow-jurors in the Star-route trial.

The Calloway county Court of Claims allowed Dr. [illegible], of Louisville, $500 for his services among the small-pox patients of that county during the recent epidemic.

Mr. Carlisle says the Civil Service Bill is not understood by the people. This expression applies to the public, and the same may be said of some of the national law makers.

The surgeon of the New Haven Register says that when "Dr. Bliss received the $6,000 offered instead of the $25,000 demanded, his respiration was slow, his pulse rapid and his pus cavity distended with bile.

By subscribing for this paper and the Indiana Farmer, at this office, you get the two papers, the regular subscription price of the two being $3 50, for $3, besides receiving as a present a dictionary worth $2.

They have a bear up in Eastern Kentucky that is doing a good business in paying off church debts. He has on different occasions, been put up and raffled off for that purpose, bringing in considerable money. Bruin is a "big man" in the church up there.

The Maysville soldiers are not anxious to turn out again to guard Neal and Craft. Their excuse is the state did not treat them as it should in regard to their comrade who died from the effect of a wound received on their last expedition. They contend that his doctor's bill and funeral expenses should have been paid by the state, in as much as it had done the like on other occasions.

In the Southern division of Illinois, where over half the winter wheat of that State is grown, the area is five per cent. better than a year ago, and the condition sixteen per cent. worse. In the Northern division the area is one per cent. less and the condition two per cent. worse and in the Central division the area is eight per cent. greater and condition a fraction better than in 1882.

Frye, of Maine; Hoar, of Massachusetts. Plumb, of Kansas; and Cullum, of Illinois—Republicans—have been lately elected to the United States Senate. Garland, of Arkansas; Harris, of Tennessee; Ransom, of North Carolina; Kenna, of West Virginia, and McPherson, of New Jersey—Democrats—have also just been elected United States Senators by the Legislatures of their respective States.

A boy baby was born on the 16th inst., to the wife of Perry Schultz, a prominent citizen of Olympi, Bath county, which is horribly deformed. The arms terminate where the elbow joints should be, one ending in a stump. From the other projects a thumb and one finger. Its legs are short stumps, without joints, resembling those of a tarrapin, and the toes are grown together like the webbed feet of a duck. Both the father and mother are strong, well formed and healthy and are at a loss to account for the hideous malformation of the child.

The Morgan county democrats fired a Jones gun the other day. In a mass convention they resolved, "That reposing special confidence in the ability and integrity of Col. Thos. L. Jones, of Campbell county, and in appreciation of his valuable services to the party, we pledge him our hearty and undivided support for the office of governor of Kentucky."

The convention endorsed Hon. V. B. Young, of Bath county, for Lieutenant Governor; J. G. Cecil, of Pike county, for Register of the Land Office, and then put in a final resolve endorsing Senators Beck and Williams for opposing the passage of the Pendleton Civil Service bill.

An effort of the Auditor to bring about forty counties reported as pauper counties up to a revenue-paying basis, is beginning to be productive of good results. A clerk is now engaged upon a table which will show the increase of revenue in each county in the state. In some instances this is very noticeable. In 1879 Magoffin county drew from the State Treasury the sum of $12,971 78 over and above the amount she paid in, while for the last fiscal year she only drew $3,577 11 more than she paid in, a difference in favor of the State of $9,394 67.

Floyd county for 1879 drew $13,712 62 more than she paid in, and for 1882 only $3,308 19 a difference of $10,404 46 in favor of the State. At this rate it will not require many years to make every county self sustaining.—Yeoman.

The trial of Neal and Craft is set for the seventh day of February.

STATE NEWS.

—The wheat crop in Hardin county looks badly.

—Corn is selling from twenty to thirty cents a bushel in Breathitt.

—The late small-pox epidemic in Calloway county resulted in sixteen deaths.

—Frankfort has had a bon ton negro wedding. Numerous and costly presents were made.

—Millie McElroy, 102 years old, and Lindy Field, 106 years old, both live in Elizabethtown.

—Owing to the severe freezes it is feared that the wheat crop in Butler county will be a failure.

—A large lot of confiscated gambling tables were burned by the authorities at Lexington Monday.

—The Somerset Reporter says a white man and a negro woman are cohabiting together in that town.

—Frank Fields shot Geo. Williams in the foot at Paris, and then Geo. stamped Frank nearly to death

—A young attorney in town takes his pay in shelled corn and rides home on the bag.—Richmond Herald

—Tobacco here 3c to 10c; average 7½c. In Fayette several crops sold for 10 cents all around.—Paris Kentuckian.

—Madison Campbell and wife, colored, of Richmond, celebrated their silver wedding, and $300 or $400 in presents were made.

—Stephen Jett and Clint Hall of Breathitt county, were pardoned before trial, for the killing William Davidson, of Owsley county.

—The land around Reelfoot Lake is sinking and the water is encroaching upon the adjoining farms. This is the first change in the lake since its formation by the earthquake in 1811.

—J. Stone Walker sold his farm lying on the Irving pike, one mile from Richmond, to Napoleon B. Terrill. It contained 141 acres, and the price was $15,000 cash.—Richmond Herald.

—Government officers raided Caloway county the other day, and found 3,600 gallons of beer, 36 bushels of mash and 200 gallons of whisky which was destroyed. The moonshiners had skipped.

—Sarah Ann Leach, an old colored woman, was fatally burned at Georgetown by her clothes catching fire at a grate. In attempting to put out the fire her grandaughter was also burned.

—Three men working on the Kentucky Railroad extension in Rockcastle county were killed by the explosion of some herculese powder cartridges. The blacksmiths shop was blown to atoms.

—Martin Pinder, of Clark county has been sent to the Asylum. Several years since he was struck on the head with the jaw bone of a horse. The other day he put a keg of powder in his house and blowed the builing up.

—Mrs. Fannie Alexander was arrested at Elizabethtown on the 24th for stealing a horse. She disposed of the horse at Greenwood, Ind. She is a buxom woman and a shrewd talker, and was raised in Boyle county this state.

—The jail at Tompkinsville, together with the house occupied by the jailer, was burned January 22. No loss of life or escape of prisoners. Edgar Wyatt, of Louisville, sentenced to the penitentiary for life went out of the jail and rendered heroic service in saving the town.

—The reports as to the prospects of the wheat crop of Bourbon for next season are rather discouraging. We are told that owing to hard freezes after melting of the snow the wheat sown broadcast was seriously injured, especially on poor land, but the drilled wheat has not been hurt.—Kentuckian.

—A Sensation was created at Dalton, Ga., the other day by a sick man who was put off the train at that place. The Mayor threatened to quarantine the patient in the waiting-room of the depot and enforced quarantine against the road before it agreed to remove the man, who finally proved to have the measles.

—Bill Saddler and Bill Childers have been arrested at Dry Ridge, Grant county, on the charge of stabbing Henry Mason, a street-car conductor at Newport, last summer. They have been taken to Newport for trial. They are believed to be the two men who killed a man named Brindley in Newport last September.

Frankfort Yeoman: Dr. U. V. Williams met with another accident yesterday afternoon, which will probably disable him for some time. He was at or near Mr. Church Vaughn's about three miles from the city, on a visit to a patient, when he fell and fractured his leg. A carriage was sent for him, and he was brought home about 4 o'clock. This is the fourth time his leg has been broken.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—The demand for Georgia pine is greatly on the increase in the North.

—In Charleston S. C., they guard the back doors of saloons on Sunday.

—There are 3,400,000 acres of United States lands for sale in Mississippi.

—Defalcation has become epilemic. Savannah is investigating her treasury.

—The City Treasurer of Savannah is charged with being $30,000 in arrears with his accounts.

—Many bridges at Opelousa, La., are washed away by freshets, and those left are badly damaged.

—Ruthford, N. C., has a man six feet ten inches tall. He is said to be the tallest man in the State.

—A man in Rome, Ga., who was annoyed by creditors, hung out a small-pox flag, and reposed in peace.

—A woman in Malvers, Ark., is lying at the point of death from an overdose of Hughes' chill tonic.

—The decline of Raleigh's trade during the past twelve months is said to be caused by freight discriminations.

—The sheep men of Texas are losing heavily. Col. W. H. Martin, from a flock of fine merino sheep numbering 2,500, lost 1,200.

—There is talk of an elevated railway at New Orleans, to run along the river front at a heigth of fifteen feet above the surface of the ground.

—A prisoner given into the hands of the deputy sheriff of Chattanooga walked out, got on a horse and galloped away, and has not been seen since.

—A woman in Athens, Ga., got possession of some very damaging and, to her, conclusive evidence against her husband. Instead of suing for a divorce, she got a cowhide and flailed him all over the front yard, in full view of the neighbors.

—Salt Lake City has projected five Mormon missionaries into Chattanooga, who will distribute themselves through the adjacent region. These young men were originally residents of the Southern States, having emigrated about five years ago. It is said that sixty-five missionaries are already at work in the South.

Lincoln Reads a Poem

Honest Old Abe Entertains his Cabinet with a Little Quotation.

"Now, gentlemen, you all have more or less poetry in your souls; listen to this," and Abraham Lincoln, then President, rose from his chair, in his office in the White House, and read in trembling tones, which indicated his own profound appreciation of it, Dr. O. W. Holmes' "Last Leaf," of which the following are two verses:

"They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down;
Not a better man was found
By the crier in his round
Through the town.

Now the mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he had pressed
In their bloom;
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb."

Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., is not as old as the venerable Boston citizen of whom the poet wrote with such tender pathos, yet he is more than three score and ten. "For the past eight of those years," he writes, "I have been a perfect cripple from rheumatism, hobbling about as best I could with my cane. I took Parker's Ginger Tonic, and am now supple and strong as a gymnast. There is no trace of the disease left about me."

Mr. R. W. Mosher, wholesale druggist, of Binghamton, writes Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of N. Y.—Proprietors of the tonic—certifying to Mr. Guilfoyle's declaration.

Having all the properties of any preparation of ginger, Parker's Ginger Tonic is a remedy of infinitely greater range and power. It cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood or imperfect digestion. Dyspepsia (and all its consequences), Malarial Fevers, Sick Headache, Kidney troubles, Bronchitis, and common Coughs and Colds, vanish at its touch. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Larger size the cheaper.

Tobacco Market.

Cincinnati, Friday, Jan., 26, 1883

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 00	$3 00
Common Smokers	3 00	4 25
Colory Smokers	4 50	5 50
Colory Trash	6 00	8 00
Good Br't Trash	10	15 00
Fine Br't Trash	none
Fancy Bright Leaf	00 00
Dark Lugs	4 00	5 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	11 00
Good Stripping Lugs	11 00	16 00
Fine Strip'g Lugs	17	22 50
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Leaf	19	23 00
Good Br't Leaf	23 50	25 00
Fine Br't Leaf	25 50	27 50
Com Lug Fillers	7	10 50
Good Lug Fillers	11 00	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	22
Com. Med. Fil'rs	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Fil'rs	19	22
Good L'f Fillers	23 50	25 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	25 50	27 00

FOR SALE.

The delinquent poll-tax list, both white and colored, of Boone county for the year 1882, will be sold to the highest bidder for cash at the Court-house, in the town of Burlington, at 1 o'clock, on the first Monday in February, 1883. By order of the Court of Claims, S. W. Tolin, Co. Atty.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the Pectoral a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your Cherry Pectoral saved me. Horace Fairbrother."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Cherry Pectoral had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Emma Gedney."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. Crane."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.
Joseph Walden."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. Bragdon."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

G. H. LOEBKER,
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES,
36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300.000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green, J. S. Mason, J. A. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm, J. J. Dulaney.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.
dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

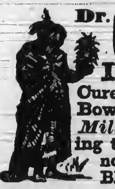
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
540 MADISON STREET,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS
Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky



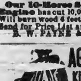
TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

Dr. Clark Johnson:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. McCamc, Scaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.



AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO.,
(LIMITED.)
No. 268 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Established 1840

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue G sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair.
50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. [illegible] druggists and dealers in perfumes.
COLOGNE

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved
MONARCH LIGHTNING
SAW
Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS [illegible] and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO. Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

A SPLENDID OFFER.

Two First-class Papers and a fine Book for Only $3 00.

We have made arrangements to club with the Indiana Farmer, the largest and best agricultural journal now published, just what every farmer needs. It is a weekly, 52 issues per year of 16 pages each, cut and bound in magazine form in a shape that may be easily preserved and making an elegant volumn. Its contributors include many of the best agricultural writers of the world, and every number contains instructions and suggestions that will be of more value to any live farmer than the subscription price. The regular price of the Indiana Farmer is $2 00 per year. We have made arrangements by which we can furnish the RECORDER and the Indiana Farmer for $3 and, besides this, we will present each subscriber with a VALUABLE DICTIONARY of over 500 pages, bound in cloth, and containing every useful word to be found in the English language, with its true meaning, derivation, spelling and pronunciation, also a vast amount of absolutely necessary information upon Science, Mythology American History, Constitutions, Laws, Land Titles, Cities, Colleges, Army and Navy, Rate of Mortality, Growth of Cities, Insolvent and Assignment Laws, Debts, Rates of Interest, and other useful knowledge, being a perfect library of refference in one handy volume, which alone is worth the price of either paper. Specimens of the INDIANA FARMER, and also the Dictionary, may be seen by calling at this office. Subscribe at once.

In order to accommodate old patrons, and enable them to get the INDIANA FARMER and Dictionary at the reduced rate, we will extend the offer to those who have already subscribed for the RECORDER before this offer was made. A club should at once be formed in every neighborhood, as this opportunity will not be given for a great length of time.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

Saturday was a real spring day.

This month has been rough on live stock.

There seems to be a demand for good milch cows.

Much of the last year's crop of tobacco is yet unstripped.

Nobody in jail. We should have so stated last week.

There will be plenty of ice to save the mint crop next summer.

Won't there be lots of frozen potatoes to resurrect this spring?

Mrs. Virginia Huey, who was very sick last week is much improved.

It's 11 p. m., the coal scuttle empty and our eyes heavy; good night.

"Man wants but little here below"—of such weather as January brought.

Mr. L. A. Loder is the only justice who has complied with our request so far.

—A colored infant in town got its hands frosted and was not out of the house.

The urbanity of the handsome deputy p. m., across the way, is his winning card.

The appearance of small-pox in the Richwood neighborhood is to be deplored.

Those who attended the party at Florence last Thursday night, had a jolly good time.

Dr. Grant has gotten entirely well again, which is very gratifying to his many patrons.

Mr. Blizzard, of the northwest, has been in this county since about the first of January.

The colored school at this place opens and closes each day with a song by the scholars.

Mack Aylor has 1,000 or 1,500 nice locust fence-post for sale—will also furnish shed post.

Those of our people who like vocal music have been enjoying a treat in that line the past week.

Mr. Edward Fowler, of this place attended balls in Williamstown, Grant county, 50 years ago.

A nice dictionary and two good papers for $3. Five dollars for 3; what better offer do you want?

Mr. Alfred Cason was offered by W. C Goodridge $9 an acre for corn land. Mr. Cason did dot want to rent.

You might prepare your plant-beds for burning. Nothing like being ready to burn when the time comes.

We understand that Mr. William Walton contemplates an extended western tour before he reinvests in land.

If this community has not been enlightened, religiously, this winter, there is no use of wasting time and words with it.

Monday Mrs. Henrietta Huey sold to P. A. Ryle 68⅔ acres—part of the Jonathan Utz farm on Gunpowder—for $40 per acre.

Mr. Absalom Conner, we learn, is now located at Cynthiana, this State; but we did not learn in what business he is engaged.

Sam Crutcher, of Florence X-Roads, mourns the loss of his celebrated stepper. One of the stars of the turf has gone down to rise no more.

MARRIED—January 25th, at the Sandford House by the Rev. H. J. Foster, Mr. Coon Hoppens and Miss Annie Cantwell, both of East Bend.

Should there be any trouble in getting the corn planted next spring to come, the severe cold weather of the winter will be accused of being the cause.

Nearly everybody in the neighborhood north of town are moving their base. Oscar Gaines, G. T. Gaines and W. T. Smith are the only old landmarks left.

The sale of R. L. Aylor's personalty was largely attended. The stock of goods was sold in small quantities, and the prices brought were satisfactory.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Beall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

Last Wednesday, Mr. Thos. Goodridge, while cutting briars, received a very ugly lash in the face with a large briar, one of the thorns penetrating his eyelid and badly lacerating the eyeball.

Master Ben Owens played the "devil" in the RECORDER's office last week; or, in other words he manipulated, in a most satisfactory manner, the roller, while the edition was being printed.

It was colder at Union, last week, than anywhere else in the state. A letter from a friend there says: "I write you on a single sheet, because it is so cold that two dry sheets of paper will freeze together."

Our town, or at least that portion of it needing coal, is being supplied from Erlanger. The coal is bought by the car load in the city and sent out to Erlanger, from which place it is hauled in wagons.

Our drygoods merchants wanted more light, and have, therefore, provided themselves with what is called the needle lamp, which makes a powerful light. One of them is equal to several ordinary coal oil lamps.

Mr. Benjamine Craven, who lives near this town, is up in the nineties, and enjoys good health and can get about with much comfort to himself. He is a very prudent man and his chances for living many years are favorable

At the last term of the Boone Circuit Court Merideth Carroll was fined $25 and 10 days imprisonment for carrying concealed weapons. Last week the clerk received a remitter from the Governor releasing Carroll from paying the fine and going to prison.

"You must not believe all you see, and but half you hear." We object seriously to the latter part of the above saying, because we hear that a certain good looking young friend of ours is shortly to be married, and we should hate to believe that he is only going to be half married.

Buddie Smith, who learned the art of lead heaving on the RECORDER, is now engaged on the Times at Chattanooga. Buddie has developed into one of the best job printers in the country. We have been shown some handsome work which was executed by him in Chattanooga.

One day last week, while Mrs. Dudley Rouse was returning from her brother's the horse she was driving balked; she got out and attempted to lead him, when all of a sudden he sprang forward, knocking her down and falling himself at the same time, badly hurting Mrs. Rouse about the face. The buggy was slightly damaged.

The newest thing out in the way of a church entertainment is dubbed a basket supper. These entertainments are conducted as follows: Each lady prepares enough supper for two in a basket; each basket is put up at auction, the gentlemen being the bidders, and the lady who prepared the supper helps the purchaser eat it. They are said to be very enjoyable affairs.

Since the last term of the Circuit Court in this county, the Governor has remitted fines, which otherwise would have been paid in, to the amount of $950. In the assessment of fines Boone is not more than an average county out of the 116, but, when it comes to the amount remitted, she certainly comes under the string in the lead of all the others, outside of those in which there are cities.

Dr. Furnish was leading his nag across Gunpowder about daylight one of those cold mornings during last week, when the ice broke and let him into the water up to his knees. He had some distance to ride after crossing the creek and when he reached his destination he was suffering intensely with the cold. A few mornings after wading Gunpowder he got one of his ears frosted. The doctor is of the opinion we have had a severe spell of weather.

Picking up the Boone County, (Ky.) Recorder, several days since, we were forcibly reminded that a marked change had taken place in the appearance of the paper, and our eyes naturally sought the reason, when it was revealed to us that Riddell was again at the head of the management. We welcome you back, Bro. Riddell, into the brotherhood of editors, and wish your efforts may be crowned with abundant success.—Lawrenceburg, (Ind.) Register.

Since last Friday we have had a new mail carrier, Oscar Conrad, of Florence, on the Burlington and Erlanger route. The mail now arrives and departs on the schedule time published last week. The former mail carrier, W. R. Terrill, having been suspended because refusing to comply with the schedule or to deliver mail at Florence the intermediate postoffice. There has been no good feeling existing between Terrill and some parties at Florence for some time, and to spite them, he refused to deliver the mail for that place, thus discommoding a whole community. The effect of this has been his expulsion from the service. Mr. Terrill has carried the mail for some time just as it pleased him, and against the remonstrances of nearly everybody, and the only wonder is that he has not been dismissed long since.

Died.

At her residence in this place, on the morning of the 24th inst., Mrs. Graham, wife of Lewis Graham.

Mr. Graham and family have been residents of our town since last June, during the most of that period Mrs. Graham has been a patient sufferer with that much to be dreaded disease, consumption, which culminated as above stated. Her death was a great shock to the family who have the sympathy of the town. The remains were interred in the cemetery at this place last Thursday at 10 a. m.

Mr. Dunlap, the evangelist, whose arrival was mentioned in our last, has been conducting religious services in the Court-house afternoon and evening every day since Tuesday of last week. At first the congregation was small but increased rapidly, and in a few days the house during the evening devotions was corwded, while the afternoon services have been well attended. Although the nights were dark and the roads bad, in the congregation has, each evening, been recognized the familiar faces of a number of persons who reside a considerable distance from town, and, judging from the attendance, there is being considerable interest manifested in the meeting. Mr. Dunlap informed the congregation at the out set that he was not laboring on behalf of any particular church, and that those who confessed in his meetings were allowed to take their membership in the church of his or her choice.

The organ is presided over by Mr. Sibley whose singing has completely captivated those who have heard him.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Judge Hawes is on the sick list.

Mrs. R. H. Pace is still very sick.

James E. Smith has moved to his father's, W. T. Smith.

Mrs. Dudley Rouse is landlady at the Centrel this week.

Henly Smith was laid up a day or two last week with a severe cold.

Mr. Wm. White, who has been quite ill with pneumonia, is recovering rapidly.

Mr. Jule C. Durant, agent for Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., was in town yesterday.

Thos. G. Tupmen and wife, of Kenton county, spent last Thursday in Burlington.

Mrs. Ellis, of Kenton county, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Gaines, of this place.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cures Colds, Coughs, and Consumption; an unequaled anodyne expectorant.

Rev. C. C. Connar and wife, of Aurora, Indiana, spent a portion of last week with relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. R. C. Green and Mrs. F. P. Walton are visiting Dr. B. F. Stephenson and family at Visalia, Kenton county, Ky.

James Riley was in town the other day and some thought he was here on a trip which but few make more than once in life.

Billy Piper is thinking about giving his store to some poor man. He is as rich he wants to be. It was born Monday, and is a B-O-Y.

That handsome and interesting young gentleman, H. M. Piper, of Lafayette, Ind., graced our town with his presence a day or two last week.

Mr. John E. Utz, of Milan, Indiana, was in town the other day. Mr. Utz has recently been out among the Indians, and is highly delighted with their reservation.

The handsomest advertising cards we have ever seen are published by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., who will send a set of them to any address on receipt of letter and stamp.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Rabbit Hash.

We have no constable in our precinct at this time.

Jerome Wilson, little son of Ben Wilson is very sick with typhoid fever.

Robt. Holmes left our place last week for Jonesburg, Mo., where he expects to make his future home. His family preceded him a few weeks.

T. C. S. Ryle sold 29 head of hogs to J S. Walton which averaged 388.

Mrs. Wm. Piatt left East Bend a few days ago for her home in Illinois. Deep regret is felt over her departure, as she is held in high regard by the many friends she has made during her stay here. During the past year she was the organist for both churches, which place she filled with credit, and it will be difficult to find one to take her place.

Plattsburg

The French Spoliation Bill which lately passed both houses of congress, benefits an industrious mechanic of this community.

According to Venner's predictions we are to have a rough time of it next March; but we don't believe he knows any more about the weather in the future than he knows when the next carbuncle will come on a fellow's back.

IT IS RUMORED

That ice will be cheap for '83.

That Orlando Snyder will soon be a qualified juryman.

That all the old bachelors in this community would merry if they could.

That the Woolper turnpike will have to change hands before the bridges and road are repaired.

That the subscription list of the RECORDER is increasing, but will not reach 10,000 before 1884.

Hebron.

Mr. L. S. Kiser, of Springfield, Ohio, will preach at this place on next Sunday, morning and evening. Mr. Kizer is a very fine speaker, and he will probably be secured to preach for the Lutheran church at this place the ensuing year.

Last Saturday the remains of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Allen were taken from the vault and interred in the cemetery at this place.

There is strong talk of erecting a cheese factory at or near this place. We hope it will be a success.

Several of the Hebron gallants attended the dance given at the residence of Mr. Jeddy Davis, Saturday night.

Mr. John Aylor has sold his fine trotting horse to G. C. Grady, for the nice little sum of $250.

Messrs Harrison Clore and Ray Snyder are the only tabacco buyers in this section. They are paying the highest price for the weed.

J. C. Clore will close his select school on the second day of March, after which he will again attend the Wittenburg College at Springfield, Ohio.

There is a great deal of Sickness in this community.

The Hebron base ball club is preparing for organization.

The following are on the sick list this week: Mr. Elijah Tanner, Neil Brown, John Quigley, Geo. Yowl, Laura Hicks, Mike Clore.

The Hebron Dramatic Club will give a series of entertainments about the first of March.

A social hop will be given by a young gent and lady at the Hebron Hall, February 14th, '83. Refreshments will be given and good music will be in attendance. All are invited. No cards.

Verona.

Born—To R. O. Powers and wife, a boy.

Married—On the 20th inst., Batty Long to Miss Jennie Casey, of Covington.

Died—On the night of the 23d inst Mr. James Sleet, brother to Ben and Richard. His remains were interred in the New Bethel Cemetery.

Mr. N. B. Hamilton and wife returned from Missouri, recently. Mr. H. is now assisting his sister, Miss N. E. Hamilton, in her school.

Mr. Geo. Roberts has bought a tobacco press, and some tobacco. He intends trying the business.

Mr. G. B. Powers intends going to Covington this spring to go into business.

Mrs. Julia Craven is in ill health at this writing.

Health of vicinity not very good.

Union.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley will preach at Union on the 1st and 2d Saturday nights in each month.

Rev. Spears commenced a protracted meeting here last Sunday.

Martin Bartelle and family moved to Shelby city Monday.

Uncle Henry Blanton is able to be out on the streets again.

Burl Conner's infant son is suffering from a sore throat.

We hear it said that James Huey will move to Union. He is a worthy man and we will be glad to have him join the array of Union worthies.

John McHatton will move into the Bartelle premises in a few days.

F. Dickey has just received from Ohio, a registered alderney bull, and a royal animal he is.

For alderney milch cows apply to H. P. Stephens. If they are as good as he says, we will take two.

L. B. Stephens and wife go to Florida next month to visit their daughter, Mrs. D. F. Frazer.

We regret to hear of the death of Andrew Glacken—cause small-pox. He was buried on Wednesday last at his home, near Richwood. His negro servant is convalescing. No new cases reported, and but little fear now entertained of more cases. Deceased was quite an old man and a good citizen, well beliked.

John Conner has two fine alderney cows for sale.

Clarence Shutts has a horse to sell.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS,
201 York street Jersey City, N. J.
☞ Mention this paper. jan 17-83

IRELAND of TO-DAY $75 to $150 Per Month. New Edition Now Ready. Gives Repression Bill, Events of 1882, etc. Agents Wanted J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 5 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

THE EAGLE
DRUG STORE,
—IS POSITIVELY—
THE CHEAPEST
—HOUSE IN—
RISING SUN, IND.
Where will be found a fresh stock of
DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,
SCHOOL BOOKS
—AND—
STATIONERY,
all at bottom prices.
GIVE US A CALL.
D. C. Thorn,
Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)
Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.
Fine Teas A Specialty.
A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION. KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL.
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 8-tf

L. C. NORMAN. E. I [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES.
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

F. Adkinson. A. W. Gaines
ADKINSON & GAINES,
Attorneys & Counseors at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. 41tf.

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street.
CINCINNATI, - - OHIO.
☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
Should take a policy at once.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
J. R. DUNCAN President, Burlington, Ky

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CASP,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.
New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.
JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun, Ind.

UNDERTAKING
We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING,
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Also Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Satisfaction guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON, Proprietors.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar1-tf23
J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDER,
Your Own County Paper.

A Night of Horror.

Cases are of rare occurrence in which, as in Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon," one's hairs grow white

In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears,

but there is a well-authenticated instance of this kind in the person of Charles B. Wardrop, of No. 218 North Fourth street. "This Newhall House fire in Milwaukee vividly recalls an incident in my early life," remarked Mr. Wardrop to a Globe-Democrat reporter who dropped into his store yesterday afternoon. "My white hairs date from February 20, 1858, and if you care to hear the story I will tell it to you. The old Pacific Hotel in this city was opened for the reception of guests on Seventh and Poplar streets on June 28, 1857. The hotel was three stories high, the first being occupied by stores, and it was a very good hotel for those days. I was about twenty-five years old at that time, and after serving a while as clerk changed for the position of head porter. The house had been opened less than a year when, on February 20, 1858, it was swept by such a fatal fire as this city has never seen before or since. That night thirty occupants of the house perished in the flames, and it was by the merest chance that I was not included in the number. I had given up my room for that night, and was sleeping with eight others, mostly railroad men, in the same room on the third floor of the house. About two o'clock in the morning I was awakened by the fierce crackling of the flames, and was conscious of a sheet of fire rolling through the chamber in which we were sleeping. I rolled out on the floor and crawled along on my hands and knees under the flames, which filled all the upper part of the room. The stench from the roasting bodies of my dead companions was fearful, and I expected to meet the same fate. Although badly scorched I kept my presence of mind and crawled along out of the room, through the hall, and to the stairways leading to the second floor. On attempting to descend them I fell through the fire which had destroyed them, setting my shirt on fire and striking on the banisters leading from the first to the second story, and breaking two ribs. From this place I gained the street and was saved. Of the other eight men in the room not one escaped. Among the dead was Mr. Gerry, a newspaper man. In making my escape my hair was singed off my head, and when it grew out it was as white as snow. The terrible experience of that night whitened it completely, and although succeeding growths have had some dark hairs mingled with them, my head is still very white, as you see. A long investigation was conducted after the fire, but its cause never fully explained. It was proved that the watchman, who perished in the flames, was drunk that night, and, although some thought the fire incendiary, I always charged it to some swinging lamps in the back part of the house. The night was bitter cold and the wind blew fiercely. The fire department, which had recently been organized, was hindered by frozen fire-plugs. From that day to this I have never slept in a room that was not within jumping distance of the ground, although I have traveled a great deal and stopped in many hotels. Whenever I could not get a room suiting me in that particular I have frequently spent the night in a chair in a hotel office. From my experience I have a good opportunity to judge of what the poor people in the Milwaukee fire suffered, and I can tell you that it must have been something terrible."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Starting Plants in the House.

In the absence of a propagating house much may be done in the way of starting early plants in one's dwelling. The principal impediment experienced is the difficulty of obtaining in the spring the proper kind of soil or compost to put in the boxes. Professional gardeners prepare the soil with great care the previous year. But, when there is nothing ready, excellent results may be obtained by placing at the beginning of winter in the cellar a load or two of any good light sandy loam. In the spring, before using this, run it through a sieve. It is a good plan to mix a tablespoonful of superphosphate to each half-bushel of soil; then get some peat, moss or sphagnum, such as nurserymen use for packing, dry it thoroughly and sift it fine, and to each peck of soil add two or three quarts of this dry sifted moss, mix carefully, and there will be as good material for starting fine seeds as may be desired.

Leaf mold may be substituted for moss. The best is obtained from beach, maple and oak woods and ought to be gathered the previous summer and kept until wanted. Before using it should be mixed with equal parts of sand and sifted. For merely starting plants rich soil is not essential. Seed will germinate in moss and sand as well as in the richest mold. After the plants are started and begin to grow, a little plant food is necessary. Equal parts of sods, sand and well-rotted manure made into a compost and worked over and sifted until it is fine, is a favorite material for potted plants. Dried muck from the swamps is a useful material for the gardener. It will make heavy earth light and dry soil moist. It will make cold soil warm. It is an absorbent of water and grasses, and is in itself a manure. Muck should be exposed in a heap during summer, later turned to facilitate drying, and when dry stored where it will keep dry until required for use.

Boxes two and a half feet long, twelve inches wide and three inches deep, made of half-inch stuff, will be found a convenient size for starting plants, though these may be varied in size to suit the windows in which they are to be placed. They may be held in place by a screw at each end about an inch from the top of the outmost corners, wound round by a piece of wire of right length, the other end of which is twisted round a screw fastened to the casement of the window. In boxes such as have been described there is no reason why plants should not be successfully started.

Whether plants are or are not started in the house, a hot-bed will be found useful. Cold frames are also a great [illegible] hardening off plants. A well-sheltered spot in the garden with a sunny exposure is not, however, a bad substitute for a cold frame.—N. Y. World.

* * *

—The Dominion of Canada has three-cent letter postage, penny postal-cards, and free newspaper postage on papers sent from the office of publication. The service is nearly self-supporting. The current appropriation is a trifle over two million dollars. The policy has been to reduce rates and popularize the system as rapidly as possible. When the revenues exceed the expenses, the latter rate will be further reduced.

* * *

—The fruit of idleness usually runs to seed. If you don't believe it, look at the tramp.

Care of Fowls in Winter.

Most persons who keep fowls derive very little benefit from them during the winter. They gain little if anything in weight, and the losses are often large. Many birds are injured by the severe cold. They are liable to have their combs or feet frozen, or to become diseased or get out of condition. As fowls are generally selected and managed, very few eggs are obtained during the winter season. As fowls are not generally a source of profit during the winter their owners are very liable to neglect them. This neglect is the chief cause of their being unprofitable, and of the bad condition of the birds in the spring. All the gallinaceous fowls are of tropical or semi-tropical origin. However long they may have been kept in cold climates they retain their love of a tolerably warm atmosphere. They also retain their desire for green food and for a partial meat diet during all seasons of the year. Domesticated fowls raised in the North are not as well supplied with feathers as those that run wild in countries having quite warm climates. On this account they should be well housed during the winter. They suffer in winter not only from the cold but from the wet. They can endure a tolerably cold atmosphere provided they have suitable food and are kept dry. If their feathers become wet and the water turns to ice they will suffer on account of it. The roof of a poultry-house should be tight and the building should be well supplied with glass windows on the south and east sides. If it is well ventilated and kept scrupulously clean it may be artificially heated to good advantage.

Next to shelter and warmth the supply of food should claim attention. In most parts of the West this consists almost entirely of raw corn. This is good for a partial food, but it should not be relied on exclusively for keeping fowls during the winter. Generally it should not be fed oftener than once a day, and the best time to give it to fowls is at night. Other grains should be fed during the day, and it is desirable to so feed them as to afford a variety. Oats can be given one day, rye the next, and then wheat screenings or buckwheat. The seed of sunflowers, broom-corn and sugar-cane are all desirable. It is best to give young fowls some cooked meal in the form of dough. Coarse fat may be mixed with the dough to excellent advantage. Fowls of all ages require some meat, or a substitute for it. Where wild rabbits are plenty, as they are in many localities, there is little trouble in supplying fowls with meat during the winter. There is always considerable waste meat about a farmhouse that can be given to fowls. The trimmings of cut meats, hearts and livers can be obtained from butchers. Vegetables of some kind should be given to fowls every day during the continuance of cold weather. The trimmings and rusty leaves of celery are excellent. Cabbages are also very good. These can be fed without preparation. Beets, carrots, parsnips, pumpkins and squashes are all good in their way, but they should be cooked before they are given to fowls. They may be mixed with meal to which coarse fat is added. Fowls are very fond of hash, and show a greater preference for it than most frequenters of city boarding houses do. It can be made of scraps of lean and fat meat, potatoes, esculent roots, and favored with mustard seeds, chopped onions, or peppers. As a morning meal there is nothing superior to a hash made in this way. It should be served warm on clean boards or in low dishes.

Many persons who keep fowls are very negligent about supplying them with water. They think it is not necessary to give them a supply oftener than once a day. Generally in the morning they bring in a pailful of water and pour it in a pan or other shallow vessel, and pay no more attention to the water supply till the next day. The water may freeze in the course of a few hours, if the weather is severely cold, and the fowls have nothing to drink for twenty-four hours. If the water is not frozen, the chances are that it will be wasted or become too dirty to drink. To be of the greatest value to animals and birds water must be pure and fresh. Hens that are laying eggs, or are expected to lay eggs, require a large amount of water. Especially is this the case when they have little to eat but dry food. Birds that are producing eggs, like cows that are producing milk, require a large amount of water, for water is the largest ingredient of eggs and milk. It is generally more profitable to feed milk to fowls than to pigs. Skimmed milk or sour milk can be fed to them to great advantage. If the weather is severely cold, it is better to convert the skimmed milk into curd. It forms a very good substitute for meat. Pulverized shells, bones, or limestone should be provided for forming egg shells. Sand or fine gravel should also be provided. When the weather is fair the birds should be allowed to exercise in the open air. They should also be encouraged to exercise in the poultry house. The encouragement may be afforded by putting in bundles of unthrashed grain, stalks of buckwheat, heads of sunflowers, and cabbage-heads, and allowing them to pick out what they want to eat. Strict attention must be given to killing vermin on fowls, and to keeping the insects away. This matter will require repeated attention during the winter season.—Chicago Times.

Setting a Dislocated Neck.

As Adam Weiber, who lives at No. 50 Brinckerhoff avenue, was about to arise from his bed early yesterday morning, he turned his head suddenly upward and to the right, and was much surprised and startled afterward to find that he was unable to move it again. He was taken to Dr R. V. Morse's office, who sent him to Dr. Terry's office, and after an investigation it was pronounced a case of dislocation of the third cervical vertebra. As the case was a very peculiar one, a large number of physicians were called in to see it, and all concurred in the conclusion of Dr. Terry. The reduction of the dislocation of the third cervical vertebra is attended with considerable danger, and at the sufferer's request Rev. Father Fehling, of St. Mary's Catholic Church, was called in as his spiritual adviser. The head was bent to the right, and to leave it in that condition meant death. Yet an attempt to reduce the dislocation might be attended with instant death. Dr. Churchill, being the oldest physician present, was called upon to replace the dislocated member, and after ether had been administered the dislocation was reduced successfully.—Utica (N. Y.) Herald.

* * *

—The convenience of having ice at hand during the summer is best understood by making a trial of it for a single season. Farmers who use ice once a year will never again be without it. For a dairy it is almost indispensable. Farmers can usually secure a supply of ice in the winter, practically without expense, after the ice-house is built, as the work would be done when men and teams have nothing else of importance to do.—Exchange.

HOME AND FARM.

—Too much whole grain will make the hens fat, more liable to disease, and less likely to lay.

—For citron cake stir together three cups of brown sugar, four and one-half cups of flour, seven eggs, two cups of citron cut in small pieces, two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sweet milk.—Chicago News.

—The basket willow will grow well around the mill ponds and along the margins of the water-courses. It is an article which is always salable, and should be made to take the place of the unsightly briars and bushes that often prove so troublesome in such places.

—The United States Veterinary Journal, Chicago, recommends the following as a remedy for heaves: Powdered resin, two ounces; tartar emetic, two ounces; Spanish brown, two ounces, and Cayenne pepper, two ounces. Mix and give two teaspoonfuls twice a day in soft feed.

—For Lancashire pie, take cold beef or veal and chop and season as for hash; then put into a shallow baking-dish a layer of the meat, then a layer of hot-mashed potatoes, well seasoned, and so on until the dish is filled. Make the top layer of the potatoes and make little holes and drop in small pieces of butter, and bake until a nice brown.

—The Devon cattle, in the opinion of the Chicago Times, are probably better adapted to the conditions and wants of the far West, where the feed is scanty, the climate severe, and considerable heavy teaming is required, than animals of any other breed. It predicts that, though for the present out of fashion, they are "as sure to come into fashion again as the old styles of bonnets."

—Substitute for Butter: A lady who is a famous housekeeper recommends an economical plan for making cakes without butter, which may be of use to our readers who have a dread of "margarine." Take a piece of fat pork, melt it down and strain it through a piece of coarse, thin muslin. Set it aside until it is cold. It is then white and firm, and may be used like butter in any kind of cake. In pound-cake, she assures us it is delicious.

—Graham Pudding: Mix well together one-half a coffee cup of molasses, one-quarter of a cup of butter, one egg, one-half a cup of milk, one-half a teaspoonful of pure soda, one and one-half cups of good graham flour, one small teacup of raisins, spices to taste. Steam four hours and serve with brandy or wine sauce, or any sauce that may be preferred. This makes a showy as well as a light and wholesome dessert, and has the merit of simplicity and cheapness.—Toledo Blade.

—Wet weather is frequently followed by attacks of pneumonia among sheep. These animals can not well resist wet and cold together. This disease is rarely cured. The best treatment is to give small tablespoonful doses of turpentine in milk once a day—in the morning before eating. A dram of saltpeter given in a bran mash may be beneficial. But care to keep the sheep dry and to provide a dry, airy shed for them is far more effective to prevent the trouble than any medicine can be to promote a cure.—N. Y. Times.

Mustard.

Within the past few years the production of mustard has become quite an industry in California. About three thousand tons a year are now produced. The mustard plant flourishes most in the Salinas Valley, Alameda County and the southern part of the State. There are two varieties—brown and yellow. The former grows wild, while the yellow is cultivated. The brown mustard seed is growing more scarce every year, because as it luxuriates on good wheat lands the farmers pluck the weeds from their growing wheat. The mixture of mustard with wheat makes the wheat rank and destroys its sale. So while the wheat farmer declares war on the small mustard seed he is enhancing its value. Formerly the brown mustard seed was worth only two cents per pound; now that it is scarcer it sells at three and one-half cents, and will likely advance in proportion to its scarcity. Formerly the yellow mustard seed was dearer, but now it is cheaper, because more abundant. The yellow variety is imported from England and from Holland. The brown seed is imported from Italy.

The yellow mustard fields of the Salinas Valley are very beautiful, and smell ranks not only to heaven, but to every passer-by who inhales the heavily laden breezes. The plant grows to a height of two or three feet within a month. It is cultivated mainly by Chinese. During the first nine months of the present year about 250,000 pounds were shipped from that city, and nearly 50,000 pounds were shipped from interior points. The bulk of the shipments are sent East by rail, but large shipments are also made by steamer and sailing vessels around the Horn. The Sovereign of the Seas will leave in a few days with 5,000 sacks.

There is a brisk demand for mustard in Eastern markets, and our dealers say they can easily get rid of their supplies. Mustard is on the free list. Before the civil war there was a duty on it, but it was repealed under the pretense that mustard was a medicinal quality, necessary for plasters to weak backs. The mustard merchants in this city want the duty restored to protect a Pacific coast industry.

Mustard was formerly used as a medicine. It was not known to the table until about 1720. The seed had been previously pounded in a mortar, and in that crude state separated from the integuments and prepared for use. In England at the period referred to it occurred to a woman named Clements that mustard could be used for other purposes than blistering. She ground the seed in a mill and treated it the same way as flour is treated. Her mustard was, in consequence, very superior, and being approved by George I, speedily came into general use. [illegible] kept her secret for a considerable time, though a woman, and acquired a large fortune. In the countries of the far East mustard is extensively cultivated. Half an acre is considered a good-sized farm.—San Francisco Chronicle.

* * *

—According to the newly revised pharmacopœia, quinine must no longer be called quinine, its recent Latin name, but quinina. The word hydrate in chloral hydrate has been knocked off, and other alterations made. But for what possible reason have the committee revised out of existence their former English synonyme licorice, and substituted the awful word of "Doctor's Latin," glycyrriza? Such a change if enforced would ruin half the confectionery shops of the land. Imagine any possible small boy asking for a cent's worth of glycyrrhiza!—N. Y. Sun.

A Monopoly of '49.

Mr. Henry L. Goodwin, of East Hartford, Conn., made a good share of his large fortune by a curious sort of monopoly. He was a California "forty-niner," and in those early days, when San Francisco and its vicinity had a wretchedly poor supply of drinking water, he was one evening charged half a dollar by a man who owned a well for a drink for his oxen. That made him mad and he resolved that he too would become known as man-who-owns-a-well. With the aid of his partner, an engineer, he bored eighty feet deep on his town lot and there struck an inexhaustible supply of the best water yet found on the whole coast. Then he established a free drinking fountain for all passers-by but for all other purposes he sold the water, six gallons for a cent. Cattle owners could have their stock watered for fifty cents a yoke per week. For a long time everyone who wanted pure water had to go to Goodwin's well for it, and a handsome fortune was realized therefrom.—Hartford (Conn.) Currant.

* * *

—The Chicago correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal says: "An immense number of young women here have been seized with a frenzy to have their tresses dressed in the style of the 'Langtry bang.' This necessitates cutting the hair to within two or three inches of the head head as far back as the crown and arranging this shortened crop in a series of flat reversed curls. This may be a new rage, but it is as ancient a style in treatment as the wig itself."

—A big Chicago firm is going into the business of preparing beef for the Eastern market on a huge scale. They have a capacity of slaughtering one thousand cattle a day and for "chilling" three thousand, and say that they can chill meat for exactly what it costs to handle the ice. The chilled meat will be sent East in immense quantities in refrigerator cars.—N. Y. Herald.

—It should never more be said that it is no offense to take an umbrella. Henry Wilson and W. B. Lewis, of Cincinnati, presumed too much upon the immunity which umbrella thieves are alleged to have, and took one from in front of a store. The minions of the law pursued them, and each was fined $150 and committed to jail for thirty days besides.—Detroit Post.

—The fall of a factory chimney at Bradford, England, the other day, was caused by an attempt to straighten the chimney, which leaned over on one side, by chipping the mortar from between [illegible] in the other side. This so weakened the structure that it fell, killing forty people and injuring more than fifty others.

—The story is told in the New York papers of a young actor who, on receiving his week's salary, purposely made a disturbance in the streets in order that he might be committed to jail, where he hoped to overcome his drinking habits. According to his story, the fashion of "treating" was gradually ruining him in purse and body.

—An enterprising orange-grower in Florida recently sent an order to a New York butter factory for several barrels of skimmed milk. He wanted it for a wash for trees to kill off insects, but he could not obtain it. It was all used for making "full cream cheese."—N. Y. Tribune.

—SAN FRANCISCO papers relates that Rear Admiral Schenck, whose death occurred recently, was the first to bring gold East from California. He was a Lieutenant then, and was dispatched with the news of the discovery by Commodore Ap. Catesby Jones, and took with him three claret cases of gold chunks.

—A PITTSBURGH detective observes that there are few fat men among the criminal classes. The lean and hungry Cassius is the bad man. "Our most desperate criminals," the detective remarks to a reporter, "are mostly small-sized men with light complexions."

A Hotel Man's Luck.

Mr. J. G. Tyler, chief clerk at the Union Depot Hotel, Ogden, had rheumatism in the muscles of the chest and left shoulder. By applying the Great German Remedy three days he realized complete restoration, and he is of the opinion that there is nothing equal to the St. Jacobs Oil for pain. The Great German Remedy is also a specific for burns and sprains.—Salt Lake (Utah) Tribune.

TOM THUMB tried to knock down a Chicago hackman, and was mad because the man didn't know it.

Snakes as Life Destroyers.

The loss of life in India due to the ravages of venomous snakes is almost incredible. Yet Consumption, which is as wily and fatal as the deadliest Indian reptile, is winding its coils around thousands of people while the victims are unconscious of its presence. Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" must be used to cleanse the blood of the scrofulous impurities, for tubercular consumption is only a form of scrofulous disease. "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy for all forms of scrofulous disease, or king's-evil, such as tumors, white swellings, fever sores, scrofulous sore eyes, as well as for other blood and skin diseases. By druggists.

WHAT'S the use of getting up loan exhibitions when the windows of pawn-shops are open to all gazers?—Detroit Free Press.

"How do you like my pin?" said young Brown, speaking to his most cherished girl and referring to a new scarf-pin. "Oh!" said she, "is it a pin? I noticed it; but I thought it was a bit of salad dropped on your tie, and I was going to call your attention to it."—Newark Call.

THE Mississippi is the artery of the nation; therefore some think that money spent upon its improvement is expended in vein.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE United States has forty-six different treaties with Mexico, and yet the greasers skip over the top rails and steal our cattle the same as if we hadn't one. The next treaty should have more powder and lead in it.

"You are always prying into other people's business," said the policeman to the burglar who was endeavoring to open a jewelry store with a jimmy.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

THERE was a first-class story-book wedding at New Haven, Conn., the other day. Henri Mouton, a handsome young Frenchman, saw and loved Adele Pommier years ago in France. Pretty Adele was a laborer's daughter, Henri a tradesman's son, and the stern parents frowned on their love. So Henri started forth in pursuit of fortune and independence, giving up his prized office at home of a sergeant de ville, came to Wallingford, hoarded his earnings through the years, and finally sent for his sweetheart. She escaped from her relatives and was joined to her hero in happy wedlock.—New Haven Register.

A RECIPE for lemon pie vaguely adds: "Then sit on a stove and stir constantly." Just as if anybody could sit on a stove without stirring constantly.

A LEMON from Florida, weighing over three pounds, has been on exhibition in Boston. It's sour of [illegible] that such a lemon is worth squeezing.—N. Y. News.

HANDSOME tidies are placed on satin-covered sofas, not so much as a gurantee of good faith as to cover up the spot that is worn through.—Puck.

A MILLINERY house in Toronto has failed for $150,000. How the concern came to have two spring bonnets left on its hands is not known.

Taken Out of Bed.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have to thank you for the great relief received from your "Favorite Prescription." My sickness had lasted seven years, one of which I was in bed. After taking one bottle I was able to be about the house. Respectfully, AMANDA K. ENNIS, Fulton, Mich.

THE poorest excuse a boy can give for not wanting to saw wood is "The saw's got the toothache."—Baltimore News.

Fits, Fits, Fits,

Successfully treated by World's Dispensary Medical Association. Address, with stamp for pamphlet, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE question which excites the drivers of public carriages is: "Does a hack or a coupe best?"

A Happy Lady.

Mrs. Harriet Orr, of Lancaster, Pa., is perhaps one of the happiest residents of that place. "I have been subject to inward weakness and pains in the small of my back for ten years," said Mrs. Orr, "and I had given up all hopes of getting better. I was induced to try Mishler's Herb Bitters, and after using it for a short time I am happy to call myself well." For all diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Billiousness, Nervous Ailments and General Debility, there is nothing so good as Mishler's Herb Bitters.

JONES—"Can you give me change for a dollar?" Fend son (the simpleton)—"Yes; how much do you want?"—Boston Post.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Will rescue the baby from croup. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

WHEN a convict's watch runs down it does not necessarily follow that his time has expired.

FOR COLDS AND SORE THROAT, no more useful article can be found than "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Sold only in boxes. 25 cts.

WHAT poem does barking your shin remind you of? Graze L e g, of course.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

RUSSIA Salve is unrivaled for its speedy healing qualities. Ask your druggist for it. 25 cts.

THE proper way to warm the house is to keep the cellar coaled.

STRAIGHTEN old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again.

A LITTLE New Hartford three-year-old in admiring her baby brother, exclaimed: "He's got a boiled head like papa."

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 35c.

A TIE VOTE: When two people agree to get married.—Boston Star.

RHEUMATISM CURED. Send stamp for free prescription. R. K. Helphenstine, Washington, D. C.

LAWYERS are given credit for being sharp because they generally file their answers.

The Doctor's Endorsement.

Dr. W. D. Wright, Cincinnati, O., sends the subjoined professional endorsement: "I have prescribed DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS in a great number of cases and always with success. One case in particular was given up by several physicians who had been called in for consultation with myself. The patient had all the symptoms of confirmed consumption—cold night sweats, hectic fever, harassing cough, etc. He commenced immediately to get better and was soon restored to his usual health. I have also found DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS the most valuable expectorant for breaking up distressing coughs and colds that I have ever used."

THE mania for adulteration is so great that you can't buy a pound of sand and be sure that it is not half sugar.—Philadelphia News.

SKINNY Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health cures dyspepsia, impotence. $1. "WELLS' ROUGH ON CORNS." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure. Corns, warts, bunions.

IF you kan't trust a man for the full amount, let him skip. This trying to git an average on honesty has always been a failure.—Josh Billings.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

Our Watchful Guardian and Faithful Protector Restored to Active Duty Again.

MR. HENRY A. WATERMAN, of the city of Providence, R. I., for many years the faithful and vigilant night watchman of the Barstow Stove Company's very extensive establishment, having been confined to his home several weeks by a very distressing illness, on resuming his duties again avails himself of this early opportunity for stating briefly a few plain facts.

MR. WATERMAN, says:

"A few months ago I was taken down with a severe sickness, which confined me to the house quite a long time, and much of the time I was so very lame as to be unable to walk, and my left leg, from the hip to the toes, became monstrously swollen, and I suffered extremely from the constant intense pains produced by so great inflammation; I was trying the various so-called cures, all the time, and was under the treatment of a physician seven weeks, but getting no substantial relief. At this time an old time friend, a police officer, called upon me, and during our conversation informed me of the great benefit which he had obtained by the use of Hunt's Remedy, and urged me to try it, as he considered it a wonderful medicine. I commenced taking Hunt's Remedy, having very little faith that it would do much in such a stubborn case as mine, but my doubt was soon dispelled, for before I had taken one bottle I began to get better, the severe pains disappeared, the swollen leg gradually decreased in size, and I was encouraged to continue the use of the Remedy; and the improvement to my health continues, my appetite is good. I have regained my strength, and I am now performing again my duties as watchman at the foundry. Every night I go up and down stairs more than one hundred times, and am in good condition, and feel that my recovery is due to Hunt's Remedy alone. My severe sickness and terribly swollen leg was caused by the diseased state of my kidneys, and I think that it is a most valuable medicine that will so speedily relieve and cure such a severe case as mine. I therefore most cheerfully recommend Hunt's Remedy to all afflicted with kidney diseases, as I know it to be a safe and reliable remedy.

"PROVIDENCE, Dec. 5, 1882."

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives steadiness to the nerves, induces a healthy, natural flow of bile, prevents constipation without unduly purging the bowels, gently stimulates the circulation, and by promoting a vigorous condition of the physical system, promotes, also, that cheerfulness which is the truest indication of a well-balanced condition of all the animal powers. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

MANUFACTURED BY MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL CO.

MERCHANT'S

ESTD — 1833

GARGLING OIL

A

LINIMENT

JOHN HODGE, SEC'Y. — LOCKPORT, N.Y. U.S.A.

For Internal and External Use.

CURES RHEUMATISM,
Burns, Scalds, Chilblains,
Frost Bites, Chapped Hands,
Flesh Wounds, Sprains, Bruises,
External Poisons, Caked Breasts,
Sore Nipples, Toothache,
Cramps or Spasms of Stomach,
Colic, Asthma, or Internal Pain,
Lame Back, Bites of Animals,
Galls of all kinds, Sitfast,
Ringbones, Cracked Teats,
Poll Evil, Garget in Cows, Spavins,
Sweeney, Scratches or Grease,
Foot Rot in Sheep, Stringhalt,
Windgalls, Roup in Poultry,
Foundered Feet, Fistula,
Cracked Heels, Mange in Dogs.

Ask your nearest Dealer or Druggist for one of our Almanacs for 1883.

From the Christian Leader N. Y., Oct. 29, '71.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—We have made special personal inquiry in regard to the merits of this celebrated remedy, and find it a genuine article of rare value. It is by no means a new remedy. The establishment which produces it dates its manufacture as far back as 1833, since which time it has been steadily growing in public favor. The patentees are among the foremost business men of the city of Lockport. They are every way reliable.

From the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, July 6, 1871.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—This Old standard article, under the admirable management of John Hodge, Esq., has reached an enormous sale. It is an honestly compounded article; it has merit, and now that the best business talent of the country is handling it, there is no reason why it should not double its present usefulness. No family can afford to be without it. For family use, as well as for animals, it is simply indispensable.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

All we ask is a fair trial, but be sure and follow directions.

The Gargling Oil and Merchant's Worm Tablets are for sale by all druggists and dealers in general merchandise throughout the world.

Large Size $1 00; Medium 50 c.; Small 25 c.; Small Size for family use 25 c.

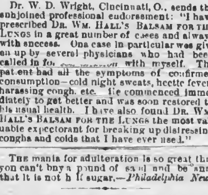
Manufactured at Lockport, N. Y., by Merchant's Gargling Oil Company.

John Hodge

Secretary.

ST. JACOBS OIL

TRADE MARK



THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

30,000 COPIES SOLD

first six months of TREASURY OF SONG. The most popular musical work ever issued. Sells rapidly, has no competition in the subscription trade, consequently the best book for agents to sell. Every one who sings, or loves music wants it. Contains 300 select songs—comic, sentimental and religious in grand variety—printed in sheet music style, handsomely bound, at low price of $2.50 per copy. No knowledge of music necessary to sell it. Agents wanted in every city, town and county in the U. S. For terms to agents address,

HUBBARD BROS., 51 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R.
LANDS
Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS. Full particulars FREE.
IN WISCONSIN.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION.
25 ¢ 100

PATENTS PROCURED! or NO PAY! Also—Trade marks, etc. Send model and sketch; will examine and report if patentable. MANY years practice. Pamphlet free. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D.C.

Chrolithion Collars and Cuffs. Handsome, Durable, Waterproof, Superior to Linen, Paper or Celluloid. Sent by mail. For circular, send Postal Card to Box 916, Newburyport, Mass.

ENGINES (Traction & Portable) for Farm, Saw Mill & Plantation. For prices, etc., write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

$47 A MONTH and board in your county. Men or Ladies. Pleasant business. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., Box 91, Chicago, Ill.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS., Bible Houses, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and ASTONISH you.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS Make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., N. Y.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

WANTED---AGENTS.

To buy and sell the WANLESS DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1,000 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO., 136 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

SEEDS

I will give you the best Seeds for the least money of any firm in America or refund. Western Seeds are best. Mine take the lead. Gardeners say they never fail. I used 6,000 lbs paper to print 50,000 pretty Catalogues illustrated with $2,000 worth of engravings. It beats the world, worth many dollars. FREE. Prices below all. R. H. SHUMWAY, Rockford, Ill.

Best Seeds cheap pretty Book Free.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

CANCER INSTITUTE. AURORA ILL. Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

JUST OUT. NEW STOVE PIPE SHELF. One agent made $100.00 in 56 days. Boxing and Freight Free. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., CINCINNATI & KANSAS CITY.

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Phila'a, Pa.

Agents For Circulars and Samples send Postal to ECONOMY PRINTING CO., NEWBURYPORT, Mass. Wanted

Send $2 to A. W. Hamilton & Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., for Dr. Chase's Family Physician; sells fast. Agents Wanted. Watson's Interest Tables, $3.50.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Write for catalogue. Coleman & Palms, Prop'rs.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. DR. KRUSE, 2814 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

ELECTRIC BELT $3—$1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free, Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O

MUSTANG

Survival of the Fittest.

A FAMILY MEDICINE THAT HAS HEALED MILLIONS DURING 35 YEARS!

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

A BALM FOR EVERY WOUND OF MAN AND BEAST!

THE OLDEST & BEST LINIMENT EVER MADE IN AMERICA.

SALES LARGER THAN EVER.

The Mexican Mustang Liniment has been known for more than thirty-five years as the best of all Liniments, for Man and Beast. Its sales to-day are larger than ever. It cures when all others fail, and penetrates skin, tendon and muscle, to the very bone. Sold everywhere.

"GOLDEN DAYS"

FOR BOYS and GIRLS,

The Brightest and Best of all the Juvenile Publications.

A Specimen Copy will be sent Free to Any Address.

GOLDEN DAYS is a sixteen-page weekly, filled with stories, sketches of adventure, instructive matter and everything that can interest, entertain and benefit boys and girls.

New Serial Stories in Volume Four.

In No. 1 we shall begin a new series by OLIVER OPTIC. The first is entitled "Lyon Hart; or Adrift in the World." "Louis Chiswick, or Going With the Current," is the second. "Royal Tarr; or Learning to Live," is the third. "Dame Trot's" (A story for Girls as well as Boys), by Mrs M. F. Waggaman; "In a Winter Camp," by Wm. A. Ford; "An Emperor's Son," by Lieut. James K. Orton; "The Cruise of the Snowbird," by Gordon Stables; "Up the Indian Ocean," by Frank H. Converse; "Captured by Crows," by Franklin Calkins; "A Home in the Wilds," by Elsie Leigh Whittlesey; "Anthony Blake," by Fannie Williams; "Shelton's Sister," by Frank R. Stockton; "Phil and His Wanderings," by Frank H. Converse.

Also, Serial Stories by Harry Castlemon, Ralph Hamilton, Louis Rousselet and other Popular Writers. Besides the Serials, the following, with numerous other attractions, will appear in the New Volume, all handsomely illustrated:

"Winter Indoor Amusements." "Lessons in Chess and Checkers." "Practical Hints to Young Painters," by F. Emeric de St. Dalmas; "Traps and Snares, and How to Make Them," by Wm. A. Ford; "Small Pets, and How to Care For and Teach Them," by James Otis; "Fiddles, and How to Make Them," by Horace Patherick; "The Boys' Pigeon-Loft and Dove-Cot," by a Professional Judge; "Bees and Bee-Keeping for Boys," by W. H. Harris; "Yacht, Canoe and Boat Building," by C. Stansfield Hicks; "Knots and Cordage," by an Old Sailor; "Sea Myths;" "Fishing Tackle, and How to Make It," by J. Harrington Keene; "Birds' Eggs and Egg-Collecting," by the Rev. J. G. Wood; "The Boys' Poultry Run," by Gordon Stables; "The Microscope, and How to Use It," "Wild-Beast Tamers and Their Pupils;" "Adventures with Elephants in Many Lands," by Old Hunters. "Silver and Golden Pheasants, Guinea-Fowls and Peacocks, as Pets," by Gordon Stables.

Articles on "Entomology, Natural History, Scientific Subjects, etc., etc., by the best authors. In addition to this numerous array of special attractions, there will be short stories and sketches by the best known authors.

SPECIAL OFFER.

To obtain the services of as many boys and girls in getting subscribers to GOLDEN DAYS as possible, we offer them the following inducements. On every THREE-DOLLAR SUBSCRIPTION received, we will mail, postage paid, to the sender, any one of the bound books he or she may select from the following series:

"Camping Out Series," by C. A. Stephens; "Jack Hazard Series," by J. T. Trowbridge; "Gunboat Series," by Harry Castlemon; "Rocky Mountain Series," by Harry Castlemon; "Sportsman's Club Series," by Harry Castlemon; "Frank Nelson Series," by Harry Castlemon; "Boy Trapper Series," by Harry Castlemon; "Roughing It Series," by Harry Castlemon; "Ragged Dick Series," by Horatio Alger, Jr.; "Tattered Tom Series," by Horatio Alger, Jr.; "Tattered Tom Series, Second Series;" "Campaign Series," by Horatio Alger, Jr.; "Pacific Series," by Horatio Alger, Jr.

These books are handsomely bound, and retail at $1 25 each.

Boys who would be willing to pay twenty-five cents or fifty cents per volume for a series of these books, might easily get them by offering to take subscriptions at a less rate than three dollars, supplying the difference themselves, and thus secure the books.

To any one sending us ten subscribers, with the money (thirty dollars), we will send them, in addition to the ten volumes, a beautiful bound copy of GOLDEN DAYS, Volume Second.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES EITHER FOR THE WEEKLY OR MONTHLY PART:

For 1 month, - 25c. For 4 months, - $1.00
For 2 months, - 50c. For 6 months, - 1.50
For 3 months, - 75c. For 1 year, - - 3.00

Subscriptions can begin with any number. Back numbers supplied at the same rates. We pay all postage. Money should be sent to us either by Post-Office Order or Registered Letter, so as to provide as far as possible against its loss by mail.

All communications, business or otherwise, must be addressed to JAMES ELVERSON,

Publisher of "GOLDEN DAYS," Philadelphia, Pa.

STRONG POINTS ABOUT MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

ARE AN ABSOLUTE CURE FOR KIDNEY TROUBLES, LIVER COMPLAINT, Dyspepsia and all Bowel Disorders.

They supply tone to the stomach, reinvigorate the digestive organs, stimulate the secretions, promote a regular action of the bowels, and enable every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption. In use in U. S. since 1855, and in Germany for over 200 years. For the complaints peculiar to all of the FEMALE SEX, they are unequalled by any medicine in the world. With the trade mark "Hope," they have proven a boon to millions of distressed people. Compounded with as much care as any extract. Proved best.

A Reliable Household Remedy thoroughly adapted to assist nature. Highly commended as a general Tonic and Appetizer. Send for "Messenger of Health."

Mishler Herb Bitters Co. Lancaster, Pa. At druggists. $1.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup Never Fails.

SHEPARD CHURCH COLLECTION

—FOR—

Quartet and Chorus Choirs.

A fine collection of Quartets and Anthems of a novel and striking character, by such composers as Gounod, Stainer, Rubenstein, Sullivan, Rheinberger, Franz and Schubert, in all about 51 pieces, by about 40 noted musicians. Compiled and arranged by W. M. RICHARDSON and J. E. BURGESS. The solo singers are well remembered. Price, $1.25.

Dobson's Universal BANJO INSTRUCTOR.

The Banjo is getting to be quite a fashionable instrument, and deservedly so, in its present improved form. Messrs. H. C. and G. C. DOBSON have provided in this new instructor, all that is needed, including 51 bright Reels, Jigs, Hornpipes, Walk-rounds, Waltzes, Polkas and Schottisches, and 23 popular songs. Price, $1.00.

Ruth and Boaz.

A new Sacred Cantata, of a charming character, fairly easy, and just the thing to give in a vestry, by such a chorus as can be easily formed. Scenery and costumes simple and not expensive. By E. A. ANDREWS. Price, 65 cents, or $6 per dozen.

The CHORAL CHOIR ($1.00), for Choirs, and the PEERLESS (75 cts.), both by Dr. W. O. PERKINS, for Singing Classes, are the newest and best books of the kind.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

USE NONE BUT THE BEST. THE GREAT FAMILY SOAP MAKER. SAPONIFIER THE ORIGINAL CONCENTRATED LYE SOLD BY ALL GROCERS PENNA. SALT MANUF'G CO. PHILA.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.

Best in the World. Get the genuine. Every package has our Trade-mark and is marked Frazer's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.

Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

A. N. K.—E. 911 5—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Boone County Recorder.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1883. NUMBER 15.

THE STEAM WHISTLE.

With bale and ban
Curst be the man,
With ear of toughest gristle
Who first conceived
And then bereaved
His brain of the steam whistle—
The engineer's pet whistle,
The "angel whisper" whistle,
Horse-crazing,
Cattle-hazing,
Man-amazing
Whistle.

Morn paints the sky—
To France I hie,
Where John went (see epistle)—
A fiendish yell
My dreams dispel—
'Tis that infernal whistle.
That zenith-soaring whistle,
That earth-devouring whistle,
That welkin-rending,
Wide-extending,
Heaven offending
Whistle.

Gone my repose is;
Tho' meek as Moses,
With righteous wrath I bristle;
And fume and fuss,
And storm and cuss
At that confounded whistle—
That mournful, moaning whistle,
That shrill, death-shrieking whistle,
That sharp, persisting,
Brain-entwisting,
Oath assisting
Whistle.

Were I a saint
(The which I ain't),
I'd take some deadly missile,
Some metal tract,
Or "Texas tract,"
And interview that whistle,
That diabolical whistle,
That peace-destroying whistle,
That ear-drum-shivering,
Nerves-set-quivering,
Curse-deserving
Whistle.

—Philadelphia Record.

THE CHICKADEE AND ITS COMPANIONS.

On mild days in winter, when we open our windows to admit the breath of heaven within doors, while listening to the frequent clash of icicles loosened by the sunshine, and to the dropping eaves, as the melting snow gives us a musical intimation of the coming of spring, we may hear a little bird crying "chickadee-dee" from a tree very near the house. Another soon answers him from the garden or orchard; and these notes and their responses are repeated with occasional intervals throughout the day. We hear at the same time, though not so often repeated, the "yank, yank"—like the sound of a child's toy-trumpet—of the white-breasted nut-hatch, as it moves spirally around the branches of a tree in its diligent search for insects; and, withal, the shrill notes of the little downy woodpecker. These birds and the brown creeper are usually associated in winter with the chickadee. They keep together apparently to escape that solitude which may be painful to them in the dark days of winter, and perhaps from a sense of greater security when in company with other small birds.

The chickadees do not assemble in flocks, like buntings and cedar birds. They are commonly seen in parties of six or eight; and while foraging singly on different trees, they utter their call note and then wait for a response. If they hear none they again cry "chickadee-dee," until some one answers. The birds use this note for mutual recognition, that they may not be separated beyond hailing distance. The song of the chickadee is very different—not querulous, like his call note, but two flute notes like pee-dee, the first syllable accented and about a musical third above the second. Beside the song and the call notes, I have frequently heard the chickadee sing in a low warbling tone a kind of soliloquy, apparently for its own amusement.

The chickadee, or black-capped titmouse, is a very small bird, with the top of the head and throat black, beneath a light ash color and brownish-white on the sides. This bird is universally known; it confines itself chiefly to the woods in summer, and in winter pays frequent visits to the garden and orchard for certain insects which are abundant in the fruit trees. Prompted by hunger, it sometimes enters our inclosures and picks up crumbs of bread and meat from the ground. These little birds seem numerous in winter, because hunger renders them more familiar, and the absence of the summer birds and the leafless condition of the trees make them more conspicuous and cause their voices to be more audible in the greater silence that prevails in this season.

We marvel at the power of resisting cold in birds so minute as the chickadees; but they are thickly clad in downy feathers, and constantly in motion during the day. At night they resort to the hollows that contain their nests, where they find warmth and protection; but in the daytime they seem mindless of the severest cold. They seek fatty substances, like other winter birds; and if a piece of suet be nailed to a tree or a post, the chickadees and other small birds will frequently peck from it. This contributes to their animal heat. Many of them perish, however, some perhaps from starvation; others become victims of the shrike, a rapacious bird that winters in the Northern and Middle States. The unfortunate individual who introduced the English sparrows into our land, as Satan brought sin into the world, in one respect befriended our small winter birds by furnishing the shrike and the owl with additional booty. I would join with Dr. Coues, therefore, in protecting the shrike until the English sparrows are exterminated.

The chickadee places its nest in the hollow of a tree, after clearing it of chaff. It is composed of a variety of soft materials, fine mosses and leaves of grass, with a lining of cotton and hair, all closely felted. The quantity of material varies according to the width of the cavity. When very spacious, the nest is constructed in the form of a purse, with a hole at the top for the bird's entrance. The eggs are usually six, rarely exceeding eight; they are white, with a faint reddish tint, and dotted with brown at the larger end.

The benefit conferred upon agriculture by the chickadees from their consumption of insects is immense. They are exclusively insectivorous, and being permanent residents their good work never ceases. Each individual, according to computation, consumes annually nearly half a million of insects with their larvæ. This seems to me a moderate calculation. The companions of the chickadee join in the same good work, and are equally useful in proportion to their numbers. The least valuable species as checks to the multiplication of insects are the granivorous birds. The English sparrows, especially, confine their foraging to the little æsthetic mounds that temporarily adorn our streets and roads, and to those æsthetic coverings which are spread upon the inclosures of fanciful people who are especially neat in the management of their lawns.

The birds most frequently seen with the chickadee, and therefore regarded as its companions, are the nut-hatch, the creeper and the little downy woodpecker. My most agreeable reminiscences of winter rambles are associated with these birds. Sometimes, during a period of calm sunshine, the squirrels will come out of their burrows, and in the echoing silence we hear their rustling leap among the dry oak leaves, and the dropping of nuts from the lofty branches of the hickory. The woods are then frequented by numbers of these little woodpeckers, so interesting on account of their lively motions, their brilliant plumage with its contrasted colors, and their curious manner of winding in and out and over and under the branches of the trees.

Small parties of these birds will often assemble in company with creepers, nut-hatches and chickadees, and make the woods resound with their querulous voices; for though evidently fond of being together, something will occasionally happen that causes a shout of scolding and chattering that does not quickly subside. The mild serenity of the weather, the fresh odors from thawing vegetation, the beautiful haze that surrounds the horizon, reflecting all the colors of the rainbow, the lively chattering of poultry in the farmyards, the bleating of flocks and the lowing of kine, an occasional concert of crows in a neighboring wood, and the lively cerulean plumage of the jay, that often flashes upon the eye—all these sights and sounds, when thus united, make winter for a day or two as delightful as June.

The chickadees seem to be the leaders of this interesting group of small birds, among which the downy woodpecker is the most attractive. Dr. Coues notices the hairy woodpecker "among the few birds that endure the run of winter in the Upper Missouri, apparently without the slightest inconvenience. On entering the crackling, dry weed patches of the bottom at such times, the ear is often saluted with the shrill, startling quank of the active bird, unseen in the low covert, until disturbed at its meal in its snug retreat, it takes a long, swift swing up into the nearest tree, or disappears among the festoons, further into the underwood."

There is a precise similarity between the hairy and the downy woodpeckers; their only difference is in their size. The downy woodpecker is but a miniature of the other. Their ways and habits are similar, and their notes differ only in volume and sharpness. It is the smaller species that most frequently associates with the chickadees, following them through the wood, the garden and orchard, and even into the barnyard, and sounding its little trumpet note along with the "chickadee-dee" of its comrades.

The downy woodpeckers do not make a nest. They lay their eggs on the bare wood, in holes which they excavate in the trunk of some old tree, preferring one that is half-decayed on account of the greater ease of perforating it. After boring five or six inches in a slightly downward direction, probably to secure better light and ventilation, it is carried down perpendicularly two or three inches, and the bottom of the cavity is smoothed and rounded to receive the eggs. This habit of laying their eggs on the bare wood, without any soft nesting materials, comes probably from an instinct that prompts them to use this method of protecting their young from vermin, which are always profuse in the nests of birds that build in holes. The downy woodpecker lays six eggs, which are purely white.

The creeper forages along with the chickadees and woodpeckers. Its colors are dark gray varied with white and brown. Indeed, all the birds of this group have only a different mixture of the same colors. Those of the woodpecker are speckled or checkered, and are more lively in their contrasts. The creeper comes next in the speckled character of its plumage; the chickadee and the nut-hatch are pied, not speckled. The creeper is remarkable for a habit, when it perceives some one watching it, of keeping on the opposite side of the tree, and eludes observation by ascending the bole on the same side to the top, and then flying off.

The white-breasted nut-hatch is another of this interesting group. Like the others, its colors are a mixture of white, brown and gray, arranged more like those of the chickadee. It is ashen blue above, with a black head and neck, the remainder of its plumage chiefly white and gray. The nut-hatches resemble the woodpeckers in their habits; and when searching for insects and their larvæ they bore into the bark of trees and tear off the lichens and scales with their strong beaks. Of these four species which I have described, the woodpeckers only excavate their own habitations; the others appropriate one already made. According to Mr. Gentry's observation, they are not always secure in the occupancy of their resort. He tells a story of a pair of nut-hatches that built their nest in the hollow of an oak. After removing the remnants of a squirrel's nest, and when they had collected the materials for their own, a pair of flying squirrels, the former occupants, took possession of the premises and expelled the birds.

All winter have these little wanderers traversed the wood, the garden and the orchard, now widely separated, then coming together on hearing their mutual call notes—the music of their irregular march—in severe weather creeping among the oaks and pines of the dense wood, on calm, still days foraging among our fruit trees and wayside elms. Their frequent call notes—always musical—their agile movements, their chattering in their petty quarrels, their occasional concerts when in a mirthful humor, constitute the life of Nature in the winter. I have often felt, when rambling in the woods on pleasant winter days, deeply affected by the solemn silence that prevails a great part of the time, that the frequent prattling, chirping and tuneful complaining of these social birds awakened cheerful emotions, unfelt even when the song birds first announce the arrival of spring.—Wilson Flagg, in Boston Transcript.

How to Walk with an Escort.

A great many girls seem to be very anxious to know just how to walk properly in the street with a gentleman escort. It is right and proper that girls should ask about these things, if they are not settled in their minds concerning them, and that they should be unwilling to do anything that might not appear ladylike. Next to being in everything correct and proper comes the appearing so to others.

The etiquette with regard to the taking of the arm lies in a nut-shell. Common sense and the custom of the country govern it. Where, as in most American towns, a lady who takes a gentleman's arm in the daytime is supposed to be engaged to him, it should not be done by any but husband and wife, or mother and son, as long as daylight lasts. The members of a large, mixed party walking out of town may always do it. The idea, in such a case, is that roads are rough, and ladies need support, and their parasols may be thus carried for them by their escorts. In the city, during a rain storm, most men of self-possession will at any hour offer an arm to a lady over whose head they are carrying an umbrella. The reason is obvious.

In the evening, after dark, no lady should ever walk with a gentleman in any city or town without taking his arm. This is so imperative, that if the gentleman is too ignorant to know his duty, or too bashful to offer his arm, the lady should signify that she is ready to take it, after walking a few moments. The fact that she has his arm, says to strangers: This gentleman has this lady under his protection. They are not merely strangers who have spoken to each other.

In going to any place of entertainment the lady should keep the gentleman's arm until the door of the auditorium is entered. Then she should drop it and let him precede her to her seat, which he will wait for her to enter first, he taking the outside place. This also is common sense, as you can see; it gives the gentleman the position of leader and protector, which he should always take in public. He should also, as a rule, always walk on the outside of the pavement, changing, if a turn alters his position, by passing behind the lady and then offering his other arm.

There is no familiarity in taking a gentleman's arm. There is nothing but respect implied by the offer of it. It is a courtesy, and a proffer of polite service, and nothing to feel awkward about or conscious about, if the arm is taken properly, with one hand, not thrust too far past the gentleman's elbow.

The lover-like way of clasping both hands on the coat-sleeve is only suitable for moonlight rambles in courting days, or for very gushing wives during the honeymoon.

As a general thing, if a gentleman of high social position and much experience in the world offers you his arm—we suppose you to be young and inexperienced—you may safely take it, for he will not do it unless he is sure that it is correct under the peculiar circumstances.

In crossing a wide street, climbing over something, passing through a rough crowd, and in many positions which might by chance occur, you would be foolish to decline that crook of the elbow, even in broad day.

Under general circumstances one might say: Do not take a mere friend's arm by day. Always take an escort's arm after dark, out of doors, or in crossing a large room at a ball, party or fair, and in going to supper.

A gentleman should never slip his hand through a lady's arm in walking in the street. Bashful young men sometimes do it through ignorance; but the lady should always politely signify that she prefers to take her escort's arm, if it is at a time when the arm should be taken at all.

What I tell you is for the present time and for the present American ideas. Should you go abroad, you must notice what the most respectable persons do, or ask well-informed people about such matters, and learn as fast as you can.—M. K. D., in N. Y. Ledger.

Patent Elopement Preventer.

You know the old saying about love and locks. The young people evaded all precautions, managed to see each other frequently, and last night was decided upon to go over to Jeffersonville and get married. All the arrangements were made and the preacher engaged. Friends of both parties were invited, and went over to the house of a mutual friend in Jeffersonville to await the coming of the bride and groom, and they may be waiting yet for all that I know. About seven o'clock last evening the would-be groom, accompanied by a couple of friends, went out to the neighborhood of the young lady's house. The agreement was to meet her on the corner a few steps from her gate, and, as a precaution, the young people left the carriage standing around on another street. The young lady was prompt. Thus far all went well and hope shone brightly in the future. You know it was a frightfully mean night—misty rain overhead and sloppy and slippery under foot. As she approached the corner the groom took her by the hand, and, placing his other arm around her, hurried her almost to a run. About midway over the crossing the bride slipped, and in his desperate efforts to save her both bride and groom went down into a puddle of mud and water. It was the ending of all their hopes and expectations. The bride had to go back to change her dress and promised to return soon, while the groom washed himself and remade his toilet as well as he could at the pump. In the meantime the young lady's father returned, and that put an end to all further proceedings.—Louisville Post.

—Some mischief-maker in New York the other night sent out several false fire alarms, calling out seventy-six engines and sixteen hook and ladder companies. There is a heavy reward for his capture. Superintendent Walling and his officers are trying to devise means to put an end to this practice, which has become a perfect nuisance.—N. Y. Mail.

PITH AND POINT.

—Money does not make the man; it is the man that makes the money who commands respect.—N. Y. Graphic.

—"Good cider can not be made from rotten apples," remarks an agricultural exchange. That's very singular, and lots of people will hesitate to adopt such a startling theory.—Detroit Free Press.

—"Agriculturist" writes to know how to keep seeds from the depredations of mice? Answer—Keep the mice full of cheese, which we believe they prefer, when they can get it, to seeds.—The Judge.

—It is not always the man who has the most learning who knows the most. It sometimes happens that when a man fills his head with lumber he has to take out his brains to make room for it.—N. Y. Herald.

—One of the boys, acquainted with Fogg's frequent changes of abode, asked him which he thought was the cheaper, to move or pay rent. "I can't tell you, my dear boy," replied Fogg; "I have always moved."—Boston Transcript.

—When Brown failed to catch the young lady who slapped his hands at copenhagen, Fogg remarked that it was quite a marine disaster. "A smack lost, you know," he explained in answer to the interrogating glances levied at him from all sides.

—"You say your wife gets mad and raises a row?" "I should say she did. She makes enough fuss to run a freight train forty miles an hour." "But if you knew that she was in the habit of getting mad, why did you marry her?" "Because if I had held back she would have got madder than ever."—Texas Siftings.

—A scientific journal heads an article: "Wanted—A Substitute for Leather." From a careful reading of our paragraphic exchanges during the past six months, we conclude that many fathers have adopted a cross dog as a substitute for leather. It goes right to the spot with the same earnestness—if not a little more so.—The Judge.

—A London rate-payer, in great excitement, arrived almost breathless at a school board polling station in Hackney. "I want to vote for a woman!" he called out. "Ah," said a friendly voice, "I suppose you mean Miss Miller?" "No," replied the rate-payer; "that's not her name. Let me sit down and think. I saw it on a placard as I came along." Thinks aloud. "I have it. Poll Early—that's her!"

—Mr. Peet, a rather diffident man, was unable to prevent himself being introduced one evening to a fascinating young lady who, misunderstanding his name, constantly addressed him as Mr. Peters, much to the gentleman's distress. Finally, summoning courage, he bashfully but earnestly remonstrated: "Oh, don't call me Peters, call me Peet." "Ah, but I don't know you well enough, Mr. Peters," said the young lady, blushing, as she playfully withdrew part way behind her fan.—Chicago Tribune.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Walter Novegold, a lad fifteen years of age, living in Bristol, Pa., has patented important improvements in rolling-mill machinery. He is said to be the youngest inventor on the records at Washington.

—A company has been formed in Iowa for the purpose of manufacturing sporting shot from iron. It is stated that the trials which have been made of the shot have proved it to be fully equal and in some respects superior to lead shot.

—It has been noticed that copper when melted with salt and subsequently cooled is much tougher than ordinary copper, this being due, in all probability, to the removal of the cuprous oxide which is generally present in greater or less quantities.

—A physician in Erie, Pa., has discovered a chemical preparation which he claims will preserve dead bodies in a condition "natural as life" for five thousand years. By retaining this mixture for the exclusive benefit of his own deceased patients he expects to become immensely popular and secure all the medical practice of his town.—Pittsburgh Post.

—An average day's work for a bricklayer is 1,500 bricks on outside and inside walls; on facings and angles and finishing around wood or stone work, not more than half of this number can be laid. To find the number of bricks in a wall, first find the number of square feet of surface, and then multiply by 7 for a 4-inch wall, by 14 for an 8-inch wall, by 21 for a 12-inch wall, and by 28 for a 16-inch wall.—The Household.

—The first lot of tacks ever made in California have been turned out by works recently erected near Oakland. The manufacture of this useful article will now continue at the rate of about a ton a day. Over 150 men are now at the buildings, and 300 workmen will be employed when the different manufactories are in full operation. Files and other hardware will also be made. The iron used is mined in the State.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—In Scotland there are ninety-nine factories engaged in the jute industry, having 183,056 spinning spindles; 5,855 doubling spindles; 10,000 power looms, and employing 8,920 males and 21,841 females, jute pickers. Men receive $1.15 per week for fifty-six hours' work. Women receive $2.88; coarse spinner female, receive $2.62 per week; loom weavers, male, are paid $3.75, and female, $2.50 respectively, for fifty-six hours' work.

—Twenty billion wooden hoops are used in the large packing establishments of the country for barrels alone. Now a hoop-maker will make 150 hoops in a day of ten hours, twelve or fourteen feet lengths. An exceptionally good hoop-maker will produce 300 eight-foot in a day of ten hours, and after this has been done these hoops must be again finish-shaved by the cooper before he can notch them, bevel the ends, or drive them. A couple of Bostonians have invented a machine, the production of which, stated within bounds, will be 20,000 eight-foot marketable hoops in ten hours.

—Snow brings to the earth more fertilizing ammonia than any other process in nature.

A Pen Portrait.

While we take great pleasure in defending farmers against the various slanders and slurs cast upon them, there are some prominent cases within our acquaintance, and doubtless they are in all neighborhoods, whose portrait we should take pleasure in pen-painting. They are rich and honest, so far as strict dealing is concerned. They are blessed with health and all of the appliances to make them happy. The man has a good, neat and loving wife, intelligent children, capable of enjoying or adorning society. Really all of the pleasures and happiness of the world are at his command. And yet neither he nor his family, on his account, are happy. He always broods over the anticipation of some impending calamity. His barns are crowded with the best of stock, his granaries bursting with fullness, his cash account largely in his favor at the bank. And yet he nearly starves himself and family, and grudgingly provides for his wife, sons and daughters such things as their station in the community demands, and such as by their industry and economy they are entitled to. He is always reminding them of the danger of drought, floods, or some fatal calamity, which will destroy crops and stock, and bring them to want. His money is always a trouble to him. He is afraid to keep it in the house as there is danger of burglars. He would not trust it in banks as he considers all of the officers thieves. He would not loan it, as he had no confidence in the honesty of other men. He would not expend it for conveniences or luxuries for himself or family, as that would be wasteful extravagance. He does not know what to do with it, and its possession makes him miserable. He is never satisfied with the seasons or the weather. He is always unhappy, whether hot or cold, wet or dry. When it rains he always expects a deluge. If the sun shines he predicts a drought.

This is no fancy picture. The men can be found in almost any community who can duplicate this picture. And we ask some rich old grumblers to cut this out and paste it in the crowns of their hats and read it every time they begin to feel economic cramps.

Heroes of the Newhall House Fire.

Among the almost countless acts of bravery performed at the fire, Otto Kleinstenber's deserves high mention. He is the electrician of the Fire Department, and being early upon the scene siezed a lantern, and, entering the building, got as far as the head of the third-story stairway, and staid there in the dense smoke waving a lantern and calling out loudly, "Here's the stairs." In this way he saved Mrs. McGuire, Mary McCully and Mary Garvin. A big man took away his lantern, but, nothing daunted, he got another and went on with the work. He repeatedly called out for the inmates seeking to escape to throw themselves on their knees and crawl toward him, and in this way he saved at least seven lives, C. W. Briggs, of Grand Rapids, among the number. Milwaukeeans are loudest in their praises of Foreman Keimer, of the Fire Department, and Sergeant Keller, who saved no less than eight persons by means of a ladder which they projected amidst the plaudits of the crowd below from the roof of the Frackelston Building across a sixteen-foot alley to the west wall of the Newhall. There were a number of women within sight, but none of them could be induced to venture upon the ladder. The fireman crawled cat-like across the ladder, and, seizing one of the women, dragged her with him. She resisted furiously, and he was obliged to use force, and beat her, to make her let go the rounds of the ladder and permit him to save her. The last two or three women brought over were apparently lifeless, but came to later. It was directly beneath where these feats were performed that so many of the domestics lost their lives by jumping into the alley. The scene there must have been a terrible one. The bodies fell so thick the people who were holding blankets and canvases for them to jump into were obliged to discourage those upon the upper stories from jumping by leaving the alley. Their work was useless, as nearly every one who jumped was mashed to death upon the frozen pavement.

Securing Advice.

A prominent Detroiter who has the reputation of knowing all about horses, was coming down Woodward avenue the other day when a stranger halted him, inquired if he was Mr. So-and-so, and added:

"I have walked seven miles this morning to secure your advice. Will you go to the harness shop with me?"

The citizen turned back and walked three blocks to the shop. The stranger then showed him two horse-brushes, and said:

"This brush is twenty cents and that one two shillings. Which would you advise me to purchase?"

"I'd take the dearer," replied the disgusted adviser. "Did you bring me here simply to settle that question?"

"Oh, no. I had already about made up my mind to get a brush with a landscape painted on the back. Now about currycombs. The object of a currycomb is to agitate a horse, I suppose, but what particular style do you advise? Here are both red and blue-handled currycombs, and I will be guided by what you say."

"Did you ever own a horse?" asked the citizen.

"Mercy, no!"

"Do you own one now?"

"Why, no!"

"Then, what in flaxation do you want of those things?"

"Well, that's another matter on which I wanted your valuable advice. Isn't it better to buy a brush and currycomb in the winter and then buy the horse in the spring, or would you buy all at once?"

"You'd better buy a saw-horse!" remarked the indignant citizen, as he walked off.

"Just see that!" gasped the man who had walked seven miles. "Why, I was intending after we got through to ask him to take a glass of beer, and he walks off as if he took me for a dead-beat! What other man in Detroit knows all about horses?"—Detroit Free Press.

Our Young Folks.

GOING TO SCHOOL.

There's an army that musters its legions,
And marches to roll-call each day;
And happy and blest are the regions
Which lie in that army's bright way.
They troop over hillock and hollow,
They spring across brooklet and pool,
And gayly and cheerily follow
The summons which bids them to school.

By thousands the army is numbered,
Its soldiers are fresh as the morn;
Not one is by sorrow encumbered,
Not one is by care overborne.
At decimals sometimes they stumble,
And sometimes by verbs are perplexed;
And the proudest grows saddened and humbled
When a question is passed to the next.

But forgot at the briefest vacation
Are problems and puzzles and prose,
The grief of the stern conjugation,
That late was a fountain of woes;
And the army goes back to its duty
The hour that play-time is done,
Resplendent in love and in beauty,
Unmatched 'neath the light of the sun.

They gather, this wonderful army,
In field and in grove and in street;
Their voices are music to charm me,
So ringing and eager and sweet.
Their cheeks are as red as a cherry,
Their eyes are as pure as the day,
And the sound of their marching is merry,
Wherever they pass on their way.

There are people forever a-sighing
And saying the world is all wrong;
But somehow their doubts take to dying
At sight of this wonderful throng.
The world may be clouded and weary,
Of trouble and toil may be full,
But at least there is hope where the cheery
Dear children are going to school.

—Margaret E. Sangster, in Harper's Young People.

THE MYSTERIOUS THIEF.

It was a quiet summer afternoon, and I was sitting at my window, looking out upon the lovely view that lay in the lengthening shadows before me. The hills were deepening from a delicate violet to a deeper purple, the sunlight was fading from the sky, which was rich with its crimson softness, and not a breath stirred to rouse the flowers from their long afternoon nap.

"Baby," now six years old, was busy with her doll, "Joan D'Arc," by name; so-called, because of her mysterious eyes, which, Baby thought, bore a striking resemblance to those of that heroine's picture. Her wardrobe disturbed her motherly notion of tidiness, and a small toy wash-tub had been brought out from the baby-house, with all the laundry appurtenances, and the little maiden, with the sleeves of her gamp rolled up and an important look on her baby face, was emulating the laundress' skill, with a consummate gift for acting, that filled my mother's heart with tender pride.

At last the little dress was ready to be whitened, and I watched Baby with a lazy smile, as, utterly ignoring the fact that the sun was almost ready to say good-night, she stepped out on the little grass-plot in front of the cottage, and stretched its small proportions into a proper place, and, turning back, resumed her stand at the little wash-tub. How pretty she was, with the long, fair curls caught back with a tortoise-shell pin she had taken from my cushion, and her little apron turned up to enable her to realize more vividly her "situation."

But even with so enchanting a picture before me, my eyelids slowly drooped, and I only knew that I had fallen asleep by being aroused by an excited little cry of trouble. "What has happened?" I asked, starting anxiously up.

"Why! Joan D'Arc's dress has gone, mamma," came the quiet reply, and looking out, I saw Baby standing, a very picture of astonishment, with the rest of the doll's wardrobe wet and crumpled between her little hands, the work of bleaching being summarily and completely brought to an end.

"Gone! Oh! that is impossible," I said, calmly; "of course it is there, dear."

"But where, mamma?" came the question, so practical, that my vague assertion proved itself at once valueless. I leaned forward, and looked out of the window, feeling bound to produce proof of my superior wisdom. But, seeing no speck of white visible on the grass-plot, I said quietly, with ready ingenuity: "Why, Baby, the wind must have blown it away."

She turned her deep blue eyes towards me, and stood quite still for a moment, and then said, slowly: "But where is the wind, mamma?"

Seeing it was the still, sultry day it was, this logical question, only augmenting the difficulty as to the whereabouts of the wind as well as of the dress, roused me from my romancing to immediate action. I got up from my chair, and joined Baby in the garden.

After asking the usual questions in such cases, viz.: "Exactly where did you put it?" "Then where did you go?" How long did you stay?" etc., ad-infinitum, I sat down again, with Baby standing by my side, and tried to solve the curious mystery.

Perhaps some little child had strayed into the garden, and, coveting Joan's dress, had absconded with it, while Baby was busy at the little tub; and so comforting her with the promise of another, which promise I immediately proceeded to fulfil, I went back to the little cottage parlor.

Baby, having spread the remainder of the doll's garments on the grass, came and, drawing her little chair by my side, watched me as I began my dress-making.

I drew from my scrap-basket a dainty bit of dotted muslin and some pretty lace, and Joan's robe was fairly under way, when Baby, springing from her little chair, cried out, between despair and dismay:

"Why, mamma, they're gone too!" I followed her gaze to the empty grass-plot, in utter bewilderment.

"Some one must be the thief!" I exclaimed, at last. "Here! Baby," as a sudden thought flashed across my mind. "Take these little scraps of muslin and lace, and dampen them, and lay them out on the grass, just as you did the rest, and we will drop the lace curtain and watch behind it, and discover who it is." And having laid the snare, we sat in breathless stillness watching for our prey.

But the minutes came and went, and not a sound disturbed the serenity of the dying day. Baby had climbed into my lap, and was a picture for an artist's brush, as she sat with crimson cheeks and shining eyes, her tiny fingers laid warningly on her lips, as nurse came in to take her away for her tea. Not a voice, not a step, not a sound. Still we watched with persistent resolution. The quiet was unbroken, save by a robin, who hopped suspiciously across the lawn, so ignorant of our dilemma, so innocent of all such evil, mundane matters as theft or crime.

I turned to nurse, and said in a low tone, in response to Baby's eager whisper in my ear, that her tea might be indefinitely postponed to-night, and, turning back to my post, found the grass again devoid of the decoys we had set. With heightened interest we arranged them again, and this time nothing tempted me to lift my eyes from the window.

Five—ten minutes—passed, and then again came the robin, hopping innocently along. For want of any other object, we lazily watched him as he ran over the grass, now pausing to look from side to side, as though fearing sight or sound. Nearer and nearer he came to our bits of lace, when suddenly, after one rapid survey in all directions, with a quick dart he caught them in his beak, and flew upwards.

Dropping Baby from my lap, I ran hastily out on the lawn, and, following his flight, I called back: "Hurry, Baby! tell John to bring a ladder, quick!"

With cries of delight, Baby executed my commission, and when at last I paused beneath a large tree, in which the bird had found a hiding-place, I was soon joined by Baby, nurse, John and the ladder. We all stood in breathless expectation, while John plunged into the upper boughs; and when from the nest he brought down all the little lost garments, as well as the lace and muslin, which had proved such successful decoys, Baby's delight knew no bounds.

But we had learnt a lesson, never in any similar situation to accuse any one of theft, and, in the beautiful and ingenuous unsuspiciousness that has taken possession of us, are a most delightful prey for any enterprising pickpockets. But, as Baby said the next morning at breakfast, thereby delighting her laughter-loving papa: "Is it the reason they call it a rob-in?"—N. Y. Observer.

How Jennie Let in the Cat.

It was snowing hard when Jennie went to bed. It began about four o'clock, just after the sun had tucked himself close around with clouds before going to sleep. In the room where Jennie slept a bright fire was burning, and the flicker upon the wall kept her awake till long past the night time. But by and by the little girl went fast asleep, and was just dreaming of a sleigh-ride that was almost three weeks long, when she woke up again as wide awake as ever. The fire was out and the tip end of Jennie's nose was cold as an icicle.

"Me-ow!"

"O, dear, dear, dear," cried Jennie, sitting up in bed and rubbing her eyes to make them see better, "there's Mumpsy out in the cold as sure as I live."

Yes, indeed, poor Mumpsy, with her four little kittens down in the cellar on the shavings almost crying their eyes open, was out of doors without a single doubt.

Jennie slipped down from the bed and went into the hall. The house was very still, and the lights in the library were out; so she knew papa was in bed.

But the hall gas was burning, as it always did, and what would be easier than to run down and open the front door for old Mumpsy? So the bare little feet pattered down the broad front stairs and across the hall.

"What lots of locks and chains," Jennie said to herself as she twisted the big key and the little one, and then pulled out the chain bolt.

Then with both hands she tugged and tugged at the knob, and in another minute the door flew open.

"Ding-aling-aling-aling-aling-aling!" Such a racket you never, never heard. It was the burglar alarm; and in almost no time papa was standing at the head of the stairs with a real gun in his hands, while mamma, with a candle, was looking over his shoulder to see what a true burglar looked liked. But they didn't see much to be afraid of—only a little girl about as high as the second step with ten little bare toes standing in a row. O, yes, they did see something else. It was a cat that came running in and scooted down cellar as fast as four legs would carry her.

Papa turned off the burglar alarm, and came down and took his little girl in his arms, carrying her lovingly up stairs.

"Mumpsy was crying for the babies, and I let her in," said Jennie. "Don't scold, papa."

Do you suppose he did? Does anybody suppose he did?

But I know a little girl who had a very big and sugary gum-drop before she really went to sleep that night.—N. Y. Tribune.

A Curious Atmosphere.

The other afternoon, although the weather was very cold, the heavens became obscured by a peculiar vapor, which seemed neither fog nor smoke, nor yet clouds. Though the sun could be plainly seen, it presented precisely the same appearance as when viewed through smoked glass. To the southward this vapor appeared of an orange hue, while to the west it was blue. Some of our people, looking in that direction, called out: "Old Mount Davidson has got the blues!" and really, everything in that direction had the blues. About four o'clock the whole mass of vapor moved east and settled down over the valley above the Carson River. Then it presented a white appearance, hiding all the valley land and low hills, but allowing the peaks of the Como range of mountains to be seen. Next the mass of vapor separated into several distinct stratums, and these slowly ascended to the regions of the upper clouds. While this was going on there was visible on the eastern horizon a broad band of deep blue with above a corresponding band of a deep rose red. In all other directions the heavens were perfectly clear and of the usual mild azure hue.—Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise.

—The London Practitioner records a case of severe hysteria, with contractions of the lower extremities which gave way to bread pills prescribed under the name of pilulæ mica panis.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. FEB. 7, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column 1 year $80
½ " 1 " 40
¼ " 1 " 20
½ " ½ " 20
" ¼ " 10
" ⅛ " 6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c.. $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year....................$1 50
Six months....................75
Three months....................40

POLK's bond has been reduced to $50,000.

Too much Mayor material in Cincinnati. They do not know which piece to select.

CINCINNATI has had her big music festival, and her citizens are happy again.

THE item in last week's issue entitled "Kentucky Scene," should have been credited to the Richmond Herald.

THE Cincinnati Enquirer suggests that by and by some one will ask why congress pays so much attention to whisky and so little to the whisky bill.

THE Maysville boys did not want to leave their mothers, but the governor commanded, and the poor little fellows had to pick up their traps and march.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal gave its readers the picture of the immense building to be erected for the cotton exposition. It will cover thirteen acres.

THE horse that Bob McConnell, of Aurora, gave away by raffle to his customers was won by a ticket held by a young man who suicided a few days before the raffle.

THE grand jury in its indictment against Brown for attempting to bribe jurors in the Star Route trial find that he offered $25,000 for the conviction of Dorsey and Brady.

OSCAR WILDE does not entertain an exalted opinion of Americans. His last experience on this continent was with a bunko man, and he left the country with a bad taste in his mouth,

WE have received Demorest's Illustrated Magazine for February. It is replete with the choicest literary dainties for the ladies, besides being a complete index to all the latest fashions.

A COMPANY in California are engaged in ostrich culture, and for that purpose have imported a flock of birds, which safely arrived at San Francisco. The birds cost about $1,000 each.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 00@7 25; fair to good packers, at $6 75@7 00; fair to good light, $6 50@6 80; common, $5 75@6 45; culls, $4 50@5 65: stock hogs, $4 75@5 50.

A NEW five cent piece will soon be seen in the land. The Philadelphia mint commenced coining them last week. Hope they wont be so difficult to hold. We suggest that a handle be put on them.

BY subscribing for this paper and the Indiana Farmer, at this office, you get the two papers, the regular subscription price of the two being $3 50, for $3, besides receiving as a present a dictionary worth $2.

MR. CARLISLE is reported as saying that he has but little faith in a tariff bill at this session of congress. Neither does he anticipate the calling of an extra session of congress in the event the tariff bill fails.

MRS. LANGTRY will be in Cincinnati next week. If Freddy should come along, these terrible newspaper reporters will have to look a little sharp, or he might have to leave the town to keep their blood off of his hands.

JUDGE OWSLEY says he holds his corner on good terms with each of his opponets in the contest for governor. He objects to being called the candidate of the sporting and whisky men. He anticipates a fair and friendly race.

THE ground-hog prognosticators say we are to have six weeks more winter. As the sun was shining sufficiently on the second inst., for his hogship to see his shadow, he came out, gave a significant grunt, and then disappeared to await the return of spring

OUR neighboring city, Lawrenceburg, has provided herself with two steam fire engines. That town's experience with fire has cost many thousand dollars, and we hope that she is now well protected against the destructive element.

IT is said that Mr. Blackburn will retire from the contest for speaker, not desiring to defeat Mr. Carlisle, which would evidently be the result of his canvass. We are glad to see Mr. Blackburn's better judgment and sense of right prevail, and hope to see it properly rewarded in the future.

W. C. OWENS, of Scott county, will be a candidate for re-election to the legislature, and, if successfull, will desire the speakership, which position he filled so creditably during the last session. His congressional aspiration did not expunge his love for a less pretentious position in politics.

WE understand that Bellevue gets its mail by the way of Rabbit Hash. It seems to us that Bellevue ought to get its mail from Burlington. This route is never molested by the ice, and mail could be taken from here at as little expense to the government as is now the case. What say our Bellevue friends?

AGAIN John Bush, the negro who killed Miss Vanmeter in Fayette, has had his lease of life extended, the Supreme court of the United States quashing the indictment because it was found under a law that prohibited negroes serving on juries. Thirty-five out of thirty-six jurors have adjudged him guilty, and the death sentence has been pronounced twice.

ONE of Morgan Rice's ewes dropped a lamb the other day which was a monstrosity. It had eight legs, eight feet, two tails, two bodies, from the heart back, one neck, two heads, on ear on each head, four eyes—one one the side of each head and two in a socket towards the top of the heads Of course it was not in the proper shape to live, but the buys are trying to preserve the carcass. Bro. Craddock, we claim the horns now.

STATE NEWS.

—Adair's wheat crop looks badly.

—Milton has two tobacco hogsheads factories.

—The hemp crop in Fayette county is in fine condition.

—Lexington is filling up with fine and fast steppers for the approaching races.

—It is rumored that the Maysville Knitting Company will move to Cincinnati.

—Boyd county is buying up the turnpikes within her borders and making them free.

—Lexington has the youngest editor in the United States. He is only nine years old.

—The editor of the Robertson Co. Tribune rejoices that knee-pants are coming in style again.

—In the last few days three pairs of twins have been born in Richmond and vicinity.—Herald.

—One hundred and forty-four wood-choppers left Lewis county for Michigan, the other day.

—Two Berkshire hogs weighing respectively, 1.260 and 1,040 pounds are on exhibition at Paducah.

—The Richmond Herald says that the prospects for a good wheat crop in Madison county are pretty fair.

—A prominent railroad official of this city is reliably reported to have eaten nine dozen buckwheat cakes at one sitting.

—In Meade county when a man is mean enough to rob his family of food to buy whisky, he is horsewhipped by the vigilants.

—It is thought that the wheat is considerably damaged by the sudden freezing and thawing, rooting it out in Boyd county.

—A storm destroyed, in Bath co., a barn containing 13,000 pounds of tobacco. The tobacco was scattered to the four winds.

—James C. Hamilton, of Bath county, had the misfortune to lose Airdric Duchess, which cost him, not long since, $3,000.

—Dr. Fritts, of Centerville, Bourbon county, has a Brahma rooster which weighs 16½ pounds. It is thought to be the largest chicken in the United States.

—Henry Wilhoite, one of the most reliable farmers of Severn neighborhood says the wheat is looking very bad, and many of the farmers have despaired of making any crop at all. —Owen News.

—Some farmers tell us that their wheat does not look at all promising. The hard surface feezes have thrown the roots out of the ground in many places and the blades look dead.—Clinton Democrat.

—The dockets for the present term of the Circuit court closed with 246 equity cases; 125 ordinary causes, about 600 commonwealth's prosecutions; 5 murder cases and one for grand larceny.—Boyd.

—Last Monday morning, a little child of Mr. Jerry Burbridge, who lives near Glenville, was scalded to death. The child was sitting near the fire, when a kettle containing boiling water turned over upon it, with the result above stated.—Columbia Spectator.

—Mrs. Geo. Faulkner, living near Bartonville, recently obtained a pension of $2,500 from the government for the loss of her son during the war, and died upon the day the check for the money came to her postoffice. The money was returned to the pension department at Washington—Vanceburg Courier.

—The Commonwealth has entered suit in the Franklin Circuit Court against delinquent railroads for the taxes of 1882. The railroads sued are the New Orleans and Texas Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio and Southwestern, and the Louisville and Nashville and Great Southern. These roads claim that the Railroad Commissioners made an excessive advance over the valuation of their roads in 1881.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—There are over 900 blind persons in the state of Arkansas.

—The number of spindles now running in Georgia is 348,000 against 200,974 in 1880.

—Lake City, Fla., is supplied with bear meat, which is sold at fifteen cents per pound.

—An Alabama baby enjoys the unwanted luxury of having five-living grandmothers.

—A physician has been arrested in Chattanooga on a charge of concealing small-pox.

—Texas expends $75,000 a year in maintaining a battalion of rangers on the Mexican frontier.

—Alabama has twenty-two iron furnaces in operation, producing daily more than a thousand tons.

—The Governor of Alabama is mansionless, and his salary is only sufficient for a bare subsistence.

—Considerable damage was done by the late frost to the mango and orange trees around Tampa, Fla.

—The Vicksburg Herald estimates that there are forty pistols to every subsoil plow in the State of Miss.

—Another manatee, or sea cow, has been captured in Brevard county Florida. It weighed 2,000 pounds.

—There is a well in Georgia that affords an abundant supply of water during a drouth that goes dry in wet weather.

—Wild ducks are so thick in the water-courses in Brevard county, Fla. that they have to be shoved aside while boats are passing.

—Three barges and 90,000 feet of walnut lumber, valued at $3,600, were lost last week on the Powel river, on the way to Chattanooga

—The governor of Louisiana has commuted the sentence of Buffalo Bill, convicted of murder in the Parish of Grant, to imprisonment for life

—A Tree was cut a few weeks ago in Hempstead county, Arkansas, that measured twenty-six feet in circumference. It took six men, working constantly, half a day to fell it.

—Telfair county, Ga., has almost been submerged for the past ten days The creeks have been higher than at anytime for several years past, and some of the largest are still rising.

—A suit between parties in Baton Rouge, La., for $7 50 having gone through the different courts of appeal, from a ward justice court up, is now before the Supreme Court of the State.

—A gentleman in Athens, Ga., has a large Indian peace-pipe that will weigh five or six pounds, taken from a mound in Greene county. It is the exact shape of a crow and as sound as when first carved.

—A woman whose youngest daughter is said to have died from old age several years since, is still trudging about the streets of Danielsville, Ga., and is supposed to be "considerably" over one hundred years old.

—The damage to cattle from the recent cold snap was not so great in Texas as at first feared. The largest number reported lost from one pasture was fifteen head. The shipments are light now, as the cattle are in bad condition.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Normansville.

The illness of Mr. J. L. Johnson, of Hamilton, has for several weeks confined him to his room.

Mr. Chas. Hannah and wife, of Dover, Ky., are visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity.

The Big Bone school taught by Miss Kate Craig, of Rabbit Hash, closed week before last.

Rev. J. S. Kirtley, of Georgetown preached at Big Bone church last Sunday.

The Normansville and Hamilton school will close on the 22nd inst., and on the 23d (Friday) the teacher, Miss Allie Carson, and pupils will give an entertainment at Normansville, in J. W. Kennedy's new warehouse. The programme will be long and interesting, consisting of recitation, dialogues, tableaux and music both instrumental and vocal. All are cordially invited to attend. Admission 25 cents.

Petersburg.

Born.—On the 26th ult., to James Stewart and wife, a daughter.

Capt. Bradley, of the steamer Wave, was here a few days last week.

Mr. John Hurde and family, moved here from Bradsfordville, Kentucky, last week.

W. I. McWethy is learning the barber's trade under Mr. Perry, and will open up a shop in the spring

Rev. Mr. Taylor, who has been engaged to preach two Sundays in each month at the christian church, moved his family here from Carrollton, last week.

Mr. Woolly has bought S. G. Bott's prpoerty just out of town, and will move there in the spring.

Sam Buchanan, of the firm of Langsdale & Buchanan, of Rising Sun, who sold out about two weeks ago, will move here and start a drug store, something that is badly needed. Sam is a nice man, and we are glad to welcome him among us.

Gen. John W. Finnell, Collector of the 6th district has made the following assignments of guagers and store keepers at this place for the next two months: W. A. Dickerson, W. L. Israel, Geo. Kevett—Guagers. W. H. Ayars, W. C. Barry, W. R. Irwin, W. L. Neyman, A. M. Snyder, store keepers:

Mrs. Mat Loder has returned home from Memphis.

Dr. Ed Terrill was confined to the house a few days last week with a severe cold.

Rev. Froh has been confined to the house for the past two weeks with a bad cold and a rising in his head.

F. M. Cox after a week's sickness is able to attend to business again.

Hebron.

There will be an election held at Hebron Academy, Saturday, Feb. 10 from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., for the purpose of electing trustees for the ensuing year; also to select a teacher to teach the spring school.

Mrs. Nettie Renakar, of Cynthiana, Ky., is visiting relatives in this section.

Mrs. Susan Clore has been quite sick for the last few days.

The dance given at T. B. Rouse's on the night of the first, inst., was one of the grandest affairs of the season. Those present enjoyed themselves tripping the light fantastic till the late hour of four in the morning. Old T. B. enjoyed himself the best of all.

Richard Gordon has been quite sick for the last ten days.

Mrs. Mary Moore, of this place, is visiting relatives in Covington, this week.

Miss Katie Clore has returned after several months absence, accompanied by Miss Mary Clore, of Montgomery county, Indiana.

The public school at this place, taught by William Gaines, will close on the 16th.

Mrs. Charley Graves has returned home from visiting relatives in Montgomery county, Indiana.

Miss Sallie Watts, who has been visiting friends and relatives at Lexington, has returned home.

Frank Crigler is confined to his room with measles.

The sale of Robert W. Cooper was largely attended.

Miss Annie Clore entertained quite a number of guests Sunday.

Bellevue.

Our district is without a constable, Owen Rogers the officer elect having resigned and shook the sand from his number 10 s, and left for Putnam county, Ind.

The literary society met at the usual hour on Friday evening, and discussed the following question: Resolved, that intemperance has caused more distress than war. It was affirmed by D. M. Snyder, O. Snyder, J. W. Kite and Wm. Dicken, and denied by Wm. Barkley, J. T. Marshall and Robert Rice. Decision in favor of the affirmative. Following the debate was an essay by Miss Ettie Moody; select reading by Miss Katie Rice and declamation by Ottie Grant.

NOTES.—O. Snyder was pronounced the most logical.

Wm. Dicken, the most eloquent.

The sale of the estate of R. L. Aylor continued nearly four days, and everything brought fair prices.

It is rumored that there will be a wedding in our burg this week.

F. P. Walton bought John Henderson's tobacco at 14 cents a pound.

Miss Kate Piatt is very sick.

LAUGHABLE.

Ike with his fur collar off.

Tom trimming hedge on Monday morning.

Wild Bill rejoicing bacause of no ice in the river.

A certain widower, of this community, exchanging notes with a young lady by moonshine.

ADDITIONAL UNION NEWS.

Great interest is being manifested in the protracted meeting being conducted by Bro. Evans, of the Presbyterian church. There have been 10 additions at this writing, Monday. Among them are Wm. Wilkie and wife, Robert Chambers, Elbert Dixon, [illegible] Graham, Miss Fullilove and others. At the close of the sermon, all persons out of Christ are invited to come forward and confess him before man, and then unite with the church of their choice. The charm of his preaching is his own wonderful earnestness, and his power of simplifying by numerous and forcible illustrations.

The party at Baty Judge's last week, was well attended. The same can be said of the party at James Donigan's.

John Rogers has not recovered his stolen horse.

Miss Willie Bradford is convalescing.

FUNNY TO SEE.

John Bradford out in his sheep ranch, yelling like a comanche.

T. W. [illegible] was appointed deputy sheriff last Monday.

THE candidates for the various state offices are arranging their programmes for the final set-to at Louisville in May.

THE price of hogs popped away up yonder the other day, greatly to the satisfaction of those who have hogs on hand. Mr. L. H. Dills and E. H. Baker started about 150 nice hogs to town, Monday, to get advantage of the advance.

OHIO, Indiana and Pennsylvania have suffered terribly from the floods that have swept everything before them the past few days. Millions upon millions of dollars worth of property has, within the past few days in these states, been destroyed, Much distress prevails in the flooded districts.

Lincoln Reads a Poem

Honest Old Abe Entertains his Cabinet with a Little Quotation.

"Now, gentlemen, you all have more or less poetry in your souls; listen to this," and Abraham Lincoln, then President, rose from his chair, in his office in the White House, and read in trembling tones, which indicated his own profound appreciation of it, Dr. O. W. Holmes' "Last Leaf," of which the following are two verses:

"They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down:
Not a better man was found
By the crier in his round
Through the town.

Now the mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he had pressed
In their bloom;
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb."

Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., is not as old as the venerable Boston citizen of whom the poet wrote with such tender pathos, yet he is more than three score and ten. "For the past eight of those years," he writes, "I have been a perfect cripple from rheumatism, hobbling about as best I could with my cane. I took PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and am now supple and strong as a gymnast. There is no trace of the disease left about me."

Mr. R. W. Mosher, wholesale druggist, of Binghamton, writes Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of N. Y.—Proprietors of the Tonic—certifying to Mr. Guilfoyle's declaration.

Having all the properties of any preparation of ginger, PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is a remedy of infinitely greater range and power. It cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood or imperfect digestion. Dyspepsia (and all its consequences), Malarial Fevers, Sick Headache, Kidney troubles, Bronchitis, and common Coughs and Colds, vanish at its touch. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Larger size the cheaper.

Tobacco Market.

Cincinnati, Friday, Feb., 2d, 1883

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 00@	$3 00
Common Smokers	8 00	4 25
Colory Smokers	4 50	6 50
Colory Trash	6 00	8 00
Good Br't Trash	10	15 00
Fine Br't Trash		none
Fancy Bright Leaf	00 00
Dark Lugs	4 00	6 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	10 50
Good Stripping Lugs	11 00	16 00
Fine Str'p'g Lugs	17	22 50
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Leaf	19	23 00
Good Br't Leaf	23 50	25 00
Fine Br't Leaf	25 50	27 50
Com Lug Fillers	7	10 50
Good Lug Fillers	11 00	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	22
Com. Med. Fil'rs	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Fil'rs	19	23
Good L'f Fillers	23 50	25 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	25 50	26 50

TAKEN UP.

Taken up as a stray by Ephraim Helm, living on the Anderson Ferry and Minneola turnpike road about 1 mile from Anderson Ferry, in Boone county, on or about the 8th day of September, 1882, one red and white spotted cow with underbit mark on the right ear, and right horn drooped, but having no other brands or marks, Which I have appraised at $15.

Witness my hand this 3d day of January 1883. JOSEPH WAGSTAFF, J. P. B. C.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonathan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE."
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world. JAMES MAYNARD."
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles, $5.

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,

COVINGTON, - - KY

G eorge H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
E legant his display of Boots and Shoes
O ffering at low prices, all should call,
H ere is the place to suit you all.
L arge stock of best made on hand,
O f every kind as we command.
E ach noted maker's work there we find,
B oots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
K eeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
E ach sees fine leather from our own land.
R ightly skillful labor in all combined,
B oots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
O ur fancy wins at the earliest glance,
O f these he sells for the walk or dance.
T he Kid so fine, the form so neat,
S lippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
A ll goods he sells will wear quite long,
N otice, well finish secure and strong.
D oubt not the best are cheap in the end,
S hoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
H ither we go with an eager tread,
O ur comfort to feet is warranted.
E ver low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
S urely all people should there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Molch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Mason, J. A. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
J. J. Delaney.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE.

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE.

MERCHANT TAILOR,

540 MADISON STREET,

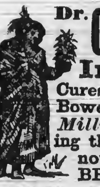
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky



Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S

Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.

TRADE MARK,

Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

AGENTS WANTED.

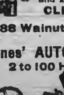
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

DR. CLARK JOHNSON:—This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. R. MCCAME, Scaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines

OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

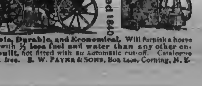


AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the

CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.)

No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.



Established 1840

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an Automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S

HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair.
50c & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved

MONARCH LIGHTNING

SAW

Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during [illegible] INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper) [illegible] Send [illegible] for full Instructions, Blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

A SPLENDID OFFER.

Two First-class Papers and a fine Book for Only $3 00.

We have made arrangements to club with the Indiana Farmer, the largest and best agricultural journal now published, just what every farmer needs. It is a weekly, 52 issues per yea · of 16 pages each, cut and bound in magazine form in a shape that may be easily preserved and making an elegant volumn. Its contributors include many of the best agricultural writers of the world, and every number contains instructions and suggestions that will be of more value to any live farmer than the subscription price. The regular price of the Indiana Farmer is $2 00 per year. We have made arrangements by which we can furnish the RECORDER and the Indiana Farmer for $3 and, besides this, we will present each subscriber with a VALUABLE DICTIONARY of over 500 pages, bound in cloth, and containing every useful word to be found in the English language, with its true meaning, derivation, spelling and pronunciation, also a vast amount of absolutely necessary information upon Science, Mythology American History, Constitutions, Laws, Land Titles, Cities, Colleges, Army and Navy, Rate of Mortality, Growth of Cities, Insolvent and Assignment Laws, Debts, Rates of Interest, and other useful knowledge, being a perfect library of refference in one handy volume, which alone is worth the price of either paper. Specimens of the INDIANA FARMER, and also the Dictionary, may be seen by calling at this office. Subscribe at once.

In order to accommodate old patrons, and enable them to get the INDIANA FARMER and Dictionary at the reduced rate, we will extend the offer to those who have already subscribed for the RECORDER before this offer was made. A club should at once be formed in every neighborhood, as this opportunity will not be given for a great length of time.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

This is ground-hog weather.

The crows stayed in this latitude this winter.

Mr. Dunlap has had very few good nights for his meetings.

Considerable live stock offered for sale on the street Monday.

Land on Gunpowder and a house and lot advertised in this issue.

Full proceedings of the county court will appear in our next issue.

The Bellevue denizens are trying to get a daily mail. Hope they will succeed.

The man who prophecied that we would have an open winter, can not be found.

Frank Walton was out buying tobacco last week, paying as high as $10 for some.

Geo. Blythe's whip and a balky horse called everybody out on the street the other day.

Elder John M. Thompson, of Ohio, will preach at Mt. Pleasant next Saturday and Sunday.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, for dressing the hair and promoting its growth: an indispensable toilet article.

James Conner bought Alfred Cason's hogs last Friday. Mr. Cason had some very fine porkers.

W. L. Gedge has a sorrel mare 7 years old and a sorrel horse 8 years old for sale. Both good drivers.

The breaking up of the ice Sunday, in upper tributaries of the Ohio was accompanied by a heavy loss of property. Some lives were lost.

Our readers can rely on our tobacco market. It is corrected each week by the report sent us from the Bodman Tobacco House in Cincinnati.

T. B. Rouse has hit upon a happy plan for saving ice. He says his pond is frozen nearly to the bottom, and he believes he will cover it with straw.

We heard an old gentleman say the other day: "I have heard a great many preachers, but Dunlap can get more out of a chapter than any I ever heard."

The residence of T. B. Rouse, who lives near town, was the scene of quite a gay party of youngsters last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Rouse's hospitality was unbounded.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Beall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

Last Monday, William Welton sold to Thomas and William Goodridge 67 acres of land on the Burlington and Bellevue pike for $50 per acre cash. Mr. W. has now sold all his land.

The smallest country newspaper is worth more to its subscribers in one month than its price for a year, and does more for its neighborhood for nothing than many a high official does for his munificent salary.—Printers' Circular.

Religious services are held in Petersburg as follows: Rev. J. E. Taylor preaches at the christian church on the 1st and 3d Sundays in each month. Rev. Geo. Froh preaches in the M. E. church on the 4th Sunday in each month.

Monday afternoon the county judge held court in the clerk's office, while the court-house was occupied for religious services. It looks like we are approaching the millennium, when the court-houses are vacated in favor of the church.

The following causes in which parties in this county are interested were disposed of by the Court of Appeals last week: Fisk vs Snyder, &c.,—suit for fee in Bounty fund case—affirmed; Kelly vs Roberts, &c., and Ryle vs same, reversed. The last two also grew out of the Bounty Fund case.

GHOULS.

Ten Dollars the Price Named for Stiffs.

A Paupers Grave Gives up Its Dead.

A few days since a letter directed "To the Director of the Hospital of Burlington, Kentucky, States Unis, Amerique," arrived at the post-office here, and was handed to Mr. A. O. Hall, Superintendent of the poor-house, who opened it and found it was written by Emma Ruff, of Veytaux, seeking information in regard to her father, Abraham Santchi, who was sent to the poor-house in 1881 from James Moore's. From the tone of the letter it is evident that the writer thought her father had some effects when he died, of which fact she was aware, and she has authorized her uncle at Madison, Indiana, to attend to the business of settling them.

Mr. Hall called on Mr. Fowler, ex-superintendent of the poor-house, for what information he could give in regard to the man. It seems that Mr. Fowler knew nothing except that Santchi was brought from James Moore's, and that he died in the poor-house, that his remains were consigned to mother earth in the pauper grave yard which is a secluded spot on the poor-farm. Mr. Fowler also stated that some time after this man died, he received a letter from a person in Cincinnati, stating that he had resurrected him and that he would give him (Fowler) $10 a piece for bodies, as he wanted to purchase a thousand subjects. Mr. Fowler paid no attention to the letter, and heard nothing more of the pretended medical man and his offer.

The daughter will succeed in ascertaining where her father died, and where his last resting place was intended to be had he not been molested by the ghoul; who has, in all probability, relieved the pauper's grave on the Boone county poor-farm of more than one of its occupants. And while the graves of those poor unfortunates who the cold charity of the world provided the narrow cell for, are being desecrated, who can say to what extent the labors of the body-snatchers are being prosecuted at other places?

The case above referred to indicates that there is some person or persons in this neighborhood who know more about grave robbing than they would like to make public.

The information sought by the letter referred to suggests that the county ought to provide a suitable register for the poor-house, and have a correct description, &c., of every inmate, kept, the record being at all times in the institution.

Mr. Dunlap's meeting is still in progress in the court-house, services being held afternoon and evening. The congregations are increasing, some evenings the seating capacity of the court-room being insufficient to accommodate the congregation. Members of all denominations go to hear him and leave well pleased with the discourse. Mr. Dunlap has the gift of illustration and makes everything so plain that it is easily understood by the most illiterate. He is easy and graceful in his manners, a fluent speaker, and in his sermons he often approaches the eloquent. Up to the time of going to press 12 persons have been convinced of the error of their way and have made public confessions. The meeting will continued through the week.

Mrs. Acra, whose suicide we mentioned last week, we understand had been melancholy for some time, and had been watched by her husband who feared she would attempt to destroy herself. The Sunday before she committed the deed, she obtained a pistol and hid it; her husband missed the weapon, and searched for it but failed to find it. Monday morning while Mr. Acra was out chopping wood with which to get breakfast, Mrs. Acra took the feather tick off a single bed, and lying down on the straw bed, presented the pistol to her left breast and pulled the trigger, the ball passing through her body and lodging in the plastering on the wall Mr. Acra, hearing the report of the pistol, ran to the house and found his wife in the last agonies of death. Mr. Acra and his family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Uncle Jonas Clore requests us to say that there was no truth in that part of the Bellevue communication of the 17th ult, representing him as selling coal at 20 cents a bushel, as he never sold higher than 15c per bu. and from the interest manifested in the late protracted meetings there, he did not think anyone could be found who would make such incorrect statements knowingly and wilfully, as he knows their minister has been striving to teach them better.

Zeke Rice, of Richwood, was attacked by small-pox last Thursday, and Saturday he was taken to the hospital in Covington. The negro who, in our last issue, was reported improving, has since died, being the second death in that neighborhood from the disease. Two or three schools have suspended on account of the disease. It is to be hoped that there will be no more cases.

Some of the papers in the central part of the state are always boasting about the beauty of their ladies, when in fact they are not comparable to the Boone girls, whose beauty is second to none; who can flourish a broom, cook a meal that would make the lips of royalty water, and then go in the parlor and play and sing charmingly.

We received a letter from Marcus Collins the other day. At the head of the letter was printed the following: "Wittsburg and Sunk Land U. S. Mail Packet, Str. Advance, Marcus Collins Master & Clerk." Mark says he is doing well, and expects to own a third interest in a steamer in a few days. His many friends will be glad to hear of his prosperity.

The encouragement the RECORDER received Monday is very gratifying to the management. New subscribers and renewals come pouring in from every direction, accompanied by assurances that our endeavors are appreciated by the people. Let the good work go on, and we will do our best to make the paper worth twice the subscription price.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Mrs. Emmet Gullion, of Eagle Station, Carroll county, is visiting her mother, Mrs. John O. Campbell, of this place.

Miss Sophrona Campbell has returned from a very pleasant visit to Williamstown.

Mrs. Hattie Arnold, of Williamstown, was visiting her sister at this place, last week.

Emmet Gullion, of Carroll county, was in town last week.

Miss Carson and Miss Hind, two of Walton's charming belles, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Dills.

Mr. Pope Sandford and wife, of Kenton county, were the guests of Mrs. W. L. Riddell, Tuesday.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Rabbit Hash.

Wheat in this section has been seriously injured by the severe freeze.

The spectacle vender has been in our midst.

Mrs. Clara McKay, nee Hastings, is expected home on a visit, in a short time.

Jerome Wilson is improving, being now able to sit up. His case is a very mild form of typhoid fever.

Solon Stephens has the brag lot of lambs in this neighborhood, numbering forty-five.

Mr. James Calvert formerly of this place but now of Junction City, will arrive in a few days on a visit to friends and relatives.

John Hankinson has vacated the farm of A. P. Marshall where he has lived for a number of years, and moved to Robert Craig's. He has never heard of the $900 which he lost several weeks ago.

Union.

The Union Sabbath-school is growing in interest and numbers. In the departure of Mr. Bartelle the school has lost a faithful and appreciated teacher.

Jeff Norman, son of M. C. Norman, and Martin Bartelle are going to crop together this year. We can see Jeff leading Martin from daylight till dark, and wonder how Martin's constitution will stand it.

Dr. Randall Riley, our enterprising and genial young M. D., is now boarding at Chas. Bannister's on upper Water street.

The commissioners of the U. B. B. & P. B. T. P. are reminding the taxpayers of this road district that the first installment of tax is about due, and a test of the Boone County pike law may yet be had. In the mean-time, let everybody keep as the weather does—cool. The U. F. P. & P. R. will soon follow suit.

Henry Odenwald and force are at work on O. C. Utz's buildings, and expect to finish his new house by November next.

Dr. Blanton and C. T. Rice will resume their improvements in the spring. J. A. Huey may improve then also. John Bradford and L. C. Norman say they will then join the ranks.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey will remove into the property bought by her from O. C. Utz, March first.

J. D. Smith resold the Connelly place to his vendor.

Rumor says George Ransom becomes a benedict in February. The bride is a Virginia lady. As May approaches, so does cupid, and bachelor celibacy retires with old winter.

A debating society has been organized at Big Bone Grange Hall near here, and meets every Tuesday night.

Union will probably follow Carrollton's example, and have a hugging party soon. Prices to range from a 3-cent stamp, or a wad of chewing wax to a farthing. No admittance fee charged the ladies. Gentlemen are expected to be liberal patrons, as the proceeds are not to be used for church purposes as Carrollton proposes, but to build Uncle Ed Stephens a branch office at Union.

Esq. Bannister's dog, Baby, is the most highly accomplished of Union dogs. He shuts doors, walks around upright when told, and speaks fluently the canine language.

F. Dickey offered $500 for two registered Jersey cows, a few days ago. The Ohio owner asked $600. Shinkle, of Kenton Co. sold two alderney cows, a few days since, at $500 each, and thus butter and cream are becoming an expensive luxury.

Died.

NORRIS—On the 2d inst., at the residence of his sister, Mrs. William Appleton, near Petersburg, Charles Norris, aged 69 years.

The remains were interred, Sunday, in the Petersburg cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Norris was the largest man in the county, his weight being 400 pounds.

GARRISON—On the 3d inst., at 6 p. m. at his residence No. 18 W. 4th street, Covington, Ky., Erastus Garrison aged 55 years, son of Eliza Garrison, of this county.

Mr. Garrison has been sick for several weeks of typhoid fever from which he was a terrible sufferer. The funeral was preached at his residence by Revs. Vardiman and Felix, Monday, after which the remains were placed in the vault at Highland cemetery to await the final interrment. Due notice will be given. The deceased was born and raised in this county, where he has many devoted friends who will be pained to hear of his death. His family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to

GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affection, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envalope.

DR. M. E. CASS,
201 York street Jersey City, N. J.

☞ Mention this paper. jan 17-83

IRELAND of TO-DAY $75 to $150 Per Month. New Edition Now Ready. Gives Repression Bill, Events of 1882, etc. Agents Wanted J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome Illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

THE EAGLE

DRUG STORE,

—IS POSITIVELY—

THE CHEAPEST

—HOUSE IN—

RISING SUN, IND.

Where will be found a fresh stock of

DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,

SCHOOL BOOKS

—AND—

STATIONERY,

all at bottom prices.

GIVE US A CALL.

D. C. Thorn,

Main St., - - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

J. W. MILLER,

—DEALER IN—

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

432 Madison St.

COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, possessing facilties for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vast quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for specimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR

DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undeniably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year $1 15
One copy, six months........................ 65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,
Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 8-tf

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

F. Adkinson. A. W. Gaines
ADKINSON & GAINES,
Attorneys & Counselors at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. 41tf

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J. P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice.
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
Should take a policy at once.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky. | J. E. DUNCAN President, Burlington, Ky

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.

I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, 6 BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an Illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

DUDLEY HOUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple.
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.

Also a full stock of Jeans Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CAPS,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.

New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.

JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun, Ind.

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDS & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING,
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Also Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Satisfaction guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON, Proprietors.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDER,
Your Own County Paper.

Poisoned Sugars.

A few years since nearly all the hard sugars, i. e., the lump and granulated, were refined with the acetate of lead. The lead being poisonous, the refiners neutralized it, or supposed they did, with sulphurous acid gas. But they were mistaken. They failed of perfectly accomplishing their object. Enough of the lead still remained to prove very pernicious to the consumers who had delicate constitutions. Consequently bleeding piles increased throughout the whole country with fearful rapidity.

Of late some, perhaps all, of the refiners have used the sulphur more freely, so that generally they have entirely neutralized the lead. In some cases they have used so much sulphur that the sugar became charged with that chemical to such an extent that a long continued use of it would produce that class of diseases that would be the natural consequence of sulphur. But sulphur is far less injurious than lead. Therefore consumers have been much benefited by this change whenever they could obtain this class of sugar.

But now, when we purchase hard sugars, we are not sure that we are getting that which is refined with lead and sulphur, for of late much of the hard sugars are nothing but coffee sugar dried into granulated, and pressed into lump. This class of sugars are more pernicious than the former, as they are refined with chemicals that produce irritation of the mucous membrane of the alimentary organs, gradually developing dyspepsia and kidney disease.

If all the granulated sugars were refined with lead, and we could have the assurance that the lead was perfectly neutralized with sulphur, then they could be commended as comparatively safe. But as a portion of the granulated are nothing but coffee sugar dried, no person with a delicate constitution can use them without danger of becoming a confirmed invalid with dyspepsia or kidney disease. If he has a delicate stomach, dyspepsia will be the result; if the bowels are sensitive, he may expect a certain form of piles; if the kidneys are easily affected, kidney disease will be the result. Frequently it will develop all of these complaints in the same person.

For the last thirty years I have never tried a sample of coffee sugar that was not injurious to health. If a healthful article has been made it has not been my good fortune to discover it. Most if not all the chemicals used by the refiners are pernicious to health.

Doubtless, many strong, vigorous people will reply to this statement that they have used sugar for many years without being conscious of any injurious effect. While that may be true with them, there are multitudes of others with frailer, more delicate constitutions, in whom it has developed dyspepsia, piles, and kidney diseases.

Only one mode of refining sugar has as yet been discovered which will make a perfectly healthy article, and that is the old method, by the use of blood and bone-dust, without chemicals. But as that is more expensive than where chemicals are used, there is no hope of the refiners returning to that method. That being the case, the refiners ought to universally adopt the use of those chemicals which will prove the least injurious to the consumers. Of all the chemicals used there are none that will do less injury than the acetate of lead, providing that it is thoroughly neutralized with sulphur. The reader may be surprised to see so poisonous an article as acetate of lead commended for such a purpose; but years of observation has convinced me that since the refiners use the sulphur more freely, less injury accrues from the use of sugar refined in that way than from any other now made. Furthermore, the refiners ought to adopt a new brand for this kind of sugar, so that the consumers can distinguish it from the granulated made by drying coffee sugar.

I have lately been informed that there is another way in which sugar is poisoned, and that is by the use of galvanized evaporating pans. Whether this is true, or to what extent it may be true, the writer can not say. If it is true, there is a twofold reason why sugar should be poisonous, for the oxidization of zinc is quite as pernicious as any of the chemicals used in refining. This is demonstrated by the effect of water kept in water-coolers, so commonly used in stores, which are made with galvanized iron. No one with weak alimentary organs can drink water out of such coolers without suffering with irritation of the mucous membrane of the stomach. Now, if simple cold water will be poisoned by standing in galvanized iron, how much more must cane-juice be poisoned by being boiled in that kind of vessel? There is no kind of metal so safe for the consumers of sugar as iron.

Crying as a Fine Art.

Every woman, no matter how obtuse, who knows the value of beauty, seeks to make the most of her charms by secreting moles, freckles, pimples, harsh angles, gray hair and crows' feet by the use of lotions, powder, rouge, cosmetics and pencil. Every movement, attitude and expression is done according to a prescribed method for performing that operation. Her voice is modulated to a melodious pitch, and in company she is never without her good manners.

She is strapped up with bands of steel, whalebone, cable-cords, shoulder-braces, stocking-suspenders, skirt-supporters and web-belts to keep the hips down, until one might fancy her in armor. If her hips are low and her back hollow, she has to load her fragile form with a wire bustle and a pair of hip pads that never allow nature to forget her heedlessness in leaving those tantalizing depressions. False hair, false teeth, false eyes, false eyebrows and lashes, false blushes, false dimples, false voices, false laughs, even false tears are manufactured, and nothing that study and art can devise for enhancing beauty is permitted to go unrecognized. In spite of all the witty and satirical allusions to woman's make-up, she is perfectly justified in having recourse to any and every method conducive to personal attraction. Beauty of face and form especially, [illegible] by the charms of moral and mental beauty, has other values besides that of æsthetic pleasure. It is equivalent to so many dollars and cents in husbands, homes, social standing and influence. It is hateful for women to acknowledge this, but, nevertheless, such is the state of affairs in modern society.

Unfortunately, women do not always make the most of their charms. Gray hairs, those first flakes of hary storms, and the coming of crows' feet are too often hastened by anticipating them. Those plunderers of beauty should never be looked for, and the less one seeks, the fewer they will find, for thinking brings them on. If they must come, they will come, and there's an end. Truly they do mar a pair of pretty bright eyes, but very little artistic skill is necessary to tone them down with chalk, Egyptian black, or the end of a burnt match. The fashion in vogue a few years ago of laughing with the eye has proved disastrous, and not a few ladies charge the cluster of creases that radiate from the corners of the eyes to the-shut-eye-tight-laugh.

Another cause for wrinkled faces is the habit of making faces or grimaces during laughter. If the habit is too well set, beautifiers give up the case, and center their attention on children who get it by imitation. "A laugh," says the poet, "is the ripple of the heart," and of such importance is it that dozens of ladies in this very city take lessons in the art. This ambition is gained by society people who are too often jealous of the accomplishment as displayed on the stage. To be sure, a woman is not giddy enough to apply for lessons in laughing. If the instruction is required from one of those professors of the art of pleasing she has no hesitancy in divulging her crudeness, but these artists are as scarce as blue-bottles in January, and fifty dollars is not an unfrequent sum to invest in merry ripples. So the sly maiden takes elocution lessons, and selects for study only such poems and recitations as require a great amount of laughter. Such practice, if assiduous, often produces very charming results, but such study is not recommended for young children, lest art destroy the spontaneity of nature.

A voice must be a medley of sweet sounds to be loud. If produced with open mouth the coral and pearls must be superior to criticism. It is considerable of an art to laugh audibly, merrily, sweetly, and not open the mouth wider than is necessary to utter the word "doh."

Many ladies who are compelled to laugh behind their handkerchief smother the vocal sound. If only the upper lip is covered the result will be much more agreeable, and a long mouth, ulcerated gums or defective dentals be concealed.

Although a woman's greatest power is her tears, few know how to shed them. Aside from adding to the mute eloquence of the eyes, tears enhance a woman's beauty and overpower the giants whom pugilists can only master with difficulty. They should be brief, not too wet, and by no means bitter. They must rush to the eyelids, linger like dew drops, and when they do fall the precipitation must be speedy. To be effective they must be premeditated. A whiff of the tearful onion, a fresh inhalation of pungent smelling salts, a few grains of pepper or a slight irritation of the outer corners of the eyes with a match or toothpick will suffice for a copious flow, and if the lover, husband or father can be cornered the shower will have the desired effect. But avoid a frown or scowl. Manufacture a feeling of sadness, hold the breath to get up color, pout judiciously, incline the head to one side, droop the body but not the shoulders, use a small, soft finish cambric handkerchief with both hands, taking care to rub the eyeball down and out. The object in rubbing out is to have the tears roll over the cheek. There is too much of the deer sentiment when they course down the innocent nose in piteous chase.

It has been observed that only those women who are prettiest when they are the coldest can cry with advantage. Such ladies get deep rosy cheeks and lips, while their nose and ears blanch like the lily. They truly are blest, and can wrench diamonds by the peck, seal-skin sacques, dresses, bonnets, bonbons, in fact, anything tangible, from the susceptible husbands, with their tears. But when, as ordinarily, a flood-tide of salt tears makes the eyelids, nose and lips swell, pickles the dimples and gives the face the appearance of being parboiled, the game is lost. The weeper is not only uninteresting, but positively hideous, and if the looker-on does succumb it is only as a means of escape. When such a deluge comes on, and every woman knows when to expect it, she can do herself a gracious favor by immediately hiding herself.

Women cry because their lovers neglect them; cry because they are too ardent; cry because their dress doesn't fit; their bonnet is being duplicated; cry when their gloves tear, or their shoes don't squeak, cry with vexation at the triumphs of their friends, cry because their diamonds are waning, cry because their arms get tired before they can make their hair stay up, cry at the taunts of big brothers, and little brothers, too, cry when they get the toothache, cry when they get a proposal, cry when they don't; they cry to look pretty, and cry because they can't. They are a simpering set of mortals, and if they had the faintest idea that these incessant showers not only spoil the face but produce a peevish temper and petulant disposition, they would shut off the fountain and depend on other persuaders. An argument that can be effectively used in cutting off this water supply, is the unquestionable fact that tears injure the sight. Tears are romantic enough on paper, or in the eyes of the poet's ideal, but every-day women should be made of sterner stuff.—Chicago Herald.

College Athletics.

We are happy to see that one college president has spoken out loud in condemnation of the excess to which athletic sports have been carried in many of our public institutions for several years past. At the opening exercises of the college term, at Princeton, last week, President McCosh addressed the students concerning desired reforms and additional facilities and advantages lately given the institution. Speaking of the abuses arising from excessive indulgence in athletics, he said:

"This is a matter which demands immediate attention. The fever has risen to such a height that the pulse-beats of it, which I feel, seem to me alarmingly strong and swift. When one walks across the Campus, the conversation he overhears bears no relation to the science and knowledge which we come here to pursue, but it is this game and that game, this record and that record. The college papers, too, which are primarily literary organs, are devoted to gymnastics and athletics. The press of the country and the public at large are getting tired of it, and make a mockery of it. Physical culture carried to a moderate extent, no sane man can censure; but in this, as in most things, extremes are dangerous."

We commend these remarks to the attention of all colleges. Exercise, in ordinary cases, is essential to health, and the more entertaining the exercise the more healthful it will be. But exercise and dissipation are two entirely different things. Athletics, as they are called, have become largely a professional matter, the benefit, if there be any, as at present conducted, being confined to a few individuals, a large portion of whose time must be devoted to the cultivation of their muscles, and boat-talk and base-ball talk, to the neglect of study, while the evil is entailed upon the whole college. A gymnasium is a very important part of the equipment of a college, but boat-clubs and boat-races, as at present conducted, do not come in the same category. We hope for a revival of letters and the decadence of boat-races and base-ball matches in colleges.—N. Y. Observer.

HOME AND FARM.

—An Iowa farmer, writing to the Homestead, gives as his experience that an exclusive diet of corn is the cause of hog cholera. He claims that the hog should be treated to a variable diet like any other animal, and that corn is not a complete article of food, the hog requiring suitable food for converting into bone and muscle as well as fat.

—It is stated that five of the hundreds of firms engaged in the seed business in the United States annually pay $380,000 for postage on seeds. The rate is one cent for each ounce or fraction thereof, while for books, cards, chromos, and many other articles much more likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, the rate is one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

—At the New Jersey Experimental Station it was found that sorghum meal, from amber seed, freed from hulls, had no injurious effect upon milch cows; that it had no noticeable effect on the taste, color, or chemical composition of the milk; that in digestibility it probably falls slightly below corn-meal, for, when fed pound for pound with corn-meal the latter gave seven per cent. more milk.

—The American Cultivator says: Whoever places much dependence on the strainer for securing clean milk will never make gilt-edge butter. Allowing dirt to get into the milk and then depending on the strainer to get it out, is a poor apology for cleanliness. More or less of the dirt, especially everything of a soluble nature, and some that is not, will find its way through the meshes of the strainer.

—For Clifton loaf use half a pound of butter, one pound of sugar, one pound of flour, six eggs, half a pint of milk, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, and one tablespoonful of baking powder; beat the sugar, butter and spice together until light, and then add the milk, the eggs, well beaten, and the flour; beat thoroughly and add baking powder. Butter and paper a pan, and bake in a moderate oven.—Indianapolis Journal.

—For an excellent cake beat to a cream half a cup of butter, two cups of sugar, and one cup of milk in which a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. After beating thoroughly add one cup of flour with two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar rubbed in it, and the well-beaten yolks of three eggs. Beat the whites separately until stiff; add them and two cups of flour and beat thoroughly; butter two tins, pour in the cake, and bake about half an hour.—Chicago News.

—Salmon served with lobster sauce is considered delectable by the epicure. If the salmon is fresh, boil it until it is tender, wrapping it in a cloth. If canned salmon is used, heat it to the boiling point in the can, then drain the oil from it and pour the sauce over it. To make the sauce: To two tablespoonfuls of butter allow one heaping one of flour. Stir them together till soft, then add a pint of water or of stock if not too rich; let it simmer gently. When the sauce begins to whiten add two tablespoonfuls of lobster meat, picked very fine, pepper and salt, and lemon juice to taste.—N. Y. Post.

Composting Manure.

One of the important questions which every farmer has to decide is the best method of composting manure. Farmers do not agree on this subject; while some hold that it is best to apply manure in its green state and compost it with the soil, others believe it best to compost it in the yard by mixing with it an equal quantity of muck or loam. Advocates of the last method claim that the manure is thus decomposed and brought into plant food that is immediately available. The advocates of composting directly with the soil claim that it saves a large amount of labor of hauling in material to compost with, the pitching of it all over, and the carting out and spreading twice the quantity; and they also claim that during the process of decomposition in a compost heap, under ordinary conditions, a portion of the fertilizing elements is lost; while if applied directly to the soil the process of decomposition improves the condition of the soil and prepares it for plant growth much better than if applied after decomposition has taken place.

While it is probably best for most of crops to apply the manure in the green state, there are some crops that need forcing with manure already well decomposed. For example, strawberries that have been set one year sometimes require a fertilizer that will act at once. Grass land, if manured between the first and second crop, should have well decomposed manure.

The farmer in composting his manure should never forget that all of the muck, loam or sand which he mixes with his manure, above that which is necessary to absorb the liquids and gasses, is a waste of labor, and only makes his manure heap a deception which his crops will surely find out. While it is important that every farmer should always have at hand sufficient absorbents to prevent the loss of the liquids, but few farmers work to the best advantage when they haul into the barn yard as many loads of muck, loam or sand as they have of manure. The large additional cost of removing twice or three times such large quantities of materials, but little better, if as good, as the soil upon which it is spread, never comes back in the increase of crops.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Fourteen Pall-Bearers.

Mr. W. Ignatius Dyer, the builder and contractor, who recently died in Georgetown, was a large man. He was powerfully built, and weighed 375 pounds. Indeed, avoirdupois began to interfere with his business affairs some time ago, and he retired from active life. Mr. Dyer, when he died was the largest man in the district. Ever since he was compelled to remain in the house he has increased in weight. His last illness, while partially resulting from a fall, was chiefly owing to the constant accumulation of fat, the cause of his death being the growth of that substance about his internal organs. To such an extent had the mass of fat increased that when he died he weighed no less than 375 pounds. As can readily be imagined, no ordinary casket would serve in a case like this. One had to be made to special order in Philadelphia, and when it arrived its unusual size naturally attracted a large crowd of curious persons. It appeared four times as large as an ordinary casket, being six and a half feet long, nearly three feet wide, and very deep. It was the very largest casket that could possibly be carried into the house. Ten pall-bearers assisted by four experienced men furnished by the undertaker, bore the casket, which weighed over 500 pounds.—Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.

—Who said the inventive genius went unrewarded? A New Hampshire man who has invented a machine to make cloves out of basswood has been offered $50,000 for his patent. The cloves are sold to hotels by the bushel.—Boston Post.

Cremation of the Dead in Japan.

As men and women are born into this world, so sure is it that they shall die; and as death has that about it that is mystery unfathomable, it is not strange that it should be attended with all the pomp and ceremony the occasion will admit of. The Japanese have rites peculiar to their religious faith that are observed in consigning their dead to earth, there to await the unknown that may be. After death the cadaver is taken by the friends to the cremating grounds at evening; it is taken to the house of the priest attendant upon the place, who offers prayer for the dead. The body is then cremated, burning all night. On the following morning the relatives collect what particles of bone they can find unconsumed and place them in a fine jar, which is securely sealed. It is customary to place a number of coins and some leaves of a plant sacred to that use—known as the Shikibi—in the jar to insure the passage of the dead across the Sandsu or Styx; as it is supposed that there is an old woman who has charge of the ferry who must be paid ere she will allow any soul in her boat. A square bier is used to transport the coffin jar upon as it is being taken to the place of sepulture, on each corner of which is affixed a branch of the Shikibi plant. The bier is covered with white garments, such as are worn by women when they are being married. All who attend the funeral are dressed in white. In front of the bier there is carried a wooden tablet, on which is inscribed the record of name, birth and date of death of the late departed. White lanterns are also carried in processions, the more elevated the rank of the dead the more lanterns there are carried.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

—A lecture on "The North Pole" was given in Aroostook County, Maine, the other evening. The lecturer is not known to fame, but ought to be, for a correspondent of a journal of that State remarks: "As a facial acrobat the professor has no equal, and if it had not been for a quantity of red pepper on the stove the lecture might have been prolonged."

—Mrs. Maria Baldwin, of Jerusalem, Yates County, N. Y., married John A. Enos in October, 1882, on condition that he would give her his note for $3,000. After a few months she left him on account of his cruelty. When she sued him to recover the amount of the note the jury gave her a verdict in full.—N. Y. Times.

—How much money is paid for base-ball exhibitions in this country, may be estimated from the fact that the Providence (R. I.) club reports its receipts for the past year at $41,217. There are five other professional clubs, whose receipts cannot have fallen much short of the Providence.—Chicago Times.

—Cincinnati means to have a World's Fair in 1888, when she will be a century old. Like sensible men, the Cincinnatians have begun their work early, and they will have more than five years in which to complete it.—Chicago Journal.

[New York Graphic.]

O'Donovan Rossa's Opinion.

O'Donovan Rossa, speaking of the Great German Remedy to a friend, said: "Mrs. Rossa has been cured of a very severe attack of neuralgia by St. Jacob's Oil, as she will gladly tell you, if you call at my residence, 679 Bushwick ave., Brooklyn, N. Y."

IN-AUGUR-AL addresses are doubtless so called because they are often bores.—Lowell Courier.

DR. PIERCE'S "Favorite Prescription" is not extolled as a "cure all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent specific in those chronic weaknesses peculiar to women. Particulars in Dr. Pierce's pamphlet treatise on diseases peculiar to women, 96 pages, sent for three stamps. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

A FAT men's ball should be advertised as a "mass meeting."

"Accept our Gratitude."

Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—Your "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured my boy of a fever sore of two years' standing. Please accept our gratitude.

Yours truly,
HENRY WHITING, Boston, Mass.

PEOPLE who lose their money in bucket shops should rejoice at a chance to kick the bucket.

DR. PIERCE'S "Pellets"—little liver pills (sugar-coated)—purify the blood, speedily correct all disorders of the liver, stomach and bowels. By druggists.

THE poet who addresses verses to a diminutive darling writes them in short meet her.—N. Y. Commercial.

A Noted Town.

James Buchanan lived in Lancaster, Pa. It was there also that Mishler's Herb Bitters first were offered to the public, more than a quarter of a century ago. Mr. John Kuntz, of Lancaster, said in a letter to a friend that, "I have had a touch of the lock-jaw for five or six weeks. I was laid up of course. I could find no relief until I used Mishler's Herb Bitters which cured me in one week." This remedy is endorsed by the multitudes. It deserves the success which it has attained.

A PAIR of slippers—the orange and banana skins.—Puck.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar
Cures throat and lung affections. Don't trifle. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

HOW TO expedite the males—Get papa to ask what their intentions are.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, February 5, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 00	@3 00
Choice butchers	4 75	@ 5 00
HOGS—Common	5 65	@ 6 25
Good packers	6 60	@ 6 85
SHEEP	4 50	@ 5 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 5 75
Fancy	5 50	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 10	@
No. 2 winter red	1 07	@ 1 08
Corn—No. 2 mixed	54	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed, new	40	@ 41
Rye—No 2	63	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@12 00
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	17 50	@17 75
Lard—Steam	10-50	@10-60
BUTTER—Western Reserve	20	@ 28
Prime Creamery	40	@ 48
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 50	@ 3 00
Apples, prime per barrel	3 00	@ 3 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 3 75
Good to choice	4 00	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 16¾	@ 1 18½
No. 1 white	1 16	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	67½	@ 67¾
Oats—mixed	48	@ 50
PORK—Mess	18 50	@18 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 5 50
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	1 05½	@
Corn—No. 2	54¼	@ 56
Oats—No. 2	37½	@
Rye	61½	@
PORK—Mess	17 50	@
LARD—Steam	10 75	@
WHISKY	1 16	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 11	@
Corn mixed	68¼	@
Oats mixed	47	@ 49
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 50	@18 75
Lard refined	12	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	9	@ [illegible]
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 03	@ 1 05
Corn—mixed	48	@ 49
Oats—mixed	42	@ 43
PORK—Mess	18 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 01	@
CORN	47	@
OATS—White, new	38	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 00

Satisfactory Evidence.

J. W. Graham, Wholesale Druggist, of Austin, Tex., writes: I have been handling DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS for the past year, and have found it one of the most salable medicines I have ever had in my house for Coughs, Colds and even Consumption, always giving entire satisfaction. Please send me one gross by Saturday's steamer.

A DRUNKEN man has no grounds for displaying his "reel estate."—Exchange.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

EVE's first dress must have been ribbed silk.

SUFFERERS FROM COUGHS, SORE THROAT, etc., should try "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

That Husband of Mine
Is three times the man he was before he began using Wells' Health Renewer. $1.

DON'T DIE IN THE HOUSE. "Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

A FRIEND every man turns his back on. His bed.

THE Fraser Axle Grease is the best, and intrinsically, the cheapest. Don't work your horses to death by using poor axle grease. Try it.

ANYTHING but a pleasant trip: Falling over a sidewalk obstruction.

No Matter
What you are doing, it will pay you to see our great offer to agents. No canvassing required. No license necessary, as you manufacture your own goods. A good chance to make money. A stamp will insure a prompt reply. Address EATON & CO., Washington, D. C.

Personal!
THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

Dose Cup. Advertisement in another col.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS, as Prepared from a German formula. In use over 300 Years. Is skilfully compounded and not to be compared a moment with the cheap concoctions which flood the market. A CERTAIN REMEDY FOR KIDNEYS AND LIVER, Purifying the Blood and Secretions; Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Cramp in the Stomach, Fever and Ague and periodical Complaints, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera Morbus, and kindred diseases. It is a pure and wholesome Stomachic Appetizer, a Tonic without a rival. A Panacea for all diseases of the Lungs, Throat and Heart. $1 per bottle. Mishler's Green Label Bitters is a Specific for Scrofula, Syphilis, Old Sores or Ulcers, while Mishler's Red Label Bitters is a certain remedy for all female complaints, of whatever character. $1.50 per bottle. Send for book "Messenger of Health." MISHLER HERB BITTERS Co., Lancaster, Pa. Sold by druggists.

No Worm Syrup so Pleasant as Parker's.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids, broken down in health and spirits by chronic dyspepsia, or suffering from the terrible exhaustion that follows the attacks of acute disease, the testimony of thousands who have been raised as by a miracle from a similar state of prostration by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is a sure guarantee that by the same means you, too, may be strengthened and restored.

For sale by all Druggists and dealers generally.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. 25 100 CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS on any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, WASHINGTON, D. C.

GOOD COFFEE How to Make It AT HALF COST. Agents' Profits $5 to $10 per day, at home. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., Cincinnati, O., and Kansas City, Mo.

Come to CHICAGO If you desire to locate in Chicago, and would like to know all about the city and your chances of success, by personal letters before you come, enclose two 3-cent stamps for full particulars to WHEATON BROS., Box 293, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

A KEY THAT WILL WIND ANY WATCH AND NOT WEAR OUT. SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. BIRCH & CO., 38 Dey St., N. Y.

The FUNNIEST of FUNNYDOM. "Laugh and grow fat." Send nine cents in stamps for "Ching-chang, or Birds of a Feather." Bean-esprits Novelty Co., 79 Nassau St., N. Y.

TEACHERS WANTED For Vacancies. Address with stamp, for "application form" and copy of our "Public School Journal." National Teachers' Agency, Cincinnati, O.

SAW MILLS The Best is Cheapest. For Descriptive Circular and Prices write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS. Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and astonish you.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit. Mich

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment, address P. W. REAM, Ada, O.

NERVOUS Remedy for weakness, debility, exhaustion. Speedy, Safe, Sure. Mailed free for 50c. D. SEEBACH, Peru, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

$47 A MONTH and board in your county. Men or Ladies. Pleasant business. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., Box 94, Chicago, Ill.

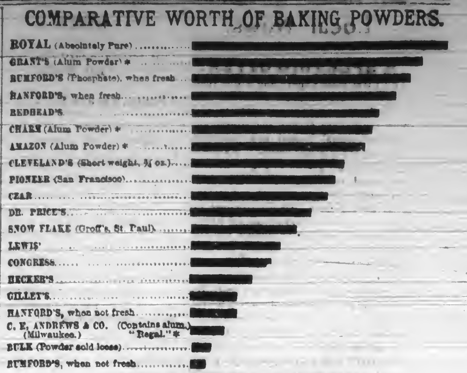
White Burley Tobacco Seed sent free of postage, 35c. per oz. Address, W. F. GOODWIN, Felicity, O.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free, Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.



COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.—

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

"June 23, 1882.—We have made a careful analytical test of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by ourselves in the open market here, and in the original package. We find it to be a cream of tartar powder of the highest degree of strength, containing nothing but pure, wholesome, and useful ingredients.
"JUAN H. WRIGHT, M.D.
"ALBERT MERRELL, M.D., } Analytical Chemists, St. Louis."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analyses and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than the ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work.

A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

HIGHEST HONORS AT EVERY GREAT WORLD'S EXHIBITION FOR 16 YEARS.

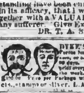
100 STYLES, $22, $30, $57, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114, $500, AND UP
MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN & PIANO CO.
BOSTON, 154 TREMONT ST. NEW YORK, 46 E. 14th STREET. CHICAGO, 149 WABASH AV.

DIPHTHERIA CROUP, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, NEURALGIA. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment (for Internal and External Use) will instantaneously relieve these terrible diseases, and will positively cure nine cases out of ten. Information that will save many lives, sent free by mail. Don't delay a moment. Prevention is better than cure. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

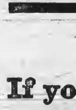
I CURE FITS!
When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again: I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.
Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. LANDS IN WISCONSIN. Full particulars FREE. Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

DOSE CUP & CORK-SCREW, the invalid's boon and nurse's delight will be GIVEN FREE as a premium to DR. FOOTE'S HEALTH MONTHLY to those sending only 4 letter stamps for a 3 months' trial subscription. The DOSE CUP measures accurately one drachm and prevents mistakes; the cork screw prevents breaking corks and knife-blades; the Health Monthly prevents human ills. Address M. HILL PUB. CO., Box 788, New York City.

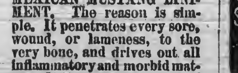


CANCER INSTITUTE. Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.



AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.



DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR [illegible] cts., stamps or silver. L. A. L. SMITH & CO., Sole Agts., Palatine, Ill.

If you are Interested

In the inquiry—Which is the best Liniment for Man and Beast?—this is the answer, attested by two generations: the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. The reason is simple. It penetrates every sore, wound, or lameness, to the very bone, and drives out all inflammatory and morbid matter. It "goes to the root" of the trouble, and never fails to cure in double quick time.

SHEPARD
CHURCH COLLECTION
—FOR—
Quartet and Chorus Choirs.

A fine collection of Quartets and Anthems of a novel and striking character, by such composers as Gounod, Stainer, Rubenstein, Sullivan, Rheinberger, Franz and Schubert, in all about 50 pieces, by about 40 noted musicians. Compiled and arranged by W. M. RICHARDSON and J. E. BURGESS. The solo singers are well remembered. Price, $1.25.

Dobson's Universal BANJO INSTRUCTOR.
The Banjo is getting to be quite a fashionable instrument, and deservedly so, in its present improved form. Messrs. H. C. and G. C. DOBSON have provided in this new instructor, all that is needed, including 57 bright Reels, Jigs, Hornpipes, Walk-rounds, Waltzes, Polkas and Schottisches, and 23 popular songs. Price, $1.00.

Ruth and Boaz.
A new Sacred Cantata, of a charming character, fairly easy, and just the thing to give in a vestry, by such a chorus as can be easily formed. Scenery and costumes simple and not expensive. By E. A. ANDREWS.
Price, 65 cents, or $6 per dozen.

The CHORAL CHOIR ($1.00), for Choirs, and the PEERLESS (75 cts.), both by Dr. W. O. PERKINS, for Singing Classes, are the newest and best books of the kind.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

XX.—NOTICE.—XX.
AS BLUE FLANNEL GARMENTS
Of Inferior Quality of Goods
are sold as the "genuine Middlesex," which are not made by that mill, The Middlesex Company, in order to protect their customers and the public, give notice that hereafter all Clothing made from THE MIDDLESEX STANDARD INDIGO BLUE FLANNELS AND YACHT CLOTHS, sold by all leading clothiers, must bear the "SILK HANGERS," furnished by the Selling Agents to all parties ordering the goods.
WENDELL, FAY & CO.,
SELLING AGENTS, MIDDLESEX COMPANY,
86 and 88 Worth St., New York; 37 Franklin St., Boston; 214 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

30,000 COPIES SOLD
first six months of TREASURY OF SONG. The most popular musical work ever issued. Sells rapidly, has no competition in the subscription trade, consequently the best book for agents to sell. Every one who sings, or loves music wants it. Contains 300 select songs—comic, sentimental and religious in grand variety—printed in sheet music style, handsomely bound, at low price of $2.50 per copy. No knowledge of music necessary to sell it. Agents wanted in every city, town and county in the U. S. For terms to agents address,
HUBBARD BROS., 51 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 92 Fulton Street, N. Y.

Webster's Unabridged
118,000 Words, 3,000 Engravings, &c., &c., &c.
"A LIBRARY IN ITSELF."
An ever-present and reliable school master to the whole family.—S. S. Herald.
G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

USE NONE BUT THE BEST. THE GREAT FAMILY SOAP MAKER SAPONIFIER THE ORIGINAL CONCENTRATED LYE SOLD BY ALL GROCERS PENN'A SALT MF'G CO. PHILA.

ASTHMA CURED by using Moore's CURE. Send 25c. in stamps for sample package by return mail to Moore & Harris Vincennes, Ind. Large Size, $1.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

A. N. K.—E. 012 6—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1883. NUMBER 16.

IRISH SONG.

Of all the girls with clustering curls
From Kerry to Kildare,
There's not a lass that can surpass
My love with the golden hair.
Sure, if the sun forgot to shine,
The moon refused her ray,
Her very shadow on the earth
Would turn the night to day.

But what's my chance to gain the glance
Of one so good and fair,
With all the boys from Clonmacnoise
To Cork around her chair?
Yet somehow still she steals a look
Upon me through the throng,
And when I sing, with smiles and tears
She answers to my song.

—Belgravia.

STRESS OF WEATHER.

Of course it was very cold, but fine, seasonable weather. So said each of the three middle-aged gentlemen as they drew themselves up for a final warm at their dining-room fires; waited on by such feminine slaves as happened to exist for them in the shape of wives, daughters or housekeepers. What a hero a man must feel who sees his mittens laid in the fender, his great coat heated and regretful admiration in the surrounding countenances.

Arrived at the railway station, and deprived of their natural worship, these three men were just as ordinary, comfortable-looking citizens as you could well meet with. They were all strangers to each other, and chanced, at the same hour, to book themselves for Paddington; all doing it cheerily, for how could they tell what was going to happen?

There was a look of having outwitted somebody—a complacent look—on Mr. Dolman's countenance as he pocketed his ticket and purchased his newspaper.

"I'll drop in upon them before breakfast," he muttered to himself, with a self-satisfied nod.

Mr. Weaver [illegible] neither a Times nor a Telegraph, but the latest edition of a scientific journal.

Mr. Podbury supplied himself with Punch, Fun and Truth; laughter and polite lies being his usual requirements for a happy journey.

Then these three middle-aged gentlemen got into the same first-class compartment, obtaining steam-hot tins for their feet, and occupied the minutes, before starting on their sixty-mile journey, in rolling themselves in stout railway rugs. The whistle sounded, the train moved with a prophetic groan, and each man, like a true Briton, opened wide his newspaper and shut out any possible sight of his fellow-travelers.

An hour later the newspapers are dropped, and the gentlemen are all silently engaged in forming their own private opinions as to the meaning of a very fierce wind that has risen, and is now engaged in blowing snow as fine as sifted sugar through the cracks in the carriage windows. Mr. Podbury, indeed, changed his seat, having a clear objection to being ornamented like a Christmas cake. At last he—the most genial of the three men—spoke:

"Never saw such a sky! Full of snow!"

"Humph! think its getting thicker?" inquired Mr. Dolman.

"Thicker, sir?" broke in Mr. Weaver, solemnly. "There are evidences about us that the elements are preparing for a struggle—a great struggle, sir."

At this pronounced opinion from so evidently scientific a man, Mr. Dolman looked in amazement at his opposite neighbor. Mr. Podbury laughed cheerily.

"Good gracious! Cats and dogs, I dare say, in snow form!" A great swirl of wind drove the snow hard against the glass as he spoke, and, for a minute or so, the windows were blinded. Slower and slower moved the train, and finally stopped.

"What now?" cried Mr. Dolman, as he and Mr. Podbury thrust their heads out of opposite windows, and as suddenly drew them in again. A guard plodding his way along, and bending to the tempest, showed the most remarkable instance of railway-official-forbearance on record, for he waited to hear and answer the two gentlemen, who now tried to thrust their two heads out of one and the same window.

"Why have you stopped, guard?" asked the one.

"Why don't you go on, guard?" asked the other.

"We're fast in a drift, sirs, and can't get no further."

At this astounding news, the questioners became momentarily dumb; even from Mr. Podbury's cheerful face the light died out.

"It's disgraceful!—to-day of all days, guard!—I shall be too late, after all!" burst forth Mr. Dolman, in angry reproach. But the guard passed quietly onward, and the gentlemen shut up the window.

The only one of the three who wore an air of comfort and composure was Mr. Weaver. He read a short paragraph in his scientific journal, and murmured to himself:

"Most interesting! Wonderful!"

"What is, sir?" testily inquired Mr. Dolman. "Our being stuck in the snow?" Mr. Weaver glanced up from his reverie with a mild remark. "I have been engaged for some years in the study of the Glacial Period, sir. As it was in the past it will undoubtedly be again. I see a beautiful corroboration in the scene around me of the evident near approach of the extraordinary cold phenomena we are led by the most learned of our men to expect."

"Every one to his taste," cried Mr. Podbury, shivering, "I hate ice, myself," and he drew out a well-filled pocket-flask. Mr. Dolman, evidently put out by some private, serious complication, frowned and glowered silently. The snow was getting uncommonly deep, and presently the guard appeared again.

"No chance of moving, gentlemen, till we can get some men to dig us out. Nearest station just one mile off." And away he went.

"Does the fellow think we can walk?" demanded Mr. Dolman of Mr. Podbury.

"No, no. We must grin and bear it."

"I can't bear it, sir!" said Mr. Dolman, unreasonably. "If I don't get to Paddington in an hour, my niece and my niece's fortune will be lost to me for ever."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Mr. Podbury, with keen pleasure at the chance of a little amusing scandal, "how's that, sir?" Even the Glacial Period man looked across with mild interest.

"My niece, a charming young lady, is also my ward," said Mr. Dolman. "I have always intended that she should marry my son. Unfortunately I was persuaded to allow the girl to visit her aunt—one of those dreadful women who act for themselves, and think they are cleverer than men; and, under this misguided person's roof, she has been permitted to renew a girlish love affair of which I had entirely disapproved, and put a stop to. The result is that they are to be married this morning at Paddington Church at half-past eleven. A clerk of mine found that out and telegraphed for me, so that I might be in time to stop the mischief. And I should have been in time, but for this—this—" and finding no adequate word ready to express his wrath, Mr. Dolman glared fiercely out at the fair but impeding snow wreaths.

"It's an ill-wind that blows nobody any good," smiled Mr. Podbury, with an attempt at pleasantry, which the aggrieved uncle bitterly resented. "How jolly glad the young couple will be, sir, when they hear that you stuck fast on the right side of Reading!"

"Ugh!" growled the miserable Mr. Dolman. "Her money's all tied up! that's one comfort; young Weaver can't make ducks and drakes of it!"

"Weaver, sir?" said the scientific gentleman, with difficulty recalling himself from antediluvian dreams, "that's my name—and my son, Tom Weaver, of the Engineers, is going to be married to-day. I was on my way to be present at the wedding. He is a downright good fellow, sir, and the pretty young girl is Mary Dolman."

"Good gracious!" cried Mr. Podbury, laughing heartily, "one on his way to assist, the other to prevent, and both stopped by the snow! Ha! ha! ha! I must say it's good!"

If Mr. Dolman could have roasted Mr. Podbury, and converted Mr. Weaver into a permanent glacial monument, he would have done it. That he should in his storm-bound desperation have confided his hopes and their disappointment to the father of that young rascal, Weaver!

But the snow got worse and worse. They reached Reading toward nightfall, and there Mr. Dolman stopped, wildly desirous to send off telegrams; one of reproach to his wicked niece, one to his home to say he was not lost. As the wires were damaged by the storm, he could not send either. He made his way to an hotel in the town, and went to bed, roughly desiring the chambermaid not to call him until the line was clear for him to get home. As the young woman did not know where he lived, she wisely remarked that it might be a week or more; to which he sulkily replied he didn't care if it was ten. The girl looked a moment at the door as it closed, and then nodded her head knowingly:

"'E looks old, but there's no mistake in the symptoms. 'E's bin and proposed to some one, and she won't have him!" —Argosy.

Russian Courage.

I should rather incline to think that mere courage is more general among Russians than among any other people nowadays. I mean the unreasoning, irresponsible readiness of a dog to risk life and liberty upon provocation. Not more volunteers rush out, when a desperate enterprise is mooted, than from our own ranks; more than all is a mathematical absurdity. But the Englishman stakes his life in another, a grander spirit. He feels and reckons with the peril. Before meeting it, so far as I have seen examples, he is quiet, thoughtful, contemplating the worst and making his arrangements. A Russian scorns all that, does not even think of it. After assuring himself, rather roughly, that the needful dispositions have been made, he becomes the lightest-hearted of the company to which he hastens. I do not say affects to become, for it may well be that deadly danger stirs him to mirth as it stirs another man equally brave to self-commune. I can not forget an instance on Radisovo Hill the morning of the great attack. An infantry regiment stood at ease in the rain, waiting the order to descend into that valley blind with smoke, echoing with thud of guns and angry crackle of musketry. The Colonel and a staff Captain approached and asked us to accept charge of letters for their wives, to be forwarded in case of accident. Then they stood chatting of London and Paris with the warmth of men whose hearts were there, though the battle raged closer, and a ball now and then musically spun above our heads. They asked the precise story of a scandal half-forgotten now, and their shrewd comments told they were attending closely, when an aide came galloping through the mist. Three minutes afterward the doomed regiment filed away down toward the valley of death.—All the Year Round.

—A town has been laid out on the proposed line of the Nevada & Oregon Railroad in Nevada, of which great things are expected. It has been christened Belfast. An adjacent lake has been tapped to supply the town with water, two thousand shade trees have been planted, a hotel is being built, together with a blacksmith shop and store, and several families have already taken up their residence in the new town. There is a tract of 150,000 acres of valley land around Belfast which awaits occupation, but it must be irrigated, and this is being arranged for by the projectors of the town.

—A marriage ceremony came to an abrupt and ludicrous termination, the other day, in Atlanta, Ga. A prominent clergyman of that city having consented to unite a colored couple, had just asked the solemn question: "Wilt thou take this woman? etc." when an old flame of the bridegroom poked her head into the room and said: "Henry, I jess dar you to say yes." Henry sank into the nearest chair without a word, and the company thoughtfully withdrew.

—Faint-heartedness would never have won the Vicksburg fair lady who refused her suitor four times, but yielded when he fell on his knees before her in a parlor in the presence of a dancing company and for the fifth time urged his suit. She accepted him on the spot, and appointed a day for the wedding.

PITH AND POINT.

—One lawyer in Des Moines, Iowa, has put through 189 divorce cases within a year. The fare to Des Moines is about seven dollars.—Chicago Tribune.

—The New York Commercial Advertiser suddenly remarks that: "The man who hangs his hair hasn't enough sense to blow out his brains, even if he possessed any."

—Highly sugar-coated: A New York divorce lawyer's advertisement reads: "Hymeneal incompatibilities as a specialty, carefully adjusted. 'Tis slavery to detain the hand after the heart hath fled."

—A Pennsylvania paper tells of a family which has been poisoned by eating pie containing arsenic. It seems like a work of supererogation to put arsenic into pie. A pie that can not kill a family without the help of arsenic is a very weak pie indeed.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—An African traveler gives a thrilling account of a "vegetable vampire"—a tree which envelops a person with its branches and strangles him to death. The nearest approach we have in this country to a vegetable vampire is the "dead beat," who also lives upon others.—Norristown Herald.

—"My mother's awful fickle," said little Edith to Mrs. Smith, who was making a call. "When she saw you coming up the street, she said: 'There's that horrid Mis' Smith; I hope she isn't coming here;' and a minute after she told you she was real glad to see you. Mother says I'm fickle, but I guess I don't change my mind as quick as that."—N. Y. Graphic.

—It took me four years to save my first thousand dollars. It was saved from a soldier's pay in the army, and the boys often said: "Charlie, you might as well spend your money, for you may never get home to use it." It required courage to resist the influence to spend all, but the schooling of those four years was worth more than the thousand dollars, for I learned to save money.—Charles W. Black.

—An old man would not believe he could hear his wife talk a distance of five miles by telephone. His better half was in a country store several miles away, where there was a telephone, and the skeptic was also in a place where there was a similar instrument, and, on being told how to operate it, he walked boldly up and shouted, "Hello, Jane!" At that instant lightning struck the telephone-wire and knocked the man down, and as he scrambled to his feet he excitedly cried, "That's Jane every time."—Modern Argo.

—"James, dear, Reginald desires a new sled. I think you had better get him one." "What's a sled good for to him? You've brought him up to stay in the house and look pretty. He wouldn't know what to do with one." "Oh, I don't mean one of those great big out-door sleds. I mean a little house sled that he can play with in the front hall, dear, just to get him accustomed to the idea, you know." Lots of little Reginalds are being cultivated indoors, and they will either go to early graves or grow up to be flats.—Boston Globe.

—If we must talk about the weather, why not vary the formula, "It is a pleasant day." Every one is tired of admitting that it is. Why not be scientifically accurate when one meets a friend? The following is submitted as a specimen dialogue: Jones—"Ah, Mr. Smith, I see we have cloudy weather with light rains." Smith (with a cheerful smile)—"Yes, and variable winds shifting to colder northeasterly, stationary or higher pressure." Jones—"Quite so; but it is gratifying to know that the rivers will remain nearly stationary and that the temperature has fallen thirty degrees in the Rio Grande Valley. Good-morning, sir."—Boston Advertiser.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Nail kegs of sheet iron are manufactured at Cannonsburg, Pa.

—Lieutenant Danenhower has distributed among nurserymen of West Chester, Pa., seed of the Arctic pines, from which they will endeavor to raise trees.

—Glue, when mixed with one-fourth part glycerine, is found to have an elasticity and pliability which prevents it cracking when dry. A German chemist in Nuremberg has called attention to this.

—An apiarist of Bristol, Vt., has an order for thirty thousand section hives of what are known as "pure-bred" swarms of bees. This industry is rivaling the leading business of the Champlain valley, viz., Spanish merino sheep-breeding.

—Paper is now being largely made in India. In the public offices the coarse quality used is no longer imported. Signs are not wanting that ten years hence the export trade to India will have greatly declined. The Indian government can now obtain at home, at a vastly reduced cost, many things which it has had to import. With such an enormous population, labor is very cheap, and the people are expert at handicraft.

—In his home, built upon the hull of a superannuated steamer which lies in the Schuylkill River near the Wissahickon landing, Captain Rowe is still at work upon his iron man. This mechanical biped, of which a crude model was exhibited at Manayunk several years ago, is to be operated by steam, and the inventor, who is said to have devoted a fortune to his whim, expects to live to see it running faster than any horse and performing many useful services.—Philadelphia Press.

—France has already done much in the application of electricity to agriculture, and she is now being followed by Germany. The new motive power promises to be very valuable to the farmer. At an agricultural gathering recently held at Ladenburg some interesting experiments were made in the use of electricity instead of steam for the threshing of wheat. Messrs. Piette and Krizik lit up electrically the space reserved for machines, and at the same time utilized the current to drive an ordinary threshing machine. The cylinder attained a speed of 1,400 revolutions per minute.

Religious.

WITHIN THE SANCTUARY.

Oh, soft and low and full the organ tones
Blend with the sacred stillness of the hour,
Voicing an invocation from each heart,
And bringing Heaven so near to human need
That, hallowed by the Father's answering love,
Their echoes breathe a benediction calm.

Now reverently putting off the shoes
Of worldliness from weary, toil-worn feet,
On sacred ground we stand; subdued, we yield
Ourselves as to the loving guidance of a friend,
Responsive to the spirit's gentle "Come."

Straightway a wondrous peace fills all our soul,
And anxious, wearying Care shrinks back apace,
And Doubt, the offspring of our misery,
Assumes the pigmy's stature as we rise
From the low level of our baser selves
And press along the path that ever leads
Straight to the Father's heart; at length we feel
Our groping spirit is thrilled with sudden joy,
And know the living presence of the Lord.
In rapturous, eager haste we follow on,
Up, up the mount where Faith serenely smiles,
Till on the summit we would fain behold
The glory of the Presence.

Eagerly,
With vision keen, gained on these heights alone—
Where Heaven and earth, the human and Divine,
Man's yearning and the Maker's matchless love,
Unite for human weal—we look adown
The long, dim vista of the ages past,
And lo! the halo of its own pure light
Reveals Truth—omnipresent and vari-formed,
Now beaming bright, with no uncertain ray—
A star of hope athwart the midnight age
Of dark despair; and now, refreshing, pure,
It sparkles forth, a fountain to the soul
Athirst upon the desert plains of sin;
Or, falling on the famished realm of thought,
Enervate with an idle, sensuous creed,
Is manna, from Omniscient fullness sent;
Now, wonderingly, a world of life inert
Throbs into sentient being, vitalized
By Truth's resistless, tender, brooding breath.

Oh, miracle of mercy, that our eyes,
Blind from our birth, should open to behold
The glories of a world invisible;
And clear, distinct above the din of earth,
A new-found sense discern new harmonies!
Oh, voice so strangely sweet! "I am the Truth!"
Oh, joy ineffable! "Who hath seen Me
Hath seen the Father also." Lord of Life,
We praise Thy tender mercy for the boon.

Oh, sweet and clear and full the organ tones
Blend with the holy hush, the sacred calm,
Voicing a benediction on each soul,
And raising earthly aims until they glow
With the near radiance of God's design;
While fervid, calm and clear their echoes ring
From hearts inspired and pulsate with new zeal,
An invocation to the throne of God.

Mrs. H. W. Powers, in Boston Transcript.

Home Religion.

Piety that cannot endure the test of home experience is worthless. It is in the family circle and the close relationships of social life that the fruits of the Spirit come to their most abundant harvest. It is a mistake to look upon the use and enjoyment of religious privileges as in any respect the end of Christian living. They are needed sources of help and inspiration, but the benefit that comes from them can only be measured by the effect on the daily life. The vine that has a sunny exposure, and whose roots are carefully enriched and watered, is far more likely to ripen luscious clusters of fruit than if neglected and untilled. But the important point is that there should be life. Dead branches are only fit for the fire. As the vine or fruit-bearing tree requires the sunshine and care of the gardener, so the spiritual life needs the means of grace for its sustenance, but the quality and reality of this life finds its expression in the home and the active duties and responsibilities of every-day experience. The test is very practical and easily made. The Saviour never yet entered a home that did not reveal the radiance of His presence. If "His joy" be in the heart, it will flow forth in thoughts and acts of love that will set the bells of joy ringing in other hearts. No matter what the profession may be, or how rigid the performance of certain outward forms and duties, that life is but a travesty of religious experience that does not make its influence felt in the common ways of life, in such a manner that it will bring joy, sympathy and help to others.

Home religion should have in it the heroism of faith and the spirit of self sacrifice, and constant thought for the happiness and welfare of others. In this atmosphere the harsh and chill winds of wrong temper and bitter feelings should never find entrance. The true Christian home is, indeed, the place where harvests of the best earthly good are garnered and the noblest victories won over self and wrong tendencies of character. Such homes are not exempt from trial, but in the darkest hour the clouds have a silver lining; there is sunshine beyond. What record shall the new year give of our home life? There can come to us no question of deeper interest than this, for in its answer, to a very great extent, will be found the secret and test of real inner life and experience.—Golden Rule.

Power of Conscience.

Even a superficial reader of Shakespeare is struck by the prominence which he gives to conscience. The great dramatist knew, either from personal experience or from imagination's insight, the terrible power of the human conscience, when stirred by the consciousness of guilt.

Hundreds of murderers, since Lady Macbeth, have uttered her pathetic exclamation: "All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand." "O coward conscience, how dost thou afflict me!" has been the moan of not a few tyrants, since humpback Richard's day.

An illustration, similar in kind, though differing in dramatic interest, to that which Shakespeare gives of conscience's afflicting, paralyzing power, occurred once in Wales.

For years it had been the custom to hold a great fair at Rhuddlan on the Lord's Day. Farmers went there to hire laborers; crowds of rough laborers waited there to be hired. It was also a great market-day, whereon men sold their cattle and produce. Inns' doors were wide open, and in scores of booths could be heard the sound of revelry. It was a wild scene of traffic and dissipation.

Into the midst of this fair there came, one day, a young man of solemn mien. Taking his stand on the steps of the chief tavern, he began to pray with a loud voice. There was something in his grave, compassionate petitions that arrested the attention of farmers and laborers. They stopped in the midst of their bargaining to listen.

Then the young preacher, taking for his text: "Remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy," began his sermon by announcing to the astonished crowd that he had come to open upon them "the whole ten cannon of Sinai."

The preacher's denunciations were so terrible that the crowd seemed to stand at the foot of the mount "that burned with fire."

One man had just bought a sickle. As he listened to the preacher, his arm seemed paralyzed, and the sickle fell to the ground. He feared to stoop to pick it up with the other hand, lest that, too, should be paralyzed.

The multitude of farmers and laborers were panic-stricken. The fair was broken up and never again held on the Lord's Day. The man who let his sickle drop became changed in character and lived, to old age, a religious life.—Youth's Companion.

Atheists Ruled Out as Witnesses.

Judge Briggs, of Philadelphia, in a comprehensive opinion delivered a few days ago, ruled that atheists and all others who do not believe in a Divine being and Divine rewards and punishments are incompetent as witnesses. The question was brought up on a motion for a new trial in a suit, the ground for the motion being that Judge Briggs had admitted the testimony of Robert Becker, who said that, although he believed in the Creator of the universe and in a supreme power which would punish him here for false swearing, he did not believe in God as commonly understood by the people, nor in a personal God, nor in God as an entity. There was no other evidence in support of the objection to the witness. In his opinion, Judge Briggs said that it was with some doubt that he admitted the witness. After quoting authorities he continued:

"It follows that the faith of a witness should be a religious belief of some kind in the existence of an omniscient being who will reward and punish either here or hereafter for good and evil deeds. A belief in a power as exhibited by the forces of nature and call it supreme and yet ignore that that power is the handiwork of the omniscient and omnipotent God is totally insufficient to meet the law's requirements. Nor is any advance gained by asserting that he who violates the law of nature will be punished, for admittedly such punishment will follow with unerring certainty. If one jump overboard in mid-ocean, or thrust his hand into a raging fire, or violate any law of his natural existence, he would be immediately punished just in proportion that he violates these natural laws. A belief in such a punishment is not a belief in a Divine punishment, and clearly insufficient to render one entertaining it competent to testify under our law. While the witness said he believed in a supreme power that would punish him here for false swearing, he would not say that he believed that power was Divine, and he totally denied the personality of God and of God as generally understood by people. With such a belief how can he be said to be in fear of Divine punishment for testifying falsely? His belief being defective in this respect, it falls short of the requirements which are indispensable to exist to entitle him to be examined as a witness in the courts of this State. It follows that I erred in receiving his testimony, and that a new trial should be ordered."

Strength of the Sects in the United States.

The Rand-McNally Index of the World gives the following estimates of the strength of the various sects in the United States in 1881. The Catholics include men, women and children, every one who was ever baptized into the church. The Protestant sects only include adults or persons at the years of will, choice or discretion:

Roman Catholic	6,174,702
Baptist	2,133,014
Methodist	1,680,779
Methodist Episcopal South	828,013
Lutheran	634,570
Presbyterian	573,377
Christian	517,448
Congregational	384,685
Protestant Episcopal	323,876
United Brethren	155,437
Reformed Church in the United States	151,742
United Evangelical	144,000
Presbyterian South	119,970
Protestant Methodist	113,170
Cumberland Presbyterian	111,855
Mormon	110,377
Evangelical Association	99,607
The Brethren	90,000
United Presbyterian	80,236
Reformed Church in America	78,917
Freewill Baptists	76,709
Friends	67,643
Second Adventists	63,500
Anti-Mission Baptist	40,000
Universalist	37,945
Church of God	30,224
Wesleyan Methodist	17,847
Moravian	16,112
Seventh-Day Adventist	14,731
Jews	13,683
Free Methodist	12,120
Adventist	11,100
Reformed Episcopal	10,459
Seventh-Day Baptist	8,005
Reformed Presbyterian	6,020
New Jerusalem	4,734
Primitive Methodist	3,370
New Mennonite	2,910
American Communities	2,838
Shaker	2,400
Independent Methodist	2,101
Six-Principle Baptist	2,075

A Verification of Luke's Writings.

A remarkable fact bearing on the Gospel according to Luke and the Acts of the Apostles is mentioned as having recently appeared in a work published within the last few weeks from the Dublin University Press. The learned writer states that he has examined the two books by Luke, the physician, in order to discover any peculiarity of words and phrases, not found in the other evangelists, or in the classical writers of his day. He examined many medical writers from Hippocrates to Galen, and he finds that all these writers whom he has examined invariably use the same words and phrases as Luke does. The medical words common to these Greek medical writers from the time of Hippocrates to Galen are used by Luke, the physician. The testimony to the authenticity of these books thus brought forth is really very striking and very strong that the two books were written by a believing physician, and we know of one believing physician who was in close sympathy with the Apostle Paul. Thus the two books are clearly the work of one hand, and yet between the close of the Gospel and the opening of Acts there seems a divergence which, however, can easily be explained on close examination.—Baptist Weekly.

Our Young Folks.

A VALENTINE.

Little lassie with sweet eyes of brown,
Through long drooping lashes looking down;
Little maiden with the eyes of blue,
With the clear soul of you shining through;
Eyes of gray or hazel, violet, jet,
All undimmed by care or sorrow yet,
Wherever you be, dear friends of mine,
I would send to you this Valentine.

I have never looked upon your faces,
Heard your voices, watched your girlish graces,
Clasped your hands, or read the meaning glances
Of your eyes, or shared your happy fancies;
But I know, by trust teaching taught,
Something of each hope and dream and thought
That you cherish. Ah! how fair they seem,
Every darling hope and thought and dream.

Now could my every wish for you be granted,
You should dwell ever in a land enchanted;
But since life has its bleak and drear December
As well as sunny May, I pray remember
That hands are made for kind deeds and caressings,
And lips are made for smiles and tender blessings,
And eyes that heart to heart in glances meeting,
Each unto each may send its wordless greeting.

That giving though but hand-clasps warm and tender,
A kindness that the poorest child can render,
A smile, a tear, with happy grateful gladness,
May fill a heart borne down by heavy sadness;
That all along life little hidden byways—
Aye, even in the hot and dusty highways—
Some flower, if so some hand will do the sowing,
May make the world the brighter for its growing.

Life is so short: a little space where beauty
And love and work and care clasp hand with duty;
Life is so long: no dial hath the power
To tell the story of a single hour;
Love is so sweet, and hating hath no pleasure,
Who loves and gives shall reap in endless measure.

Little lassies, full of girlish graces,
I may never look upon your faces;
But it matters not, with calm insistance
Warm hearts triumph o'er time and distance.
And whatever skies may bend above you,
Pray remember that I love you, love you;
And I send this, as seal and sign,
In the name of dear Saint Valentine.

—Carlotta Perry.

THE MISSION OF MABEL'S VALENTINE.

Mrs. De Castro said Placide was "sure to make a rise in the world." Placide was tall for a boy of twelve, and all arms and legs. His eyes looked large in his thin, sallow face, and his thatch of light hair stood out all around like a door-mat.

The whole school made fun of the poor boy; but he took it all with a pitiful kind of smile. Nobody knew how cruelly it hurt him, nor how he longed to be friendly with his school-mates.

On entering the school room he invariably saluted Miss Rose, the teacher, with an elaborate bow. Placide's father had been a little, broken-down French dancing-master, and the bow was about all he bequeathed his son, excepting a fine sense of honor and a sensitive social nature.

There was nothing French about Mrs. De Castro, the mother of Placide. She was American born, but of the most commonplace type. She read every word in her weekly story-paper, and religiously believed in the possibility, at least, of all the wonderful occurrences therein detailed.

The shop-windows were gay with reminders of the approach of the great February holiday. Mabel Lawrence and some of her school-mates were examining an assortment of them one morning in the book-store.

Some of her companions wished to send a hideous comic valentine to Placide. But she, feeling how it would hurt him, refused to sanction such an act, and, buying the valentine, destroyed it, much to the disgust of the boys.

Mabel had been looking wise ever since valentines began to be mentioned; she was planning a surprise. On the table in her room was a pile of them, very small but very pretty, in fancy envelopes, addressed to all her boy and girl friends and associates. It had occupied all her leisure time for a week to write, in a very slow and painstaking manner, on the blank pages: "Miss Mabel Lawrence presents her compliments, and will be pleased to have you spend the evening of February 14 at her home." Upon consultation with her mother, she now added another pretty valentine to the pile. It was addressed to Master Placide De Castro.

They were all sent out on the 13th.

But it was nearly a week after the party when the postmaster hailed Placide, as he was passing by, and handed him his invitation. It seemed a pity on the face of it, but no valentine ever imparted a greater degree of pure felicity than this belated one. It was a beautiful thing to happen to the sensitive, slighted, ridiculed boy, to be so remembered. He went singing and whistling about his work, the weight lifted off his heart, the sorrowful look gone from his face, his eyes bright with hope and pleasure.

Mrs. De Castro accounted herself strong in the usages of polite society. "Now, Placide," she said, "you must acknowledge this complimunt by actin' accordin' to etiquetty."

"Yes, ma'am," said Placide, more than willing.

"Seein' you couldn't attend, nor send your regrets, you must make a party call. Let's see, Placide, your pa was a small man. I shouldn't wonder if you'd most growed into his swaller-tail coat by this time. [illegible] was pa's dress-coat," she said, as she laid it out on the bed.

"Now, slip in your arms and let's see how it will do." (The tails came within six inches of the floor.)

"'Taint so dreadful long if it is a little loose," she said. "Coats is worn long now—gentleman's overcoats come clear down to their heels."

The white vest did pretty well by pinning up a broad plait in the back. His mother's black kid-gloves didn't wrinkle very much, and the shine on his shoes couldn't have been improved. After being thoroughly instructed on various points, he set out to make his "party call," thinking his costume just about the thing. Fortunately, darkness protected him. Smiles strove for the mastery in Dolly's face as she ushered him into the sitting-room, announcing: "This young gentleman wants to see Miss Mabel." They were all ladies and gentlemen at Dr. Lawrence's, however. Mabel reddened, as he entered, but she arose as grave as a Judge, and offered him a chair.

"This is Placide De Castro, papa," she said to the doctor, who eyed him through his glasses in some amazement.

Placide executed his bow with great elegance and precision, saluting in turn the doctor, Mrs. Lawrence and Mabel, ending up with a comprehensive salam for the rest of the family.

"Please accept my respectful thanks, Miss Lawrence, for the kind invitation to your party," was his opening remark.

"I am sorry you didn't come; we had a very nice time," answered Mabel, politely.

This opened the way for his second speech.

"I should, doubtless, have enjoyed the occasion extremely, but my attendance was prevented by circumstances over which I had no control." (This sentence he had memorized from a "Complete Letter-writer.")

"Wouldn't your mother let you come?" asked Mabel.

Not being exactly prepared for this, he answered naturally enough. "Oh, yes, ma'am! The reason is, that I did not get the valentine till to-day."

"That was too bad!" said Mabel.

"Otherwise, I should have been present or sent my regrets," recited Placide, seeing his opportunity. When the doctor asked him: "Are you attending school this winter?" he replied: "Yes, sir, I am pursuing my studies under the direction of Miss Rose Mayfield," and he was prepared with several other elegant replies to possible queries; but after this the conversation ran in channels unfavorable to their introduction.

The doctor was regularly captivated; the quaintness of the whole proceeding took his fancy. Politeness in "young America" was a phenomenon worth studying. Once clear of the points of "etiquetty," he found the boy quite simple and child-like, while the thoughtfulness and intelligence of his replies pleased his questioner very much.

Not to outstay the proper limits of a call, Placide presently arose and made her adieux.

"That must have been poor De Castro's professional beat," said the Doctor. "There is certainly something in that costume which gives an air of gentility to the wearer."

"Why—didn't you think he looked ridiculous?" asked Mabel.

"Not exactly, my dear; it looked as though he might be masquerading. There are some unusual elements of character in that boy," he went on. "I like his nerve. I doubt if another boy in the place could be induced to perform that little act of courtesy."

One day, while his interest was still fresh, Rose Mayfield praised Placid, in his hearing, as her most ambitious pupil. "It is a pity," she said, "that he must leave school when spring opens; they are so poor it is necessary for him to work."

The doctor determined to be of service to him. He really needed an office-boy—an errand-boy—a generally useful boy. Placide, he felt confident, was exactly the kind of boy he wanted, and so the lad was presently lifted to the topmost pinnacle of human bliss by the offer of the situation, with the privilege of pursuing his studies under direction of the tutor employed to prepare Hal and Archie for college. And that was the "rise in the world."

These same qualities of faithfulness and zeal, which secured him the first advance, in time enabled him to become the trusted associate of Doctor Lawrence.—Anna North, in St. Nicholas.

An Angry Lioness.

Peter Marvine, an animal-trainer, was severely injured by a lioness belonging to J. R. Doris' inter-ocean circus, in the winter quarters of the show, at Frankford, a suburb of this city, last evening. The animals of the show occupy several buildings in Harrison street. The tropical animals are kept in a room by themselves. The room is fifty feet square, and along three of the walls are heavy oak and iron cages, in three tiers, one above the other. The lions, tigers, leopards, panthers and hyenas are imprisoned in the lower dens. Juno is the largest lioness of the collection and is five years old. Until a few months ago she was considered one of the best disposed brutes of her species. Last summer she assumed a protectorate over two motherless cubs in the show, and since then has shown great rage whenever her proteges were approached. Just before dark last evening Mr. Marvine gave the cubs their share of liver, and paused a moment to fondle them. This angered Juno, and as he advanced toward her cage to pacify her he stumbled and fell against the bars. In an instant Juno seized his right arm above the elbow. Marvine grasped the bottom of the cage with his left hand. Juno held his right arm with one paw and struck through the bars at his head with the other. A lad named Donohue seized an iron bar and tried to make Juno drop Marvine, but only increased her rage. All the animals became wildly excited, and their roars and cries could be heard blocks away. Donohue ran out shrieking for help, and a number of men started to go to Marvine's assistance. In the meantime Juno had torn the flesh from Marvine's wrist, struck him several terrible blows on the shoulder, and then allowed him to drop to the ground and crawl away.

Just as the rescuers reached the doors they heard the sound of crashing timber, accompanied by the angry beast's roars. Juno had thrown herself against the bars, and broken through. The interior of the building was dark, and no one dared venture in. They heard Juno charging about the place, and hesitated. They supposed Marvine was dead. He had reached the rack in which the heavy iron bars used to clean the cages were kept, and, seizing one, boldly advanced on Juno, who was crouching in a corner. The men outside, reassured by hearing above the din the animals were making the voice of Marvine ordering the lioness back to her cage, entered, and the beast was subdued. After Juno was caged it was noticed that one of a pair of blauw boks, for which Doris paid $1,000, was trembling like a leaf, and tears ran down the frightened animal's face. Two minutes later it was dead. Marvine, though seriously injured, will recover, and may regain the use of his arm.—Philadelphia Cor. Chicago Tribune.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. FEB. 14, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
1	½ "	40
1	¼ "	20
½ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE FLOOD.

THE flood now prevailing in the Ohio River is doubtless the most destructive of any flood in the history of that river. Property of every description has passed down the raging stream in the past few days, and all the towns up the river have suffered much. Large portions of Cincinnati, Newport and Covington are inundated, mills, distilleries and other business is shut down and thousands of persons who depend on their labor for support are thrown out, and many of them have been driven out of their houses and suffering for the want of a place to take their families. The merchants in that part of the city between 3d street and the river have suffered heavy losses, and were driven to the second floors with their goods, incuring, in many instances, a heavy loss. The water got into a lime house at the foot of the suspension bridge, the other day, and caused an ugly fire. The water at the Cincinnati end of the suspension bridge is several feet deep, and travel is interrupted. If a fire should get started in the flooded district it would be difficult to get under control. The loss in Newport and Covington has not been as great as in Cincinnati, but their losses have been very heavy.

From Lawrenceburg come the saddest reports. All hussiness is suspened. The town is, in a manner, submerged, and hundreds of families are quartered in the public buildings. The loss of one saw mill there is estimated at $25,000. The mayor called on Cincinnati to send them 500 loaves of bread. The railroads that pass through the town are under water and no trains can pass there.

Petersburg stands high and dry, and no damage has been done except the washing away of a few barges.

Aurora has not been slighted by the unruly stream, and hundreds of her families have been driven from their homes, and all business is suspended. The water at Chambers & Stephens' corner is several inches deep. The river bottoms from Lawrenceburg to Rising Sun are all under water on the Indiana side.

Rising Sun has kept her head out of water, but her neighbor, Rabbit Hash, is crowded to the wall.

The amount of property destroyed by the flood is incalculable.

MONEY invested in wheat would be bringing good interest.

THE canvass for seats in the next legislatnre has opensd np with much vim in some of the counties.

IF sleet makes a good fruit year, what an abundance of that article this section will enjoy this season.

THE discussion of tariff bill has afforded considerable sport for the members of the Lower House of congress.

ONE of onr friends, Uncle Church Clore, who watches closely passing events, says we have had 32 snows this winter.

THE price of wheat has been looking up a little, probable because of the discouraging reports in regard to the growing crop.

NEAL and Craft are expensive citizens. Their trial, if continued a month or so, will draw heavily on Uncle Jim Tate's bank account.

THE Covington jail contains seventy-nine prisoners, a majority of which are moonshiners. One moonshiner serving out a sentence died there the other day.

GEN. HEWITT is the only candidate for a state office, who has no opposition. In view of the fact that the office of state auditor is such a good one, it speaks well for the General's official standing.

THE inundation of Lawrenceburg will probably injure that city's future prospects. For the last few years Lawrenceburg has been growing rapidly, and was developing into a manufacturing town of considerable importance. Steps will have to be taken to prevent a like occurrence if she wishes to continue her prosperity, which we trust she will succeed in doing.

WE are glad to learn that Mr. Hughes has a good school in the Academy at this place, and hope he will succeed in building up the Morgan Academy to that place which it should occupy in educational circles.

The Building and lot belong to the county, and it seems to us that the county ought to support a good and paying school there.

Its location is a desirable one for an institution of learning, it being in the healthiest section of the county, adjacent to a town where boarding can be had as cheap as anywhere in the state. The society of the town and surrounding country is of the best class. In fact the town presents few opportunities for students to revel and neglect their studies. There is not a place in the United States better calculated for the location of a successful school, than Burlington. It is true it is not as easy to get to and from as some other places, but this objection is overcome by a multitude of advantages.

The people of the county believe in education, and many young men and ladies are being sent abroad to school at a heavy expense. By patronizing the school in the Morgan Academy a large per cent. of these heavy board bills would be saved, and the parents could enjoy the satisfaction of having their children at home two days out of each week if they so desired, thus dispensing with much solicitude which naturally follows the absence of children.

That large schools have not been kept up at this place is not because of the want of qualifications on the part of the teachers eployed, but because a sufficient number of persons interested in good schools have not put their shoulders to the wheel. In other words, there has been no cooperation, a necessary ingredient in such enterprises. Keeping a school in successful operation, requires time and attention, and a unity of interest on the part of an entire community. Every person is interested in the education of those into whose hands this country and its affairs are to pass, and are, therefore, interested in organizing and sustaining good schools.

The people of Boone county have children and the means with which to educate them, and the state has provided them with a building, which with a few dollars expended for repairs, is ample for their accommodation.

We trust the county has not abandoned the property, but that it will join hands with those in this locality who are anxious to have a school kept up in the Morgan Academy, and put the institution on the high road to prosperity and usefulness.

THE Farmers' Insurance Company is an institution that commends itself to the farmers of this county. It is purely a home enterprise, and is run on a principle that is neighborly, no assessment being made unless some policy-holder meets with a loss by fire. These assessments are small, making the rate of insurance light, and leaving the money in the hands of the insured until it is needed to adjust a loss. The gentlemen in whose hands the business of the company is entrusted are competent and good men to look after the interest of all concerned.

A WESTERN senator has characterized the tariff debate in congress very neatly. He says: "It reminds me of those female walking matches they had in every city a couple of years ago. There were generally prizes for the winner, the second and third, and also a handsome prize for the lady walker exhibiting the most style and grace. The result was that every woman wanted that, and thus they generally covered but little ground. They all walked for style. Now all the leading participants in the debates are not talking to make progress, they are simply walking for style. Each one wants to show the country what a handsome, level-headed and elegant gated candidate for the presidency he is."

IT seems that the preference already expressed by some of the counties for Jones as governor has caused considerable comment from some of his opponents who claim the action taken by the counties that have seen proper to choose him at this early day, is irregular. The charge is based on the ground that the state central committee fixed the fifth day of May as the time for holding the primary meetings. This is all true; but nothing was done to preclude the democrats in any county from expressing a choice. The democrats in the counties referred to have done nothing wrong, and when the fifth of May comes, they will select their delegates as other counties will, in obedience to the edict of the central committee.

AT the depot in Grand Rapids, Iowa, the U. S. Mail was robbed of $12,000 the other day.

MR. BLAINE is engaged in writing a book—a political history commencing with Lincoln's administration and ending with Garfield.

REPORTS from the cattle range section of Colorado say that the loss of stock by the snow storms and cold weather will amount to 15 per cent.

SOME of the business men in Louisville have discharged their clerks who are members of the Lonisville Legion and who are now in Grayson guarding Neal and Craft.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 00@7 25; fair to good packers, at $6 75@7 00; fair to good light, $6 55@6 90; common, $5 75@6 45; culls, $4 50@5 65: stock hogs, $5 00@6 25.

THE keepers of thirteen bawdy-houses were indicted at Lexington, and their trials were to be had last week, but Liberal Pardon Blackburn pardoned them before conviction. Neal and Craft have hopes yet.

AN old colored lady in Indianapolis had her husband and four sons killed in the rebellion, and the other day she drew $4,500 arreage of pensions on their account. Their going into the army was a good investment for the old lady.

No trouble has been had at Grayson, yet, and there is no indication that there will be. These organized companies of armed men have failed to materialize, and the soldiers are getting over their scare, and will commence flirting with the girls.

WE find it necessary to again remind some of our friends that communications must bear the name of the author. Without we know who sends a communication it finds its way to the waste basket, and we do not like to thus dispose of a friend's favors.

SOME prisoners in the Williamstown jail succeeded in nnlocking the inner door of the jail, and when the jailer unlocked the outside door to take supper into them, they rushed out by him and made their escape. Two of them were charged with horse stealing.

The cry that the Eastern part of the State would be against Jones for Governor is being emphatically denied by the action of the democrats up there. The hopes of some of the boys are blasted to the extent a preference has been signified in that section of the state.

THE militia was in rather a demoralized condition when it arrived at Grayson, several of them being ill. A hospital was, upon their arrival, organized with several patients. Some of the boys rode many miles without saddles, which was calculated to produce information of the brain.

THE citizens of Ashland held a meeting and appointed a committee to assist in securing the attendance of witnesses and doing other things necessary to assist in the prosecution of Neal and Craft. The people there say that they believe in Neal and Craft they have the true criminals, and want them punished under the law, and according to their deserts.

IN New York City, the public school question which has been agitated for several months has at last been settled in a way that is anything but pleasing to a large number of the teachers employed. The commissioners of education have decided to cut off the special teachers; the instructors in French, German, Music, Drawing, etc., and to reduce the salaries of the regular teachers. Then occurred a remarkable thing. The regular teachers had a meeting and deciced to petition the board to retain the special teachers, and to further reduce their own salaries so as to make up the requisite fund. Sympathy is generally extended to sufferers, but practical sympathy like this is indeed rare in these days.

WE have been importing rather too much during the past year, and our warehouses have got so full, that there is no further need of buying goods abroad. Then our exports have increased largely. We are now sending forward a great deal of cotton, wheat and corn. It has been found that the crops were not so very large on the continent, a proof of which is found in the fact that France and Germany are buying three bushels of our cereals this year to one last year. It is now expected that gold will again begin to come from Europe, in which case we will see a great revival of industry in the early part of 1883. The nation is rich in natural productions. We never had so much cotton, wheat, corn and petroleum, to send abroad. The prospect ahead is hopeful.—From Demorest's Monthly for February.

—There are 60,000 colored Baptists in Tennesee, with 150 churches.

J. O. HUEY and O. P. Conner are industriously engaged soliciting subscriptions to build a turnpike starting about three miles from Burlington on the East Bend road and terminating at this place. Two routes, we understand, are proposed, and over either of them a good road can be built. The people along these routes know the benefits to be derived from good roads, and no doubt they will encourage the enterprise. No class is benfited as much by turnpikes as farmers, and no other roads build up a country as rapidly as pikes do. Once on a pike, always on a good road, nearer by several miles and much labor, to any place you want to go. In these days of fluctuating markets, the producer should be so situated as to be able to reach the city as soon as possible to take the advantage of the advance in the prices of his products. Those living on dirt roads cannot enjoy rapid transit, especially at this season of the year.

The river still rises.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Verona.

DIED—On the night of the 6th inst., Miss Mollie Jhonson, of typhoid fever. She was a daughter of John S. Johnson. Her funeral was preached by Rev. L. F. Johnson, after which her remains were interred in the New Bethel cemetery.

She was concious to the last, related her experience and selected the hymn she wanted sang at her funeral.

Miss Mollie was called away in the early morning of her life, but in her short career she had gained a large number of ardent and devoted friends who will greatly miss her.

The fever has been in this family ever since last September. They have nearly all had it. Little Walter is now lying at the point of death.

The afflicted family have the sympathy of the entire community.

STATE NEWS.

—Henderson has eighteen tobacco stemmeries, and most of them are doing a very large business.

—A shot-gun which was used in the Revolutionary war by Samuel Johnson is in the possession of A. A. Davis, of Daviess county.

—C. C. Lashbrook was convicted of passing counterfeit money by the Daviess Circuit Court, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

—The nine year-old daughter of John Brents, in Barren county, caught fire at an open grate and was burned to death before assistance could reach her.

—Col. Francis Klett, for two years past manager of the Mammoth Cave, has resigned the position, and is succeeded by Miss Julia Clark Jesup, one of the owners of the cave.

—Owensboro Messenger: Mrs. Corn lives in Mercer county, Mrs. Wheat in Jefferson, Mrs. Oates in Mead, Mrs. Bran in Pendleton, Mrs. Shorts in Shelby and Mrs. Hay in Daviess, as well as in Muhlenburg.

—Columbia Spectator: Last Saturday afternoon a cabin on the farm of Maj. T. C. Winfrey, this county, occupied by a colored woman, was consumed by fire, together with two of the woman's children, one four years of age and the other one. The mother had left the cabin and was at the residence of Maj. Wintrey, where she was doing some work, and the fire was not discovered in time to save the children. After the house had burned to ashes the bones of the infant were found and buried.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—A band of gypsies are wandering about Mariqoro county, S. C.

—West Virginia contains 52,000 persons over ten years of age who can not read.

—A colored child at Rock Hill, S. C., swallowed a toy china cup without apparent inconvenience.

—It is said that there is a negro man in Newbery county, South Carolina, who has 42 children and 324 grandchildren.

—The Texas cattle drive for the coming spring is estimated at 220,000 head. Of these not more than 120,000 will reach the open market. The rest will be reserved for ranches.

—Stewart, alias Coleman, the bank crook arrested in New York, while being conveyed to a train to be taken to Texas, cut his throat and died the next day.

Tobacco

Cincinnati, Friday, Feb., 9, 1883

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 50	$3 00
Common Smokers	3 50	4 25
Colory Smokers	4 50	6 50
Colory Trash	6 00	8 00
Good Br't Trash	10 50	15 00
Fine Br't Trash		none
Fancy Bright Leaf	00 00
Dark Lugs	4 00	5 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	11 00
Good Stripping Lugs	11 00	16 00
Fine Str'p'g Lugs	17	22 50
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	19 75
Good Med. Leaf	20	23 25
Good Br't Leaf	23 50	25 00
Fine Br't Leaf	25 50	26 75
Com Lug Fillers	7	11 00
Good Lug Fillers	11 50	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	22
Com. Med. Fil'rs	12 00	19 50
Good Med. Fil'rs	20	23
Good L'f Fillers	23 50	25 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	25 50	37 75

Lincoln Reads a Poem

Honest Old Abe Entertains his Cabinet with a Little Quotation.

"Now, gentlemen, you all have more or less poetry in your souls; listen to this," and Abraham Lincoln, then President, rose from his chair, in his office in the White House, and read in trembling tones, which indicated his own profound appreciation of it, Dr. O. W. Holmes' "Last Leaf," of which the following are two verses:

"They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down:
Not a better man was found
By the crier in his round
Through the town.

Now the mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he had pressed
In their bloom;
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb."

Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., is not as old as the venerable Boston citizen of whom the poet wrote with such tender pathos, yet he is more than three score and ten. "For the past eight of those years," he writes, "I have been a perfect cripple from rheumatism, hobbling about as best I could with my cane. I took PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and am now supple and strong as a gymnast. There is no trace of the disease left about me."

Mr. R. W. Mosher, wholesale druggist, of Binghamton, writes Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of N. Y.—Proprietors of the tonic—certifying to Mr. Guilfoyle's declaration.

Having all the properties of any preparation of ginger, PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is a remedy of infinitely greater range and power. It cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood or imperfect digestion. Dyspepsia (and all its consequences), Malarial Fevers, Sick Headache, Kidney troubles, Bronchitis, and common Coughs and Colds, vanish at its touch. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Larger size the cheaper.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,
BURLINGTON, KY.
HARNESS MAKER
—AND—
DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to
GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

NOTICE.

The public generally and all persons, especially merchants, are hereby notified that my wife Nannie V. Kelly, did, on the 7th day of February, 1883, leave my house and abandon me and my children, without just cause, and that I will not pay or be responsible for any of her acts or debts hereafter made or contracted by her.

This Feb., 9th '83. W. B. KELLY.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county, Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

YOUNG, OLD, AND MIDDLE-AGED. All experience the wonderful beneficial effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Children with Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, or any scrofulous or syphilitic taint, may be made healthy and strong by its use.

Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

G. H. LOEBKER,
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES,
36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

AMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green, J. S. Mason, J. A. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm, J. J. Dulaney.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
540 MADISON STREET,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
TRADE MARK.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

DR. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO.,
(LIMITED.)
No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.
Established 1840

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue G sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair.

50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW

Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

There will be a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of Boone Co., on Monday, March 5th, 1883, to determine the manner in which delegates shall be selected to attend the State Convention to be held in Louisville, on May 16th, 1883.
J. G. FURNISH, Chairman.

Sunday was inclement.

This is Valentine day.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

To-day is wedding day with the feathery tribe.

The Burlington coal train was running last week.

Mr. John H. Smith says his wheat field is as bare as the mud road.

N. E. Hawes and J. W. Calvert have been on the sick list for several days.

Several persons went from this place to Lawrenceburg Saturday to view the flood.

James Conner has handled over 1,000 hogs this winter, and has lost but two.

Mr. B. F. Corbin and wife, of Union spent Monday with F. P. Walton and wife.

Hogs are a scarce article. The last advance in the market caught about all of them.

Clergymen, speakers, singers, find that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral improves and aids the voice.

The people of Burlington have been preached to considerably since the first of October last.

Spring the price of an article a little if you want to find out whether there is any of it in the country.

The land trade between Mr. Wm. Walton and Wm. Goodridge is off, some misunderstanding as to price.

At Lawrenceburg the river was higher than it was last year. The destruction of property was very great.

Mr. Willis Grant and Miss Missoura Crisler were married at the Baptist church, in Bellevue, last Wednesday by Rev. Dicken.

NOTICE—Notice is hereby given that we will henceforth kill every dog that we find on our premises. GEO. & HARRY BLYTHE

Some of the farmers have been quite busy the past week watching their flocks. They are generally having good luck with their lambs.

A drove of eighty head of fine cattle, belonging to Mr. Alf Gaines, passed through town last Friday. They were bought in Carroll county.

To buy tombstones and monuments there is no better firm of which to buy than Geo. Huschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind. Jno. Buall, of Hebron, is their agent in this county.

Just be a little careful how you speak any word that has g for a starter and a pair of o's and an s sandwitched between it and an e, when in the presence of Mij Yabtsew.

A horse attached to the buggy in which Frank Maxwell was going to Willis Grant's wedding, became frightened, run off, demolishing the vehicle and injuring Maxwell slightly.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Chambers, who live near Gainsville, are emerging from a siege with the measles. One little fellow had measles, pneumonia and menigitis and survived them all.

We call your attention to Albert M. Acra's adv. in this issue. He wants the people in this section to patronize him, and in return he will make them glad they did by doing good, honest work for them. It's so.

One day last week J. O. Huey and O. P. Conner were in town in the interest of a proposed pike leading from their neighborhood to this place. That section of the county is in need of a good outlet and we would like to see a good pike built out that way. They propose raising the money by subscription.

Fred, a german boy about 12 years of age, and who resides with Esq. E. H. Baker, came near being drowned Friday evening. The ice on the pond broke with him and let him in the water up to his eyes. Mr. Baker happened to see him and went to his rescue with a plank. Had he been three feet further from shore he would not have escaped.

An old colored lady who lived on Mr. Berkshire's farm about three miles from town, on the Bellevue pike, was found near her door Saturday morning in a dying condition. It is thought that when she stepped out at the door her foot slipped and she fell, striking her head on a stone, which resulted in her death. She had been out of the house but a short time, when found by one of the family living with her.

At the last January term of the court of levy and claims it rejected a claim of Sam Hind for keeping paupers. Mr. Hind proposes to test the order rejecting his claim, and for that purpose has filed his appeal in the Circuit Court. The County Court had made an order saying it would pay nothing for the support of paupers outside of the poor-house and was acting in accordance therewith, and Mr. H. proposes to see if there should not be exceptions to this rule.

Mr. Dunlap, the evangelist, closed his meeting at this place Sunday night, having preached 40 sermons to the whites and one to the colored people and received 31 confessions. Had it not been for the violent weather during his work here, the court-room would not have been large enough to have accommodated the people that came to hear the preaching. He had preached but few sermons before there seemed to be great interest in the meeting and it increased throughout. This week Mr. Dunlap is holding meeting in Williamstown.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Mr. Arthur McAfee, of Cave-in-rock, Ill. was in town last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Stephens, of Union, were visiting friends in town, one day last week, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Huey.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Corbin, of Bellevue, were the guest of Mrs. Campbell, last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Randall were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Grant for two or three days last week.

Mrs. Dr. L. H. Piatt, of Bellevue, was visiting her grandmother several days last week.

County Court.

Margaret Souther, &c., vs Mary and Jas. D. Henry—Commissioner appointed to make division of lands.

John D. Williams released from poll-tax erroneously assessed against him.

W. A. Crigler moved to have a new road established from the point where the New Cut road strikes Gunpowder Creek, thence to the Anderson Ferry and Burlington road.

Benjamine Conner, &c., application for road—Gaines Robinson dismissed as one of the applicants—Commissioner given till next term to make report.

Probate of Andrew Glaskin's will continued.

Owen Rogers resigned as constable in Bellevue, and J. M. Moody appoint to fill vacancy.

T. W. Finch appointed deputy sheriff.

Probate of James H. Akins' will refused F. P. Walton appointed adm'r. of the estate of Jas. H. Akin. D. M. Snyder, T. H. Sutton and J. S. Huey, appraisers.

Edward Seniour appointed adm'r. of Adam Seniour—J. H. Hughes, J. W. Howe and S. C. Johnton, appraisers.

S. D. Urtson released from paying tax erroneously assessed.

L. J. Riley appointed deputy assessor.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Union.

The meeting in the Presbyterian church is still in progress. An immense congregation was in attendance Monday night, and there were four additions, among them Lin Frazier. At the conclusion of the services Lea Cleek and Jessie Wilkie were married.

Rabbit Hash.

Our roads are sufficiantly muddy to cause an outbreak of turnpike fever.

Will McConnell is receiving considerable tobacco. Sellers are generally disappointed in the weight of their crops, tobacco being much lighter than was expected.

Mr. Z. T. Holmes has a very severe attack of pneumonia.

Intelligence has just reached us of the death of Mr. Carlton Willitt, father of Mrs. J. H. Lawell. He was formerly a resident of our neighborhood, but moved to Bourbon county a number of years ago.

Mrs. Jennie Hanna is visiting her father Mr. B. M. Allen.

Great inconvenience has been felt since the Queen stopped running, and an earnest wish is expressed by many that she will soon make her regular trips again.

Hebron.

Health in this vicinity not very good.

Mr. Alonzo Gaines has been confined to his room for several days with rheumatism.

Mr. T. H. Rouse has purchased a track of land lying on the Dog Leg Road, of of John Dolahie at $35 per acre.

Richard Gordon lost one of his fine horses one day last week.

Perry Aylor is on the sick list this week.

Last week Harrison Clore purchased of W. J. Rice 50 acres of land near this place for the sum of $2,900.

A dance at the Hebron Hall to-night.

The social party given at the residence of Oscar Gaines, last Saturday night, was an enjoyable affair. The belles of the evening were Miss Minnie and Meta Smith, Anna and Mary Clore and Nettie Graves.

Hebron and its vicinity visited the Ohio river Saturday.

The mail bus did not reach this point last Saturday on account of the backwater being over the pike at Constance.

Plattsburg

J. W. Kite, of Bellevue was in town one day last week.

Burt Cloud and wife have gone to Illinois to make that State their future home.

Sid Gaines will attend commercial school at Lexington in the spring.

From some cause or other John C. Sebree quit his school at Ashbyfork.

Squire J. C. Hensley is very poorly with asthma and is not able to be out of the house.

Nearly all the tobacco in the northern part of the county is being bought by our three buyers. From 6 to 10 loads pass through here every day.

Several of old John Robinson's circus ponies that W. H. Grant was wintering, have died.

Our friend Chas. Schramm was in town one day last week. The Bishop is as jovial as of old and chuck full of business.

Since our last communication we have received three chalenges to fight a duel. We did not know that there were so many fellows in this community that thought themselves old bachelors.

The backwater is up Woolper as far as the Woolper store.

The old ferry boat at Lawrenceburg broke loose, and sunk the other night.

Petersburg.

Mrs. Fannie King returned to her home at Milton, Ky., last Sunday.

R. H. Bolen is learning the yeast business.

Some of the boys took in the opera at Cincinnati, last Saturday.

Phillip Hoffman has gone to Lynchburg, Ohio, to take charge of the mash floor, at Freiberg & Workums distillery.

Dr. Ed Terrill fell last Tuesday night and hurt his leg so he had to walk with a cane for several days.

The Coopers were all sick last week, only four able to work.

Mr. Smith McWethy has a smile on his face as broad as a palm leaf fan, its a—daughter.

The high water and drift last Wednesday, parted the lines on one of Capt. Holabird's coal boats and carried it adrift, when just above Aurora, the Str. Wave caught it and started for shore, and would have landed it, but when about 100 yards from the bank it sprung a leak and sank. The loss is estimated at $1,000.

Mr. Sam Buchanan, of Rising Sun, Ind. has started a first-class drug store in this place.

Mr. D. Riggs has his cellar full of water, caused by the hard rain Tuesday night.

If all reports are true there will be a wedding in town soon.

Bellevue.

Since our last we have been treated to such weather, as the oldest man has no recollection of Rain, snow, sleet and then it pours all together till we are nearly drowned out—and still it rains. The Ohio river now is several inches higher than during the great flood one year ago, and it is still rising. Fortunately our citizens have not thus far sustained much damage—less favored localities have met with great loss. The large bottoms opposite Bellevue are nearly all under water from Rising Sun to Aurora.

Mr. Jas. Smith, our fisherman, was forced to leave his boat, which he used for a residence, and take to the high banks.

Our public school closed on last Friday. Quite a number of visitors were present to witness the closing, which consisted of the usual exercises by the scholars in their various branches of study; also select reading by several of the scholars. The exercises were creditable alike both to pupils and their teacher, Mrs. Walker. His Hon, D. M. Snyder, the Com., of public schools for the county was present and addressed the school.

The literary society is as attractive as ever Last Friday evening it met according to program. The president not being present Mr. D. M. Snyder was appointed President pro tem. The following was argued, Resolved, That the Indian has received more oppression from the white man than the Negro. Affirmative, J. T. Marshall, Wm. Dicken and W. R. Moody; negative, O. Snyder, C E. Dickens and Robt. Rice—decision in favor of affirmative. Essays—Miss Lizzie Berkshire and Wm. Dicken; select reading—J. T Marshall and Miss Katie Walton; declamation—Douglas Rice

According to the old adage that a "white sleet makes a fruitful year," we are to tickle our palates again this year with luscious fruit.

Miss Katie Piatt, who has been so seriously ill, is slowly improving; Mrs. Marion Lafever is recovering from injuries received from a recent fall.

A SPLENDID OFFER.

Two First-class Papers and a fine Book for Only $3 00.

We have made arrangements to club with the Indiana Farmer, the largest and best agricultural journal now published, just what every farmer needs. It is a weekly, 52 issues per year of 16 pages each, cut and bound in magazine form in a shape that may be easily preserved and making an elegant volumn. Its contributors include many of the best agricultural writers of the world, and every number contains instructions and suggestions that will be of more value to any live farmer than the subscription price. The regular price of the Indiana Farmer is $2 00 per year. We have made arrangements by which we can furnish the RECORDER and the Indiana Farmer for $3 and, besides this, we will present each subscriber with a VALUABLE DICTIONARY of over 500 pages, bound in cloth, and containing every useful word to be found in the English language, with its true meaning, derivation, spelling and pronunciation, also a vast amount of absolutely necessary information upon Science, Mythology American History, Constitutions, Laws, Land Titles, Cities, Colleges, Army and Navy, Rate of Mortality, Growth of Cities, Insolvent and Assignment Laws, Debts, Rates of Interest, and other useful knowledge, being a perfect library of refference in one handy volume, which alone is worth the price of either paper. Specimens of the INDIANA FARMER, and also the Dictionary, may be seen by calling at this office. Subscribe at once.

In order to accommodate old patrons, and enable them to get the INDIANA FARMER and Dictionary at the reduced rate, we will extend the offer to those who have already subscribed for the RECORDER before this offer was made. A club should at once be formed in every neighborhood, as this opportunity will not be given for a great length of time.

1883

THE CINCINNATI NEWS

A DAILY

Democratic Newspaper.

Is published to subscribers at the following RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

By mail postage paid.

Daily and Sunday edition, 1 year	$7
Daily and Sunday edition, 6 months	4
Daily and Sunday edition, 3 months	2

All Subscriptions Invariably in Advance

An extra copy of the paper will be mailed FREE for one year to any person who will raise a club of ten annual subscribers at one postoffice, and forward their names and addresses, together with $60.

BY CARRIER.

Daily and Sunday edition, 15 cents per week, or 65 cents per month, payable to Carrier.

PRICE BY SINGLE COPY.

Daily edition 2c Sunday (double size) 8c

Agents, Carriers, Newsdealers, Newsboys, or any one handling THE NEWS, are required to sell the paper in conformity with the above rates. Address

THE NEWS, Cincinnati, O.

TAKEN UP.

Taken up as a stray by Ephraim Helm, living on the Anderson Ferry and Minneola turnpike road about 1 mile from Anderson Ferry, in Boone county, on or about the 8th day of September, 1882, one red and white spotted cow with underbit mark on the right ear, and right horn drooped, but having no other brands or marks. Which I have appraised at $15.

Witness my hand this 3d day of January 1883. JOSEPH WAGSTAFF, J. P. B. C.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS,
201 York street Jersey City, N. J.
☞ Mention this paper. jan 17-83

TEACHERS WANTED $100. Per Month. Steady Employment during SPRING and SUMMER. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

THE EAGLE

DRUG STORE,

—IS POSITIVELY—

THE CHEAPEST

—HOUSE IN—

RISING SUN, IND.

Where will be found a fresh stock of

DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,

SCHOOL BOOKS

—AND—

STATIONERY,

all at bottom prices.

GIVE US A CALL.

D. C. Thorn,

Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

J. W. MILLER,

—DEALER IN—

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

432 Madison St.

COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, posessing facilities for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vasts quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departaments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for speaimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR
DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of exce'lence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undeniably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year $1.15
One copy, six months........................ 65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,
Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL.
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 8-tf

L. C. NORMAN. S. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Conrts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

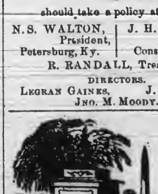
W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice.
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N.S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY.



AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
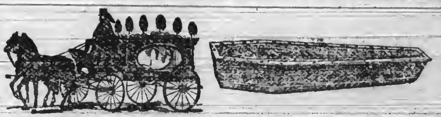
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 3 x 5, and an Illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOT , SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

JOHN Q. DAVIS
DEALER IN
Boots & Shoes!
HATS, CAPS,
Gloves, Leather, Shoe Findings
SPECIALTIES:
Boots and Shoes Made of Leather,
Hats, Caps and Gloves, Latest Styles, Lowest Prices.
New Goods every two weeks. Leather and Shoe Findings at Lowest Cincinnati Wholesale Prices to the Trade. No misrepresentations to effect sales. Goods guaranteed as represented. Thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed, would refer to my past business career of 12 years for a continuance of the same.
JOHN Q. DAVIS,
Sign of BIG RED BOOT. Main Street, Rising Sun, Ind.

UNDERTAKING



We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
sOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

CUSTOM GRINDING,
At MILLER'S MILL,
Rising Sun, - - Ind.
On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Also Flour and Corn Meal always on hand—for sale or exchange. Satisfaction guaranteed. (41-6m) J. C. MILLER & SON, Proprietors.

Ward Bros.,
Rising Sun, Indiana,
LATE OF VEVAY, IND.,
have on hand a large stock of
WATCHES & CLOCKS,
JEWELRY,
Silver and Plated Ware, and King's Spectacles. REPAIRING Promptly attended. Also Fine Silver Watches at Low Rates.
27-tf

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar1-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDER,
Your Own County Paper.

THE RECORDER.

BURLINGTON. : KENTUCKY

THE VALENTINE.

At a counter richly laden
With St. Valentine's choice sonnets
Stands a very charming maiden
In the shaggiest of bonnets;
Her love-locks and her tresses
Appear a halo golden,
While the style in which she dresses
Is extremely quaint and olden.

She inspects the glowing treasures,
Silken, fringed and satin banners,
And scans their ardent measures
In the gracefulest of manners.
Now and then a saucy Cupid
Pleases this bewitching critic,
But the verses are too stupid
For a taste so analytic.

O'er forget-me-nots and roses
Like a butterfly she wavers,
Till the honey one discloses
Proves the daintiest of flavors.
With this nectar Love insnares her,
And he holds her in possession,
And he tempts her and he dares her
To the following confession:

"If I had the brush of Watteau,
And the wisdom of the sages,
I could paint a worthy motto
On this loveliest of pages;
But no truer heart is beating
Than the heart which beats for you, love;
So I send a simple greeting,
And I sign myself your True-love."

Satisfied with her selection,
As the clerk she re-imburses,
For the missive of affection,
From the prettiest of purses,
While she fastens furs and plushes,
Unaware of admiration,
In a conscious way she blushes,
Thinking of its destination.

Will a certain hero wonder,
Ere the trusty seal is broken,
If his fate is hidden under
Shelter of this tender token?
Will he, when his heart discovers
Who has sent this timely warning,
Be the happiest of lovers
On St. Valentine's own morning?
—Harper's Bazar.

JENNIE'S VALENTINE.

"They say the singin' master's makin' up to your Jennie, Mis' Eastman," said Miss Jane Eastman, a cousin of the family, making her industrious knitting-needles flash, during a morning call at the farm-house.

"They say a good many things," calmly returned Mrs. Eastman, a roly-poly little woman, who was making squash pies with the baby tied to her apron strings.

"Yes, to be sure, but then I'se seen enough myself to make me pretty sure that there was goings on between 'em, and I thought, seein' as you was a member of our church, 'twas my duty to warn you."

"Warn me against what?" said Mrs. Eastman, with a flush that resembled anger on her placid little face.

"Why, against Joe Carlton, of course. Is he the kind of a husband you'd like to see jined to your only daughter—your one little ewe lamb? He boarded with us when he kept school here, you know; and I knew him root and branch. A more godless, self-sufficient young man I never saw. Why, he never went to meetin' but half a day Sundays, and spent the other half a wanderin' in the fields, and writin' letters, and readin' unprofitable books. I'se even known him to hire a horse and go to ride on the blessed Lord's day. But then, what could you expect of a young lawyer, and a singin' teacher into the bargain? Lawyers is always fast, and they do say music 's dreadful pervertin' to the morals. He used to kind er shine up to me, but you may be sure I didn't encourage his attentions."

"Indeed," said Mrs. Eastman, with a queer little smile. "I was thinking that you used to praise him very highly at one time, Cousin Jane; and that you said you were sure he was a Christian if he didn't belong to the church."

Here the conversation was interrupted, for a sleigh came dashing up to the door, and the gentleman in question appeared in quest of Miss Jennie.

Miss Jennie was summoned from the upper regions, where she had been making vigorous use of the broom and dust-pan. She came down with a great show of roses on her cheeks, and a great deal of sunshine dancing in her brown eyes.

It was such a splendid morning that a party of young people—his friends over at Stamford—had suddenly started a sleighing party. They were going to drive to East Fairfield, a distance of twelve miles or so, have supper and a dance at the hotel, and then drive home again by moonlight. Would she go?

Go? Of course she would go, that is, if mother was willing. She had just been wishing for a sleigh-ride, the weather was so delightful, and the sunshine was so splendid on the clean, white snow. The quiver of bells thrilled her like dance music.

She came back to her mother with a pleading, half-anxious face, knowing that she was not over pleased with Mr. Carlton. Cousin Jane was always talking against him to her, and Mrs. Deacon Sparks was sure he was going to destruction because he smoked.

Mrs. Eastman hesitated. She preferred the young minister, who was very anxious concerning the state of Jennie's mind, and went home with her from the last evening meeting; and, in spite of herself, she was somewhat influenced by Miss Jane's talk. She was a good woman, and a sensible one, in her weak, mild way, but her life in that little New-Hampshire town had made her inclined to be narrow and prejudiced, and, in her circle, Joe Carlton was considered a decidedly worldly young man, to say the least. But she was very, very fond of her bright, pretty daughter, and it was evident that she cared a good deal for him, and, as she really knew no harm of him beyond the smoking of a good many cigars, she gave her consent with a little reluctant sigh.

In ten minutes Jennie was ready for her ride, and away the happy couple flew, the music of their jubilant bells having a very lengthening effect on Miss Jane's saffron-colored face. She remained some time after they were out of sight and hearing, giving Mrs. Eastman more warnings on the same subject, and succeeding at last in making that lady dimly aware of the error of her ways in allowing Jennie to make one of that sleighing party.

"He's an awful flirt as ever was, and has been goin' with that girl and this one ever since Jennie was a baby in her cradle. As for ma and me, we don't even invite him into our house, we don't think it proper to shelter such a person under our roof, even for half an hour. He's a viper, and I'm glad he took an office over to Stamford instead of here at the corner, for society is in a low enough state anyhow, and his singin'-school makes it lower. I 'pose he don't hev no practice, and has to keep it to eke out a livin'," said Miss, Jane, as she rose to go, and have a further talk on the subject with Mrs. Deacon Sparks.

And Mrs. Eastman thought, "O, if Jennie could only fancy the minister. He is pleased with her, I'm sure."

But away on the smooth, shining road, Jennie was in a perfect dream of bliss beside her handsome lover. The distant mountains looked as if they were incrusted with precious gems in the glowing sunshine. The fields were sown with diamonds; the pine-woods drooped their green, velvet plumes by the wayside; the sleigh-bells mingled together in one grand winter chorus. Altogether it was a merry procession. There were at least a dozen couples; and the girls were looking as fresh and pretty as possible in their gay worsted wrapping, while they sang and laughed, as the spirited horses pranced along, each one well pleased with her own cavalier. But still, none could deny that Jennie's companion was the handsomest and most noble-looking of them all. He was rather quiet that day, but he seemed more than content, and Jennie's doubts about his caring for her all fled, when she met his glance every now and then, when there were no other eyes save her own to interpret their meaning.

The supper at the hotel was charming; the dance delightful; the ride home in the clear, still moonlight more enchanting than anything ever known out of dreamland. It was twelve by the village clock when Jennie reached home, and her mother, who had been sitting up to tell her that the minister had called on her that evening, and she had told him she had gone to drive with an old friend, and so on, was asleep in her chair, and dreaming that Joe Carlton was a wolf, and was going to eat her cherished daughter. Jennie went to bed a little saddened after that interview; but then, if Joe loved her, what could come between them? Her mother would not be so cruel as to separate them, and, as for the minister, even if she had never seen Joe, she could not marry him.

One week from that day was St. Valentine's Day. It had been a stormy week, and rather long and dreary to Jennie, since she never saw nor heard from Joe during that time; but it was the fashion for gentlemen to send valentines to their lady loves, in Crampton and the region round about, and on St. Valentine's morning, as soon as she opened her eyes, she was in a perfect flutter of expectation. She was so absent-minded, that when she dressed the bewildered baby, she put his stockings on his hands instead of his feet, and, at the breakfast-table, prepared her father's coffee with salt instead of sugar. Her mother understood the state of affairs, and regarded her with wistful sadness, and the boys teased her until she was glad at length to make her escape out of the room.

Farmer Haynes, who lived at the Cross Roads, and was the possessor of a whole house full of pretty daughters, passed by bright and early on his way to the post-office, of course, and he always took it upon himself to bring the Eastman mail as well as that of his own family, liking to stop and have a bit of friendly gossip with his neighbor. Jennie could hardly wait for his return, and left her work every other moment to gaze out of the window in the direction of the village.

But at last he came, bearing in his hand, beside the numerous letters stowed away in his pocket, the Weekly Argus, a letter for her father, from Uncle John, who lived out West, and one for Jennie, also, in such a queer envelope, and directed in such an old-fashioned, awkward, cramped hand! There were two red-and-green turtle doves, apparently cooing at each other, in one corner of it, and it was very much soiled and crumpled. Jennie actually blushed at Joe's bad taste, and wondered how he could have sent her such a looking valentine. What a hand for such an elegant and scholarly young man the address was written in, too, she thought.

"If there's so much love on the outside of that valentine, what must there be within?" said the farmer, with a meaning smile into her blushing face.

She ran away up-stairs, and opened the precious affair in the privacy of her own room; but, oh, how the expression of her face changed as she glanced down the written page, and at the signature! It wasn't from Joe, after all, but from Deacon Simpson, a gray-haired widower, with ten children, who lived over at Stamford Center, and who sometimes came to pour his trials on the score of housekeepers into the sympathetic ear of her mother. The valentine, in spite of the turtle-doves on the outside, and a cluster of pink-and-blue angels, round a very fat cupid, in the inside, was a decidedly practical offer of the gentleman's hand, and the general surrendering of the youthful ten into her motherly hands.

"I a'nt very young, to be sure," he said; "but it seems more takin' to make a bargain on Valentine's Day, and I thought I'd say what I had to say now, so you'd get it when other folks is gettin' their valentines. Doubtless you don't expect none to-day, and 't will be a surprise to you, but, to tell the truth, I've had my eye in your direction for some time."

Jennie quivered all over with indignation, and remembered that only a week or two before he had stopped at their house to tea, and said, in a joking way, that he should look out for a housekeeper who made as nice cake as she did.

She went to her mother with tears of anger in her eyes; but Mrs. Eastman only laughed until the tears rolled down her cheeks. It was so absurd for Deacon Simpson to send a valentine to Jennie, and such a valentine! He was a funny little old man—talked through his nose, wore green glasses, and carried a red bandanna handkerchief, with which he was continually wiping his bald head.

"And he is so sure of a favorable answer!" exclaimed Jennie, not able to see the fun; "and what impudence! He says he supposes that I'm not expecting any valentine to-day."

Then she forgot all about the Deacon, and remembered to be disappointed and unhappy beyond measure, because of the valentine which did not come. Still it was not yet too late, there was another mail from Stamford in the afternoon. Deacon Simpson requested an immediate answer to his proposal, but, as he was very busy hauling logs, he should not be able to come and talk it over until Sunday night. It was then only Tuesday. Jennie declared that she would not answer it at all; but, after waiting until the end of the week, her mother answered it for her, giving a decided but polite nay to the gentleman's proposal.

Jennie went to the post-office herself that night, but the postmistress gave her sympathetic looks instead of a valentine, and she came home in a more unhappy mood than she had ever known in her life. But she found a little consolation in knowing that she should certainly see him at the singing-school on Thursday night; "and if he didn't send me a valentine," she thought, "he will certainly come home with me then. He would not go away with another, girl right before my face and eyes.

Thursday night came, and, after making a more careful toilet than usual, Jennie tripped away to the school-house, with a beating heart. But, after the first glance, which she fancied had something of reproach as well as coldness in it, Joe looked at his violin instead of looking at her, and at recess devoted himself to Belle Archer, the Squire's daughter, who had always been pulling her cap for him, and who was more than delighted. Jennie tossed her head with the most superb indifference, and her sweet, shrill little voice never echoed more gayly through the flowery measures of Merry May.

The minister, who was not too dignified to attend the singing-school, listened to it with an expression of perfect enchantment, and never left the side of the singer for the whole evening. Joe went home with Belle Archer, and the minister, finding himself alone with Jennie under the dim, romantic starlight, was moved to tell the story of his love, and waited breathlessly for the little maiden's answer. None came, however. She only sobbed, and begged him not to speak to her then.

"But when will you give me your answer, Jennie?" he pleaded.

She could not tell him, so he was obliged to wait with what patience he might, and wonder what grieved her so. Was she offended with him?

He had a talk with her mother the next day, but she could do nothing with Jennie, who declared that she could not make up her mind, and he must wait. She said to herself that she never could love him, but, if she could marry him, it would prove to Joe that she cared nothing for him, and that there were people who valued her, if he did not. It was very hard, but if she did not die soon—and it seemed to her as if she could not live long and see Joe married to Belle Archer—she thought she should make up her mind to become his wife. Her mother would be pleased; but the world was after all what Deacon Simpson was always calling it in vestry-meetings—a vale of tears.

The days went on drearily enough until Sunday night, when a most astonishing revelation came to Jennie. The minister was waiting with a pathetic countenance, and preached a touching sermon that day on the danger of delay, and hope deferred. Her mother said nothing, but watched her anxiously. Joe Carlton took Belle Archer on a sleigh-ride the day after the singing-school. Jennie was sitting meditatively by the fire after the afternoon service, when Cousin Jane came bustling in, all out of breath, and requested a private interview with her. She was somewhat startled by such an unheard-of honor, and led the way silently to her own room.

"I came to see if you didn't want to swap valentines?" said Miss Jane, looking somewhat confused and downcast.

"What!" exclaimed Jennie, with a very haughty face.

Miss Jane repeated the question, at the same time producing an elegantly written letter, and placing it before Jennie's bewildered eyes.

"There has been a mistake made: you got mine from Deacon Simpson, and I got yours from Joe Carlton. He ought to have known better—Joe had—than to have sent a letter to you directed to Miss Jane S. Eastman. Everybody in town knows that my name is Jane S., if they don't know yours is Jane T., and Miss Hoddock she sent it up to me, of course. I thought 't was kinder bold in Joe to offer himself to me, I'se been so cool to him lately, and ha'nt given him any encouragement at all; but, just to show him that I hadn't no ill-will against him, I wrote and told him I'd have him yesterday. He requested an immediate answer, you see, but I was over to 'Bijah's—his boy is sick with the measles—and didn't get it till night before last, then ma sent it over to me. Deacon Simpson got your ma's letter last night, and came over to see me to day, in a dreadful pucker. He wants a woman of mind to oversee that great, nice house of his, and look after them dear children, and was surprised to think you and your ma thought he wanted such a frivolous child as you. Of course, you won't say anything about my writing to Joe, and I shall keep the mistake you made about the Deacon secret to the grave."

"But have you seen Joe? How do you know about it?" questioned Jennie, breathlessly.

"Oh, yes! I was over to Stamford yesterday on an errand, and thought 't would n't be improper to just drop into his office and see him a few minutes, under the circumstances. He's a dreadful straight-forward up-and-down man, and thought it was his duty to make an explanation, though he seemed kinder cut-up that it was a mistake, and seein' as he found out that I would have him at a pinch, was kinder loath to let me go. I could see that plain enough, though he didn't say anything, of course. I told him I'd make it all right with you, but he looked dreadful blank, owin' to your carryings-on with the minister, I s'pose."

For the first time in the whole course of her life Jennie felt like embracing her spinster relative, and, strange to say, felt not one single pang of jealousy on her account, if Joe had seemed kinder cut-up because it was a mistake, when he found out that she would have him at a pinch. Miss Jane was only fifteen years older than the gentleman in question.

The next morning Joe received his answer, and you may be sure it was a favorable one. She was a little vexed about Belle Archer, but then there was the minister, and she hadn't much to say. Everything was explained most delightfully at the next meeting; and, as for Miss Jane, she got, not only her valentine, but the Deacon as well, and invited Jennie and Joe to her wedding, which took place the next month. The minister consoled himself in time by marrying Belle Archer.—Ballou's Magazine.

A Forgotten Duel.

The tearing down of an antiquated house at St. Augustine, Fla., brought to light a rusty sword. To it is attached a story. Eighty years ago, at a grand ball given by the Spanish gentleman who lived in the house, two officers came to high words over the attentions paid by them to a beautiful lady present. They repaired to the street and fought a duel with swords. One man fell dead. The other threw away his weapon and fled. A little child that had been a witness to the encounter picked up the sword and carried it into the house. It was hidden that at least one evidence of the bloody deed might be concealed. Long after the story of the crime had been forgotten the finding of the blood-stained blade calls it anew to mind.—St. Augustine Herald.

—At one session of the Common Council of Lewiston, Me., Policeman McGillicuddy was acquitted on a charge of drunkenness, and Policeman Stone was dismissed because he knew that McGillicuddy was drunk and did not report him.—Boston Post.

—The following lines are sung by the children in a Mormon Sunday-school:

A loving band of children, we're all to Zion bound,
For our father loves our mothers, every one and all around.

The Sting of the Bee.

If we press the abdomen of the bee or wasp, so as to cause the sting to protude, we should naturally think that the sharp, dark-colored instrument was the sting itself. This, however, is not the case. The real sting is a very slender instrument, nearly transparent, keenly pointed, and armed on one edge with a row of barbs. So exactly does the sting resemble the many barbed arrows of certain savage tribes that, if the savages had possessed microscopes, we should certainly have thought that they borrowed the idea of the barb from the insect. What we see with the unaided eye is simply the sheath of the sting. Many savages poison their spears and arrows, and here also they have been anticipated by the insect. But the sting is infinitely superior to the arrow poison. No poison that has yet been made, not even the terrible wourali, or curare, as it is sometimes called, can retain its strength after long exposure to the air. The upas poison of Borneo, for example, loses its potency in two or three hours. But the venom of the sting is never exposed to the air at all. It is secreted by two long thread-like glands, not nearly so thick as a human hair, and is then received into a little bag at the base of the string. When the insect uses its weapon it contracts the abdomen, thereby forcing the sting out and compressing the venom-bag. By the force of the stroke which drives the sting into the foe its base is pressed against the venom-bag and a small amount of poison driven into the wound. As a rule, if the bee or wasp be allowed to remain quiet, it will withdraw its sting, but as the pain causes a sudden jerk, the barbed weapon cannot be withdrawn, and the whole apparatus of sting, poison-bag and glands is torn out of the insect, thereby causing its death.—Good Words.

—J. Selby Goslee, of Delmar, Md., has a hog that shed its skin. For two weeks it ate nothing, then two cracks appeared around its neck and legs. This continued for about a week, when on going to the pen, Mr. Goslee was astonished to find the skin lying in one place and the hog alive and well in another. An inch of fat was still adhering to the cast-off coat, and the whole weighed thirty-three pounds. The skin on the legs and head remained on the hog. The animal is now apparently in good health, and a new skin is beginning to form. This is a pig story.—Boston Post.

—The price of flowers in New York which has been steady at an idiotic figure for months, has broken, on account of over-production. The effect of the great supply and consequent cheapening has been to lessen the demand. To the gilded vacuum of society nothing cheap can be beautiful, so he will not give his girl a Jacqueminot rose at a cost of 20 cents, though at $1.25 a bud there was nothing so superbly and utterly all but too.—N. Y. Times.

—Indiscriminate kissing between ladies where even scarcely a moderate friendship exists is distasteful. One lady we know has such an aversion to it that she kept an imaginary abrasion of her lips, for which she apologized on entering a room where her friends were, and found it had the desired effect.—Chicago Herald.

—Among the antique articles in possession of Mr. Sewall, of Maine, are a set of pewter plates bearing the seal of King Richard, and supposed to be more than 400 years old; also, one large silver spoon, which represents all the money received for building a saw and grist mill—the payment having been made in silver and then cast into the spoon.

At a Bad Time.

Commander J. B. Coghlan, U. S. N., writes to us from the Navy Yard at Mare Island, Cal.—An enforced residence of two years in California made me the subject of most painful attacks of rheumatism. Consultation upon my case by eminent Naval and other surgeons failed to afford me the slightest relief. Dr. Hoyle recommended to me St. Jacobs Oil, the happy result of the use of which was my complete and wonderful cure.—Washington (D. C.) Army and Navy Register.

One of the sons of the Prince of Wales is being trained for the church. In America lots of women train their dresses for the church.

Halo's Honey of Hor hound and Tar
Will tackle an obstinate cough or cold. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

A guarantee of good faith—giving a church $10,000.—Puck.

Russia Salve is the universal remedy for burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and flesh wounds.

Tug-boats are like human beings, inasmuch as some of them tow out and some of them tow in.

For Throat Diseases, Coughs, Colds, etc., effectual relief is found in the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Sold only in boxes.

Men keep up appearances. Shabby genteel gentlemen who are actually suffering for food will complain of gout.—Boston Post.

One pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners.

In the spring the trees will start a branch business. Do you twig?—N. Y. News.

Rheumatism Cured. Send stamp for free prescription. R. K. Helphenstine, Washington, D. C.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, February 12, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 50	@ 3 25
Choice butchers	4 50	@ 5 85
HOGS—Common	5 75	@ 6 45
Good packers	6 75	@ 7 00
SHEEP	4 50	@ 5 50
FLOUR—Family	5 60	@ 5 75
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 11	@ 1 12
No. 2 winter red	1 10	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	55½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed, new	41	@ 41½
Rye—No. 2	67	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@12 00
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 00	@18 25
Lard—Steam	11	@ 11¼
BUTTER—Western Reserve	20	@ 23
Prime Creamery	40	@ 43
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 50	@ 3 00
Apples, prime, per barrel	3 00	@ 3 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 3 85
Good to choice	4 60	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 20	@ 1 20½
No. 1 white	1 16½	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	71½	@ 72½
Oats—mixed	48	@ 50
PORK—Mess	18 90	@19 12½
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 07½	@
Corn, No. 2	55¾	@
Oats—N	39½	@
Rye	58½	@
PORK—Mess	17 95	@18 00
LARD—Steam	11 50	@
WHISKY	1 16	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 18¾	@ 1 18¾
Corn mixed	73½	@ 74½
Oats mixed	47	@ 49
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	19 25	@
Lard, refined	12¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	$ 9⅜	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 05	@ 1 10
Corn—mixed	48	@ 49
Oats—mixed	42½	@
PORK—Mess	18 50	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 06	@
CORN	52	@
OATS—White, new	39	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 00

ELDER MOSE KITE.

His Hair-Breadth Escapes from Saan and Unseen Foes.

Troy Kansas Chief, January 18, 1883.

Most of our older citizens well remember Mose Kite (who lived in Petersburg Bottom), the hero of our State's early political history, who was of stalwart build and powerful physique; who in 1858 led a colony of our people to Pike's Peak; who fought the Indians on the plains and was shot through the body; who on his return here after the rebellion was converted and baptized by Elder Hanshall, of the Christian Church at Petersburg Bottom, and became a revival preacher of celebrity all through this section. They will also recall the fact that, attacked with consumption and reduced to a skeleton, he was obliged to remove to the Rockies in the hope of saving his life. None thought he would succeed. Last fall, however, the editor of this paper met him at the head of the Republican River, bigger and more robust than ever. "Why, I thought you had died of consumption long, long ago, Elder!"

"Me! I never had consumption, man! though people thought that was what ailed me, and I thought so myself. But the doctors had sent me on a wild-goose chase after a dozen other diseases, just as fatal, and this was the wildest one of all."

The good Elder then recounted to us, in a charming vein, his many adventures in the rough and ready life he had led, "but," he said, "remarkable as you may think my warlike life has been, I have a much more interesting story to tell you."

"You know what a rough, noisy fellow I used to be; and I could stand any hardship. Why, on a wager, I have knocked down an ox and a mule with my fist. I have fought ruffians, border outlaws and Indians; but I was

DOGGED FOR YEARS

by a more dangerous unseen enemy that was ever getting me more completely in his clutches. I was shot by an Indian in a fight on the plains, but that wound healed readily and gave me but little trouble. After I returned to Kansas and commenced preaching, I first began to give way. I had a dull feeling, accompanied with a pain in the right side. Dr. Butler, our family physician, said my liver was out of order, caused by the malaria of the bottoms. I had always had an appetite like an ostrich, but my digestion became seriously impaired. While on the circuit preaching, I consulted a doctor, who said I had dyspepsia. After that, distressing palpitation of the heart followed, and the physician said this was caused by my indigestion and diseased liver which would probably terminate fatally. Sometimes I had a ravenous appetite, at others none at all. I was feverish and then chilly. My food seemed to do me no good. A specialist told me I had a tape-worm! Then I was troubled with unusual quantities of water and a frequent desire to urinate, which was done with difficulty and great pain. The specialist said I had a touch of the gravel, caused by use of the alkaline water of the plains. I then began to suffer severe pains in the loins and the small of the back, accompanied with sudden attacks of dizziness, during which I had to sit or lie down, to avoid falling. I was forced to abandon because I could no longer ride on horseback, or trust myself out alone. I began to be seriously alarmed, and sought the advice of the most noted physician within reach. He said that my frequent horseback riding had jolted and jarred me until the old Indian wound, which had injured my kidneys, had become inflamed. He treated me with medicines and electricity also, but gave me no permanent benefit. My painful symptoms all returned. I began to cough, got very thin and my legs were disagreeably numb. I began to despair. At each attempt to cure, my ailments became worse, with new symptoms. I next consulted a celebrated physician from the East, who, after thumping and examining me, stated that I was in an advanced stage of consumption and threatened with diabetes and paralysis! He thought I might possibly prolong my life for a year or two, by seeking a higher and drier climate. This was my condition when the people in your part of the country last saw me.

TRAVELING AND PREACHING,

Then I started for the Rockies, but liked this country, and settled here. At first the change helped me, but about three years ago the benefit ceased. Then I failed so rapidly that I could be out of bed only part of each day. All my old symptoms returned. At this crisis, a party of Eastern gentlemen, made my house their headquarters. In the party was a Dr. Wakefield, who informed me that I had a bad case of incurable Bright's Disease, and gave me a preparation which might, he said, ease me for a few weeks or months, but that was the best that could be done. Around the bottle was a newspaper. Now a newspaper was a rarity in our home, and I sat in my chair looking it over when my eye providentially fell upon an article relating a most wonderful cure of Bright's disease—the very malady that was killing me—by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, (of Rochester, N. Y.). Convinced that further delay would be fatal, and everything else failing, the next morning I dispatched one of my boys to the nearest railroad station, many miles distant, to obtain a bottle of the Safe Cure. The druggist said the demand for the Cure was so great he could not keep it in stock, and he had to send to Kansas City for more. It was more than a week before it arrived, and I was daily getting weaker. But it came at last, and I at once began to take it. When I told Dr. Wakefield what I was taking he gave me a look, half of scorn, half of pity, as much as to say:

ON A BUFFALO HUNT,

'POOR FELLOW!

he is putting his trust in a humbug.' Nevertheless I persevered, and for the past year and a half I have been as stout and rugged as I ever was in my life. After escaping the attacks of Indians and half a dozen doctors, I was lying at the mercy of a still more dreadful foe that was about giving me the finishing blow, when that great remedy stepped in, slew my adversary, and placed me firmly on my feet once more. I have commenced preaching again; for I look upon the circumstances and manner of my cure as a direct interposition of Providence, and to Providence are my services due. That is my story. I think it is as good as a romance—and much better, for it is true."

Such is the substance, and very nearly the language of Elder Kite's narrative. Those who read it, and are suffering, may benefit by his experience, if they will follow his example.

Any old bachelor will shriek for a better half when a counterfeit fifty cent piece is shoved on him.

Young men, and middle aged ones, suffering from nervous debility and kindred weaknesses, send three stamps for Part VII. of Dime Series Books. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y.

"For nobby wear," says the Boston Transcript, "there is nothing like a darned stocking."

Cholera Asphixia.

This is the most malignant form of this disease, called Asiatic cholera. James N. Pearson, of York, Pa., said recently: "I was suddenly attacked with severe vomiting and purging, with spasms and violent cramp. My limbs became cold and rigid. A profuse perspiration broke out over my whole body and the physician pronounced my case to be one of pure Asiatic cholera. Four wine glasses of Mishler's Herb Bitters cured me entirely." Keep a bottle of this medicine always in your house, reader. It is a priceless jewel in cases of sickness.

No matter if the postage is reduced, it is just as much trouble to lick a two-cent stamp as a three-cent one.

"Became Sound and Well."

Hatcher's Station, Ga., March 27, 1876.

R. V. Pierce, M. D.: Dear Sir—My wife, who had been ill for over two years, and had tried many other medicines, became sound and well by using your "Favorite Prescription." My niece was also cured by its use, after several physicians had failed to do her any good.

Yours truly, Thomas J. Methvin.

A little child of seven or eight said that when the Bible speaks of "children's children," it must mean dolls.

Sick and bilious headache, and all derangements of stomach and bowels, cured by Dr. Pierce's "Pellets"—or anti-bilious granules. 25 cents a vial. No cheap boxes to allow waste of virtues. By druggists.

The reason why a rumor travels is because it gains currency, and, therefore, makes money and can afford to travel.

Instantly Relieved.

Mrs. Ann Lacour, of New Orleans, La., writes: I have a son who has been sick for two years; he has been attended by our leading physicians, but all to no purpose. This morning he had his usual spell of coughing, and was so greatly prostrated in consequence, that death seemed imminent. We had in the house a bottle of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, purchased by my husband, who noticed your advertisement yesterday. We administered it according to directions and he was instantly relieved.

A counterfeiter would make a good compositor, as he follows copy so closely and never drops a line.

It is now fashionable to speak of the night robe as a nap-sack.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Questions in natural history—What does a catamount to?

You would use St. Patrick's Salve if you knew the good 'twould do you.

The proper place for a corner in coal—down the cellar.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless. 15c.

"What is the boundary that separates a smile from a tear?" "Give it up." "The nose."

Personal!

The Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

Dose Cup. Advertisement in another col.

Try the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids, broken down in health and spirits by chronic dyspepsia, or suffering from the terrible exhaustion that follows the attacks of acute disease, the testimony of thousands who have been raised as by a miracle from a similar state of prostration by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is a sure guarantee that by the same means you, too, may be strengthened and restored.

—For sale by all Druggists and dealers generally.

Chrolithion Collars and Cuffs. Handsome, Durable, Waterproof, Superior to Linen, Paper or Celluloid. Sent by mail. For circular, send Postal Card to Box 916, Newburyport, Mass.

30 CARD Chromos AND 12 LARGE Chromos FREE with the People's Magazine. Only 80 cents a year.

$47 A MONTH and board for AGENTS. Send for Sample free, or 25 cents for complete outfit with all the chromos. Money returned if not satisfied. People's Magazine, Philadelphia, Pa.

25c. PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.

JUST OUT. NEW STOVE PIPE SHELF. One agent made $140.00 in 56 days. Boxing and Freight Free. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., CINCINNATI & KANSAS CITY.

Come to CHICAGO If you desire to locate in Chicago, and would like to know all about the city and your chances of success, by personal letters before you come, enclose two 3-cent stamps for full particulars to WHEATON BROS., Box 293, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

PATENTS PROCURED! or NO PAY! Also—Trade marks, etc. Send model and sketch; will examine and report if patentable. Many years practice. Pamphlet free. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D.C.

DROP a postal card to Clarke Bros., Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and astonish you.

ENGINES (Traction & Portable) for Farm, Saw Mill & Plantation. For prices, etc., write The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, O.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street Chicago.

Send $3 to A. W. Hamilton & Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., for Dr. Chase's Family Physician; sells fast. Agents Wanted. Watson's Interest Tables, $3.50.

80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 25 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Philad'a, Pa.

AGENTS Make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., N. Y.

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

TWO Photos of Female Beauties, 10c. Illustrated Catalogue 3 cts. J. DIETZ, Reading, Pa.

Sure Cure Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. Kruse, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Write for catalogue. Coleman & Palms, Prop'rs.

MAGIC WATCH SAFE Send 20 cts. to W. A. WRIGHT, Westvale, Mass.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co, Portland, Me.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free, Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

An English Veterinary Surgeon and Chemist, now traveling in this country, says that most of the Horse and Cattle Powders sold here are worthless trash. He says that Sheridan's Condition Powders are absolutely pure and immensely valuable. Nothing on earth will MAKE HENS LAY like Sheridan's Condition Powders. Dose, one teaspoonful to one pint food. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for eight letter-stamps. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

For Two Generations

The good and steadfast old stand-by, MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT, has done more to assuage pain, relieve suffering, and save the lives of men and beasts than all other liniments put together. Why? Because the Mustang penetrates through skin and flesh to the very bone, driving out all pain and soreness and morbid secretions, and restoring the afflicted part to sound and supple health.

Rejoice, Rejoice, "He is Alive Again." "Was Lost, but is Found."

Under date of July 9, 1882, Mr. E. B. Bright, of Windsor Locks, Conn., writes a plain, modest narrative which, from its very simplicity, has the true ring of fine gold. He says:

"My father is using Hunt's Remedy and seems to be improving, in fact, he is very much better than he has been for a long time. He had been tapped three times. The first time they got from him sixteen quarts of water, the second time thirteen quarts, and fully as much more the third time, and he would constantly fill up again every time after he had been tapped, until he commenced using Hunt's Remedy, which acted like magic in his case, as he begun to improve at once, and now his watery accumulation passes away through the secretions naturally, and he has none of that swelling or filling up which was so frequent before the functions of the kidneys were restored by the use of Hunt's Remedy. He is a well-known citizen of this place, and has always been in business here."

Again he writes, Nov. 27, 1882:

"I beg most cheerfully and truthfully to state, in regard to Hunt's Remedy, that its use was the saving of my father's life. I spoke to you in my previous letter in regard to his being tapped three times. It is the most remarkable case that has ever been heard of in this section. For a man of his age (sixty years) it is a most remarkable cure. He had been unable to attend to his business more than a year, and was given up by the doctors.

"The first bottle of Hunt's Remedy that he used gave instant relief. He has used in all seven bottles, and continues to use it whenever he feels drowsy or sluggish, and it affords instant relief. He is now attending to his regular business, and has been several months. I am perfectly willing that you should publish this letter, as we thoroughly believe that father's life was saved by using Hunt's Remedy; and these facts given above may be a benefit to others suffering in like manner from diseases or inaction of the kidneys and liver."

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

ABSOLUTELY PURIFIES THE BLOOD, Equalizes its Circulation, Regulates its Supply, Improves its Quality, therefore Furnishes Vital Energy.
. . . . CONQUERS DISEASE. . . .
PERFECTS DIGESTION, Improves the Appetite, Cleanses the Liver and Kidneys; Acts as a mild stomachic and Imparts Vitality and Elasticity to every Organ of the Body. Formula in use 200 years.
. . . . IT HAS NO PEER. . . .
MALARIA GIVES UP THE GHOST upon use while the system is brought to a state of perfect health and vigor. Get it at once. $1. per Bottle.

Mishler's Green Label Bitters, a Specific for Scrofula, Old Sores, Syphilis, &c., while Mishler's Red Label Bitters are prepared expressly for Diseases peculiar to Females. $1.50 per Bottle.
All sold by Druggists.
Send for book "Messenger of Health."
MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO., Lancaster, Pa.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup works like a Charm.

Cantatas—Operettas.

SACRED.

Ruth and Boaz. (65 cts.) is new, easy and every way delightful. Joseph's Bondage ($1), and Belshazzar, ($1), make gorgeous oriental spectacles, as do the easier Daniel, (30 cts.), and Esther, (50 cts.), Fall of Jerusalem, ($1 cts.), Christ the Lord, (80 cts.), are good, and Strachan's Deluge, (80 cts.), Berlioz' Flight into Egypt, (38 cts.), Sullivan's Prodigal Son, (75 cts.), are worthy and striking compositions.

SECULAR.

Comala, (80 cts.), Don Munio, ($1.50), Lorelei, (50 cts.), St. Cecilia's Day, (6 cts.), May Queen, ($1), are classic and beautiful. Easier ones are Haymakers, ($), by Root, and Thomas's Picnic, ($1). Pretty parlor Operettas are Pauline, ($1.25), Palomita, ($.25), Diamond Cut Diamond, ($1), Cups and Saucers, (25 cts.).

For many others, send for lists. All Sullivan's Operas published in good style and at low prices.

NEW BOOKS OF GREAT MERIT.

Redemption, ($1). Gounod Novello's Edition.
Shepard Collection, ($1). Quartets and Choirs.
Choral Choir, ($1). Best new Choir Book.
Peerless, (75 cts). Best new Singing Class Book.
Minstrel Songs, ($). A great success.
Musical Favorite, ($2). New Piano Music.
Any book mailed for above price.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO. 867 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

SEEDS I will give you the best Seeds for the least money of any firm in America or refund. Western Seeds are best. Mine take the lead. Gardeners say they never fail. I used 600 lbs paper to print 80,000 pretty Catalogues illustrated with $2000 worth of engravings. It beats the world, worth many dollars. FREE. Prices below all. R. H. SHUMWAY, Rockford, Ill. Best Seeds cheap pretty Book Free.

DAKOTA FARMS. Wealth returning investments in Red River Valley farms and town lots. Free homes in the Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain region. New country, tributary only to Grand Forks. Farms from $5 an acre up—will produce 30 bushels wheat per acre. Send stamps for full information. Address, A. L. TEELE, Land Agent, Grand Forks, Dakota.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.) No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati O.

500 000 acres LANDS on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. Full particulars FREE. Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS. IN WISCONSIN.

CONSUMPTION. I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

NERVOUS Remedy for weakness, debility, exhaustion. Speedy, Safe, Sure. Mailed free for 50c. B. Seebach, Peru, Ill.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. MOODY & CO., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.

I CURE FITS! When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

CANCER INSTITUTE. AURORA ILL. Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880, For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and Skin Diseases, without the use of knife or Loss of Blood, and little pain. For Information, Circulars and References, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

DOSE CUP & CORK-SCREW, the invalid's boon and nurse's delight will be GIVEN FREE as a premium to Dr. Foote's Health Monthly to those sending only 4 letter stamps for a 3 months' trial subscription. The Dose Cup measures accurately one drachm and prevents mistakes; the cork-screw prevents breaking corks and knife-blades; the Health Monthly prevents human ills. Address M. Hill Pub. Co., Box 788, New York City. ALWAYS THE RIGHT DOSE ONE SPOONFUL

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

TEACHERS WANTED For Vacancies. Address with stamp, for "application form," and copy of our "Public School Journal," National Teachers' Agency, Cincinnati, O.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1883. NUMBER 17.

WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THE BOYS?

"What shall I do with the boys:"
Says the petulant, half-weary mother;
"They make so much trouble and noise,
And play such sad tricks on each other;
They are out at the elbows and toes,
In spite of my darning and mending,
And my work seems to me, as it goes
Day in and day out, never ending.

"They are calling from morning till night;
'Tis 'mother,' and 'mother,' and 'mother,'
Till I almost get tired of my right
And title, and long for some other.
John, Ollie and Fred! Here they come
Up stairs, with their noise and their clatter;
With whistle, with fife, and with drum—
Well, boys, pray what is the matter?

"And what do you want?" "I want you
To fix my bow arrow. It misses."
"And I've cut my finger clear through;
Please, mother, dear, mend it with kisses."
"These three are the babies, my friend,"
Says this now smiling pattern of mothers,
"You'll own that my cares have no end,
When you look out and see my three others."

"What shall I do with the boys?"
Ah! mother, these lads are your treasures—
Say not that they dim your life-joys,
Or take from your sweet household pleasures;
But join them at work, or at play,
Their questions, so innocent, heeding,
And holding each hand up life's way,
With infinite tenderness leading.

Fret not that they call you, my friend,
So often that name, like no other
Of all the fond ones known to man—
The name all men reverence—mother!
Dear boys! they will never forget
Their mother's kind help in their sorrows,
And the cares that annoy you to-day
Will be followed by blessed to-morrows.

—Mrs. M. A. Kidder, in N. Y. Ledger.

HIS PANTHER-TRAP.

An old gentleman named Calvin Bemis, who passed the early part of his life in Western Pennsylvania, related to the writer, not long ago, the following story of his boyhood days.

At the time of the occurrence here described the family consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Bemis and their two children, Calvin and Susan, who were then ten and eleven years old respectively. The family had recently moved from New England into what was then looked upon as the "far West."

Mr. Bemis, the father, was at that time able to buy, at a low price, from the "Holland Land Co.," the tract of land situated in a fertile creek valley, which subsequently formed his large farm of two hundred and fifty acres.

When he bought it, however, there was not a square rod of cleared land on it, the whole district being covered with a dense growth of sycamore, oak and hickory. And for some years after Mr. Bemis built his first rude log house in a small clearing, his nearest human neighbors were seven miles distant. But he was not without animal neighbors in abundance. Scarcely a day passed without their seeing some wild creature in the clearing. Nature had a large menagerie all about them.

For several years their only meat—and they never went hungry—was venison or wild turkey, which they could shoot or trap without going any great distance from home.

Not unfrequently a bear would be seen sitting on his haunches at the edge of the woods, taking a slow and meditative view of the clearing. Wolves were also plentiful, and in the latter part of winter often became dangerous.

On a number of occasions panthers were heard and seen lurking about, even in the daytime; and the nights were sometimes rendered noisy by the voices of these and other prowlers.

But the children grew accustomed to such a life after a time, as their timidity wore off, and the true frontier spirit of adventure took its place.

It was by no means an unpleasant life, as the monotony was relieved by various little adventures of a more or less exciting character, and some, indeed, involving considerable risk of life.

Cal, and even Susie, learned to shoot with their father's gun, and to set various kinds of traps and snares for turkeys and other game.

But my story is of their most notable feat—trapping a panther.

Late in the fall of their third year at the new farm Mr. Bemis had occasion to leave home on business for a fortnight, and, of course he took his gun with him.

Before going away he had hauled to the door a great pile of wood for winter fuel. The logs were from ten to fifteen feet long, and were heaped up in tiers to a height of seven or eight feet. It was to be Calvin's daily duty, during his father's absence, to chop the wood needed for the open fire. To a frontier lad of thirteen this was hardly more than pastime.

Late one afternoon, as he was splitting some tough logs, he chanced to glance up, and was not a little startled to see creeping toward him, from beyond the woodpile, a large, long, gray creature which he at once suspected was a panther!

In much less time than it takes to tell it, Cal bounded into the house and slammed the door after him. When they looked out, the animal was on the wood-pile and its eyes were fixed on the door; it was evidently angered by the escape of its intended prey.

But the narrow windows of the cabin were secured by strong bars. While they remained within the family had little to fear from their ugly visitant, which soon went back to the woods. But it is hardly to be wondered at that Cal felt a little "queer" about venturing out to finish his evening's work.

If the beast had stayed away, this would have been the end of my story. But the following afternoon, at about the same hour, as Calvin was again chopping his evening's wood, and also keeping a sharp lookout, he espied the panther. The terrible creature, which had, no doubt, been attracted by the sound of the ax, was approaching in the same wily manner and from the same direction as on the day before. Once more Cal scampered into the house, and the family again saw the creature upon the woodpile as before.

That afternoon the children had snared two turkeys in the bushes back of the house; and these, still undressed, had, by some oversight, been left hanging from a pole projecting from the woodpile.

After a moment or two the panther scented and pounced on them, taking both into his capacious mouth and trotting away to the woods.

This second visit and the loss of their turkeys set the children's wits to work to devise how, without a gun, they might give the beast a warmer welcome when he came again. They discussed several plans that evening. Cal had heard of many different kinds of traps set by hunters for bears and panthers; and between them he and Susan formed the project for luring the beast to its destruction.

A quantity of hickory poles, about two inches in diameter, were standing against the corner of the cabin, where they had been placed some months before, to season. They were now possessed of the two qualities in which hickory excels every other wood in American forests—toughness and hardiness.

From these poles Cal cut eight or ten stakes, nearly four feet long, and sharpened the larger end of each. Then in the little cleared place, at the foot of the high wood-pile, where he had begun cutting wood, he drove the stakes about half their length into the ground.

The upper ends of the stakes were made to slant slightly toward the wood pile, so that if the panther should jump down there, it would alight squarely on the points. After they were all driven just to suit him, Cal brought out his father's "shingle-shaver," and shaved off the upper ends of each to an exceedingly sharp point.

When this was done, the stakes were like so many bayonets sticking out of the earth about a foot from each other.

Susie now brought out her contribution to the scheme—a kind of "corn field image," made by sewing together an old coat and trousers of Calvin's and stuffing them with hay. A coon-skin cap was fastened on, for a head.

This effigy they set up amongst the sharp stakes at the foot of the woodpile, in as life-like a position as possible, arranging it so that if the panther should spring upon it, some of the stakes would be likely to pierce his body.

From the leg of the sham boy, a little cord was passed beneath a log and thence up to the window of the cabin, so that if necessary they could give it a jerk, to make the panther more eager to catch it. To conceal the sharp points, a dry leaf was stuck upon the end of each one. Turkey feathers were also scattered about the spot.

When it was done, Mrs. Bemis came out and enjoyed a good laugh at the "show" her two ingenious children had originated. At sunset Cal went out to his chopping; while Susie took her station at the window to watch, and to open the door whenever her brother should run toward it. To this day she remembers his saying that he "felt awful queer, standing for bait for a painter."

But he stuck to his post, making his ax ring out sharp and clear, to call the creature. Their excitement ran high. But the shadows began to fall and still no panther appeared.

Suddenly Susie espied the beast in some bushes at the edge of the woods, a few rods away.

"Oh, I see him!" she whispered. "But I'll tell ye when to run!"

The savage creature stole slowly out. Mrs. Bemis, dreadfully agitated, wanted to call Cal in; Susie's courage, however, was stimulated, and she was not ready to call. But immediately, she saw the panther creeping closer, and then gathering its feet under its body and switching its tail, as if for a spring.

"Run, Cal!" she whispered. Next instant the boy was bounding in at the doorway; while at almost the same moment they saw the panther leap on the woodpile from behind.

For a little space the creature's fierce, wild eyes glared toward the window; then, suddenly catching sight of the object below, it began to exhibit the most intense excitement, working its long claws on the logs.

Cal now gave the string a jerk, causing the effigy to start as if about to escape, when with a ferocious scream the beast sprang down upon it.

But its ferocious cry was almost instantly followed by a yell of pain. The children saw that instead of rending the effigy, the creature was tumbling and writhing as if in agony while its growls and screeches resounded far and wide through the now darkening forest.

Cal wished to sally out at once and dispatch the animal with his ax; but his mother resolutely forbade him. It was long after dark before the creature ceased to utter his terrible cries.

Next morning they found it had pulled itself away from the sharp stakes. But by the blood on the ground Cal readily traced it into the woods, where he found it lying dead near the brook.

"Uncle Calvin," now an elderly man, often tells this story to the boys, and at the end of it, lifting his cane, he exclaims:

"And there's one of the stakes that went through the beast!"

Sure enough, his old cane is made of one of those very stakes which proved so efficacious in ridding them of their savage guest.—Youth's Companion.

—Even in the top of the Newhall House there was a little time to think and act, and it is easy to believe that, with a few dollars' worth of twisted hemp at hand the crowd of panic-stricken men and women would have been ready to help themselves, the women being let down by the men, and nearly all have escaped with their lives. The frightful lesson is plain enough, and among all the precautions suggested, the providing of a rope appears as the one simple, practicable thing, easily compelled by law. It should everywhere be done, and that at once.—Springfield (Ill.) Republican.

—It has come at last. A Virginian claims that on removing a cake of ice that had been for several years in the bottom of his ice-house he found it perforated with cells which were occupied by long worms of a whitish color. Others in the same vicinity report similar experience. It will no longer be considered safe to use ice until it has been thoroughly cooked, so as to effectually kill these parasites.—Chicago Herald.

—The New York Post-office sends out thirty-five tons of newspapers and periodicals daily, there being 788 papers and periodicals published in that city that want to get out.

—Three men fell 150 feet in the Como Eureka mine at Como, Nev., but only one was seriously hurt.

The Richest Dentist.

Dr. Evans hails from Philadelphia. He is of Welsh extraction, and belongs to a family half Quaker, half Methodist, who were well respected folks in the city founded by Penn.

Dr. Evans became a dentist, and took a wife when he was a very young man. He then came to Europe to assist his countryman, Brewster, who had been asked to look after the teeth of the Prince-President, and had more business than he could well attend to. Evans was an extremely handsome and well-made little man. His features, though large, were so neatly cut as almost to give them a pretty character. An English tailor dressed him in the best style. He always in the daytime looked the man of business, although it was easy to see that he was used to rub shoulders with the foremost personages of the world.

A tincture of American independence ran through his quiet manner. In smiling, he showed, as if unintentionally—and it may have been sans intention—a white and even set of teeth. A small and nicely-shaped hand manipulated instruments of torture with firm dexterousness. There was genuine kindness in the manner, and there was something in the face which expressed an obliging disposition. Soon after the coup d'etat Brewster sold his business to Dr. T. Evans. It included a virtual monopoly of court practice, which, as the new Emperor was omnipotent, soon brought a throng of patients to the office at the Rue de la Paix. It had got out that Evans was in high favor at the Tuileries. The Emperor, who hated fuss, and dreaded being, like Hortense and Josephine, his mother and grandmother, prematurely toothless, liked his dentist's quiet and civil way of discharging his morning duties.

The doctor attended daily, when in Paris, at 8 a. m., at the Emperor's toilet, and then proceeded to the dressing-room of the Empress. Eugenie spoke French with facility, but never like a well-educated Parisienne. She knew that she was often mentally criticised by members of her entourage for her inelegant locution. It was, therefore, agreeable to see her chat in English—a tongue of which she was quite mistress—with Evans, who retailed to her the news of the town and the current gossip about the court with an amount of truthfulness that was refreshing to ears tired of flattery. He also treated her teeth as if they were pearls of great price, and kept them for seventeen years in excellent condition.

Napoleon III. was on the throne, unable to give up his Carbonari habits, which were seen through. For instance, when the Czar had a bad tooth and sent for Evans, Bismarck, King Leopold, the Queen of Holland, Prince Metternich and Nigra were on the alert to find out what was brewing at St. Petersburg.

The fortunate dentist accordingly was summoned to attend, in many capitals, to royal teeth. Unwittingly he made revelations, the importance of which he did not see. He was given diamond-studded snuff-boxes, rings, pins, and valuable furs.

Condescension was in many an instance pushed so far as to send him the likeness of a royal or imperial patient, executed expressly for him. The Empress (then Queen) Augusta did not go so far as this; but she gave the Doctor two superb Dresden vases, with painted views on them of her Potsdam Schloss and Stolzenfels. The Doctor has every kind of decoration except the insignia of the English and Prussian orders and the Golden Fleece.

Under the Empire, Dr. Evans remained a citizen of the United States. He is very American in feeling. During the civil war he went in strongly for the North. Thurlow Weed, to counteract the influence of Slidell and his charming daughter, took care to secure the co-operation at the Tuileries of Evans. The dentist had a Quakerly dislike to slavery. He knew where and how to take the Emperor, whose irresolution he increased when the court set, interested in the Jecker affair, wanted the blockade of the Southern ports to be broken.

Evans was the only familiar of the imperial couple who acted in a brave and chivalrous manner on the 4th of September. The Empress was deserted by all the grand members of the household and the high functionaries. Even her cousin, M. de Lesseps, who had often proffered good counsel, which was not heeded, but who owed the success of the Suez Canal to her, did not remain at her side. In her desolation she thought, when on quitting the Tuileries the Italian Minister put her and Mme. Lebreton into a cab, of driving to the house of Dr. Evans. The idea was a happy one. Her Majesty arrived in her dressing-gown. Mrs. Evans was at the seaside; the Doctor was out.

When he returned he saw the fugitive had not been recognized, and treated her as if she had been driven by an aching tooth to call upon him at his private residence. The locks to his wife's clothes-presses were forced to obtain a change of raiment for the Empress, who, with her lady, was taken by the Doctor in his own carriage to the Norman coast. A good friend in adversity to the imperial couple, Evans had, when they were triumphant, the courage to give them wholesome but unpalatable advice. Knowing thoroughly the organization of the Prussian army, he again and again warned the Emperor and Empress that in going to war with Germany they would court ruin. The Empress probably remembered this advice when she was sitting in his house awaiting his return home.—London Truth.

—A cowboy at Missoula, Mon., bet that he would ride his horse into every room of the hotel there, started in astride of the animal and only desisted when the landlord had lodged fourteen bullets in his person—and escaped about the same number himself. Boniface said he didn't mind a little fun, but a man riding around that way might get into trouble with some guest, and he kept a quiet house.

—Prof. Brewer says: "The trotting horse is a modern and American invention." Thank heaven, there is one thing that wasn't invented by the Chinese 23,000 years ago! Later returns, however, may rob us of this honor.—N. Y. Herald.

Religious.

WE DO NOT KNOW.

Dear child, dear child, we do not know
Why sorrows come and pleasures go;
Why oft we fail when most we try;
But God knows why.
And we shall all know by and by.

We do not know, we can not tell,
But oh, the Father knoweth well,
Why one is sick and one is fair,
One sick with care,
And this world's poor are everywhere.

We walk in darkness; but He sees
And shows us gently by degrees,
And step by step, the hidden way,
If we but pray:
"Lord, make me follow Thee alway."

We must be patient till the end,
And leave to Him the way we wend,
For never here our eyes can see
The plan that He
In mercy plans for you and me.

Our best is ill; our work, perhaps,
His pity counts a lesser lapse;
But every sin is very black,
And holds us back
From duty's straight and shining track.

Sweet is the fear that will not dare
Forget His Law or spurn His care;
And sweeter still the love that saith
With every breath:
"Lord, make me faithful unto death."

—Harriet McEwen Kimball, in Youth's Companion.

International Sunday-School Lessons.

FIRST QUARTER.

Feb. 18—Christian Courage........Acts 4:18-31
Feb. 25—Ananias and Sapphira....Acts 5: 1-11
Mar. 4—Persecution Renewed....Acts 5:18-32
Mar. 11—The Seven Chosen......Acts 6: 1-15
Mar. 18—The First Christian Martyr Acts 7:54-60, and 8: 1-4
Mar. 25—Review; or, Missionary, Temperance, or other Lesson selected by the school.

Infidels Desponding.

The men who are laboring to destroy Christianity do not grow happy. There is a certain exhilaration while their bright but injurious books bring them copyright; and while crowds of men found willing, for reasons which bring no credit to their minds or hearts, to pay a dollar each and contribute also their applause to a preacher of blasphemy; but as life wears on, and there comes to such men a revelation of the probable effects of their teaching on the future of society, they grow very despondent.

Mr. Renan is reported to have said: "We are living on the perfume of an empty vase. Our children will have to live on the shadow of a shadow. Their children, I fear, will have to live on something less."

It would be almost cruelty to ask this brilliant writer who they are that have emptied the vase, and who they are that have spent their strength in taking the substance out of all human life so that nothing but shadows should be left. But should he be spared that keen question, unless he frankly repent and employ the remainder of his life in laboring to neutralize the poison he has so insidiously injected into society, and which now infects him and produces a deadly despondency?

We have, however, comfort for him and for all of his class. Their grandchildren will live in an age of increasing Christian activity, in an age when Christianity will be still more stripped of ecclesiasticism than now, and the mind of the Spirit in the word of God will be better known, and there shall be an increase of that faith which rounds out reason and complements the barrenness of this life with the fruitfulness of the life to come. They will have something better than perfume and more substantial than shadows.

Now let men pause and consider the pitifulness of this case. A few gifted men have been employing their power in accumulating an estate for posterity, and the best of them thus makes statement of the assets of the estate: in hand, "the perfume of an empty vase;" for the next generation, "the shadow of a shadow;" for the third generation, "something less." No wonder Mr. Renan is despondent. The more his descendants believe as he does the less they will have.

The laborers on the Christian side have no such gloom. We may die, but the Gospel will live. The more our descendants receive and believe and live this Gospel we preach, the happier they will be. We grow cheerful as time goes on, and as our departure is at hand. Men may live and men may die, but Christianity goes on for ever.—Charles F. Deems, D. D., in Christian Weekly.

Is the Bible Reasonable?

We believe the Bible is in accord with the highest reason, and that the God of the Bible demands of us not a blind, but an intelligent, faith. In his celebrated debate with Alexander Campbell, Robert Owen made the sweeping assertion that all religion has grown out of ignorance and credulity. He made no exceptions. The Christian religion met with the same condemnation. He announced what he was pleased to call "twelve fundamental laws of nature," which were to subvert the Christian religion and become the basis of universal society. Where now is Robert Owen and his twelve laws? His laws are as dead as the clods that cover his dead body; but Christianity lives and flourishes like "a green bay tree." Voltaire pronounced the Bible an unreasonable book, and prophesied the decay of religion with the eighteenth century. Voltaire is dead enough, but religion survives him.

A more modern apostle of unbelief has made like predictions with Owen and Voltaire. He boasts that the Bible makes slaves of men and that only unbelievers are free-thinkers. He says a man can not believe the Bible save at the expense of his reason, and that he longs for the [illegible] when Reason enthroned upon the world's brain will be the king of kings and god of gods.

These are proud boasts: but are they true? What is the spirit of the Bible? Does God demand the sacrifice of our reason in order to accept the volume of Revelation? A book should be permitted to speak for itself. The Bible, like every other book, should be its own interpreter. It is my purpose in this connection to collate a few passages bearing directly upon this thought.

In the first chapter of Isaiah we have these words: "Come, let us reason together, saith the Lord." Here God challenges us to use our reason.

When John the Baptist was in prison he became despondent and doubts as to the true character of Jesus flitted across his mind. He sent two of his disciples to the Master with the question: "Art thou He that should come or do we look for another?" Jesus did not send them back with a dogmatic answer; but He sent him a most reasonable, and therefore a most convincing reply: "Go and tell John the things you do see and hear." And then He recounted all His works of love and mercy as so many proofs of His Messiahship. This is in perfect harmony with His proposition to the Jews at another time: "If I do not the works of my Father believe me not: but if I do, if you believe not me, believe the works, that you may know and believe that the Father is in me and I in the Father." There could not be a more reasonable proposition.

The apostle Paul speaks in the highest praise of the people of Berea and censures the Thessalonians, because the Bereans searched the Scriptures daily to see if these things are true, while the Thessalonians neglected to do so. In Paul's estimate, careful investigation was the badge of true nobility. This don't look like making slaves of men.

When this grand old apostle of faith stood in the presence of Agrippa and made his masterly, logical defense of the resurrection, he personally appealed to the King: "Why should it be thought a thing incredible that God should raise the dead?" This word "incredible" is almost a synonym for "unreasonable." Thus Paul appealed to Agrippa's reason.

The apostle Peter also exhorts us to be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh a reason for our hope, and he says in another place: "We have not followed cunningly devised fables . . . . but were eye-witnesses of His majesty."

The beloved John says: "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you."

A book never made more reasonable demands than the Bible. The character of the witnesses is such as to confirm our faith. Their honesty and heroic fidelity to their convictions kindles our constant admiration. They had every reason to know whereof they affirmed, and if we reject their testimony we may reject all history by the same process of reasoning.

The Bible comes to us confirmed by many infallible proofs. The resurrection of Christ is the greatest fact of the ages. It is greatest in the superabundance of testimony supporting it, and greatest in its benign influence upon the human family. As we stand in the presence of these, we are compelled like Thomas to exclaim: "My Lord and my God."—Christian-Evangelist.

Choice Extracts.

—Christianity does not antagonize any harmless, well-timed pleasure.—Golden Rule.

—There are more people who can forget themselves than govern themselves.—Ruskin.

— Foolish Fear.—

If evils come not, then our fears are vain:
And if they do, fear but augments the pain.
—Sir Thomas More.

—Consider how much more you often suffer from your anger and grief than from those very things for which you are angry and grieved.—Marcus Antonius.

—The spirit of one earnest, enterprising Christian worker in a community rouses others to action—sometimes shames them to activity—and their good example becomes contagious. Most people wait for leaders, and an earnest soul with boldness and faith may lead hosts of others to glorious conquests.—Golden Rule.

—If there were no enemy, there could be no conflict; were there no trouble, there could be no faith; were there no trial, there could be no love; were there no fear, there could be no hope. Hope, faith and love are weapons, and weapons imply foes and encounters, and, relying on my weapons, I will glory in my sufferings.—Dr. Newman.

—The great hindrance to Christian progress is unchristian Christianity—Christian doctrine without a Christian practice. The chief priests, scribes and elders were religious after an irreligious kind. They mumbled the right words, but did not live the right life or develop the right spirit. It was religion gone sour—the wine of piety turned into the vinegar of resentment.—Joseph Parker.

—The thought of time is solemn and awful to all minds in proportion to their depth; and, in proportion as the mind is superficial, the thought has appeared little, and has been treated with levity. Brethren, let but a man possess himself of that thought—the deep thought of the brevity of time—this thought—that time is short, and that eternity is long—and he has learned the first great secret of unworldliness.—F. W. Robertson.

—Almost every person wants to be doing some "great thing," something that heroes and heroines have done; but a little thing, a common, everyday thing, such a thing as must be done out of everybody's sight—in daily home duties or in school, or in business—that seems a poor kind of work to do for the Lord. Naaman's servants saw in their master's face this very feeling when he refused to go and wash in the river Jordan. It took some time to bring him to reason, and make him see that the little thing he was bid to do was the best and the greatest in the end.—N. W. Christian Advocate.

A Wild-Cat Killing a Deer.

One night recently a hunter residing near Chester was aroused by an unusual noise near his cabin. Taking his gun he went out to see what the trouble was, and noticed a deer at full speed with a wild cat perched on its back and making frantic efforts to cut the deer's throat with its sharp teeth. The hunter raised his gun and fired. The wild-cat instantly jumped off the deer's back and made for its assailant. The man reloaded his rifle, and then the animal was within twelve or fifteen feet of him he again fired and killed the brute: just as he fired the last shot the deer fell dead but a few paces from where the hunter first saw it. Examination revealed that the man's first shot had wounded the wild-cat in the belly, while the second hit it squarely in the head, and that the deer had died from the effects of the biting received from its strange rider.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Our Young Folks.

JERRY.

"Buy a paper plaze! She is frozen a'most.
Here's Commercial and News, and Mail,
And here's the Express and the Avening Post!
And ivery one has a tirrible tale—
A shipwrick—a murther—a fire-alarm—
Whichiver ye loike;—have a paper, marm?
Thin buy it, plaze, av this bit av a gurrul—
She's new in the business and all av a whirrul;
We must find her a hand," said little Jerry:
"There's a pilnty av thrade at the Fulton Ferry.

"She's wakely for nade av the lay and the toast—
The price av a paper—plaze, sir, buy a Post?
Thrue as me name it is Jere-miah.
There's a foine report av a dridful fire—
And a child that's lost—and a smash av a train—
Indade, sir, the paper's just groanin' wid pain!
Spake up, little gurrul, and don't be afraid!
I'm schraichin' for two till I start yez in thrade.
While I yell, you can sell," said little Jerry,
Screeching for two at Fulton Ferry.

The night was bleak, and the wind was high,
And a hurrying crowd went shivering by:
And some bought papers, and some bought none,
But the boy's shrill voice rang cheerily on:
"Buy a Post, or a News, or a Mail, as you choose,
For my arm just aches wid the weight av the news.
Express! Not a single one left for to-night—
But buy one av this little gurrul, sir—all right.
She's a reg'lar seller here at the ferry,
And I rickomind her high," said Jerry.

In the whirl of the throng there paused a man.
"The bell is ringing—I can not wait;
Here, girl, a Commercial as quick as you can!
The boat is starting—don't make me late!"
And on through the hurrying crowd he ran,
The wee girl following close behind,
After the penny he could not find;
While, with a spring through the closing gate,
After her money bounded Jerry,
Ragged and panting, at Fulton Ferry.

"One cent from the man in the big fur coat!
Give me the change, or I'll stop the boat."
Up from the deck a laugh and a cheer.
It changed to a shuddering cry of fear—
As he bent his head for the fearful spring,
And then—like a wild bird on the wing—
Over the whirling waters swung,
Touched the boat with his hands, and clung,
Gasping and white, to the rail, and cried:
"Where is that mean old man, who tried
To steal one cent from a girl at the ferry?
A poor little girl, with no friend but Jerry?"

Over the side went a hundred hands,
From a hundred mouths rang forth commands:
"Pull him in!" "Stop the boat!" "Take his stock!" "Let us buy
All the papers he has!" "Send him home to get dry!"
"No, indade," said the boy—"that's not w'at I meant;
I doant want yer money; I want that one cent
From the man in the warr'm fur coat an' hat,
Who could shteel a cent from a gurrul like that!
Af iver he thries that game agin,
He'd betther take me, and not Margery Flynn!"
Then cheer on cheer for little Jerry
Rang across the Fulton Ferry.

Long ago, my youthful readers,
Happened this that I have told;
Long ago that sturdy newsboy
All his daily papers sold.
And the pluck that dared a ducking
To set right a weak one's wrong
Served him well in every struggle;
And his life, both kind and strong,
Is a blessing and a comfort
To a world of needy boys
Who, like him, must work in play-time
With boot-brushes for their toys.
But around the Fulton Ferry,
Still the newsboys talk of Jerry.

—Mary Lowe Dickinson, in St. Nicholas.

THE LITTLE VISITORS.

It was such a cold day that the people in the streets, hurried by, muffled up almost to the tips of their noses, while the window-panes were covered with frost fern leaves and branches of coral, that were very pretty to look at if they had not looked so cold; and no one who could help it cared about going out.

Three little people, however, took this dreadful day to go a-visiting. They did not go very far, to be sure—only to Cousin Nellie's room; and when Cousin Nellie, who was busy writing a story for little readers, which she often did, heard a slow pattering down the stairs, and then a whispering and laughing, and finally a loud knocking on her door, that was kept up until the visitors fairly got into the room, she wondered a little what was coming now.

But she was used to funny things, for she had two little cousins and a small neighbor next door, who played with them a great deal, and Cousin Nellie was not very much surprised even to hear a sort of bark, that seemed to be suddenly stopped. Then there was a little barking in a whisper—for Billy, the dog, always felt that he ought to bark whenever there was anything going on, and he was quite sure that there was something going on now.

When Cousin Nellie said: "Come in," the door opened suddenly, and in tumbled Billy, the first thing, with one of the boy's caps on his head. He looked absurd enough, but he was supposed to be a gentleman who had come with the three ladies. They introduced him as "Mr. Bill," but with one shake he knocked the cap off his head, and picking out the warmest place (as he always did), instead of attending to the ladies, he settled himself down behind Cousin Nellie's stove and went fast asleep.

"Why Mrs. Brown," said the lady of the house (that was Cousin Nellie, you know), as she saw Clara's bright eyes peeping out from under her mother's black lace veil, while the velvet sacque fairly reached her feet, "I am very glad to see you—do walk in. And this is Mrs. Smith, isn't it? So kind of you, Mrs. Smith, to come out on such a day as this."

"Mrs. Smith" was Mamie Rade, the little girl next door, who was a gentle little thing, with great blue eyes and cheeks like damask roses. She was bundled up so in a big shawl that she could scarcely move; and she had on a large bonnet with a great bunch of flowers in it.

But the funniest figure of all was little roly-poly Alice, who was nearly as broad as she was long, whose dress trailed so that she nearly tumbled at every step; and she carried grandmamma's muff, that was nearly as large as herself. When Cousin Nellie called her "Mrs. Biscuits," and gave her the rocking-chair, she was very much delighted—it made her feel quite as though she was a grown-up lady going out visiting.

"We have brought all our children," said Mrs. Brown, who thought that she ought to say something; and she displayed her largest doll, "Flora Matilda," closely muffled up.

Mrs. Smith seemed to have a pair of twins in her arms; and little Mrs. Biscuits held out an unfortunate infant with only one foot and no hands to speak of.

"The darlings," exclaimed the lady of the house, as though she were very much delighted to see them, "but are you not rather afraid to have them go out such cold weather as this?"

"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Brown, "we thought it would do them good, for they all have the small-pox and scarlet fever."

"But that is very wrong," said the lady of the house, "for such things, you know, are catching, and I am really afraid to have them here."

Mrs. Brown looked as though she did not care in the least; and Mrs. Smith said in her gentle way:

"They ain't very sick, I guess, and may be they'll keep it all themselves. They cried to come, and we had to bring 'em."

The lady of the house shook her head at this, as she replied.

"That is not beginning right, Mrs. Smith—you will spoil your children. When I was a child I never got anything I cried for."

"May be you didn't cry very loud," said Mrs. Biscuits, who was pretty good at this herself; and then forgetting the play she added, as though she had just thought of it: "I never heard you cry at all, Cousin Nellie."

This made Cousin Nellie laugh; and then they all laughed at Mrs. Biscuits; and poor little Mrs. Biscuits began to cry quite in earnest; and then Cousin Nellie had to take her on her lap, dolly, muff and all—until, finally, she got quiet again.

Then the lady of the house thought of offering her visitors refreshments—a rosy-cheeked apple and an orange for each: and after awhile they all said they must go. Cousin Nellie picked up Mrs. Biscuits and carried her to the door; and Mrs. Brown, who wished to be very polite, said:

"I am very happy to wish you good morning."—Ella Rodman Church, in Churchman.

The Bug With a Mask.

There is a funny little creature that wears a covering all over his face just like a mask. And what do you think it is for? Let us see.

Perhaps you have seen the beautiful dragon-flies that look so much like humming-birds and butterflies, too. They have broad wings, as thin as a fly's, that glitter like glass in the sunshine. Their backs are just like blue steel.

You will always find them in the hot summer months flying through the fields, or over ponds and rivers. In the country they are called "devil's darning-needles," because they are so slender, perhaps. The French people call them "demoiselles," which means ladies.

Now, this handsome, swift creature grows from an ugly bug, that crawls over the mud at the bottom of the pond. And this is the way it comes about:

Little white eggs are laid on the water, the ripples carry them far away, and then they sink into the mud.

The warm sun hatches them, and from each egg creeps a tiny grub of a greenish color. They are hungry creatures, with very bad hearts. They eat up every little insect that comes in their way. They are very sly, too. They creep towards their prey as a cat does when she is in search of a rat.

They lift their small hairy legs, as if they were to do the work. It is not the legs, but the head that does it. Suddenly it seems to open, and down drops a kind of visor with joints and hinges.

This strange thing is stretched out until it swings from the chin. Quick as a flash some insect is caught in the trap and eaten.

This queer trap, or mask, is the under lip of the grub. Instead of being flesh like ours, it is hard and horny, and large enough to cover the whole face.

It has teeth and muscles, and the grub uses it as a weapon, too.

It is nearly a year before this ugly-looking grub gets its wings. A little while after it is hatched, four tiny buds sprout from its shoulders, just as you see them on the branch of a tree. These are really only watery sacs at first. Inside of them the wings grow slowly until you can see the bright colors shining through.

Some morning this hairy-legged little bug creeps up a branch. Then he shakes out his wings and flies away into the air, a slender, beautiful dragon-fly.

I have told you of the only creature in the world that wears this curious mask.—Mrs. G. Hall, in Our Little Ones.

Johnny's Tears.

Johnny had a great trial. He was sitting on the floor, looking over his pictures, and baby toddled up and tore one right across, one of the very prettiest. Johnny called out: "O mamma, see!" and began to cry.

"Johnny," said mamma, as she took baby away, "did you know that tears are salt water?"

Johnny checked a sob and looked up.

"No," he said, with great interest, "are they? How did you find out, mamma?"

"Oh, somebody told me so when I was a little girl, and I tried a tear and found it was true."

"Real salt water," asked Johnny.

"Yes, try and see."

Johnny would very gladly have tried if he could only have found a tear. But by that time there was not one left, and his eyes were so clear and bright it was no use hoping for any more that time. He looked at the torn picture, but it did not make him feel bad any more. All [illegible] think of was whether tears tasted like salt water.

"Next time I cry I will find out!" he determined.

That very afternoon while climbing over the top of the rocking-chair he fell and got a bump. It was too much for any little boy, and too much for Johnny, and he was just beginning to cry loudly when he happened to think what a good chance this was going to be to catch some tears. He put up his finger too quick, in fact, for there had not a tear come yet worth mentioning, and now that his thoughts had wandered from the bump, he could not seem to cry about it any more. So that chance was lost.

"I can't get a single tear to taste of, mamma!" he said, ruefully.—Sunshine.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. FEB. 21, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	1 "	40
¼ "	1 "	30
"	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c. $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

TO-MORROW is Washington's birth day.

OWEN county is troubled with corn thieves.

THE flood respects neither saint nor sinner.

THE damage along all the water courses in this State has been very heavy.

THE Yeoman says the flood took a good deal of Kentucky whisky out of bond.

LOOK out for impostors now—persons representing themselves as flood sufferers.

THE hanging of Ellis by the mob, did not weaken the prosecution of Neal and Craft in the least.

ON account of the alternate floods and drouths the European wheat crops are said to be poor.

THE proposition to have races at the Lexington Fair is causing much bad blood to rise in the society.

GEO. O. BARNES, the mountain evangelist, leaves for Europe to day. He says that he is going around the world.

ON the question of sheriff and representative the people of the county seem to have nothing to say. "Still water runs deep."

G. ALLISON HOLLAND, a son of the editor of the Constitutionalist, has gone to Chattanooga to engage in the practice of law.

SOMEBODY wanted to flatter Gen. Preston, of Lexington, and have mentioned his name in connection with the office of Governor.

FOR Pardoning the demi-monde, of Lexington, before trial under the indictments against them, Gov. Blackburn is getting his usual scouring.

THE Neal and Craft trial is costing the State between $2,500 and $3,000 a day. Worse than running the law making machine of the State.

ONE of the jurors in the Craft trial took pneumonia and was discharged after the jury was sworn. Another juror was put on and the trial progressed.

HEBRON and Bullettsville, last week, received their mail from Erlanger, the carrier coming out that way on the train to avoid the water that had taken possession of the river pike.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 00@7 25; fair to good packers, at $6 75@7 00; fair to good light, $6 55@6 90; common, $5 75@6 45; culls, $4 50@5 65; stock hogs, $5 00@6 25.

THE shafts in a large coal mine in Illinois filled with water one day last week and about sixty miners lost their lives. The labor of pumping the water out of the mine has commenced and the bodies will be recovered.

GEO. S. LEE, editor and proprietor of the Owen News, anticipates leaving for the northwest next month. The News seems to flourish under his management, but he wants to sniff the western breezes. Success to you, George.

IN Tennessee when a defaulting officer makes good to the State the amount for which he defaults he is released from all liability, and Polk's friends are trying to make up the amount for which he defaulted, and have him released.

The Ashland Independent says that Boyd county is one of the most law abiding counties in the State, and that any other county would have hung Neal and Craft in an hour after they perpetrated the awful crime for which they are to be tried.

A batch of 150 indictments have been stolen from the office of the Circuit Clerk in Carter county. Many of the indictments were against liquor sellers, and measures have been taken to bring forward new evidence to return new indictments at the next term of the Circuit Court.

THE Lexington Transcript is out of humor because several enterprises that were expected to come to Lexington have failed to put in an appearance, and lays the blame at the doors of property owners, who increased rents and the price of real estate to such an extent as to scare them off.

ON the 13th inst., there were 2,000,000 bushels less corn in Chicago than there were a year ago and 1,000,000 bushels less than two years ago. The stock of wheat at that date was 1,800,000 bushels greater than same day last year, but a couple of million bushels less than in February 1881 and 1880.

THERE is much fear that the inundated cities and towns along the Ohio will be visited by pestilence this summer, and the press is urging a thorough cleaning of the houses and cellars that were invaded by the water. A great many of the poor class will be compelled to occupy their houses before they are in a proper condition, and pneumonia and fevers will be the result.

ON Tuesday of last week at Greenup school-house, which is taught by Mr. Mitchell, of Carroll, a difficulty took place between him and a pupil named Frank Jones. It seems that when a class was called the scholars were laughing, and when asked the cause, they laid it on Jones. The teacher told Jones to go home, and while he was getting his books the teacher hit him with a chair, whereupon they clinched and Jones got out his knife and stabbed Mitchell three times in the head. Mitchell was not seriously injured. His school was not closed.—Owen News.

THE Silver Question is not likely to receive much attention during the present session of Congress, but in the next it is certain to assume very large dimensions. First of all a determined effort will be made to have the trade dollar entirely withdrawn from circulation. There is a quiet but none the less effective and steady agitation going on against it in the Mercantile Exchanges and other centres of commercial life. It was intended for the Chinese, Japanese and South American trade, but somehow it would never go there but remain at home where it was not a dollar but a great deal less.

GOV. BLACKBURN rushed down to Lexington and pardoned thirteen keepers of houses of the demi-monde, as soon as indictments were returned against them. We have not heard of his rushing to Catlettsburg to pardon the women and children of that town, said to be indicted for raffling silk quilts for the benefit of churches nor yet of his pardoning two of the best men in Catlettsburg and Ashland, who delivered to subscribers their Cincinnati and Louisville dailies on Sunday morning. Oh, no! you live in Boyd, and are without the pale of mercy, and your crimes are not hideous enough to admit you within the Governor's charmed circle.—Ashland Independent.

THE Louisville C.-J's Washington correspondent says: "It will be seen that Mr. Beck is a member of the Finance Committee of the Senate and Mr. Carlisle the Ways and Means Committee of the House. They are both leaders of their party in their respective houses. This is the first time Kentucky has enjoyed such distinction. Mr. Blackburn is also a member of the Appropriation Committee and Mr. Knott of the Judiciary Committee. Thus it will be noticed that in the four great committees of Congress Kentucky has a representative. And the good of it is the grand old Commonwealth is represented by men of brains, force and ability. A distinguished democrat remarked in conversation with some gentleman a few nights since, that Kentucky was the strongest and best represented State in Congress. He was right."

ALL day yesterday the water was rapidly receding, and as it moves from the face of the unfortunate city the terrible ruin it wrought becomes more appalling in appearance, increasing the discouragement that dampens the spirits of the despoiled and suffering people; and, as hundreds of the homes that have been ruined belonged to the laboring class who are indebted more or less to building associations for the property they possessed, the amount in many instances necessary to repair or restore their wrecked homes will be more than they can afford or procure, and they will abandon all efforts unless given financial assistance. Crowds of people from the country were pouring in all day yesterday to view the submerged and desolated districts.—Lawrenceburg (Ind.) item Monday's Enquirer.

RICHARD WAGNER, the eminent composer, died at Venice on the 13th inst., aged seventy years.

THERE are now 115,000 miles of railroad in the United States, which have cost, with the equipments, more than $5,000,000,000. In 1881, 1,500,000 persons were employed in operating and constructing these roads, this number being almost equal to a seventh part of the male population of the United States. During the same year the roads paid out $450,000,000 for wages and material.

THE pardon report of Governor Blackburn is now printed and in a short time will be given to the public. The advance sheet shows the following: Total pardons issued in eighteen months, 845 under the following heads: Murder, 29; manslaughter, 35; rape, 17; attempted rape, 1; arson, 7; felony, 24; kukluxing, 396; malicious wounding, 17; concealed weapons, 9; gaming, 18; detaining women, 3; grand larceny, 78; incest, 1; house-breaking, 84; buggery, 2; horse-stealing, 20; miscellaneous, 154.

AT last we can have the electric light where it can do the most good. That is to say we can put it now on our desks, on our tables, on our mantle-pieces, anywhere in fact where a clear, bright, safe lighter is wanted. The portable electric lighter, patented in 1879 and again in 1882, is now before us, and we look at it with surprise and happiness. Surprise, because it is evident how great a progress we have made in the science of electricity; happiness because it gives us a clearer, better more moveable light than any we have ever enjoyed.—Here is a lamp, so called, occupying only the space of five square inches, which can be carried anywhere, and is besides an ornament. By symply pressing upon the knob to the full extent of the spring, (which connects with the battery,) an electric current is produced by which the spiral of platinum is heated to incadescence and the light is instantaneous. The material lasts about two months and then can be renewed at a small cost through any chemist. It will not be long before everybody will have a portable electric lighter. The price, $5, is so low that it cannot fail to become popular at once. The principal office is at 22 Water Street, Boston, where all applications for this most novel lamp should be sent.—New York Real Estate Chronicle.

STATE NEWS.

—Whooping cough prevails to an alarming extent in and about Cewenton.

—It costs the State about $350,000 a year to run her three lunatic asylums.

—Bath county last year raised 5,000 hogshead of tobacco, valued at $500,000.

—Warren county is trying to collect back taxes on property worth $2,000,000.

—The immense quarries near High Bridge, are furnishing rock to build a bridge in Louisiana.

—R. D. Lusk, aged eighty years, the oldest member of the Lancaster bar, died last Sunday.

—A Woodford county farmer fed tobacco stems to his hogs, and he is of the opinion that it prevented them from having cholera.

—J. A. Motch, of Nelson county, has sold 800 pounds of butter during the past ten months, made from the milk given by three cows.

—S. S. Hamilton, late sheriff of Jefferson county, paid into the Treasury $88,000 on revenue of 1882, the largest payment ever made at one time by any sheriff.

There never was such a demand for cattle, and such a scarcity as now. They sell at from three and a half to four and a half cents, and are hard to buy even at that price.—Henderson Sentinel.

—A man calling himself Rev. Cary Brown, who has been traveling through Kentucky representing himself to be a Baptist preacher, and telling a most deplorable tale of the distress of himself and family in Kansas, and soliciting aid, is pronounced a first-class fraud.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—Mississippi lost $500,000 on her last cotton crop.

—The river at Alastia, La., is only five feet from the top of the levee.

—A student from Brazil has recently entered the University of Virginia.

—Some workmen digging near Augusta, Georgia, found a well of salt water.

—An oak tree 128 years old has just been reduced to cordwood at Americus, Georgia.

—It is the fashion in Georgia to wear a rabbit's foot attached to the watch chain.

—The Gordon monument in Wright Square Savannah, has been completed.

—The most promising necessity of Shelby county, Tennessee, is good county roads.

—The warehouses at Danville, Va. are crowded with leaf tobacco, which is selling high.

—Thousands of acres of public land are changing hands in Texas at fifty cents an acre.

—There is a boarding-house in Spartanburg, S. C., which is turning off 43,920 biscuits a year.

—The Lynchburg, Va., Council has voted an appropriation of $17,000 for a colored school building.

—An Athens, Ga., dog hunts hen's nests and carries four eggs in his mouth at a time without breaking them.

—Raleigh, N. C., comes to the front with a young sixteen year old, and six feet seven and a quarter inches high.

—The First National Bank of Columbus, Miss., is now in operation. It is the only national bank in the State.

—Farmers in Lake county, Tenn., are offering $1 25 per one hundred for picking cotton, and can not get hands.

—Alfred Kenney the richest negro in Athens, Ga., is dead. He had houses and money at interest, all of which he made by cutting up wood in Athens.

—James A. Everett, a wealthy citizen of Huston county, Ga., gave Wesleyan Female College $10,000, receiving in return four perpetual scholarships, entitling to board and tuition.

—Reports from the country around Corsicana, Texas, show heavy losses in stock from the cold. Thousands of sheep are reported frozen, and more will likely follow, as the weather still continues very cold.

—The Standard Packing Company a New York enterprise, has leased 100 acres of land on Padra Island, Tex, and are getting a building and machinery thereon. They expect inside of three weeks to commence canning fish, turtle, etc.

—A report from Columbia, Texas, says: The intense cold weather of the past few days has caused the death of a great many cattle in this section, and cow-skins are the order of the day. Quite a number of the boys are out looking up dead cows.

—A Macon, (Ga.,) negro was given four dollars to buy a coffin for a negro woman. He spent $2 50 for a pair of boots and the balance for whisky. He then made piteous appeals to the County Commissioners that the deceased was a pauper, and got an order for a coffin.

—A Georgia negro who was being taken to jail asked permission to light his pipe, which was given, and stepping behind a pine tree he broke for liberty. The officer emptied his pistol at the retreating criminal, saw him fall twice and thinks he was seriously wounded. Nothing has been heard of him since his escape.

—Information has been received from Bandera county, Tex., showing that 500 out of one flock of 2,000 sheep had died and 200 out of a flock of 1,200 have been killed by cold. The loss of sheep through cold will average from fifteen to twenty per cent. At one firm's ranche they have lost 400 sheep out of a flock of 6,000.

—On the road between Mobile and Montgomery the Boston merchants held a meeting to decide in what way they could show their appreciation for the kindness shown them by the Continental Guards while in New Orleans. A subscription of $175 was raised to purchase a gift to be decided on on their arrival in Boston.

—On Thursday Wm. M. Whitefield, living on Lookout Mountain, 4 miles from Gad's Den, died suddenly He was on his return home with his wagon loaded with oats. The team balked going up a hill. He was on the ground assisting the driver in getting the team started, when he staggered back and fell against a tree, sank to the ground and died.

—Georgia comes to the front with the champion crank, in the person of a young woman who has never spoken to her father. She converses with her mother, and her brothers as long as they remain single, but as soon as one of them marries he is a "heathen Chinee," and she never speaks to him again. If she is in conversation with her mother, and her father and a stranger approaches she becomes as dumb as an oyster. No explanation is given of this strange conduct, and she declines to give any reason for it.

1883

THE CINCINNATI NEWS

A DAILY

Democratic Newspaper.

Is published to subscribers at the following RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

By mail postage paid.

Daily and Sunday edition, 1 year	$7
Daily and Sunday edition, 6 months	4
Daily and Sunday edition, 3 months	2

All Subscriptions Invariably in Advance

An extra copy of the paper will be mailed FREE for one year to any person who will raise a club of ten annual subscribers at one postoffice, and forward their names and addresses, together with $60.

BY CARRIER.

Daily and Sunday edition, 15 cents per week, or 65 cents per month, payable to Carrier.

PRICE BY SINGLE COPY.

Daily edition 2c Sunday (double size) 3c

Agents, Carriers, Newsdealers, Newsboys, or any one handling THE NEWS, are required to sell the paper in conformity with the above rates. Address

THE NEWS, Cincinnati, O.

Winding Up the Clock.

When the Weary Wheels Were Almost Still, A Luck Accident Reveals the Lost Key.

"How long did you say you had it?"

"Twenty-five years."

"What! a bad cough, with occasional attacks of hemorage, for twenty-five years? Why, man it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds left of you."

Abraham Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin County Pa., stuck to his statement, and when the exclamations of wonder ceased, he added:

"Exactly. You're right. It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is that, before I actually choughed myself out of existence, I got hold of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and a few bottles of it cured me."

"Cured you? Relieved you, you mean?"

"I mean what I say; it cured me," said Mr. Orner, simply. "I feel like another man."

Please take especial notice: PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is not a mere essence of ginger; not a mere stomachic. The ordinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transient aches, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Tonic covers a far wider and totally different field. It attacks and dissipates radical and chronic diseases of the Lungs, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as delicious to the palate as it is prompt and effective in operation. Ginger is only one among many powerful curatives which the TONIC holds in combination. Test its virtues for that cough of yours, or for any ills which require an invigorant for the whole system.

And, above all, do not permit yourself to be misled. Parker's Ginger Tonic stands alone. Nothing else is "just as good." Prices 50 cents and $1. Economy in buying the larger size. Hiscox & Co., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,

BURLINGTON, KY.

HARNESS MAKER

—AND—

DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

☞ Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to

GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

NOTICE.

The public generally and all persons, especially merchants, are hereby notified that my wife Nannie V. Kelly, did, on the 7th day of February, 1883, leave my house and abandon me and my children, without just cause, and that I will not pay or be responsible for any of her acts or debts hereafter made or contracted by her.

This Feb., 9th '83. W. B. KELLY.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county, Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSRS. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS

—Best Purgative Medicine—

cure Constipation, Indigestion, Headache, and all Bilious Disorders.

Sold everywhere. Always reliable.

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,

COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all people should there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Maison, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES.)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE.

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

540 MADISON STREET,

COVINGTON, - - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S

Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.

Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

☞ AGENTS WANTED. ☜

TRADE MARK.

Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines

OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

1 to 100 Horse Power.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.

B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the

CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (LIMITED.)

No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.

2 to 100 Horse Power.

Established 1840

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N. Y.

FLORESTON COLOGNE

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW

Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors procured, Land Warrants bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

Sympathy never satisfied hunger.

Water-gap architects are in demand.

Jerry Tanner is the happiest man in the county—its a girl.

Everybody rejoiced when the river commenced receding.

All hands and the cook went to see the big river last week.

Fish, ducks and geese have had a royal time the past month.

The school commissioner was on the alert last week visiting schools.

Small grain sowed on ground which grew tobacco last year looks well.

It is said that cholera follows floods. Guess it depends on circumstances.

One day last week Mr. Reese Neal had a horse to fall and break its leg.

Spring put in its appearance last Thursday. The flies were on the wing.

In some places the turnpikes look like the moles had been at work under them.

We have often wished that we lived in Lawrenceburg or Aurora, and now we don't.

As an after-dinner pill, to promote easy digestion, Ayer's Pills are wonderfully effective.

On the question of floods in the Ohio, "the oldest inhabitant" will now please take a back seat.

This office is under obligations to Mr. John Hicks, of Hebron, for favors extended last week.

The birds were singing last Friday as though they verily believed spring had once more returned.

This is a progressive age. Hence the necessity of having a bigger flood than either that of '32 or '47.

Pink Rice was on the dock with mumps last week. Of course he don't know where he got them.

Elder F. Vorter remained over night in Burlington last Wednesday night, on his way home from a Kentucky trip.

Several persons from Lawrenceburg are being entertained by friends in Bellevue and vicinity during the flood.

Newt Sullivan delivered his $12 tobacco last week. F. P. Walton bought his crop at that price while it was growing.

The cemetery at Lawrenceburg, was under water last week, and a corpse was taken to Petersburg and put in the vault.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

Last week the commissioners, under an order of the Boone County Court, divided Elmediah Yager's dower among the heirs entitled.

Rev. J. D. H. Corwin passed through town Friday, enroute home from Rising Sun, where he had been water bound for several days.

J. C. Terrill did a hard night's work on the night of the 14th inst., to keep his large tobacco barn on Garrison from going off with the flood.

The families occupying the houses on the river bank above and below the mouth of Garrison were driven to the the hills for safety. The water was up to the roof on several of these houses.

Charlie Hughes like to had some of John Carpenter's experience in crossing the creek the other morning. He escaped with a slight wound in the hand.

Mr. J. K. Armstrong, who has been clerking at the Central Hotel for some time has gone back to Covington, and Johnny Burke has been promoted to clerk there.

This week our readers will find our local items in handsome new type, which will be easily read. We strive to make improvements in favor of our patrons all the time.

Tom Cowen and Harry Blythe formed a partnership and embarked in the huckster business last week. The partnership to expire upon the first decline in the price of eggs.

The high water cut off all communication between Hebron and the city last week. Something that has not occurred within the recollection of the —guess the balance.

Some of the farmers are having good luck with young lambs while others are having bad luck with both lambs and old sheep. Some flocks of old sheep are apparently diseased.

There was too much water in the Ohio for navigation last week. The boats could make no landings. Only steamers assisting the sufferers from the flood were plying the stream.

The river bottoms will receive a heavy deposit of sediment, which will be of great benefit to the land, but will not in the least compensate for the extreme ravages of the flood which produced it.

Burglars made another raid on Mike Clore's drug-store in Hebron one night last week. Mike's store is robbed, on an average, once a month. It would save him the cost of repairs if he would leave his door unlocked at night.

We raise tobacco and then have to send a part of the profits away from home to pay for hogsheads to put it in. —Georgetown Times.

We buy the stives and hoops, and make our own hogsheads.

On account of the high water, last week, the RECORDERS for Union, Bellevue, Petersburg, Bullettsville and Hebron, were sent out by private persons, to all whom we are under many obligations.

MARRIED—On the 14th inst., at the residence of the bride's parents, near Florence, by the Rev. A. J. Douglas, Miss Ary Tanner, daughter of E. K. Tanner and wife, to Mr. C. A. Rivers, of Cincinnati.

Last Friday Mrs. Lucy Lightner's little boy found and ate a small piece of Bichromate of Patassium causing the little fellow to come near losing his life. An antidote was promptly given which soon relieved him.

The diary fever is breaking out among the young men of the town, and several of them are assiduously keeping a record of each day's events which will be very interesting to them years hence when they wish to see how high the Ohio was in 1883.

Last Sunday about noon, Mr. R. C. Green, was stricken with paralysis which effected his speech and the use of his right side. He is under the treatment of Dr. J. M. Grant, and his friends hope to see him about again in a few days.

Friday night Mr. Dicken commenced meeting here and continued over Sunday. There were six additions, to wit: Miss Ella Duncan, Miss Passons, Miss Graham, Mr. Graham, Jas. Rucker and Joseph Hodge. They all made confessions during Bro. Dunlap's meeting.

The water courses in this section look remarkably clear of decaying substances that sometimes line their shores and bread disease. Probably the health of those who reside on creeks will be benefitted by the high waters with which they have been annoyed this winter.

Dunlap and Sidman, Evangelists, arrived here Monday night and commenced series at the Court House. They are prepared to furnish good music. We are not going to tell you what the preacher said Monday night, so you need'nt ask us, but come out and hear for yourselves.—Williamstown Courier.

Mr. John L. Conner and family, who have been boarding at the Central Hotel all winter, left last week to make arrangements for taking charge of Mr. Conner's business stand at Erlanger the first of next month. May success attend Mr. Conner is the wish of his many friends here.

Some think that the prophecy as to the coming wheat crop may be wrong, because they say that although the ground now looks bare, the germ may lie beneath the surface and in a healthy condition, awaiting the warm sun of spring time to develop it into a luxurient growth. May it be the case.

There does not seem so great a desire on the part of the masses to raise large crops of tobacco as has been talked of about this time for three or four years. In February 1881 and 1882 everybody was begging all the tobacco seed they could, but now they are an article that is not asked for. Meybe every fellow has a bushel or so.

The following shows the height of the Ohio during six floods, that of 1883 being the highest by 2 ft. 1 in.

Year.	Month.	Date.	Ft.	In
1832	February,	18,	64	3
1847	December,	17,	63	7
1880	February,	17,	53	2
1881	February,	16,	50	7
1882	February,	21,	58	7
1883	February,	15,	66	4

Some sheep raisers were discussing the lamb question the other day, and they all agreed that late lambs were preferable, because a greater number could be saved from the first of April on, and that a better growth of wool would be taken from the ewes. What the lambs failed to bring in price they considered fully compensated by the advantages above enumerated.

The actual loss of property in Covington by the flood has not been very great. While a good many people have been put to inconvenience and some forced to seek safety in upper rooms, not many have been driven from their homes. The suffering in Covington sinks into insignificance when compared with that experienced in Newport and Cincinnati.—Commonwealth.

The nicest sample of tobacco we have seen this winter was that of the crop sold by Perry Weaver, last week, to F. P. Walton. Three classes of tobacco were represented by the sample, the leaves in the hands of which presented a uniformity of length and color that is seldom the result of the handling by the raiser. It surely pays the raiser to handle with as much care as Mr. Weaver has taken with his crop. The hands were small and neatly bound.

Do the city papers give you home news? Do they contain notices of your schools, churches, meetings, improvements, and hundreds of other things of interest which the local papers publishes with out pay? Do they say a word calculated to draw attention to your to[illegible] in the progress and enterprise of your immediate vicinity. Answer these questions, and then determine for yourself whether the city or local paper is deserving of your support first of all.

The high water cleaned Rabbit Hash out. The building in which Pate had his store was swept away and wrecked after he had moved his stock of goods to Rising Sun. Dr. Cowen's office was taken off the foundation and carried some distance and is now lying in the road. Wm. Nelson's residence was left but his out buildings are all gone. A portion of the old ferry house was carried off. The town presents a desolate appearance the ferry right being about the only thing left. The water invaded several residences below the town.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Mrs. Rucker was quite sick a few days last week.

Dr. L. H. Terrill, of Hebron, was in town Friday.

Mrs. Gullion left for her home at Eagle Station, Monday.

Mrs. A. Thompson has been quite sick for several days.

We have a drug-store in Petersburg, is the remark, now.

Miss Susie Kyle, of Kenton county is visiting in Burlington.

Miss Lottie Reed, of Covington, is visiting her sister Mrs. F. A Hall.

Logan Tanner, of Milan, Indiana, is visiting his relatives in this county.

Shelby Rich, of Kenton county, was among the visitors to our town last week.

Albert M. Acra's new building, with a few more days of good weather would materialize.

Theodore Rouse and J. C. Hankins were in town Friday, on business in the real estate line.

Miss Dora Rich, of Kenton county, was visiting her sister, Mrs. W. F. McKim, last week.

Mr. Bart Burton, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Mr. McCullogh, of Westport Indiana, were visiting friends in the Hebron neighborhood, last week.

It is to be hoped that the Mississippi will not go beyond its past record as to high water to the same extent that the Ohio did.

Mr. Palmer made a couple of trips to Lawrenceburg, last week, taking with him each time a lot of provisions for the sufferers.

No papers were published in Aurora or Lawrenceburg last week. The editors and attaches were too busy rendering aid to those in distress.

When in Petersburg, call and see me whether you need anything in the drug line or not. I am in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Bradly for a grocery. Call and see me. S. C. BUCHANAN.

Several weeks ago a horse was stolen from Jas. Rogers who lives near Union. A reward of $200 was offered by the citizens of Union for the capture of the horse and thief. The detective who was working the case found the trail of the horse at Nicholasville, this State, from where it was shipped to Atlanta and from there to North Carolina, where he found it. Black Clarkson was suspicioned and a letter to him, implicating another party living in this county, was intercepted at Nicholasville. Clarkson was promptly arrested, and so soon as the horse is indentified by Rogers, he will be lodged in jail at this place. Black says that he can prove that he bought the horse. It is to be hoped that he will be able to show a bona fide purchase.

Died.

SPRAGUE—At her home in Taylorport, on the 17th inst., of consumption. Miss Mollie Sprague. Her remains were placed in the Hebron vault to await interment.

PACE—On the 19th inst., at 7:25 p. m. in Burlington, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. L. Riddell, Mrs. Nancy Pace, in the 67th year of her age.

Mrs. Pace was the daughter of Gen. Joseph and Mary Kennedy, and was born in 1816 where Fort Mitchell in Kenton County (then Campbell) now stands; spending all her life, except a few months, within the immediate vicinity of her birth-place. By her exemplary life she made devoted friends of all those with whom she became acquainted, and many hearts are saddened by her death. Her funeral will be preached at the Dry Creek Baptist Church to-day at 11 a. m., after which the remains will be placed in the Linden Grove Cemetery vault in Covington to await final interment.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

North Bend.

This part of Boone county suffered severely from the flood. The whole face of the country was under water, and destruction threatened everything perishable The water reached a height never before witnessed by our oldest citizens.

The loss of property on the Chambers farm was heavy. About 600 bushels of corn was washed off, 1,000 bushels of potatoes were carried down the raging stream, while a large quantity of fodder was destroyed.

The farms of J. Baisly, Owen Kirtley and W. H Harrison, suffered severely.

June Baisly and wife held the fort by occupying the second story, but at one time it looked like they would have to vacate to make room for the unruly element. June is evidently a man who likes to stay at home.

Mr. Clinton Gaines and family were driven to the second story in Mr. Owen Kirtley's house. To save Mrs. Gaines' fine piano required considerable labor. The instrument was placed on tall trestles on the first floor where it was thought the water would not reach it, and when it became necessary to move it, it could be done only by cutting a hole through the second floor through which it was lifted to a place of safety, but not until the water had made its appearance in the instrument, which will probably injure it some

This thing of having the whole country under water is a serious matter, and we all unite in the prayor that it may never occur again.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property passed down as drift, and some of the drifters along the river have caught large quantites of valuable lumber, etc.

Everything from a chicken coop to a residence (not a stone - front) has floated down the river since it has been on the rampage.

Our citizens are reconciled by the old thought that their loss is not so bad but that it might have been worse.

Hebron.

There is a large number of logs lying at the mill here, but they are frozen too much to saw.

Samuel Hoshall is confined to his bed with typhoid fever.

The public school closed last Friday.

At the recent election T, A. Crigler, John Crigler and W. N. Cloud were elected trustees for the Hebron Academy.

Miss A la Wilhoit has been employed to teach the school there.

The mail has not reached this office for the past ten days on account of the backwater being over the pike at Constance and Bromley.

Henry Quick says that during the flood he saw a cistern floating down the river, bottom side upward and full of water.

[Henry is entitled to the whole bakery—EDS]

Some sneak-thief has again broken into Mike Clore's drug-store. This makes about eight times they have broken into that store in the last year, and each time goods and money amounting from $10 to $25 have been taken.

David Beall has bought Jno, M. Hoshall's half interest in the saw-mill at this place.

Master Hubert Popham if clerking for the firm of Clayton & Conner, at this place

Petersburg.

Miss Nannie Lodge, of Cincinnati, is visiting friends here during the high water.

Mr. T. H. Green, who has been sick for the past three months, is not any better.

Mrs. Maria M. Terrill entertained her Sunday-school class, last Monday night, with—I-scream and cake.

Boone Division, No. 15, Sons of Temperance, will give a social at their hall, on Thursday evening, March 8th, 1883.

School closed here last Thursday, and Prof. Bruce and his scholars are now preparing for an exhibition which will take place in about a week.

Only two mails received here last week, on account of the high water.

Misses Lu Hall, Lillie Clament, Carrie Rabb, Hattie Thompson, and Mr. Clarence McWethy, of Rising Sun, Ind., took in Petersburg, Saturday.

Mrs. Jane Jackson died February 11th, of old age, at the residence of I. N. Gordon. The remains were interred in the cemetery at this place, last Thursday at 2 o'clock p. m.

The water came to a stand here Thursday, being 8 feet higher than it was last February, and 2 feet higher than it was during the memorable flood of 1832 The high water did no great damage here, but Lawrenceburg, Aurora and other towns along the river, have been almost swept away. The people of Lawrenceburg had to leave their houses. The public buildings were all full, and many persons left the town. Provisions, by the barrel, were sent from here to feed those in need. Fitches' saw mill and several other houses that were carried off, lodged in Tanner's creek.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.
Grant, Boone county, Ky.

Whereas, since the death of James H. Akin, there has been reports sprung up that we, the undersigned, heirs of said deceased, J. H. Akin, was going to contest the title of T. H. Sutton's real estate formerly owned by said J. H. Akin, deceased; and, whereas, we believe said reports was gotten up through wilful malice to the injury of all parties interested therein; and whereas, in justice to T. H. Sutton and ourselves, we declare and affirm that we have no such intentions whatever. But, on the contrary, we believe said title to be good and perfect as any in Boone county, Ky

In witness whereof we set our hands and seals, this 19th of February, 1883.

Attest: J. R. Akin, seal.
James Rush. J. H. Williamson, seal.
Susan E. Williamson, seal.

I hope that the above will be sufficient to quiet those in my neighborhood, who have of late indulged in slandering, or in attempting to slander the title to the tract of land I own near Bellevue, which I purchased of Theodore Cook. If this is not sufficient, then I shall prosecute to the extent of the law those who may hereafter choose to indulge their propensity at lying, by further slandering my title to said land.

T. H. SUTTON.

TAKEN UP.

Taken up as a stray by Ephraim Helm, living on the Anderson Ferry and Minneola turnpike road about 1 mile from Anderson Ferry, in Boone county, on or about the 8th day of September, 1882, one red and white spotted cow with underbit mark on the right ear, and right horn drooped, but having no other brands or marks. Which I have appraised at $15.

Witness my hand this 3d day of January 1883. JOSEPH WAGSTAFF, J. P. B. C.

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, posessing facilties for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vasts quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for speaimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR
DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER
will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undeniably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES
One copy, one year $1 15
One copy, six months 65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,
Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

GREEN & RIDDELL.
ATTORNEYS at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office next door to Recorder Office. 8-tf

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES.
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared far. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY.

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS,
201 York street Jersey City, N. J.
Mention this paper. jan 17-83

FREE 33 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOT , SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

DRUGS & MEDICINES
I have nearly filled up my stock of
PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.
I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of Stationary, Fancy and Toilet
—Articles. Also have a fine line of—
CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,
Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.
Third door from the corner, in Mr. Bradly's building.
N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY.

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,
And having just received a beautitul
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
sOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDER,
Your Own County Paper.

THE EAGLE
DRUG STORE,
—IS POSITIVELY—
THE CHEAPEST
—HOUSE IN—
RISING SUN, IND.
Where will be found a fresh stock of
DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,
SCHOOL BOOKS
—AND—
STATIONERY,
all at bottom prices.
GIVE US A CALL.
D. C. Thorn,
Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)
Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.
Fine Teas A Specialty.
A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

TEACHERS WANTED $100. Per Month. Steady Employment during SPRING and SUMMER. Address C. McCURDY & Co., Cincinnati, O.

HOME AND FARM.

—Broken limbs should be placed in natural positions and the patient kept quiet until the surgeon arrives.

—Sheep are frequently troubled with sore lips caused by dry feed. One or two applications of sulphur and lard will effect a cure.—N. Y. Herald.

—A French chemist reports that water made slightly salt, and to which, when boiling, bran in the proportion of one quart to every gallon has been added, has been found in a series of experiments to increase the yield of milk twenty-five per cent., if given to the cows in their ordinary drink.

—The aphis, or green fly, is one of the most troublesome enemies of top-grown plants. It is most easily destroyed by syringing the plants twice a week with a tea made from tobacco stems, moving them up and down until the insects are thoroughly washed off. This will also destroy other insects.—Chicago Times.

—Before going to bed have a kettle of hot water ready. Put some in a shallow tin and hold the frosted part of the foot in it—not the whole foot, but one frosted spot after another—for ten or twenty minutes, keeping the water just as hot as you can bear it. Then pour a little cold water over the frosted parts and thoroughly rub them dry. Follow this plan three nights, have shoes good size, and the cure is effectual.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—To make an apple-custard pie, take one pint of sweet milk, and one pint of apple sauce; beat this sauce till it is smooth, and entirely free from lumps; then stir it in the milk; sweeten this well—a good full cup of sugar will be needed, and if the apples are tart more will be required; to this add three well beaten eggs, flavor with lemon, and bake with under crust only.—N. Y. Post.

—Irrigation has been tried in Western Kansas with marvelous results. Formerly it was thought that the dry plains stretching toward the Arkansas River were useless for agricultural purposes. The light and fickle rainfall, the dry air, the hot winds, and the long summers were supposed to constitute a combination of unfavorable elements that it would be impossible to overcome. But broad ditches were dug that distributed the waters of the Arkansas over these tracts, and now they bloom like a garden. The crops yielded the past year were astonishing. Onions were raised at the rate of 500 bushels to the acre, oats 100 bushels, and other products in similar proportion.—Denver Tribune.

—The cow pea, says the Nebraska Farmer, may be raised with corn and serve a good purpose therein. It grows vigorously and has an immense vine which completely shelters the ground within its reach and prevents rapid evaporation. In this it serves to keep the soil in a better condition for the corn. This is contrary to the general rule, but when the reasons are properly understood it appears plain why it should be so. To raise them with corn we plant after the last plowing in the center of the row. The hills should not be nearer than four feet apart. Raised in this way the cost is only for seed and planting. To make the best fodder the crop should be gathered before it is fully ripe, but it will pay well to plant for pasture.

Foresight in Farming.

Every farmer should have a memorandum-book in his pocket, in which should be jotted down certain items of labor, whenever he may think about them. Then, when he may be hesitating as to what he or his employes can do advantageously during some pleasant day, the record of items will not fail to render him valuable aid. The farmer who does not take such thought for the future and plan operations for weeks and months, and sometimes for years ahead, will always be grumbling that his work is behind its appropriate season. Let me illustrate by experiences from real life.

A near neighbor was always at the tail end of the revolving seasons. During winter he would go several times with two horses and sleigh more than five miles to the grocery store to make a few purchases; and perhaps he would take two or three bagfuls of grain to mill. But in spring, when the wheeling became about as heavy as possible, he could be seen dragging a heavy load of grain to mill to be ground for feed. Well, when the sleighing was excellent his grain was not threshed. By being behind, he sustained losses in several ways. Rats and mice destroyed bushels of his grain. His domestic animals suffered and grew poor for lack of the food and comfort which they should have received from the straw. If his grain had been threshed at the proper time a team would have been able to draw fifty bushels, when the sleighing was fine, with less fatigue than they could haul ten bushels over muddy roads.

Another neighbor had commenced plowing, but soon learned that the old stub of a plow-point could not be made to enter the hard places in his field, so he hurried off to get a new one. During the winter he had been to the city several times, when he could have purchased the share, and thus saved half a day, and ninety-five cents for his fare on the cars. Two weeks after his grass was fit to cut he took out his machine, but before he could start it he was obliged to go to the city to procure a new knife for the cutter-bar, which required another half day and ninety-five cents, besides other losses. By being "a day behind" he failed to get his hay ready for the barn in time to avoid damage incident to a drenching rain. Rain continued, and the weather continued lowering and unfavorable, until his crop of hay was rendered almost worthless for fodder. If he had not been behindhand that one day, which was spent in fitting up his mower, every pound of hay could have been secured in prime condition. That loss in the value of his hay by being damaged by a long rain amounted to more than forty dollars.

When the vernal seedtime had almost passed neighbor Tardy woke up to a sense of the propriety of sowing millet on a few acres. So he started for the city to purchase seed. But, just before it was received at his station, a long period of wet weather set in, which rendered it necessary to defer sowing until the latter part of May. Sowing late, immediately after a long period of wet weather, which was succeeded by a drought, was the cause of a light crop. The reader can perceive, at a glance, how much one day in the winter would have facilitated the farming operations of that laggard farmer, and how many dollars would have been gained by way of a larger crop, if the seed had been purchased and been ready for the soil as soon as the ground was prepared. "Take time by the hair," said Kossuth. "Forecast with care," say we all; remembering that the best returns are to those who keep a little in advance of the most appropriate period to plow, sow, cultivate and mow.—S. E. F., in the N. Y. Tribune.

Cost of Wintering Working Animals.

In the winter of 1881 I had under my charge (on the Niagara Grape Farm) two teams of horses and two yokes of oxen. Having most of the forage to buy, I tried to see how little they could be kept upon in a good, thriving condition. The teams were worked only enough for proper exercise. I fed cut rye straw morning and evening, and uncut hay at noon, all of which was weighed. One span of horses weighed 2,500 pounds, each of which consumed daily 8 pounds of cut straw, 6 pounds of hay, and 6 pounds of grain, composed of equal quantities of ground rye, corn, oats and wheat bran, by measure. One team, weighing 2,000 pounds, consumed the same quantity of straw and hay, but one pound less each of grain. The oxen weighed 3,000 pounds per yoke, and each ox consumed 17 pounds of cut straw, 10 pounds of hay, and 6 pounds of ground feed, which in all cases was mixed with the cut straw. When the weather was cold, we used hot water for mixing.

The cost of hay was $15 per ton, rye straw $10, and the mixed feed $1.60 per 100 pounds, making the cost of each large horse 18 cents per diem; for each animal of the smaller team 16 1-2 cents; and for each ox 26 cents. I have been in the practice for several years of weighing all the food consumed by my horses, at intervals, and I find it the only way that I can approximate the cost of keeping. I also find by so doing a great saving, both in forage and in health of the stock. We are now keeping one road horse which weighs 1,150 pounds; is worked hard, and frequently driven very hard. His daily rations are 10 pounds of hay and 12 pounds of oats. The hay cost $12 per ton; oats, 55 cents per bushel; cost per diem, 26 1-2 cents. I consider oats the most expensive grain to feed, but for fast road work, it is perhaps the best. For heavy, slow work, I have found rye, corn and oats the best, which should be ground to give the best results.

Winter with most farmers is a time of leisure, and a short time each day looking after the little leakages in and around the barn will help wonderfully in tiding over a long feeding time with a comparatively short forage crop. The master's presence, with an eye to his interests, works wonders. The question was asked of the writer, not long since, how much hay would be required to take a certain stock through the winter. My answer was that it will be according to who feeds the stock. I am satisfied that a great majority of farmers feed double the hay which is required for the health of the horse, thus wasting largely of the summer's hard labor. If what I have said shall induce some one or more to try the experiment and report, I shall feel that some good may come out of it.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

The Eyes.

The eye is a remarkable organ—remarkable for its powers of endurance, for its toughness, since only a violent blow, even with a hammer can crush it, as one may know by an experiment on the eye of a dead animal, as an ox. Its importance is indicated by the manifest care in the protection of it, lying, as it does on a soft bed of fat in a cavity, with so many bony projections around it that an injury from an ordinary blow, as from a fist club, would be very unusual. The brows and the fringe of the lids do much to prevent dust and perspiration from reaching them, while a supply of tears from a gland above the eye, about three-fourths of an inch long, with from eight to twelve ducts leading to the ball, serve not only to moisten, and in a certain sense to nourish that organ, but to wash away whatever dust may, by chance, get upon the ball. Then tears flow in such a manner as to reach the whole ball, and then flow toward the inner angle, at which point a duct passes the whole down into the cavity of the nose. The frequent and imperceptible winking, generally without any design on our part, lubricating or moistening the ball by the spreading of this eyewater, the best in use, this being the more frequent as the occasion for it is manifest—a curative process. The nearest approach to this tear wash is made from the pith of the sassafras, dissolved in rose water, wetting the balls often.

If one would preserve the sight of the eye, keep the ball free from inflammation. It is needful not to rub the eye harshly at any time; never to subject it to dazzling or too bright a light; not to use it much by artificial light, the gas being as bad as any, or at twilight, particularly at night; not to look too intently or too continuously on black cloth and the like, always to discontinue labor or their use just as soon as pain warns, and as much sooner as possible. We may see without effort, "letting them see," not compelling them to see by effort, by straining the sight, since a little observation will teach one that this compulsory sight is specially taxing. Even weak eyes, not reddened too much by the use of carbonaceous drinks or food, will do much labor if often rested, avoiding pain, which is the warning to stop.—City and Country.

New York Stock Exchange.

Some idea of the wealth of this institution may be formed when it is recalled that it has over one thousand members, and that the price of seats is about thirty thousand dollars each. This represents thirty millions of dollars. It is estimated that the average wealth of each broker is about eighty thousand dollars, making eighty millions more. None but rich men are now admitted into the Board, for when a seat is sold, the financial condition of the buyer is examined, and unless there are powerful influences in his favor, he must be worth a quarter of a million before he is admitted to membership. The New York Stock Board is an extra-legal body. It has no recognized charter, and it never permits lawsuits between members or with customers. On busy days as many as a million shares of stock are often sold; and as the par value is one hundred dollars per share, these transactions therefore foot up nearly one hundred million dollars per diem. And the business is constantly increasing, for as the country grows new securities are created to be dealt in. Indeed, stock-gambling has become almost a national vice. So far, it is confined to those who are fairly well-to-do, for at least one thousand dollars are required as margin for one hundred shares of stock. On the London Exchange ten shares is a good delivery, and is the unit of speculation. Were ten-share lots regarded as good delivery on the New York Exchange, it would lead to an immense extension of stock-gambling. Indeed, the gambling spirit is abroad. "Phantom," that is, speculative sales and purchases, surpass by twenty-fold actual transactions in corn, wheat, cotton, pork, petroleum, and all the great products of the country. It is these vast speculative enterprises on the part of Americans which bring about our periodical and disastrous panics.—Demorest's Monthly.

Where the Oil Interest Centers.

The oil-producing fields of Pennsylvania and New York are situated at intervals along a line making an angle of forty-five degrees with the parallels of latitude, and extending from Alleghany County, N. Y., down through Pennsylvania in a southwest direction to the West Virginia border. The long and narrow maps of the region are bounded at the top and bottom by forty-five-degree lines; the right hand margin is the northeast limit, the left hand the southwest, and the parallels and meridian lines make Xs on the sheet. In the reports of operations printed periodically, the oil-producing territory is divided into the Alleghany field, in Alleghany County, a tract some twelve miles long and two and one-half wide; the Bradford field, in McKean County, Penn., and Cattaraugus County, N. Y., an irregular tract about twenty miles long, and from three to nine in width; the Warren and Forest field, in the counties of those names in Pennsylvania, comprising four or five small tracts; and the Lower field, in Venango, Butler, Clarion and Armstrong Counties, Penn., which field was the scene of the first great oil excitement something like a score of years ago. The Bradford field is by far the most productive. Its eleven or twelve thousand wells yield considerably more than half of the oil produced. It was opened in the fall of 1877. It is now regarded as a fully-developed field. The Alleghany field is next in importance as regards production. It was opened in April of last year. About two thousand producing wells are in this field and many new ones are opened every month.

The Lower field is regarded, like the Bradford and Alleghany fields, as being pretty accurately outlined by dry holes; and it is not expected that any new well opened in either of these fields will break the market.

The Warren and Forest field, however, is in part unexplored by the bit of the driller. In this field is the famous Cherry Grove tract where, in May last, the jumbo of oil wells, "646," was opened; where, a few weeks later, a city had grown up; where at one time three wells were spouting 3,000 barrels of oil each every twenty-four hours; where nearly 30,000 barrels a day was the production of the completed wells during the month of August, sending the price of oil down from eighty-five cents a barrel to less than fifty cents; and where now there is little but drained rock below ground, and a rather dull oil settlement above. But in the southern end of this field are the tracts toward which the attention of producers and speculators is drawn more than toward any other. The wildcat venture in this vicinity was the Shannon well, opened about the middle of last September, which flowed very strongly at first. The Anchor Oil Company put down a well near by, which was opened toward the last of November with a good showing. Many other wells are drilling in this region. Whatever happens in the field to greatly influence the market in the near future is likely to take place in this undeveloped tract; and until some other wildcat venture opens a pool equally promising, the attention of speculators will be directed toward this field.—Bradford (Pa.) Cor. N. Y. Sun.

The Robber and the Editor.

"Listen, my children," said a venerable man, "and I will tell you a story, beautiful and true. Once upon a time there was a bad, bold robber, who had his haunt in the wilds of a mountain. At the foot of the mountain, in the valley, was a village. It was not a very large village, yet in it a newspaper was printed. The robber looked upon the editor of the newspaper as being the chief man of the village, and thought he must be very rich. So one dark night he came down from his den in the mountain and stole into the dwelling of the editor and then into the room where he slept. The editor, being a good man, slept as soundly and sweetly as a child. The robber searched all the place, but could not find the caskets of gold and diamonds he had supposed to be stored up in the room. He then put his hands in all the pockets of the clothes of the editor, but found no money in any of them. The robber then stood for a time as in a stupor. He was like one awakened from a dream. He listened for some moments to the deep, regular breathing of the sleeping editor, and as he stood so he began to feel sad. The heart of the bold, bad man was touched. Quietly he took from his purse $4.75, placed the money in the pantaloons pocket of the editor, and softly stole from the house. In the morning, when the editor got up and put on his pantaloons there was a jingle as of money. A look of astonishment came into the face of the editor. He put his hand into his pocket and drew out the money. When he saw this great wealth the knees of the editor smote together; he turned pale, fainted, and fell to the floor, and there lay as one who is dead."

"Oh! oh! grandfather, did they catch the bad robber man and hang him on a tree?"

"No, my dears, they did not catch the bad, bold robber. He is still living. From that day he reformed, and got a place as cashier in a big bank, where you will be glad to hear that he is doing well and is greatly respected by all in his church."

"And the poor editor man, grandfather! What became of him?"

"Ah, yes, my darlings! I had almost forgotten him. Well, when he came out of his faint, and his eyes again saw all the money lying about the room where it had fallen, he was sorely perplexed. At last he felt sure it had been quietly placed in his pocket in the night by a great and rich neighbor, who owned a tanyard, and was running for the Legislature. So for days and days he printed in his paper whole columns of praise of the rich neighbor, who was elected to the office, and ever after the two men were the greatest friends. Thus, my dears, do good actions always meet with their reward."—Virginia City Enterprise.

—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad lowered its rates of passenger fare two years ago to about two cents a mile, and the increase of receipts for passengers the next year was thirty per cent., which, in 1882, rose to forty-four per cent.—New Haven Register.

—Nearly every article of clothing belonging to the late Mrs. Maria Appleby, who died at Morristown, N. J., aged 105 years, was found to contain rolls of bank-bills. A pair of shoes in her bureau were filled with coin. Nearly $8,000 was found.—Newark Register.

—A pensioner in Natchez was awarded $1,000 and the claim agent who collected it gave him $150 and kept $850 for his services. Lucky for the pensioner that he had fallen into the hands of an honest claim agent and didn't lose the $150 also!—Detroit Post.

Baking Babies in India.

Miss Stagg, a missionary in India writes: One of my pupils named Macon (which means butter), said to me after her lessons were finished: "Oh, mam! you must not go away without seeing khooki!" (Girl babies are called khookhies, and boys are khookas.) I am very fond of babies, so I readily consented to see khooki. We went down the street across a very dirty court, and then Macon stopped at the door of a little room adjoining a shed where cows were housed. She opened a door and I looked in, and saw just one mat covering the floor, on which lay baby and baby's mamma. Baby was a dear little pinky bit of humanity, and I told her mamma that I thought her very pretty. "Oh," said she, "she will soon be black like the rest of us after I have put her out in the sun for a few days." Just think! Every newborn babe has its little body well smeared with mustard oil, and is then put out in the sun to dry. I interceded for baby, and Macon promised she would prevent them from doing such a dreadful thing.

I have seen very young babies, after having been oiled, put out in the hot, Indian sun on a bit of board, with only a bit of cotton cloth placed under the head for a pillow, it is really a wonder that so many live to grow up. The mothers I have sometimes remonstrated with. They are always much surprised to hear that English people do not treat their babies to a similar baking. Most Bengali babies are troubled with very little clothing. Some have a silver chain around the waist, and perhaps a gold one around their neck.—Gospel in All Lands.

—The application of science to the frustration of justice has been remarked in the case of a Tennessee horse-thief, whose distinguishing features were a "cast" in the right eye and a broad surface scar on the left cheek. A skillful oculist straightened the eye and an equally skillful surgeon cut out the scar. The culprit's identity as a horse-thief would forever have been lost had he not betrayed himself to a woman and thus indirectly to the constabulary.

—The meanest man in the world lives in Trenton, New Jersey. He recently engaged two boys to shovel the snow off his sidewalk. About one hundred square feet of walk had to be cleaned. The boys worked like beavers for more than half an hour, while the man watched them from his window. When the work was completed he raised his window and handed them a cent a piece.—N. Y. Mail.

[New Haven (Conn.) Union.]

How a Lawyer Treated the Case.

I, David Strouse, of New Haven, Connecticut, was attacked with a severe rheumatism in my right arm, hand and foot, so that I walked with difficulty and could hardly use my hand to eat with. I used one bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, rubbing well three times a day, and obtained instant relief and a perfect cure.

DAVID STROUSE, Attorney-at-Law.

SIX HUNDRED criminals were pardoned from the Chicago Bridewell last year. It means something when a Chicago man says, "Beg pardon."—Boston Transcript.

DR. PIERCE'S "Favorite Prescription," for all those weaknesses peculiar to women, is an unequalled remedy. Distressing backache and "bearing-down" sensations yield to its strength-giving properties. By druggists.

A FRENCH writer says the art of giving a dinner is a lost art. Then why not advertise and find it again.—New Haven Register.

The Age of Miracles

is past, and Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will not raise the dead, will not cure you if your lungs are almost wasted by consumption. It is, however, unsurpassed both as a pectoral and alterative, and will cure obstinate and severe diseases of the throat and lungs, coughs and bronchial affections. By virtue of its wonderful alterative properties it cleanses and enriches the blood, cures pimples, blotches and eruptions, and causes even great eating ulcers to heal.

GIRLS are more courageous than men. They are ready to make a match with a fellow twice their size.

Get the Original.

Dr. Pierce's "Pellets"—the original "Little Liver Pills" (sugar-coated)—cure sick and bilious headache, sour stomach and bilious attacks. By druggists.

THE shopmen of the last generation used to achieve success with great pains, but now they use great panes instead.—N. Y. Herald.

Henry's Carbolic Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions, etc. Get HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE, and take no other.

AN Erie woman has robbed a hair store. Like a pistol, she went off with a bang.—Pittsburgh Post.

"Alone, Solitary and Alone.

An eminent author has declared that "unless the blood be kept in a pure state, the constitution must be weakened and disease supervene." That truly wonderful preparation, called Mishler's Herb Bitters, possesses the power of neutralizing and removing all contaminations of the blood and system generally. "Solitary and alone," this remedy stands before the public as the only known and recognized blood purifier.

"I REALLY was puzzled what to do for the best," said our own Mrs. Ramsbotham. "I was quite 'on the corns of a duenna,' as the saying is."—Punch.

PRESENTS of mind—having a mind to give something, but never giving it.—Boston Post.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Promptly cure asthmatic wheezing. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, February 17, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 25	@ 3 25
Choice butchers	4 50	@ 5 35
HOGS—Common	5 75	@ 6 45
Good packers	6 75	@ 7 00
SHEEP	5 00	@ 5 75
FLOUR—Family	5 80	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 13	@ 1 12
No. 2 winter red	1 11	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	62	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed, new	50	@
Rye—No. 2	68	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@11 75
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 25	@18 50
Lard—Steam	11	@ 11-5
BUTTER—Western Reserve	20	@ 23
Prime Creamery	40	@ 43
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 50	@ 3 00
Apples, prime, per barrel	3 00	@ 3 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 8 90
Good to choice	4 60	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 24½	@ 1 25¼
No. 1 white	1 20	@ 1 28⅜
Corn—No. 2 mixed	74	@
Oats—mixed	48	@ 50
PORK—Mess	19 25	@
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 11	@
Corn, No. 2	57⅜	@
Oats—No. 2	39½	@
Rye	64	@
PORK—Mess	18 20	@18 25
LARD—Steam	11-40	@ 11-45
WHISKY	1 17	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 18¼	@ 1 18½
Corn mixed	73½	@ 74½
Oats mixed	47	@ 49
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	19 25	@
Lard, refined	12½	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	$ 9⅜	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 05	@ 1 10
Corn—mixed	48	@ 49
Oats—mixed	42½	@
PORK—Mess	18 50	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 10	@
CORN	55	@
OATS—White, new	40	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 00

STARTLING STATISTICS.

The Shadow Hanging Over New York City and the Entire Country—A Tribune Opinion.

The nation has been horrified at the burning of a Milwaukee hotel, whereby over seventy lives were lost. This event carried terror because it was sudden and appalling; but had the same disastrous results to life and limb come silently they would have been unnoticed, not only by the people of the land but also by the very community in which they occurred. Fatal events of a far worse nature have taken place in this very city, but they have attracted no attention, nor would they now did not the Bureau of Vital Statistics bring them to our notice. "Figures do not lie," whatever else may be uncertain, and the report on the deaths of this city is a startling comment on its life. During the past year the enormous increase of certain maladies is simply appalling. While the total number of deaths has diminished and the death rate on most diseases has decreased still it is far greater in one or two serious disorders than was ever known before. More people died in the city of New York in 1882 from Bright's disease of the kidneys than from diphtheria, small-pox and typhoid fever all combined! This scarcely seems possible but it is true and when it is remembered that less than one-third the actual deaths from Bright's disease are really reported as such, the ravages of the malady can be partially understood.

The immediate query which every reader will make upon such a revelation of facts, is: What causes this increase? This is a difficult question to answer. The nature of the climate, the habits of life, the adulteration of foods and liquors, all undoubtedly contribute; but no immediate cause can be certainly assigned. Often before the victim knows it the disease has begun. Its approaches are so stealthy and its symptoms so obscure that they cannot be definitely foreseen and are only known by their effects. Any kidney disorder, however slight, is the first stage of Bright's disease. But it is seldom that kidney disorders can be detected. They do not have any certain symptoms. Mysterious weariness; an unusual appetite; periodical headaches; occasional nausea; uncertain pains; loss of vigor; lack of nerve power; irregularity of the heart; disordered daily habits; imperfect digestion—all these and many other symptoms are the indications of kidney disorder even though there may be no pain in the region of the kidneys or in that portion of the body. The serious nature of these troubles may be understood from the fact that Bright's disease is as certain to follow diseased kidneys as decomposition follows death.

It is high time the doctors in this land who have been unable to control kidney troubles, should be aroused and compelled to find some remedy, or acknowledge one already found. The suffering public needs help and can not await the tardy action of any hair-splitting code or incorrectly formulated theories. If the medical world has no certain remedy for this terrible disease let them acknowledge it and seek for one outside the pale of their profession. For the discovery of this remedy and for its application to this disease, the people of this city, the people of the whole land, not only those who are suffering, but those who have friends in danger, are earnestly and longingly looking.

The above quotation from the New York Tribune is causing considerable commotion, as it seems to lift the cover from a subject that has become of National importance. The alarming increase of kidney diseases; their insidious beginnings and frightful endings and the acknowledged inability of physicians to successfully cope with them may well awaken the greatest dread of every one who has the slightest symptoms. It is fortunate, however, that the surest relief is often found where, possibly, least expected, and that there is a specific for the evils above described we have come to fully believe. Within the past two years we have frequently seen statements of parties claiming to have been cured of serious kidney troubles even after hope had been abandoned; but in common with most people we have discredited them. Quite recently, however, a number of prominent and well-known men have come out voluntarily and stated over their signatures that they were completely cured by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. Most people have been aware that this medicine has an unusual standing and one entitling it to be classed above proprietary articles generally; but that it had accomplished so much in checking the ravages of kidney disease is not so generally known. Its great worth has been shown not only by the cures it has effected, but also because a number of base imitations have appeared in the market, fraudulently claiming the valuable qualities of the original Safe Cure. If it were not valuable, it would not be imitated.

The above may seem like an ultra endorsement of a popular remedy but it is not one whit stronger than the facts admit. Whatever assists the world toward health and consequent happiness, should receive the hearty endorsement of the press and all friends of humanity. It is on precisely this principle that the foregoing statement is made and it merits the careful consideration of every thinking reader.

CRYSTALIZED—the man who wears glasses. Somerville Journal.

GET Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners for those new boots or shoes before you run them over.

IT'S the assignee in bankruptcy who has painful wreck-collections.

COUGHS.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" will allay the irritation and stop coughing.

BRIGHT days in store—when there is a rush of customers.

"Buchu-Paiba."

Quick, complete cure, all annoying Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases. $1. Druggists.

FOR thick heads, heavy stomache, biliousness—Wells' May Apple Pills. 10 and 25c.

THE man of great wait—the creditor.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

IF you are disturbed by unpleasant dreams, awake unrefreshed and depressed in mind, take half wineglassful of Gastrine before retiring. It never fails to give relief. Sold by druggists.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

Dose Cup. Advertisement in another col.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST. JACOBS OIL

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

CURES

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment, address P. W. REAM, Ada, O.

THE BIGGEST THING OUT Illustrated Book Sent Free. (new) E. F. NASON & CO., 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B.C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me

Childhood, Manhood and Hoary Age Exclaim in Unison; "Behold the Conqueror."

DURING a brief visit to the ancient town of Warwick, R. I., recently, our reporter extended his trip to the south-eastern extremity of the town, to look about among the wonderful improvements which have been made in the appearance of Warwick Neck during a comparatively brief period, and while conversing on this subject with COL. BENJAMIN S. HAZARD, the popular proprietor of the Warwick Neck Hotel, he learned that the greater part of the handsome summer residences had been erected inside of a dozen years; and he also learned that Col. Hazard had been a great sufferer from a chronic disease of the kidneys and bladder over fifteen years, the most painful form of it being a stoppage or retention of the urine, which was so very severe at times as to disable him for his accustomed work, and even confine him to the bed, when a surgeon's assistance would be required to relieve him. He was being doctored a large part of the time, but could get no permanent relief. At times his sufferings were terrible from sharp, cutting pains through the kidneys and bladder, and he had suffered so long and so severely that he had become discouraged of getting well again, especially as the doctor stated that it was doubtful if a man of his age, with such a complicated disease of long standing, could be cured. But last summer, when he was suffering intensely from one of these attacks, a gentleman who was boarding at his hotel urged and persuaded him to try a bottle of Hunt's Remedy, as he had known of some wonderful cures effected by it.

Mr. Hazard says he had no faith in it, but consented reluctantly to try it; and after taking it only two days, the intense pains and aches had disappeared, and he commenced to gain strength rapidly, and in less than a week was attending to his accustomed work, and has never had a return of the pains. Mr. Hazard is over seventy years of age, and on the 25th of Nov., 1882, when our reporter met him, although it was a very cold and blustering day, he was in the field with his team at work pulling and loading turnips, as hale and hearty a man as you could wish for, whereas last August he was unable to stand up to oversee the work then going on in this same field.

Hunt's Remedy had given him health and strength again, and he recommends it to his relatives and friends, several of whom are now taking it, as he considers it a most excellent medicine for all diseases of kidneys or bladder.

STRONG POINTS ABOUT MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS ARE AN ABSOLUTE CURE FOR KIDNEY TROUBLES, LIVER COMPLAINT, Dyspepsia and all Bowel Disorders.

They supply tone to the stomach, reinvigorate the digestive organs, stimulate the secretions, promote a regular action of the bowels, and enable every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption. In use in U. S., since 1855, and in Germany for over 300 years. ☞ For the complaints peculiar to all of the FEMALE SEX, they are unequaled by any medicine in the world. With the trade mark "Hope," they have proven a boon to millions of distressed people. Compounded with as much care as any extract. Proved best. A Reliable Household Remedy thoroughly adapted to assist nature. Highly commended as a general Tonic and Appetizer. Send for "Messenger of Health." Mishler Herb Bitters Co. Lancaster, Pa. At druggists, $1.

☞ Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup Never Fails.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids, broken down in health and spirits by chronic dyspepsia, or suffering from the terrible exhaustion that follows the attacks of acute disease, the testimony of thousands who have been raised as by a miracle from a similar state of prostration by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is a sure guarantee that by the same means you, too, may be strengthened and restored.

For sale by all Druggists and dealers generally.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. .25 100

Come to CHICAGO If you desire to locate in Chicago, and would like to know all about the city and your chances of success, by personal letters before you come, enclose two 3-cent stamps for full particulars to WHEATON BROS., Box 293, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

$65 A MONTH and board for TEACHERS Students, Young Men and Ladies, in a light pleasant Business, in your own county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., 915 Arch St., Philadelphia.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS., Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their circular to agents." It will puzzle and astonish you.

A KEY THAT WILL WIND ANY WATCH AND NOT WEAR OUT. SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. BIRCH & CO., 38 Dey St., N. Y.

SAW MILLS The Best is Cheapest. For Descriptive Circular and Prices write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

NERVOUS Remedy for weakness, debility, exhaustion. Speedy, Safe, Sure. Mailed free for 50c. B. SAABACH, Peru, Ill.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL.—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. MOODY & CO., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

Cantatas—Operettas.

SACRED.

RUTH AND BOAZ, (65 cts.) is new, easy and every way delightful. JOSEPH'S BONDAGE ($1), and BELSHAZZAR, ($1), make gorgeous oriental spectacles, as do the easier DANIEL, (50 cts.), and ESTHER, (50 cts.), FALL OF JERUSALEM, (80 cts.), CHRIST THE LORD, (80 cts.), are good, and St. Saens' DELUGE, (60 cts.), Berlioz' FLIGHT INTO EGYPT, (38 cts.), Sullivan's PRODIGAL SON, (75 cts.), are worthy and striking compositions.

SECULAR.

COMALA, (80 cts.), DON MUNIO, ($1.50), LORELAY, (50 cts.), ST. CECILIA'S DAY, (60 cts.), MAY QUEEN, ($1), are classic and beautiful. Easier ones are HAYMAKERS, ($1), by Root, and Thomas's PICNIC, ($1). Pretty parlor Operettas are PAULINE, ($1.25), PALOMITA, ($1.25), DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND, ($1), CUPS AND SAUCERS, (25 cts.).

For many others, send for lists. All Sullivan's Operas published in good style and at low prices.

NEW BOOKS OF GREAT MERIT.

REDEMPTION, ($1). Gounod Novello's Edition.
SHEPARD COLLECTION, ($1). Quartets and Choirs.
CHORAL CHOIR, ($1). Best new Choir Book.
PEERLESS, (75 cts). Best new Singing Class Book.
MINSTREL SONGS, ($). A great success.
MUSICAL FAVORITE, ($). New Piano Music.
Any book mailed for above price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO. 867 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE Lungs.

Cures Consumption, Colds, Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchial Difficulties, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Diseases of the Breathing Organs. It soothes and heals the Membrane of the Lungs, inflamed and poisoned by the disease, and prevents the night sweats and tightness across the chest which accompany it. CONSUMPTION is not an incurable malady. HALL'S BALSAM will cure you, even though professional aid fails.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., (Limited.) No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

A new broad cast seed sower which sows an acre in 3½ minutes and sows as little as one pound of clover or one quart of timothy seed to the acre with precision and evenness. Send for circular to F. C. Waddell Union City Obion county Tennessee

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE TRY IT USE IT

It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc., itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 92 Fulton Street, N. Y.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. LANDS IN WISCONSIN. Full particulars FREE. Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease, by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

AGENTS Make ENORMOUS profits selling our Perfection Coffee Pot. Absolutely indispensable to every family. Choice territory free. No boxing or freight charges. One Agent made $175 the first week, another $40. Write at once for full particulars. ☞ Sent free. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., Cincinnati, O., Kansas City, Mo.

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS on any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, WASHINGTON, D. C.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR Forces luxuriant Moustache, Whiskers, or hair on bald heads in 20 to 30 days. Price per Package with directions sealed and postpaid 25 cents, 3 for 50c., stamps or silver. L. A. L. SMITH & CO. Sole Agts. Palatine, Ill.

ASTHMA CURED by using Moore's CURE. Send 25c. in stamps for sample package by return mail to Moore & Harris Vincennes, Ind. Large Size, $1.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

TWO Photos of Female Beauties, 10c. Illustrated Catalogue 3 cts. J. DIETZ, READING, PA.

HIGHEST HONORS AT EVERY GREAT WORLD'S EXHIBITION FOR 16 YEARS.

MASON AND HAMLIN ORGANS.
CATALOGUES FREE
FOR CASH, EASY PAYMENTS OR RENTED.

100 STYLES, $22, $30, $57, $72, $78, $93, $108, $114, $500, AND UP

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN & PIANO CO., BOSTON, 154 TREMONT ST. NEW YORK, 46 E. 14th STREET. CHICAGO, 149 WABASH AVE.

DIPHTHERIA CROUP, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, NEURALGIA. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment (for Internal and External Use) will instantaneously relieve these terrible diseases, and will positively cure nine cases out of ten. Information that will save many lives, sent free by mail. Don't delay a moment. Prevention is better than cure. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

LIST OF DISEASES ALWAYS CURABLE BY USING MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

OF HUMAN FLESH.	OF ANIMALS.
Rheumatism,	Scratches,
Burns and Scalds,	Sores and Galls,
Stings and Bites,	Spavin, Cracks,
Cuts and Bruises,	Screw Worm, Grub,
Sprains & Stitches,	Foot Rot, Hoof Ail,
Contracted Muscles	Lameness,
Stiff Joints,	Swinny, Founders,
Backache,	Sprains, Strains,
Eruptions,	Sore Feet,
Frost Bites,	Stiffness,

and all external diseases, and every hurt or accident For general use in family, stable and stock yard it is THE BEST OF ALL LINIMENTS

I CURE FITS! When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

AURORA CANCER INSTITUTE. Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

DOSE CUP & CORK-SCREW, the invalid's boon and nurse's delight will be GIVEN FREE as a premium to DR. FOOTE'S HEALTH MONTHLY to those sending only 4 letter stamps for a 3 months' trial subscription. The DOSE CUP measures accurately one drachm and prevents mistakes; the cork-screw prevents breaking corks and knife-blades; the Health Monthly prevents human ills. Address M. HILL PUB. CO., Box 788, New York City. ALWAYS THE RIGHT DOSE ONE SPOONFUL

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit Mich.

A. N. K.—E. 914 8—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1883. NUMBER 18.

THE HAPPY ISLANDS.

He roams about the town from dawn till dark,
An old man with bent form and whitened hair,
Who dreams the earth he treads on is a bark
That sails to find a shore forever fair.
The shore so many seek and do not find.
Among the busy crowd, he heeds it not,
But goes and comes to all our pleasure blind;
The world he lives in seems by him forgot.

Sometimes he stops one in the crowded throng
And questions thus: "Why do we sail so far?
I know full well the vessel's course is wrong,
For further south the Happy Islands are,
And we are near them, for last night I heard
The sound of music coming from their shores,
And caught the scent of flowers, and one bright bird
Flew homeward, over us, to roam no more.

"I almost thought I saw them in the dawn,
Fair as the rosy peaks of Paradise;
But when the day broke fully they were gone.
Far, further south the shore we search for lies!
Pray God they turn the vessel ere too late!
Must we sail by, as many times before?
They make mistakes, and lay it all to Fate
That we have never reached the longed-for shore."

And as he talks the old man's eager eyes
Are looking southward, where he hopes to see
The purple peaks, crowned with strange glory, rise
'Neath fairer skies than those of Italy.
No sight of land breaks on his hopeful eyes.
"Ah, we have missed them, as so oft before!
And we were near, so near to them," he cries.
"Must we sail on and on forevermore!"

Where are our Happy Islands! Must we sail
Forever past them when so near they seem?
Blow from the shores we left, O favoring gale,
And waft us to the shores that haunt each dream!
O fellow voyagers, pray God we find
The land we seek and do not pass it by!
Oh, blow us to the south, inconstant wind!
For there, we think, the Happy Islands lie.
—Eben E. Rexford, in Our Continent.

A VOYAGE NOT OF PLEASURE.

"Is Mr. Warfield in?" I heard inquired in the outer office in a lady's voice.

I went to the door and ushered in the visitor. She was young, handsome, and in weeds.

"I am Mr. Warfield," I said, handing her a chair and taking one opposite; "can I be of any service to you, madam?"

"I wish you to write my will," she replied. "I am to sail on the Penrose for Liverpool this evening, and I think it prudent to provide against accident."

Then, without waiting to be questioned, she went on, with singular clearness, to give a statement of her property, and how she desired it disposed of. The extent of her possessions agreeably surprised me. I hadn't had such a client before. It was my first year in practice, and hitherto the notaryship of the Goldenshekel Bank had been my most profitable business.

"I can have the paper ready in a couple of hours," I said. "Will you wait or return?"

"I have many things to attend to," she answered. "Would it be asking too much to request you to meet me on the steamer at five? There will be a couple of friends there to see me off, and they can act as witnesses."

I assured her it would afford me pleasure to comply with her request, after which she took her leave.

Promptly at the hour I was on board the Penrose, where I found my fair client in company with two gentlemen, one of whom she introduced as her cousin, Mr. Alfred Yawton, and the other as her friend, Captain Deverall.

Withdrawing to a table at the end of the saloon, we took seats and the will was read over, when Mrs. Varney—that, I had forgot to mention, was the lady's name—affixed her signature, and the two gentlemen, at her request, and with the usual formalities, subscribed as witnesses.

My fee, which I fixed at a liberal but fair amount, was paid gracefully, when Mrs. Varney excused herself to look to the disposal of her luggage, leaving me, for the present, with Cousin Yawton and the Captain.

The former jokingly proposed a glass of wine by way of reviver after the late solemn business; and calling a servant to whom he spoke privately, we were shown into a stateroom, or rather a private cabin, sumptuously furnished, whither bottles and glasses soon followed.

Mr. Yawton did the honors. Stepping to the sideboard, he filled us each a glass.

Instantly after drinking, a burning heat scorched my throat. My temples throbbed. My brain seemed on fire, and felt as if in a dizzy whirl. I endeavored to cry out, but my swollen tongue and parched throat refused to utter a sound. I started to rush out, but my steps tottered and I fell insensible.

My first consciousness was of being shaken gently by the shoulder.

"Breakfast, sah?" a voice asked.

Opening my eyes, I found myself in bed with a violent headache, which was not a little aggravated by a rough, pitching motion, every jar of which caused a fresh dart of pain.

"Where am I?" I inquired of a white-aproned colored servant standing near.

Just then a grave looking gentleman entered, and began feeling my pulse.

"Where am I?" I repeated, growing more and more excited.

"Pray be calm, sir" the gentleman entreated; "seasickness often makes people a little delirious, but you'll be all right presently."

A glance about the room sufficed to show it was the same I had entered in company with Mr. Yawton and Captain Deverall. The bottles and glasses still stood on the sideboard. The doctor eyed them suspiciously, no doubt thinking he had discovered the true explanation of my seemingly abnormal mental state.

"Please send the Captain here," I said, with what calmness I could muster.

When the Captain came, I narrated the facts which the reader already knows; and learned, in return, that my passage had been paid and stateroom secured the previous afternoon, after which my trunk had been brought on board. And, sure enough, there it was in a corner of the room. The lady and two gentlemen who had met me on board had left the ship before she hove anchor, and we were now several hundred miles on our way to Liverpool.

That I was the victim of a plot, was but too evident; but the motive of the plotters was a mystery to which I had, as yet, no clew.

We had a long and stormy passage, to me made all the more tedious by a torturing anxiety as to what might be in prospect.

Another and not the least source of my uneasiness lay in the fact that the day fixed for my wedding with Lucy Joyce would come and pass before I could return.

We reached Liverpool at last, and as we entered the dock, a newsman came on board with American papers, brought by a vessel which had left two days later than ours.

I procured one, and almost the first paragraph my eye fell upon sent the blood curdling to my heart.

"The Goldenshekel Bank," the item ran, "was robbed yesterday. A large amount in money and bonds was abstracted from the safe, and at first there was no clew to the authorship of the crime. Later developments, however, would seem to clear up the mystery. A young lawyer, the bank's notary, it appears, sailed for Liverpool on the Penrose the very evening on which the theft transpired. Mr. Elmore, a trusted clerk of the institution, suggests that the fugitive notary knew the combination on which the safe was locked. The Penrose is a slow vessel, and detectives, who have gone on a faster sailer, will probably succeed in heading the criminal."

My first impulse was to fly to the nearest telegraph office, and send back a true statement of the facts, and then surrender to the authorities and demand an investigation.

But there was no time to execute the plan; for just then I was seized by a couple of officers, who hurried me to my stateroom.

"Your trunk key," one of them demanded.

I delivered it over, and a rapid search revealed, at the bottom of my trunk, a thick packet, which, on being opened, was found to contain the stolen bonds!

A wild cry escaped me. I asserted my innocence, but my words were received with an incredulous sneer, and I saw it was useless to continue.

They kept me in irons till the first return vessel sailed. The agony of the voyage back, I do not wish to recall by its recital.

The day we landed, a carriage was at the pier, in which I was placed with a keen-looking man who appeared to have been waiting.

A brisk drive brought us to one of the city courts, where I was asked to alight and accompany my companion, who led the way to a room where a magistrate was sitting, and where, to my no small surprise, I saw Madame Varney, Cousin Yawton and Captain Deverall occupying a seat together, and Jared Elmore, the "trusted clerk," at their side. Doubtless they had all been summoned to testify against me.

But there was another surprise in store. I was myself the first witness called. It was my first opportunity to tell my story calmly and collectedly, and I did so. It was listened to attentively, and this time without any sneers of incredulity.

But the greatest surprise of all was yet to come. The next witness was he who had accompanied me in the carriage; and judge of my astonishment when he told how, having secreted himself, he had overheard a conversation between the four worthies whom I had taken for accusing witnesses, in which they had recounted the robbery of the bank, which Jared Elmore, the "trusted," had effected by discovering the combination and stealing the safe-key; and how they had gone over the details of their plot to fasten the crime on me by giving me the appearance of a fugitive, and concealing in my trunk, which they had obtained from my boarding-house on a forged order, the stolen bonds which they dared not dispose of owing to the precautions taken by the authorities.

The first use made of my freedom was to hurry to the home of Lucy Joyce, whither the story of my vindication had preceded me. We lost no time in appointing another wedding-day, and this time there was no postponement.

Jared Elmore, who had before striven to supplant me with Lucy, and who had sought revenge for his failure, by shuffling off his own crime on me, is now, with his accomplices, doing the State some service.—N. Y. Ledger.

Hydrophobia or Insanity?

Newark physicians are puzzled to diagnose the disease from which John Wilkinson, a car driver, living in Roseville, is suffering. He was taken ill several days ago and manifested all the symptoms of hydrophobia. He snapped and snarled and growled like an ugly dog, but evinced no aversion to water; when it was offered to him he bit the dipper, but drank its contents, and from this fact it is inferred that his disease is not hydrophobia, but a form of insanity. He creeps on his hands and knees, and to keep him from attacking other persons and things with his teeth a cane is given him to gnaw. As he rolls it between his teeth he growls and snarls like a dog disappointed at finding no meat on a bone that had been served to it. When Dr. Titus went to the house to prescribe for him he found a chair against the door, and was obliged to climb in through the window. As the doctor raised the sash Wilkinson sprang at him with the ferocity of a bloodhound, barking and snarling, and tried to bite him. The physician seized him by the hair, and held him until he had put the sufferer in a straight-jacket. Wilkinson's friends say he was bitten by a dog when young, and insist that he has hydrophobia, notwithstanding the judgment of the physician to the contrary. Dr. Titus believes that the patient has been reading of hydrophobia, and that the symptoms are due to the effect of the reading on his mind. He is in a precarious condition. His father was insane when he died.—N. Y. Times.

—A Vicksburg engineer says the Mississippi has an average depth of ten feet at low water increasing to fifty in times of flood; and that as the bottom is soft loam or sand which goes down two hundred feet before it reaches gravel, no levees can be constructed which will not be liable to undermining by the freshet.

—One of the leaders of the Delaware Senate is Dr. Mustard. He draws well and is reckoned a very smart man

PITH AND POINT.

—I don't rekollect doing ennything that I was just a little ashamed ov but what somebody remembered it, and was sure, once in a while, to put me in mind of it.—Josh Billings.

—We see that "fur-lined circulars are fashionable again." People had much better advertise in the newspapers than waste their money sending fur-lined circulars through the post-office.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

—There are twenty Greeks in Chicago, hence when they meet there are ten tugs of war. The Secretary of the Navy should buy up those tugs of war without delay, and then we would have a navy.—Texas Siftings.

—If inventors and scientists assert that the wasted energy of Niagara Falls and of the swell of the ocean can be utilized and transmitted to run all the machinery of all the factories in the world, why can not a kind of harness be made to fit the lower jaw of a barber?—Chicago Herald.

—A gentleman was talking to the owner of a ferocious bull-dog, and asked him the question; "Do you think your dog would become fond of a stranger?" "Yes," replied the dog-fancier, "if he was raw, but he wouldn't if the stranger was cooked."

—A Brooklyn lady caught a burglar in her room and compelled him to marry her. Since this terrible punishment there has been a great falling off in the number of robberies in Brooklyn, and it is proposed to cut down the police force one-half. There are more ways than one to make burglary odious.—Brooklyn Eagle.

—"Student" wants to know what is meant by "a dead letter." Well, a letter asking you to subscribe fifty dollars for the society for the amelioration of the condition of the worthy poor, comes about as near being a dead letter as anything we know of. If it isn't dead, in ten cases out of nine it might as well be.—Norristown Herald.

—An esthete has been delivering himself of an eloquent tirade against the invasion of the sacred domain of art by the meaner herd of trades-people and miscellaneous nobodies, and finally, rising to an alpine height of scorn, exclaims: "Aye, all of you here are Philistines—mere Philistines!" "Yes," said an old gentleman, softly, "we are Philistines, and I suppose that is why we are being assaulted with the jawbone of an ass."—Chicago News.

—Oh, the hog, the beautiful hog, curling his tail as he watches the dog; defying the law for his bread and meat; roaming at large through every street; hunting, grunting, nosing around, till the open front gate is sure to be found—with its hinges broken and ruined quite by the lovers that hung there Sunday night; it won't stay shut; it won't hang level; in walks the hog and raises the—Old Nick with the flower beds and other things.—Montezuma (Ga.) Weekly.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Albemarle County, Va., yearly ships a supply of Albemarle pippins to Queen Victoria. This famous apple can not be produced elsewhere than in Albemarle county, losing its distinctive flavor if grown in any other soil.

—The rice paper of commerce is not paper grown from rice, as its name would imply, but is the pith of a certain plant cut spirally with a very sharp knife, opened out into sheets, and pressed flat, when it is ready for the market.—Chicago News.

—Dispatches from Calcutta report that the Attock bridge across the Indus in the Punjab is nearly completed, and that trains are likely to run over it by the 1st of May. This will give India an unbroken line of railway from Calcutta to Pershawur, a distance of some 1,600 miles.

—Frank Kittredge, of Danville, Vt., has constructed a model for a new steam engine, whose chief distinction is that it does away entirely with the piston movement. Mr. Kittredge's engine consists of a deep rimmed wheel, with movable floats therein, something on the plan of a turbine water-wheel, and the steam is discharged against the inclosed wheel, which he claims will furnish a steady and continuous power, and more of it than can be procured from the piston movement.

—Industrial art now employs the skins of certain sharks in jewelry, as for sleeve buttons and the like—these, when dried and polished, almost equaling the choicest stones, and greatly resembling the fossil coral porites. The vertebræ of the shark are always in demand for canes. The opening filled with marrow during life is for this purpose fitted with a steel or iron rod, the side openings are filled with mother-of-pearl, and, when polished, the cane is decided ornamental.—N. Y. Sun.

—In an article published in one of the German scientific journals on the effect of the color of glass bottles on the liquids contained in them, some interesting facts are stated. It appears from this that liquors contained in colorless bottles, when exposed for some time to the light, acquire a disagreeable taste, notwithstanding the fact that they may have been of superior quality before being so treated; liquors contained in brown or green bottles, however, remain unchanged in quality, even if exposed to direct sunlight. Since, then, the re[illegible] question are due to the chemical action of light, it follows that red, orange, yellow, green or opaque bottles are essential to the preservation of liquors, while colorless, blue and violet ones are to be discarded.

—Among the various uses to which electricity may be put there is one of a very practical nature, which promises to effect a very great saving of property and life. It consists of an arrangement for the immediate stopping of an engine, by merely pressing a button similar to those by which electric bells and fire alarms are sounded. This button may be placed at any distance from the engine upon which it acts, and the inventor proposes that a number of such buttons should be placed throughout the factory or elsewhere where the apparatus is in use. The principle of the contrivance depends upon the action of an electro magnet upon the stop valve of the engine.—Chicago Tribune.

Religious.

BEAUTIFUL SABBATH.

Beautiful Sabbath! Day of Rest,
Beautiful day which God hath blest;
Beautiful hymns of praise so bright,
Beautiful Chapel, God its light;
Oh! how I love these sacred hours,
With droppings sweet from Mercy's showers.

Blessed Sabbath! Blessed Sabbath!
Beautiful Sabbath—Day of Rest!

Beautiful thoughts which fill the breast,
Beautiful robe in which we're dressed;
Beautiful prayers to God above,
Beautiful Heaven where all is love;
Onward I journey to that Home,
From whence I never more shall roam.

Blessed Sabbath! Blessed Sabbath!
Beautiful Sabbath—Day of Rest!

Beautiful Bible! Precious truth,
Beautiful guide of age and youth;
Beautiful teachings, oh! how sweet—
Beautiful rest—at Jesus' feet!
Oh! may I, when my work is done,
Hear the Master say: "The crown is won."

Blessed Sabbath! Blessed Sabbath!
Beautiful Sabbath—Day of Rest!
—N. O. Picayune.

LIVING UP TO OUR BEST INTENTIONS.

If our best moods dominated all our life, we should all live well. We all mean to live well: at least, there are times with all of us when we resolve to do so. New Year's days, birth-days, communion Sundays, and other times when the realities of life stand out in clear relief and impress us with unusual vividness, start in most of us serious thoughts, and inspire in us lofty aspirations and earnest intentions. We are very apt then to make excellent resolutions, and to start off in new and higher planes of living. It would be well for us if there were some way of perpetuating these better moods and of living up to these good intentions. Too often, however, the serious impressions are but transient, and there is too little vitality in the good intentions and resolutions to make them potent impulses for many days.

Of course we can not make our lives beautiful merely by alternately adopting resolutions of amendment and wailing out dolorous confessions of failure. Life runs deeper than words. Beauty is not fashioned by evanescent good intentions. Blemishes and stains are not covered up, nor flaws mended, by penitential sighings of regret. Mere spasms of true living do not give grandeur to a life. If the temple is to be strong and stately, every stone must be cut and set with care. If the texture is to be attractive, every thread of web and woof must be bright and clean, and the weaving must be with uniform skill and care. If a life is to be admirable when finished, its periodical good intentions must become strong, self-sustaining principles, shaping its every act, and ruling all its days and hours.

It ought not to be impossible to live up to the impulses of our best moods, or at least to do so to a much greater degree than most of us realize. In many of these good intentions our element of weakness lies in their vagueness or indefiniteness. We simply resolve to be better this year than last, or to do more good in the future than in the past; but we have no clear and distinct conception in our minds of the points in which we will be better, or of the particular ways in which we will increase our usefulness. Our ideas of living better and doing greater good are nebulous and undefined.

We would be much more apt to succeed in our new purposes if we reduced them to definite and practical shape. In what respects will we amend our ways? This question starts another: What are our faults? Wherein do we fail in living? In what points are our characters defective? What are the mistakes we have been making? The answers to these questions will indicate to us the ways in which we particularly need to live better. Then, in what definite ways will we strive to be more useful? To what new Christian work will we put our hands? Upon what new lines of service will we enter? Just what old mistakes are we to avoid? If we would bring our vague, hazy ideas of greater usefulness down into some practical forms, and then enter at once upon the execution of our resolutions, they would be much more likely to become permanent, and to grow into our life.

Another element of weakness in many of our desires for better life and larger usefulness is that we think of great and perhaps impossible attainments, and overlook the simple things that lie within our reach. No violent, overstrained exertions are necessary to a noble life, no superhuman efforts and achievements—nothing but every-day duty faithfully done. The most of us must be content to live what are regarded as common-place lives, without attracting the attention of the world, or winning the laurels of fame. We must, for the greater part, devote ourselves to the duties that spring out of our ordinary business, social and domestic relations. The pressure of life's necessities is so great that we can not often turn aside to do things that lie outside of our common calling. Whatever service we render to Christ must be rendered in and along the line of these relations, and while we are busied in the imperative duties which every day brings to our hands.

It is just at this point that many fail. They spend all their life seeking for the place in this world which they were intended to fill. They never settle down to anything with any sort of restful or content[illegible]. They have a lofty ideal of a very brilliant life, to which they would like to attain, in which their powers would find full scope, and where they could achieve great things. But in their present condition, with its limitations, they can accomplish nothing worthy of their powers. So they go on discontented with their lot and sighing for another; and while they sigh the years glide away, and soon they will come to the end to find that they have missed every opportunity of doing anything worthy of an immortal being in the passage from time to eternity.

The truth is, one's vocation is never some far-off possibility; it is always the simple round of duties that the passing hour brings. Some one has pictured the days as coming to us with their faces veiled; but when they have passed beyond our recall the draped figures become radiant, and the gifts we rejected are seen to be treasures fit for king's houses. No day is commonplace if only we had eyes to see its splendor. There is no duty that comes to our hand but brings to us the possibility of kingly service.

We greatly mistake, therefore, if we think there is no opportunity for ordinary people to make their years beautiful—to fill them with acceptable Christian service. There is room in the commonest relations of life, not only for fidelity, but for heroism. No ministry is more pleasing to the Master than that of cheerful and hearty faithfulness to lowly duty, when there is no pen to write its history, and no voice to proclaim its praise. To be a good husband—loving, tender, unselfish and cherishing; or a good wife—thoughtful, helpful, uncomplaining and inspiring, is most acceptable service. To live well in one's place in the world, adorning one's calling, however lowly; doing one's most prosaic work diligently and honestly, and dwelling in love and unselfishness with all men, is to live grandly. To fight well the battle with one's own lusts and tempers, and to be victorious in the midst of the countless temptations and provocations of everyday experience, is to be a Christian hero.

There is a field, therefore, for better living very close at home. It is in these common things that most of us must make our progress and win our distinction. And there is room enough in these prosaic duties and opportunities for very noble and beautiful lives. There is nothing possible to a human soul greater than simple faithfulness. "She hath done what she could" was the highest commendation that ever fell from the Master's lips. An angel could do no more. When we are resolving to live more grandly in the future than in the past, it will help us to bring our eyes down from the far-off mountain peaks, where there is nothing for us to do, and look close about our feet, where lie many neglected duties, and many unimproved opportunities and many possibilities of higher attainment in spirit, in temper, in speech, in heart.

Another element of weakness in much of our resolving is that we try to grasp too much of life at one time. We think of it as a whole, instead of taking the days one by one. Life is a mosaic, and each tiny piece must be cut and set with skill. The only way to make a perfect chain is to fashion each separate link with care as it passes through our hands. A lady who teaches a kindergarten school put into each little child's hand, at the opening of the new year, a book with three hundred and sixty-five white blank pages, instructing them to take just one page each day; and to put upon it something, whatever they desired, a little sketch, or picture, or design, and then bring the book to her again at the end of the year.

It is thus each year of life comes to us—for each day a clean, white page; and we are artists, whose duty it is to put something beautiful on the pages one by one; or we are poets, and are to write some lovely thought, some radiant sentence, on each as it lies open before use; or we are historians, and must give to the page some record of work or duty or victory to enshrine and carry away.

It ought not to be hard to live well one day. Any one should be able to carry his burden, or fight his battle, or endure his sorrow, or stand at his work, for one day. Any one should be able to remember God, and keep his heart open toward Heaven; and to remember others in need and suffering about him, and keep his hand stretched out in helpfulness, for just one day. Yet that is all there is to do. We never have more than one day to live. We have no to-morrows. God never gives us years, or even weeks; he gives us only days. If we live each day well, all our life will, in the end, be radiant and beautiful.—S. S. Times.

Wise Sayings.

—Neglect the duty of any hour, and it is an hour irretrievably lost.

—The light of friendship, like phosphorus, is seen most plainly when all around is dark.

—That was a good prescription given by a physician to a patient: "Do something for somebody."

—Under every missed opportunity to do good to others there are items of loss to ourselves, which we may not estimate.

—The least error should humble, but we should never permit even the greatest to discourage us.—Bishop Potter.

—Adversity is always hard to bear, but multitudes testify that it is the best friend they ever had. If we use adversity and reverses we are always profited; but if we allow them to use us we are the victims of tyrants.—Golden Rule.

—Poverty is the load of some, and wealth is the load of others, perhaps the greater load of the two. It may weigh them to perdition. Bear the load of thy neighbor's poverty, and let him bear with thee the load of thy wealth. Thou lightenest thy load by lightening his.—Augustine.

—Each solitary kind action that is done, the whole world over, is working briskly in its own sphere to restore the balance between right and wrong. Kindness has converted more sinners than either zeal, eloquence or learning; and these three never converted any one, unless they were kind also. The continual sense which a kind heart has of its own need of kindness, keeps it humble. Perhaps an act of kindness never dies, but extends the invisible undulations of its influence over the breadth of centuries.—F. W. Faber.

—Dr. Laman, who proposes to supply New York City with water from the Adirondack region, says the estimated flow from the 2,[illegible]00 square miles of that territory is 300,000,000,000 gallons daily, which could be brought to New York through a tunnel along the Hudson.

—Six serviceable cannons were made of ice during the recent carnival at Montreal. Planks two inches in thickness were shattered and iron balls were thrown nearly a quarter of a mile by these guns.

—The drivers and conductors of the Market Street Railway, Philadelphia, are furnished hot coffee by the company free of cost, and twelve hundred cups are drank each day.—Philadelphia Record.

Our Young Folks.

SHE WHO LOVES BUTTER.

Nannie Nutter is fond of butter.
When lovely summer comes blooming in.
No need to ask, 'mid the grass a-'nutter,
Holding a king cup under the chin,
"Do you love butter?" for Nannie Nutter—
"Oh, my!" say all, "how she does love butter!"

Nannie Nutter, so fond of butter,
Always asks for more on her bread;
Has even been known to pout and sputter
If mamma objected and some one said—
How could they help it—"Why, Nannie Nutter,
'Tis butter and bread, not bread and butter!"

With Nannie Nutter, 'tis butter, butter—
Butter on pudding, potatoes, meat,
Tart, cream-pie. She'd thank you to shut her
Into a firkin with nothing to eat
But butter and butter: for Nannie Nutter,
You know, at present is friends with butter.

"Something to eat," they heard her utter
Before the lamps were lighted for tea.
She was given a slice of only butter;
Tasted a bit, but could not see.
Then spoke the famishing Nannie Nutter:
"Can't I have on it a little butter?"
—Our Little Ones.

A GIRL'S DARING.

Until she was nineteen years old Dorothy lived a very uneventful life, for one week was much the same as another in the placid existence of the village. On Sundays mornings, when the church bells began to ring, you would meet her walking over the moor with a springy step. Her shawl was gray, and her dress was of the most pronounced color that could be bought in the market-town. Her brown hair was gathered in a net, and her calm eyes looked from under an old-fashioned bonnet of straw. Her feet were always bare, but she carried her shoes and stockings slung over her shoulder. When she got near the church she sat down in the shade of a hedge and put them on; then she walked the rest of the distance with a cramped and civilized gait.

Every boat went away north one evening, and not a man remained in the Row, excepting three very old fellows, who were long past work of any kind. When a fisherman grows helpless with age, he is kept by his own people, and his days are passed in quietly smoking on a kitchen settle or in looking dimly out over the sea from the bench at the door. A southerly gale with a southerly sea came away in the night, and the boats could not beat down from the northward. By daylight they were all safe in a harbor about eighteen miles north of the village. The sea grew worse and worse, and the usual clouds of foam flew against the houses or skimmed away into the fields beyond. When the wind reached its height the sounds it made in the hollows were like distant firing of small arms, and the waves in the hollow rocks seemed to shake the ground over the cliffs. A little schooner came round the point running before the sea. She might have got clear away, because it was easy enough for her, had she clawed a short way out, risking the beam sea, to have made the harbor where the fishers were. But the skipper kept her close in and presently she struck on a long tongue of rocks that trended far out eastward. The tops of her masts seemed nearly to meet, so it appeared as if she had broken her back. The seas flew sheer over her, and the men had to climb into the rigging. All the women were watching and waiting to see her go to pieces. There was no chance of getting a boat out, so the helpless villagers waited to see the men go down, and the women cried out in their shrill, piteous manner. Dorothy said: "Will she break up in an hour? If I thowt she would hing there I would be away for the life-boat." But the old men said. "You can never cross the burn." Four miles south, behind the point, there was a village where a life-boat was kept; but just half way a stream ran into the sea, and across this stream there was only a plank bridge. Half a mile below the bridge the water spread far over the broad sand and became very shallow and wide. Dorothy spoke no more, except to say: "I'll away." She ran across the moor for a mile, and then scrambled down to the sand, so that the tearing wind might not impede her. It was dangerous work for the next mile. Every yard of the way she had to splash through the foam, because the great waves were rolling up very near to the foot of the cliffs. An extra strong sea might have caught her off her feet, but she did not think of that; she only thought of saving her breath by escaping the direct onslaught of the wind. When she came to the mouth of the burn her heart failed her for a little. There was three-quarters of a mile of water, covered with creamy foam, and she did not know but what she might be taken out of her depth. Yet she determined to risk it, and plunged in at a run. The sand was hard under foot but she sa'd, when the piled foam came softly up to her waist, she "felt gey funny." Halfway across she stumbled into a hole, caused by a whirling eddy, and she thought all was over; but her nerve never failed her, and she struggled till she got a footing again. When she reached the hard ground she was wet to the neck, and her hair was sodden with her one plunge "over head." Her clothes troubled her with their weight in crossing the moor: so she put off all she did not need: and pressed forward again. Presently she reached the house where the coxswain of the life-boat lived. She gasped out: "The schooner! On the Letch! Norrad."

The coxswain, who had seen the schooner go past, knew what was the matter. He said "Here, wife, look after the lass," and ran out. The "lass" needed looking after, for she had fainted. But her work was well done; the life-boat went round the point, ran north, and took six men ashore from the schooner. The Captain had been washed overboard, but the others were saved by Dorothy's daring and endurance. The girl is as simple as ever, and she knows nothing whatever about Grace Darling. If she were offered any reward she would probably wonder why she should receive any.—St. James' Gazette.

One Rainy Day.

One day, it just rained and rained and rained at our house, and we had to stay in.

And every time we went to play anything, Aunt Nela said: "Oh, stop that noise, children!"

And if you took anything, she said: "Let that be! let that be." And it was awful in the house.

I got a big shawl and spread it over three chairs, and I got my dollies and my dishes and played under the shawl; and I asked Danny wouldn't he play "keep house" just to-day, because it was raining and he couldn't play out doors anyway.

I told him I'd lend him my "Dotty" and my "Sissy" and my very best dolly, "Helena,"—if he'd be real good to her. And I'd keep Rose and Violet and Matilda myself, and then we would have three children apiece.

Rose and Violet are twins. They are made out of two dumb-bells, with a long towel pinned around each of them. They look just exactly alike, and they've got round, bald heads just like real babies.

But Danny wouldn't play keep house. He said he'd never be a tom-girl and play with dolls, no matter if it rained forever and ever and ever:

And then he put his hands in his pockets and looked the way he always does when he won't do it. And then you know there isn't any use in teasing him.

But after a while it didn't rain so hard, and Aunt Nelia said we might go and play in the barn. But we must stay in the barn and not go out into the yard, even if it didn't rain one single drop.

We like to play in the barn.

There isn't anything in it but a big pile of hay—and in one corner there's lots of ears of corn.

We play Danny is a dentist. And the ears of corn are ladies come to have their teeth pulled.

I walk them along over the floor to Danny, and he screws the monkey-wrench down tight on one of the kernels—that's a tooth—and then he gives a pull and out it comes! And then I have to holler like everything for the lady, because it hurts her so.

Danny talks to the lady. He says: "Madam, I won't hurt you in the least." He heard a dentist say that once to a lady.

Danny had a tooth pulled that same time that the lady did, and he never hollered a bit when his tooth was pulled, and it hurt him awful—and bled and bled.

But the lady hollered.

Danny thinks she was a coward.

But I don't; I think it did hurt her. And Aunt Nelia said to Danny: "Wait till you have a double tooth out, and see if you don't holler, too!"

We pulled ever so many teeth that day in the barn. But after a while we got tired of playing that, and we wished we had the new little white pigs in the barn with us to play with. They were only three days old, and they were just as cunning and little as they could be.

Danny said he'd run across to the shed and get us one apiece to play with.

But it was awful muddy in the cow-yard, and I was afraid Aunt Nelia would scold if Danny got his shoes muddy.

But Danny said he would get Uncle Eben's big rubber boots off from the back porch and put on, and then he wouldn't get muddy a bit.

And so he went and got them. And he looked so funny with them on! they came clear up to his jacket on him.

And then he went to get the little pigs.

But afterwards Danny and me wished he hadn't gone for them at all.

He could not walk very well with the big boots on, and when he got most to the shed, he couldn't walk at all. He just couldn't take another step, and his boots sank way down. And it began to rain, and there was Danny sticking in the mud!

Pretty soon he stepped out of the rubber boots, and he began to pull at one of the boots, to get it out, and the boot flew up, and Danny fell right over backwards into the mud.

He got up and oh, he was just as muddy!

And then we had to go into the house, for I couldn't scrape the mud off—and Danny was so wet.

And Aunt Nelia scolded like everything, and she put Danny to bed—all alone up-stairs. And she made me stay down-stairs.

But she didn't know a thing about Uncle Eben's boots—yet.

And I was afraid to tell.

I could see one of them standing in the mud there yet—out of the kitchen window.

I kept looking to see if it was there—and it always was.

After a while Uncle Eben wanted his boots, and he said: "Where are my rubber boots?"

Then I had to show him where one of the boots was, and I told him how it got there, and he wasn't mad a bit. He laughed. But Aunt Nelia said:

"Well, I declare! If I hadn't sent that boy to bed already, I certainly should now!"

And when Uncle Eben went out and got his boot, it was full of water, clear to the top.—Youth's Companion.

What is Demanded of the Boston Reporter.

"This will never do," said the local editor to the new reporter. "You say that 'The man was killed.' That is too tame. You should have said that 'he was crushed into a shapeless mass,' or, his 'reeking corpse presented a ghastly sight.' Then you make the bald statement that 'the doctor was not needed.' 'The services of the physician were not called into requisition'—that's how you should have put it. That's journalism, that is. Then you say nothing of the 'sickening [illegible] painfully neglectful of the fact that 'the man's features were distorted out of all semblance of humanity,' and you haven't a word to say of 'scattered fragments' or of 'blood' or 'bruises' or 'the screams of the horrified spectators.' No. It will never do; journalism has no use for you, young man. Go into something more congenial; go into the ministry, or secure the position of lecturer to a deaf and dumb asylum."—Boston Transcript.

—When Mme. Nilsson, in Atlanta recently, sang "Way Down on the Suwanee River," all the colored people in the gallery cried. Mme. Nilsson, whose brothers and sisters are wedded to their peasant life in Sweden, will, with her adopted son, consider New York as her home.—N. Y. Sun.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. FEB. 28, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	1 "	40
¼ "	1 "	20
1 "	½ "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free: over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

GAMBETTA'S coffin is said to have been buried under $100,000 worth of flowers.

FROM the tone of the state press the wheat looks badly throughout Kentucky.

IN Crittenden county there are nine colored school teachers, and they are going to hold an institute.

THE flood destroyed all the ice that had been put up at Carrollton, but as that is a local option town ice is not a necessity now.

IT is stated that during the last year in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania 296 persons were killed and 1,014 injured, "accidently."

THOMAS G. STUART, of the Winchester Democrat, wants to go back to the legislature and has announced himself a candidate for reelection.

J. J. ORR, who was a candidate for circuit judge in this district three years ago, is now editing the Owen News. Success to him is our wish.

NATHAN BENNETT, jeweler, has been arrested in New York on the charge of receiving the $14,000 worth of jewelry stolen from Senator Christiancy in Washington in 1881.

THE Breckinridge News nominates Henry T. Stanton, of the Frankfort Yeoman, for Register of the Land Office, and gives him a very gracefully written encomium.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 15@7 40; fair to good packers, at $6 75@7 15; fair to good light, $6 85@7 10; common, $6 00@6 60; culls, $4 50@5 65; stock hogs, $5 25@6 25

THE Carrollton Democrat says: "A portion of the Hayden farm, near the lock, has been cultivated in corn for seventy years, continously; and part of the Chats Dean farm, near Worthville, for a much longer period—nearly a hundred years. Such is the value of the deposits from overflows."

THE original South Carolina ordinance of secession is preserved in the office of the Secretary of State at Columbia. It is written on parchment, is entitled an "Ordinance to dissolve the union between the State of South Carolina and other States, united with her under the compact entitled the Constitution of the United States of America," and is very brief, containing besides the title, date, etc., but a little more than 100 words.

WHILE depositions were being taken at Richmond, Virginia, the other day, in the contested Congressional election case of John E. Massie against John S. Wisn, an altercation between the two resulted in Wise slapping Massie in the face. They were both arrested and bailed to appear before the police court. They are both Readjusters, but Massie has repudiated Mahone while Wise is one of his most faithful followers.

GREAT interest was manifested both in and out of the State in the sale of horse stock in Central Kentucky last week. One hundred and forty head of horses were disposed of for $46,555, an everage of $332 53. Seventy out of the 140 went to buyers out of the State. These sold for $21,160 and average of $302 28, Kentucky evidently keeping the cream for herself. Many large private purchases were made by outside parties.—Courier-Journal:

Miscegenation, or marriage between blacks and whites, is forbidden by the laws of nearly every State in the Union, Many persons have regarded, these [illegible] conflict with the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, and an effort was made to have them set aside on that ground. The question has just been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, which takes the position that the amendment is not violated by such laws, because not colored people alone are aimed at by the laws referred to, but white people are punished as well, and there is, therefore, no distinction made on account of race or color—Ex

KENTUCKY COURT OF APPEALS.
FRANKFORT, February 5, 1883.

John A. Roberts, &c.,
vs. } Kenton.
Joseph C. Jenkins, &c.

Judge Lewis delivered the opinion of the court, as follows:

This is an action upon an appeal bond executed by appellee Jenkins, and Norris, his surety, pending an appeal by Jenkins and others vs. the Boone County Court, &c., from a judgment rendered by the Boone circuit court in April, 1872.

It appears that in 1864 appellants borrowed a large sum of money, which was used in the payment of bounties to soldiers enlisted in the United States Army to supply the places of men drafted under a call of the President in July, 1864, to fill the quota of Boone county.

By acts of the General Assembly passed in 1865, the Boone County court was empowered to issue county bonds and to levy a tax upon the property of the county to repay to appellants the amount so advanced and used. But before the bonds were issued and the tax levied, P. B. Cloud and others filed their petition in the Boone Circuit court against Coleman Judge of the county court, and others, including appellants, and obtaining a writ of prohibition enjoining and prohibiting the sale of the bonds and collection of the tax.

This court, in the case of Cloud, &c., vs Coleman, &c., 1 Bush 548 held that the acts referred to were void as to all tax-payers of the county who neither aided in procuring their passage, acquiesced in, approve, nor received benefits from them; but as to others, the acts were self-imposed, and they had no right to repudiate or resist their enforcement.

Upon the return of the case to the circuit court commissioners were appointed to hear proof, to report to the court names of those belonging to any of the classes held liable by this court, and at the April term, 1872, of the circuit court, judgment was rendered, in which it was decided that the only mode for the collection of the necessary money was by a tax to be enforced by the county court, and that the persons whose names were upon the schedules appended to the judgment, appellee Jenkins being one of them, were within some one of the classes held liable to taxation for that purpose according to the opinion of this court in the case of Cloud vs. Coleman.

In July, 1872 the Boone County Court convened for the purpose, as stated in the order then made, of levying a tax upon the persons bound to pay the same, as directed in the judgment of the circuit court rendered in April. And it was then ordered that for the purpose of discharging the amount so adjudged by the circuit court to be raised, the assessments be made against the persons and for the amounts directed by that judgment. At the same term, as required by the acts of 1865, a collector and treasurer were elected by the county court.

After that order was made the appeal from the judgment rendered by the circuit court in April, 1872, before referred to, was brought to this court, and in December, 1875, the judgment was affirmed.

It is alledged in the petition in this case that, in pursuance of the judgment of April, 1872, the Boone county court did levy upon the property of the appellant Jenkins to pay his pro rata portion of the amount to be so collected, such portion being $4,690 75, no part of which he has ever paid.

That he, and Norris, his surety, pending said appeal, executed before clerk of the court of appeals, said supersedeas bond, and thereupon the clerk issued an order of supersedeas commanding the appellees therein, and all others, to stay proceedings on said judgment, which order was served on the county court, and the collector appointed to collect the tax from Jenkins, and collection thereof was thereby stayed.

The appellants in their petition say that by reason of the breach of the covenants of the appeal bond they have been damaged in said sum of $4,690 75, and interest, and pray judgment therefor.

There can be no question but that the effect of the order of supersedeas served upon the county court and collector has not been only to stay, pending the appeal, the collection of the sum appellee Jenkins was held liable for, but has defeated its collection altogether. For as held by this court in the case of Boone county vs Snyder, decided in 1878, MSS. opinion, the acts of 1865, had in December, 1875, when the judgment of 1872 was affirmed by this court, already expired by their own limitation, and of course the special power conferred by them upon the county court to levy and collect the tax had then also ceased.

But whether the legal effect of the order of supersedeas was to stay the collection under the order of the county court is a different question, and one upon which mainly depends the decision in this case.

A supersedeas, in the language of the Civil Code, "is a written order signed by the clerk commanding the appellee and all others to stay proceedings on the judgment or order," meaning, of course the judgment or order appealed from.

By the supersedeas issued in the case of Jenkins and others vs. the Boone County Court, the appellee and all others were commanded to stay proceedings on the judgment of the circuit court and no other. And as Jenkins covenanted in the appeal bond to satisfy and perform that judgment in case it was affirmed, and to pay to appellees all costs and damages that might be adjudged against him on that appeal, he is only liable in this action for such damages as may have resulted from the stay of proceedings on the judgment appealed from.

The judgment of the circuit court was not for money or property, nor did it require appellee to do any act the payment, or render a performance of which could have been enforced by virture of the judgment, or by any process legally issued in pursuance of it. Nor did this Court upon the appeal render, or order to be rendered by the circuit court, a judgment for money or property, or the performance of any act by the appellants in that case.

The appellants in this case could not have enforced under that judgment the collection of the amount now claimed, or any part of it. It therefore follows that the affirmance of the judgment of April, 1862, did not necessarily give to the appellees in that case, or to the intended beneficiaries under the acts of 1865, any right of action against the obligors in the appeal bond for any more than nominal damages, and the cost of the appeal not here sued for. The collection of the amount for which Jenkins was held liable being enforced under the order of the county court of July, 1872, and not under the circuit court judgment, it is obvious the stay of proceedings on the latter judgment did not prevent its collection, or give to the appellees a right of action on the appeal bond unless the stay of proceedings under the judgment necessarily involved the suspension of the order of the county court.

Notwithstanding the persons held liable, as well as the pro rata persons of each, were ascertained and determined by the judgment of the judgment of the circuit court, still, in respect thereto, the judgment was, as is stated in it, merely directory, and neither final nor mandatory; and, in our opinion, the county court had plenary power and jurisdiction, as the case then stood, to not merely determine the persons who were liable, and the amounts they were liable for, according to the decision of this court, but also to make the levy and collection independent of the judgment of the circuit court.

The county court was in the first instance empowered by the acts of 1865 to do, or order done, all that was required by them, and the circuit court obtained jurisdiction alone by virtue of the writ of prohibition, which involved the validity of the acts themselves. But the decision in the case of Cloud vs. Coleman operated to remit to the county court jurisdiction, exclusive of the circuit court, to enforce the provisions of the acts to the extent and against the classes of persons this court held in that case they could be enforced. For the writ of prohibition had spent its force and the circuit court was, after the decision by this court, without the power to render a judgment in respect to the levy and collection of the tax.

It follows, therefore, that the stay of proceedings on the judgment of the circuit court rendered in April, 1872, did not have the legal effect to suspend the order of the county court and prevent the collection of the amount appellee Jenkins was liable for.

This conclusion is in accordance with the opinion of the court in the case of Boone County vs. Snyder, supra, though this question did not arise in that case. There it was distinctly held that the appeal of Jenkins did not supersede or suspend the levy, and presented no obstruction to the collection of the tax under the order of the county court made in July, 1872.

The judgment of the court below sustaining the general demurer to the petition must be affirmed.

HENRY WATTERSON came to time with his big speech on the tariff question, before the Tennessee legislature. It was one of his ablest efforts, and this is saying a great deal.

Tobacco Market.

Cincinnati, Friday, Feb., 23, 1883

The receipts dating from last report were 545 hhds, and 7 boxes, of which 534 hhds. and 6 boxes were "original" or country, and 11 hhds. "city," against 1015 and 42 boxes correponding week last year, of which 960 hhds. and 42 boxes were country and 55 hhds. city. Total receipts of the year to date, 3,046 hhds. and 140 boxes of which 2,304 hhds and 134 boxes were country and 197 hhds. city, against 2,122 hhds. and 194 boxes same time last year, of which 2,935 hhds. and 236 boxes were country and 202 hhds. city.

The offerings for the week beginning last Tuesday, were 562 hhds. and 4 boxes, of which 281 hhds. and 4 boxes were new, against 1,453 hhds. and 27 boxes same time last report, of which 666 hhds and 38 boxes were new, and 671 hhds. and 43 boxes corresponding week last year, of which 440 hhds. and 43 boxes were new.

Total offerings for the year to date 7,739 hhds. and 152 boxes, of which 2,094 hhds. and 136 boxes were new, against 7,039 hhds. and 328 boxes same time last year of which 2,948 hhds. and 287 boxes were new.

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 50@	$3 00
Common Smokers	3 50	5 00
Colory Smokers	5 00	6 00
Colory Trash	6 50	9 00
Good Br't Trash	10 50	15 00
Fine Br't Trash		none
Fancy Bright Leaf	00 00
Dark Lugs	4 00	5 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	11 00
Good Stripping Lugs	11 50	16 00
Fine Str'p'g Lugs	17	25 25
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Leaf	19	22 00
Good Br't Leaf	22 50	25 50
Fine Br't Leaf	26 00	28 00
Com Lug Fillers	7	11 00
Good Lug Fillers	11 50	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	24
Com. Med. Fil'rs	12 00	18 50
Good Med. Fil'rs	19	22
Good L'f Fillers	22 50	25 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	25 50	27 75

A SPLENDID OFFER.
Two First-class Papers and a fine Book for Only $3 00.

We have made arrangements to club with the Indiana Farmer, the largest and best agricultural journal now published, just what every farmer needs. It is a weekly, 52 issues per year of 16 pages each, cut and bound in magazine form in a shape that may be easily preserved and making an elegant volumn. Its contributors include many of the best agricultural writers of the world, and every number contains instructions and suggestions that will be of more value to any live farmer than the subscription price. The regular price of the Indiana Farmer is $2 00 per year. We have made arrangements by which we can furnish the RECORDER and the Indiana Farmer for $3 and, besides this, we will present each subscriber with a VALUABLE DICTIONARY of over 500 pages, bound in cloth, and containing every useful word to be found in the English language, with its true meaning, derivation, spelling and pronunciation, also a vast amount of absolutely necessary information upon Science, Mythology American History, Constitutions, Laws, Land Titles, Cities, Colleges, Army and Navy, Rate of Mortality, Growth of Cities, Insolvent and Assignment Laws, Debts, Rates of Interest, and other useful knowledge, being a perfect library of refference in one handy volume, which alone is worth the price of either paper. Specimens of the INDIANA FARMER, and also the Dictionary, may be seen by calling at this office. Subscribe at once.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday.
Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

1883

THE CINCINNATI NEWS

A DAILY

Democratic Newspaper.

Is published to subscribers at the following

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

By mail postage paid.

Daily and Sunday edition, 1 year	$7
Daily and Sunday edition, 6 months	4
Daily and Sunday edition, 3 months	2

All Subscriptions Invariably in Advance

An extra copy of the paper will be mailed FREE for one year to any person who will raise a club of ten annual subscribers at one postoffice, and forward their names and addresses, together with $60.

BY CARRIER.

Daily and Sunday edition, 15 cents per week, or 65 cents per month, payable to Carrier.

PRICE BY SINGLE COPY.

Daily edition 2c Sunday (double size) 3c

Agents, Carriers, Newsdealers, Newsboys, or any one handling THE NEWS, are required to sell the paper in conformity with the above rates. Address

THE NEWS, Cincinnati O.

Winding Up the Clock.

When the Weary Wheels Were Almost Still, A Lucky Accident Reveals the Lost Key.)

"How long did you say you had it?"

"Twenty-five years."

"What! a bad cough, with occasional attacks of hemorage, for twenty-five years? Why, man it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds left of you

Abraham Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin County Pa., stuck to his statement, and when the exclamations of wonder ceased, he added:

"Exactly. You're right. It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is this, before I actually coughed myself out of existence, I got hold of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and a few bottles of it cured me."

"Cured you? Relieved you, you mean?"

"I mean what I say; it cured me," said Mr. Orner, simply. "I feel like another man."

Please take especial notice: PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is not a mere essence of ginger; not a mere stomachic. The ordinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transient aches, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Tonic covers a far wider and totally different field. It attacks and dissipates radical and chronic diseases of the Lungs, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as delicious to the palate as it is prompt and effective in operation. Ginger is only one among many powerful curatives which the TONIC holds in combination. Test its virtues for that cough of yours, or for any ills which require an invigorant for the whole system.

And, above all, do not permit yourself to be misled. Parker's Ginger tonic stands alone. Nothing else is "just as good." Prices 50 cents and $1. Economy in buying the larger size. Hiscox & Co., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,
BURLINGTON, KY.
HARNESS MAKER
—AND—
DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

☞ Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to
GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

NOTICE.

The public generally and all persons, especially merchants, are hereby notified that my wife Nannie V. Kelly, did, on the 7th day of February, 1883, leave my house and abandon me and my children, without just cause, and that I will not pay or be responsible for any of her acts or debts hereafter made or contracted by her.
This Feb., 9th '83. W. B. KELLY.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,
COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne,	M. C. Motch,	Sam Hind,	E. J. Hickey,	E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson,	J. H. Mersman,	A. R. Mullen,	L. H Dills,	F. P. Helm,
		L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.

dec 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE,

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

540 MADISON STREET,

COVINGTON, - - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

TRADE MARK,

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.

Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

☞ AGENTS WANTED. ☜

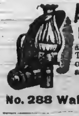
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

DR. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

2 to 100 Horse Power.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 8 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.



AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO.,
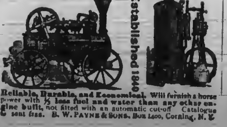
(LIMITED.)
No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.



Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS. Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Exceeds the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys. Washington, D. C.

Local News.

For $1 you can have the RECORDER from March 1st to Jahnary 1st, 1884.

Saturday was a mud maker.

The river receded very reluctantly.

The poor-house has 20 beneficiaries.

The water courses ran out with a rush Saturday.

Next Monday is county and quarterly court.

We have a drug-store in Petersburg, is the remark, now.

The mumps have come to town again One case reported in the East End.

Rev. C. C. Conner occupied the pulpit in the Universalist church Sunday.

Born—On the 21st inst., to John Kirkpatrick and wife, a ten pound boy.

The grand jury at Nicholasville has indicted Black Clarkson for horsestealing.

The taking of depositions preparatory for Circuit Court has commenced on a small scale.

Cincinnati has had its music festival, water festival and next in order is a May festival.

The roads were so bad last week that persons from the country generally walked to town.

The wheels of industry have commenced moving again in those towns that were inundated.

W. T. Ryle will move to the farm occupied by his father on Gunpowder at the time of his death.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best medicine ever produced for all affections of the throat and lungs.

There is but one bad place in the East Bend road and that commences in Burlington and terminates in East Bend.

The Bellevue market should be well supplied with meat, as each of our butchers take down a wagon load once a week.

Everybody came to town Saturday and brought a basket of eggs with them The hens have commenced business in earnest.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

John Kinman, of Kenton county, fell against a circular saw while in motion, last Friday and had the top of his head sawed off.

The colored population is now on the eve of the month they most dread. The March winds are said to cut their wool like sheep shears.

David Blythe left Monday for Hanover, Ind., having come home last week to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, R. C. Green.

Judging from the stock of valentines the merchants have on hand, the demand for that article must have been limited this season.

John Hanarhan, while assisting in filling a grave at a funeral at Friskburg, Kenton county, Friday, fell dead on the grave from heart disease.

Mr. G. T. Gaines was in town the other day mourning the loss of his cat. Now if you know where Gabe's cat is take it home and be rewarded.

Mr. J. J. Berkshire and Mr. Alfred Cason, two fruit growers in this section think the fruit is all right yet, and anticipate a large crop this season

On the hill near Mrs. Rogers' there is a place in the road that is almost impassable. A man and a sack of corn took a tumble there the other day.

The sale of the Jonathan Utz tract of land on Gunpowder to P. A. Ryle by Mrs. Henrietta Huey, it is said was not perfected from some cause of which we are not advised.

The nicest and best load of apples that has come to this town for some time, was that sent here by Miss Julia Dinsmore, last Friday. They were sold readily at two dollars per barrel.

The last account from Richwood was that Zeke Rice is rapidly improving, and no more cases of small-pox have appeared. Rice, it will be remembered was sent to the Covington hospital.

The Lawrenceburg Register acknowledged receipt of aid from neighboring towns, for the flood sufferers; but left Burlington out in the cold, notwithstanding she contributed her mite.

When in Petersburg, call and see me whether you need anything in the drug line or not. I am in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Bradly for a grocery. Call and see me. S. C. BUCHANAN.

The industry of making "tree molasses," which was indulged in by nearly all our citizens several years since, has become one of the things of the past. There is only an occasional sugar orchard in the county now.

As many persons in the county are interested in suits growing out of the Bounty fund case, and which have been recently decided in the Court of Appeals we give the full text of a decision disposing of them, as published in the Frankfort Yeoman.

The Commonwealth, since the flood, has been presenting Covington's advantages for manufacturing interests. There is no reason why that city should not grow rapidly in that particular, as she has many natural advantages which the high water lately demonstrated are wanting among her neighbors.

On the 20th inst., Mr. John Marshall, who lived near Richwood, while working out in a field was taken sick. He beckoned to one of his hands to come to him and sit down on a stump, and in a few moments he was dead. Cause—heart disease.

The Lawrenceburg Register, last week devoted its columns to the ravages of the flood, and showed up a dreadful state of affairs. Every citizen of the town is a loser to some extent. The pluck and determination of the Lawrenceburgers will soon put the city to rights again.

It is said that there is some talk of a saw-mill being erected on the public spring lot in this town. That would be a good place for such a mill, while this locality would certainly furnish a large quantity of work. This point is central and logs would come from a considerable distance. A grist mill would also command a large patronage and we would be truly glad to see some enterprising person or persons start a saw and grist mill here, which properly handled, we believe would soon develop into a flouring mill.

Real Estate Conveyances.

Mary J. Allphin to Mrs. Ann Mathews, 41 acres near Verona—$1,600.

F. A. Boyd to James N. Pearson, 53½ acres near Florence—$6,300.

Wm. M. Balsly to James L. Riley, 21 acres, part of the John T. Riley farm—$1,500.

W. J. Coyle to John Castello, 42 acres on Woolper—$1,500.

M. B. Bartelle to John M. McHatton 22 acres near Union—$3,330.

Geo. R. White to Henry Hoffman, 84¾ acres on Woolper—$2,500.

Wm. Walton to John E. Walton, 338½ acres on Burlington and Bellevue pike—$12,000.

J. H. Hoffman to G. T. Gaines 29 a. 2 r. 33 p. adjoining the town of Burlington—$2,500.

Benj. F. Corbin to Perry A. Weaver, 75 acres near Union—$3,975.

Benj. F. Crisler to Edward F. Clegg, 3 a. 3 r. near Union—$250.

John T. Roberts to James B. Finnell, 14 acres near Verona—$50 per acre.

Trustees Verona School Stock Co., to Ben Q. Roberts lot in Verona—$180.

T. L. Swetnam to J. W. Overhelman, lot in Florence—$250.

H. Clay Duncan to A. W. Corn, 97 acres near Bullittsville—$5,550.

James Florence to Jesse L. Cluster, ⅓ of 86 acres on McCoy's fork of Mudlick Creek—$900.

Same to same, ⅓ interest in 86 acres on McCoy's fork—$900.

Phillip Stoetzer to G. W. Lipp, 55 a. 3 r. 26 p. near Frogtown—$3,900.

John Vance Mulberry to Marion Grubbs all interest in the Gatson tract and Catherin Grubbs' dower—$150.

Joseph E. Nelson to Marion Grubbs interest in same property—$150.

Allen Goodridge to M. A. Gordon, part of the Betsy Hayes tract near Hebron—$475.

Mary F. Goodridge, &c., to Anna Goodridge, lot No. 1 in Walton, Goodridge's land—$375.

The RECORDER 10 months for $1.

REUBEN CLARK GREEN.

The subject of this notice was born in this county, near Bellevue, July 23d, 1822, and, consequently was in his 61st year when he departed this life on the 21st inst. In youthful days he manifested a taste for the legal profession and commenced reading law, and had advanced so far, by his own labors, as to commence practicing in the justices' courts before he attended the law school at Greencastle, Indiana, in 1856 and 1857. Having qualified himself for his profession, he came to Burlington in 1860, and in 1863 offered for County Attorney, to which office he was elected and filled, except, probably, about three months, from that time up to the first Monday in last September, with honor to himself and credit to those who elevated him to that position. While County Attorney he was untiring in his labors on behalf of the interest of the people, and always responded promptly when called to the most remote parts of the county to represent the commonwealth when her ministerial officers required his assistance. The question of remuneration was not considered by him when called upon, but he always pressed forward to the discharge of his official duties without fear or favor. He also held the office of commissioner of common schools for one term, while County Attorney, and it was while he was commissioner that the county was redistricted for school purposes.

As an officer, Reuben Clark Green was efficient and always sought to discharge his duties as such in an honest and manly way; as a friend, he displayed that nobleness of heart that none but the true gentleman can; as a citizen, he was ever willing to lend a helping hand to all meritorious enterprises, and never allowed the calls of charity to go unheeded; as a companion, he was genial, courteous and warm-hearted, and none knew him but to respect and admire his integrity and sterling qualities; as a husband, he was indulgent and happiness and contentment reigned [illegible] death was a great shock to this community, as well as to the county; for there is no man known by more people in Boone county than he was, and we can not realize that he is no longer in our midst.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. C. Conner, at 10 a. m., on the 23d inst., at the residence of the deceased, after which the remains were taken to Highland cemetery and placed in the reception tomb to await final interment.

All persons wishing points or repairs for chilled plows will do well to bring them in by Monday, March court, as I shall send on orders for some the next day. S. A. PALMER.

B. K. Sleet spent last Sunday at home

The egg market declined and that firm went to pieces.

Monday was the birthday of three ladies of one family in Burlington.

Mr. R. W. Neel advertises his farm of 101 acres for sale in this issue.

Mr. Ras Huey has moved into the house lately occupied by James Smith.

Tuesday, of last week, Harry Blythe cut his foot very badly while splitting wood.

Just at this time, it is said, there are many dogs in the county that have no owners.

The people at Union want to hear Mr. Dunlap preach and have invited him to their town.

It is presumed that the bar in the river at Rising Sun was not carried away by the mad stream.

Mr. John Rich, aged 83, died at his home in Kenton county, the other day. He has a great many friends and relatives in this county to mourn his death

Mr. Dunlap, the evangelist, who is holding meeting at Williamstown, had four confessions up to Tuesday. He is going from Williamstown to Union, this county.

Last week we neglected to call attention to S. C. Buchanan's adv. He has opened out a first-class drugstore in Petersburg, and those wanting anything in his line will do well by giving him a call—read his adv.

The weather changes so rapidly that we can't write an item about it for fear it will be exactly the opposite before the item appears in print. But we can say it is very changable. Now, let us see it upset that statement if it can.

Carlisle Mercury: Col. Cooper, the temperance speaker, has been in Carlisle the past few days on a regular old fashioned drunk. The Colonel says he held up all right until he struck Mt. Sterling, which says he, "is a Local Option town, and I got to drinking out of a jug and could not guage her right."

Master Jerome Wilson, aged 11 years, of Rabbit Hash, writes us a very neat letter in which he says our correspondent was mistaken about his having a light attack of typhoid fever. He says it was quite the reverse, his fever ranging as high as 105½° for several days while his pulse was as low as 40 per minute.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on businss or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Last Thursday William Smith and John Hogan, of Union, were over here trying to sell th[illegible]

Mr. James K. Armstrong, who was clerk at the Central Hotel for sometime spent a day or two here this week.

T. W. Finch and W. E. Piper visited Williamstown this week.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

Walter Goodridge sold his fine horse to James Loder for the nice sum of $500. Since Mr. Loder purchased the horse it has been quite sick, and is under the treatment of Dr. Jacob Tanner.

The Rev. L. S. Kiser will be with us again next Lord's day.

Mr. Jacob Tanner tells us that there will be a wedding to report, soon, but did not tell us the names of the parties.

O. P. Dye will start to Warren county, Ill., in a few days, where he will make his future home.

Our roads are in a terrible condition.

On Tuesday of last week about 2 p. m., Mr. L. C. Connet was stricken with paralysis, since which time he has been confined to his bed.

Last week several walnut logs passed through this place enroute to the city.

Mrs. Clarrissa Smith is quite sick at this writing.

Misses Annie Gaines and Mata Smith were the guests of Miss Annie Clore last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Enoch Barlow is lying very low with consumption.

Mr. Jeff Cloud is the owner of the finest horse in this community.

Petersburg.

Died—Wm. Skinner, aged 21 years, at his grandmother's, in Lawrenceburg, Ind. last Friday, of pneumonia, and was brougnt by boat here and put in the vault.

Prayer meeting every Thursday night at the christian church.

Mr. T. H. Green has closed his grocery as he is not able to attend to it.

Petersburg has been praised through the papers as one of the towns that furnished aid to the sufferers in the flood. Petersburg is a small town, but the people are always ready to give a helping hand to their fellow creatures who need assistance. We noticed one paper gave Chas. Schramm and Solon Early a great amount of praise for the work they done. Well, Charley and Solon worked hard and deserve praise and so did many others we shall not mention. We know Solon is the cleverest man in town, for he runs a free omnibus from Petersburg to Poplar Plains, a distance of two miles. We noticed passengers in the 'bus the last trip this evening, and your correspondent asked who the proprietor was, and was informed that his name is Solon, formerly called Brick, and further more said he was always ready to go if he only had one passenger. So you may judge by that, he is clever. The only time he is not ready to go, is when he is waiting for the cat to jump.

Rabbit Hash.

The river at this point is once more within its banks and all are busy putting things to rights and making habitable the deserted homes. The houses vacated were those of W. H. Nelson, Ben Wilson, Jas. Riggs, Thos. Marshall, Mrs. Parsons and Stephen Mock. Our place presents a desolate appearance from the accumulation of drift, disappearance of fences, &c., but no especial damage was done except to the store room occupied by H. S. Pate and owned by S. Mock. It was moved from its foundation, and from his land to that of the ferry property. Mr. Pate has begun to clean and repair the store room of B. Wilson and expects to have his goods on hand in a few days to resume business. Mr. Pate's loss from the flood was considerable and it was feared that he would be too much discouraged to come back to our town, but as he has, we hope his efforts will be appreciated by even a better patronage than before the flood

The residents of our town will always be grateful to those who acted so nobly in helping them to save their household goods wading in water waist deep and running other risks without any compensation for their labors.

Considerable corn was lost by the high water. Fillmore Ryle and Mrs. E. J. Piatt lost 600 bu., Milton Kirtley 1000 bu.; Jno. Hodges 200 bu.

Our school has been closed for the past two weeks, from the fact that our teacher Mr. Bell, lives on the river and was compelled to stay at home to prevent some of his effects from floating off.

O. M. Ryle has vacated the house of Mrs. E. J. Piatt, and Fillmore Ryle will take possession in a short time having rented the farm the present year.

Mrs. L. L. Stephens is on the sick list.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat, adjoining the lands of Alfred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W NEEL, feb28-3m Burlington, Ky.

TAKEN UP.

Taken up as a stray by Ephraim Helm, living on the Anderson Ferry and Minneola turnpike road about 1 mile from Anderson Ferry, in Boone county, on or about the 8th day of September, 1882, one red and white spotted cow with underbit mark on the right ear, and right horn drooped, but having no other brands or marks. Which I have appraised at $15.

Witness my hand this 3d day of January 1883. JOSEPH WAGSTAFF, J. P. B. C.

PROSPECTUS —OF THE— CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, posessing facilties for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vasts quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departsments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for speaimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR

DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undeniably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year	$1 15
One copy, six months	65

Agents sending us 7 sub cribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,

Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS,

201 York street Jersey City, N. J.

☞ Mention this paper. jan 17-83

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an Illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

ROBERT B. REED

Attorney at Law.

OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,

ATTORNEY at LAW,

BURLINGTON, KY.

☞ Office opposite the Boone House. ☜

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. [illegible].

NORMAN and STEPHENS,

ATTORNEYS at LAW.

UNION, BOONE CO., KY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.

LANDRAM & HUGHES.

ATTORNEYS at LAW.

Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.

Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW

BURLINGTON, - - - Y

Office in Court-house on 2d floor.

Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN

RESIDENT DENTIST.

Aurora, Indiana.

(Office Over Postoffice)

With J. P. ULREY.

Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,

Rising Sun, Ind.

WITH

J. P. Ulrey.

Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. E. VEST,

COUNTY SURVEYOR

WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.

(Formerly of Covington.)

—Dealers in Fine—

BOOTS AND SHOES,

106 W. 5th Street,

CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.

☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,

BURLINGTON, KY.

C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,

CARPENTER & BUILDER,

BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move

EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS

On Short Notice,

And at the Lowest Possible Figures.

38-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

INSURE AT HOME

The Farmers' Mutual Fire

INSURANCE COMPANY

Of Boone County

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower

Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a

HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE

In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY

should take a policy at once.

N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.	J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.

R. RANDALL, Treasury.

DIRECTORS.

LEGRAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,

JNO. M. MOODY.

Fresh, Fat and Fine.

Mackerel by the half Barrel and Kit. And all Kinds of

CANNED GOODS.

—A FRESH STOCK OF—

Garden and Flower Seeds.

DRIED PEACHES and PRUNES at

W. E. PIPER'S.

DUDLEY ROUSE

BURLINGTON, KY.

Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple

DRY GOODS AND

NOTIONS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.

Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.

QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

DRUGS & MEDICINES

I have nearly filled up my stock of

PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.

I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of

Stationary, Fancy and Toilet

—Articles. Also have a fine line of—

CIGARS AND TOBACCO.

I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,

Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.

☞ Third door from the corner, in Mr. Bradly's building.

N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY.

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of

BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,

And having just received a beautiful

NEW HEARSE,

Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.

PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.

sOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

City Flouring Mills

RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar7-tf28 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE

RECORDER,

Your Own County Paper.

THE EAGLE

DRUG STORE,

—IS POSITIVELY—

THE CHEAPEST

—HOUSE IN—

RISING SUN, IND.

Where will be found a fresh stock of

DRUGS,

PAINTS,

OILS,

PUTTY and

WINDOW GLASS,

SCHOOL BOOKS

—AND—

STATIONERY,

all at bottom prices.

GIVE US A CALL.

D. C. Thorn,

Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.

6-3m

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere. Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

J. W. MILLER,

—DEALER IN—

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

432 Madison St.

COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

AURORA MARBLE AND GRANITE WORKS,

Aurora, Ind

Will have constantly on hand

Marble and Granite Monuments,

Italian & American Headstones, &c.

I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices. Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,

F. W. KASSEBAUM.

TEACHERS WANTED $100. Per Month. Steady Employment during SPRING and SUMMER. Address J. C. McCURDY & Co., Cincinnati, O.

THE RECORDER.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY.

THE MODERN DAVID.

In a quiet old town in the hills of New Hampshire,
Some fifty years since—or it may be three-score—
Lived a preacher beloved and revered by his people,
Who called him "the Elder"; nor need we know more.
Many years he had led them by purest example;
Many years he had led them with precepts divine;
Had married and buried, baptized and befriended,
Had broken the bread and had poured out the wine.
So peaceful his life and so healthful his habits,
Though sixty, he yet was as straight as a mast,
His cheeks like red apples, his laugh ever ready,
His hair thick and glossy, though silvering fast.
His girls were all married and settled around him
With husbands and children and cares of their own;
His sons too, had left him for business and college,
And he and his wife were now living alone.
Alone—yes, and lonely for lack of the children;
The house was so still it was fairly forlorn;
He found the hours heavy when weary of study,
When all chopped was the wood, and all hoed was the corn
His wife had grown feeble, and seldom went with him
In the heavy-topped chaise to make calls on the sheep.
But in warm afternoons, when her house was in order,
Would retire to the bedroom, and there fall asleep.
The Elder, deserted, one day fell a-thinking
Of David of old, who, when his plans went wrong,
Could solace his sorrows, forget all his trials,
By the aid of sweet music, with harp and with song.
"Oh, could I but do likewise," the good man reflected,
"How swiftly, how smoothly, these moments would glide!
The complaints of my deacons, the lack of my children,
The advances of age, I could then well abide,
But alas for the harp! for I never yet saw one;
And alas for the songs! for I never could rhyme.
A jew's-harp I've mastered, but that can't content me.
O David, what would you have played in my time?
My people would laugh if I bought me a fiddle;
To flute and bass-viol I do not incline;
Too old are my fingers to play on a spinet,
Nor could I afford one. I must not repine."
So he stifled his longings, and almost forgot them,
Till one day to the city on business he went;
And while threading its mazes, confused by its tumult,
"What sweet sounds are those with its clamor now blent?"
Smile not at the rustical ear of the Elder.
"'Tis only a hand-organ," answered his son.
And the old man passed on, but his pulses were leaping,
And before he went home he bought himself one
Of the best German make, with three separate barrels,
And each barrel played for him ten distinct airs
Just by turning the handle. O blessed invention!
He felt it an answer direct to his prayers.
No day was now long, and no labor seemed tedious,
With this fountain of melody ever at hand
To pour forth its treasures of soothing refreshment,
An oasis of joy in a dull prosy land.
As it made his wife nervous, 'twas kept in the garret
(In the rose of his joy this had been the sole thorn);
And there, all alone in the brown-raftered chamber,
'Mid festoons of dried apple, of sage, and seed corn,
The Elder would sit, when his day's work was over,
With a smile on his face as he ground out the air,
While the long dusty sunbeams streamed in the west window,
Gently touched his broad shoulders and crowned his white hair.
'Twas thus he was seen unawares by Miss Kitty,
A sweet city maiden betrothed to his son,
Who, spending a week on the farm of his daughter,
Strolled over to call on the parents of John.
'Twas a day in mid-June, and the old-fashioned roses,
Deep red and pure white, were in bloom round the door,
Which stood frankly open, the cat on the threshold,
And a gay braided mat to protect the white floor.
Most welcome the coolness and shade of the kitchen,
But where was the Elder, and where was the dame?
Profound was the stillness, save pussy's soft purring,
And a similar sound from the bedroom that came.
Light tiptoed the maiden through kitchen, past bedroom,
To the sitting-room, study. No Elder was there.
But hark! a sweet sound is now heard in the distance.
Bewildered, she follows it, climbs the steep stair,
Then gropes her way onward through darkened guest-chambers,
And climbs to the garret still led by the sound.
'Tis her favorite waltz! "Now surely I'm dreaming?"
Exclaims pretty Kitty in wonder profound.
At the top of the stair she peeps cautiously round her
Half screened by blue "comforters" hung on a line,
And there sat the blessed old saint at his organ,
Grinding out dancing music in rapture divine.
Do you think Kitty laughed as she stood there beholding
The simple old man by his organ beguiled,
The foreground of blankets, herbs, andirons and apples,
And the clumsy old cradle that held John, a child?
No; she listened in silence, bright tears on her lashes,
Till he ceased. Then she crept unsuspected away,
And a new love for John and his gentle old father
Seemed to grow in her heart from the scene of that day.

—Laura D. Nichols, in Harper's Monthly.

WHY I DROPPED MISS SKINNER'S ACQUAINTANCE.

"So your husband's mother is coming to live with you," remarked Miss Susan Skinner, contemptuously, giving her head a toss which set all the little pink bows a-dancing.

"Why, yes, Miss Susan," said I, opening my eyes in surprise at my visitor's tone, "mother Grey's last child has married and moved away from her, and now she is left quite alone. Henry always was her favorite, and I, knowing it would please him, suggested that she should rent or sell the farm, and make her home with us, and she has consented to do so."

"Humph! all the more fool you! You have got yourself into a pretty fix now, Mary Grey. She will never leave you as long as she lives; you can make up your mind to that, and bid good-by to peace for the rest of your days."

"Why, Miss Susan," said I, regarding my old neighbor with surprise. "I don't understand you. I am sure I never want mother to leave us, and as for peace, what difference can her coming make?"

"Oh, you'll see," replied Miss Susan, nodding her head wisely. "You'll see! You will repent of your bargain before a month is over, mind what I tell you. Of all the mean, conniving, meddlesome women in the world, it is a mother-in-law."

I began to feel a little annoyed. "What do you know about it?" I could not refrain from saying.

"Humph! you needn't twit me with being an old maid, Mary Grey! I thank my stars that I'm not tied to any man, nor what's worse, to any man's mother. What do I know about mothers-in-law? More than I want to, goodness knows! Why, there was my cousin Lucinda, who was obliged to leave her husband, and go home to her father, just on account of her mother-in-law; and Alice Lawson, poor, little weak creature, who used to live in this very house, was so imposed upon and ill-used by her husband's mother, that they do say it killed her; any way, she died just three months after her mother-in-law came to live with her. Why, I know of lots of such cases, and, if a woman isn't awfully strong-minded, her mother-in-law just runs right over her, and rules the house, and if she is strong-minded, they are continually jangling and quarreling, so you see that, altogether, a woman's best way is to keep entirely away from her mother-in-law."

"But, Miss Susan, these are only exceptional cases," said I. "I am sure there are good and true women in the world belonging to this class."

"Well, I'd just like to see one of them, that's all! I see it's no use arguing with you, Mary; you're too set in your own way; mark my words, my dear, you will rue the day you ever let that woman come into your house," said Miss Susan, in a tone of settled conviction. "When do you expect Mrs. Grey?" she asked, rising.

"To-morrow evening."

"So soon? Well, I'm sure I hope you will be able to get along with her," answered Miss Susan, with a little sympathetic sigh.

Often, during the remainder of that day and the next I found myself wondering what my husband's mother was like. He had always seemed so proud and fond of her, that I was predisposed to love her; to regard her with that reverence and affection which I had cherished for my own dead mother. I thought how nice it would be to have some one to whom I could go with all my little troubles and anxieties, some one who would sympathize with and counsel me; and how pleasant it would be for Henry to have his mother always near him, where he could watch over and care for her.

We would make such a happy family; Henry and myself, grandma, and Baby Henry.

Then, in opposition to all these pleasant thoughts, would come up in spite of me the gloomy warnings and forebodings which Miss Susan Skinner had uttered. Could Henry's mother be "mean, conniving, meddlesome," or disagreeable in any way? No, a thousand times no. And yet the sharply spoken words had left their sting, and I could not drive the memory of them from my mind.

When train-time arrived, baby and I took our station at the window, to watch for "grandma." Soon the sound of wheels was heard, and Henry drove up to the door, and handed out a lady.

"Mother, this is your daughter, Mary."

I looked up, and met a pair of gentle blue eyes looking out wistfully from a kindly old face.

"Mary, will you let me be your mother, as well as Henry's?" asked the lady, holding out her hands; and I answered, embracing her warmly:

"Indeed I will! Welcome home, mother."

Miss Skinner, peeping from behind her blinds across the street, saw the act, and understood it.

"Oh! that's all very fine," she muttered, contemptuously. "A new broom sweeps clean. Wait a few weeks, and then we shall see."

Time sped along happily for months, and it seemed as if Miss Skinner would have to be disappointed, for no happier family existed than ours. I felt like singing all the time, and often told Henry if I was only rich enough to have a piano, I should be almost too happy to live, for I would sing and play continually. The unpleasant effects of Miss Skinner's prediction were gradually wearing off, but she felt it her duty to run in often enough to keep me suspicious. As she left me one evening, after putting baby to bed, I ran down to the parlor to get my sewing, which I had left on the table before tea. The door did not open readily, and I tried it again, but found it was locked. I was sure I heard Henry's and his mother's voice within, and thinking the door had become fastened accidentally, I called out to open it.

"Oh! is that you, Mary?" he answered. "Run upstairs and get my cigar-case, will you?"

I did so, and when I came down again, found the door open, and Henry sitting by the table reading.

"Where is mother?" I asked.

"Wasn't she upstairs with you?" replied Henry, keeping his eyes fixed on his book.

"Why, no; I thought she was here."

"Well, you see you are mistaken," he answered.

I did not reply, but took up my work and sewed away busily, my thoughts keeping time with my fingers. I was positively certain I had heard Mrs. Grey's voice in a low-toned conversation with Henry, and yet he had the same as denied her presence there. It was the first time he had ever equivocated to me, and I could not overlook it lightly without knowing the reason. Why had he done so? Was Miss Skinner right after all? Was there anything secret between him and his mother from which I was excluded, and if so, what could be the nature of it.

"Well, never mind," I thought, "it might have been about Mrs. Grey's affairs, and had nothing to do with me, but then, why need Henry have equivocated about the matter?"

The little affair troubled me considerably, and my uneasiness was very much augmented a few days afterward.

I was in the kitchen that morning, putting the finishing touches to the preparations for breakfast, when Mrs. Grey and Henry entered the dining-room, and I heard him ask:

"Are you sure Mary knows nothing about this matter?"

"Yes, I am quite certain of it;" said Mrs. Grey, "and I think we have been fortunate keeping it from her."

"Yes, it would never do for her to find it out now," Henry answered

Alas! alas for my piece of mind! I waited to hear no more, but ran out into the back hall and upstairs, whence I appeared in the dining-room as the breakfast bell rang, looking a little flushed and excited, but not enough so to cause comment.

After breakfast Mrs. Grey went out to make some little [illegible], and I sat down in my husband's big arm-chair in the sitting room, and tried to reason myself out of my absurd fears and suspicions.

What was it that my husband and his mother were trying to keep from me? Why did they treat me like a child in my own house? It was shameful, and I was indignant.

My meditations were interrupted by the entrance of Miss Skinner, who "had run over to have a little chat," as she said.

"Why, my dear!" she exclaimed at first sight of me, "how poorly you are looking! What is the matter?"

"Nothing serious. I was very busy yesterday, and am a little tired."

"Ah! one more in the family makes more work, I know. It won't do to wear yourself out this way; you must let your mother-in-law do her share of the work."

"Ah! indeed she does," exclaimed I, quickly, "even more than I want her to, sometimes."

"Well, it seems to me she goes out more than you do."

"And so she ought. I have Harry to claim my attention."

"And she receives callers, too."

"I think you must be mistaken, Miss Susan. She has made no acquaintances since coming here."

"But I certainly saw a gentleman come here, two days ago, when you were down town."

"A gentleman!"

"Yes, and she met him at the door herself. Mr. Grey came home in about half an hour and took him away with him."

"Oh! it was probably some friend of Henry's."

"Perhaps so," replied Miss Susan, doubtingly. She soon after took her departure, leaving my mind in a very troubled state.

In vain did I try to reason with myself; to persuade myself that all this was no concern of mine, it should not trouble me; still I could not help connecting the visit of this gentleman with the mysterious private conversation. Why was I not thought worthy of their confidence? Why all this secret plotting and scheming?

In spite of myself, all Miss Skinner's warnings of a few weeks before came back to my mind with redoubled force, and I could have wished myself deaf before ever listening to that hateful woman.

Suspect my husband's mother, that sweet, gentle-faced woman, of any treason toward me! No, indeed, I will not!

Still, almost daily I found myself interrupting stolen conversations, and stumbling upon evidences of the secret, and add to this Miss Skinner's almost daily "chats" with me, which always left me feeling uncomfortably with the world in general and my mother-in-law in particular, no wonder I grew thin and pale, and lost my appetite. Mr. Grey and his mother wondered at it, and tried in vain to raise my spirits. My husband took me out driving daily.

One day Henry said he was going to take me for a good long drive, for I needed it, he said. I pleaded that I was too busy when the time for my drive came; but Henry would not listen to it, and I put on my wraps and went. The air was clear and keen, and I felt much refreshed and invigorated when at last we drew up before the door of our own home.

"Run up stairs and take your wraps off, Mary, and then come right down; I want to show you something," said Henry, as he helped me out.

When I came downstairs, he was waiting in the hall; and drawing my hand through his arm, conducted me to the parlor.

"What is it you wish me to see, Henry?" I asked, as we entered the room.

"Find out for yourself," he answered, playfully.

I raised my eyes and then gave a shrill scream of delight, and, with a bound, was across the room, standing beside a superb piano.

"Oh, Henry! where did this come from? What a perfect beauty! Is it really for me? Oh, how can I ever thank you?"

"One question at a time, my dear; but I will answer your last one first. You have no right to thank me for this beautiful present Here is the giver," replied Henry, going up to his mother, who had stood a quiet spectator of my pleasure, and putting his arm around her.

"Mother! Is it possible! Oh, you darling! How can I ever thank you?" cried I, throwing my arms, too, around Mrs. Grey, and giving her a rapturous hug.

"I am well surrounded, I see," she said, smiling on us, proudly, and then added:

"I am glad you are pleased with your piano, Mary, and you shall repay me by getting all the enjoyment from it that you can."

"It is something I have wanted ever since we were married," said I, "but Henry could not quite afford it."

"And now you have your heart's desire," said Henry, "but at the expense of a little sinning, I am afraid. Do you remember one evening, about two weeks ago, when you found the parlor door locked? Mother and I were holding a consultation when you came, and I sent you after the cigar-case to give her time to run away. I came very near telling a fib that night."

"Yes," said his mother, "such planning and plotting as we have had. The other day, when the man came to make the final arrangements about bringing the piano, you were down town, and I was so afraid that you would return unexpectedly; and this afternoon they came and put it up while you were out driving, but I knew Henry would not bring you home too soon."

I felt myself turning sick and faint. This, then, was the secret which had tormented me so; the innocent plots and plans prompted by loving hearts! What a monster I was to have suspected this noble woman of any wrong! I felt like humbling myself in the dust before her.

"How white you are, child! The excitement has been too much for you," said Mrs. Grey.

But I knew better. Still I kept my secret locked in my own heart; not by a word would I let this gentle woman know how I had been tempted to doubt her.

And now, this is the real reason why I have gradually dropped Miss Susan Skinner's acquaintance, and why that worthy spinster often complains how "dreadfully uppish some folks have grown;" but I am only too glad to be able to keep out of the reach of her tongue; and, in the absence of my husband, I find my greatest comfort and delight in the society of my mother-in-law, dear old "grandma," than whom both baby and I think there is no better woman on earth.—G. Jewell, in Christian at Work.

—A young woman in Bradford County, Pa., went before a Justice of the Peace with the man of her choice and several witnesses, and made herself a wife, satisfactorily to herself, by a simple promise of fidelity, claiming nothing from her spouse as a legal right, and insisted upon no ceremony. There were no vows given under the form of the law, and no pledges. The Justice took no part in the marriage, but sat in the room only as a witness.—Pittsburgh Post.

—Thirty-one years ago United States Senator Henry G. Davis was a brakeman on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He always called out the names of stations so that passengers could understand whether he said "Kammschatka" or "Fogg's Ferry," and a grateful people sent him to Congress.—Chicago News.

HOME AND FARM.

—We have known calves to refuse meal and water, where if a little bran or bran and the least bit of sugar were added they would take readily to it.

—Sweet Apple Pie: For a common plate pie, grate one and one-half large sweet apples, add one egg, one cup of sweet cream, and milk sufficient to fill the plate. Bake with one crust.—The Household.

—Chocolate Pudding: One quart of milk, three ounces of grated chocolate. Scald them both together. When cool add the yelks of five eggs and one cupful of sugar. Bake about twenty-five minutes. Beat the whites of the eggs for the top. Brown in the oven. To be eaten cold.—Exchange.

—The New England Farmer can hardly imagine a greater misfortune to an old horse than that he should fall into the hands of an ignorant and passionate person with intemperate habits. There is no place where an old horse is or can be worth more than on a farm, and no farmer should be inhuman enough to trade off an old family pet to an unknown or unkind person.

—If winter grain is covered with deep snow it will sometimes smother, especially near fences where the snow is piled in drifts. A good plan to prevent all danger is to punch holes through the snow with a crow-bar, reaching to the ground. This will admit needed air, and the snow banks will then prove a valuable protection to the plants. The holes should be three to five feet apart all the length of the bank.—N. Y. Times.

—Baking Corned Beef: Put ten or fifteen pounds of the hind leg of beef into a large pan, and scatter over it one teacupful of fine salt, mixed with the same quantity of brown sugar, a tablespoonful of ground allspice, the same of pepper, a teaspoonful of saltpeter, and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Rub these ingredients thoroughly into the beef every day for a week or ten days. Then wash it clean and put suet, chopped finely, all over it; cover it with flour and water paste, and bake in the oven for five or six hours. Serve cold, cut into thin slices.—Toledo Blade.

—One of the peculiar features of farming in the district, covering 376 square miles, known as the wolds in Yorkshire, England, is what is termed the hind's, or farm foreman's, house. Attached to, yet quite separate from, the foreman's abode, is a sort of barrack, containing a mess-room, communicating with the foreman's kitchen. Above the mess-room are a couple of rooms for sick men, and sleeping-rooms for the laborers are in an adjoining connected building. The men are hired, by the year, and the foreman is allowed from $1.50 to $2 per week for their board, and also supplied with skim milk and vegetables. On smaller farms the laborers lodge in the tenant's house. The system is said to work well.—Chicago News.

—A farmer who has used a wagon with broad tires on wheels long enough to ascertain their relative value as compared with narrow tires, writes in the Farmers' Review: "A four-inch tire will carry two tons over soft ground with greater ease to the team than a two-and-a-half-inch tire will carry one ton. The wheels are not so much strained by stones and rough tracks on the road, and the road is not cut up, but, on the contrary, is packed down and keeps smooth. The prevalent idea that the draft is increased by widening the tire is altogether baseless; on the contrary, a wide tire reduces the draft. The extra cost of the tire is repaid many times over every year in the extra work that can be done by a team."

French and American Fire Laws.

Nine out of ten of the churches, hospitals, warehouses and dwellings, etc., of this and other cities—not omitting libraries, city buildings, and school-houses—are complete examples of the work of the masters of combustible building and architecture. They are faced on the outside with a stone, brick, or iron sham, in the design of which what is miscalled art has been attempted. In the first eleven months of 1882 there were burned within the limits of the United States: 362 hotels, 99 churches, 7 hospitals, 14 asylums, 6 almshouses, 62 school-houses, 13 college buildings, 20 court-houses, 2 custom-houses; total, 585. These special specimens of the work of the combustible builders and architects of our land formed a part of the ash-heap of 1882, valued at $90,000,000. It would be quite safe to affirm that an additional cost, ranging from one to two per cent. upon the construction of these 585 specimens of the incendiary art of the combustible architect which are recited above, would have saved at least two-thirds of the loss of property, and might save a much larger proportion of the loss of life which is now apt to occur when any of the buildings named in this list take fire. In every case of serious fire an inquest should be held as to its cause and course, the names of owners, tenants, architects, builders, and underwriters published, and the faults of construction distinctly stated; in other words, let the principle of the French law be applied here, not only in court, but in trial by newspaper. It has lately been stated to me by a French underwriter, as follows: In France all persons having fires on their premises are looked upon as pseudo-criminals, the onus of proof of their innocence lying with them. You will observe that we burn more than one hotel per day, more than two churches per week, and more than two hospitals, asylums, or almshouses per month in this country, which yet prides itself on its common schools, and which claims especial merit for "gumption," mechanical aptitude, and versatility of talent. But we waste in the costs of fires, cost of fire department, and cost of sustaining our system of insurance, aside from losses, somewhere between $120,000,000 and $140,000,000 per year—a sum which is more than $1 in every hundred of the gross product of the whole nation; which is more than ten per cent. upon the annual savings or net incomes of the people in a year of greatest prosperity, and which is in great measure a useless, because perfectly avoidable, tax, which is eighteen to twenty per cent. to the $700,000,000 of National, State, and municipal taxes which are now collected and paid under our laws.—Boston Advertiser.

—One of the correspondents tells of a lady in Washington society who lately attended six entertainments between noon and midnight the same day. First she went to a twelve o'clock breakfast, then to a two o'clock lunch, next to a "tea" from four to seven, thence to a dinner at half past seven, and afterward to a reception, and then to a german. The correspondent adds that the lady is "something of an invalid." She seems to be.—Chicago Herald.

—Robert Collyer's recent lecture on "How to be young at eighty," was attended by crowds of the ladies of New York.—N. Y. Mail.

—Henry Vincent, the English lecturer, related to an American that he was driving with John Bright when the news of Abraham Lincoln's death was told them by a man who stopped their carriage by the wayside for that purpose. Neither of the two Englishmen spoke a word in response. They drove on in utter silence, and by-and-by when each looked up at the other's face the eyes of both were full of tears.

—A seaside hotel-keeper in New Jersey, who has been sued for keeping an unhealthy hotel, testified that his receipts were $4,000 a week—his profits, $2,500. His charges were $4.00 a day; it cost $1.50 to feed and lodge a guest, and he puts $2.50 in his pocket. But many people are proud to pay a landlord this sum for the pleasure of being poisoned with his typhoid fever.—N. Y. Sun.

—Servant girls in and about Denver, Col., speculate in "city lots" just as they did in mining shares in San Francisco a year or two ago. Cooks residing in Colorado Springs and other towns are allowed a day off occasionally in order to go to Denver and "see their brokers."—Denver Tribune.

The Tall Sycamore of the Wabash.

The special correspondent of the Indianapolis (Ind.) Journal, embodied in a recent communication the following from Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees: I consider St. Jacobs Oil a splendid remedy. I suffered from an affection of the back and kidneys, with some rheumatism—in fact it was rheumatism of the back. I used St. Jacobs Oil, and found it very efficacious. It gave me instantaneous relief, and finally cured me completely.

THE Popular Science Monthly asks: "What are crowds!" The science of love says the third party is a large crowd.—New Haven Register.

"Female Complaints."

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I was sick for six years, and could scarcely walk about the house. My breath was short and I suffered from pain in my breast and stomach all the time; also from palpitation and an internal fever, or burning sensation, and experienced frequent smothering or choking sensations. I also suffered from pain low down across my bowels and in my back, and was much reduced in flesh. I have used your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription," and feel that I am well.

Very respectfully,
DELILAH B. MCMILLAN, Arlington, Ga.

THE man who was "largely instrumental" was probably of a mechanical turn of mind.

WHY don't you use St. Patrick's Salve? Try it. Use it. 25c at all druggists.

A COOPER-SHOP must be a sorrowful place. You always find the barrels in tiers.

Cancers and Other Tumors are treated with unusual success by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Send stamp for pamphlet.

FOR weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, consumption, night sweats and all lingering coughs, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy. Superior to cod liver oil. By druggists.

THE toothless man ought to be a sweet talker, for all his words must of necessity be gum drops.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Few Out-Door Sports.

Lawn Tennis, boating, fishing, hunting, riding, all such out-door exercises, impart a healthful glow to the cheeks and a buoyancy to the spirits. All invalids suffering from dyspepsia, kidney or liver troubles, biliousness, &c., can by using a few bottles of Mishler's Herb Bitters, costing only $1 a bottle, participate in all these health-giving recreations. Try it. The experiment is cheap, and the result certain.

THE latest thing in homes—Husbands.—N. Y. Journal.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Has cured many people of coughs. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

A BOARD full of nails is the worst we ever saw.—N. Y. News.

STRAIGHTEN your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again. Sold by shoe and hardware dealers.

A YOUNG man whose girl's name was Susan said that when he left this world he wanted to do so by Susy's side.

CELLULOID Collars and Cuffs for gentlemen are easily washed and do not require ironing.

IT is a very small potato, either in the vegetable or animal world, that is most likely to be mashed.

REDDING'S Russia Salve is the most wonderful healing medium in the world. Try it.

ONE way to give a man "a chance to rise in the world"—knock him down

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, February 26, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 50	@	3 50
Choice butchers	4 75	@	5 50
HOGS—Common	6 00	@	6 60
Good packers	6 85	@	7 20
SHEEP	3 00	@	5 75
FLOUR—Family	5 85	@
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 14	@
No. 2 winter red	1 12	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	56½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed, new	44¼	@
Rye—No. 2	68	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@	11 75
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@	9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 25	@	18 50
Lard—Steam	11	@	11-5
BUTTER—Western Reserve	20	@	23
Prime Creamery	40	@	43
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 75	@	2 90
Apples, prime, per barrel	4 00	@	4 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@	8 90
Good to choice	4 60	@	7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No 2 red	1 22⅞	@	1 24½
No. 1 white	1 17	@	1 17¾
Corn—No 2 mixed	71	@	72½
Oats—mixed	49	@	52
PORK—Mess	19 00	@	19 25
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@	5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 11	@
Corn—No. 2	56¾	@	57
Oats—No. 2	39½	@
Rye	66	@
PORK—Mess	18 15	@	18 20
LARD—Steam	11-85	@
WHISKY	1 17	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 21	@	1 21½
Corn—Mixed	74	@	74½
Oats—Mixed	47	@	51
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	20 00	@
Lard—Refined	12¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling		9¾	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 50	@	4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 10	@	1 12
Corn—Mixed	52	@	54
Oats—Mixed	44	@
PORK—Mess	9 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 10½	@
CORN	55	@
OATS—White, new	40	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@	4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@	6 00

ST. JACOBS OIL TRADE MARK

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES. Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

Another Life Saved.

Mrs. Harriet Cummings, of Cincinnati, O., writes: Early last winter my daughter was attacked with a severe cold which settled on her lungs. We tried several medicines, none of which seemed to do her any good, but she continued to get worse, and finally raised large amounts of blood from her lungs. We called in a family physician, but he failed to do her any good. We then called in a physician—a most skillful professor in one of our colleges—he said that she could not get well. At this time a friend who had been cured by DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, advised me to give it a trial. We then got a bottle and before she had used it all up she began to improve, and by the use of three bottles was entirely cured.

NO RESPECTABLE tailor ever pants for fame; it's something he never in-vests in.

A SLIGHT COLD, if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and immediate relief. Sold only in boxes.

THE man who was hanged at the yard-arm had his obituary under the head of "Ship noose."

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

A TELEGRAPH wire is like a mustache. It is of no use when it is down.—N. O. Picayune.

GENTLEMEN who witnessed the quail-eating performance at Gabe Case's say that the wager was won by the aid of Gastrine, the only liquid which was drunk with the repast.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

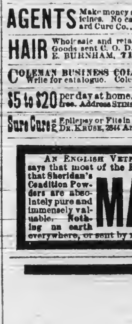
TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

A Brave and Faithful Guardian of Our Homes and Property Rescued from Imminent Peril.

A VERY popular and well-known member of our police force, who has performed duty twelve years at the Union R. R. Depot, on Exchange Place, in Providence, R. I., gives his unsolicited testimony. Hear him:

"I have been dreadfully troubled with disease of the Kidneys and Liver during the past six months; at times I was so severely afflicted that I was unable to stand on my feet, as my feet and lower parts of my legs were very badly swollen, my urinary organs were in a dreadful condition, my blood was in a wretched state, and it had become so impoverished and circulated so poorly that my hands and feet would be cold and numb and so white as to appear lifeless. I could not rest nights, but was so distressed all over that I could not lie still in bed, but would keep turning and rolling from one side to the other all night, so that I would feel more tired and exhausted in the morning than when I went to bed. My condition became so serious that I was obliged to stop work, and for thirty days I was unable to be on duty. I consulted the best doctors, and tried the numerous medicines and so-called cures, but rapidly grew worse, and was in a sad condition every way when a long-time valued friend of mine, prominent in this city in a large express company, urged me to try Hunt's Remedy, as he had known of wonderful cures effected by it. Upon his representation I obtained two bottles of it and commenced taking it as directed, and greatly to my surprise in less than twenty-four hours I commenced to feel relieved. I was in an awful condition when I began to take Hunt's Remedy, and had no faith in it; therefore, when I found almost immediate relief, even in one day's use of it, my heart was made glad, and I assure you I continued to take it and to improve constantly from day to day. took it with me on my trip to Maine, for I was bound to have it with me all the time, and the result is that I improved speedily all the time I was away, and ever since my arrival home, which was several weeks ago, I have been on duty every day. I feel first-rate, and the swelling of hand, feet and legs have disappeared, and the terrible backache, which used to bother me more than all the rest, troubles me no more, and I sleep splendidly nights, and surely have very excellent and forcible reasons for speaking in praise of Hunt's Remedy, for it has made a new man of me. I don't know what I should have done without Hunt's Remedy; it is the best medicine that I ever took, and I very gladly recommend it to all who are afflicted with kidney or liver disease, or diseases of the urinary organs.

Respectfully, ISAAC W. FAIRBROTHER."



HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids, broken down in health and spirits by chronic dyspepsia, or suffering from the terrible exhaustion that follows the attacks of acute disease, the testimony of thousands who have been raised as by a miracle from a similar state of prostration by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is a sure guarantee that by the same means you, too, may be strengthened and restored.

For sale by all Druggists and dealers generally.

PATENTS PROCURED! or NO PAY! Also—Trade marks, etc. Send model and sketch; will examine and report if patentable. MANY years practice. Pamphlet free. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D.C.

WE SELL THE BEST $65 ORGAN in the world. Address MILLER ORGAN CO., Lebanon, Pa.

START THIS SPRING For ST. PAUL or MINNEAPOLIS. If you want to know of the country and your chances of success by personal letters before you start send 2 three-cent stamps to E. A. WHEATON, Box 584, Minneapolis, Minn.

ENGINES (Traction & Portable) for Farm, Saw Mill & Plantation. For prices, etc., write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

DROP a postal card to CLARKE BROS. Bible House, New York, the New Publishers of Fine, Cheap Subscription Books, for their "Private Circular to Agents." It will puzzle and astonish you.

TEACHERS WANTED For Vacancies. Address with stamp, for "application form," and copy of our "Public School Journal." National Teachers' Agency, Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

AGENTS Make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., N. Y.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Write for catalogue. Coleman & Palms, Prop'rs.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. DR. KRUSE, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

AN ENGLISH VETERINARY SURGEON AND CHEMIST, now traveling in this country, says that most of the Horse and Cattle Powders sold here are worthless trash. He says that Sheridan's Condition Powders are absolutely pure and immensely valuable. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powders. Dose, one teaspoonful to one pint food. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for eight letter-stamps. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

MAKE HENS LAY

An Open Secret.

The fact is well understood that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT is by far the best external known for man or beast. The reason why becomes an "open secret" when we explain that "Mustang" penetrates skin, flesh and muscle to the very bone, removing all disease and soreness. No other liniment does this, hence none other is so largely used or does such worlds of good.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

No Worm Syrup so Pleasant as Parker's.

Nowhere Else

Than in the establishment of OLIVER DITSON & Co. are published so large, so useful, so varied, so brilliant and every way satisfactory a set of MUSIC BOOKS for

SCHOOLS, SEMINARIES, ACADEMIES, COLLEGES.

We here mention, as among hundreds of others, our SONG BELLS, (50 cts.) for Common Schools, by L. O. Emerson, as a great favorite, and one that can be universally used. The older books GOLDEN ROBIN (50 cts.), by Perkins; MERRY CHIMES (50 cts.), by Emerson, and others, have fixed reputation and are always in demand. Send for lists! The Welcome Chorus ($1), by Tilden, High School Choir ($1), and Hour of Singing ($1), by Emerson and Tilden, Laurel Wreath ($1), by Perkins, Song Echo (75 cts.), by Perkins, and School Song Book (60 cts.), by Everest, are all good and successful collections for HIGH and NORMAL SCHOOLS. Send for lists! Wellesley College Collection ($1), by Morse, Vocal Echoes ($1), Choice Trios ($1), by Tilden, are new and first-class collections for Female Voices.

Five Hundred Instructors for all Instruments,

including the world-famous Richardson's New Method for Pianoforte ($3.25), and many thousands of Songs and Pieces, always ready for the Music Department of Seminaries and Colleges. Send for lists! Any book mailed for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

DEDERICK'S HAY PRESSES are sent anywhere on trial to operate against all other Presses, the customer keeping the one that suits best. No one has ever dared show up any other Press, as Dederick's Press is known to be beyond competition, and will bale with twice the rapidity of any other. The only way inferior machines can be sold is to deceive the party interested by ridiculously false statements, and thus sell without sight or seeing and swindle the purchaser. Working any other Press alongside of Dederick's always sells the purchaser a Dederick Press, and all know it too well to show up. Address for circular and location of Western and Southern storehouses and Agents. P. K. DEDERICK & CO., Albany, N. Y.

$60. 5-TON JONES. Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam, JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warranted 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO. (Limited.) No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Make enormous profits selling our Perfection Coffee Pot. Absolutely indispensable to every family. Choice territory free. No boxing or freight charges. One Agent made $175 the first week, another $40. Write at once for full particulars. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., Cincinnati, O., Kansas City, Mo.

CONSUMPTION. I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL.—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. MOODY & CO., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. Enterprise Carriage Co., Cin'ti, O. Territory Given. Catalogue Free.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

NERVOUS Remedy for weakness, debility, exhaustion. Speedy, Safe, Sure. Mailed free for 50c. B. SAARACH, Peru, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Phila's, Pa.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Add's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Send free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. LANDS Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner, MILWAUKEE, WIS. Full particulars FREE. IN WISCONSIN.

I CURE FITS! When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

CANCER INSTITUTE. Established 1872. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit Mich.

A. N. K.—E. 915 9-83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1883. NUMBER 19.

THE WANDERER'S RETURN.

"Who lies here fainting by the way?
Is there no rest for that head so gray,
But turf all wet with dew?
'Tis almost night and my home is near,
Come, mount the seat beside me here;
My wife, I'm sure, has a word of cheer
And a bite of food for you.

"And if a lodging you can not buy,
'Gainst those less lucky in life than I
I never shut my door."
"I thank you, sir, for your offer kind,
But I can not rest till news I find,
Of the children twain I left behind
When I sought the Western shore.

"Why did I leave them? Perhaps he knows
Who aside a precious jewel throws
To seek for worthless dross:
Mine is a story that's oft been told;
My wife had died and my farm was sold,
And I saw afar the gleams of gold
And followed it, to my loss.

"They could not write me, they were too young,
And perhaps they lie the dead among;
It makes my eyes grow dim:
Know you my Nelly, my girl so fair—
I lived in that brown house, over there—
My blue-eyed Henry, with curling hair,
Can you tell me aught of him?"

"What, Henry Lee? Then I knew your son:
I honor the father of such a one,
A youth so brave and fair."
The smile from the old man's visage fled,
"You knew my Harry, not know, you said:
O, do not tell me my son is dead,
For that I could not bear."

"The truth is kinder than any lie,
And bravely and nobly did he die.
And on a famous day
We heard the calling for volunteers,
And so, in spite of our tender years,
In spite of our loved ones' prayers and tears,
Together we marched away.

"Together we ate and drank and slept,
And ever our fallen comrades wept;
We were but boys, you know;
And out we sailed from Roanoke;
Into Newbern together we broke,
Together we fought 'mid shot and smoke
Till a bullet laid him low.

"There, as we stood on the river banks,
He suddenly drew me from the ranks,
And thrust himself before,
Where a well aimed rebel bullet sped;
He shielded me from the fatal lead,
But it pierced that gallant heart instead,
And your Harry was no more.

"Brilliant the victory, loud the cheers,
But I had heart for nothing but tears,
Over our Harry's grave:
Yet do not weep, for he lies at rest,
All in his country's colors drest,
With his broken saber on his breast
As fitting a soldier brave.

"But though of a noble son bereft,
Your Nelly, your daughter, yet is left
As fair as fair may be:
My house is yours for the rest of life
And freed are you from all care and strife,
For little Nelly is now my wife,
So, father, come home with me."

—Clara E. Smith, in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

RUNNING A RAILROAD.

An Explanation of the Vast and Complicated System of Managing Large Railways—Officers Who Control the Various Departments—The Nature of Their Duties and Extent of Responsibilities Briefly Outlined.

The operation of a great railway of to-day is a vast work. It requires a multitude of men, ranging from President down to dirt-shoveler, but the whole labor is as systematically performed as the movement of an army. It has taken many years to perfect railroad management, and countless heads have grown gray in the solution of the problem, but it may now be considered to have nearly reached perfection. There is practically but one system for main or trunk lines in the United States, although in minor details roads vary somewhat from the standard. To the non-railroad man there ever seems to be a complication and confusion of railway titles, officers and duties. The following concise explanation of railway operation is authentic, and yet simple enough to clearly present the subject to all who may care to be informed upon it.

The President of a railroad is the chief executive officer. His business, however, is with the financial policy of the road, and rarely does he meddle with the operating department. Vanderbilt and Gould do not know to-day what the rate is on corn from Chicago and St. Louis to the seaboard, although the contrary opinion constantly prevails in the public mind. A railroad war may even be inaugurated without consultation with a President.

The General Manager is a creation of the last decade. He is chief of the operating department, is appointed by and is responsible alone to the President and Board of Directors. He carries out the policy by them adopted. He stands between the General Superintendent and the President, with somewhat more extensive powers than was ever accorded to the former. By the creation of the General Manager the duties of the General Superintendent have been restricted to the actual practical operation of the road. And here it is well to call attention to the word "General" when prefixed to a railway title. It is all-important to use it constantly, and railroad etiquette requires that it should be written with a capital G, just as it is in the army. The General Freight Agent, for instance, is not simply a freight agent—he is the head of the entire freight department, and one can not quicker insult him than by omitting the "General." And so with all other general officers.

The General Superintendent is appointed by the General Manager. He is responsible for every portion of the daily operation of the entire line. To aid him he has a General Freight Agent, a General Passenger and Ticket Agent, and others who are heads of their respective departments. Some extensive roads have a Traffic Manager between the General Superintendent and General Manager, or dispense with the latter and have a Traffic Manager only, as the Illinois Central. In this case the Traffic Manager is the commercial agent of the road, and he stands between the road and the people. He is empowered to use his own judgment in securing business, and can cut an existing freight or passenger rate, as he sees fit. He must be a man of long experience and clear headed. It his chief business to get business.

The General Freight Agent attends exclusively to the securing of freight business, not at all to its transportation. His duties end when he has the freight. He commonly does not fix rates, and is not empowered to cut them beyond his own line. Still, in many instances, he has very considerable latitude allowed him in the matter of rates, the grand rule of railroad operation being: "Don't get caught cutting a rate, but get the business anyhow." The General Freight Agent has an assistant and a small army of contracting agents, clerks, rate clerks, bill clerks, voucher clerks, etc., under him. The Contracting Agent is one who goes into the business marts and personally seeks for business. He individually knows all the big shippers, and generally has an office convenient to heavy business. Upon his tact and popularity much depends.

The General Passenger and Ticket Agent attends exclusively to the securing of passenger business and the preparation of the almost countless forms of tickets used. He is not a ticket-seller, as commonly supposed, but has his office with the other general officers. Upon some roads there are a General Passenger Agent and a General Ticket Agent, but they have rarely been found to work harmoniously. In this case the General Passenger Agent attends to the advertising and to the securing of business, while the General Ticket Agent devotes himself to the matter of tickets and rates. Appointed by, and subordinate to, the General Passenger Agent are divers traveling passenger agents and local passenger agents, the former penetrating the most remote sections in search of business. Passenger-train men, such as conductors, etc., are not responsible to the General Passenger Agent, and do not report their cash to him. Nor do the street ticket-sellers. When a considerable number of people wish to go anywhere in a body, the person to apply to for a special rate is the General Passenger and Ticket Agent. Subordinate to the General Passenger Agent is also the General Baggage Agent, whose title sufficiently explains itself.

When the business has been secured, the Master of Transportation, who is appointed by and responsible to the General Superintendent, takes charge of it, causes it to be loaded and properly forwarded. He plans the time-tables, controls the make-up of trains, and has general charge of the rolling stock. It is his business to move the secured business at as small expense as possible. If he can crowd three loads of passengers into two cars, it is for his interest to do so. Contrary to this, the General Passenger Agent would like to please all travelers, even to the extent of giving each two whole seats, if necessary.

Long railroads are divided into several divisions, and to each division there is assigned a Division Superintendent. It is the business of the Division Superintendent to attend to the details of operations upon his division, and in the absence of the General Superintendent he is supreme. He lives at some convenient point upon his division. If successful, he is the man who ultimately graduates into the General Superintendent or General Manager.

The Train-Dispatcher is a very important officer, for upon him depends the safety of passengers, freight and rolling stock. He is subject to the General Superintendent, and controls the movements of all trains en route, keeping as near the time-table as circumstances will allow. He must know the road perfectly. He keeps a mental picture of it constantly before him, and by telegraphic communications knows where every train is at every moment. There may be fifty trains moving each way upon his road and these are constantly meeting and passing. Some of these trains are always behind time, so that the regular time-table is useless. Then a clear head is necessary. Every train must be pushed forward just as fast as possible, and yet no two must meet upon a single track. A minute more or less anywhere may mean destruction and death. When a small accident occurs, it is liable to throw every train on the road out of its schedule time. Then the work of the Train-Dispatcher becomes immense. No man who drinks at all is fit for the position. It is the neglect or stupidity of the official or his assistants which causes nearly all the collisions. When a train is behind time it can not move at all except by order of the Dispatcher, and it is then said to be "under orders." All such orders are sent to the station agent and by him telegraphed back, to be sure that no mistake has occurred. Then the station agent gives the order in duplicate to the conductor and engineer of the train, which, if necessary, is "flagged," as it approaches. If the conductor and engineer agree upon the construction of the order, it is indorsed by the former, and its commands carried out. But if they disagree there can be no movement until more explicit orders are received. Conductors, engineers, brakemen, etc., are appointed by and responsible to the General Superintendent or the Division Superintendent.

The Road Master, or Master of Road, is appointed by the General Superintendent. He has charge of the maintenance of the track, buildings, bridges, tanks, etc. He lays out the road into sections of from five to ten miles each. For each section there is a section boss and a gang of men averaging about one to a mile. These constantly patrol the track and keep it in condition. Flagmen, signal men, etc., do not belong to section gangs, but are responsible to Division Superintendents.

The Master Bridge-Builder, or Master of Bridges and Buildings, when there is one, keeps bridges and station-houses in order. He is subordinate to the General Superintendent. Sometimes his work is performed by the Chief Engineer, while some roads have no Chief Engineer, at all.

The Master Mechanic is appointed by the General Superintendent. He has charge of the repair shops, more particularly the locomotive shops. Sometimes he has under him a Master Car-Builder, and even a Master Car-Painter.

The Superintendent of Telegraph has charge of the maintenance of the wires and provides for station operators. He has nothing to do whatever with the train-dispatcher.

The Purchasing Agent is responsible to the General Superintendent. It is his duty to buy all the supplies necessary for the operation of the road and for use in the general offices. The position is oftentimes made a very valuable one, for every business house that deals with railroads uniformly stands ready to give the Purchasing Agent a private commission for his trade. Cases have been known, however, where this profit was quite small, the Purchasing Agent having regularly to divide with the General Superintendent who appointed him. Not all Purchasing Agents or Fuel Agents are dishonest, however.

The Paymaster, although he receives his money from the Treasurer, is yet subject to the General Superintendent. On the first of every month the subordinate officials of each department make up their pay rolls or time-accounts, and transmit them through various officers up to the Auditor. For instance, the section-boss makes out his pay-card for his gang, indorses it, and passes it to the Roadmaster, and he to the Division Superintendent. The latter indorses it, and sends it to the General Superintendent, and he in turn transmits it to the Auditor. When audited it goes to the Paymaster, and he puts it upon the payroll, drawing a separate check for each individual. It is generally about the 15th of the month before the Paymaster is ready to start in the pay-car out upon the road. His progress along the line is made known by telegraph, so that the men are waiting for him when he arrives at each point. Each man goes into the car, signs the roll opposite his name, and receives his check. No time is lost, and the pay-car moves along rapidly. Payment is made by check so as to avoid the danger of robbery. These checks are readily cashed by all merchants and bankers upon the line of the road.

It is noticeable that very few defalcations or embezzlements occur in railway operation, although all the general officers have good opportunities for peculation. This is largely owing to the elaborate system of checks uniformly used. It is also true that much more attention is paid to the safety of travelers on railroads than is supposed by the public. The system of train operation in vogue to-day is very exact and minute in its every detail, and every safeguard is adopted that ingenuity and experience can suggest. In such an army of employes, however, as a trunk line has now occasion to use, negligence will occasionally manifest itself in spite of every precaution. At least the system is sufficiently good to enable the habitual traveler to sleep sounder in his berth than in a six-story hotel.—Chicago Times.

Bananas and Plantains.

A pound of bananas contains more nutriment than three pounds of meat or many pounds of potatoes, while as a food it is in every sense of the word far superior to the best wheaten bread. Although it grows spontaneously throughout the tropics, when cultivated its yield is prodigious, for an acre of ground planted with bananas will return, according to Humboldt, as much food material as thirty-three acres of wheat or over 100 acres of potatoes. The banana, then, is the bread of millions who could not subsist without it. In Brazil it is the principal food of the laboring classes, while it is no less prized in the island of Cuba. Indeed, in the latter country the sugar-planters grow orchards of it expressly for the consumption of their slaves. Every day each hand receives his ration of salt fish or dried beef, as the case may be, and four bananas and two plantains. The banana—it should be called plantain, for until lately there was no such word as banana—is divided into several varieties, all of which are used for food. The platino manzanito is a small, delicate fruit, neither longer nor stouter than a lady's forefinger. It is the most delicious and prized of all the varieties of the plantain. El platino guieno, called by us the banana, is probably more in demand than any other kind. It is subdivided into different varieties, the principal of which are the yellow and purple bananas we see for sale in our markets; but the latter is so little esteemed by the natives of the tropics that it is seldom eaten by them. El platino grande—known to us as simply the plantain—is also subdivided into varieties which are known by their savor and their size. The kind that reaches our market is almost ten inches long, yet on the Isthmus of Darien there are plantains that grow from eighteen to twenty-two inches. They are never eaten raw, but are either boiled or roasted, or are prepared as preserves.—Indianapolis Stock Review.

The Latest Thing in Swindles.

"I've got the latest thing in swindles," said Flatley, as he hung himself on his favorite barrel behind the stove. "What's the matter, been getting married again?" inquired the bachelor. "No, I haven't been getting married again, so now you just shut up and I'll let you fellows have it cheaper than I got it. You see, I was coming across Boston Common the other evening just about dusk, and seeing a crowd just ahead I hurried up and elbowed my way in, and there was a little girl down on her knees with arm away in under the plank-walk, evidently reaching for something. She was crying bitterly, and I soon learned that she had lost twenty-five cents; dropped it, you know, through the cracks. Well, now I've children of my own, and it just broke my heart to see that kid, and so I out with a quarter and patted her on the back and told her to go home, and she did. A murmur of approbation was just running through the crowd when one man spoke up: 'Well, old man, she scooped you, didn't she? caught me for a quarter last evening, and I've been loafing round here for the last half hour just to see some other sucker get caught. Misery loves company, you know. Good eve.'"—Boston Post.

A Faint Resemblance.

An Austin female vocalist, who is always fishing for compliments, asked old Colonel Yerger if he heard Jenny Lind sing when she was in this country.

"Yes, I was personally acquainted with her."

"Now, Colonel, tell me candidly, don't you think me and Jenny resemble each other just a little?"

There was an awkward pause and the old man finally said:

"Yes, I think I do perceive some little resemblance."

"You mean that her voice was a little like mine."

"O, no, not in the least; but you resemble each other very much about the ears."

"You mean we have both got fine ears for music?"

"I don't mean that. I mean Jenny Lind wore ear-rings and so do you."—Texas Siftings.

Brother Gardner's Advice to Trustee Pullback.

"Am Trustee Pullback in de Hall tonight?" asked the President of the Lime-Kiln Club as the band ceased singing, and a window was lowered to let the smoke escape.

"He air, sah," was the prompt response as Brother Pullback rose off his stool.

"Please step dis way."

When the tall form and shining pate of the member had toed the mark before the desk, Brother Gardner continued:

"Brudder Pullback, I has received a letter axin' permishun fur you to wisit the town of Akron, O., an' deliber your celebrated address on 'De Rise an' Fall of De Rail Fence.' I has answered dat you will be dar' on time, your shoes greased wid coon's-ile, an' your froat in good shape fur a two-hour's speech."

Pullback trembled with emotion, and murmurs of admiration were heard from every corner of the hall.

"Befo' you sot out on dis journey," resumed the President, "I want to gin you a few words of fatherly advice. You will fur a time represent de cnil'd element of Detroit, an' you will be p'inted out as a well-known member of de Lime-Kiln Club. All your words an' deeds will be tooken notiss of, an' people will forget de size of your feet in deir anxiety to know whether you am second-growth hickory or basswood stained ober.

"Don't car'y de ideah dat you own all de co'ner lots in Detroit, an' am waitin' fur a sartin rise of 200 per cent. befo' sellin'.

"Don't take along any brass watch chain or dollar ston diamond, an' de fust time you see anybody look twice at yer new plug hat take it off and brush de nap de wrong way on yer elbow.

"Doan' talk horse, religun, pollyticks, free trade nor poteckshun. What you doan' know on dose subjects would fill a big book, an' what you do know you can't half tell on account of your asthma.

"You will be offered de freedom of de city in a tin box. Accept it wid thanks, but pay fur yer beer an' cigars an' bring de box home to keep cold biscuit in.

"You will be escorted around by a brass band. Doan' sot wid your mouf open an' yer eyes rolling', as if it was de fust time ye eber heard anyfin' more numerous dan a hand-organ, but take it in like a man who has allus had a pianer in de house an' a full brass band across de alley.

"At de table eat wid yer fork, eben if you do jah yer tongue a few times. If it becomes necessary to blow your nose in public, do it solemnly and wid dignity, an' do yer wipe wid a handkerchief instead of yer elbow.

"In conversashun be pleasant an' courteous an' pliable. You will fin' men in Akron who doan' believe dat de whale swallered Jonah. You am not sent down dar' to convince 'em.

"Keep sober, car'y yer money in a pocket in yer shirt. an' seek to leave a good opinyun behind you. As you will have to git up at fo' o'clock to-morrer mornin' to cotch de airly freight train fur Toledo, you had best go home now an' practice on lookin' like an old trabeler while buyin' a railroad ticket."—Detroit Free Press.

How to Make a Bouquet.

Take first a mass of white, it may be a truss of white geranium, a double white stock, or a clematis, or, for a small bouquet, a bunch of the small double pyrethrum; then scarlet, which to an artist means orange; as, for instance, a double scarlet geranium, Tom Thumb nasturtium, or any brilliant orange, though that color is not so abundant as it ought to be. Put any of these next the white on one side of it: then take red, a bright rose, and the brighter the red the nearer it should be to the white, so that other duller reds may be beyond it (by red is meant all colors of crimson, but red is the true designation); place these on the other side of the white. Some very dark, almost black, flower may also be brought near the white, but only a very little of that color, and beyond the scarlet a very little of blue, such as that of an Emperor William pansy, or a little sprig of lobelia. Beyond the red have purple and yellow brought together, and on the other side picotees, which, although rich in color, are not prominent, though any flowers that have broken colors will do; beyond these again bring in blue in some mass and your taller flowers, as pentstemons (the blue kind make an admirable background and are always to be had), dark-colored fuchsias (some flowers or leaves of a brownish hue should interpose beyond the blue), and the last to introduce should be the maiden-hair fern, which certainly makes at all times a very pretty background. Make this bouquet up in your hand, and avoid too much formality, as the colors will generally arrange themselves with sufficient effect and force, though they may intermix a little. A bouquet has generally only one view, in which case it should slope gently upward; then the white should come near the bottom. If it is to be seen all round, the white should be in the center, with the above arrangement of colors in masses round the white. When your bouquet is large enough, tie it round in the middle of the stems, cut them off evenly, and drop into a vase of water. Two principles may be followed in making up a bouquet—one, harmony and contrast of color, the other force of light and shade; whichever is chosen, to begin with pure white is absolutely necessary. Even if only composed of a single white flower, it should be the largest mass of the whole.—Waverley Magazine.

—The Metropolitan Horse-Car Company of Boston, has recently introduced the registering clock for recording fares. The other day an elderly lady, with a sharp nose, desired to get off a car. She rose energetically and pulled the strap which rang the fares. Before the conductor could make her desist she had not only been carried a couple of blocks beyond her destination, but had registered not less than twenty fares, for which, according to the company's rules, the conductor was responsible.—Boston Transcript.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The test of the equableness of texture of Indian ink is by the best artists made by rubbing the stick against the teeth.

—Honey, after it is clarified, Herr E. Myhns has discovered, can be kept from fermenting or losing its flavor by adding to it about one per cent. of formic acid.

—A soap mine has been discovered in California. The substance is a deposit of white earth, free from grit, and impregnated with a small percentage of potash. It is easily sliced into bars, and, for cleaning purposes, is a fair substitute for manufactured soap.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—A novel railway wagon has been invented and patented in Europe. It is an amphibious sort of a thing. When it ceases to run on rails on land it is capable of swimming on the water by means of pontoons attached to both sides. It is provided with a bow and stern pieces before being set afloat, and on the latter the motor is placed.

—In Switzerland, a course of instruction in raising vegetables has recently been established. Under the direction of a gardener, the pupils perform in the spring all the labors needed in a kitchen-garden. In August, they assemble to see the result of their labors. Raising garden-sauce is becoming a common accomplishment with lovely Swiss maidens.

—The Philadelphia school-boys who embarked in silk-culture two years ago have enlarged their cocoonery in the city to accommodate eight thousand worms, with a branch at Swedesboro, N. J., for the cultivation of mulberry trees. They have invented a machine for winding the silk from the cocoons which they have been exhibiting at public fairs.—Philadelphia Press.

—For warming conservatories, the London Ironmonger says that petroleum stoves have superseded the old portable stove to burn a prepared fuel made of charcoal, without a chimney. Numerous efficient devices are there in use for warming by hot water or steam by the use of gas or petroleum as fuel. Some of these are simple, portable, and comparatively inexpensive to run.

—The fish torpedo, which can do everything but speak, will be cast into the shade by the mole torpedo, an engine of war just patented by an officer in the Austrian army. The new invention claims to be a miner of the most formidable description, which can burrow in the earth or under a wall, and then either explode at once or wait until ordered to do so by its master.—N. Y. Sun.

—There has been a striking example of man's ingenuity in England. Several years ago salt deposits were found near Middlesborough at a depth of 1,200 feet, but all efforts to make it an industrial success failed until recently, when wells were sunk, and in them two tubes are placed, one within the other, so that an angular space is left between them. Into the circular space water is poured, which dissolves the salt, and the brine thus formed and subsequently pumped out yields about one hundred and sixty tons of salt a week when evaporated.

PITH AND POINT.

—A certain Cuban dentist wears a dressing gown that came from New Haven. Here we have a live illustration of an Havana filler with a Connecticut wrapper.—N. Y. Herald.

—"You can't get ahead of me," said a stupid mean man to a doctor. "I wouldn't care to," retorted the physician, "for I don't like cabbage."—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

—A new cashier in a Pittsburgh bank is Mr. Drum. It does not follow that he has two heads, but that confidence men will find him hard to "beat."—Pittsburgh Telegraph. It may be hoped that he will not prove a snare Drum.—Detroit Post.

—A philosopher says, "Live your life in such a way as to show a contempt for wealth." That's "us!" We want our daily life so intermingled with wealth, as it were, that familiarity will breed contempt.—Rochester (N. Y.) Express.

—Answers to correspondents—Lilly M. S., "Would you be so kind as to give me a receipt for a baked plum pudding?" Certainly, Lilly, certainly. Send on your baked plum pudding, and we'll send you a receipt for it by return mail. Could you send a three-cent stamp to cover postage?—Texas Siftings.

—"Willyim, my son," says an economical mother to her son, "for mercy's sake don't keep on tramping up and down the floor in that manner—you'll wear out your new boots. (He sits down.) There you go—sitting down! Now, you'll wear out your new trousers! I declare, I never see such a boy!"—Chicago Herald.

—"What d'ye leave that door wide open for?" exclaimed the gentleman in the office to the intruding peddler. "Oi thought, surr," was the quick reply, "that ye moight want to kick me down stairs, and Oi wanted to make it convanient for ye, surr." The gentleman was so taken aback that he bought two apples for five cents, passing off a bad quarter in the transaction.—Boston Post.

—Young Podgers struck up an acquaintance with a nice girl on the State road the other day, and he promised himself a whole salvo of kisses when they should enter the Hoosac Mountain. What was his disappointment when the brakeman came through and lighted the car lamps before reaching the bore! Podgers says the tunnel is a blankety-blank humbug, and the sooner it is filled up the better! The ideal he says, of squandering millions on such a mean fraud as that!—Boston Herald.

—When you have a male bore, who hangs to you tighter than a nickname, how blessed it is to see a lady come in! Ninety-nine bores out of a hundred—and only a kick will meet the case of the hundredth—will get up and go when a lady enters. Blessings therefore descend upon her head! Woman is indeed the best friend of man. But—horrid thought! —how in Heaven's name is a fellow to get rid of the woman, if she happen to be—and sometimes she is—an unconscionably worse bore than the male bore she unseated?—N. Y. Graphic.

Our Young Folks.

LITTLE MASTER QUIG.

This tale's of little Master Quig,
Who, being little, wasn't big;
And many said, who understood,
That, being bad, he wasn't good.
When from his school he ran away,
Most people thought he didn't stay;
And I have heard, from those who know,
When he ran fast, it wasn't slow.
He always studied when compelled,
And always staid when he was held,
And always slept when not awake,
And left the thing he could not take.
To go to sea one day he planned,
And being there, was not on land;
And so stuck on a bar—alas!
For, being stuck, he could not pass,
The dark night found him in a fright,
For, being dark, it was not light.
The big waves rose and filled the boat,
And being full, it could not float.
And so, as I have heard it said,
They found him in the morning dead,
And men of sense do still maintain
He never more was seen again.

—Mary A. Barr.

THE SNOW-BALL JURY.

"Boys! boys! Come on! Here's some fun!"

"What's a-going? What is it?"

The shouts were excited and long-drawn, and so was the answer:

"The girls are pelting Bill Henderson cause he sassed the school-ma'am. Come o-o-on!"

They were coming, for school had not been out three minutes, and none of them had gone far from it. There had been trouble in the little school-house of late, and Bill Henderson had been at the bottom of a good deal of it.

It was not altogether because he was so very bad a boy, but he felt it a little hard to be as big as he was, and to be bullied for his blunders by so very small a woman as the school trustees had chosen for a teacher that winter. It might have been different if there had been any boy a little taller to set him a good example, but all the tall boys were attending school at the Academy. Thus Bill was left to [illegible] the difficulties in his own way, and he had not yet been able to settle them at all, for little Miss Varick refused to have mercy on his mistakes of any kind. What made it worse was that she told him, three or four times a day, that she was his best friend, and wanted to help make a man of him.

Bill could have stood a great many things better than he could that, for he felt that he was quite near enough to being a man to be sent to the Academy.

There were other boys in the District School, but none of them were large enough to interfere much with Bill, and he had his own way a good deal in any out-of-door matters. There were not even any large girls, but there was a perfect swarm of small ones, and Miss Varick had somehow persuaded them all that she had come among them as a sort of guardian angel.

That was why there was such a sudden silence along the lower benches, and such a buzz after it that afternoon, when Bill Henderson roundly declared:

"I won't spell it again!"

"You won't, William? Did you say 'I won't'? Spell it again, sir."

"I won't. I don't mean to let any woman boss me."

"Spell it, sir!"

Bill held down his head sulkily, but he did not open his lips again in reply to Miss Varick's further remarks, of which there were many, except at the end of them, when he again blurted out:

"I won't be kept after school, neither—not by any woman."

He had not been looking at the rows of little faces on those benches, and if he had it would not have occurred to him how many little women were sitting there, not one of them comparing in point of size with even little Miss Varick.

Particularly he had failed to see the look of wrath in the black eyes of Polly Burbank, and he had no notion of what made her buzz around so among the other girls the moment Miss Varick struck the small brass tea-bell on her desk, and said:

"School is dismissed. I will see William Henderson about this half an hour before school opens to-morrow morning."

There was a sound of something to come in the clear tones of the school-ma'am's voice, and Bill's head was still hanging a little when he slouched out of the door, and began to trudge along the road toward home.

"Now, girls, let's pelt him."

It was Polly Burbank's shrill treble that he heard saying that, and she had a snow-ball ready-made to show what she meant. It was not a very big or hard one, but it hit him just under the left ear, and Kate Sullivan followed it with another that went into his neck. At any other time he might have set to work and snow-balled back again, but he knew somehow that Miss Varick was watching the fun from the window, and that she heard Polly Burbank shout again: "Pelt him girls. He said she was nothing but a woman."

That was the crime he had committed, and he felt meaner and meaner about it with every small globe of packed snow that hit him.

"Pelt him, Polly! Pelt him, girls! We'll stand by you."

Bill hardly cared what boy it was that said that; but he knew they were coming back, and following along to see fair play, and that they would all be against him if he dared rebel too savagely against his small tormentors. They grew worse and worse as he walked faster and faster, and he was thinking whether or not it would pay to run, when who should drive along but Mrs. Dillaway, the minister's wife, in her old red cutter, with old Miss Burns beside her.

"Girls! girls!" exclaimed Mrs. Dillaway, "what are you all about?"

"Yes," said Miss Burns, "what on yearth are they up to?"

"Pelting Bill Henderson," shouted Polly Burbank, "because he sassed the school-ma'am. Said he wouldn't mind a woman."

"He did, did he?"

"He wouldn't, would he?"

Bill lifted his head, and was just about to say something, when a small girl with very red hair threw a big ball of half packed snow with so good an aim that his mouth was too full of it for a word to come out.

"Drive on, Mrs. Dillaway," said Miss Burns. "Let 'em make an awful example of him. It's high time sech talk was put an end to. Nothing but a woman! I declare!"

If Bill had run just then, it would have looked as if he were trying to catch a ride on that very cutter, and he could not bear the thought of that. He walked as fast as he knew how, but so did all the other boys, and by common consent not one of them threw so much as an ounce of snow at him. They left all that to the girls; but they could not help packing a few first-rate snow-balls, and handing them around, like so many ready-made cartridges in time of war.

Polly Burbank was everywhere, all around her victim, and so was Kate Sullivan, and so was the little girl with the very red hair; but some of the others were beginning to get tired, and drop off toward their own homes, when Bill drew near the gate of his father's house. He had been walking somewhat more slowly for the last few rods, and had looked up now and then as if he wanted to know if there was any one in that front yard.

The girls had done the same, but there had been no one visible until just as Bill reached the gate, and Polly shouted:

"Give him one more pelt, girls!"

She was barely ten years old herself, but the tall, Roman-nosed woman who came suddenly out on the doorstep was four times that at least, and the youngest of the three shorter ladies who followed her was nearly twenty.

"What does it all mean? William, my son, what's the matter?"

William had no answer in a good shape to give, but there were four or five eager voices quite ready to explain the matter, and then he almost wished he had gone in the opposite direction when he left the school-house. His mother and his two aunts and his sister—not one of them but took the words right out of Polly Burbank's mouth, and said them all over, with a good many more like them.

"Pelted home from school by all the girls!" exclaimed Mrs. Henderson at last, with a very red face. "Come right in here, William. I'm a woman myself. We'll see about this. Go home, girls, all of you."

"Mother," said his sister, "we'd all better go to the school-house with William to-morrow morning."

"Of course we will," said both his aunts in a breath; but they could hear Polly Burbank say to little Kate Henderson:

"Did you hear that? Guess he'd rather be pelted, don't you?"

"Guess he would; but we've done all we could for him."

So they had, and that was the last rebellion of the kind that took place during all the time Miss Varick taught in that district.—William O. Stoddard, in Harper's Young People.

A Bad Habit.

Little Mattie was always getting into mischief because she would not heed what older and wiser people told her. She always wanted to see for herself if things were just as they were said to be.

One day she told her sister Amy, who was much younger, that she was going to get some honey out of the bee-hives.

"The bees will sting you," said Amy.

"I am going to see if they will," said Mattie; and she ran to the hive and overturned it.

Out swarmed the bees in great numbers. They were very angry at being disturbed, and lighted on Mattie's face, neck and hands, stinging her so badly that she fell to the ground screaming with pain.

The cook ran out of the kitchen and picked her up. She was sick in bed for several days, and you may be sure she never went near the bee-hives again.

But she was not cured of meddling. One day she leaned over the well-curb to see how deep the well was.

"Take care! you'll fall in," said Amy.

"No, I won't fall in," said Mattie; but just as she spoke, over she went.

The well was not very deep, and Mattie did not get hurt at all; but she had time to get very wet and to cry almost a teacupful of tears before her papa came and drew her up in the well-bucket. She caught cold, too, and had to stay in the house for a week, and take very bitter medicine.

But she was just as meddlesome as ever, and it took a very severe lesson to cure her of her bad habit.

One day her brother Joe left his gun in the hall while he went into the kitchen for a drink of water.

"Don't touch that gun, Mattie," he said: "it is loaded."

Mattie was playing with her dolls by the hall door; but as soon as Joe went away she ran to the gun and stroked it with her hands.

She took hold of the gun and tried to lift it, but it was too heavy. It fell to the floor, and went off with a loud noise. And Mattie fell, too, shot through the knee.

It was many weeks before she could play out-doors again, and then she had to walk with a crutch. But she had learned to let things alone. She was cured of her bad habit.—Our Little Ones.

Puppies' Bites.

The verdict of "Death from Hydrophobia," returned at an inquest held yesterday on the body of Thomas Jenkins, a boy of fourteen years of age, is a warning to persons who are in the habit of teasing puppies. The evidence showed that deceased "pointed at" a retriever of three months old (now dogs of all kinds hate to be pointed at), which thereupon snapped at him and caught his finger, "the skin of which was grazed." This was in September last; and on the 16th instant the boy showed symptoms of hydrophobia, and died in St. Mary's Hospital on Saturday last. It was stated in evidence that bites from puppies were "worse and more dangerous than from old dogs"—a fact, if it be a fact, by no means so generally known as it should be. If puppies' bites and scratches be more dangerous they are certainly far more common, especially if a "graze" of the skin can be called a bite, and it appears from yesterday's inquest that it is sufficient to induce hydrophobia.—St. James' Gazette.

—If kid gloves are laid upon a damp towel for two or three minutes they will go on with less chance of tearing.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BØRLINGON, KY. MAR. 7, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column 1 year $80
" ½ " 40
" ¼ " 20
½ " 1 " 20
" ½ " 10
" ¼ " 6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free: over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE United States is to pay Chas. H. Reed. for defending Guitean, $3.000.

GOV. STEPHENS, of Georgia, died at 12 o'clock on the night of the 31 inst. He had been an invalid for fifty years.

GOV. BLACKBURN pardoned the two young men of Owen county who were recently convicted of horsestealing at Lexington.

THE public debt statement shows a reduction of $7,630,673 54 during the month of February, and a reduction of $102,638,346 29 since June 30, 1882.

THE new nickle has been doctored and passed for a five dollar gold piece as anticipated. A teller in a Cincinnati bank took one in for five dollars the other day.

A FEW days since a fire broke out in Lawrenceburg, and if it had not been that they have excellent steam fire engines a portion of the city would have been reduced to ashes.

THE manufacturers and business men of Cincinnati are not of one mind regarding the new tariff schedule, but they are agreed that business will be only slightly effected either way.

A THIEF entered a Philadelphia bank the other day, and, almost before the officials' eyes, stole $70,000 in bonds. It seems that the boldest robberies are the most successful in this country.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 15@7 40; fair to good packers, at $6 75@7 15; fair to good light, $6 85@7 10; common, $6 00@6 60; culls, $4 50@5 65: stock hogs, $5 25@6 25

AMONG the carriers appointed for the free mail delivery in Lexington, which goes into operation on the first of next month, is a colored gentleman, who the Transcript thinks will make a good officer.

DURING last month $353,652 28 were paid into the state treasury on account of the revenue for 1882, being $48,195 52 more than has been collected within the same time for ten years, says the Yeoman.

AT twelve o'clock, last Saturday, David Davis resigned as president protempore of the United States Senate, and Edmonds was chosen to fill that office, which will make him the successor of the president in case of his death or disability.

MR. RANDALL declined an appointment as a member of the tariff conference committee as did several other members. Randall declined because he could not justify that mode of procedure, and not because he was afraid as some construe his action.

FEW people are endowed with as much pluck and determination as the citizens of Lawrenceburg. They shed their coats, rolled up their sleaves and went to work as soon as the water would allow them a foot hold, and the town is being reconstructed as rapidly as possible.

PROF. WIGGNS says that about the ninth inst. a terrible storm will prevail, and that the destruction of property and life will be great. He tells all the ships to seek a place of safety and to stay there until the storm subsides. The storm is to be most severe in the countries east of the Atlantic ocean

MR. TILDEN'S new house, or rather the work of remodeling the old one, is about completed. He commenced to expend fifty thousand dollars in repairs, and his expenditures already foot up two hundred thousand dollars. We presume he will have a very snug building in which to spend the remainder of his days.

SATURDAY night the Lower House of congress unseated Frost, democrat of the third Missouri district, who has held the seat for two years, and drew his pay as a member, and seated Sessinghans, republican, who will draw two years pay in a lump. The election committee was two years in determing to whom the seat belonged

TWO St. Louis lawyers collided in the court room the other day, and they made things lively for a while. The St. Louis attorneys are gaining more notoriety as sluggers than by the practice of their profession.

LAST Saturday night the lower House of Congress unseated Frost, democrat from the third Missouri district and who has held the office for the last two years, and drew his salary for that time, and seated Sessinghaus, republican, who will draw two years pay in a lump. The election committee was two years in determining to whom the seat belonged.

IN the cases of the Commonwealth against several railroads, in the Franklin circuit court, for balance of taxes due for the year 1882, Judge Major decided, last week, in favoe of plaintiff. These suits have been mentioned in these columns before, and the roads parties to the suits named. Large amounts are involved in the litigation, and it will not cease until the court of appeals has passed upon the question of the right of the state to tax all railroads in the manner as assessed by the Railroad Commissioners.

STATE NEWS.

—Henderson is to have a daily paper.

—One Paducah nimrod has killed 9,160 rabbits this winter.

—On the night of the 27th ult., Paris had a $60,000 fire.

—About half of Harrison county will be set in tobacco this season.

—The Emma Fisher farm near Lexington sold for $148 85 cents per acre.

—There lives near Midway a fifteen-year old boy, cold., who weighs 337 pounds.

—A team of young oxen ran off with a boy in Pulaski county and killed him.

—The Kenton circuit court gave Bill Ryan six years in the penitentiary for having burglar's tools in his possession.

—A hog that had been imprisoned for forty-six days without food under a Maysville distillery, was taken out in tolerable good condition.

—Sol Sewell, an eccentric and wealthy old bachelor farmer, of Daviess county, shot and mortally wounde Lillie Collins, a colored woman living on his place, while carelessly handling a revolver.

—Neal and Craft spent a quiet Sunday, holding no religious services. They occupy the same old cell as before, and seem cheerful. Both still protest their innocence, saying they will do the same with their dying breath.—Lexington Transcript.

—Near Gratz, Owen county, a seven-year-old son of Dan Criswell, while playing with some other children, hid in a straw-stack, and the others, while undertaking to smoke him out, accidentally fired the stack, and the child was burned to death before he could get out.

—The six recaptured convicts who escaped in Arkansas while at work on the levee, were in a pitiable plight when found, barefoot, hungry and shivering, having cast off their shoes and stripped clothing. They had stood up to their knees in mud and water all night, and were almost dead when taken.

—Thomas Hiten, of Connersville, Harrison county purchased for $2 a cow almost eaten up with a cancer, killed her, and peddled the diseased meat out to the denizens of Connersville and the suburbs of this place. The people learned of it, became indignant, and made it so warm that he left for parts unknown.

—James Metcalf, a licensed distiller of Ohio county, has filed suit against W. A. Stuart, late Revenue Collector, in the Owensboro district, J. W. Church, his deputy, and several of his bondsmen, for $5,000 for false imprisonment. Metcalf was arrested for an alledged violation of the internal revenue laws, and imprisoned at Greenville, but was acquitted in the United States Court at Louisville.

—When the first white settlers built their log cabins in this then dense forest, the Indians told them a wonderful story of a great flood of the Ohio, when the waters rose more than one hundred feet, extending from "hill to hill." As near as they could fix it this phenomenal "big river" occurred in 1774. The Indians pointed out marks on the trees and on the hills to confirm their story, which the devasting hand of civilization have entirely effaced, or visible proof of the fact might now exist.—Mayesville Bulletin.

—At Nicholasville some two weeks ago Jacob Walters, who was in jail at Danville on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, confessed to poisoning two valuable horses belonging to Lewis Hemphill, of this county, in his confession implicating a prominent physician, who also resides here. The name of the latter was divulged to-day when Dr. John C. Miller and Walters were indicted by the grand jury for the crime. Dr. Miller, who is quite wealthy, immediately gave bond in the sum of $1000 W. H. Hoover becoming his bondsman. Walters could give no bond and was remanded to jail. In his confession Walters charged that Dr. Miller employed him to poison the horses.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—A hawk was killed in Georgia that measured forty inches from tip to tip.

—The cabbage shipment this winter in Wythe county, Virginia, will be worth $30,000 to the county.

—It is said that fifty years ago shad were so plentiful in the Savannah river that fishermen exchanged them for corn at the rate of one car of corn for one shad.

—The peanut crop of Tennesse last year is estimated at 350,000 or 400,000 bushels. Virginia raised 1,500,000 bushels and North Carolina, 150,000 bushels. The price ranges from $1 20 to $1 75 per bu.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat, adjoining the lands of Allred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W NEEL, feb 28-3m Burlington, Ky.

TAKEN UP.

Taken up as a stray by Ephraim Helm, living on the Anderson Ferry and Minneola turnpike road about 1 mile from Anderson Ferry, in Boone county, on or about the 8th day of September, 1882, one red and white spotted cow with underbit mark on the right ear, and right horn drooped, but having no other brands or marks. Which I have appraised at $15.

Witness my hand this 3d day of January 1883. JOSEPH WAGSTAFF, J. P. B. C.

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, posessing facilties for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and [illegible] and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vasts quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departsments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for speaimon copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR

DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undeniably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year	$1.15
One copy, six months	65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,
Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

THE EAGLE

DRUG STORE,

—IS POSITIVELY—

THE CHEAPEST

—HOUSE IN—

RISING SUN, IND.

Where will be found a fresh stock of

DRUGS,
PAINTS,
OILS,
PUTTY and
WINDOW GLASS,

SCHOOL BOOKS

—AND—

STATIONERY,

all at bottom prices.

GIVE US A CALL.

D. C. Thorn,

Main St., - - Rising Sun, Ind.
6-3m

Tobacco Market.

Cincinnati, Friday, Feb., 23, 1883.

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 50	$3 00
Common Smokers	3 50	5 00
Colory Smokers	5 00	6 00
Colory Trash	6 50	9 00
Good Br't Trash	10 50	15 00
Fine Br't Trash		none
Fancy Bright Leaf	00 00
Dark Lugs	4 00	5 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	11 00
Good Stripping Lugs	11 50	16 00
Fine Str'p'g Lugs	17	25 25
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	18 75
Good Med. Leaf	19	22 00
Good Br't Leaf	22 50	25 50
Fine Br't Leaf	26 00	28 00
Com Lug Fillers	7	11 00
Good Lug Fillers	11 50	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	24
Com. Med. Fil'rs	12 00	18 50
Good Med. Fil'rs	19	22
Good L'f Fillers	23 50	25 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	25 50	27 75

A SPLENDID OFFER.

Two First-class Papers and a fine Book for Only $3 00.

We have made arrangements to club with the Indiana Farmer, the largest and best agricultural journal now published, just what every farmer needs. It is a weekly, 52 issues per year of 16 pages each, cut and bound in magazine form in a shape that may be easily preserved and making an elegant volumn. Its contributors include many of the best agricultural writers of the world, and every number contains instructions and suggestions that will be of more value to any live farmer than the subscription price. The regular price of the Indiana Farmer is $2 00 per year. We have made arrangements by which we can furnish the RECORDER and the Indiana Farmer for $3 and, besides this, we will present each subscriber with a VALUABLE DICTIONARY of over 500 pages, bound in cloth, and containing every useful word to be found in the English language, with its true meaning, derivation, spelling and pronunciation, also a vast amount of absolutely necessary information upon Science, Mythology American History, Constitutions, Laws, Land Titles, Cities, Colleges, Army and Navy, Rate of Mortality, Growth of Cities, Insolvent and Assignment Laws, Debts, Rates of Interest, and other useful knowledge, being a perfect library of refference in one handy volume, which alone is worth the price of either paper. Specimens of the INDIANA FARMER, and also the Dictionary, may be seen by calling at this office. Subscribe at once.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk; A. G. Dedarnelte, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

1883

THE CINCINNATI NEWS

A DAILY

Democratic Newspaper.

Is published to subscribers at the following

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

By mail postage paid.

Daily and Sunday edition, 1 year	$7
Daily and Sunday edition, 6 months	4
Daily and Sunday edition, 3 months	2

All Subscriptions Invariably in Advance

An extra copy of the paper will be mailed FREE for one year to any person who will raise a club of ten annual subscribers at one postoffice, and forward their names and addresses, together with $60.

BY CARRIER.

Daily and Sunday edition, 15 cents per week, or 65 cents per month, payable to Carrier.

PRICE BY SINGLE COPY.

Daily edition 2c Sunday (double size) 3c

Agents, Carriers, Newsdealers, Newsboys, or any one handling THE NEWS, are required to sell the paper in conformity with the above rates. Address

THE NEWS, Cincinnati, O.

J. W. MILLER,

—DEALER IN—

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

432 Madison St.

COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

Winding Up the Clock.

Which the Weary Wheels Were Almost Still, A Luck Accident Reveals the Lost Key.

"How long did you say you had it?"

"Twenty-five years."

"What! a bad cough, with occasional attacks of hemorage, for twenty-five years? Why, man it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds left of you

Abraham Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin County Pa., stuck to his statement, and when the exclamations of wonder ceased, he added:

"Exactly. You're right. It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is that, before I actually choghed myself out of existence, I got hold of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and a few bottles of it cured me."

"Cured you? Relieved you, you mean?"

"I mean what I say; it cured me," said Mr. Orner, simply. "I feel like another man."

Please take especial notice: PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is not a mere essence of ginger; not a mere stomachic. The ordinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transient aches, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Tonic covers a far wider and totally different field. It attacks and dissipates radical and chronic diseases of the Lungs, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as delicious to the palate as it is prompt and effective in operation. Ginger is only one among many powerful curatives which the TONIC holds in combination. Test its virtues for that cough of yours, or for any ills which require an invigorant for the whole system.

And, above all, do not permit yourself to be misled. Parker's Ginger Tonic stands alone. Nothing else is "just as good." Prices 50 cents and $1. Economy in buying the larger size. Hiscox & Co., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,

BURLINGTON, KY.

HARNESS MAKER

—AND—

DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to

GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

NOTICE.

The public generally and all persons, especially merchants, are hereby notified that my wife Nannie V. Kelly, did, on the 7th day of February, 1883, leave my house and abandon me and my children, without just cause, and that I will not pay or be responsible for any of her acts or debts hereafter made or contracted by her.

This Feb., 9th '83. W. B. KELLY.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."
148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882: "Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,

COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Hero is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green, J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm, L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE,

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

H. F. BLASE,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

540 MADISON STREET,

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY,

Has made a great slaughter in prices to close out his stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS.

OVERCOATS

Of all styles are being sold at prices that will astonish You

Remember the No. 540 Madison Street, Covington, Ky

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S

Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.

TRADE MARK.

Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

AGENTS WANTED.

Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. B. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '81

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines

OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

3 to 100 Horse Power.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.

B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the

CLIPPER M'F'G CO.,
(LIMITED.)
No. 288 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.

2 to 100 Horse Power.

Established 1840

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ½ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S

HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair.

50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Sawing Made Easy.

The New Improved MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW

Is the cheapest and best. A boy sixteen years old can saw logs fast and easy. Sent on test trial. Send postal for Illustrated Catalogue containing testimonials and full particulars. AGENTS WANTED. Monarch Lightning Saw Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago.

PENSIONS for Soldiers, Widows, Parents and Children. Any disease, wound or injury entitles. Millions appropriated and working force doubled. Prompt work and homes made happy. Fee $10. Apply now. Widows, re-married, now entitled during widowhood. Great success in INCREASE cases. BOUNTY and Back Pay and Discharges procured. Deserters entitled to all dues under new laws. PATENTS for Inventors. Land Warrants procured, bought and sold. The "WORLD & SOLDIER," (weekly paper). Sample copy free. Send stamp for full instructions, blanks & bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO. Pension, Patent & Land Att'ys, Washington, D. C.

Local News.

For $1 you can have the RECORDER from March 1st to Jannary 1st, 1884.

Fresh milch cows are in demand.

Winter's back bone was only dislocated.

An unusually large crowd in town last Monday.

The merchants report heavy sales last Monday.

The roads commenced drying up nicely last Friday.

Road supervisors for the year have been appointed.

Mack Aylor has about 1000 locust fence posts for sale.

Price Neal, of Grant county, visited his relatives near here last week.

The wills of R. C. Green and Andrew Gluckin were probated Monday.

Those who raise vegetables will soon commence locating truck patches.

Bruce Thornton, of Union, delivered his tobacco at this place last Saturday.

Congress passed a tariff bill. It reduces the tax on tobacco to eight cents.

Since going to Nebraska, Mr. James Blythe has united with the Methodist church.

March came in like a lamb, and to verify the old saying will have to go out like a lion.

Mr. Palmer has put up a new forge in his shop. His business seems to be on the increase.

The annual spring moving has commenced, and a muddy time it has been for the business.

For carriage painting, house painting, paper hanging and whitening ceilings call on Joe Reed.

The tobacco raisers have been given a chance to burn plant beds. Did they take advantage of it?

Since the river has returned to its proper chanel, people see to what extent they are damaged.

If John Bradford fails to recognize you, it is only because he has a bouncing boy at his house.

Persons coming to town Monday were thoroughly chilled by the cold, damp east wind they encountered.

Frog ponds were made lively by the little croakers, last Fiday night. They are said to be harbingers of spring.

Johnny Hoggins, of Walton, is feeding 210 head of extra cattle, and about the first of July they will be fancy.

The spring fever became epidemic in Burlington, last Friday, and for a while several cases threatened to become fatal.

On the 3d Friday, March 16th, the Boone County Pomona Grange will hold a meeting in Big Bone Grange Hall.

Some fears are expressed that the warm weather has so advanced the fruit buds that late freezes will destroy the crop.

Last week we neglected to mention Mr. James Cowen, of Gallatin county, being on a visit to his father at this place.

The teachers interested in the January draft are notified that the school commissioner is now prepared to settle with them.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

D. M. Snyder informs us that he is going to move into the property lately occupied by R. L. Aylor, and engage in merchandising.

In this issue appears the advertisement of Wm. Clore, of Rising Sun. Mr Clore's plows are deservedly popular with the farmers of this county.

Some of those in this section, who had tobacco to sell, would not take the prices offered by our local dealers. They hauled it to the city and took less.

Demorest's Monthly Magazine for March is at hand. It is replete with good reading and nice engravings.—Price, $2 50 a year with a nice present.

Mr. John L. Conner moved his furniture, last Thursday, from the Central Hotel to his residence at Erlanger, where he is now engaged in business. Success to him.

Everett Hall and Mrs. Martha Deer united with the Universalist church at this place at its last meeting. Both confessed while Mr. Dunlap was preaching here.

Some sinner or sinners who have no fear of the devil, entered the common school house in this place a few nights since, and stole the bucket, dipper and wash pan.

We have been talking with men whose opinions are worth considering, and they agree with us that a saw mill at this place would certainly do a good business.

Mr. Edward Gaines, of Woolper Plains, organized as a relief committee Monday, and came in and subscribed for three copies of the RECORDER. That is business.

We are sorry to learn of the severe illness of the following worthy citizens in the vicinity of Big Bone Church: Esq. John C. Riley, James Mason and Mrs. Lucinda Mason.

Esquire Baker received considerable new tobacco during the month last past. He has more room than he had last season and can handle the weed to a much better advantage.

When in Covington don't forget that Geo. H. Leobker's is the place to go to get a bargain in boots and shoes. He gives you good, honest work. His number is 38 Pike street.

When in Petersburg, call and see me whether you need anything in the drug line or not. I am in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Bradly for a grocery. Call and see me. S. C. BUCHANAN.

John Walby, of Constance, died very suddenly, a few days since, of heart disease. He had had the pneumonia for several days, but was recovering from that when he died very unexpectedly.

A dog belonging to F. P. Walton's little boys, went mad last Wednesday, left the premises and has not been seen or heard of since. Before it left it had been snapping at everything that came in its path.

The fine weather, last week, revived the thoughts of green p's and q-cumbers in the minds of some of our citizens, and they shed their coats, repaired to the garden and commenced raking and burning trash.

Last Saturday the authorities at Florence sent Geo. Callum, charged with beating his wife, to jail where he remained till Monday, when he was taken back to Florence for trial, of the result of which we are not advised.

Mr. Lewis Sullivan and Miss Lizzie Deck passed through town last Thursday on their way to Elder E. Stephens', where they were married. Mr. James Tolin and Miss Mollie Sullivan accompanied them. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan have the best wishes of the RECORDER.

Alfred Powell, who was indicted some time since in this county for unlawful shooting has been arrested and is now under bond of $500 for his appearance at the next term of the circuit court. The shooting was done at Walton and Boone Finnell was the man he was trying to kill.

Frank Willis, colored, was lodged in jail last Saturday, charged with grand larceny. He stole, killed and dressed, last Thursday night, a hog belonging to Mr. Jack Barton, near Florence. The meat was found concealed under Willis' bed. His examining was trial held at Florence Saturday, and in default of $100 bail Willis was sent to jail.

A large crowd congregrated at Mrs. Dempsey's pond, last Sunday about 2 p. m., to witness the babtizing of six persons who recently united with the Baptist church at this place. Rev. Dicken officiated, and the following were immersed: Mrs. S. A. Palmer, Mr. Graham and daughter, Miss Alice, Miss Ella Duncan, Joseph Hodge and James Rucker.

Near Constance, in Kenton county a house was caught floating down the river, and in it a baby sound asleep and unconscious of its perilous ride.—Richmond Herald.

Constance is not in Kenton county; no house was caught floating down the river, and in it a baby sound asleep and unconscious of its perilous ride, near that place. With the exception of these trifling defects the item above is correct.

We have just received from Saalfield's Music Store, 12 Bible House, N. Y., and 16 Jackson St., Chicago the February number of the Saalfield 10c libraries. These series of monthly publications to which the subscription price is only $1, (12 numbers) single number 10c. are revolutionizing the music business. Think of buying 16 pages of music for 10 cents. The number at hand contains a waltz on Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera, the Langtry waltz and several other peices.

Mr. James Tanner, aged 81, and a pioneer of this county, died very suddenly at his home, last Sunday morning, between the hours of nine and ten o'clock. Mr. Tanner was in his usual health and was talking to Mr. Alex Foster in regard to tombstones for his wife whom he buried but a few months since, when a third person present noticed a sudden change in his appearance, and exclaimed: "He is dying!", which sentence was scarcely completed before his life was extinct. The deceased belonged to one of the largest families in the county, and was acknowledged to be the best hand in the country to barbecue meat, and many dinners did he prepare in that way for political gatherings.

Married, at the bride's residence, on Fourth street, Aurora, Ind., on Thursday evening, Feb. 22, Judge Omer F. Roberts to Mrs. Kate Terrill. The ceremony was witnessed by about a score of the most intimate friends of both parties Never was a bride dressed with more taste than this one—her costume being of nile-green satin and plush of the same shade; white kid gloves and deep collar of lace, finished a tulle that was becoming, tasteful, simple and appropriate. The Judge never looked better, and the happiness depicted upon his countenance was a good evidence of the state of his mind.

Soon after the ceremony was performed the newly wedded pair led the way to the supper room where an elegant repast was served, which could hardly have been surpassed by either quantity quality, appearance or arrangments. After full justice had been done to the tempting viands the guests returned to the parlors, where music and conversation made the hours pass away all too soon, and the time came for the guests to disperse, each wishing that the Judge and his lady may live to celebrate their golden wedding and honor the same friends with invitations.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

A. W. Smith is down on the river, today, ducking.

Uncle Sam Cowen is sufferin with a severe attack of stiff neck.

Mr. Alex Foster, of Covington, was in town Thursday.

Hon. D. A. Glen and wife, of Covington, were in town Monday.

Father Burke and Mr. Conner Yager, of Florence, were in town last Saturday

J. C. Arnold is now, and has been for some time, in a very critical condition.

Mrs. T. W. Finch returned home, last Thursday after several days visit at Williamstown.

Lin Frazier was in town yesterday on business pertaining to the Union and Parkersburg pike.

Mr. E. W. Duncan, who is teaching school at Parkersburg, spent Saturday and Sunday at home.

Miss Nannie Kyle, of Kenton county, spent a day or two, last week, with her friends in Burlington.

Mr. Jesse Harrison and wife, of Owen county, spent several days last week with friends in this vicinity.

Ben Stephens who has been keeping store in Jessamine county sold out his stock and returned to Boone.

Mrs. Gullion who went home week before last and returned on account of her residence being partially inundated left for home again last Thursday.

Capt. Ralph Sheldon, Register of the Land Office, was in town Monday, mixing with the people. The captain is not without a following in Boone.

Dr. R. H. Crisler, of Ludlow, attended court Monday. We are glad to know that the doctor is well pleased with his new home, and that his practice is increasing.

Mr. Moses Shropshire, of Scott county, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. David Hogan, who resides near here.

Several horses on the pike dust Monday, and auctioneers worked faithfully to make sales. James Jones sold one to Johnny Hoggins for $122.

The burning of a meat and coal house in Walton, one day last week, created quite an excitement. Hard work and good management was all that prevented the fire from destroying several other buildings.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Union.

O. C. Utz's new buildings are progressing rapidly.

Bro. Dunlap began preaching here last Monday night. Everybody is invited to attend the meetings. He and his family are the guests of H. P. Stephens and wife.

The case of the Commonwealth against C. B. Clarkson, at Nicholasville, has been continued till the August term of the Circuit Court.

Bro. Lafe Johnson preached a very able sermon here last Sunday night. Subject—"The blessings of the Gospel."

With the spring comes general industry.

Florence X-Roads.

Died—Mr. John Walby, of Constance, on the 28th ult., of pneumonia. The remains were taken to Cincinnati for interment. He leaves a wife and one child who have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. Jas. M. Utz has gone into the stock business with Jim Conner. Mr. Utz has fine judgment and is a good trader.

Mr. E. D. Tanner is chief-cook-and-bottle-washer at the saw mill again, while Mr Johnson Vaughn handles the coal shovel with great ease. Mr. John Moore is general roustabout.

There was only one vacant house in town this winter, and it is now occupied by George Washington, colored.

Mr. Sam Crutcher is preparing for the spring races. He has purchased of W. R. Terrill a fine sulky, and can be seen any evening driving his high stepper.

Miss Alice Souther will teach the school at this place this spring.

Mrs. Vaughn and Mrs. Austin Beemon are on the sick list.

Hebron.

The tobacco raisers in this vicinity are busy burning and sowing their plant beds.

J. C. Conner has completed his large barn.

Mr. Ezekiel Hicks had the misfortune to lose his cow, one day last week.

Clore and Snyder hauled off several hogsheads of tobacco last week.

Robt. Collins will start this week to Crawfordsville, Ind., where he will make his future home.

The farmers in this section have commence plowing for corn.

L. C. Conner is convalescing.

Mr. Geo. Piper, of Burlington, spent last week at this place, assisting Davis Bros. invoice their stock of goods.

A grand dance was given at the residence of Mike Southers, one night last week.

The horse market at this place is still on the boom.

Rev. L. S. Kiser preached two very interesting sermons here last Sunday.

Miss Ada Wilhoit will commence the spring school next Monday.

Several loads of wheat were hauled from this vicinity to the city, last week.

Bellevue.

The river is again in its banks, and the usual steamboat traffic, which was suspended during the flood, has been resumed. It is quite interesting to take a trip along the banks and see some of the marks and changes made by the water. The large bottoms opposite our town have not a rail or board fence left in them, and what hedge fences there are, are badly washed. The back water in Middle Creek was within about 150 yds of Scott Rice's house.

Our P. O. has made another change. We now have a daily mail, which is delivered opposite Bellevue on the pike by Anderson's bus line, where our carrier exchanges pouches. The change went into effect the 1st inst. There has also been a change of carriers, Mr. Lewis Lafever occupying the position at present.

Parties from Cincinnati have taken possession of the tobacco warehouse at Mackville, and are now engaged in handling the weed.

We learn that the Clore Bros, Robert and Thomas are arranging to build a store room as soon as the weather will allow, to be occupied as a drug store, a thing our town has needed for some time.

The fine weather of last week started a few of our farmers to plowing, while quite a number improved the fine weather in burning and sowing plant beds. From present indications there will not be more than half as many acres put in tobacco this season as were last.

The literary society still goes on. We have not the proceedings of last meeting

Our law enforcer is raising rats with such as can not walk the chalk line. We have lately noticed several old, breachy cows around, eying him closely. Hope they will not be allowed to run over him.

Last Thursday evening, J. W. Rice and wife gave the young folks a party.

Rev. Mr. Houston preached in the school house Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. Bettie Aylor has moved to town, and is now living with her sister, Mrs. S Berkshire.

Miss Katie Piatt is rapidly convalescing. Miss Anna Wingate is recovering from a severe spell of sickness.

Petersburg.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

Marble playing is in full blast now.

Mr. John Gaines, of Burlington, was here last Tuesday.

Mr. Tom Graves, of Carrollton, Ky., was visiting friends here last week

Born—To Ed Terrill and wife, March 1st, a daughter. Mother and daughter doing well, but—Ed's about gone.

The social, Boone Division intended giving on the 8th inst., has been postponed till the 23d inst.

To Frank Collier and wife, on the 1st inst, a bouncing daughter.

Mr. Tom Stewart, of Indianapolis, Ind., is visiting his many friends at this place.

Dr. W. H. Terrill lost his black hen with a cripple horn last week. The finder will please leave at his office and receive reward.

Died—Mr. T. H. Green at his residence on last Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock. The remains were laid in the vault on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. The funeral services were conducted at the residence by Rev. J. E. Taylor, of the Christian church, of which the deceased was an exemplary member. He was a good man, a kind husband and father, and an obliging neighbor; and leaves many sorrowing relatives and friends besides his heart stricken family, to mourn their loss. He was 59 years old.

Rabbit Hash.

A few persons in our midst are making maple molasses.

Bad colds are prevailing to a considerable extent since the flood.

Mrs. Clara McKay is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hastings.

Will McConnell reached home last Saturday, after a sojourn of three weeks on the corn boat.

Mr. Lewis Krotz, of Cincinnati, bought several crops of tobacco in this neighborhood last week at very fair prices.

Miss Jessie Stephens has passed for graduation at the close of the present school term in Rising Sun, which will be the last of April.

H. S. Pate has sold his stock of goods to the Mayfield Bros., of Rising Sun, and they will take possession at once.

McMullen Bros., of Bellevue, have contracted to move the store of S. Mock back to its foundation and repair it. They are now repairing the ferry house and it will be ready for occupancy in a few days.

Married—On the 28th ult., at the residence of the bride's uncle, Jas. Cayton, Wm. Baily to Miss Myra Hodges, by Esq B. H. Ryle.

Also on March 1st, in Rising Sun, by Rev. E. Baldwin, Mr. Jno. N. Hodges to Mrs. Campbell, of Rising Sun.

Rev. Geo. Froh preached an interesting sermon to the people of East Bend, last Sunday. It was highly appreciated as it was the first one preached in our midst during the past two months. Sunday-school was reorganized at the M. E. Church.

Francesville.

The roads between this place and Hebron are getting almost impassable.

The season is near at hand for the turnpike fever to make its appearance. It is an epidemic that our taxpaying citizens are much in dread of.

Billy Hayes is making quite an extended visit in Dearbon county, Indiana. He went over the river two weeks ago for the purpose of collecting a load of marketing, and owing to the high water he has not been able to return. It is reported that he has contracted to cure a flock of sheep that have the scab. Billy is full of enterprise, and no doubt he is making it pay.

Mr. Joe Graves was at home a few days while the river was at its highest. Joe says as near as he can recollect the river was six inches higher at Taylorsport the last raise than it was at the time of the Noah rise. Joe has a good memory and no doubt his diary is correct.

Mr. Ben Wainscott, of this place, contemplates going into the butcher business in a short time. He will locate near the High Bridge on the C. S. R. R. Ben is a very steady young man and we hope he may be successful in his new undertaking.

The tobacco crops in this vicinity are mostly bought up. Messrs Terrill and Belsly being the principal buyers. Prices range from 4 to 10 cents.

The wheat crop in this locality does not look very flattering. It has been badly winter killed.

Miss Viola Fellows, of Evansville, Ind., is teaching a subscription school at Mr. Wm. Goodridge's near this place. She has quite a full school.

Will Batterson attempted suicide one day last week by taking an over-dose of hog jole and [illegible] gets the rash act, and, in all probability, will not attempt it again.

Johnny Cave has purchased a team and intends farming his mother's place this coming season. We hope Johnny will do well.

[We would be glad to hear from you every week.—EDS.]

Consumptives obtain great relief by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. No other remedy is so effective.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, THRESHERS SAW-MILLS,
Horse Powers Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

TEACHERS WANTED $100. Per Month.
Steady Employment during SPRING and SUMMER. Address I. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 10 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office opposite the Boone House.

L. O. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES.
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN

RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J. P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,

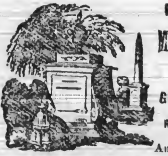
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey,
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
93-tf Your orders respectfully solicited



AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES. J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

DRUGS & MEDICINES
I have nearly filled up my stock of
PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.
I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of
Stationary, Fancy and Toilet
—Articles. Also have a fine line of—
CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,
Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.
Third door from the corner, in Mr. Bradly's building.
N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY.

Fresh, Fat and Fine.
Mackerel by the half Barrel and Kit. And all Kinds of CANNED GOODS.
—A FRESH STOCK OF—
Garden and Flower Seeds.
DRIED PEACHES and PRUNES at
W. E. PIPER'S.

WILLIAM CLORE,
—MANUFACTURER OF—
Rover Steel
PLOWS,
Side Hill
PLOWS

Single & Double Shovels,
Jumping Shovels, Gophers, Rolling Cutters, Harrows and Agricultural Implements Generally. Send for Price List.
RISING SUN, - - - INDIANA.

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDE,R
Your Own County Paper.

HOME AND FARM.

—The popular sentiment that "any one can farm" is one of the greatest slanders on agriculture, one of the most serious hindrances to its prosperity, and a blight on its respectability.—Iowa State Register.

—Some agriculturists are now asserting that the construction of all our plows is radically wrong; that in the breaking-up of our soils the earth should not be inverted, but should be stirred to the required depth.

—Average hay in a barn mow, when solidly packed, will weigh a ton to 500 cubic feet. Solid timothy, well pressed, will go about 400 feet to a ton, clover hay about 600 to 700 feet, and light mixed meadow hay with red-top in it about the same.

—Old Folks' Hash: One teacup of cold boiled potatoes chopped fine; same of the ground meat; of boiling water half a teacup; add a lump of butter size of walnut, and salt and pepper if meat is not sufficiently seasoned. Heat ten minutes, and serve hot.—Country Gentleman.

—When color on a fabric has been accidentally or otherwise destroyed by acid, ammonia is applied to neutralize the same, after which an application of chloroform will, in almost all cases, restore the original color. The application of ammonia is common, but that of chloroform is but little known.—Toledo Blade.

—Delicate Indian Pudding: One quart of milk, scalded, two heaping tablespoonfuls of meal, cook twelve minutes, stir into this one tablespoonful of butter, then beat three eggs with four tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, salt to taste, mix all thoroughly, and bake one hour. Try it.—The Household.

—The curious New-Guinean method of plowing is effected by a row of men standing along the line of furrow, each with a hard, firm, sharp stake, which is thrust down by the "landside" until about a foot deep, when all simultaneously pry the mass over and break it up by plying their stakes up and down. Then they move on to another length.—N. Y. Tribune.

—The old National Agricultural Society is being revitalized at Washington. The old members claim that before the war they did excellent service in holding fairs, procuring the establishment of the present Agricultural Department, etc. An effort will be made to hold a fair next year. To this end a committee was appointed to confer with State Agricultural Societies for joint work. The National was organized in 1852.—Washington Star.

—When a calf or a cow is found breathing heavily without any other irregular symptom or any fever or redness of the eyes or parched muzzle, the trouble may be considered to arise from indigestion and a disordered stomach. Probably the chewing of the cud will be found suspended. In such cases it is best to give at once a dose of raw linseed oil—two ounces for a calf and ten or sixteen ounces for a cow. Usually abstinence from food will bring a cure in the course of a few days. Where there is any fever the medicine should be epsom salts in the same quantity, dissolved in warm water.—N. Y. Times.

Raising of Broom Corn.

The introduction of broom corn as a regular crop of the farm has again been considerably discussed and commended in certain sections as being one of the most, if not the most, profitable branches in general farming. We are fully aware that the results of a crop when carefully cultivated and a great deal of labor bestowed upon it, are better than those of many other crops; but all things considered we are by no means prepared to encourage its introduction extensively. There are many features connected with it that require much labor and money to dispose of properly. The common barn or outbuildings are not adapted to broom-corn. Open sheds with slatted racks, will have to be built somewhat similar to what is used for the crop of tobacco; for, if stacked in bulk it will soon mold and lose its natural color, and as a merchantable article it would be depreciated to one-half its value. Then the seeds have to be nicely cleaned out, which is not an easy matter, as the ordinary threshing-machines will not answer, for they would seriously injure the broom-straw; but something must be got up expressly for it. The threshing then is no mean job, as it is both laborious, disagreeable and expensive. There is a peculiar dust arising from it that is very injurious to the lungs, so much so in fact that very few can stand it at all, and those who do or can are obliged to wear sponges over their mouths and gauze over their faces; and even the particles falling upon the skin produce a painful itching, to which the virus if the poison-ivy is a soothing sirup in comparison. And after all this is gone through with and suffered, we come to the result, and now let us see what it is. The broom-corn raisers in the west, where this crop is more extensively raised than almost anywhere else, if we except a portion of New York and one or two of the New England States, who have been successful, and who, of course, give us the best figures, tell us that half a ton of prepared straw to the acre is a first rate crop, and that the cash value of it delivered is about forty dollars.

Now, it will be admitted that it is a poor year for Indian corn that does not yield $25 an acre to a Western farmer, generally. This is not so much as the broom-corn, certainly, but then there is not half the labor, and of course not half the expense, to say nothing of the very trying annoyances to which the farmer is subjected in preparing it for the purchaser. We can, therefore, safely say that, comparing one crop with the other in growing it and getting it ready for market, $50 or even $60 per acre for broom-corn would pay no better. Hence, the conclusions drawn from these facts are very different from those submitted by the broom-corn grower, which, as it is seen, will not bear examination.

It must be remembered that the result of a profitable business is determined by events, as [illegible] business whatever can any one tell with certainty what he can make the most money. The farmer and gardener should, in the first place, attend to those things that everybody wants and that are absolutely sure to sell. As he progresses he can try experiments that promise success, and include such specialties in his series of crops as are likely to be in demand; but in all such cases to risk only to such an extent that he shall not feel it in the event of disappointment. A man of a fair, ordinary degree of sense can usually see his way pretty clear in these things, and will not be likely to be led astray by any undue excitement in any new thing that may be started by speculators. And one of these things, though by no means new, is the sudden clamor about going extensively into broom-corn culture.—Germantown Telegraph.

Repair Shop on the Farm.

Every farmer who has any mechanical genius should have some place where in rough or stormy weather he can go in and make such repairs on his farm implements as his knowledge of mechanics will enable him to do well. If the farm be large and the farmer skillful, it pays to have a small building by itself, where not only carpenters' tools are to be found, but also a blacksmith's forge, with a few of the most important tools. The farmer who can turn his hand so as to use successfully both the carpenter's plane and the blacksmith's hammer, is truly fortunate, because it enables him to not only mend his farm implements during leisure hours in the winter, but it also enables him to repair a sudden break-down in the busy season, much quicker than he usually could if he had to depend on others living at a distance. It is not, however good policy for the farmer to turn his attention so much to mechanics as to neglect his farm; there is a point beyond which it is neither profitable nor good policy to go.

Farming should be the principal business of the farmer's life; to this occupation he should give his principal and his best thoughts; whatever other business he may engage in, he should treat as a side business, and never let it interfere with his principal business. He who lets the weeds grow while he is building a wagon, had better be without a repair shop, but he who only spends his leisure hours in repairing farm implements, will find his repair shop among his best investments.

On a farm where there is a family of boys the repair shop is a necessity, if the boys are to receive thorough instruction, and the farm is to be made attractive. The boy who is able to make his own sled feels an independence which is unknown to the boy who has never had an opportunity to become acquainted with the use of tools, and when he has a farm of his own the practice which the repair shop gave him, will enable him to readily make most of the repairs on the farm, and if he has leisure, make many new improvements. A repair shop should always be a building by itself, because if in connection with others, it increases the risk of fire, and makes the rate of insurance very much higher.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

People Who Doctor Themselves.

"The extensive use of patent medicines and the enormous quantity of drugs sold without prescriptions indicate how wide-spread is the habit of self-doctoring," said a popular physician to a Sun reporter. "To those who know how carelessly and ignorantly these drugs are used the thought of the harm they do is absolutely appalling. There is no telling how [illegible] prescription once given will be used, or with what foolish risk it will be applied in a case where it will not only not do good, but is certain to work harm."

"Do you think the habit of self-doctoring decreases the practice of physicians?"

"By no means. The effect is rather to increase our work. People who think to do without the services of a physician will not only do themselves harm by delay, but also with the medicines which they do not know how to use. It is like a man trying to mend a leak in a water-pipe by soldering it with the poker. He generally makes the hole bigger. It is, of course, the most difficult part of the physician's duty to diagnose the disease, to tell what is the real trouble with the patient. It is not uncommon for even educated physicians to make mistakes in this respect. The science of medicine has progressed so far that every part of the human body has been pretty thoroughly studied, and the treatment of the ailments of each part is a specialty. It is impossible for one physician to know all these diseases as well as the specialists, and it is a common practice among honest physicians to refer patients to those who have made a special study of the diseases which afflict them. It is not uncommon for a man to go from one physician to another in the vain effort to discover his ailment. Sometimes a patient will be treated by successive physicians for the wrong ailment, because some of the symptoms of different diseases are similar. How unlikely it is, therefore, that persons who have not studied medicine can find out what ails them?"

"Which do you think do the most self-doctoring, women or men?"

"Women, decidedly, especially mothers and old women. The reckless temerity of some women in this respect is wonderful. They rush in where angels fear to tread. Hastily judging from a few symptoms that a case resembles one which the family doctor has treated, they will hunt up an old prescription and administer the dose to some confiding husband or helpless child. I could tell you some amusing stories of the mistakes that are made in this way, as well as some instances where more serious consequences resulted. Take, for illustration, a headache. It may come from a dozen different causes—from hunger, from indigestion, from over-excitement of the brain, from eating too much, from inhaling foul air. The remedy for a headache varies with its cause. Yet you will find women who have a universal panacea for headache, regardless of its cause. Beware of such women."

"With what medicines is the most harm done?"

"Opiates and aperients. The heedlessness with which morphine in various forms is now administered in families is alarming. The doctor comes to attend a patient who is in pain. He prescribes morphia and directs its use, and the patient is relieved. This is enough to start the average matron on a course of fell destruction with morphia. The next patient may be of a different temperament, or sex, or age, requiring either a different kind or quantity of the opiate, but the old prescription will be used, or, worse than all, will be revived from memory. Some drug stores watch carefully and refuse to dispense such drugs without a prescription in each case, but there are many too eager to make money to care much whether the patient is being treated by a doctor. The same is true of the [illegible], of chloroform and of ether. The bottle that is left partly filled in a family after one patient has been treated is pretty sure to be used for another without the doctor's knowledge. As for paregoric and laudanum, the amount of stupefaction that is practiced upon children by their use is so common as almost to cease to attract attention. Perhaps the child is naturally peevish, or is cutting teeth, or has some infantile ailment; out comes the paregoric or soothing-sirup bottle, and before long the small dose ceases to have effect. Then larger doses are given, until the unfortunate youngster's system is saturated with the drug and totally deranged. Sometimes the lazy and dishonest nurse, to relieve herself from trouble, administers the anodyne on her own responsibility, and the hapless child shows a dullness and stupidity for which nobody can account.

"I met a man once who was doctoring himself for dyspepsia and indigestion. He told me he wondered why he had not cured himself. He was apparently of muscular development and good constitution, but he had somehow got the idea into his head that he must exercise vigorously after every meal in order to promote digestion. He took long and rapid walks after his meals. Of course his indigestion got worse. He was apparently a man of ordinary intelligence, yet he was ignorant of the simplest law of health. I told him that if a cow could talk she would teach him more sense than to take any vigorous exercise, either physical or mental, immediately after a hearty meal. Most horses are treated more intelligently than this man was treating himself.

"What puzzles me is the fact that people are not afraid to meddle with such a delicate organism as the human body. Few persons who have watches would attempt to repair them if they should get out of order; yet they tackle the delicate mechanism of their own bodies with the recklessness of a blacksmith attempting to adjust a chronometer. The evil is widespread, and reaches not only the cases I have alluded to, but many others more difficult and dangerous than these. I have known of women experimenting with drugs in cases where a simple surgical operation of a minute's duration was all that was necessary. The evil is insidious and one that it would be difficult to reach by legislation. It is especially common among those who have that little learning which is a very dangerous thing. It is a question which are most to be pitied, those who know nothing whatever of their own bodies, or those who, having the presumption to act on very slight and insufficient knowledge, are perpetually dosing themselves with nostrums, and, with a blind faith equal to the most abject superstition, putting confidence in panaceas."—N. Y. Sun.

"A Darter Uv My Own."

Sam Kimper was a ferryman on a Western river, who, although addicted to drinking, was a good, straightforward fellow, always courteous and correct in his dealings. One night as he was "poling" a man and a woman in a buggy across the river he heard her say: "What will my father think?" Further talk ensued, during which he recognized the voice of a doctor's daughter living a few miles down stream. He did not like the man's voice, and was confirmed in his prejudice when the fellow began talking about going to Cincinnati and not letting her father know of their movements for a week. The girl began crying and the fellow answered roughly. She begged him to take her back home. "Take you back home," said he in a rough laugh. "Let a bird out of a cage after you have fairly caught it? Oh, no! I love you too well for that." By this time the boat was nearly across the river; and Sam said to the stranger: "Mister, the current's pooty swift to-day; there's a right smart freshet on. Reckon I'll have to ask you to make the lines fast ashore while I hold the boat agin the bank." The man got out and stood at the bow of the boat. Sam poled it against the bank with such violence that over went the man onto the shore. Sam let the boat drift away, and turning to the girl, amidst the howls and curses of the man in the water, said: "Reckon ye don't want him no more, do ye?" "No, no!" she exclaimed. The girl being in doubt about her ability to drive home, even after she had reached the other shore, Sam let his boat go down the stream. "What are you going to do?" asked the girl. "Boat ye down to the steamboat landin' for your town." "That will be a dreadful lot of work all for a silly girl." "I've got a darter uv my own," said he. Pretty soon he stopped poling, and the girl said he must be very tired. "Not a bit of it," said Sam. "I'm slowin' up so's to reach there about dusk." "Just what I wanted to ask you to do." "Thought so," said Sam. "I've got a darter uv my own." Everything was favorable, and no one saw the carriage drive off the boat. The girl promised that her father would pay Sam handsomely. "I don't want the money," said Sam. "I've got a darter uv my own. There's one thing I do want," said Sam; "if doctors don't know good stuff from bad, nobody does, an' ef he could send me a good solid drink o' somethin', seein' 'twill take me two or three hours to pole the boat back." The promise was readily given, and in a few minutes down came the doctor with a bottle of brandy and two men to pole the boat back; but Sam said the brandy would be more useful as well as better company. The doctor wanted to know how he could repay him and Sam answered: "You can repay me in kind, ef ye ever get a chance. I've got a darter uv my own, ye know."—N. Y. Hour.

Eating Matches.

Mr. Guggenheimer, of Avenue A, has put up $0.75 at the Clipper office, with a challenge open to all the world, to match him in his great feat of eating 1,000 pretzels in 1,000 consecutive quarter-hours. Mr. Guggenheimer is widely known as the champion pretzel-eater of Tompkins Square and he has never yet found his equal as a devourer of the convoluted delicacy of the socialist quarter. He generally takes an entire bakery every time he tries.—It is rumored in financial circles that two prominent magnates of Wall Street have wagered an even $200,000 on the result of a gastronomical feat shortly to be attempted in this city. One of the magnates referred to has bound himself to produce an unknown who will eat a brace of compressed yeast cakes every day, washing them down with water, for thirty-one consecutive days. The trial is to be made in the immediate neighborhood of a warm stove. Many side-bets have been made among the members of the Stock Exchange, and Broad Street is moved to its depths. It is, however, hinted that the whole affair is only an advertisement for a well-known manufacturing firm.—Mr. William Caper, the late gentlemanly and accomplished goat of Ninety-second Street, and [illegible] Avenue, was lately backed by his owner, Mr. O'Flanaghan, to eat thirty-two yards of gas pipe every day for a month. The goat went to his task with avidity, and ate even up to the last day, with genuine apetite. His task was finished with perfect ease, and had it not been for a slight indiscretion in the way of diet, indulged in to further show his phenomenal digestive powers, we should not have to chronicle the early demise of this ornament to the society of suburban New York. The rash animal unfortunately undertook, at the conclusion of his remarkable performance, to swallow the plumber's bill for the pipe. It choked him. The O'Flanaghan mansion is desolate, and the O'Flanaghan heart is heavy in the night watches.—Puck.

—A cry is going up for fire escapes on college dormitories, although the ordinary college boy is not easily entrapped by fire or anything else.

Vienna Music.

Too much cannot be said of the delightful music of Vienna. Its opera is one of the very best in the world—the people will have nothing but the best, and the Government, which makes up the losses, don't care for expense—and in addition there are scores of magnificent music halls for the winter, and gardens for the summer, but the popular music is found in the restaurants, where it costs the people nothing. In every part of this city a million of people are gorgeously furnished places for eating and drinking, with music thrown in. Some of them are on the ground floor, and some of them in the basement, and some two stories under ground, but all of the better class are splendidly fitted up and have a cuisine that is unexceptional to the most refined taste. At one—this is only a sample—the admission is free, though you do pay ten kreutzers for a programme and to have your overcoat and cane or umbrella cared for, there is every night an orchestra of 70 pieces and every man of them a solo performer. The enormous expense attending this wonderful orchestra the proprietor has to make out of the eating and drinking, and it is evidently profitable for there are 500 in the city just like it. The music is of the highest grade, comprising the best of Strauss' compositions, of which the Viennese are, very properly, enthusiastically fond, with selections from the best works of Meyerbeer, Handel, Haydn, Weber, Mendelssohn, and latterly, the mystic and rarely understood Wagner. The people drop in and go out, the tables in the vast hall being kept constantly full. You may order anything you may choose to eat or drink and it is served just the same as at other restaurants and at precisely the same prices.—D. R. Locke, in Toledo Blade.

—Mr. Crump, the Delaware shipbuilder, speaks of the good luck that American iron ships have always had, and says that "when collisions have happened between them and British iron vessels the latter have been pulverized. We would not be afraid of free trade in steamships if we had the capital and the plant that they possess in their first-class yards. Our mechanics, who, in Pennsylvania, are generally native born, are altogether more apt, and there has been no intellectual improvement in the average British ship mechanic for twenty years. He drives his rivets and holds his hammer and never thinks, while our men know about every part of the ship, and you might take almost any experienced man out of the yard and he could build one."

—A young man in North Carolina purchased a cravat, a neck-tie, a scarf—one of the broad, flat businesses that hides completely a man's soiled shirt front. He took it home. Handing it to the "old woman," he asked her to put it away for Sunday wear. "What is it?" asked the old woman, very innocently. "A liver-pad," replied the youth, now thoroughly aroused to a spirit of jocunity. About two weeks thereafter the fastidious young man was somewhat astonished, when he asked for his scarf, to learn that the old lady had been wearing it for what she thought it to be, a liver-pad.—Chicago Herald.

—Thomas Chadwick, who died in Farmington, N. H., recently, had hewn a coffin for himself out of solid granite, and on his death-bed enjoined his family to put him in it, which they did, although it required a big stone-wagon and four horses to convey it to the cemetery. He requested that he should be buried in Great Falls, and that his friends and mourners should, after the funeral, have a good dinner at a hotel, and that no one should mourn for him, all of which was done. About seventy persons partook of the funeral repast.

—A human curiosity exists in Mt. Nebo, Lebanon County, Pa., named Peter Wendling. He is forty-eight years of age, never had any hair or teeth, and is almost destitute of the sense of smell or taste. His skin has no pores or perspiratory glands. When at work his body gets intensely hot, and the only means of assuaging the heat is to throw water over him. He has never been sick in any sense.—Philadelphia Press.

—Statistics of a quail hunt in Georia, gathered by the Atlanta Constitution: "The Marietta & North Georgia Road is the great route for quail hunters. The other day there were $2,000 worth of dogs (cash valuation in the baggage car on that road), attended by $6,000 worth of negroes (old valuation). In the coach were $1,400 worth of guns and $50 worth of hunters. On the return trip they had $2.80 worth of birds, and they ate a $20 lunch."

—A young woman living near Williamsport, Pa., recently swallowed a pin, which lodged crosswise in her throat. After the physicians had given up the case as hopeless, the young woman's little brother persuaded her to swallow a button to which was attached a string. When the button was swallowed the boy jerked the string and dislodged the pin. The young woman's throat was somewhat torn, but not seriously injured.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, March 2, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 50	@	3 50
Choice butchers	4 75	@	5 60
HOGS—Common	6 00	@	6 60
Good packers	6 80	@	7 15
SHEEP	4 75	@	5 50
FLOUR—Family	5 85	@
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 13	@
No. 2 winter red	1 11	@	1 12
Corn—No. 2 mixed	57	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed, new	43	@
Rye—No. 2	67	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@	11 75
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@	9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 50	@
Lard—Steam	11-30	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	20	@	23
Prime Creamery	40	@	43
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 75	@	2 90
Apples, prime, per barrel	4 00	@	4 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$4 00	@	4 50
Good to choice	4 60	@	7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No 2 red	1 21	@	[illegible]
No. 1 white	1 22½	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	72	@	72¾
Oats—mixed	51	@	52½
PORK—Mess	19 25	@	19 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@	5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 10½	@
Corn—No. 2	57¾	@
Oats—No. 2	41⅝	@	41¾
Rye	65	@
PORK—Mess	18 20	@	18 25
LARD—Steam	11-45	@
WHISKY	1 17	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 21½	@	1 21¾
Corn—Mixed	74	@	74¼
Oats—Mixed	47	@	50
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	20 00	@
Lard—Refined	12¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	$ 9¾	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 50	@	4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 10	@	1 12
Corn—Mixed	53	@	54
Oats—Mixed	43	@	44
PORK—Mess	20 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 09½	@
CORN	53½	@
OATS—White, new	40	@	41
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Shipping cattle	[illegible]	@	[illegible]

—By the will of a Boston lady, lately deceased, Miss Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell receive $20,000 each as the representative women suffragists, and it is said they will use the money in advancing the cause.

An Incident in Virginia.

Our old friend, Mr. Wm. Claughton, of Heathsville, Sheriff of Northumberland Co., Va., says: "We have many good medicines in our parts, but nothing which equals St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy. My family keep the Oil in the house at all times and use it for almost everything that a medicine can be used for. They claim that it is unequaled for rheumatism and all bodily pains.—Tappahannock (Va.) Tide Water Index.

A MULE never kicks the same object twice. Probably for the same reason that lightning never strikes twice in the same place—it doesn't have to.—Chicago Herald.

"Made New Again."

MRS. WM. D. RYCKMAN, St. Catherines, Ont., says: "R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. I have used your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets,' for the last three months and find myself—(what shall I say)—'made new again' are the only words that express it. I was reduced to a skeleton, could not walk across the floor without fainting, could keep nothing in the shape of food on my stomach. Myself and friends had given up all hope, my immediate death seemed certain. I now live (to the surprise of everybody) and am able to do my own work."

THE electric incandescent pocketbook is the latest. It is always light.

Voice of the People.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: I had a serious disease of the lungs, and was for a time confined to my bed and under the care of a physician. His prescriptions did not help me. I grew worse, coughing very severely. I commenced taking your Golden Medical Discovery," and it cured me. Yours respectfully, JUDITH BURNETT, Hillsdale, Mich.

THE compositor who set up "gobblin' turkeys" for "Gobelin tapestries" should give thanks that he is permitted to live.

PIERCE'S "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are perfect preventives of constipation. Inclosed in glass bottles, always fresh. By all druggists.

THE engine-ear ought to be on the donkey engine.—N. O. Picayune.

President Tyler's Whooping Cough.

John Tyler was attacked with the whooping cough whilst President of the United States. A child of August Rost, a member of Co. D., 99th Regt. Pa. volunteers, was cured at Lancaster, Pa., of the same complaint by using Mishler's Herb Bitters. Thousands upon thousands of testimonials, all voluntary, have been received reciting the wonderful curative properties of these Bitters. For Chills and Fevers, Malarious Disorders, Kidney and Liver Trouble, Constipation, and all forms of Nervous Ailments, Mishler's Herb Bitters stand forth as a certain, speedy and permanent specific.

A PANE in the stomach would let enough light in to show how one bears up under affliction.—N. O. Picayune.

Josiah Davis's Trouble.

Josiah Davis, No. Middletown, Ky., writes: I am now using a box of your HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE upon an ulcer, which, for the past ten days, has given me great pain. This salve is the only remedy I have found that has given me any ease. My ulcer was caused by varicose veins, and was pronounced incurable by my medical doctors. I find, however, that HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE is effecting a cure.

DAVID FENDER, "popping the question," in a letter, concluded thus: "And should you say 'yes,' dear Mary, I will truly be your D. Fender."

Gastrine.

This remedy for dyspepsia and all the unpleasant feelings attending indigestion is highly recommended and will be found a desirable medicine for travelers who suffer from nausea and headache. Sold by druggists.

BUILDING lots and indignation are both measured by the foot.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

LYON'S Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes straight. By shoe and hardware dealers.

ADVANCEMENT of learning—Moving the school-house.—Puck.

FOR COUGHS, ASTHMA AND THROAT DISORDERS, use "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

WHY is a fishmonger a prudent merchant? Because he buys and sells c. o. d.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar.
The best medicine for cough or sore throat. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

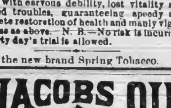
STRANGE that we can put no confidence at all in a professional confidence man.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST JACOBS OIL



THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids who are recovering vital stamina, declare in grateful terms their appreciation of the merits, as a tonic, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does it impart strength to the weak, but it also corrects an irregular acid state of the stomach, makes the bowels act at proper intervals, gives ease to those who suffer from rheumatic and kidney troubles, and conquers as well as prevents fever and ague. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

ASTHMA CURED by using Moore's CURE. Send 25c. in stamps for sample package by return mail to Moore & Harris Vincennes, Ind. Large Size, $1.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR [illegible] L. A. L. SMITH & CO. Sole Agts. Palatine, Ill.

[illegible] ANY WATCH AND NOT WEAR OUT.
SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. BIRCH & CO., 38 Dey St., N. Y.

SAW MILLS The Best is Cheapest. For Descriptive Circular and Prices write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

THE BIGGEST THING OUT Illustrated Book Sent Free. (new) E. NASON & CO., 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

HOTEL and estab'd newspaper for sale in bright Dak town. Ad. J. W. NORTHUP, Minneapolis, Minn.

$5 A Day at Home. No peddling: 12 Samples Free. Send 10c for postage, &c. C. E. BOWEN, Brockton, Mass.

Voluntary Tributes of Gratitude for Benefits Received.

DEAR SIR—Please allow me the privilege of giving my testimony regarding the wonderful curative properties of your invaluable medicine, Hunt's Remedy. During the past six or seven years I have been a great sufferer from kidney disease, and during a great part of the time my sufferings have been so intense as to be indescribable. Only those who have suffered by this dread disease know of the awful backache, and pains of all kinds, accompanied by great weakness and nervous prostration, loss of force and ambition which invariably attend it. I had all these troubles intensified, and was in such a bad condition that I could not get up out of my chair except by putting my hands on my knees, and almost rolling out before I could straighten up. I tried the best doctors, and many kinds of medicine, but all failed to help me, and I experimented so long endeavoring to get cured that last spring I was in very poor shape, and in seeking for relief my attention was directed by a friend to the remarkable cures of kidney diseases, etc., which were being accomplished by Hunt's Remedy. I was induced to try it, and began to take it, and very soon "limbered up" as it were; my severe backache, and the intense pains I had suffered so long speedily disappeared, notwithstanding I had been bothered with this complaint so many years.

When I began to take Hunt's Remedy I was considerably run down in my general health, and suffered also from loss of appetite. Ever since I have been taking the Remedy, however, my improvement has been most marked; my former complaints, aches, pains, etc., have disappeared, and I now feel like my former self, hale, hearty, and sound in health. I shall always keep Hunt's Remedy with me, and would most earnestly recommend all those who are sufferers from kidney or liver diseases, or diseases of the bladder or urinary organs, to use Hunt's Remedy, and take no other.

Yours very truly, HENRY H. SHELDON,
No. 280 Westminster St., Providence, R. I.

"In the lexicon of youth, etc., there is no such word as Fail." That "lexicon" is now found in the laboratory of Hunt's Remedy. It knows no such word as—Fail.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

ABSOLUTELY PURIFIES THE BLOOD, Equalizes its Circulation, Regulates its Supply, Improves its Quality, therefore Furnishes Vital Energy.
. . . . CONQUERS DISEASE, ...
PERFECTS DIGESTION, Improves the Appetite, Cleanses the Liver and Kidneys; Acts as a mild stomachic and Imparts Vitality and Elasticity to every Organ of the Body. Formulæ in use 200 years.
. . . . IT HAS NO PEER. . . . .
MALARIA GIVES UP THE GHOST upon use while the system is brought to a state of perfect health and vigor. Get it at once. $1. per Bottle.

Mishler's Green Label Bitters, a Specific for Scrofula, Old Sores, Syphilis, &c., while Mishler's Red Label Bitters are prepared expressly for Diseases peculiar to Females. $1.50 per Bottle.
All sold by Druggists.
Send for book
"Messenger of Health."
MISHLER
HERB BITTERS CO.,
Lancaster, Pa.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup works like a Charm.

PORTABLE
Soda Fountains!
Send for Catalogue.
CHAPMAN & CO.,
Madison, Ind.

AGENTS Make ENORMOUS profits selling our Perfection Coffee Pot. Absolutely indispensable in every family. Choice territory free. No boxing or freight charges. One Agent made $175 the first week, another $40. Write at once for full particulars. Sent free.
J. E. SHEPARD & CO., Cincinnati, O., Kansas City, Mo.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO.,
(LIMITED.)
No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

WORTH SENDING FOR!
Dr. J. H. SCHENCK, of Philadelphia, has just published a book on "DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND HOW THEY CAN BE CURED," which is offered Free, postpaid, to all applicants. It contains valuable information for all who suppose themselves afflicted with, or liable to any disease of the throat or lungs. Ad. Dr. J. H. SCHENCK & SON, 538 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., P. O. Box 2833.

OPIUM CURE I send a supply FREE and furnish the Recipe for a cure. 12 years experience. Send for circulars. W. F. GEORGE, LaPorte, Ind. (Formerly Confidential Secretary for Dr. S. B. Collins.)

HAIR Wigs & Wares sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

MAGIC MATCH SAFE Send 20 cts. to W. A. WRIGHT, Westvale, Mass.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

Lay the Axe to the Root

If you would destroy the cankering worm. For any external pain, sore, wound or lameness of man or beast, use only MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. It penetrates all muscle and flesh to the very bone, expelling all inflammation, soreness and pain, and heals the diseased part as no other Liniment ever did or can. So saith the experience of two generations of sufferers, and so will you say when you have tried the "Mustang."

Nowhere Else

Than in the establishment of OLIVER DITSON & Co. are published so large, so useful, so varied, so brilliant and every way satisfactory a set of MUSIC BOOKS for

SCHOOLS, SEMINARIES,
ACADEMIES, COLLEGES.

We here mention, as among hundreds of others, our SONG BELLS, (50 cts.) for Common Schools, by L. O. Emerson, as a great favorite, and one that may be universally used. The older books, GOLDEN ROBIN (50 cts.), by Perkins; MERRY CHIMES (50 cts.), by Emerson, and others, have a fixed reputation and are always in demand. Send for lists!

The Welcome Chorus ($1), by Tilden, High School Choir ($1), and Hour of Singing ($1), by Emerson and Tilden, Laurel Wreath ($1), by Perkins, Song Echo (75 cts.), by Perkins, and School Song Book (60 cts.), by Everest, are all good and successful collections for High and Normal Schools. Send for lists!

Wellesley College Collection ($1), by Morse, Vocal Echoes ($1), Choice Trios ($1), by Tilden, are new and first-class collections for Female Voices.

Five Hundred Instructors for all Instruments,

Including the world-famous Richardson's New Method for Pianoforte ($3.25), and many thousands of Songs and Pieces, always ready for the MUSIC DEPARTMENT OF SEMINARIES AND COLLEGES. Send for lists! Any book mailed for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION.
25 100

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS on any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, WASHINGTON, D. C.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

WE SELL THE BEST $65 ORGAN in the world. Address MILLER ORGAN CO., Lebanon, Pa.

$65 A MONTH and board for TEACHERS Students, Young Men and Ladies, in a light, pleasant Business, in your own county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., 915 Arch St., Philadelphia.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment, address P W REAM, Ada, O.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free, Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

Childs' Improved Amaryllis Treatea.

This cut represents our beautiful new Amaryllis Treatea, or Fairy Lily. It is one of the most beautiful of all flowers, either for pot or garden culture. It commences to grow and bloom profusely immediately after planted, and creates a sensation wherever seen. Flowers very large, pure white and sweet scented. To thoroughly introduce them we offer large select bulbs, with directions for culture, at very low prices, and send them by mail post-paid, packed secure from frost and guaranteed to arrive in good condition. Postage stamps accepted for pay. We send 1 Bulb to any address for 15 cents, 2 for 25 cents, 3 for 35 cents, 6 for 60 cts., 12 for $1.10, 25 for $2.50 for $3.75, or 100 for $7. Any boy or girl can, by canvassing their neighborhood, get orders for from 10 to 100 at 15 cents each, and by purchasing them at dozen or hundred rates, make a handsome profit. Many have made $5 per day selling them.

SEEDS, BULBS and PLANTS. Our large, beautifully Illustrated Catalogue, mailed FREE to all who apply. New and beautiful Lilies, Amaryllis, Gladiolus, Tuberoses, Carnations, Roses, Flower and Vegetable Seed and Small Fruits. Prices extremely low. Most of our seeds are sold in 5 cent papers. We are the largest retailers of named Gladiolus in the world, and have the finest list of Lilies and Amaryllis in America. We are an old-established firm, known all over the world, and always do better by our customers than we agree, therefore do not hesitate to order some of those beautiful Fairy Lilies at once, and ask for our magnificent catalogue. We will also send by mail, postpaid, 10 superb named Gladiolus, 10 sorts for 60 cents; 12 large double Pearl Tuberoses for 55 cents. See catalogue for other special offers. Preserve this advertisement as it will not appear again in this paper, and remember that our goods have an established reputation, are warranted true, and go to all parts of the world. Address J. LEWIS CHILDS, Queens, N. Y.

DIPHTHERIA CROUP, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, NEURALGIA. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment (for Internal and External Use) will instantaneously relieve these terrible diseases, and will positively cure nine cases out of ten. Information that will save many lives, sent free by mail. Don't delay a moment. Prevention is better than cure. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

XX.—NOTICE.—XX.
AS BLUE FLANNEL GARMENTS
Of Inferior Quality of Goods
are sold as the "genuine Middlesex," which are not made by that mill, The Middlesex Company, in order to protect their customers and the public, give notice that hereafter all Clothing made from THE MIDDLESEX STANDARD INDIGO BLUE FLANNELS AND YACHT CLOTHS, sold by all leading clothiers, must bear the "SILK HANGERS," furnished by the Selling Agents to all parties ordering the goods.
WENDELL, FAY & CO.,
SELLING AGENTS, MIDDLESEX COMPANY,
86 and 88 Worth St., New York; 37 Franklin St., Boston; 214 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc. Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 93 Fulton Street, N. Y.

WANTED—AGENTS.
To buy and sell the WANLESS DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1500 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO., 186 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R.
LANDS
Full particulars FREE.
Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS.
IN WISCONSIN.

I CURE FITS!
When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.
Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

CANCER INSTITUTE.
AURORA ILL.
Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 1883. NUMBER 20.

"QUALIS VITA, FINIS ITA."

The little deeds you daily do
Unheeding how, scarce knowing when,
May make the ages think of you
As great or little, false or true,
As meanest, or as best of men.

He not alone shall mentioned be
Upon the scroll of coming years,
Who navigates some unknown sea,
Or sinks, with colors flying free,
Midst universal praise and tears.

Nor he, upon some battle field,
Who smites his foemen left and right,
And who though vanquished will not yield,
But seizing valor as a shield,
Seeks death, and, seeking, wins the fight.

Nor yet shall bard whose song sublime,
Nor orator whose fervid speech,
Shall echo down the path of time,
Nor he who dwells in noxious clime
And savage wild, the truth to teach,

Be surest of remembrance, when
A thousand years have passed away;
But he who for his fellow men
Does kindly deeds they'll never ken,
Immortal grows from day to day.

—S. S. Babcock, in Detroit Post and Tribune.

A ROLAND FOR AN OLIVER.

This term is so generally understood that any comment upon it is almost superfluous. It is, however, no slang phrase, but one of the oldest of proverbial expressions, dating apparently as far back as the latter end of the eighth century. We are told that the Emperor Charlemagne, in his expedition against the Saracens in 778, was accompanied by two pages, named Roland and Oliver, who were so excellent and so equally matched, that the equality became proverbial—"I'll give you a Roland for your Oliver," being the same as the vulgar saying: "Tit for tat;" that is: "I'll give you the same [generally in a retaliatory sense] as you give me;" or the more classical one of Quid pro quo, to be even with one. Its proper adaptation, however, as understood at the present day, will be much better explained by a few humorous illustrations.

A very clever reply to a somewhat satirical remark was that given to Louis XV. by Cardinal Richelieu, who was a nobleman as well as a priest. A celebrated Archbishop of Paris, Hardouin de Beaumont de Perefixe, was appointed preceptor to His Majesty. One day he preached a notable sermon before the Court of France, which touched principally upon the duties of the nobility. "Ah!" said the King to Richelieu, "the preacher has thrown a vast quantity of stones into your garden to-day." "Yes, sire," answered the Cardinal; "and a few have fallen into the royal park." A courtly amount of etiquette of expression is observable in this answer, with which we may presume that even royalty itself could in nowise be offended.

Equally as good is the following, in which we shall carefully note by the way that praise has different effects on different minds. The Emperor Alexander of Russia, during the occupation of Paris, was present at the anniversary of one of the hospitals. Plates for contributions were passed round, and they were borne by some of the patrons' wives and daughters. The plate presented to the Emperor was held by an extremely pretty girl. As he liberally gave his louis-d'ors, he whispered: "Mademoiselle, this is for your beautiful bright eyes." The charming little damsel politely courtesied, and immediately presented the plate again. "What!" said the Emperor in amazement, "more?" "Yes, sire," said she, "I now want something for the poor."

It is related of Mr. Hamilton, of Dykebar, a well-known farmer, that, visiting the palace of Hamilton on a certain day, and brought into conversation with the late Duke, His Grace—always so pleasant and courteous in his demeanor, and pleased with the humor of the old farmer—said, in a jocular way: "Pray, Mr. Hamilton, where in our ancestral tree am I to look for your family?" "Oh!" replied the old man, drawing a long breath, as if astonished—"wha wad ever think of looking for the root among the branches?" The Duke laughed heartily at this, and added: "Quite true, quite true; it would, indeed, be folly to do so."

Speaking of farmers, the following anecdote, as related by a Sussex gentleman, may claim especial notice, being so pointedly connected with our present subject. It exhibits also the peculiar disadvantages an agriculturist has to contend against in farming near a populous town.

"One day," said this gentleman, "before harvest, I met a fashionably dressed person with a large handful of ears of wheat, taken from my fields. I saluted him respectfully, and expressed my admiration of the beauty of the wheat. 'Yes,' said he; 'it is truly a fine sample, and does the farmer great credit who grew it.' I acknowledged the compliment, and asked him from which of my fields he took it. After he had pointed it out, he assured me he always liked to take a good sample home, as it interested the ladies. Upon this, noticing with admiration the style of his coat, I asked him to allow me to look at the skirt. He readily did so; and I quietly took out my penknife and cut a large piece from the tail. The gentleman bounced and swore; but I told him I always took samples of cloth, as I found they greatly interested my wife. I added, that he had no more right to take my wheat than I to take his coat, and that I wished the public to bear this truth in mind."

This was experience bought with a vengeance. It is more often than not a very dear school, but some people will learn in no other, and scarcely even in that.

On one occasion, an English gentleman, who possessed a keen wit, was at a brilliant assembly of the élite of Vienna, where a distinguished lady of that city frequently amused herself and immediate circle of friends by saying smart and rather uncourteous things, evidently for the purpose of annoyance. "By the way," inquired his fair interrogator, "how is it your countrymen speak French so very imperfectly? We Austrians use it with the same freedom as if it were our native tongue." "Madame," retorted the Englishman, in the blandest manner, "I really can not say, unless it be that the French army have not been twice in our capital to teach it, as they have been in yours."

One of the most distinguished incidents of Zimmermann's life was the summons which he received to attend Frederick the Great in his last illness in 1786. One day the King said to this eminent physician: "You have, I presume, sir, helped many a man into another world?" Any ordinary person would doubtless have been scared by so momentous an inquiry, and it was, in fact, a somewhat bitter pill for the Doctor; but the dose he gave the King in return was a judicious mixture of truth and flattery; "Not so many as your Majesty, nor with so much honor to myself."

As all classes of individuals, from the highest to the lowest, are liable at times to meet with a Roland for an Oliver, we must not even exempt those shrewd men of the world termed lawyers. A seafaring man was called upon the stand as a witness. "Well, sir," said the lawyer, "do you know the plaintiff and defendant?" After a moment's hesitation, Jack declared his inability to comprehend the meaning of these words. "What! not know the meaning of plaintiff and defendant?" continued the energetic inquirer. "An intelligent fellow you must be to come here as witness! Can you tell me where on board the vessel it was that that man struck the other one?" "Certainly I can," replied the sailor; "it was abaft the binnacle." "And pray," asked the lawyer, "what do you mean by that?" "Well, that's good," responded the witness; "you must be a pretty fellow to come here as a lawyer and don't know what abaft the binnacle means."

At another time a lawyer, in cross-examining a witness, asked him, among other questions, where he was on a particular day; to which he replied that he had been in the company of two friends. "Friends!" exclaimed his tormentor; "two thieves, I suppose, you mean." "They may be so," replied the witness, dryly, "for they are both lawyers."

A good story is told of a certain Bishop, who, from information received, felt it his paramount duty to remonstrate with one of his clergy for hunting; and so the reverend Nimrod was expostulated with by his chief. "Well, your lordship," was the reply, "I think you will agree with me that not a little generalship is required in the management and marshaling of our pleasures, and I really don't see that it is any worse than going to a ball." "I conclude," rejoined his lordship, "that you allude to having seen my name among the list at the Duchess of M——'s ball; but I assure you I was not in the same room with the dancers during any part of the evening!" "That, my lord, is exactly my case," was the calm rejoinder; "I am never in the same field with the hounds!" After such mutual explanations on both sides, we must not be surprised to hear that the conversation suddenly dropped.

By "turning the table," as it were, upon the enemy, a common soldier of the Russian army proved himself equal to the occasion, and speedy promotion was the fortunate result. It appears that Suvorof, the well-known eccentric General, used frequently to ask his young officers and soldiers the most absurd questions, considering it a proof of smartness on their part if they gave a prompt reply, and hating above all things "I don't know" as an answer. He one day went up to a sentry, and as the man presented arms, Suvorof said: "Tell me how many buttons there are on the uniforms of fifty thousand men?" "I can't say," replied the soldier, very naturally: upon which the Marshal, according to his custom, began to abuse him for an ignoramus and rate him for his stupidity. The sentry, however, knowing Suvorof's character, took courage, and said: "Well, sir, perhaps it's not every question your Excellency could answer yourself; for instance, there are my two old maiden aunts—would you please to tell me their names?" The man's quickness atoned for his apparent impudence in the eyes of the General; and the soldier was elevated from the ranks the following morning, his promotion being the turning-point to an ultimately distinguished career.

It need scarcely be said, however, that the same good fortune does not always attend every answer to a question raised by a superior person, absurd or eccentric as the matter may be. It is well known, for instance, that Frederick, King of Prussia, conqueror as he was, sustained a severe defeat at Koslin in the war of 1755. Some time after, at a review, he jocosely asked a soldier who had got a deep cut across his face: "My good friend, at what particular ale-house did you get that ugly-looking scratch?" "I got it," answered the man, "at Koslin, where your Majesty paid the reckoning." It is extremely doubtful if any reward or promotion followed on that occasion; but if so, history has unfortunately failed to make any note of the circumstance.

Again, there are people who mistake impertinence for wit, and often get rather more than one Roland for their Oliver. One of these persons, a foppish nobleman, seeing Descartes enjoying the pleasures of the table, said: "So, sir, I see philosophers can indulge in the greatest delicacies and good cheer," "Why not?" replied the other. "Do you really entertain such an idea as to imagine Providence intended all good things for the foolish and ignorant?"

In thorough conformity with our subject, numberless instances might be quoted in which the humor is somewhat of a "broader" kind. A young man in America during an electioneering contest, suddenly shouted out: "Hurrah for Jackson!" at which a Van Buren man exclaimed, angrily: "Hurrah for a Jackass!" "All right, old man," said the youth; "we won't quarrel over such trifles; you can hurrah for your favorite candidate, and I'll do the same for mine."

Examples culled from historical records are occasionally open to serious doubts, and it would be extremely hazardous at times to give a guarantee for their perfect truth. Apart, however, from these grave misgivings, they serve their purpose in an admirable manner in illustrating such subjects as those we have in hand, as the following concluding anecdote will amply testify:

Henry Carey, a cousin to Queen Elizabeth, after having enjoyed Her Majesty's favor for several years, lost it in this manner: As he was walking in the garden of the palace under the Queen's window, she asked him, in a jocular manner: "What does a man think when he is thinking of nothing?" The answer was a very brief one. "Upon a woman's promise," he replied. "Well done, cousin," said Elizabeth; "excellent!" Some time after he solicited the honor of a peerage, and reminded the Queen that she had promised it to him. "True," said Her Majesty; "but that was a woman's promise."—Chambers' Journal.

* * *

Fashionable Women Thieves.

A prominent manager of one of the greatest dry-goods stores in Brooklyn, in conversation with a writer for the Eagle about the subject of thefts in stores, said:

"It is an amazing, but nevertheless an established fact, that nine-tenths of the things stolen are taken by women who are not professional thieves. Why, the revelations that could be made in regard to this matter are so startling that they would hardly be credited without actual observation. So common has the presence of what is called 'kleptomania' become that the largest and wealthiest dry-goods houses we have are compelled to adopt a definite line of policy in the treatment of accused persons. When a woman of respectable standing is detected she is taken to the office and examined; the proceeds of her thefts are taken from her, and she is required to sign a confession that she has stolen such and such articles, that she is liable to prosecution, and that she expects to be prosecuted if she ever enters the store again. In the possession of our own establishment are several hundred of these documents. A disclosure of their contents would carry consternation into some of our most fashionable social circles, and people would stand aghast by the disclosure of the names that are upon the roll of guilt."

"Are these fashionable shoplifters never prosecuted?"

"Rarely, if ever. It does not pay to prosecute them. It would create a scandal, carry ruin into the families of those accused and prejudice the interests of the house. The system of compelling a confession almost invariably prevents the woman from ever stealing again. It is a matter of policy to follow the course I have indicated. Do I think there is really such a thing as kleptomania? Beyond a doubt there is. I will give you a clear illustration of it: A woman, well known in society, the wife of a conspicuous citizen, came into our store not long ago. No suspicion has ever been entertained regarding her but by the merest chance a floor-walker discovered that she acted strangely, and the attention of the detective employed by us was called to her queer conduct. He kept an eye upon her until she had gone to a dozen different counters, stolen articles and concealed them. Just as she was passing out of the store door the detective said: 'Madame, they wish to see you in the office.' She immediately became very much agitated. It seemed as if she was paralyzed with fear. When she reached the office a member of the firm said: 'Madame, you have articles upon your person which were stolen from this store. You have been seen at the act. You must show us what you have taken and give it up.' She made no attempt at concealment or denial, but she was pale with fright and overcome with shame and mortification. She searched her pockets and took out what she had abstracted from the different departments. She had three dozen pairs of kid gloves, several pairs of hose, a large quantity of ribbons, some fancy jewelry, and some tooth-brushes. The wretched woman, in a paroxysm of grief, fell upon her knees, and in agonized tones implored mercy, naming her husband, a prominent citizen, and pleading that exposure meant the ruin of herself and the lasting disgrace of her family. She said that she had plenty of money, was willing to pay for the articles, and also to pay out any sum that might be named to compromise the matter. This woman signed an admission of her guilt, and a stipulation never to enter the store again. To-day she occupies a conspicuous position in Brooklyn society, lives in splendid style on a fashionable thoroughfare, and none of her friends—not even her husband—knows of the occurrence which I have described. So it is in most of these cases. The women don't mean to steal. They generally are well brought up, surrounded by home influences, and have abundant resources at their command. They are suddenly seized with an irresistible desire to steal, and they give way to it. That is why I think kleptomania is a disease."

A Smile.

The world is suffering for smiling faces. The age is too intense in the business direction, too flippant in the social line, too sarcastic in its political tendency, too aimless in its religious life, too heartless in its literature. The world needs more smiles and fewer frowns, more sunshine and less lightning. It costs nothing to allow a smile to play restfully upon the features when trading or voting, when talking or reading. It pays infinitely more than it costs in friendship, in finance, in individual growth. We can win more people by a smile than we can frighten by a frown, just as the sunshine [illegible] more trees than the lightning shatters.

A smile is the cheapest and most effective way to soothe sorrowing hearts; to quell rebellious pupils or children; to tame angry employes; to heal political antagonists, or restore calm to a disturbed church.

A smile is like a diamond; it multiplies the love it transmits a hundred-fold and intensifies its brilliancy. It is nothing against the sunshine of an smile, that there may be roguish ones, and we must not mistake the grin of weakness for the smile of strength. A true manly or womanly smile is as choice as a day in June, and has the same effect upon the best germs of our nature that the rare June day has upon nature over which it broods with such tender, affectionate grace.—Golden Rule.

* * *

—When the great freshets of 1832 and 1847 left the Ohio Valley, a deadly pestilence followed on both occasions, and immediately.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Connecticut is rapidly advancing in the cultivation of oysters. About 90,000 acres are now planted, and thirty steamers and many sailing vessels are engaged in the trade.

—In Michigan the corn crop this year was better than any seen in that State in several years. In many localities the grain is full, hard and dry, and the ears are large. The fodder has been cured in excellent condition.—Detroit Post.

—An English trade journal asserts that British paper-makers are compelled to go to the United States for the best chilled rolls for glazing calenders, as both English and Scotch engineers fail to produce anything equal to the American.

—In many parts of Sweden exist enormous quantities of bleached mosses which grew ages ago. A manufactory of paper from this material has begun operations near Joenkoeping, and is said to be turning out a product of excellent quality.

—Coal oil has been found near Elhi, six miles from Puyallup, Washington Territory. Specimens of the oil have been analyzed and the finders are satisfied with the result, as it flashes at 210 degrees Fahrenheit and burns readily in a lamp, giving a clear white light.—Chicago Times.

—G. H. Darwin maintains that while there is some evidence of a yielding of the body of the earth to the tidal forces exerted by the attraction of the sun and moon, that yielding is very small indeed, and that the rigidity of the earth may, as a whole, be set down as equaling that of steel.

—The 1883 cut of pine in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota will amount to about 10,000,000,000 feet against 7,768,000,000 last year, and everybody wonders how long it can go on. Apparently there will soon be more attention given to the yellow pine of the South; less valuable than the Northern variety, but of rapid growth and not easily killed out.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Lumber is now being manufactured from straw, the standard size being thirty-two inches in width, twelve feet in length and the thickness the same as the average of surfaced boards. One ton of any kind of straw will yield 1,000 feet of boards that may be handled as ordinary ones. This lumber can be produced and sold in competition with wide walnut at about one-half the price of the latter.—Chicago Herald.

—N. Jepson, an English vegetarian, not wishing to use poor and adulterated animal fats, has sought a substitute and found it in a composition for which the following is the formula: Take four ounces of the finest Brazilian nuts, pounded very fine in a mortar; four ounces of pure olive oil; rub them into a smooth jelly; add eight ounces of fine wheat flour and a quarter of an ounce of salt. Rub the whole into a smooth paste, and use as butter. This would certainly be preferable to much that goes by the name of butter.—Chicago Times.

PITH AND POINT.

—A great modiste issued the following directions for wearing a new style of head-gear: "With this bonnet the mouth is worn slightly open."

—A writer on subjects of science says that as a fertilizer an inch of bone is worth an inch of roses. One should ought to produce a mile of bloom.—N. Y. Herald.

—A Hartford architect says "the best fire-escape is a cool head." We'd like to see that architect letting himself down from a sixth story window on a cool head.—Boston Post.

—A seven-year-older, with the punster's mark on his brow, at dinner, asked his mother what was in a jar on the table. "Pickles, my son," was the reply. "Then, mamma, please pickle little one out for me," came with stunning force from the child, and the mother fell over a chair and fainted.—Detroit Free Press.

—If you want to find a logician, go to your tailor. The other day one of these fractions of the human family was overheard to remark: "I never ask a gentleman for money." "But suppose he doesn't pay you then?" "Well, if he doesn't pay me within a reasonable time, I conclude he is not a gentleman—and then I ask him."—The Judge.

—A man drank some Bowery whisky in New York last week, and turned in eight fire alarms before he recovered. In one fire-box he left a note asking the fire department to put out the comet. No villain could have successfully played it on our firemen. Not because our police are too vigilant to allow it, but simply because Laramie has no fire alarm boxes.—Laramie Boomerang.

—"How can I leave you, my darling?" murmured a Toledo lover in tones of distressing tenderness, as he observed both hands of the clock approach a perpendicular on the dial. "Well, John;" responded the girl with wicked innocence, "you can take your choice. If you go through the hall you will be liable to wake up father, and if you leave by way of the back shed you'll be likely to wake up the dog."—Exchange.

—A Chicago paper says that a printer in that city has been cured by prayer. It does not say what the printer was cured of. If he was cured of extracting the word in a paragraph on which a joke hinges, and substituting a word of his own "to make sense," as he puts it, we will indorse the prayer cure, and give it a five-inch electro ad. free, one year, top column, next to reading matter. All omissions and wrong insertions to be made good at end of contract.—Texas Siftings.

—The only way to deal with a liar is to beat him at his own game. What started this item was reading about an American who had been to Europe, and who was telling a friend who knew he was a liar, about his trip across the Atlantic, and how, on the 25th of the month, "they encountered a swarm of locusts, and the locusts carried every stitch of canvas off the ship." The listener looked thoughtfully a moment, and then he said hesitatingly: "Yes; I guess we met the same swarm of locusts the next day, the 26th. Every locust had on a pair of canvas pants." The first liar went around the corner and kicked himself.—Peck's Sun.

Raising Poultry for the Market.

Raising poultry for the market can be made quite a profitable business if properly managed. By faulty management the profit can be made very small or be made to disappear entirely. In raising chickens for market it makes a great difference whether they attain a good size and are sent in early in the season when poultry is scarce and high, or are marketed late when there is plenty of poultry offered at low prices. The prices of chickens in August and September are usually fifty to one hundred per cent. higher than they are in October and November. By having the chickens hatched early in the spring they may easily be made ready for the market early and then secure the high prices which prevail during the latter part of summer and first part of autumn.

In order to succeed in raising poultry extensively, plenty of room must be provided for it. There must be suitable shelter, and plenty of yard room. The yard should be large enough so that a large part of the ground can be kept in grass, to afford the poultry a supply of green food. They need a daily supply of green vegetables. Cabbage and lettuce are best, but young and tender grass is good. Shade is needful in the yard to afford the birds a chance to retreat from the hot rays of the sun in summer. Fruit trees may advantageously be placed in the yard. They will afford the needed shade, and the presence of the fowls will help to protect the trees from insects and insure their thriftiness and fruitfulness. Poultry yards are generally too small. If the yard is large enough the fowls will keep healthy. A New York hotel-keeper a few years ago had a poultry yard which contained fifteen acres, in which he kept large numbers of turkeys, ducks and fowls. They had the range of the lot and during the summer obtained a large part of their food from the yard, and were free from diseases usually incident to poultry. The owner was wont to declare that he could raise a thousand pounds of poultry as easily and as cheaply as he could a thousand pounds of beef, mutton or pork. Under good management it is probably true that a thousand pounds of poultry can be produced as cheaply as a thousand pounds of beef, mutton or pork. The fact that poultry usually sells at two or three times the price of beef, mutton or pork, sufficiently indicates how much greater the profit must be in poultry raising than in raising beef, mutton or pork.

In raising poultry for the market the importance of having the chickens hatched early should be insisted upon. Next in importance is the feeding of them to insure their rapid and continuous growth. The food for the young chicks should be such as is adapted to promote growth, and should be abundant in quantity. Skimmed milk, either sweet or sour, is an excellent article to feed young chicks, along with Indian meal or oat meal or bread made of these articles. The chickens should be given about all the food they will eat so as to keep them growing thriftily, all the time. Many allow their young chickens to be only about half fed for the first three or four months, and then by extra feeding endeavor to bring them into condition for the market. By feeding well from the first the chickens are hastened to maturity, kept in good condition and are ready for the market at an early age. If poultry can be brought to maturity early in the season and sent to market when there is a scarcity of poultry offered, a high price will be obtained for it. The quicker poultry can be grown ready for market, the cheaper can it be produced. A certain amount of food daily is required to supply the waste of the system, maintain animal heat and so forth, and what is consumed in excess of that amount increases growth and flesh. If a flock of chickens can be brought to maturity ready for the market in four months instead of six, the cost of keeping them alive or simply maintaining their condition for two months will be saved. The more the chickens can be made to eat and digest the faster they will grow and the less will be the cost of maturing them. Neglect to feed generously is the cause of many failures in raising poultry for the market. The greatest profit is obtained only by feeding all the birds can eat, while the least profit is obtained by keeping them about half starved. Generous feeding and profit go together and that fact should be sufficient inducement to secure good treatment of poultry.—Practical Farmer.

A Tableau.

M. Gaulthier de Rumilly, Dean of the Senate, received a visit a few days ago from his landlord. It was a question of repairs to be made, and the Senator explained what he wanted to have done. The proprietor listened attentively and promised to have everything done. Six o'clock struck

"Six o'clock already," said the landlord.

"Exactly," replied M. de Rumilly; "but that doesn't matter, for I hope you will do me the honor of dining with me."

"You are very kind," replied the landlord, "but—"

"I insist; I shall not let you leave at this hour; your plate is already laid."

"It is impossible."

"I shall be angry."

"It is impossible, notwithstanding the desire I have to remain. My affairs call me elsewhere at precisely this hour."

"You do not wish to share my dinner?" said the Senator, slightly vexed.

"You will understand why. They dine at M. de Rothschild's at seven o'clock."

"Ah, you are his guest!"

"No, I am his cook!"

Tableau.—Paris Paper.

* * *

—The tables were appropriately decorated when the Boston Commercial Club gave a dinner to some railroad men. The central piece represented a complete train, with engine and tender two feet high, made entirely of roses, pinks, violets, and other flowers. It extended nearly half across the President's table. The guests, as a return compliment, invited the club to a trip through the White Mountains.—Boston Post.

—Soap bubbles can be blown to a size of two feet in diameter and kept two days by using a preparation of oleate of soda and glycerine.—N. Y. Sun.

Our Young Folks.

BEN BRUIN.

Little Ben Bruin ran over the hill:
The morning was frosty, the pine-trees were still,
And the sunshine lay bright on the new-fallen snow.
Said little Ben Bruin: "Now, where shall I go?
They all think me safe in the stable, no doubt;
But what are my paws for, if not to get out?
Must I live with the horses and donkeys? No! I!
The world is before me—my luck I will try."

Ben Bruin trudged on till an hour before noon;
Then he said to himself: "I shall starve to death soon!
Not an acorn or nut have I found in this wood;
There is plenty of nothing but snow. If I could,
For a taste of the dinner at home, I'd run back;
But, somehow or other, I've lost my own track!
Ho! ho! there's a sight I have not seen before—
A little red house, with a half-open door!

"I think I'll step in, for I'm weary and lame."
Ben Bruin was little, you see, and quite tame;
He feared neither children, nor women, nor men,
Though he did like a free forest-stroll now and then.
Harry Hunter had petted the young orphan bear,
Since his father the old ones had shot in their lair;
And to school he had not been forbidden to go—
That he would not be welcome, pray, how could he know?

Ben Bruin stepped into the entry, and there
Little cloaks, hoods and tippets were hung up with care,
And small luncheon-baskets beneath, in a row.
"Something good in those baskets, I smell and I know,"
Said little Ben Bruin, and on his hind paws
He balanced himself, while his nose and his jaws
Found business enough. Hark! a step! pit-a-pat!
Little Rose White came in, and saw what he was at.

Pretty Rose of a school-mate so rough had not dreamed;
She turned pale, and then red; then she laughed, then she screamed.
Then the door of the school-room she threw open wide,
And little Ben Bruin walked in at her side,
Straight up to the school-master's desk. What a rush
For the door and the windows! The teacher called: "Hush!"
In vain, through that tempest of terrified squeals;
And he, with the children, soon took to his heels.

Ben Bruin looked blank at the stir he had made;
As a bear-baby might, he felt rather afraid,
Like the rest of the babies, and after them ran.
Then over again the wild hubbub began,
And Ben, seeing now that all this was no play,
Proud the rout he had raised in disgust turned away,
While he said to himself: "If I ever get home,
In another direction hereafter I'll roam."

Alas! for Ben Bruin's brief morning of fun!
Behind him a click—and the bang of a gun!
And when Harry Hunter went seeking his pet,
The snow by the school-house with red drops was wet;
And pretty Rose White felt so sad that she cried
To see the boy mourn for the bear that had died.
And this is the story of little Ben Bruin,
Who found through a school-house the doorway to ruin.

—Lucy Larcom, in St. Nicholas.

JACK AND THE KITCHEN-MAID.

Jack Brundage had attended a party the night before, and therefore it was by no means strange that the entire family should be aroused before morning by groans from his apartment.

In spite of mamma's oft-repeated advice that he should partake sparingly of the refreshments, he ate six sandwiches, as many slices of cold turkey, four pickles, two large dishes of ice-cream and so many pieces of cake that I am really ashamed to tell the number, and his mortification at the entire circumstance is already extreme.

Now, one would suppose that, under such circumstances, Jack would have declined oranges, lemonade, nuts, candies, and the other knick-knacks that followed; but he did no such thing. On the contrary, he partook of each and every kind as if he had eaten nothing at all before.

After the supper was over, he felt quite unlike himself, and heartily wished he were at home; he lost all enjoyment of the festivities, and had no heart to tell Jessie Blackburn that her curls were the prettiest yellow ones he had ever seen, which he had thought of doing earlier in the evening. He wandered around and seemed at such a loss to express himself that his little hostess sought him and told him she hoped he was enjoying her party, to which he replied that it was most delightful; but as he said it his sensations grew most oppressive.

Would the carriage never come for him? Finally, and it seemed an unending time, the carriage was announced, and Jack bade the little lady good-night, and was driven home, thinking if he could only get to bed.

His rest was uneasy. He slept, awoke; and slept, only to awaken again. At one time he felt tremendous pain in his stomach, and such a dreadful sickness that he almost lost his senses for a minute. When he recovered them he saw a most melancholy little old woman—a servant, he thought—wringing her hands and crying bitterly.

"And who are you, my good woman?" said Jack.

"I am the kitchen-maid," said the woman.

"You seem to be in great distress," said Jack; "what ails you?"

"O, sir! my master is a tyrant. He keeps me at work from morning till night, and oftentimes I am not done till daybreak, only to begin again at seven o'clock. My health is rapidly failing under the tasks he imposes upon me. How old do I look?"

"How old?" repeated Jack; "I should say fifty—and decrepit at that."

"Well, I'm only ten years old, and I should be young and spry, but it's hard work that's done it. If my master kills me, he'll soon die himself, for I'm born to the work, sir, and no one can supply my place."

"What kind of work do you do?" said Jack.

"Do? It's my business to work up everything my master sends down into his stomach to a soft, pulpy mass, and, if I do my work properly, his whole body is strengthened; but it is hardly twenty minutes after his breakfast is eaten before he sends me apples, pop-corn, nuts, candies, cakes—in fact, anything and everything he can lay his hands upon. I never get the breakfast away before dinner comes down like an avalanche. At dinner he eats soups, meats, vegetables, gravies, pies, puddings, fruits; and at supper he eats cold meats, bread and butter, cakes, preserves, fruit, and gives me a deluge of iced tea. Why, sir, having some of his breakfast, most of his dinner, and all of his supper on hand, I have sometimes fainted from sheer exhaustion."

"How terrible!" said Jack, feebly, for there was once more a commotion in his stomach.

"My master went to a party last night, and well I knew what it portended when he went, sir! I have now, as the result, the worst mess, made up of sandwiches, turkey, lemonade, pickles, ice-cream, cake, nuts, candies, oranges, and, what not? But I won't touch it—no, not I! If I let it alone he will be sick enough before he is rid of it."

Jack, in the meantime, was in a state of great embarrassment, for though he had never heard of the kitchen-maid before, he had not been slow to recognize himself in the cruel master. His sickness was increasing every minute, but he finally stammered forth:

"I've been a monster, I know I have—yes, I've been a pig: but if you will only go back and relieve me of this pain and sickness, I'll treat you better in future. I'm sorry, indeed, I am."

"I can't go back, Master Jack, until that is gone," said she; "but, if you would put me on a diet of oat-meal, or bread and milk, for a time, after this is over, I might recover my spirits again, and possibly regain my youth."

She stood staring at Jack, who grew sicker and sicker each minute, and he gave vent to the most heart-rending groans, which brought mamma, papa and Uncle Alfred, who were truly grieved to see their dear boy in such agony. Uncle Alfred, who was a physician, comprehended the case at once, and, with the aid of suitable remedies, relieved the sufferer in a short time, while the maid disappeared in the confusion. Jack soon slept the sleep of exhaustion.

When Jack arose the next morning, rather late, mamma inquired about the party, but beyond saying that it was very nice, he didn't seem inclined to talk about it; but he astonished her very much by asking if Katherine might prepare him a dish of oatmeal, which he ate heroically, for he was not fond of it.

After awhile he gathered confidence to tell mamma of his singular visitor, and of his resolution to be a glutton no longer. Mamma commended the resolve, but said her dear boy had been dreaming. This he assured her was impossible, for if his eyes hadn't been wide open he couldn't have seen the kitchen-maid.—N. Y. Tribune.

Russian Nobility.

The city nobles may be safely divided into two classes, one of which remains at home, while the other rarely, if ever, returns to Russia from abroad. The wealth of these men is enormous; they own whole cities, and, notwithstanding their extravagance, their fortunes continue to increase. Those who make St. Petersburg, Moscow, Kief or other large towns their homes live in a style little inferior to that of the Czar himself. They are the lions of society, always receiving and being entertained, taking great care not to associate with the commercial or professional classes. They even keep aloof from successful doctors, lawyers and professors, whom they regard as a lower grade of mankind. They never take any interest or part in political matters, although they do not fail to use their influence with the Czar or his Ministers when they require a favor for themselves or their proteges. Yet these men are the flower of the army, the very backbone and sinew of the Czar's warriors. Nearly every one of them has received a military education, and although retiring into comparatively private life when there is no fighting to be done, they are ever ready with their swords and purses at the sound of the bugle. Look through the imperial army list and you will find the names of nobles who for many generations have figured conspicuously and have distinguished themselves in battles by land and water. Their names are household words throughout the country, and a soldier would sooner follow one of these than the most successful General of ordinary blood. Besides placing their bodies at the disposal of the State in time of war, they come forward with their fortunes also, and as long as these nobles maintain their own Russia will never fail through want of the sinews of war.

The second class of the same category of nobles is utterly useless to the State. In early youth they leave the country for foreign parts, where they remain. Enjoying great titles and greater fortunes, they lead a life of luxury and dissipation which has become proverbial throughout Europe. During the London season they are in London, during the Paris season they are in Paris, during the Vienna season they are in Vienna, and the man who breaks the gambling banks at Monte Carlo, or who calmly loses his million at the same place, is in nine cases out of ten a Russian noble. When the State requires their swords or their assistance they are not to be found, yet they brag more than any body else over the achievements of their country, as if they were the cause of every success. It is against this class of nobles that both peasants and citizens are complaining bitterly, and no wonder. They take every rouble they can out of the country, and enjoy all the privileges and advantages of the State without bearing one of its burdens.

The third acknowledged class of nobles is composed of those who have little or no property either in farms or cities, but who must maintain their positions both in the State and society, and in their lists may be found the names of Russia's most glorious children. Should they enter a profession or embrace the commercial or financial career, they would immediately be black-balled by society and despised by the State. Two roads are open to them, the army and the civil service, and they do credit to both. In the army they do honor to the family name, but do not retrieve the family fortunes. In the civil service they do both. To the first class belong men like Skobeleff; to the second men like Ignatieff, the best modern soldier and the cleverest modern diplomat.—St. Petersburg Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

* * *

—Pillerica, in Massachusetts, has the proud distinction of being the only town of its name in the world. It has now 500 more inhabitants than it had in 1776, and is proud of its growth.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. MAR. 14, 1883

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	"	40
¼ "	"	20
"	½ "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates. $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE following is the full text of the new Tariff Bill in relation to tobacco:

That on and after the 1st day of May, 1883, dealers in leaf tobacco shall annually pay $12; dealers in manufactured tobacco shall pay $2 50; all manufacturers of tobacco shall pay $6; manufacturers of cigars shall pay $6 Peddlers of tobacco, snuff and cigars shall pay special taxes, as follows: Peddlers of the first class, as now defined by law, shall pay $30, peddlers of the second class shall pay $15, peddlers of the third class shall pay $7 20, and peddlers of the fourth class shall pay $3 60. Retail dealers in leaf tobacco shall pay $250 and 30 cents for each dollar on the amount of their monthly sales in excess of the rate of $500 per annum. Provided, That farmers and producers of tobacco may sell at the place of production, tobacco of their own growth and raising at retail, directly to consumers, to an amount not exceeding $100 annually

That hereafter the special tax of a dealer in manufactured tobacco shall not be required from any farmer, planter or lumberman, who furnishes such tobacco only as rations or supplies to his laborers or employes, in the same manner as other supplies are furnished by him to them, provided that the aggregate of the supplies of tobacco so by him furnished shall not exceed in quantity one hundred pounds in any special tax year, that is, from the 1st day of May in any year until the 30th day of April in the next year, and provided further that such farmer, planter or lumberman, shall not be, at the time he is furnishing such supplies, engaged in the general business of selling dry goods, groceries or other similar supplies, in the manner of a merchant or storekeeper, to others than his own employes or laborers.

That on and after May 1st, 1883, the internal taxes on snuff, smoking and manufactured tobacco, shall be eight cents per pound; and on cigars, which shall be manufactured and sold, or removed for consumption or sale, on and after the 1st day of May 1883, there shall be assessed and collected the following taxes, to be paid by the manufacturer thereof:

On cigars of all descriptions made of tobacco or any substitute therefor $3 per thousand; on cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds per thousand; fifty cents per thousand; on cigarettes weighing more than three pounds per thousand, $3 per thousand.

Provided, that on all original and unbroken factory packages of smoking and manufactured tobacco and and snuff, cigars, cheroots and cigarettes, held by manufacturers or dealers at the time such reduction shall go into effect, upon which tax has been paid, there shall be allowed a drawback or rebate of the full amount of the reduction, but the same shall not apply in any case where the claim has not been presented within sixty days following the date of the reduction, and such rebate to manufacturers may be paid in stamps at the reduced rate, and no claim shall be allowed or drawback paid for a less amount than $10.

A PERUSAL of our market reports shows that sales are large in nearly all inland Leaf Tobacco markets, those of Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Ohio and Tennessee, as well as the Seed Leaf States, and especially so in the W[illegible] Cincinnati and Louisville, where larger quantities of White Burley, the principal manufacturing stock, has been sold. This indicates that manufacturers are preparing for a busy trade. This, no doubt, will be the result, now that the tax question has been settled, and a great deal of the surplus stock has been sold. Prospects are now brighter for the whole Trade including planters, who will reap the benefits of an increased demand, incidental to a greatly increased manufacture, which is confidently expected to follow reduced revenue.—Western Tobacco Journal.

IT would be a good plan if the road supervisors would take a note of the bad places in the roads of their respective districts, and then when the time comes to work, give them extra attention. Those places that are now almost impassable should receive especial attention. Some of them have been almost impassable every spring for several years, which can be prevented by proper work. The roads should be worked where they need it, and the worse the condition of any particular place the more work it should be given.

THE California Legislature has passed a bill providing that a murderer who enters a plea of insanity shall first be examined as to insanity alone without regard to his crime, and if he is found to be sane he shall be tried for murder, the false plea shall be an aggravation of the crime. But if the plea of insanity is sustained the murdere shall be sent to an insane asylum by order of the court, and never be removed unless his sanity at the time of the murder is proved, and then he shall be tried on the original charge.

THERE are 3,000,000 of the new nickel pieces in circulation. The only change that will probably be made in the design of the piece will be an addition of the word "cents" beneath the "V." This addition it is said, will make the nickle piece in strict compliance with the law. In this connection it is stated that the three cent pieces are in violation of the law, as the word "cents" does not appear upon them.

THE Treasury Department has recently discovered an extensive error. In a late coinage at the New Orleans mint of 35,000 $10 gold pieces were found to be two and one-half mills on the dollar below the standard. It is said that 15,000 of these coins are in circulation, and the authorities are endeavoring to withdraw them and have the entire issue recoined.

THE internal revenue feature of the tariff bill passed in the last hours of congress, provides for a rebate of fifty per cent. of the tax on tobacco and its products, but failed to make an appropriation to cover this rebate, which aggregates $4,000,000. The tobacco dealers will have to wait until the next session of congress for an appropriation to relieve them.

SPEAKER KEIFER is charged with proposing to Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn that if he would make the point that the senate had no constitutional right to originate a tariff bill, he would rule accordingly, and thus defeat the bill. It is very doubtful whether Keifer ever made any such proposition.

DORSEY, of Star Route fame, is on his muscle. The other day Judge Lilly called on him, and while in a conversation in Dorsey's parlor, about the Star Route matters, Dorsey became enraged and assaulted and beat the Judge until he was as bloody as a country butcher before a friend could separate them.

WIGGINS' storm came last Saturday, but it was no more than a good, hearty March zephyr. Anybody can hit a storm in March if they give it a week of time in which to come. Mr. Wiggins will have to pick his flint and prophecy again.

THE pension commissioner has issued regulations carrying into effect the act of congress increasing to $30 per month the pensions of disabled soldiers, and to $24 per month the pensions of those suffering from the loss of a hand or a foot.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 40@7 75; fair to good packers, at $6 90@7 40; fair to good light, $7 00@7 30; common, $6 00@6 70; culls, $5 00@6 00; stock hogs, $5 50@6 75.

CHAS. REED, after all, does not get $3,000 for defending Guiteau. The senate inserted the appropriation in sundry civil bill, but it was stricken out in the conference committee, and failed to pass.

THE Cincinnati News publishes an interview with a prominent republican politician—name not given—who says that in 1884, Ohio will give a democratic majority of 60,000.

IT is said that the distress in Ireland is greater than it has been since 1847. Many persons refuse to enter the poor-house, and die for want of food.

DAVID DAVIS weds a North Carolina lady to-morrow. It will be a big wedding on David's part.

WASHINGTON saloon keepers are the only persons that lament the adjournment of congress.

CORN is knee high in Hernando county, Florida.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

FRANKFORT, March 6.—The important question, involving the right of co-operative insurance companies of other states to do business in Kentucky without the sanction of the state laws, was tried last Saturday in an agreed case before Judge Major, of the Franklin circuit court. Col. W. B. Sherman, of Iowa, representing the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York, came to the city purposly to make the test, claiming exemption from the provisions of the insurance laws because of the benevolent features of his company's charter. The case was argued for the company by Col. Sherman, who is himself a very able lawyer, and by Insurance Commissioner L. C. Norman on the part of the state.

Commissioner Norman's argument contained substantially the following interesting points at issue. viz.:

The right of each state to regulate the question of insurance within its own borders is clearly defined and laid down in the decision of Paul vs. State of Virginia, U. S. Reports, and the right of the state to say who may and who may not do business connected therewith, to interdict, if desired, the admission of any company or class of companies, and to prevent individuals in her own state from acting as agents for such unauthorized companies, is therein clearly expressed.

By the laws of this state no mutual fire company of any other state can do business in this state, since a capital of at least $150,000 is required, and mutual companies, on the assessment or note plan, having no capital, can neither comply with nor are they exempt from the provisons of the law. The act of March 12, 1876, was passed to foster secret benevolent societies with insurance features, because of the strengthened ties of brotherhood and the succor extended to the families of impoverished brethren. The intention of the legislature is clearly indicated, and no one can for a moment suppose that the framers of the law ever intended to open the doors to these human-ghouls that are stalking abroad in the land, preying upon the prosperity of the people by encouraging gambling in policies on the lives of the old and decrepit, and inciting to murder and forgery in the hope of great gains through the speedy death of the insured. That law was intended to apply to but one class of corporations, and that is expressed in its title. The defendant claims that his company belongs to that class. The plaintiff denies this, because the association is not connected with any secret society, and is chartered simply with a view to making of money. According to the charter, the members, in plain words, pay $1 to this association for the privilege of receiving back from it fifty cents, and that is only when the association chooses to pay it. In the company's application is this question: "Is the applicant an assurable risk?" What does the company desire to know this for if it is not an assurance company? It means "Can we safely insure this man? Will he live long enough to pay the annual fees, etc.? Is there any danger of his dying before we can get enough out of him? Will he live long enough to enable us to publish a very low death rate in our company?" A note requests the medical examiner to write a private and confidential letter on this subject to the company. Why, then, this caution if benevolence and charity prevail in the breasts of these philanthropists? It is an insurance company because its certificate of membership entitles the holder to receive a stipulated sum not fixed, but contingent, yet nevertheless stipulated. It requires the payment at fixed and stipulated periods. It requires a medical examination. It only pays on the happening of a certain event, namely, death, and that payment is made under a contract stipulating the mode, the persons entitled to receive, the time of payment. It also stipulates for a sum equal to seventy-five per cent. of all collections made on account of the death of the insured. The company is called an insurance company at home and makes its reports to the New York Commissioner, but out here it is a wolf in sheep's clothing, seeking whom it may devour."

Commissioner Norman's argument was considered by the lawyers here as a very intelligent and favorably delivered exposition of the insurance laws and the inter-relations on the question at issue between the States.

The Judge of the Circuit Court fined the defendant $100, thus sustaining the Commissioner, and the company thereupon prayed an appeal to the Superior Court, where the case will be finally disposed of at an early day, and thus definitely set at rest that much vexed question.

STATE NEWS.

—Two fine otters were captured in Clay Creek, Warren county, recently.

—The Warsaw Independent says Col. J. J. Landram has gone south for his health.

—Thomas Ogburn, of Carroll co., aged 96 and a member of the Methodist church for the last 35 years is dead.

—Shelby Sentinel: Apiarists generally say that their bees have fared very well the past winter and will come out strong in the spring.

—Clark County Democrat: Clark farmers are preparing to plant a larger acreage in corn and tobacco this year than in any year known since the war.

—A little boy named Scott, living in Garrard county, while running with an open Barlow knife in his hand, fell down, and the blade entered his abodmen full length, inflicting a ghastly and dangerous wound.

Winding Up the Clock,

When the Weary Wheels Were Almost Still, A Luck Accident Reveals the Lost Key.]

"How long did you say you had it?"

"Twenty-five years."

"What! a bad cough, with occasional attacks of hemorage, for twenty-five years? Why, man it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds left of you

Abraham Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin County Pa., stuck to his statement, and when the exclamations of wonder ceased, he added:

"Exactly. You're right. It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is that, before I actually choghed myself out of existence, I got hold of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, and a few bottles of it cured me."

"Cured you? Relieved you, you mean?"

"I mean what I say; it cured me," said Mr. Orner, simply. "I feel like another man."

Please take especial notice: PARKER'S GINGER TONIC is not a mere essence of ginger; not a mere stomachic. The ordinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transient aches, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Tonic covers a far wider and totally different field. It attacks and dissipates radical and chronic diseases of the Lungs, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as delicious to the palate as it is prompt and effective in operation. Ginger is only one among many powerful curatives which the TONIC holds in combination. Test its virtues for that cough of yours, or for any ills which require an invigorant for the whole system.

And, above all, do not permit yourself to be misled. Parker's Ginger Tonic stands alone. Nothing else is "just as good." Prices 50 cents and $1. Economy in buying the larger size. Hiscox & Co., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,

BURLINGTON, KY.

HARNESS MAKER

—AND—

DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

☞ Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat, adjoining the lands of Allred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W NEEL, feb 28-3m Burlington, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthama, and all Throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for General debility and all nervous complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instruction for successful treatment at your own home, will be sent you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self-addressed envelope. DR. M. E. CASS,

201 York street Jersey City, N. J.

☞ Mention this paper. jan 17-83

MOODY'S Boarding School For Teaching all Branches of Dress Cutting, and every garment worn by lady or child; also, SEWING, TRIMMING, DRAPING, and all the FINISHING PARTS of

DRESSMAKING!

Position Guaranteed if Desired.

LADIES living out of the city BOARDED FREE while learning.

Address:
D. W. MOODY & CO.
31 West Ninth St,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,

COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all people should there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green.
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm
L. C. Stephens.

A general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.

dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

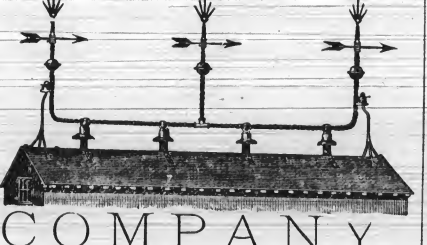
AND TRANSFER LINE.

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

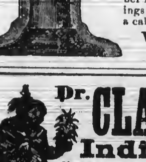
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

Chambers' Lightning Protecti'n



COMPANY.



Having purchased the right to put up the rods of the above company in Boone and Kenton counties, we solicit your patronage. These rods are constructed on the correct principle; it takes a less number of feet to rod a building and are consequently much the cheaper rods, besides they are ornamental and are the only rods that afford complete protection from lightning and are less liable to get out of repair. Their popularity is attested by the number now in use in Boone and Kenton. Those having buildings to rod will find it to their interest to have us give them a call and fix figuers.

W. E. PIPER, CHAS. A. FOWLER.
Burlington, Ky.

TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S

Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the

BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.

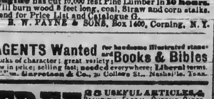
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

☞ AGENTS WANTED. ☜

Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. [illegible]

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.



3 to 100 Horse Power.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 5 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. [illegible] & Co., 30 College St., Nashville. Tenn.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N. Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

TEACHERS WANTED $100, Per Month. Steady Employment during SPRING and SUMMER. Address I. C. McCURDY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, posessing facilties for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, in extra large size, admitting a vast quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for specimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR

DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undeniably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year	$1.15
One copy, six months	65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,
Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian
HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE
FOR THE WHISKERS

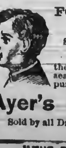
Will change the beard to a natural brown, or black, as desired. It produces a permanent color that will not wash away. Consisting of a single preparation, it is applied without trouble.

PREPARED BY
R. P. HALL & CO., Nashua, N.H.
Sold by all Dealers in Medicines.



FOR ALL THE FORMS OF Scrofulous, Mercurial, and Blood Disorders, the best remedy, because the most searching and thorough blood-purifier, is

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles, $5.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Local News.

For $1 you can have the RECORDER from March 1st to January 1st, 1884.

Sunday, people traveled with an elastic step.

Anglers have made their appearance on Gunpowder.

Mack Aylor has about 1000 locust fence post for sale.

Last Saturday was a genuine March day, full of the lion.

F. P. Walton and family are boarding at the Central Hotel.

There were about a dozen blinding snow storms last Saturday.

The remains of Erastus Garrison were interred in the Big Bone cemetery last Sunday.

The sale of John A. Marshall, who lived near Frogtown, will take place on the 20th inst.

The kite does not cost much; it is only the trimmings that make the lean saving-panks.

Some farmers took advantage of the favorable weather that has past, and did some plowing.

Mr. Dunlap, the evangelist will preach here next Monday morning, afternoon and evening.

W. L. Gedge and James Westbay took in Aurora and Rising Sun, last Saturday and Sunday.

All sufferers from blood disorders can use Ayer's Sarsaparilla with the fullest assurance of happy result.

Albert M. Acra's new house has materialized considerably the past week. It will be a nice looking building.

Tim Westbay is a lofty kicker but he could not reach the ring in the sign post [illegible] Boone House. "Oh my back"

Mr. Ben Rouse commenced planting for vegetables, last week. It looks like he is somewhat in advance of the climate.

Mr. E. B. H. Owens is turning out some well executed work as a sign painter. The work is done for parties here in town.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

Mrs. Nancy Hookey, of Florence, died Friday night. Saturday, Drs. Scott, Sayer, Rice and Slater held a post mortem on the body.

F. P. Walton's dog has returned. It made an extensive tour, returning in apparently good health. Its strange actions are unaccountable.

Charles Parsons and David Horton delivered their tobacco in Covington, last week at $9 75 all around. Legrand Armstrong was the purchaser.

There has been a boom in the thread business the past week. All the small boys, and some that are not small, having gone into the kite business.

The sunshine brought everybody out on the streets last Friday, and ball-tossing, marble playing and flying kites furnished amusement for the crowd.

Spring work is not as far advanced as it was this time last year. In the month of February, 1882 oats were sowed and much land was broken for corn.

Miss Fannie G. Rice, the most accomplished performer on the piano or organ in this community, favors the RECORDER this week with her card. Read it.

James Tanner, who died last Sunday week, had a complete file of all his tax receipts, commencing in 1823. Among his papers were found a five dollar bill, continental money.

Last Monday morning a horse attached to a buggy which B. K. Sleet was driving, scared at a hand express wagon in Florence, and rearing up fell back and damaged the buggy considerably.

When in Petersburg, call and see me whether you need anything in the drug line or not. I am in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Bradly for a grocery. Call and see me. S. C. BUCHANAN.

Dr. Pulaskie Smith, of Taylorport, sold last week, 750 bus. of corn for $50, it having been damaged by the high water. The doctor has sustained a very heavy loss—his family are all sick.

Mrs. Lewis Weaver, of Sunbright, Tenn., who drew the organ in the Covington Commonwealth drawing, was presented, one day last week, with twins. Lewis will have plenty of music now.

Mr. B. F. Corbin and family, of Union, leaves this week for Williamson, Hamilton county, Iowa, where Mr. Corbin will engage in merchandising, and we trust that he will do a thriving business.

Mr. William Percival, son of Jabez Percival, of Covington, graduated at the Ohio Medical College last week with the highest of honors, being awarded five out of seven medals for which he competed.

A squad of hands were engaged, Sunday, where the railroad crosses the pike at Erlanger, taking out the old ties and putting in new ones. On account of the travel Sunday was the best day upon which to do the work there.

Last Friday W. H. Pope delivered at this place to Felix Moses, of Florence, 500 pounds of wool at 25 cents a pound. Mr. Pope has had his wool on hand for four years, and at one time could have sold it at forty cents a pound.

As nice piece of plowing as will be done in this, or anywhere else, this spring, is that being done by Mr. Geo. E. Rouse in the field immediately this side of second Gunpowder, on the Burlington and Florence pike. He uses a plow that turns a very wide furrow, and which is about eight inches deep. That is the way to tear up the soil if you want to cultivate it with ease.

W. E. Piper and Chas. A. Fowler have bought J. J. McAndrew's right to put up the Chambers Lightning Rod in Boone and Kenton counties, and are now soliciting business in that line. We have only this to say: Those having buildings to rod will have the work promptly done if entrusted to them. We bespeak for them your work in their line. Read their advertisement in another column.

The Webb Bros. of Taylorport, have been very fortunate in lodging on their farm a fine lot of lumber, saw-logs and quite a number of small houses, but, the one that had the baby in it, they did not succeed in stoping, but say they will try and catch one with that kind of interesting freight the next rise. When the water subsided it left 200 acres of their bottom land covered with an alluvial deposit, which will make it very fertile.

Mass Meeting.

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee, of Boone county, the action of the Democratic State Central Committee, calling a convention to meet in Louisville on May 16th, 1883, to nominate candidates for State offices was approved, and in obedience to that action, a mass meeting will be held in the court-house, in Burlington, on Monday, May 7th, 1883 at 1 oclock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the State Convention.

J. G. FURNISH, Chmn.

Venner's Spring Prediction.

March, very wintry and stormy, with cold weather, snow and rainfalls.

April, cold and frosty in fore portion [illegible] gradually warming up to a fine spring month, but a good amount of rainfall. Altogether favorable weather.

May, very cold and backward at entry, and early portion with frosts, snows and cold rains.

Spring generally fair, forward, on the whole favorable.

EDS. RECORDER:—Please state in the Recorder that I will begin a series of meetings at Burlington, Friday evening before the 4th Sunday in March. Subject for Good Friday evening—"The Burial of Hope." I will preach at Mt. Carmel, Ohio, on Tuesday and Wednesday evening of the same week, and will not be in the neighborhood of Burlington to visit and call on friends as I intended during that week, Very Truly,

C. C. CONNER.

A gentleman who resides in Kenton county, near the Boone line, and who had his meat house raided and a considerable quantity of meat taken, last winter, has devised a plan for the better protection of his beacon. By means of a wire the meat house door is connected with a bell which is suspended in his sleeping apartment, and the instant the door is opened the bell will give the alarm, when the owner of the meat will man his burglar-alarm (an old army musket containing a four inch load standing at the head of the bed) and make trouble among the thieves. He has not had an opportunity to try the efficacy of the burglar-alarm this winter.

County Court.

Commissioners appointed to divide land of John Underhill.

Sam Wingate appointed appraiser of J. H. Aikin's estate in the place of D. M. Snyder.

R. C. Green's will probated and F. P. Walton appointed admr.

John A. Marshall's will probated and Henry Ross appointed admr.

Andrew Glacken's will probated and J. H. Glackin given time to execute bond, as executor.

Halbert Anderson's will probated and Mary A. Anderson appointed admr'x.

W. W. Garnett granted merchant's liquor license.

Viewers filed report on Ben Conner's application to open road.

W. H. Phipps released from paying tax on $400 erroneously assessed.

Commissioners filed report of division in case of Margaret Souther vs. Jas. D. and Mary A. Souther.

W. T. German appointed deputy sheriff.

Mrs. Ann Botts resigned as guardian for her minor children over 14 years old who chose F. P. Walton as their guardian.

M. S. Rice, R. Randall and N. S. Walton appointed to make division of the land in the case of Mary E. Early, &c., vs. John D. Norris, &c.

Freiburg & Workum having paid the taxes charged against them and the proceedings were dismissed.

The following road supervisors were appointed for 1883:

Burlington—T. B. Rouse, Dan Hewitt, Henry Clore [illegible] O. Huey.

Union—R. L. Newman, J. W. Hogan M. Neal and Robt. Willis.

Florence—W. E. Walton, Eph Tanner, G. W. Utz, and A. J. Clutterbuck.

Petersburg—Jas. T. Grant, F. W. Grant, C. L. Hensly and Jno. L. Terrill

Walton—Geo. Stamler, W. L. Johnson, J. J. Hudson and W. H. Seniour.

Verona—J. R. Johnson, C. Waller, Geo. W. Roberts and Jno. M. Powers.

Bellevue—L. L. Snyder, Albert Kelly, Jas. Rogers and Nick. Schwartz.

Carlton—Reuben Hager, S. Stephens T. C. S. Ryle and Dan Lawell.

Hamilton—J. A. Story, G. L. Miller, Mervin Hance and B. H. Stephen.

Taylorport—Henry McNeal, Samuel Sederberg, J. Wash Watts and Clinton Gaines.

Beaver Lick—Ed Seniour, Jno. T. Underhill, J. J. Cleek and Enoch West.

T. A. Martin & Co., of the Kentucky Stove and Tin Works, No. 634, Madison St., between Pike and 7th Sts., Covington, are selling stoves, grates and tinware cheaper than any house in the West. They sell a No. 7 wood cook stove with all the trimmings for $14. They have also the exclusive sale of the Perfect Stove, which is admitted by all to be the best coal and wood stove ever put in the market. They sell also the Kentucky Home Wood Cook Stove which the world can't beat. It is a good, Honest, heavy cook stove without any nonsense about it. One that will do the work all right and won't fall to pieces. It is a sure enough stove Special prices to new beginners. Persons wishing to purchase anything in their line will do well to call and get prices before purchasing. No. 634 Madison Street between Pike and 7th.

W. E. Price, of Eminence, Ky., writes us under the date of the 9th inst., the following:

I see a statement in you last paper of a hog living 40 days without food. I have one which beats that. My hog was fastened up in a straw stack four months and 11 days without food or water, during the entire time—come out alive and is now doing well. It was quite fat when it went to prison, but was minus some of its flesh on coming out.

The reckless use of the rubber sling with which many of the smaller boys in the town are provided, is causing much complaint on the part of some of the citizens, who say the boys seem to have a special spite at window glass, especially in vacant residences and other buildings. The destruction of property as complained of is a punishable offense, and we counsel the boys to abandon their slings.

LOST—On the night of the 5th, inst., a black mare, 12 years old, about 17 hands high, heavy mane a tail and a blemish on the out side of right hand knee joint, the property of Mrs. Sarah Dempsey, of this place, escaped from a stable in Dembssville, Pendleton county. Anyone returning the mare, or giving information of her whereabouts will receive a reward of $10 when the mare is returned home.

All persons wanting side hill or other plows lay or point either wood or iron would do well to bring them in at once in order to avoid the rush, and give me more time to do it justice, S. A. Palmer, Burlington, Ky.

The early frogs that were making so much noise, not many nights since, caught endflewendways, and are now in the hospital, while the frog-ponds are as silent as the tomb, again.

Mr. Elliot Snyder, in demolishing an old log house on his premises, removed an old land-mark in this county.

Emmett Guilon has sold out at Eagle Station and will go into partnership with W. B. Williams at Liberty Station

The last cold spell set the "fried chicken" crop back about two weeks.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Mrs. J. M. Conner has been very sick for several days.

Mr. Michael Clore, of Bellevue was in town monday.

Albert M. Acra has been quite sick for a couple of days.

Miss Kate Bradford, of Florence is the guest of Mrs. Lillie Hall.

Mr. Brent and family have moved to Campbellsburg, Henry county, their former home.

Mrs. Dr. J. F. Smith spent several days visiting friends and relatives in the city, last week.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Verona.

Clearing, burning plant beds and plowing are the work of the farmers at present.

Mr. E. Morris having taken unto himself a wife, will move into his mansion at Verona shortly.

Mr. Ed Vest and family started last week to Nebraska, where they will make their future home.

Some of our scholars are leaving the select school to commence farm work again.

Prof. Dillman's school will soon be out, when he intends going to Ill.

Mr. Jos. Ballard, our telegraph operator, has left this place and gone to Louisville. Mr. Ballard from Walton has charge of this office now.

Mr. W. B. Tanner was visiting this county last week.

Petersburg.

Mr. Tom Snyder, of Louisville, is here visiting his many friends.

Mrs. Bush, Lou Smith and Theresa McNeely were the guests of Mrs. Norris, last Tuesday.

John Berkshire, of Burlington, was here last Wednesday—John is a Captain.

Capt. Tuttle arrived from New Orleans, last Wednesday, looking hale and hearty.

Mrs. Mollie Bowman has been sick for the past week.

The Steamer Rush landed here last Monday night with two barges of corn which she brought from Corn Island, containing 11,000 bus. which they [illegible] Freiburg & Workum for 87c per bu.

If what Mr. Porter says is true, we suppose there will be a wedding in town shortly. He says he has been thinking for the last few days very seriouslay abont it, and we think he means business.

Prof. A. F. Bruce, of Aurora, was here last week.

Bill Akorn was home last week on a visit, and returned to the Kentucky river where he is running on the Str. Harry.

Plattsburg

L. P. Sullivan has gone to housekeeking in the west end of town.

Grant & Tolin invoiced their stock of goods last week.

Mrs. S. P. Dorman is dangerously ill at this writing.

The back water was higher up Woolper creek the last flood than since 1840.

Miss Ada Hensley is teaching the Ashbyfork school.

Mont Balsly is now a resident of our burg. Mont is running his brother's farm this year.

Mr. John Terrill, who has been sick for several months is no better.

Perry Balden has moved to Clay county, Illinois.

Is it not about time our Sunday school was opening up for the summer season?

How does this strike you for sheriff and representative at the August election? For sheriff W. T. Stott, of Petersburg; for representative, Dr. J. C. Terrill, of Bulletsville.

Enough of anything is enough. So says J. J. Lillard, and the Woolper pike will be repaired and the bridges built in the spring.

Politicaly, we are for Col. Jones for Governor, but will bet the Covington Commonwealth a four dollar dog against a bbl. of mineral water that he don't get the nomination. Let's hear from you, Bro. Casey.

Since the back water has gone out of the creek, several large white perch and buffalo fish have been seen in a pond near the store. G. C. Voshall saw one that he says would weigh 5 pounds.

Funny to see—A man that is full of gab, fit for anything else.

The Enquirer's description of Freddy Gebhardt.

A barber that could stand the racket of the black Maria, of Petersburg.

Tobacco Market.

Cincinnati, Friday, Mch., 9, 1883

G'n Trash and Lugs	$2 50	$3 00
Common Smokers	3 50	5 00
Colory Smokers	5 00	6 00
Colory Trash	6 50	9 00
Good Br't Trash	10 50	15 00
Fine Br't Trash	none
Fancy Bright Leaf	00 00
Dark Lugs	4 00	5 00
Common Lugs	5 50	7 00
Colory Lugs	7 50	11 00
Good Stripping Lugs	11 50	16 00
Fine Str'p'g Lugs	17	25 25
Common Leaf	6	11 00
Com. Med. Leaf	12 00	19 75
Good Med. Leaf	20	23 25
Good Br't Leaf	23 50	26 50
Fine Br't Leaf	27 00	29 75
Com Lug Fillers	7	11 00
Good Lug Fillers	11 50	16
Fine Lug Fillers	18	24
Com. Med. Fil'rs	12 00	19 50
Good Med. Fil'rs	20	28
Good L'f Fillers	22 50	26 00
Fine Leaf Fillers	27 50	29 50

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence.
Burlington, Ky.

FOUND.

Near Bellevue, Boone county, Ky. since the flood a lot of Stone Mason's tools. The owner can have the same by proving property and paying charges.

W. W. GRANT, JAS. SMITH,
Bellevue, Boone conuty, Ky.

NOTICE.

The stockholders of the Woolper Turnpike Company are hereby notified that an election will be held in Burlington on Monday April 2nd, 1883 for the purpose of electing five directors.

J. FRANK GRANT, Sect'y.

TAKEN UP.

Taken up as a stray by Ephraim Helm, living on the Anderson Ferry and Minneola turnpike road about 1 mile from Anderson Ferry, in Boone county, on or about the 8th day of September, 1882, one red and white spotted cow with underbit mark on the right ear, and right horn drooped, but having no other brands or marks. Which I have appraised at $15.

Witness my hand this 3d day of January 1883. JOSEPH WAGSTAFF, J. P. B. C.

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to
GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

J. W. MILLER,
—DEALER IN—
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
432 Madison St.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.
(Odd-Fellows Building.)

Is selling Fancy and Staple Groceries cheaper than any other house in Covington.

Fine Teas A Specialty.

A full stock of Family Groceries always on hand. 7-3m

1883
THE CINCINNATI NEWS
A DAILY
Democratic Newspaper.
Is published to subscribers at the following
RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.
By mail postage paid.
Daily and Sunday edition, 1 year $7
Daily and Sunday edition, 6 months 4
Daily and Sunday edition, 3 months 2
All Subscriptions Invariably in Advance

An extra copy of the paper will be mailed FREE for one year to any person who will raise a club of ten annual subscribers at one postoffice, and forward their names and addresses, together with $60.

BY CARRIER.
Daily and Sunday edition, 15 cents per week, or 65 cents per month, payable to Carrier.

PRICE BY SINGLE COPY.
Daily edition 2c Sunday (double size) 3c

Agents, Carriers, Newsdealers, Newsboys, or any one handling THE NEWS, are required to sell the paper in conformity with the above rates. Address
THE NEWS, Cincinnati, O.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office opposite the Boone House.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the dalicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
83-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora. Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky. | J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

DRUGS & MEDICINES
I have nearly filled up my stock of
PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.
I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of
Stationary, Fancy and Toilet
—Articles. Also have a fine line of—
CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,
Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.
Third door from the corner, in Mr. Bradly's building.
N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY

Fresh, Fat and Fine.
Mackerel by the half Barrel and Kit. And all Kinds of CANNED GOODS.
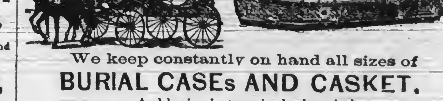
—A FRESH STOCK OF—
Garden and Flower Seeds.
DRIED PEACHES and PRUNES at
W. E. PIPER'S.

WILLIAM CLORE,
—MANUFACTURER OF—
Rover Steel
PLOWS,
Side Hill
PLOWS,
Single & Double Shovels,
Jumping Shovels, Gophers, Rolling Cutters, Harrows and Agricultural Implements Generally. Send for Price List.
RISING SUN, - - - INDIANA.



UNDERTAKING
We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDS & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf28 J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE
RECORDER,
Your Own County Paper.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

—Mr. Edward Atkinson, in illustrating the advantages reaped from machinery, states that with the spinning wheel and hand loom of our forefathers it would require 16,000,000 people to weave the cotton cloth now manufactured by 160,000.

—The orchard products of the United States for 1880 are valued in the last census at $50,876,154. In 1870 they were over $47,000,000. This slight increase was mostly in Southern States, crops in the Northern fruit-growing States being, for 1880, below the average.—Chicago Journal.

—In the early summer of 1787, a farmer near Albany placed a bottle over an apple just as it rounded up from the blossom, and let the apple ripen. Then he broke the stem, and sealed the imprisoned fruit which to-day looks as fresh as when first plucked, ninety-six years ago.—Albany (N. Y.) Journal.

—In 1881 there were examined in the Municipal Laboratory, Paris, 3,001 samples of wine, of which 271 were found to be good, 991 passable, and 1,731 bad. In the first five months of 1882, 1,869 samples were analyzed, of which 372 were good, 683 passable, and 814 bad—145 of the latter being very injurious.

—The annual report of the Canadian Department of Indian Affairs has been issued. The Indian population of the Dominion is 110,500, of which 37,044 are in Manitoba and in the Northwest, 35,050 in British Columbia, 17,000 in Ontario, and 11,099 in Quebec, the remainder being scattered over the other Provinces.

—Beyond the Mississippi River there are 1,200,000 square miles not settled by white men, and of this area 240,000 square miles, embracing much of the best land, are included within Indian reservations, while much of the remainder consists of mountainous tracts, lands inaccessible or sterile, and arid regions which cannot be irrigated.—N. Y. Times.

—The 2,577 buildings erected in New York in 1882 cost $44,793,186, an increase of about $1,500,000 over 1881. Twenty dwellings cost over $50,000 each, eighty-eight cost between $50,000 and $20,000, 477 cost less than $20,000, 577 apartment houses cost over $15,000 each, twenty-five office buildings cost $1,403,645, seventeen churches cost $562,000, and twelve theaters cost $419,775.—N. Y. Sun.

—When Cincinnati packed more hogs than any city in the Union, Kansas City was merely a small spot on the map, if, indeed, it had been christened. Now, [illegible] for that place are 410,000 for 1882-83, against 418,000 in Cincinnati. Westward the hog empire seems to wend its way. St. Louis shows 100,000 less than Kansas City, while Chicago numbers 2,330,000.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—Her Glory.—

A woman's glory is her hair,
Naught else is honored more,
And is it not high on her, when
Her hair's dressed Pompadour?

—At present the most valuable gift which can be bestowed on women is something to do which they can do well and worthily, and thereby maintain themselves.—James A. Garfield.

—They have at last found a way to utilize old oyster cans. It is to make pyramids of them and place a vase of flowers on top. The pyramids are made in your neighbor's back yard.

—A New Hampshire paper says: "Alfred Smith, the Laconia baker, had two fingers cut off recently while feeding a cracker machine." This should be a warning to young people who keep parrots.

—Standing before a clergyman who was about to marry him, a rustic was asked: "Wilt thou have this woman," etc. The man stared in surprise and replied: "Ay, surely! Whey, I kummed a puppus!"

—Ben Franklin's mother-in-law hesitated about letting her daughter marry a printer, as there were already two printing offices in the United States, and she was uncertain whether the country would support a third.—N. Y. Graphic.

—A victim (to dentist)—"Good heavens! man, that is the second sound tooth you have pulled." Dentist (to victim)—"I beg your pardon, sir, but as you only had three when I commenced, I think I shall make no mistake this time."—Detroit Free Press.

—Those queer people who are always prating about the world's coming to an end are again putting in an appearance. This matter is, however, easily settled by the scientific question: "If the world is round, as everybody says, how on earth can it come to an end?"—N. Y. Herald.

—"My mother says your father has gone into bankruptcy," said one little girl to another. "What is bankruptcy, Nellie?" "I don't know exactly," replied Nellie, "but I 'spects it's something awful nice. Pa used to work awful hard, and used to go around in his old clothes; but since he has gone into bankruptcy he dresses up every day and doesn't do anything but walk around just like a perfect gentleman." —Chicago Times.

—What our young men of "pluck and brains" need more than anything else is stability and patience that will enable them to take root in the communities in which they live. By this means their capabilities will become known and estimated at their true worth. But this can not be done in twenty-four hours. What they do not need is advice that will lead them into a nomadic habit of life—ever moving on—and ready, with gripsack in hand, at a moment to fly to fresh fields and pastures new, in case they do not instantly have fortunes thrust upon them.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Man of Character.

A bold bad man entered the editor's room the other morning with a base-ball club in his hand and asked for the boss.

"I'm your man," said the editor, twisting uneasily about in his chair.

"Well, I'm here to see about what you had in about me last week, and have an explanation or a fight."

"All right; I'll explain, because if there is anything I can do better than another, it is to explain. What's wrong?"

"Why, you said I whipped my wife every day in the week, and it ain't so."

"But didn't you whip her?"

"Of course I did, but I didn't do it only three times a week, and I don't intend to have my reputation ruined by any scurrilous notices in the newspapers, and you can bet your blood on it. A man's family is something sacred to him, and when newspapers invade the domestic circle as you have done mine and convey a wrong impression of me, I'm going to settle with somebody and make it lively. You change that notice to read three times a week or you'll have a spell of sickness," and shaking his club he departed, leaving the editor to make the correction.—The Drummer.

A Mistaken Idea.

A short time since a paragraph might have been seen "going the rounds," as it is said, to the effect that a farmer, to be successful in his business, should be a sort of "multum in parvo," a walking cyclopedia, a perpetual movement machine, a jack of all trades, so to speak, having a scientific and practical knowledge not only of his own particular business, but every other man's as well. He must be a farmer, with a thorough knowledge of the science and practice of his art, a carpenter, a mason, a builder, a blacksmith, a surgeon, a machinist, an engineer, a surveyor, a lawyer, a painter, a wheelwright, everything, in short, excepting a capitalist, a banker, and a legislator or statesman: these were, curiously enough, omitted from the list, as though the farmer were to be an endless worker and toiler for the benefit of these privileged classes, who were to do the law-making, the financiering, and the governing for him. It is quite unnecessary to remark that this idea could have originated only in the brain of a person who was entirely ignorant not only of the business of the farmer but of all industrial economy and of the history of industrial progress, and that such a thing is an utter impossibility. A life-time is too short for a man to become acquainted fully with any one business, and when he reaches the end a man—if he is not a fool—begins to learn how much there is beyond him that he ought to know, but has as yet too little time to learn. And of all the industrial arts agriculture is the one in which experience is at the same time the most indispensable teacher and is most slowly gathered in. Certainly a farmer should be well informed; that "goes without saying." Every man who wishes to fill his place in the world wisely and well must be that; but to be well informed in general matters does not require that a man should be an expert in every other business than his own, which would surely be the result at least so far as his own is concerned if one were so misled as to try to accomplish it. Every person should have a general knowledge of what is going on about him, and as much in regard to practical matters as will enable him to carry on his own business economically. A young man can easily accomplish all this if he has a fair education, of the right kind, which has taught him to observe, think, reason, and apply his knowledge and experience wisely and shrewdly to his own business; and if he is able to do this he will see at once the folly and the untruth of the remark quoted above, for he will see on every hand around him evidences and facts to prove that the [illegible] men in the world are those who give their attention to one thing, to one business, and, devoting themselves to that, learn to know "the ins and the outs" of it thoroughly, so as to conduct it economically and perfectly and so make a success of it.

There was a time in the early settlement of America, it is even now the case in some parts of the country, when and where circumstances obliged every man to do many things that were necessary, in a rough and unsatisfactory manner generally, because society was in a transition and growing state, and he had no other way of helping himself. But in a mature condition of society there is an absolutely necessary division of labor for the economical practice of all the industries which is an inevitable outgrowth of that maturity of condition, and not only so, but it helps to produce this very condition as well. A complete and perfect condition of society is one in which every member is useful and indispensable to every other one, in which there is a mutual dependence, and in which no one industry can be spared without disturbing the balance and general order of affairs. And to this condition we have now come. It is like the perfect body of a man, to use an old simile, in which the head can not say to the hand I have no need of thee; nor the ear to the eye, or the hand to the foot; and it is to this state of things the farmer must adapt himself as easily as he can, just as the other persons find themselves obliged to depend upon him. And this adaptation is necessary to the farmer's prosperity, as it is involved in the successful issue of his own industry—that is generally and not individually—as practiced in different localities.—Henry Stewart, in N. Y. Times.

The "Mum" Sociable.

"Lend me your revolver," said a young man with his nose skinned, his eye blackened, and his white necktie around under his ear, and one tail of his dress-coat tore off, as he came into a West Side saloon with his overcoat on his arm and his overshoes in his hand, and his clothes all covered with snow.

"What's the matter with you," said the bar-tender, looking ugly at him. "Do you suppose I am going to lend you a revolver to kill somebody, and then be arrested for being an accessory. Not much! But what's the matter? You look as though you came out of a window. Was anything the matter with the door?"

The young man took a wet towel and sopped the blood off his nose, then went to a mirror and fixed his neck-tie, and turned his back and looked in the glass to see if the absent coat-tail showed much, then went and leaned on the bar and looked at the bar-tender for a moment, and said:

"You look like a man that can be trusted, and whose advice would be safe to follow, in an emergency, and I will tell you about this murder that I contemplate, and may be you can give me some points, as you have no doubt murdered many people. The trouble is right here. Our lodge is to give a 'mum sociable' this evening. You know what a mum sociable is. Young people go to a house and sit around all the evening and keep their mouths shut, and never say a word till a signal is given, then they all make up for lost time and talk for all that is out. (Is my nose bleeding yet? Thanks.) They wanted me to go, and I just came from there. That is, I came from the house next door. You see, I went to the wrong house and rung the bell. A man in his shirt-sleeves came to the door, and said good evening, but I wasn't going to be caught speaking, because you have to pay a forfeit if you speak. So I just walked right in and pulled off my overcoat and hung it up, and hung my hat on the hat-rack. The man looked a little bit annoyed, but he asked me if the weather was not softening up a little. I smiled but didn't say anything, and I walked into the sitting-room, where there was a woman undressing a baby, and I sat down on the sofa. I bowed to the lady, and she said I must excuse her for undressing the baby in company, but she had to do it near the coal stove so the baby wouldn't catch cold. I smiled a don't-mention-it sort of a smile, and wondered where the rest of the gang were. I thought I was the first one there, and I felt very awkward. The man watched me pretty close, and finally he said I had the advantage of him, and I smiled again, but didn't say anything. Now that I think of it, I noticed that he unbuttoned his shirt-sleeves, and began to roll them up. I did not think of it at the time, but his arms were as big as my legs. He asked me to what circumstance he was indebted for the honor of this visit, and I thought he was trying to get me off my guard so I would speak, when they would have the laugh on me, so I smiled one of my best two-for-a quarter smiles, and looked at him as much as to say 'you can't play any of your games on the undersigned.' I think he was the crossest looking man I ever saw, and I wondered what made the committee have the mum sociable at his house. I thought it was time some of the rest of the crowd were coming and I got up and went to the window to look out, when the man came up and hissed in my ear: 'What is your little game, anyway.' Well, I wasn't going to speak, and give myself away, so I looked at him sort of impudent, as much as to say: 'O, go and chase yourself around your feet,' and then I thought lightning had struck me. He took me by the throat with one hand, and by the vicinity of the coat tail with the other hand, and he choked me so my tongue run out, and his wife screamed and said 'don't kill him,' and the man hustled me out into the hall and opened the front door, and he picked me up bodily and threw me out into a snow bank five feet deep. I struggled a little going out of the door and run my nose against the door casing, and I guess he forgot to let go of my coat tail when I went out. I struck head first in the snow, and before I could dig my head out the door closed, and I could not explain my conduct to the man. I was so mad I could not have explained anyway. Just as I got out of the snow-bank and shook myself the door opened and the man threw out my overcoat and hat and overshoes, and he told his wife to hurry up with the shot-gun, and he would take me on the fly as I went over the fence. Well, I didn't wait for no shot-gun, but grabbed my coat and things and come down the street on a gallop. I met a lot of the young people going up, and as I turned the corner I saw them going into the next house to the one that I visited, and that was the first I knew of my mistake. Now, what I want is for you to tell me whether I better shoot that man or kill him with a club. I was raised in the South, and my warm Southern blood will not stand any such treatment." The bar-tender laughed and told the young fellow he had better go and apologize to that man, or he would kick the other coat tail off the first time he saw him, and the young man said on second thought he reckoned he would.—Peck's Sun.

Modern American Fables.

One day two Foxes who were journeying together came across a Track in the dust which much astonished them.

"I believe it is the Track of a Rhinoceros," observed one.

"I think it is that of an Elephant," replied the other.

"I say Rhinoceros!"

"And I say Elephant!"

"Then I travel no longer with such an Idiot!"

"Then you can travel alone with a Fool!"

They were cutting each other about in a lively manner, when along came a Wolf and asked the cause of the trouble.

"Why, that Bigot sticks to it that this is not the track of a Rhinoceros!" shouted one.

"And he, the Narrow-minded Muldoon, won't admit that it is the Track of an Elephant," added the other.

"Gentlemen," said the Wolf, as he examined the spot, "this is simply the place where a fat man struck a Banana Peel and sat down to Reflect. You are both wrong and both Fools."

MORAL: Men are ever willing to fight in defense of what they don't know.

THE HEN AND THE FARMER.

A Hen having laid an Egg set up such a Cackle that presently the whole Barnyard was in Confusion, and the Farmer came running out to see what was going on.

"What is it?" he demanded, as the Hen cackled louder than ever.

"Why, I've laid an Egg!"

"An Egg? Why, a single Egg isn't worth but two cents at the present market price."

"Yes, I know, but if I didn't do two shillings' worth of cackling over every two cents' worth of egg, the world would soon forget me!"

MORAL: Send a bundle of old clothes to an orphan asylum and then interview a reporter.

THE MAN WITH THE ACCORDION.

A Peasant, having saved up a sum of Money by hard work and peeling his Potatoes close, went to the nearest Village and invested in an Accordion. On his way home he began playing the air of "My Grandfather's Clock," but scarcely had the air reached the Forest when out came a Chopper, who cried out:

"Man! Man! for Heaven's sake hang up on that! You will kill us all with your Racket!"

"Can't help that," replied the Peasant, as he pulled away harder than ever. "If what tickles me all over is Death to you that is not my look-out. I will now give you 'The Empty Cradle,' with variations."

MORAL: If our neighbor doesn't want our smoke let him move away.—Detroit Free Press.

Leprosy in the United States.

When we remember that leprosy prevailed in Great Britain and other countries, now nearly or quite free from it, in comparatively recent times; when we take into account the considerable Scandinavian immigration to our shores now going on; and, above all, when we reflect that the policy of isolation pursued by communities in which the disease is rife is not an ostracism of the leper on account merely of his loathsomeness, but a wholesale precaution for the general safety, founded on the conviction that leprosy is contagious, which conviction is forcing itself more on those who have made the matter a subject of scientific study—when we take all these things into consideration, and couple them with the grim fact that leprosy leads infallibly to death within a few years, we may well ask if it is not desirable for us as a people, and if it is not incumbent on the Government, to take steps to prevent the spread of the disease in this country. To be sure, the contagiousness of leprosy is not the rank communicability of the acute infectious disease, but that it is contagious to such a degree as to make it unsafe to allow its victims to go in and out among their fellow-men year after year, seems to admit of but little if any question. Certainly the community should give itself the benefit of whatever doubt there may be in the case, and isolate the leper ruthlessly, and, as regards leprous immigrants forbid their landing on our shores.—N. Y. Medical Journal.

—New York organized 1,201 mining companies last year, of which 283 had the nominal capital of $248,000,000.—N. Y. Sun.

Trained Memory.

The extent to which the memory can be trained is shown by the blindfold games that Steinitz has been playing in the rooms of the Manhattan Chess Club. His ability to play against half a dozen opponents at the same time without seeing the boards is a mere matter of memory, and is distinct from his ability to win, which is a matter of skill. It is probable that almost any person of average mental endowments could acquire the power to play several games simultaneously without looking at the pieces, and there are many brilliant chess players who assert that such playing is a mere trick, unworthy of experts in the game, and who will never themselves resort to it.

Nevertheless, as a kind of acrobatic performance with the members, it possesses features of interest. And yet it can hardly be said that blindfold chess playing, even when it is as remarkable as that of Steinitz, equals the feats performed with the memory by some of the young persons who have been palmed off upon the public by alleged magicians as possessors of the gift of second-sight. Houdin, in his memoirs, tells of training his son's memory to such extraordinary purpose that if the boy passed rapidly by a shop window full of numerous small wares, one momentary glance would enable him to give a minute description of every article that his eye had flashed over. But it has never been demonstrated that such a highly trained memory can be of much value for any really useful purpose.—N. Y. Sun.

Queer Love Making.

They have queer ways of making love in Brooklyn. A coachman declared that burglars awoke him the other night, and that when he grappled with them one shot him in the hip, the other on the scalp. They stole $130 of his own and $25 of the servant's money, which they carried off. But when the police found that the pistol the burglars dropped belonged to the coachman, and that his slight wounds were made with a knife which he bought the day before, they arrested him. He then confessed that he was in love with the servant girl, who failed to return his passion, and he had taken this method of exciting her compassion. He stole her money also in order to take her to places of amusement.—Detroit Free Press.

—The officers of the steamer Blake, which arrived at the Brooklyn Navy Yard recently, have won the distinction of making the deepest sounding in the Atlantic yet recorded. The greatest depth hitherto reported was 3,862 fathoms; but the Blake beats this record by 700 fathoms. A place was found about 100 miles northwest of St. Thomas where it took 4,661 fathoms of line to touch bottom.—N. Y. Sun.

—Translated from the Omnibus: "That appears to me a venturesome undertaking of thee, that thou as a fifty-year-old the sixteen-year-old Emily marryest." "A marriage at my age is always a kind of self-murder, and as it now one time so is, so will I me rather with a new dagger, than with a rusty oven fork, destroy."

—The Queen of Servia writes all her husband's letters while he plays billiards. There are not many wives in this country who would do that much, but we can point out a few who make it a point to read all their husband's letters. And wise women they are, too.—Present Hour.

—A Minneapolis lady recently gave a small dog six grains of morphine, with the intention of killing the animal. The canine went to sleep, and it was supposed had died. Three days later, however, he awoke, and ever since has been as bright and lively as before.—Denver Tribune.

—The President is proposed as a name for the large hotel in Boston on the old Adams House site. The Sheriff would be a very appropriate name for some hotels! By all means use American names for American hotels.—Hotel World.

—The floral contributions sent by Mr. Morton, the American Minister to France, for the Gambetta obsequies, was in the form of an American flag, the union formed of violets, the stars of tube roses, and the stripes of red and white rose-buds.

—The Boston Transcript's musical critic characterizes Mr. Mass' piano playing as "eminently musicianly." It is sorrowingfully to see the English language maltreatedly.

—Character properly embraces three distinct classes of elements: Principles, sentiments and habits.

—There are thirty cremating associations in Italy in active and regular operation.

—Recently, 1,400,000 pounds of haddock were brought to Boston in a single day.—Boston Post.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, March 9, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 50	@ 3 50
Choice butchers	4 75	@ 5 50
HOGS—Common	6 00	@ 6 60
Good packers	6 85	@ 7 25
SHEEP	5 00	@ 5 75
FLOUR—Family	5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 11½	@ 1 12
No. 2 winter red	1 10	@ 10½
Corn—No. 2 mixed	55½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed, new	56	@ 56½
Rye—No. 2	66½	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@ 11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 50	@
Lard—Steam	11	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	43	@
Prime Creamery	40	@ 43
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 50	@ 2 65
Apples, prime, per barrel	3 75	@ 4 25
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$4 15	@ 4 60
Good to choice	4 60	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No 2 red	1 21⅛	@ 1 21½
No. 1 white	1 16¼	@ 1 16½
Corn—No. 2 mixed	72¼	@ 74
Oats—mixed	51	@ 52½
PORK—Mess	19 25	@ 19 35
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 10½	@
Corn—No. 2	57½	@ 59
Oats—No. 2	43	@
Rye	66½	@
PORK Mess	18 00	@
LARD—Steam	11 20	@
WHISKY	1 17	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 26⅛	@
Corn—Mixed	68½	@
Oats—Mixed	51	@ 53
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	20 00	@
Lard—Refined	12¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	$ 9¾	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 12	@ 1 14
Corn—Mixed	53	@ 54
Oats—Mixed	47	@
PORK—Mess	19 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 09¼	@
CORN	55	@
OATS—White, new	54	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 00

—By the will of a Boston lady, lately deceased, Miss Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell receive $20,000 each as the representative women suffragists, and it is said they will use the money in advancing the cause.

An Incident in Virginia.

Our old friend, Mr. Wm. Claughton, of Heathsville, Sheriff of Northumberland Co., Va., says: "We have many good medicines in our parts, but nothing which equals St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy. My family keep the Oil in the house at all times and use it for almost everything that a medicine can be used for. They claim that it is unequaled for rheumatism and all bodily pains. —Tappahannock (Va.) Tide Water Index.

A MULE never kicks the same object twice. Probably for the same reason that lightning never strikes twice in the same place—it doesn't have to.—Chicago Herald.

"Made New Again."

MRS. WM. D. RYCKMAN, St. Catherines, Ont., says: "R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. I have used your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets,' for the last three months and find myself—(what shall I say)—'made new again' are the only words that express it. I was reduced to a skeleton, could not walk across the floor without fainting, could keep nothing in the shape of food on my stomach. Myself and friends had given up all hope, my immediate death seemed certain. I now live (to the surprise of everybody) and am able to do my own work."

THE electric incandescent pocketbook is the latest. It is always light.

Voice of the People.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

I had a serious disease of the lungs, and was for a time confined to my bed and under the care of a physician. His prescriptions did not help me. I grew worse, coughing very severely. I commenced taking your Golden Medical Discovery," and it cured me. Yours respectfully, JUDITH BURNETT, Hillsdale, Mich.

THE compositor who set up "gobblin' turkeys" for "Gobelin tapestries" should give thanks that he is permitted to live.

PIERCE'S "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are perfect preventives of constipation. Inclosed in glass bottles, always fresh. By all druggists.

THE engine-car ought to be on the donkey engine.—N. O. Picayune.

President Tyler's Whooping Cough.

John Tyler was attacked with the whooping cough whilst President of the United States. A child of August Rost, a member of Co. D., 99th Regt. Pa. Volunteers, was cured at Lancaster, Pa., of the same complaint by using Mishler's Herb Bitters. Thousands upon thousands of testimonials, all voluntary, have been received reciting the wonderful curative properties of these Bitters. For Chills and Fevers, Malarious Disorders, Kidney and Liver Trouble, Constipation, and all forms of Nervous Ailments, Mishler's Herb Bitters stand forth as a certain, speedy and permanent specific.

A PANE in the stomach would let enough light in to show how one bears up under affliction.—N. O. Picayune.

Josiah Davis's Trouble.

Josiah Davis, No. Middletown, Ky., writes:

I am now using a box of your HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE upon an ulcer, which, for the past ten days, has given me great pain. This salve is the only remedy I have found that has given me any ease. My ulcer was caused by varicose veins, and was pronounced incurable by my medical doctors. I find, however, that HENRY'S CARBOLIC SALVE is effecting a cure.

DAVID FENDER, "popping the question," in a letter, concluded thus: "And should you say 'yes,' dear Mary, I will truly be your D. Fender."

Gastrine.

This remedy for dyspepsia and all the unpleasant feelings attending indigestion is highly recommended and will be found a desirable medicine for travelers who suffer from nausea and headache. Sold by druggists.

BUILDING lots and indignation are both measured by the foot.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

LYON'S Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes straight. By shoe and hardware dealers.

ADVANCEMENT of learning—Moving the school-house.—Puck.

FOR COUGHS, ASTHMA AND THROAT DISORDERS, use "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

WHY is a fishmonger a prudent merchant? Because he buys and sells c. o. d.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar.

The best medicine for cough or sore throat. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

STRANGE that we can put no confidence at all in a professional confidence man.

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS
Invalids who are recovering vital stamina, declare in grateful terms their appreciation of the merits, as a tonic, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does it impart strength to the weak, but it also corrects irregular acid state of the stomach, makes the bowels act at proper intervals, gives ease to those who suffer from rheumatic and kidney troubles, and conquers as well as prevents fever and ague. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

ASTHMA CURED by using Moore's CURE. Send 25c. in stamps for sample package by return mail to Moore & Harris, Vincennes, Ind. Large Size, $1.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR [illegible] Sts., stamps or silver. L. L. SMITH & CO. Sole Agts. Palatine, Ill.

[illegible] AND NOT WEAR OUT. SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. Birch & Co., 38 Dey St., N. Y.

SAW MILLS The Best is Cheapest. For Descriptive Circular and Prices write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

THE BIGGEST THING OUT Illustrated Book Sent Free. (new) E. F. NASON & CO., 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

HOTEL and estab'd newspaper for sale in bright Dak town. Ad. J. W. NORTHUP, Minneapolis, Minn.

$15 A Day at Home. No peddling: 12 Samples Free. Send 10c for postage, &c. O. K. BOWEN, Brockton, Mass.

Voluntary Tributes of Gratitude for Benefits Received.

DEAR SIR—Please allow me the privilege of giving my testimony regarding the wonderful curative properties of your invaluable medicine, Hunt's Remedy. During the past six or seven years I have been a great sufferer from kidney disease, and during a great part of the time my sufferings have been so intense as to be indescribable. Only those who have suffered by this dread disease know of the awful backache, and pains of all kinds, accompanied by great weakness and nervous prostration, loss of force and ambition which invariably attend it. I had all these troubles intensified, and was in such a bad condition that I could not get up out of my chair except by putting my hands on my knees, and almost rolling out before I could straighten up. I tried the best doctors, and many kinds of medicine, but all failed to help me, and I experimented so long endeavoring to get cured that last spring I was in very poor shape, and in seeking for relief my attention was directed by a friend to the remarkable cures of kidney diseases, etc., which were being accomplished by Hunt's Remedy. I was induced to try it, and began to take it, and very soon "limbered up" as it were; my severe backache, and the intense pains I had suffered so long speedily disappeared, notwithstanding I had been bothered with this complaint so many years.

When I began to take Hunt's Remedy I was considerably run down in my general health, and suffered also from loss of appetite. Ever since I have been taking the Remedy, however, my improvement has been most marked; my former complaints, aches, pains, etc., have disappeared, and I now feel like my former self, hale, hearty, and sound in health. I shall always keep Hunt's Remedy with me, and would most earnestly recommend all those who are sufferers from kidney or liver diseases, or diseases of the bladder or urinary organs, to use Hunt's Remedy, and take no other.

Yours very truly,
HENRY H. SHELDON,
No. 20 Westminster St., Providence, R. I.

"In the lexicon of youth, etc., there is no such word as Fail." That "lexicon" is now found in the laboratory of Hunt's Remedy. It knows no such word as Fail.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS
ABSOLUTELY PURIFIES THE BLOOD, Equalizes its Circulation, Regulates its Supply, Improves its Quality, therefore Furnishes Vital Energy.
.... CONQUERS DISEASE, ...
PERFECTS DIGESTION, Improves the Appetite, Cleanses the Liver and Kidneys; Acts as a mild stomachic and Imparts Vitality and Elasticity to every Organ of the Body. Formula in use 200 years.
.... IT HAS NO PEER. ....
MALARIA GIVES UP THE GHOST upon use while the system is brought to a state of perfect health and vigor. Get it at once. $1. per Bottle.
Mishler's Green Label Bitters, a Specific for Scrofula, Old Sores, Syphilis, &c., while Mishler's Red Label Bitters are prepared expressly for Diseases peculiar to Females. $1.50 per Bottle.
All sold by Druggists.
Sent for book "Messenger of Health."
MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.,
Lancaster, Pa.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup works like a Charm.

PORTABLE Soda Fountains! Send for Catalogue. CHAPMAN & CO., Madison, Ind.

AGENTS Make enormous profits selling our Perfection Coffee Pot. Absolutely indispensable to every family. Choice territory free. No boxing or freight charges. One Agent made $175 the first week, another $40. Write at once for full particulars. Sent free. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., Cincinnati, O., Kansas City, Mo.

AGENTS are reaping a harvest selling our Kitchen Queen Safety Lamps and other household articles. The best selling articles ever put on the market. For Samples and Terms, address the CLIPPER M'F'G CO., No. 61 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, O.

WORTH SENDING FOR! Dr. J. H. SCHENCK, of Philadelphia, has just published a book on "DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND HOW THEY CAN BE CURED," which is offered Free, postpaid, to all applicants. It contains valuable information for all who suppose themselves afflicted with, or liable to any disease of the throat or lungs. Ad. Dr. J. H. SCHENCK & SON, 538 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., P. O. Box 2833.

OPIUM CURE I send a supply FREE and furnish the Recipe for a cure. 13 years experience. Send for circulars. W. F. GEORGE, La Porte, Ind. (Formerly Confidential Secretary for Dr. S. B. Collins.)

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

MAGIC MATCH SAFE Send 20 cts. to W. A. WRIGHT, Westvale, Mass.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

Lay the Axe to the Root
If you would destroy the cankering worm. For any external pain, sore, wound or lameness of man or beast, use only MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. It penetrates all muscle and flesh to the very bone, expelling all inflammation, soreness and pain, and healing the diseased part as no other Liniment ever did or can. So saith the experience of two generations of sufferers, and so will you say when you have tried the "Mustang."

Nowhere Else
Than in the establishment of Oliver Ditson & Co. are published so large, so useful, so varied, so brilliant and every way satisfactory a set of MUSIC BOOKS for SCHOOLS, SEMINARIES, ACADEMIES, COLLEGES.
We here mention, as among hundreds of others, are SONG BELLS, (50 cts.) for Common Schools, by L. O. Emerson, a great favorite, and one that may be universally used. The older books, GOLDEN ROBIN (50 cts.), by Perkins; MERRY CHIMES (50 cts.), by Emerson, and others, have a fixed reputation and are always in demand. Send for lists! The Welcome Chorus ($1), by Tilden, High School Choir ($1), and Hour of Singing ($1), by Emerson and Tilden, Laurel Wreath ($1), by Perkins, Song Echo (75 cts.), by Perkins, and School Song Book (60 cts.), by Everest, are all good and successful collections for HIGH and NORMAL SCHOOLS. Send for lists! Wellesley College Collection ($1), by Morse, Vocal Echoes ($1), Choice Trios ($1), by Tilden, are new and first-class collections for Female Voices.
Five Hundred Instructors for all instruments,
Including the world-famous Richardson's New Method for Pianoforte ($3.25), and many thousands of Songs and Pieces, always ready for the Music Department of Seminaries and Colleges. Send for lists! Any book mailed for retail price.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

CONSUMPTION. I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 cts.

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS on any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, Washington, D. C.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

WE SELL THE BEST $65 ORGAN in the world. Address MILLER ORGAN CO., Lebanon, Pa.

$65 A MONTH and board for TEACHERS Students, Young Men and Ladies, in a light pleasant Business, in your own county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., 915 Arch St., Philadelphia.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment, address P W REAM, Ada, O.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

Childs' Improved Amaryllis Treatea.

This cut represents our beautiful new Amaryllis Treatea, or Fairy Lily. It is one of the most beautiful of all flowers, either for pot or garden culture. It commences to grow and bloom profusely immediately after planted, and creates a sensation wherever seen. Flowers very large, pure white and sweet scented. To thoroughly introduce them we offer large select bulbs, with directions for culture, at very low prices, and send them by mail postpaid, packed secure from frost and guaranteed to arrive in good condition. Postage stamps accepted for pay. We send 1 Bulb to any address for 15 cents, 3 for 35 cents, 5 for 50 cents, 6 for 60 cts., 12 for $1.10, 25 for $2.50 for $3.75, or 100 for $7. Any boy or girl can, by canvassing their neighborhood, get orders for from 10 to 100 at 15 cents each, and by purchasing them at dozen or hundred rates, make a handsome profit. Many have made $5 per day selling them.
SEEDS, BULBS and PLANTS. Our large beautifully Illustrated Catalogue, mailed FREE to all who apply. New and beautiful Lilies, Amaryllis, Gladiolus, Tuberoses, Carnations, Roses, Flower and Vegetable Seed and Small Fruits. Prices extremely low. Most of our seeds are sold in 5 cent papers. We are the largest retailers of named Gladiolus in the world, and have the finest list of Lilies and Amaryllis in America. We are an old-established firm, known all over the world, and always do better by our customers than we agree, therefore do not hesitate to order some of those beautiful Fairy Lilies at once, and ask for our magnificent catalogue. We will also send by mail, postpaid, 10 superb named Gladiolus, 10 sorts for 60 cents; 12 large double Pearl Tuberoses for 35 cents. See catalogue for other special offers. Preserve this advertisement as it will not appear again in this paper, and remember that our goods have an established reputation, are warranted true, and go to all parts of the world. Address J. LEWIS CHILDS, Queens, N. Y.

DIPHTHERIA CROUP, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, NEURALGIA. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment (for Internal and External Use) will instantaneously relieve these terrible diseases, and will positively cure nine cases out of ten. Information that will save many lives, sent free by mail. Don't delay a moment. Prevention is better than cure. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

XX.—NOTICE.—XX.
AS BLUE FLANNEL GARMENTS
Of Inferior Quality of Goods
are sold as the "genuine Middlesex," which are not made by that mill, The Middlesex Company, in order to protect their customers and the public, give notice that hereafter all Clothing made from THE MIDDLESEX STANDARD INDIGO BLUE FLANNELS AND YACHT CLOTHS, sold by all leading clothiers, must bear the "SILK HANGERS," furnished by the Selling Agents to all parties ordering the goods.
WENDELL, FAY & CO.,
SELLING AGENTS, MIDDLESEX COMPANY,
86 and 88 Worth St., New York; 37 Franklin St., Boston; 214 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE TRY IT USE IT It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 93 Fulton Street, N. Y.

WANTED—AGENTS. To buy and sell the WANLESS DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1,000 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO., 136 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

500,000 acres LANDS on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner, MILWAUKEE, WIS. Full particulars FREE. IN WISCONSIN.

I CURE FITS! When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

CANCER INSTITUTE, Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

A. N. K.—E. 916 10—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1883. NUMBER 21.

THE SPORTS AND THE STRANGER.

Three sports got into a railroad car,
A railroad car with a pack of cards;
They called "heat" "hyar," and "there" was "thar,"
And they always spoke to each other as "pards."
For sports there are, both good and poor,
Professional and amateur,
Where railroad trains are running.

They wanted a fourth at a euchre hand,
Three were they, and they were one short,
And they asked a stranger if he'd the sand
To try a little game for sport.
For strangers there are where men abound;
And you'll always find a stranger around
Where railroad trains are running.

The stranger didn't know the game,
But he was willing to live and learn;
To him the cards were all the same—
"They was to all at first he'd learn?"
And the sports laughed loud and dealt the pack,
And gave him four queens and a thick-legged Jack,
As they will, when trains are running.

And then they bet on the poker hand,
And fattened the pot to a goodly pile,
And they asked the stranger if he would stand,
And the stranger stood, with a simple smile,
And one sport raised the other two,
And the stranger him, as strangers do
Where railroad trains are running,

And then, in a solemn breathless hush,
The three sports showed what they had got;
But aces won't beat a royal flush,
And the stranger gobbled that obese pot.
For strangers and sports are natural foes,
And the former carry cards in their clo'es,
Where railroad trains are running.
—Traveler's Magazine.

SELFISH JOHN CLARK.

The meeting was a good one, in spite of the intense heat, and there was more singing done by the mosquitoes than the human species.

John Clark sat by an open window, where what breeze there was came in and kept him comparatively comfortable; and then he had on a clean linen suit which his wife had washed and ironed that day, notwithstanding the mercury mounted high in the nineties, and its freshness was an additional comfort.

His first crop of hay, much larger than usual, had that day been put in his spacious barns without damage by so much as a drop of rain. He was well, strong, prosperous, and therefore happy.

The ride home was charming, and as the new horse took them though Cairnley Woods with sure, fleet feet, he felt that life was very bright; and as he thought of Brother White's remarks about weary burdens and feet tired with the march of life, he concluded that the aforesaid brother was not in the enjoyment of religion.

John's wife sat back in the carriage, resting her tired body and turning over in her mind the remarks her John had made at the meeting. "Bear ye one another's burdens," had been the subject of the evening talk, and John's speech had been listened to with evident relish.

"Your husband has the root of the matter in him," said the pastor, as she passed out. "I hope we shall all take heed to his well-timed words."

"I think of hiring Tom Birch as a sort of spare hand or call-boy generally. I find this hot weather takes the starch out of me," John said, as the horses trotted through the cool pine grove, amid flickers of moonlight.

"Will you board him," asked Mary Clark, in a constrained voice, with the memory of her husband's exhortations still in her mind.

"Of course. I want him evenings to take the horse when we come home from meetings, or if I have a friend out. It is rather hard to go right to work directly one gets home."

"You are going to hire him to help bear some of your burdens," said Mary, in the same hard voice.

"Just so, wife. It stands me in hand to practice, if I preach; don't you say so?"

"' do! I am glad you are going to have help; as you say, it is hard to go to work the minute you get home. I have been foolish enough to have this ride spoiled by thinking of bread to mix, two baskets of clothes to fold before I sleep, for the ironing to-morrow, and dinner to get for four hungry men, and baby to care for."

"Don't crowd to-morrow's burdens into this present ride. And it seems to me that it would be better to get all the house-work done before meeting time."

"If I could; but that is impossible; milk to strain, dishes to wash, Benny and baby to put to bed—all these duties come together; and then I am tired enough to go to bed myself."

"Take it easy, Mary, keep cool, avoid all the hot work you can."

"I wish I could have a girl, John?"

"Mother used to say girls were more hindrance than help. I guess you would find them so; and then they waste and break more than their wages. I don't see how I can afford a girl. Do what you can, and leave some things undone; that's the way to work it," and John sat back with a satisfied air, and Mary thought of her husband's glowing words in the prayer-meeting.

"I will do what I can," said Mary, in a weary voice. "What I am obliged to do is much beyond my strength. The three meals come near together, washing and ironing must be done, baby shall not be neglected, and, of course, I must keep the clothes well mended."

"One thing at a time is the way to think of your duties. Pick up all the comfort you can as you go along. I have made up my mind to do so in the future."

"So I see by your thinking of having an extra hand."

"Yes, I feel that I must take care of my health for your sake and the children's."

"Certainly!" Mary answered, in a sarcastic tone; "how thoughtful you are for us!"

John made no further comment, but inwardly wished that prayer-meetings did Mary the good they had once done, and wondered why his wife had so changed.

"I am going with Squire Town to see a new reaper; he says he hardly wants to buy without my opinion." This was the next day.

John left his wife ironing with the half-sick baby sitting at the table in the company of an army of flies, and, in spite of the home-scene, enjoyed his ride along the pleasant shaded road, well pleased to be seen in company with such a big man of the town. At supper-time he came home with the new reaper behind the wagon.

"By taking two we made a handsome saving, and as I intended to buy one, I thought I might as well take it now," he remarked, by way of explanation. "It will save time and strength, and pay for itself in a year."

Mary made no comment, but set her teeth tightly together when she remembered that she had asked in vain for something to make her work easier. A sewing-machine had been pronounced "hurtful; better have fewer changes of clothing than run a machine," John had decided when the subject was discussed; "a clothes-wringer would be constantly getting out of order. To bring the water into the house would be just to spoil the water. Mother would never have a pump in her day."

"My mother used to say all men are selfish; and I begin to think she was right," Mary muttered, as she went to the kitchen for the plate of hot biscuit John was so fond of for his tea.

Her husband's appetite was good; but from fatigue and overheating herself Mary could not eat. His ride and the society of the genial squire had acted like a tonic; but there is no tonic in the air of a hot kitchen.

"A commonplace life," she said; and she sighed as she cleared away the tea dishes, while John tilted back in his arm-chair on the cool, drafty porch and talked over things with neighbor Jones.

"Why don't you buy Widder Patch's cranberry medder?" asked Mr. Jones; "it is going dirt cheap and you can afford it." The sum was named, figures that astonished Mary, and she was more surprised when she heard her husband say:

"I have half a mind to buy it. I've had an old bill paid in, and to tell the truth, affairs in the money market are so squally, I don't know just where to salt it down."

No tears came to Mary's tired eyes, but her heart went out in one mighty sob as she stood, dish-pan in hand, before the disordered table, and thought how cheaply she had sold herself, really for her board and two dollars a week, to a man who had promised to love and cherish her until death. The beautiful piano she had brought to the farm was never opened, but looked like a gloomy casket wherein was buried all the poetry of her life. The "closed parlor" had long since assumed the grimness and mustiness of country best parlors, of which in her girlhood days she had made such fun. John was a rich man; and in spite of his marriage vows and his glowing prayer-meeting talk, was allowing burdens grievous to be borne to press on her slender shoulders in order to "salt down" his dollars.

Had she not a duty to perform? Ought she to allow him to preach and never to practice? Had she not rights to be respected? which were not by her husband; for, she reasoned, if he allowed her to do what could be done by a hired woman at two dollars a week, then he rated her at that price.

"Widder Patch has had a tough time on't," said neighbor Jones; "she is going westward to Tom, if she sells the medder, and Jane is going out to work. She tried sewing, but it don't agree with her. Dr. Stone recommends housework, as it's a healthy business."

"'Tis healthy business," chimed in John. "Now my wife is a good deal better than when I married her. Why, she never did a washing in her life until she came to the farm. I think washing and general housework much better than piano-playing and reading."

"So I say to the girls who pester me to buy an organ; better play on the washboard enough sight," was the elegant response.

"Are you going to buy that cranberry meadow, John?" Mary asked, as she saw her husband making preparations to go from home.

"Yes - why?"

"Can you afford it?"

"We shall have to figure a little closer in order to do it, but it's going cheap."

"You will have to give up Tom Birch won't you, and do the chores yourself?"

"I have thought of it; but Tom is poor and to give him a home is a deed of charity. Now, we will save in some other way."

"How much do you pay Tom?"

"Three dollars and his board. And, by the way, he says you didn't wash his clothes. Washing and mending was in the bargain."

"I think Tom will have to go, for I have hired Jane Patch. She will be here to-night. Two dollars a week I am to give her. You want to practice 'Bear ye one another's burdens,' as well as preach from the text; so I will give you a chance. I will sit on the cool piazza after tea with a neighbor, while you do the chores. I think the time has come for my burdens to be lifted. By exchanging Tom for Jane you will have one dollar a week for the cranberry meadow. You say strong, active Tom is in need of a home; he can make one for himself anywhere. It is a deed of charity to give Jane a home, and an act of mercy to give your wife a little rest."

Before John could recover from his astonishment, Mary walked out of his sight, and, taking the children, went to the shut-up parlor. Throwing open the windows to let in the soft summer air, with baby in her lap, she sat down to the piano and began to play a "song without words," a piece John had loved to hear when he used to visit her in her home where she was a petted girl. The song crept out through the open windows and round to John as he sat on the porch, and memory compelled him to give the song words. Not musical poetry, but rather somber prose, wherein washing, ironing, hard days at the churn, hours of cooking for hungry men, stood out before his mind's eye in contrast to the fair promises he had made the pretty girl he had won for his bride.

Jane Patch came that evening, and at once took upon herself many of Mrs. Clark's cares, and no one greeted her more cordially than did the master of the house. Nothing was ever said about her coming, and Tom Birch did not go away; so Mary knew her husband could well afford the expense.

She told me how she helped to make one man thoughtful and unselfish, as we sat on her cool piazza one hot August night; and I was glad that one woman had grit enough to demand her rights. If John Clark had been poor his wife would have borne her burden in patience; but she had no right to help make him selfish and indifferent as to her health and comfort.—Christian Secretary.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—A farmer living near Maplesville, Ala., has practically demonstrated the fact that fine rice can be grown in Alabama.

—Typhoid fever in Paris seems to bear a pretty constant relation to the sanitary condition of the dwellings occupied by the afflicted.

—An inexhaustible quarry of blue marble has been discovered near the Dalles, in Polk County, Oregon. It is susceptible of receiving a high polish, and is very hard.—Chicago Journal.

—If Professor Kolbe is to be believed, an atmosphere of carbonic acid gas will preserve [illegible] sound and of good flavor for some weeks, but mutton treated in the same way turns offensive in the short space of eight days.

—To drill glass, M. Gougy, of Paris, recommends that a three-cornered saw-file be sharpened in the usual way, but with one corner taken off, so that the cross section of the drill, near the point, is that of a truncated cone, and the end of the drill is of narrow chisel shape.

—Dugong oil, which is yielded by an herbivorous cetacean of the waters of Australia and the Eastern Archipelago, has all the medicinal qualities of cod-liver oil, without the repulsive taste and odor and tendency to decay. The dose is the same in quantity as cod-liver oil.

—During the past five years the average of export of umbrella sticks from Jamaica has been more than 3,000 bundles, each bundle containing from 500 to 800 sticks. The sticks are made of young pimento or pepper trees, and the demand is likely to cause a scarcity of pepper.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—Something new and very nice in the way of stationery is a writing paper made of jute stock. Being of a deep cream tint, it is exceptionally comfortable for one's eyes, while the hue prevents the writing from showing through. Being in reality nothing but a finer kind of "brown paper," it ought to be cheap. —Boston Post.

—A machine for plastering walls has been invented. It consists of a receptacle for the mortar, the segments of a cylinder in form. It is provided with a hinged loaf or press plate that moves rapidly against the mortar, and as the receptacle is moved upward against the wall the plaster presses out through a narrow-gauged opening at the bottom.

—Hungary is entering the field of silk culture on a large scale. Reports for 1881 show that there were then 2,976 producers, who turned out 41,537 kilograms of cocoons, which yielded a profit that, augmented by State aid, provided for the establishment of a model school which has already given great impetus to this easily managed and profitable industry.

—Additional tests made by M. Bacle seem to prove that low temperature has but little to do with the fracture of railroad ties. Other things being equal, the ties are as strong, he says, in severe frost as when the temperature is normal; but low temperature increases, of course, the rigidity of the road and its inequalities, and so renders the shocks received by the ties very violent, producing at times disasters which are attributed to changes in the metal.

PITH AND POINT.

—There are some people in this world who closely resemble mosquitoes. There isn't much of them, but they tease and fret you all the time.—N. Y. Herald.

—A fashion writer says the "leg-of-mutton sleeves have not proved successful." An opinion got started that they looked sheep.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—If you really dislike a man, it is well to remember that nothing will mad him more than to catch him near a hand organ and go up and offer him some coppers.

—It rather annoys a woman, after she has had her child christened some romantic Indian name, to learn that the name translated means "old boots."—Boston Post.

—We hear a good deal about the "rage for speculation;" but Fogg, who speaks from experience, says the rage generally comes after the speculation.—Boston Transcript.

—We hear of a lady, who lives near by, who has changed her religion, being determined, she says, to avoid her husband's company in the next world. —Atlantic (N. Y.) Herald.

—An Irish baronet has just died, leaving an estate with an income of $50,000 to a daughter whose whereabouts are unknown. We shall expect to suddenly lose our servant-girl if she sees this item.—Lowell Citizen.

—While so many people in this country are being seriously injured by the accidental discharge of firearms isn't it a little curious that such a small number are injured by the discharge, accidental or otherwise, of their duty?—N. Y. Herald.

—Don't lose your presence of mind. A Nevada man who was carried half a mile by a snow avalanche estimated the pressure at twenty-two tons to the square inch. Some men would have been content to simply know that they moved. —Detroit Free Press.

—Said a distinguished politician to his son: "Look at me! I began as an Alderman and here I am at the top of the tree. And what is my reward? Why, when I die, my son will be the greatest rascal in the city." To this the young hopeful replied: "Yes, dad, when you die; and not till then."—Chicago Herald.

—A few nights ago O'Rafferty said to Teddy. "What is it, me bye, that you have to do first thing in the morning?" "I know well enough, fayther, what I have to do first thing in the morning," replied Teddy, laughing. "What is it, ye spalpeen?" "The first thing I have to do in the morning is to get the kindling wood ready the night before."—Texas Siftings.

—On a railway line a passenger stopped the guard and asked: "Why don't the trains go faster?" "They run fast enough to suit us. If you don't like the rate of speed, get out and walk," was the rejoinder. "I would," replied the passenger, "but that my friends won't come for me until the train comes in, and I don't want to be waiting about the station for two or three hours."—London Punch.

Religious.

A THOUGHT FOR EASTER.

Sweet is the story in the Gospels told,
Familiar to our ears, yet never old,
How Mary hastened, in the dawning gray
Of that first, precious, far-off Easter-day,
With spices sweet, and ointment and perfume,
Unto the garden and the rock-hewn tomb;
Tenderly longing honor due to show
The form she pictured lying cold and low;
But found the imprisoning stone was rolled away,
And angels sat where late the Savior's body lay.

What wondrous tidings fell upon her ear:
"The Lord ye seek is risen—He is not here!"
Joy strove with grief and fear in her surprise,
And tears of mingled feeling filled her eyes.
Was Christ then gone? Oh, but for one more glance
Of that revered, beloved countenance!
Weeping, she lingered in the garden's gloom,
And as the sunrise smote the open tomb,
She heard her name, and trembling turned to see
The face she last had seen on Calvary;
No longer pale with pain, but in the light
Of the fair morning, glad, serene and bright.
With quick thanksgiving for a boon so sweet,
"Master!" she cried; and falling at His feet
In silence she adored, but when He said:
"Go tell my brethren," at His bidding sped,
And wrought, in "bringing His disciples word,"
The earliest service for the risen Lord.

The centuries stretch between her life and ours,
Yet as to-day we wreathe the cross with flowers,
She in our solemn gladness bears a part,
And we claim kindred with her loving heart.
For saints in earth and Heaven rejoice as one
At the glad rising of the Easter sun.

And still the Lord, through each of us, His friends,
A loving message to His brethren sends.
Be ours to hearken to the tender tone
With swift obedience as Mary's own,
With flower and song our risen King to greet;
Oh, not with tardy or reluctant feet
Be ours to do His errands, or fulfill
The daily, common bidding of His will.
While with us yet we have the poor, the weak,
The fallen to reclaim, the lost to seek;
The sick to cheer, the ignorant to teach;
Bruised hearts to heal with kindly deed and speech,
How rich in service any life may prove,
Which in Christ's stead fulfills His ministry of love.

O Love, strike deeper roots our hearts within;
O'ergrow the weeds of selfishness and sin;
And be thyself our fragrant offering made,
Our perfect flower upon the altar laid.
What purer, sweeter tribute can we bring
This resurrection-day to Christ, our Lord and King?
—Chicago Advance.

International Sunday-School Lessons.

FIRST QUARTER.

Mar. 18	The First Christian Martyr	Acts 7:54-60, and 8: 1-4
Mar. 25	Review; or, Missionary, Temperance, or other Lesson selected by the school.

SECOND QUARTER.

April 1	Simon the Sorcerer	Acts 8:14-25
April 8	Philip and the Ethiopian	Acts 8:26-40
April 15	Saul's Conversion	Acts 9:1-18
April 22	Saul Preaching Christ	Acts 9:19-31
April 29	Peter Working Miracles	Acts 9:32-41
May 6	Peter Preaching to the Gentiles	Acts 10:30-44
May 13	The Spread of the Gospel	Acts 11:19-30
May 20	Herod and Peter	Acts 12: 1-17
May 27	Paul and Barnabas in Cyprus	Acts 13: 1-12
June 3	At Antioch	Acts 13:12-16 and 43-52
June 10	At Iconium and Lystra	Acts 14: 1-18
June 17	End of the First Missionary Journey	Acts 14:19-28
June 24	Review.

EASTER CUSTOMS.

In earlier times the sun was supposed to dance for joy as it dawned on Easter morning. We can readily understand this superstition, when every heart is rejoicing in the resurrection, and believing that all nature must take part in the common gladness. In many parts of England, however, not only the ignorant classes, but people of culture, believed that the sun really danced in the heavens on Easter day.

Upon this festival of rejoicing it was customary for one Christian to address another with the words: "Christ is risen," the answer coming back: "Christ is risen, indeed," or "He hath appeared unto Simon." Even to day in the Greek church this interchange is still kept up.

Our Greek word Eostre, the name of a Saxon deity, whose festival was also kept at the same time, and Oster, which signifies rising, makes Easter not only in name, but in reality, the feast of the resurrection.

It is called the "Queen of festivals," being one of the most important in the Christian year and celebrated with the utmost joy.

What is a fitter type of the gladness of the heart than beautiful flowers coming at this time with modest beauty and fragrance, as if to bring new joy into the believer's heart. Some flowers seem to be express symbols of the resurrection. The lily, the crocus and the snowdrop, in their purity and whiteness, the violet's beautiful blue, and the rose, in its blushing red, all usher in the Easter morning. The modest wintergreen comes too with her tiny flowers of white:

Of which, it is told in stories old,
That these fair blossoms first
On that blest morn, that Easter morn,
Into white beauty burst,
Perhaps, ah, well! We can not tell,
If it be truly so—
We but repeat, the legend sweet,
And only this we know,
That in the prime of Easter time,
The Christ's sweet flowers blow!

Many curious customs have in all ages been associated with Easter. Perhaps one of the most singular was the playing of ball in the churches. The highest officials of the church participated in them. While a chant was sung, the clergy joined hands, dancing round and round. Sometimes the ball was tossed from the dean to one or even all of the choristers, the music playing to suit the sport. Then came refreshments. In the 18th century this game was abolished by the churches, although to this day it is a game among the people.

Another amusement, which was very common, was the lifting, at Easter-tide. Parties of eight or ten assembled for the purpose, and then extorted a contribution. This was done out of doors usually. A chair trimmed with bright ribbons was carried through the streets, the women persuading some man to enter the chair, and when once in, refusing to let him down until he paid the penalty.

Nothing is so conspicuous among the Easter customs as the Pass eggs; and woe to the hen that refused to make her contributions; she was forthwith condemned to death. These eggs, colored in various ways and with inscriptions, required much labor and skill.

The Tyrolese keep Easter with every festivity. They are not an unbelieving people. The resurrection of Christ is, for them, only the proof of revelation, and greatly do they honor it. Bands of musicians traverse every valley, singing the beautiful Easter hymns to their guitars, calling the people out, who join in their chorus, and rejoice together in the glad anniversaries. Their wide-brimmed Spanish hats are decorated with bunches of flowers; crowds of children follow them, and, when night comes on, bear lighted torches of the pine-wood, which cast grotesque shadows over the whole landscape.

Although many foolish observances have vanished with the lapse of years, Easter is now observed, with more or less rejoicing, all over the world.

How often was the question put by man, in the most advanced stages of civilization: "If a man die shall he live again?" No positive answer was ever given to that question until He came, who proclaimed Himself to be "the Resurrection and the Life." "I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me, shall never die."—N. Y. Observer.

Sunday Rest.

There are two solid grounds on which Sunday laws rest; one, the right of the prevailing religion of the country (be it Jewish, Christian or Pagan) to have its day of worship free from disturbance; and the other, the right of every man to an equal share in a rest-day from toil.

As regards the first, if this country were a Jewish country the Jewish worship on Saturday should be peculiarly protected from molestation. If it were a Mohammedan country, the Friday should be in like manner protected. This is simple common sense applied to things as they are, and no action of doctrinaire theory. Where there is a conflict of sacred days, as among Jew, Christian and Mohammedan, all can not be protected, and hence the majority must determine the question. This certainly distinguishes the sacred day, but does no harm to those who do not count it sacred. It only obliges them to be courteous. The inequality in the matter is only such as in some things must obtain among the freest people.

As regards the second ground: physiologists, statisticians, and sensible observers in general, have agreed that man's body and mind need a complete rest at an interval of about seven days. But man will not take that rest from labor unless he is obliged by law to do so. His greed for gain will make him ruin health in his own case, or (worse still) make him force his employes to ruin theirs by continuous work. The law, therefore, must make and enforce a rest-day. But what day shall it take? Again: common sense says: "Take the day which the mass of the community, from religious reasons, already regard as a rest-day." So the civil law, providing for men's physical well-being, appoints and enforces a rest-day from labor, which is the same day on which the great Christian community worship, and in which the same law, for other reasons, protects them in worship.

There is the whole of the Sunday question in a nut-shell. There is no compelling men to be religious, no supporting a state church, no puritanical blue-law. The Jew, or Mohammedan, or Pagan, simply must not make a boisterous demonstration, such as a noisy parade, on Sunday. Why? Because the vast majority of the people see fit to worship on that day. The Jew, or Mohammedan, or Pagan, must not keep open shop that day. Why? Because the people have decreed a rest-day from labor once a week to help humanity, and that is the day.

The only objection that has any color in it is that the Jew then must keep two rest-days in the week, and hence is at a disadvantage with his neighbor. Well, as we have already said, in the most equal administrations, there must, in the nature of things, be some inequality. Laws, for example, require a notice of "danger" to be put in dangerous places in the city; but, alas! blind men can not read the notices. The laws are unequal to the blind man. They have to be. So here the Jew's conscience tells him to keep from working Saturday. The law tells him to keep from working Sunday. It is a pity; but it can not be helped. The other alternative would be "no rest-day," and that would be destructive to the whole community. We must all bear some burdens for the public good.

Our American liberties are largely connected with the weekly day of rest. This day has given the people time to think, and read, and enjoy family life and without it we should have become an ignorant, brutish, machine people, like the low peasantry of Continental Europe. Take away this rest-day, and you undermine our high moral and educational condition as a people. You turn us into a nation of mere "workies." The cry of religious oppression, as against Sunday observance, is a device of the enemy. It is but the voice of soulless corporations, and of the proprietors of drinking-saloons and other demoralizing places, who wish to make their great gains on Sunday, and care nothing for the welfare and happiness of the people. They are the oppressors, and the advocates of a day of rest are the stanch supporters of a true freedom.—Century Magazine.

Choice Selections.

—Heaven has no promise of comfort to the lazy man, but to those who "labor and are heavy laden" the invitation is, Come and rest.—Golden Rule.

—I wonder many times that ever a child of God should have a sad heart, considering what the Lord is preparing for him.—Rutherford.

—Consolation is the dropping of gentle dew from Heaven on desert hearts beneath it is one of the choicest gifts of Divine mercy.—Spurgeon.

—Do not so desire to follow Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane as to refuse following Him to the carpenter's shop, if Providence now calls you to it.—Fletcher.

—Whatever tends to make the Christian content with a mere routine of religious duties is hurtful to the true "higher life." We can not have it too deeply impressed on our minds and hearts that the religion of Christ is after all a character, not a creed; an every-day life, not a Sabbath routine; a vital, growing principle in the soul, not a fitful zeal for the growth of a church or denomination.—Canadian Baptist.

Our Young Folks.

THE SPHINX.

She doesn't live in Egypt—
Not in these later years;
She sits in a cane-seat rocker,
And this is what she hears:

"Mamma, where's my pencil?"
"Mamma, where's my hat?"
"Mamma, what does this mean?"
"Mamma, what is that?"
"Who was General Taylor?"
"Where's this horrid town?"
"Have I got to do it?"
"Say, is 'rest' a noun?"
"Can I have a cornet?
Don't I wish I had!"
"Ma, if I got rich some day,
Wouldn't you be glad?"
"This book says the dew-drops
Climb the morning sky;
Oh, what makes them do so?
Tell the reason why."

Hear the gentle answers,
Making matters plain;
Should she speak in riddles,
They will ask again.

"Something ails this slipper—Doesn't it look queer?"
"Must I do it over?
Fix it, mother dear."
"We must write an essay
On 'a piece of chalk';
Mother, what would you say?"
"Ma, why don't you talk?"

Children, come to auntie!
Let mamma alone!
(I sometimes think the patient sphinx
Will really turn to stone.)
—Anna S. Reed, in St. Nicholas.

ABOUT CLOTHES.

The fourth of the John Spicer course of lectures was given in the usual place, Barn Hall, and to the usual audience. Superintendent Dick announced that the lecture would be upon Clothes, upon which Jumper, Whistler, and others of the boys, and some of the girls, were seen to brush their clothes a little as if to brush off of them anything which should not be on. Lecturer John Spicer entered Barn Hall promptly on time, made his bow, and gave out his subject:

CLOTHES.

It is very good fun to take off your clothes and go in swimming. [Applause.] Clothes are the things that you wear. They have arms and legs to them, and ever so many button-holes and buttons, and have [illegible]. Pockets are the best part of your clothes. We have two kinds of clothes, best ones and old ones. We hang up the best ones, and I wear the old ones. When you wear your best clothes every day you most always get something on them. Once I hitched the picket of a picket fence into the leg of some best clothes and pitched over head first, and the picket went through, and then I had to take that pair for everyday ones. Gudgeon grease that you get off of wheels will not come off very well. I do not mean it will not come off the wheels very well, but off your clothes. Ink spots stay on, but you can get paint off if you can get anything to take it off with. Mud brushes off when it gets dry, and your mother doesn't say anything when you get mud on your every-day ones, but she does on your best ones. Sometimes when you go to places you have to stop and change your clothes, and sometimes you fall into wet mud and have to go home and take them off. One time I had to go to bed and wait for some clothes to dry that got wet when I was having "darings" on some thin ice of a great puddle down in a hollow place when it had been raining and that puddle froze over. [Laughter.] One time when I was a little fellow, when I was going to a party with two little fellows about as big as I was, and we had on our best clothes, we climbed up a tree to see if some birds' eggs had hatched out, and a dry twig on a branch tore a hole on one side of one of my trouser legs, and I did not want to go back home because that pair was all the best pair of trousers I had. A big fellow—he was not very big, but he was bigger than we little fellows—he told me to go to the party and keep my hand down over the hole, and I did, and somebody that was at the party asked me if my arm was lame [laughter], and I said No, ma'am; but when the ice creams came round I forgot and took away my hand to take the saucer in it, and that some one looked at it, and laughed some, and she said: "Oh, now I see what the matter was with your arm!" and I laughed a little when she did, and she told me not to think any more about the hole then, but to have a good time and think about the hole afterwards, and I did. She told me a funny story about a hole that was torn. I will tell it. Once there was a very small boy named Gussie, and he tore his clothes most every day, and his mother mended them after he had gone to bed and he did not see her do it, and he thought the holes grew up of themselves during the night. [Laughter.] And one day when his little cousin Susie tore her dress her mother told her not to tear, and cried. Gussie told her not to cry, for the hole would grow up again in the night, just as holes did in his clothes. And when Susie went to bed she put her dress over a chair to have the holes grow up, and first thing in the morning she went in her night-gown to look, and her mother found her standing there crying, and when her mother asked her what she was crying for, she said: "Because that hole did not grow together in the night. I thought it would grow up in the night!" [Laughter and applause.]

I know another story. It is about a pair of trousers and a poor boy. Once there was a very poor boy, and his mother had no money to buy him clothes, and his clothes were very old and bad, and the other boys laughed at this one because he wore that kind of clothes. [Groans from the audience, and cries of "Oh! oh! mean! mean!"] And the boy used to go home from school and cry because the boys laughed at him. And his mother said: "No matter if they do laugh at you. That won't hurt you. You just keep to your book and learn all you can; that's what you go to school for. It won't hurt you to be laughed at. Keep thinking of that." The boy went to school every day, and when he was laughed at he said to himself: "Laughing won't hurt me"—just as his mother had told him—and studied his lessons and learned a good deal. And one day the teacher said to the other boys: "Why do you laugh at that boy for his clothes? You are no better for having good clothes. Where did you get your clothes? You did not make them yourselves. You did not earn the money yourselves to buy them with. Somebody bought the cloth, and somebody made them, and all you do is to put them on and wear them out. [A voice: 'That's so!'] So you need not feel proud of your clothes. Clothes do not make anybody any better." Some of the girls and boys in that school were very proud of their clothes, and when they had on nice new things, they would keep looking at them, and feeling proud of them. That poor boy's name was Oliver, and I know a little story about him and some quite good clothes. A woman that had a great deal of money, had a boy named Edward, and one time when Edward's clothes grew too small for him, she sent them to Oliver's mother, for Oliver. They were summer clothes. The first time Oliver put on the trousers, he found a silver pencil in one of the pockets. Two quite large boys were playing there, and he said to them: "Why! here's a pencil been left in! Edward's pencil!" The boys said: "No! your pencil! The trousers were given to you, and everything in them is yours." He told them Edward's mother and Edward did not know the pencil was there. They said: "No matter. They will think it is lost." And one said that may be it was left in on purpose for Oliver. Oliver said he would go and ask. The boys told him he was a cooty to go. And one of them said: "Sell it to me. I'll give you forty cents for it." Then Oliver jumped right up off the ground and spoke very quick: "Do you think I'll cheat! [Applause.] I'm going to ask about it!" [Applause.] He went and asked Edward if that pencil was meant to be left in, and it was not meant to be. Edward's grandfather gave it to Edward, and he wanted to keep it always: but he thought it was lost. They were summer clothes, and they were put away with that pencil in a pocket of them, and stayed a year put away. Once I had some mittens put away in some winter clothes. Mittens are clothes to wear on your hands, and hats are clothes to wear on your head. Once my aunt told me a hat riddle. I will say it:

"Two poor little brothers they had but one hat,
And both wore the same one, can you guess how was that?
Each boy have a head? Oh, yes! each had a head!
And both heads had one hat on, as just has been said.
Their grandfather's? No! a boy's hat made for one,
Yet worn by two heads! Can you guess how 'twas done?
Did one boy stay in! No, nothing like that:
Both went out together, and both wore the hat.
Small heads? No, indeed, sir! Their heads were not small;
You've not guessed my riddle, not guessed it at all.
I'll tell you the answer: The hat was of straw,
As old an old hat, sir, as you ever saw;
It was torn round about, just under the band,
And left in two parts; do you quite understand?
And when these small brothers walked fo in the town,
Why one wore the rim, and the other the crown."
—Mrs. A. M. Diaz, in Wide Awake.

A Troublesome Parcel.

Messenger Hesse, of the Adams Express Company, recently brought over his division of the route from Washington an express package, which it would have been superfluous to mark "handle with care." The package weighed about one hundred and thirty pounds avoirdupois, and it was consigned to a preacher of this city, living in Green street, with a "C. O. D." of thirty-five dollars. The package had come all the way from Dalton, Ga., and was nothing more nor less than a young lady of eighteen tender years, whose parents had sent her to New York by express in order to preclude all possibility of losing her on the way, or to be able to collect damages if she should be mislaid. Messenger Hesse was in somewhat of a quandary how to pack his precious burden when he received a receipt for her at Washington. He thought the only safe plan would be to put her in the corner of a car and pile a lot of trunks on top of her, or to get a crockery crate and cage her in that, but he finally decided to ship her through in a passenger car, and get the brakeman to watch her. One of the necessities of this unique freight package was an occasional meal, and the brakeman was anxious to bring the young lady's provender on these occasions. Messenger Hesse, however, sternly bade him to stick to his stove and his brake-wheel and not to try to usurp other people's duties. The expense of the fair express package's meals was put on a tag and added to the C. O. D. After a great deal of mental suffering, lest his charge should fall out of a window or be spirited away at intermediate stations, Messenger Hesse finally got her safely to Jersey City. There she was loaded into an express wagon and brought over the Cortlandt street ferry to New York and taken to the office of the Adams Express Company, at No. 59 Broadway, where another agent signed a paper acknowledging her safe receipt, and Messenger Hesse breathed a sigh of relief and went forth and took a drink to drown his sorrow at parting. The express package was again put into an Adams express wagon and driven to its consignee in Greene street, who paid all charges and received it with open arms. Messenger Hesse is anxious to have this branch of the express traffic developed.—N. Y. Times.

—Rev. Joshua Hudson, who resided near Gainsboro', Frederick County, Va., went to the hog-pen for the purpose of feeding his hogs. Staying longer than usual, search was made for him, and to the great horror of the family he was found in the pen dead, with the side of his face and throat terribly lacerated by the hogs.

—Although Connecticut may be the home of many of the impositions practiced upon the American public, it is also the seat of much temperance and religious teaching. Recent statistics show that the State contains only 1,189 saloon-keepers, while the number of clergymen is nearly as great—1,055.

—Fifty-three employes, conductors and drivers, of the People's Street Railway Company of Philadelphia have been discharged for stealing fares. The boldest of them, it is said, were dishonestly keeping from two dollars to five dollars a day.—Philadelphia Record.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. MAR. 21, 1883

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	1 "	40
¼ "	1 "	20
1 "	¼ "	20
½ "	¼ "	10
¼ "	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c.. $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however, to the action of the democratic party.

AURORA, Indiana, is to have another national bank.

THE attempt to impeach Hinton, Louisville's city auditor, was a failure.

IN Tennessee they are discussing the propriety of a railroad commission.

COL. JONES' canvass for governor is in a very good shape for a successful termination.

THE Republicans are threatening to run ex-President Hayes for governor of Ohio.

To guard Neal and Craft during their last trial cost the state fifteen thousand dollars.

CIRCUIT COURT is in session in Gallatin county this week. Boone is the next county on the circuit.

SENATOR WILLIAMS was in Covington, the other day, doubtless looking after his senatorial fencing.

THE citizens of Lawrenceburg are determined to strengthen their levee, which has restored business energy.

THE Richmond Herald devotes much of its spare time to the advocacy of local option which now prevails in that town.

JUDGE LEWIS, of the court of appeals, and Miss Jilson P. Johnson, of Lexington, are to be married on the 29th of this month.

AT the recent term of the Carroll circuit court the grand jury found fifty-seven indictments, and the court granted three divorces.

THE trial of Order for a murder committed in Harrison county, Ky., was closed at Falmouth Thursday, the result being a hung jury.

THE race track of the Latonia Agricultural Association is about completed. This society gives promise of being the best in the state.

OVER four million bushels of coal started down the Ohio the other day. It will not be slighted, as it appears we are to have another edition of winter.

W. B. WINSLOW, the most prominent lawyer in Carroll county, and for the past forty years an active and energetic practicioner, died last week, of pneumonia.

AN educational convention is to be held in Frankfort on the 5th of next month. This is a subject in which all are interested, and the convention should be well attended.

THE Enquirer and Cabler, two packets running on the lower Ohio, collided one day last week. The Cabler and its cargo were an entire loss, while the Enquirer escaped injury. But one life was lost.

GOV. BLACKBURN says he has received a letter from a gentleman in West Virginia, affecting the Ashland tragedy, and throwing doubt upon the guilt of Neal and Craft, and offers suggestions as to how the affair occurred.

WHAT is particularly needed in Kentucky is more schools and fewer pistols, more work, more justice and less "humanitarianism," more hangings and fewer murders, more "git up and git" and less sit down and wait.—Breckinridge News.

IT seems that the office of representative for this county is out in [illegible] the man this time. Thus far we have not heard the name of anyone mentioned as a possible candidate, further than what was said, last week, by our Plattsburg correspondent.

SOME of the new road supervisors are consulting the first volume of the Acts of the last legislature to post themselves in regard to the present road law. Those who take this paper and preserved the copy in which the road law was published, will find it very convenient to refer to about this time.

HOGS—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 40@7 75; fair to good packers, at $6 90@7 40; fair to good light, $7 00@7 30; common, $6 00@6 70; culls, $5 00@6 00: stock hogs, $5 50@6 75.

IN this issue we announce Mr. J. R. Clutterbuck, present incumbent, as a candidate for sheriff. He has acted in the capacity of deputy sheriff for some time, and all his official acts commend him to the people as an efficient and industrious officer who will serve them with fidelity if elected.

THE German decree against the importation of American hog products, including sides, bacon and sausage, has been published. This leaves a limit of thirty days for shipments to be made to Germany. The same dispatch states that Prince Bismark has requested the Bundesrath, in order to prevent an invasion of the law, that hog products should be admitted into the country only on the attested proof that they are not from America.

POOR Wiggins! There is not a friend to speak well of him. The pilots and captains of tug-boats who refrained from going out to sea for fear least his prediction would come true, are swearing at the pecuniary loss which has accrued to them. On Long Island several people had built huts on elevated places in order to retire to them when the floods should make their advent. All this is now so much fear's labor lost, and Wiggins is held responsible for it.

THE Lawrenceburg Press of week before last contained an article censuring governor Porter for not being more prompt and liberal in his response to the needs of the Lawrenceburgers during the flood, and an indignation meeting was held in the court-house there, last week, when the Press received a severe reprimand in the shape of a resolution adopted by the meeting, saying that the attack was vulgar, mean and false, &c. The Press says there were only about thity voting in the meeting that adopted the resolution.

THE frequent attempts to build turnpikes in different parts of the county indicate a growing desire on the part of the people to make improvements in that direction, and every time the proposition to build a road is discussed, it gains favor to some extent, and finally the road will be built. The history of turnpikes teaches that they are not agreed upon and built the first time they are proposed, but on the contrary, that they are the result of long, and sometimes bitter, discussions among neighbors, but after the roads are made, a good feeling soon prevails and all are glad they have the road.

THEY are very properly called common school houses. They are far too common for the purpose intended. Some of the miserable hovels called school-houses, are better fitted for pigs than for children who have minds to improve. Kentucky is beginning to wake up on the subject of popular education. The demand is for more comfortable school-houses and more competent teachers. The time is coming when teachers in common schools will be employed solely on account of their qualifications, and not because their services can be secured for the least amount of money. It is poor economy to employ an incapable teacher at any price. It will be a happy day for Kentucky when the school fund is sufficiently increased to justify the employment of men and women as teachers who understand their duties fully. The laborer is worthy of his hire, and intelligent and efficient service should be fairly compensated. Poor teachers send out poor scholars.—Georgetown Times.

THE Bodman Leaf Tobacco Warehouse circular of the 16th inst., says: While the offerings were very large, the proportion of the better class was so small that it did not meet the requirements of buyers, and the consequence was the most active market since last spring. This, however, only refers to grades classing from good style medium leaf to good and fine, which in both old and new was in such great request that the prices advanced a full half cent, and the price closed at the highest quotations Knowing that the stock of good leaf is rapidly diminishing, and with a half belief that a majority of the new is inferior or damaged, buyers are discounting the expected shortage which they can the more readily do, at higher prices, from the fact that they will soon have the benefit of the eight cents reduction in the tax. It is safe therefore to say, that for good grades, and we emphasize the word good, the demand is likely to remain steady, and pay a profit to re-driers. As for common goods, the very large supply caused a dragging market throughout the week and unless very colory they were in little favor.

THE constitution is just now the theme of the State press, which is somewhat divided as to the most feasible plan for its revision, some favoring a sovereignty convention while others adhere to the plan laid down by the framers of that instrument. The plan for executing the work of revision does not need the attention of the press at present. It should direct its efforts to pointing out to the people the incongruities of the constitution. The simple statement that the constitution needs reconstructing does not strike the public as an argument at all convincing. The public wants to know what changes are necessary, and it wants some assurance that these changes would be made in the event a convention is called. The people of Kentucky have been taught to consider the constitution of their State as a sacred instrument as pertaining to government, and will not consent to its modification unless they have some idea of what is to be done. Let the State press post up in regard to the constitution and then present to the people the inconsistencies of the instrument and the subjects on which it is in conflict with the constitution of the United States. Devote more time and space to the necessity of the convention and less to the manner of calling same, and the needed convention will be held at a much earlier day.

STATE NEWS.

—Bart Griffith broke out with small-pox in a crowd on the street in Scottsburg.

—Near Paducah the head of a white woman was found floating in the Ohio river. Foul play is suspicioned.

—The citizens of Owensboro are petitioning the governor to pardon Geo. Smith, a German convicted of forgery.

—One thousand, nine hundred and forty-seven pounds of white Burley tobacco were the product of an acre of ground in Mercer county.

—The explosion of dynamite cartridges blew a man to fragments on the K. C. extension the other day. The cartridges were laid before the fire to dry.

—Col. Charles Duncan, of Falmouth, has sold to J. C. Boyd, of the Palace Hotel, Cincinnati, his 500 acre farm in Pendleton county for $23,000 cash.

—At Greenup, Jeff Bowers, was dismissed on a charge of horse-stealing on Friday. He robbed a store the same night, was captured on Saturday, and on Monday was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

—A Bullett county man boasts that he lives in a house 79 years old; uses a comb 40 years old; sits in a chair 25 years old, and owns an iron kettle 102 years old, being one of the same brought up Salt river by the early pioneers, to make salt.

—On last Thursday night, a barn belonging to E. H. Conrad, who lives below town, containing $100 worth of hay and oats, $300 worth of tobacco and 9 head of cattle, was consumed by fire. It was evidently the work of an incendiary.—Williamstown Courier.

—Mt. Sterling Democrat: Sixty-five men were arrested in Menifee county for neglecting and refusing to work the roads. They all "chipped in" twenty-five cents each and employed all the lawyers in Frenchburg to assist to beat the case, which was done.

—In Jessamine county, George Allenden shot Fremont Oaks through the bowels. The wound probably is fatal. Oaks and another man rode by Allenden's house and fired six shots at it. Allenden returned the fire with the above result. There was no previous quarrel between the parties.

—About three weeks ago, Dan Sanders, a colored man, who lives about a mile and a half below New Liberty on Tom Bond's farm, was bitten by his dog, which showed signs of hydrophobia. The dog was killed and one day last week Sanders began to show signs of hydrophobia, and on Friday last was taken with a paroxysm, and bit two of his attendants, Cris Sanders and Godfrey Riddle. It became necessary Sunday to strap him to the bed in order to prevent him from doing further injury to those around him. A mad stone was procured and applied to the wound on Bris Sanders, but it failed to adhere.—Owen News.

FOR SALE.

A fine Horse and Jack. For particulars inquire of CARTER SIMPSON, Williamstown, Ky.

Attention Farmers.

Charlie, my well known stallion will be on exhibition in Burlington, on Monday, April 2nd, 1883. I will on that day award a good saddle and bridle to the best colt of his get for general purposes. Look out for Charlie for he is a paragon of horse-flesh. Ed Golaway, Florence, Ky.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

One Fool Among Many.

Wrecked by his Untempered Ambition —A Lighthouse on the Shoals.

"I ought to have stopped five years before I did; but I thought it wouldn't amount to anything, so I kept on. I was a fool, of course—but who isn't, when ambition and the chance of making money spurs him on! I only hope I shall get well enough to digest another square meal some time without a rebellion in my stomach."

The speaker was one of the best known civil engineers and mining experts in this country; hardy by nature as a buffalo, but broken down by hard study and the merciless lashing administered to his mind and body by his own hand during the earlier part of his career. At fifty he is prematurely gray, bent in form and dispirited. Dyspepsia did it—Dyspepsia, the self-inflicted curse of the American in every department of toil.

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr. Charles H. Watts, of West Somers, Putnam county, N. Y. and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Tried everything. At last gave PARKER'S GINGER TONIC a chance to show what it could do for It proved its ability by curing me. I reccomend it to all who are suffering from this dreadful di- Mr. G. R. Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y. certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statment.

Gloom, despondency, hopelessness, disgust with all labor, sleeplessness, horrid dreams to render bed-time like the hour of execution to a criminal—these are some of dyspepsia's foot-prints. The Dyspeptic knows what Coleridge meant when he said: "Night is hell." PARKER'S GINGER TONIC cures Dyspepsia, purifies the Blood, dispenses Rheumatism and all chronic ailments. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. HISCOX & Co., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,

BURLINGTON, KY.

HARNESS MAKER

—AND—

DEALER I SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to

GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat, adjoining the lands of Alfred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W NEEL, feb 28-3m Burlington, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county, Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

MOODY'S Boarding School For Teaching all Branches of Dress Cutting, and every garment worn by lady or child; also, SEWING, TRIMMING, DRAPING, and all the FINISHING PARTS of DRESSMAKING!

Position Guaranteed if Desired.

LADIES living out of the city BOARDED FREE while learning.

Address D. W. MOODY & CO. 31 West Ninth St. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 35 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,

COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all people should there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, R. J. Green.
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm.
L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 10-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE.

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

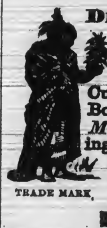
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

Chambers' Lightning Protecti'n

COMPANY.

Having purchased the right to put up the rods of the above company in Boone and Kenton counties, we solicit your patronage. These rods are constructed on the correct principle; it takes a less number of feet to rod a building and are consequently much the cheaper rods, besides they are ornamental and are the only rods that afford complete protection from lightning and are less liable to get out of repair. Their popularity is attested by the number now in use in Boone and Kenton. Those having buildings to rod will find it to their interest to have us give them a call and fix figures.

W. E. PIPER, CHAS. A. FOWLER.
Burlington, Ky.



TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S

Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN. Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

AGENTS WANTED.

Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:—This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. [illegible], Ky., Mar. 15, '81.

City Flouring Mills

RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar7-1423

J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE RECORDER,

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, possessing facilities for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and prejudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by reliable parties, thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vast quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for specimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR

DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumes in its favor. It is undenjably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year	$1.15
One copy, six months	65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,

Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Local News.

This is twin year.

Shoot the groundhog.

Coal, 22 cents a bushel.

Next Sunday is easter Sunday.

Prepare your garden for the plow.

Sunday had an Indian summer cast.

The State is full of constitutional lawyers just now.

We are on the eve of the yard and house cleaning season.

The prospect for a large crop of lambs in this county is good.

The fine weather the past two weeks rejuvinated the farmers.

There is hardly a day passes but that sees our subscription list expand.

For carriage painting aud paper hanging call on Joe Reed, Burlington, Ky.

The personal estate of R. C. Green, deceased, was appraised last Thursday.

This is the month in which the magistrates are engaged dealing out justice.

Mr. Benjamin Rouse has been somewhat under the weather for several days.

Last week was movers' week in Burlington, and among that class was ye editor.

Dudley Rouse has a three dollar bill on the bank of Burlington, issued June 3d, 1818.

Saturday night Miss Maude Kirkpatrick entertained a bevy of her friends handsomely.

Several went from this place to Union, last Saturday night, to attend Mr. Dunlap's meeting.

Mrs. Dempsey's mare advertised in the last week's issue was found, last Saturday, at Falmouth.

The robbins sing as though they were in good spirits regardless of the civil service reform bill and the new tariff schedule.

W. C. Goodridge is buying considerable hay. Ten dollars a ton is the price for good hay favorably located.

Uncle Gus Weaver is able to be about most of the time. With warm weather he will be in good health again.

For Raspberry Jam, Quince, Pear and Strawberry Preserves, Apple, Plum and Peach Butter, go to W. E. Piper's.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is acknowledged the best of all preparations for the cure of pulmonary complaints.

Monday, W. C. Goodridge bought a slashing good horse of Geo. Mitchell, of Kenton county, paying $160 therefor.

A portion of the young people of the town spent a very pleasant evening, last Friday as the guests of Miss Addie Crisler.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

Subscribe for your county paper and you will find many things in it of interest to you that can be found in no other paper.

Mrs. Absalom Aylor has a large lot of chickens, this season's hatching, and which will do to put on the market at an early day.

We are glad to learn that George Walton, of Bellevue, who has been quite low with typhoid fever, is getting much better.

Mr. Edward Botts was in town Friday riding his fine young Almont horse which is a splendid stepper in several of the popular gaits.

At first, when Charlie Fowler invites you to have a cigar, you think you will, and then you think you won't, and, of course, the laugh is on you.

We are going into the garden-sass business this spring, and hope to be able, this fall, to present each of our subscribers with a peck of potatoes.

For some time, F. W. Grant has been suffering with a tumor in or near his groin, and last Monday Dr. J. M. Grant removed the tumor by a very nice surgical operation.

The school in the Morgan Academy closes this week. Mr. Hughes, the teacher, has had a good school, and pleased the patrons. Would like to see him continue.

Last week we sent a copy of the RECORDER to a subscriber in Oregon, and this week we started it to a gentleman in Washington Territory, about as far west as it can go in the United States.

Some time since our butchers hauled their beef in a one-horse spring wagon, but now it takes a two-horse jolt-wagon to do the hauling. Verily, the dimensions of the beeves are increasing.

When in Petersburg, call and see me whether you need anything in the drug line or not. I am in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Bradly for a grocery. Call and see me. S. C. BUCHANAN.

Judge N. E. Hawes, who has been secretary and treasurer of the Burlington and Florence turnpike road ever since it has been a road has resigned his trust on account of his health, which has been very bad this winter.

We had concentrated all our industry Monday morning, to commence organizing a truck patch, but by nine o'clock our mind had changed and we were contemplating laying in a supply of wood and coal for winter.

Quite a number of the young folks gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Piper's last Wednesday evening, where the hours were very pleasantly spent with conversation and music.

The house occupied by Judge Youell, in Walton, was destroyed by fire one day last week. The house was the property of Esquire W. L. Norman. We failed to learn to what the Judge's loss amounts.

This week John G. Gaines moved to his farm, and James Westbay moved to the place lately occupied by F. P. Walton. That place just suits Jim, there being a good pasture and plenty of running water.

Dr. E. L. Grant and others are going to try to make the county build a bridge across Woolper creek, where the road crosses near its mouth, and for that purpose they have commenced proceedings in the circuit court.

A. W. Gaines, a leading attorney of Lawrenceburg, Ind., made our town a flying visit last Saturday. Allie says the next time the water gets within 12 feet of the point reached last month he is going to take to the hills.

Charles Clore has a cow that dropped two fine calves the other day, and Mr. Sam Cowen's cow followed suit with a pair of twins, but lost one of hers, while W. T. Smith's mare brought up the rear with two colts, both of which died.

Mr. Lewis Weaver, of Sunbright, Tenn., writes us that the twins at his house are 23 years old, one of them being the railroad agent. We don't know who originated the report, the offspring of which was the item in our last issue.

Everett Walton contemplates going west, about the first of next month, with his father, for the purpose of looking at the country with a view of locating a future home. While gone they will visit Illinois and Missouri and probably other states.

We received several communications last week too late for publication. As the RECORDER is printed Tuesday night anything coming later than Tuesday's mail has no possible chance of being published. Communications ought to come in by Monday's mail. Our friends will please bear this in mind.

Mr. Dunlap, the evangelist, commenced a series of sermons here last Monday at 2 p. m. The first sermon he preached in the Baptist church which had been tendered him, but at night he preached in the court-house at which place meeting is in progress while we are at press. The attendance is large.

The proposition to pike this end of the East Bend road did not meet with the necessary encouragement. J. O. Huey, O. P. Conner, W. H. Pope and others, whom the road would not have reached took the most active part in the work, and would have been very liberal in their contributions for that purpose.

Mr. E. H. Baker is still extending the boundary of his earthly possessions, his last purchase being Mr. Birkle's farm, the trade for which was made last week. Mr. Birkle we understand, will move to Covington. The vegetable consumers of this town will miss Mr. Birkle this spring, as he was always the first to administer to their wants in that particular.

Mr. Groundhog:—Dear Sir: We beg leave to inform you that the time allotted to you for your winter has expired some time since, and that it is time for you to let up on bad weather. The people are highly indignant at your outrageous usurpation of authority, and unless you change your course, you will be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors.

Last Wednesday a writ of habeas corpus was tried before Esquire Baker. Patsy Scales, colored, sued out the writ in order to get control of one of her children, aged about 12 years, and which a Mrs. Watson has control of. The trial consumed the greater part of the day, and the case was decided against Patsy. L. L. Youell, for the negro and C. Y. Dyas for Mrs. Watson. All the parties were from Walton.

J. Cave Arnold, of Bullettsburg, died on the morning of the 15th, at 4 a. m. He had been a sufferer of that dread disease, consumption, for several months, and it finally claimed him as its victim in the midst of life. He will be missed by his many friends. The funeral was preached in the Bulletsburg church at 11 o'clock on the 16th inst, by the Rev. Dickens after which the remains were placed in the vault to await final interment.

Through the kindness of James Barlow, we have before us a copy of the Monroe City News, containing an account of the assassination of William Rouse, which occurred about one and three fourth miles south of Monroe City, Mo., the last Sunday in February. The body was found lying in the fence corner on the public highway with several buckshot in the head, having been shot from behind while riding along the road. No cause can be assigned for the murder unless it was done for the poupose of robbery, as it was known that but a few hours before found Mr. Rouse had $3 or $4 in his pocket book which was missing when the body was found. A young man by the name of Poage was arrested on suspicion. Some paper gun wadding was found near the dead man, and when Poage's shot gun was taken and examined, one barrel was empty. A blank load was drawn from the other barrel, and the wadding was found to be a portion of the same newspaper, the Monroe City News, a portion of which composed the wadding found near the body. Mr. Rouse's father and mother were formerly of this county, and the deceased has a large circle of relatives here.

Personal Mentions.

(If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.)

L. N. Crigler, of Covington, was in town last week.

Dr. Grant and wife are entertaining Mr. Dunlap and wife.

Dr. J. C. Terrill, of Bullettsville, was in our burg Sunday.

Mr. Jim Green, of Petersburg made us a call last Saturday.

Allen Martin arrived at his father-in-law's, this place, Saturday.

Mr. Williams, a legal light of Rising Sun, was in town Wednesday.

John McElroy, of Verona, graced the streets of Burlington, Thursday.

Mrs. Lulie Hughes, of Paris, Ill., is visiting her relatives is this county.

Miss Sallie Hyatt, of Newport, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Grant.

L. L. Youell, the original County Judge of Boone, was here Wednesday.

Dick White has been suffering considerably with a severe pain in his back.

C. Y Dyas, a prominent lawyer of Grant couuty, was in town last Wednesday.

A. C. Porter and wife, of Petersburg, were visiting friends in Burlington, Sunday.

W. J. Icenogle says he ralsied 18,000 pounds of tobacco which averaged him $9 per hundred.

Mr. Reuben Conner, one of the cleverest gentlemen in the county was in town Saturday.

The pleasing countenance of Mr. Jeff Utz, of the Union precinct, was noticed on our streets last Saturday.

Miss Kate Bradford, of Florence, returned home, last Sunday, after several days visit to Mrs. Lillie Hall.

Geo. Mitchell, of Visalia, Kenton county, was in town Monday. We are glad to learn that George is doing well.

Mr. Geo. W. Hughes, of Paris, Ill., made a flying trip to Boone last week, arriving on Saturday and returning Sunday.

Our genial young friend and merchant prince, James Tolin, of Ashbyfork, was among the visitors to our town last Sunday.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Normansville.

Miss Lucy Kennedy has returned from a visit to Covington.

Dr. J. A. Wood has recovered from his late illness and is again able to visit his patients.

Miss Ellen Porter, an accomplished and estimable lady of Kenton county, who has been teaching at Big Bone Springs, closed her school a few days since and returned home.

Mr. J. D. Moore who has been since New Years in W. Virginia, returned home last week.

Mr. Marion Marshall has returned home after a lengthy stay in Covington.

Mrs. Chas. Smith has been in delicate health for some time.

Our spring school opened Monday Mar., 12th, with a very good attendance. The patronage of the public is solicited. Music and fancy work will be taught to all who desire it.

Taylorport.

Our city is gradually recovering from the deplorable condition in which the flood left it.

Harry Piper gave us a very short business call last week.

Miss Cassie Foulke who has been suffering severely with an attack of neuralgia for several weeks, we are happy to inform her numerous friends, is convalescing.

Our ferry has again changed hands, Aaron Steelman, one of our genial citizens now fills the position, and seems to give entire satisfaction. Joe Graves crosses as frequantly as before.

Miss Ella Sederberg, who has been visiting relatives in Cincinnati for several weeks, has returned home.

Morgan Helm has improved the appearance of his residence and store with a new fence.

Florence X-Roads.

Last Monday, Messrs. Fowler, Tolin, 'Squire Gaines and a jury settled a dispute between Jasper Manning and Wm. Tanner as to whom is entitled to the posession of a house and piece of land belonging to Tanner and occupied by Manning. It was decided in favor of Tanner.

James Beall and Thomas Hafer will have plenty of tea for the next 100 years, as they took from this section, the other day, a two bushel sack full of sassafras roots Suppose their blood is too thick.

Mr. Geo. Utz, near Florence, has broken 25 acres of sod for corn.

A disease known as French measles is prevalent in this neighborhood. No great inconvenience results from them.

Mr. Corwin's school closed at this place last Thursday, with speeches and dialogues by some of the scholars.

One of T. B. Aylor's fine aldorney heifers died the other day. Cause not known.

Mr. Thomas Hafer, as agent of the Hebron Darmatic Club was in our town, last Thursday, wanting 40 of the mouse catchers. One of our young men went about half a mile with Hafer to capture the felines, but they had heard the news and scampered.

Hebron.

Will Davis has moved to Hebron.

Health generally good at this writing.

John Hicks has gone to house-keeping.

Wood sawings are the order of the day.

Walter Goodridge bought a fine stepper of Henry Gordon last week.

James Loder has moved to Constance where he will clerk in Davis Bros. store.

Jordan Beall and Will Rice have gone to Lawrenceburg to replace houses moved by the flood.

Farmers are busy sowing oats.

The roads are getting in a good condition.

Mrs. Polly Wilhoit is in a critical condition with but little hopes of her recovery, she being 96 years old.

Jeff Cloud thinks of attending school at Springfield, Ohio.

John Ernst was seen strutting around last week as proud as a peacock, all because he is daddy for the third time.

Mr. Albert Corbin and wife, of Bellevue, were visiting relatives in Hebron, last Saturday and Sunday.

The entertainment given at Hebron was a grand success, it being largely attended.

Rev. Kiser preached an able discourse, last Sunday.

David Beall got his finger badly mashed in a cog wheel last week.

Mike Clore's fine black mare got fastened down in the stable the other night, and came near dying.

Mrs. Jonas Rouse has been quite sick for the past week.

Dutch measles are raging in this vicinity. A fire broke out last week and destroyed one of Ray Snyder's large hay stacks—His hay shed narrowly escaped.

Hubble Davis and Tom Hafer, as agents for the dramatic club supplied Hebron well with cats.

The Popham string band is progressing rapidly.

Samuel Maning is running a passenger wagon from Bullettsville to Covington, on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

Miss Ella Sederberg is visiting Mike Clore's......Miss Dora and Jennie Rouse, of Florence, were the guests of Miss Lida, last Sunday.

Bellevue.

A great amount of land has been sowed to grass this spring in our part of the country, indicating that our farmers are going to graze more and farm less in the future. The clearing up of the hill land and the cultivation of it in tobacco, together with the heavy rainfalls we have had recently, are rapidly carrying off the fine soil. Hence the converting of it into grazing land.

We notice some of the grainfields, as well as the hillsides, are beginning to put on the garb of green. Wheat is not very promising at present. The fruit prospect was never better.

The few patches of basket willows that are still growing in our vicinity were cut last week, and put in the ditches to sap.

Grandma Kelly, of Waterloo, is visiting her son, Cy Kelly. Wesley Rice, of Vevay, Ind., was visiting relatives here last week.

Ben Corbin has gone to housekeeping in the house lately occupied by D. M. Snyder.

Bro. Enos Nixon has moved to Woolper creek, near the suspended bridge.

The bright, balmy and bracing weather last Sunday, brought many bright faces out upon our streets.

The boys had their usual game of knucks, despite the vigilence of the law enforcer and groans of "Honest Jimmy".

Capt. Len Clore, of Waterloo, gave the young folks a sociable last Saturday night, which we learn was quite an interesting affair.

We are sorry to hear that the Steamer Little Queen has tied up, and will no longer run in the line here. She will be greatly missed by our citizens.

Willis Delph is very low with consumption.

Francesville.

Prof. Wiggin's blizzard reached Francisville as advertised on the 10th inst., and no doubt, had we not taken great precaution in having everything in readiness, the damage would have been immense. Our shipping was all in port, consequently that escaped the damage the Prof. predicted would occur. Great excitement prevailed while the storm was raging, yet there were a few that seemed calm and collected, and would have met death without a murmur had it come to that—fortunately there were no lives lost. And we hope in the future that Prof. Wiggins may find better employment than making blizzards.

Quite a sad accident occurred at Mr. Jas. C. Beall's, last Saturday. His brother Orin, while in a fit, fell in the fire, and no doubt, would have been burned to death had not Mr. Beall been present and resecued him in time to save his life. As it was he was considerably burned about the face, head and arms. Orin has been afflicted and subject to fits for forty years, and this is the first accident of a serious nature that has ever happened him.

Mr. John Scotthorn, of this place, met with what might have been a serious accident, one night last week. He was coming from the city with a load of coal, and owing to darkness missed the road and drove off a retaining wall, upsetting his wagon, throwing him out with the coal on top of him. Strange to say he escaped with a few slight bruises only. His team was not hurt any, but his wagon was considorably demolished.

Billy Hays has returned from Indiana, looking well and chuck full of news.

Mr. Wm. Hedges has recently purchased a fine stepper. Billy is a good judge of horse-flesh, "you bet".

The Misses Kitty and Annie Hays were the recipients of a nice present, in the way of a handsome organ, one day last week—a present from their father.

Mr. Allen Goodridge is having a large dwelling house erected near this place.

Mr. Jno. R. Smith intends having a large stock barn built on his farm this year

Mr. Abel Wainscott, of this place is visiting his son George at Brookville, Ind.

Miss Nannie Runyan, of Willmington, Ind, is visiting friends here.

Mr. Emory Miller, of Dry Ridge, Ohio, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Batterson, at this place.

Mr. James Riley has moved out on his farm near Constance—we think Jim means business.

[Too late for last weeks issue.—EDS.]

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of John A. Marshall, deceased, will present them properly proven for payment as soon as possible, but before presenting the claim to me they must exhibit it to my attorney, F. Riddell, for examination.

HENRY ROSS, Adm'r.

STOCKHOLDERS, NOTICE

On the first Saturday in April, the 7th day, an election will be held at Dudley Rouse's store, in Burlington, for the purpose of electing for the ensuing year, a president and four directors for the Burlington and Florence turnpike road.

FEELDEN ROUSE, President.

STOCKHOLDERS, NOTICE

On the first Monday in April an election will be held in the towns of Burlington and Petersburg for the election of five directors for the Burlington and Petersburg turnpike road, to serve the ensuing year.

N. S. WALTON, Sect'y.

FOUND.

Near Bellevue, Boone county, Ky., since the flood a lot of Stone Mason's tools. The owner can have the same by proving property and paying charges.

W. W. GRANT, JAS. SMITH,
Bellevue, Boone conuty, Ky.

NOTICE.

The stockholders of the Woolper Turnpike Company are hereby notified that an election will be held in Burlington on Monday April 2nd, 1883 for the purpose of electing five directors.

J. FRANK GRANT, Sect'y.

FOR SALE.

GOLD WATCH.—By virtue of an order of the Boone Circuit Court, I will, as administrator of the estate of John Crosby, deceased, sell for cash to the highest bidder, on April 2d, 1883, at the Court-house door in Burlington, between the hours of 12 m. and 1p. m., a gold watch, the property of Jno. Crosby, deceased.

F. L GORDON, Admr.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
☞Office opposite the Boone House.☜

L. C. NORMAN. E. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J. P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
☞Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prep'r.
No paine spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
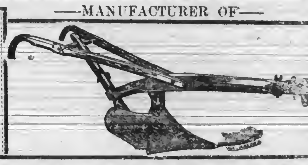
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY,

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

DRUGS & MEDICINES
I have nearly filled up my stock of
PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.
I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of
Stationary, Fancy and Toilet
—Articles. Also have a fine line of—
CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,
Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.
☞Third door from the corner, in Mr. Bradly's building.
N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY

TO BUYERS.
I have for the spring trade a clean and carefully selected stock of Goods with prices marked to suit the times.
IN DRY GOODS,
Brocades, Cashmeres, Indigo Blue Calicoes, [illegible], Ginghams, Cheviot Shirting, Brown and Bleached Muslins and double width Sheeting, Pillow Case Muslin, Jeans and Cottonades, Crashes, Table Linen and Napkins.
IN WHITE and FANCY GOODS,
Nainsook, Lawn, Swiss, Jackonet, Hamburg Embroideries, Laces, Ladies' Collars and Ties, Toilet towels, Ribbons and Buttons.
Floor and Table Oil Cloth in new Style Patterns.
Carpet Chain in fast colors.
Rubber Coats and Leggins—Overalls and Jackets.
In Hardware, Tinware, Queensware, Glassware and Woodenware my stock is complete.
Flour and Salt always on hand.
A Full stock of FANCY & STALPE Groceries.
Cash paid for country produce or will take in exchange for goods.
Orders for Goods not in stock, gladly and promptly filled.
Yours Truly, W. E. PIPER.

WILLIAM CLORE,
—MANUFACTURER OF—
Rover Steel PLOWS,
Side Hill PLOWS,


Single & Double Shovels,
Jumping Shovels, Gophers, Rolling Cutters, Harrows and Agricultural Implements Generally. Send for Price List.
RISING SUN, - - - INDIANA.

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDS & DAVIS, Hebron. Ky

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. MAR. 21, 1883

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
"	½ "	40
"	¼ "	20
¼ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c.. $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however, to the action of the democratic party.

AURORA, Indiana, is to have another national bank.

THE attempt to impeach Hinton, Louisville's city auditor, was a failure.

IN Tennessee they are discussing the propriety of a railroad commission.

COL. JONES' canvass for governor is in a very good shape for a successful termination.

THE Republicans are threatening to run ex-President Hayes for governor of Ohio.

To guard Neal and Craft during their last trial cost the state fifteen thousand dollars.

CIRCUIT COURT is in session in Gallatin county this week. Boone is the next county on the circuit.

SENATOR WILLIAMS was in Covington, the other day, doubtless looking after his senatorial fencing.

THE citizens of Lawrenceburg are determined to strengthen their levee, which has restored business energy.

THE Richmond Herald devotes much of its spare time to the advocacy of local option which now prevails in that town.

JUDGE LEWIS, of the court of appeals, and Miss Jilson P. Johnson, of Lexington, are to be married on the 29th of this month.

AT the recent term of the Carroll circuit court the grand jury found fifty-seven indictments, and the court granted three divorces.

THE trial of Order for a murder committed in Harrison county, Ky., was closed at Falmouth Thursday, the result being a hung jury.

THE race track of the Latonia Agricultural Association is about completed. This society gives promise of being the best in the state.

OVER four million bushels of coal started down the Ohio the other day. It will not be slighted, as it appears we are to have another edition of winter.

W. B. WINSLOW, the most prominent lawyer in Carroll county, and for the past forty years an active and energetic practicioner, died last week, of pneumonia.

AN educational convention is to be held in Frankfort on the 5th of next month. This is a subject in which all are interested, and the convention should be well attended.

THE Enquirer and Cabler, two packets running on the lower Ohio, collided one day last week. The Cabler and its cargo were an entire loss, while the Enquirer escaped injury. But one life was lost.

GOV. BLACKBURN says he has received a letter from a gentleman in West Virginia, affecting the Ashland tragedy, and throwing doubt upon the guilt of Neal and Craft, and offers suggestions as to how the affair occurred.

WHAT is particularly needed in Kentucky is more schools and fewer pistols, more work, more justice and less "humanitarianism," more hangings and fewer murders, more "git up and git" and less sit down and wait.—Breckinridge News.

IT seems that the office of representative for this county is out in search of the man this time. Thus far we have not heard the name of anyone mentioned as a possible candidate, further than what was said, last week, by our Plattsburg correspondent.

SOME of the new road supervisors are consulting the first volume of the Acts of the last legislature to post themselves in regard to the present road law. Those who take this paper and preserved the copy in which the road law was published, will find it very convenient to refer to about this time.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $7 40@7 75; fair to good packers, at $6 90@7 40; fair to good light, $7 00@7 30; common, $6 00@6 70; culls, $5 00@6 00; stock hogs, $5 50@6 75.

IN this issue we announce Mr. J. R. Clutterbuck, present incumbent, as a candidate for sheriff. He has acted in the capacity of deputy sheriff for some time, and all his official acts commend him to the people as an efficient and industrious officer who will serve them with fidelity if elected.

THE German decree against the importation of American hog products, including sides, bacon and sausage, has been published. This leaves a limit of thirty days for shipments to be made to Germany. The same dispatch states that Prince Bismark has requested the Bundesrath, in order to prevent an invasion of the law, that hog products should be admitted into the country only on the attested proof that they are not from America.

POOR Wiggins! There is not a friend to speak well of him. The pilots and captains of tug-boats who refrained from going out to sea for fear least his prediction would come true, are swearing at the pecuniary loss which has accrued to them. On Long Island several people had built huts on elevated places in order to retire to them when the floods should make their advent. All this is now so much fear's labor lost, and Wiggins is held responsible for it.

THE Lawrenceburg Press of week before last contained an article censuring governor Porter for not being more prompt and liberal in his response to the needs of the Lawrenceburgers during the flood, and an indignation meeting was held in the court-house there, last week, when the Press received a severe reprimand in the shape of a resolution adopted by the meeting, saying that the attack was vulgar, mean and false, &c. The Press says there were only about thity voting in the meeting that adopted the resolution.

THE frequent attempts to build turnpikes in different parts of the county indicate a growing desire on the part of the people to make improvements in that direction, and every time the proposition to build a road is discussed, it gains favor to some extent, and finally the road will be built. The history of turnpikes teaches that they are not agreed upon and built the first time they are proposed, but on the contrary, that they are the result of long, and sometimes bitter, discussions among neighbors, but after the roads are made, a good feeling soon prevails and all are glad they have the road.

THEY are very properly called common school houses. They are far too common for the purpose intended. Some of the miserable hovels called school-houses, are better fitted for pigs than for children who have minds to improve. Kentucky is beginning to wake up on the subject of popular education. The demand is far more comfortable school-houses and more competent teachers. The time is coming when teachers in common schools will be employed solely on account of their qualifications, and not because their services can be secured for the least amount of money. It is poor economy to employ an incapable teacher at any price. It will be a happy day for Kentucky when the school fund is sufficiently increased to justify the employment of men and women as teachers who understand their duties fully. The laborer is worthy of his hire, and intelligent and efficient service should be fairly compensated. Poor teachers send out poor scholars.—Georgetown Times.

THE Bodman Leaf Tobacco Warehouse circular of the 16th inst., says: While the offerings were very large, the proportion of the better class was so small that it did not meet the requirements of buyers, and the consequence was the most active market since last spring. This, however, only refers to grades classing from good style medium leaf to good and fine, which in both old and new was in such great request that the prices advanced a full half cent, and the price closed at the highest quotations Knowing that the stock of good leaf is rapidly diminishing, and with a half belief that a majority of the new is inferior or damaged, buyers are discounting the expected shortage which they can the more readily do, at higher prices, from the fact that they will soon have the benefit of the eight cents reduction in the tax. It is safe therefore to say, that for good grades, and we emphasize the word good, the demand is likely to remain steady, and pay a profit to re-driers. As for common goods, the very large supply caused a dragging market throughout the week and unless very colory they were in little favor.

THE constitution is just now the theme of the State press, which is somewhat divided as to the most feasible plan for its revision, some favoring a sovereignty convention while others adhere to the plan laid down by the framers of that instrument. The plan for executing the work of revision does not need the attention of the press at present. It should direct its efforts to pointing out to the people the incongruities of the constitution. The simple statement that the constitution needs reconstructing does not strike the public as an argument at all convincing. The public wants to know what changes are necessary, and it wants some assurance that these changes would be made in the event a convention is called. The people of Kentucky have been taught to consider the constitution of their State as a sacred instrument as pertaining to government, and will not consent to its modification unless they have some idea of what is to be done. Let the State press post up in regard to the constitution and then present to the people the inconsistencies of the instrument and the subjects on which it is in conflict with the constitution of the United States. Devote more time and space to the necessity of the convention and less to the manner of calling same, and the needed convention will be held at a much earlier day.

STATE NEWS.

—Bart Griffith broke out with small-pox in a crowd on the street in Scottsburg.

—Near Paducah the head of a white woman was found floating in the Ohio river. Foul play is suspicioned.

—The citizens of Owensboro are petitioning the governor to pardon Geo. Smith, a German convicted of forgery.

—One thousand, nine hundred and forty-seven pounds of white Burley tobacco were the product of an acre of ground in Mercer county.

—The explosion of dynamite cartridges blew a man to fragments on the K. C. extension the other day. The cartridges were laid before the fire to dry.

—Col. Charles Duncan, of Falmouth, has sold to J. C. Boyd, of the Palace Hotel, Cincinnati, his 500 acre farm in Pendleton county for $23,000 cash.

—At Greenup, Jeff Bowers, was dismissed on a charge of horse-stealing on Friday. He robbed a store the same night, was captured on Saturday, and on Monday was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

—A Bullett county man boasts that he lives in a house 79 years old; uses a comb 40 years old; sits in a chair 25 years old, and owns an iron kettle 102 years old, being one of the same brought up Salt river by the early pioneers, to make salt.

—On last Thursday night, a barn belonging to E. H. Conrad, who lives below town, containing $100 worth of hay and oats, $300 worth of tobacco and 9 head of cattle, was consumed by fire. It was evidently the work of an incendiary.—Williamstown Courier.

—Mt. Sterling Democrat: Sixty-five men were arrested in Menifee county for neglecting and refusing to work the roads. They all "chipped in" twenty-five cents each and employed all the lawyers in Frenchburg to assist to beat the case, which was done.

—In Jessamine county, George Allenden shot Fremont Oaks through the bowels. The wound probably is fatal. Oaks and another man rode by Allenden's house and fired six shots at it. Allenden returned the fire with the above result. There was no previous quarrel between the parties.

—About three weeks ago, Dan Sanders, a colored man, who lives about a mile and a half below New Liberty on Tom Bond's farm, was bitten by his dog, which showed signs of hydrophobia. The dog was killed and one day last week Sanders began to show signs of hydrophobia, and on Friday last was taken with a paroxysm, and bit two of his attendants, Cris Sanders and Godfrey Riddle. It became necessary Sunday to strap him to the bed in order to prevent him from doing further injury to those around him. A mad stone was procured and applied to the wound on Bris Sanders, but it failed to adhere.—Owen News.

FOR SALE.

A fine Horse and Jack. For particulars inquire of CARTER SIMPSON, Williamstown, Ky.

Attention Farmers.

Charlie, my well known stallion will be on exhibition in Burlington, on Monday, April 2nd, 1883. I will on that day award a good saddle and bridle to the best colt of his get for general purposes. Look out for Charlie for he is a paragon of horseflesh.

Ed Golaway, Florence, Ky.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

One Fool Among Many.

Wrecked by his Untempered Ambition —A Lighthouse on the Shoals.

"I ought to have stopped five years before I did; but I thought it wouldn't amount to anything, so I kept on. I was a fool, of course—but who isn't, when ambition and the chance of making money spurs him on? I only hope I shall get well enough to digest another square meal some time without a rebellion in my stomach."

The speaker was one of the best known civil engineers and mining experts in this country; hardy by nature as a buffalo, but broken down by hard study and the merciless lashing administered to his mind and body by his own hand during the earlier part of his career. At fifty he is prematurely gray, bent in form and dispirited. Dyspepsia did it—Dyspepsia, the self-inflicted curse of the American in every department of toil.

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr. Charles H. Watts, of West Somers, Putnam county, N. Y. and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Tried everything. At last gave PARKER'S GINGER TONIC a chance to show what it could do for It proved its ability by curing me. I reccomend it to all who are suffering from this dreadful di- Mr. G. R. Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y. certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statment.

Gloom, despondency, hopleasness, disgust with all labor, sleeplessness, horrid dreams to rend r bed-time like the hour of execution to a crimina — these are some of dyspepsia's foot-prints. The Dyspeptic knows what Corleridge meant when he said: "Night is hell." PARKER'S GINGER TONIC cures Dyspepsia, purifies the Blood, disperses Rheumatism and all chronic ailments. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. HISCOX & Co., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,

BURLINGTON, KY.

HARNESS MAKER

—AND—

DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to

GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat, adjoining the lands of Alfred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W. NEEL, feb 28-3m Burlington, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an Illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. S. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

MOODY'S Boarding School For Teaching all Branches of Dress Cutting, and every garment worn by lady or child; also, SEWING, TRIMMING, DRAPING, and all the FINISHING PARTS of

DRESSMAKING!

Position Guaranteed if Desired.

LADIES living out of the city BOARDED FREE while learning.

Address D. W. MOODY & CO. 31 West Ninth St. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines

OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 5 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Exceeds the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

G. H. LOEBKER,

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES,

36 Pike Street,

COVINGTON, - - KY

George H. Loebker doth proclaim the news,
Elegant his display of Boots and Shoes
Offering at low prices, all should call,
Here is the place to suit you all.
Large stock of best made on hand,
Of every kind as we command.
Each noted maker's work there we find,
Boots and Shoes no best made of every kind.
Keeping choice Kid the French have tanned,
Each sees fine leather from our own land.
Rightly skillful labor in all combined,
Boots and Shoes none better in the city we find.
Our fancy wins at the earliest glance,
Of these he sells for the walk or dance.
The Kid so fine, the form so neat,
Slippers that adorn the most delicate feet.
All goods he sells will wear quite long,
Notice, well finish secure and strong.
Doubt not the best are cheap in the end,
Shoes and Boots of LOEBKER'S all commend.
Hither we go with an eager tread,
Our comfort to feet is warranted.
Ever low prices rule at 36 Pike Street,
Surely all peopleshould there meet.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, J. S. Matson, M. C. Motch, J. H. Mersman, Sam Hind, A. R. Mullen, L. C. Stephens, E. J. Hickey, L. H. Dills, E. J. Green, F. P. Helm.

The ganaral operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE.

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

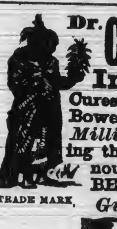
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

Chambers' Lightning Protecti'n

COMPANY.

Having purchased the right to put up the rods of the above company in Boone and Kenton counties, we solicit your patronage. These rods are constructed on the correct principle; it takes a less number of feet to rod a building and are consequently much the cheaper rods, besides they are ornamental and are the only rods that afford complete protection from lightning and are less liable to get out of repair. Their popularity is attested by the number now in use in Boone and Kenton. Those having buildings to rod will find it to their interest to have us give them a call and fix figuers.

W. E. PIPER, CHAS. A. FOWLER.
Burlington, Ky.



TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN. Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

AGENTS WANTED.

Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:—This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. McCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83.

City Flouring Mills

RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar7-4t23

J. W. Talbott.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE RECORDER.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

PROSPECTUS —OF THE— CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.

Pre-eminently a NEWSPAPER in its truest sense, posessing facilities for gathering news from all quarters of the World, unsurpassed by any other Journal: presenting the same to its readers in a concise form free from coloring and predjudice.

In all cases, it publishes The Truth and Facts, and in matters of general interest, general interest, the fullest possible details are given. It is a paper, untrammeled or clogged in any way by Cliques, Corporations, or Bossism. Treats all persons and parties with fairness, giving a faithful record of all that transpires in the political field without fear or favor.

In matters of Finance and Commerce, its reports are extensive, complete, and accurate; furnished by [illegible], thoroughly conversant with such matters; making this feature of the Enquirer, one of its best recommendations to the Commercial World.

It is published every day in the year, its extra large size admitting a vast quantity of reading and miscellaneous information, in its various departments, all of which presents a freshness, characteristic of a live newspaper.

For satisfactory evidence that the Enquirer is all its publisher claims for it, we invite those desiring a first-class commercial newspaper to send for specimen copies or short trial subscription.

SEE TERMS FOR

DAILY ENQUIRER.

Sunday and Daily	$1.50	$3.75	7.00	14
Daily except Sun	1.25	3.15	7.00	12
Any three days	65	1.75	3.25	6
Any two days	45	1.25	2.25	4
Any one day	25	65	1.25	2
Sunday Issue	25	65	1.25	2

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will maintain its present standard of excellence, which has attained for it a circulation of near One Hundred Thousand Copies which fact alone speaks volumns in its favor. It is undenjably one of the best Family Journals printed; large size eight page paper, giving ample room for all the news of the week, and choice selections, Historical Reminiscences, miscellaneous reading, &c.

Its market reports are reliable and extensive, embracing all necessary information that Farmers and Merchants require for intelligent transaction of business, either as buyers or sellers.

Its Farm School embraces letters from all sections of the country treating upon all matters pertaining to Farm, Field, Orchard Ranch, &c.

Its Household department is made unusually interesting to the ladies, by letters from the thrifty housewife in which domestic affairs are ably treated upon.

A corner is reserved for the boys and girls wherein to talk to the outside world. The moral tone of all being in happy accord with pure thought and taste.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One copy, one year $1.15
One copy, six months.... 65

Agents sending us 7 subscribers at above rates are presented with a free copy.

JOHN R. McLEAN, Publisher,
Specimen numbers free. Cincinnati, O.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Local News.

This is twin year.

Shoot the groundhog.

Coal, 22 cents a bushel.

Next Sunday is easter Sunday.

Prepare your garden for the plow.

Sunday had an Indian summer cast.

The State is full of constitutional lawyers just now.

We are on the eve of the yard and house cleaning season.

The prospect for a large crop of lambs in this county is good.

The fine weather the past two weeks rejuvinated the farmers.

There is hardly a day passes but that sees our subscription list expand.

For carriage painting and paper hanging call on Joe Reed, Burlington, Ky.

The personal estate of R. C. Green, deceased, was appraised last Thursday.

This is the month in which the magistrates are engaged dealing out justice.

Mr. Benjamin Rouse has been somewhat under the weather for several days.

Last week was movers' week in Burlington, and among that class was ye editor.

Dudley Rouse has a three dollar bill on the bank of Burlington, issued June 3d, 1818.

Saturday night Miss Maude Kirkpatrick entertained a bevy of her friends handsomely.

Several went from this place to Union, last Saturday night, to attend Mr. Dunlap's meeting.

Mrs. Dempsey's mare advertised in the last week's issue was found, last Saturday, at Falmouth.

The robbins sing as though they were in good spirits regardless of the civil service reform bill and the new tariff schedule.

W. C. Goodridge is buying considerable hay. Ten dollars a ton is the price for good hay favorably located.

Uncle Gus Weaver is able to be about most of the time. With warm weather he will be in good health again.

For Raspberry Jam, Quince, Pear and Strawberry Preserves, Apple, Plum and Peach Butter, go to W. E. Piper's.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is acknowledged the best of all preparations for the cure of pulmonary complaints.

Monday, W. C. Goodridge bought a slashing good horse of Geo. Mitchell, of Kenton county, paying $160 therefor.

A portion of the young people of the town spent a very pleasant evening, last Friday as the guests of Miss Addie Crisler.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

Subscribe for your county paper and you will find many things in it of interest to you that can be found in no other paper.

Mrs. Absalom Aylor has a large lot of chickens, this season's hatching, and which will do to put on the market at an early day.

We are glad to learn that George Walton, of Bellevue, who has been quite low with typhoid fever, is getting much better.

Mr. Edward Botts was in town Friday riding his fine young Almont horse which is a splendid stepper in several of the popular gaits.

At first, when Charlie Fowler invites you to have a cigar, you think you will, and then you think you won't, and, of course, the laugh is on you.

We are going into the garden-sass business this spring, and hope to be able, this fall, to present each of our subscribers with a peck of potatoes.

For some time, F. W. Grant has been suffering with a tumor in or near his groin, and last Monday Dr. J. M. Grant removed the tumor by a very nice surgical operation.

The school in the Morgan Academy closes this week. Mr. Hughes, the teacher, has had a good school, and pleased the patrons. Would like to see him continue.

Last week we sent a copy of the RECORDER to a subscriber in Oregon, and this week we started it to a gentleman in Washington Territory, about as far west as it can go in the United States.

Some time since our butchers hauled their beef in a one-horse spring wagon, but now it takes a two-horse jolt-wagon to do the hauling. Verily, the dimensions of the beeves are increasing.

When in Petersburg, call and see me whether you need anything in the drug line or not. I am in the room formerly occupied by Mr. Bradly for a grocery. Call and see me. S. C. BUCHANAN.

Judge N. E. Hawes, who has been secretary and treasurer of the Burlington and Florence turnpike road ever since it has been a road has resigned his trust on account of his health, which has been very bad this winter.

We had concentrated all our industry Monday morning, to commence organizing a truck patch, but by nine o'clock our mind had changed and we were contemplating laying in a supply of wood and coal for winter.

Quite a number of the young folks gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Piper's last Wednesday evening, where the hours were very pleasantly spent with conversation and music.

The house occupied by Judge Youell, in Walton, was destroyed by fire one day last week. The house was the property of Esquire W. L. Norman. We failed to learn to what the Judge's loss amounts.

This week John G. Gaines moved to his farm, and James Westbay moved to the place lately occupied by F. P. Walton. That place just suits Jim, there being a good pasture and plenty of running water.

Dr. E. L. Grant and others are going to try to make the county build a bridge across Woolper creek, where the road crosses near its mouth, and for that purpose they have commenced proceedings in the circuit court.

A. W. Gaines, a leading attorney of Lawrenceburg, Ind., made our town a flying visit last Saturday. Allie says the next time the water gets within 12 feet of the point reached last month he is going to take to the hills.

Charles Clore has a cow that dropped two fine calves the other day, and Mr. Sam Cowen's cow followed suit with a pair of twins, but lost one of hers, while W. T. Smith's mare brought up the rear with two colts, both of which died.

Mr. Lewis Weaver, of Sunbright, Tenn., writes us that the twins at his house are 23 years old, one of them being the railroad agent. We don't know who originated the report, the offspring of which was the item in our last issue.

Everett Walton contemplates going west, about the first of next month, with his father, for the purpose of looking at the country with a view of locating a future home. While gone they will visit Illinois and Missouri and probably other states.

We received several communications last week too late for publication. As the RECORDER is printed Tuesday night anything coming later than Tuesday's mail has no possible chance of being published. Communications ought to come in by Monday's mail. Our friends will please bear this in mind.

Mr. Dunlap, the evangelist, commenced a series of sermons here last Monday at 2 p. m. The first sermon he preached in the Baptist church which had been tendered him, but at night he preached in the court-house at which place meeting is in progress while we are at press. The attendance is large.

The proposition to pike this end of the East Bend road did not meet with the necessary encouragement. J. O. Huey, O. P. Conner, W. H. Pope and others, whom the road would not have reached took the most active part in the work, and would have been very liberal in their contributions for that purpose.

Mr. E. H. Baker is still extending the boundary of his earthly possessions, his last purchase being Mr. Birkle's farm, the trade for which was made last week. Mr. Birkle we understand, will move to Covington. The vegetable consumers of this town will miss Mr. Birkle this spring, as he was always the first to administer to their wants in that particular.

Mr. Groundhog:—Dear Sir: We beg leave to inform you that the time allotted to you for your winter has expired some time since, and that it is time for you to let up on bad weather. The people are highly indignant at your outrageous usurpation of authority, and unless you change your course, you will be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors.

Last Wednesday a writ of habeas corpus was tried before Esquire Baker. Patsy Scales, colored, sued out the writ in order to get control of one of her children, aged about 12 years, and which a Mrs. Watson has control of. The trial consumed the greater part of the day, and the case was decided against Patsy. L. L. Youell, for the negro and C. Y. Dyas for Mrs. Watson. All the parties were from Walton.

J. Cave Arnold, of Bullettsburg, died on the morning of the 15th, at 4 a. m. He had been a sufferer of that dread disease, consumption, for several months, and it finally claimed him as its victim in the midst of life. He will be missed by his many friends.

The funeral was preached in the Bulletsburg church at 11 o'clock on the 16th inst, by the Rev. Dickens after which the remains were placed in the vault to await final interment.

Through the kindness of James Barlow, we have before us a copy of the Monroe City News, containing an account of the assassination of William Rouse, which occurred about one and three fourth miles south of Monroe City, Mo., the last Sunday in February. The body was found lying in the fence corner on the public highway with several buckshot in the head, having been shot from behind while riding along the road. No cause can be assigned for the murder unless it was done for the poupose of robbery, as it was known that but a few hours before found Mr. Rouse had $3 or $4 in his pocket book which was missing when the body was found. A young man by the name of Poage was arrested on suspicion. Some paper gun wadding was found near the dead man, and when Poage's shot gun was taken and examined, one barrel was empty. A blank load was drawn from the other barrel, and the wadding was found to be a portion of the same newspaper, the Monroe City News, a portion of which composed the wadding found near the body. Mr. Rouse's father and mother were formerly of this county, and the deceased has a large circle of relatives here.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

L. N. Crigler, of Covington, was in town last week.

Dr. Grant and wife are entertaining Mr. Dunlap and wife.

Dr. J. C. Terrill, of Bullettsville, was in our burg Sunday.

Mr. Jim Green, of Petersburg made us a call last Saturday.

Allen Martin arrived at his father-in-law's, this place, Saturday.

Mr. Williams, a legal light of Rising Sun, was in town Wednesday.

John McElroy, of Verona, graced the streets of Burlington, Thursday.

Mrs. Lulie Hughes, of Paris, Ill., is visiting her relatives is this county.

Miss Sallie Hyatt, of Newport, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Grant.

L. L. Youell, the original County Judge of Boone, was here Wednesday.

Dick White has been suffering considerably with a severe pain in his back.

C. Y Dyas, a prominent lawyer of Grant county, was in town last Wednesday.

A. C. Porter and wife, of Petersburg, were visiting friends in Burlington, Sunday.

W. J. Icenogle says he raised 18,000 pounds of tobacco which averaged him $9 per hundred.

Mr. Reuben Conner, one of the cleverest gentlemen in the county was in town Saturday.

The pleasing countenance of Mr. Jeff Utz, of the Union precinct, was noticed on our streets last Saturday.

Miss Kate Bradford, of Florence, returned home, last Sunday, after several days visit to Mrs. Lillie Hall.

Geo. Mitchell, of Visalia, Kenton county, was in town Monday. We are glad to learn that George is doing well.

Mr. Geo. W. Hughes, of Paris, Ill., made a flying trip to Boone last week, arriving on Saturday and returning Sunday.

Our genial young friend and merchant prince, James Tolin, of Ashbyfork, was among the visitors to our town last Sunday.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Normansville.

Miss Lucy Kennedy has returned from a visit to Covington.

Dr. J. A. Wood has recovered from his late illness and is again able to visit his patients.

Miss Ellen Porter, an accomplished and estimable lady of Kenton county, who has been teaching at Big Bone Springs, closed her school a faw days since and returned home.

Mr. J. D. Moore who has been since New Years in W. Virginia, returned home last week.

Mr. Marion Marshall has returned home after a lengthy stay in Covington.

Mrs. Chas. Smith has been in delicate health for some time.

Our spring school opened Monday Mar., 12th, with a very good attendance. The patronage of the public is solicited. Music and fancy work will be taught to all who desire it.

Taylorport.

Our city is gradually recovering from the deplorable condition in which the flood left it.

Harry Piper gave us a very short business call last week.

Miss Cassie Foulke who has been suffering severely with an attack of neuralgia for several weeks, we are happy to inform her numerous friends, is convalescing.

Our ferry has again changed hands, Aaron Steelman, one of our genial citizens now fills the position, and seems to give entire satisfaction. Joe Graves crosses as frequantly as before.

Miss Ella Sederberg, who has been visiting relatives in Cincinnati for several weeks, has returned home.

Morgan Helm has improved the appearance of his residence and store with a new fence.

Florence X-Roads.

Last Monday, Messrs. Fowler, Tolin, 'Squire Gaines and a jury settled a dispute between Jasper Manning and Wm. Tanneras to whom is entitled to the posession of a house and piece of land belonging to Tanner and occupied by Manning. It was decided in favor of Tanner.

James Beall and Thomas Hafer will have plenty of tea for the next 100 years, as they took from this section, the other day, a two bushel sack full of sassafras roots Suppose their blood is too thick.

Mr. Geo. Utz, near Florence, has broken 25 acres of sod for corn.

A disease known as French measles is prevalent in this neighborhood. No great inconvenienca results from them.

Mr. Corwin's school closed at this place last Thursday, with speeches and dialogues by some of the scholars.

One of T. B. Aylor's fine alderney heifers died the other day. Cause not known.

Mr. Thomas Hafer, as agent of the Hebron Darmatic Club was in our town, last Thursday, wanting 40 of the mouse catchers. One of our young men went about half a mile with Hafer to capture the felines, but they had heard the news and scampered.

Hebron.

Will Davis has moved to Hebron.

Health generally good at this writing.

John Hicks has gone to house-keeping.

Wood sawings are the order of the day.

Walter Goodridge bought a fine stepper of Henry Gordon last week.

James Loder has moved to Constance where he will clerk in Davis Bros. store.

Jordan Beall and Will Rice have gone to Lawrenceburg to replace houses moved by the flood.

Farmers are busy sowing oats.

The roads are getting in a good condition.

Mrs. Polly Wilhoit is in a critical condition with but little hopes of her recovery, she being 96 years old.

Jeff Cloud thinks of attending school at Springfield, Ohio.

John Ernst was seen strutting around last week as proud as a peacock, all becausa he is daddy for the third time.

Mr. Albert Corbin and wife, of Bellevue, were visiting relatives in Hebron, last Saturday and Sunday.

The entertainment given at Hebron was a grand success, it being largely attended.

Rev. Kiser preached an able discourse, last Sunday.

David Beall got his finger badly mashed in a cog wheel last week.

Mike Clore's fine black mare got fastened down in the stable the other night, and came near dying.

Mrs. Jonas Rouse has been quite sick for the past week.

Dutch measles are raging in this vicinity.

A fire broke out last week and destroyed one of Ray Snyder's large hay stacks—His hay shed narrowly escaped.

Hubble Davis and Tom Hafer, as agents for the dramatic club supplied Hebron well with cats.

The Popham string band is progressing rapidly.

Samuel Maning is running a passenger wagon from Bullettsville to Covington, on Tuesdays and Saturdays

Miss Ella Sederberg is visiting Mike Clore's...... Miss Dora and Jennie Rouse, of Florence, were the guests of Miss Lida, last Sunday.

Bellevue.

A great amount of land has been sowed to grass this spring in our part of the country, indicating that our farmers are going to graze more and farm less in the future. The clearing up of the hill land and the cultivation of it in tobacco, together with the heavy rainfalls we have had recently, are rapidly carrying off the fine soil. Hence the converting of it into grazing land.

We notice some of the grainfields, as well as the hillsides, are beginning to put on the garb of green. Wheat is not very promising at prasent. The fruit prospect was never better.

The few patches of basket willows that are still growing in our vicinity were cut last week, and put in the ditches to sap.

Grandma Kelly, of Waterloo, is visiting her son, Cy Kelly. Wesley Rice, of Vevay, Ind., was visiting relatives here last week.

Ben Corbin has gone to housekeeping in the house lately occupied by D. M. Snyder.

Bro. Enos Nixon has moved to Woolper creek, near the suspended bridge.

The bright, balmy and bracing weather last Sunday, brought many bright faces out upon our streets.

The boys had their usual game of knucks, despite the vigilence of the law enforcer and groans of "Honest Jimmy".

Capt. Len Clore, of Waterloo, gave the young folks a sociable last Saturday night, which we learn was quite an interesting affair.

We are sorry to hear that the Steamer Little Queen has tied up, and will no longer run in the line here. She will be greatly missed by our citizens.

Willis Delph is very low with consumption.

Francesville.

Prof. Wiggin's blizzard reached Francisville as advertised on the 10th inst., and no doubt, had we not taken great precaution in having everything in readiness, the damage would have been immense. Our shipping was all in port, consequently that escaped the damage the Prof. predicted would occur. Great excitement prevailed while the storm was raging, yet there were a few that seemed calm and collected, and would have met death without a murmur had it come to that—fortunately there were no lives lost. And we hope in the future that Prof. Wiggins may find better employment than making blizzards.

Quite a sad accident occurred at Mr. Jas. C. Beall's, last Saturday. His brother Orin, while in a fit, fell in the fire, and no doubt, would have been burned to death had not Mr. Beall been present and resecued him in time to save his life. As it was he was considerably burned about the face, head and arms. Orin has been afflicted and subject to fits for forty years, and this is the first accident of a serious nature that has ever happened him.

Mr. John Scotthorn, of this place, met with what might have been a serious accident, one night last week. He was coming from the city with a load of coal, and owing to darkness missed the road and drove off a retaining wall, upsetting his wagon, throwing him out with the coal on top of him. Strange to say he escaped with a few slight bruises only. His team was not hurt any, but his wagon was considerably demolished.

Billy Hays has returned from Indiana, looking well and chuck full of news.

Mr. Wm. Hedges has recently purchased a fine stepper. Billy is a good judge of horse-flesh, "you bet".

The Misses Kitty and Annie Hays were the recipients of a nice present, in the way of a handsome organ, one day last week—a present from their father.

Mr. Allen Goodridge is having a large dwelling house erected near this place.

Mr. Jno. R. Smith intends having a large stock barn built on his farm this year

Mr. Abel Wainscott, of this place is visiting his son George at Brookville, Ind.

Miss Nannie Runyan, of Willmington, Ind, is visiting friends here.

Mr. Emory Miller, of Dry Ridge, Ohio, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Batterson, at this place.

Mr. James Riley has moved out on his farm near Constance—we think Jim means business.

[Too late for last weeks issue.—EDS.]

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of John A. Marshall, deceased, will present them properly proven for payment as soon as possible, but before presenting the claim to me they must exhibit it to my attorney, F. Riddell, for examination.

HENRY ROSS, Adm'r.

STOCKHOLDERS, NOTICE

On the first Saturday in April, the 7th day, an election will be held at Dudley Rouse's store, in Burlington, for the purpose of electing for the ensuing year, a president and four directors for the Burlington and Florence turnpike road.

FEELDEN ROUSE, President.

STOCKHOLDERS, NOTICE

On the first Monday in April an election will be held in the towns of Burlington and Petersburg for the election of five directors for the Burlington and Petersburg turnpike road, to serve the ensuing year.

N. S. WALTON, Sect'y.

FOUND.

Near Bellevue, Boone county, Ky.. since the flood a lot of Stone Mason's tools. The owner can have the same by proving property and paying charges.

W. W. GRANT, JAS. SMITH,
Bellevue, Boone conuty, Ky.

NOTICE.

The stockholders of the Woolper Turnpike Company are hereby notified that an election will be held in Burlington on Monday April 2nd, 1883 for the purpose of electing five directors.

J. FRANK GRANT, Sect'y.

FOR SALE.

GOLD WATCH.—By virtue of an order of the Boone Circuit Court, I will, as administrator of the estate of John Crosby, deceased, sell for cash to the highest bidder, on April 2d, 1883, at the Court-house door in Burlington, between the hours of 12 m. and 1 p. m., a gold watch, the property of Jno. Crosby, deceased.

F. L. GORDON, Admr.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office opposite the Boone House.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practica in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J. P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DUDLEY ROUSE
BURLINGTON, KY.
Leads the Van in Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS AND
NOTIONS,
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS CAPS, &c.
Also a full stock of Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs, Neckware, &c.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE. A fresh Stock of
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,

DRUGS & MEDICINES
I have nearly filled up my stock of
PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.
I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of
Stationary, Fancy and Toilet
—Articles. Also have a fine line of—
CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,
Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.
Third door from the corner, in Mr. Bradly's building.
N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY

TO BUYERS.
I have for the spring trade a clean and carefully selected stock of Goods with prices marked to suit the times.
IN DRY GOODS,
Brocades, Cashmeres, Indigo Blue Calicoes, Prints, Ginghams, Cheviot Shirting, Brown and Bleached Muslins and double width Sheeting, Pillow Case Muslin, Jeans and Cottonades, Crashes, Table Linen and Napkins.
IN WHITE and FANCY GOODS,
Nainsook, Lawn, Swiss, Jackonet, Hamburg Embroideries, Laces, Ladies' Collars and Ties, Toilet towels, Ribbons and Buttons.
Floor and Table Oil Cloth in new Style Patterns.
Carpet Chain in fast colors.
Rubber Coats and Leggins—Overalls and Jackets.
In Hardware, Tinware, Queensware, Glassware and Woodenware my stock is complete.
Flour and Salt always on hand.
A Full stock of FANCY & STALPE Groceries.
Cash paid for country prodnce or will take in exchange for goods.
Orders for Goods not in stock, gladly and promptly filled.
Yours Truly, W. E. PIPER.

WILLIAM CLORE,
—MANUFACTURER OF—
Rover Steel PLOWS,
Side Hill PLOWS,
Single & Double Shovels,
Jumping Shovels, Gophers, Rolling Cutters, Harrows and Agricultural Implements Generally. Send for Price List.
RISING SUN, - - - - INDIANA.

UNDERTAKING
We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
sOARDs & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—The Turkish Government has ordered the construction of a railroad from Acre to Jesei Muhaina, on the sacred soil of Galilee.

—Instead of looking at the dress of a Siamese to estimate his rank, it is necessary to cast the eye upon the servant following him, who bears upon a tray the badge which designates his master's rank.

—It is the fashion in Paris to wear green hair, the verdant hue being, of course, produced by artificial means. As the dye used will take effect on white hair only, those whose locks are not already snow must subject their store of hair, including their store hair, to a bleaching process if they want to keep abreast of the fashion.

—Mr. Gladstone is the constant care of Mrs. Gladstone, and everywhere that William wents, his wife is sure to go. She is with him when he speaks in the hall, she is with him when he speaks from the stump; but wherever it may be, she is prompt, on the conclusion of his remarks, to muffle him and convey him away from the botheration and delays of crowds of admirers.

—The Gardener's Chronicle (London) tells of the effects of the so-called stinging tree. The sting of a single hair of it on the hand of a victim gave rise to severe pain over the whole of one side of the body, followed by numbness and partial paralysis. A sensation of losing the senses or "becoming insane" was experienced, and the severe symptoms lasted for two hours. The punctured spot remained painful for nearly a month.

—The Governor-General's agent in Rajputana reports that a case of suttee, or widow-burning, recently occurred at Utarna, in Jeypore. The victim was the widow of Sham Singh, chief of the village. The Jeypore authorities have acted promptly in the matter. The principal offenders, who were sons and brothers of the deceased chief, have been sentenced to imprisonment for seven years, while minor accomplices received sentences of three years' imprisonment.—St. James Gazette.

—It is announced that the sculptor, Gerard, who obtained a medal at the last salon in Paris for his "Tobie et l'Ange," has just, without any premonitory symptous, lost his reason. He was working in his studio, and giving the last touches to a remarkable group called "Maternity," when he suddenly went mad. His friends succeeded in getting him into a cab under the pretext of a drive, but the vehicle deposited the unfortunate man at the Asylum Sainte Ann.

—One day recently a woman wearing a pair of long pendant earrings of mother-of-pearl, which are much admired, was walking with her father and her lover in the Arenaccia, outside the city of Naples. A fellow, who had seen the earrings, followed the party, and, watching his opportunity, tore them from the ears of the girl. The father and lover gave chase, but were suddenly confronted by another man, who, presenting a pistol, threatened to shoot them if they continued to follow his companion. The father of the girl drew out a pistol with which he too was provided, and put both men to flight. Later in the day they were both captured.

The Archbishopric of Canterbury.

The King of Kent, Ethelbert by name, established the See of Canterbury 1,286 years ago, and Augustine, whom Gregory the Great sent over to England as a missionary to convert the Anglo-Saxons, was its first incumbent, but not until during the time of his third successor, Theodorus, was the holder of the office invested with metropolitan authority and powers. Many great and noble men have filled the office, and some very mean and narrow ones have been clothed with its authority. The royal succession itself has not been more full of interest or more vitally associated with the prosperity and progress, or otherwise, of the centuries than the influence and polity and deeds of the primates of England. The names of Lanfranc, Anselm, Thomas Becket, John Morton are great names; so is Simon Islip, who is represented a giant in size also, if tradition is correct, for this prelate is said to have been six feet three in height. Cranmer stands sixty-eighth on the list, and down to his time nearly all the primates were bred monks, except an occasional lawyer. The reformation came in with Cranmer, and his sixty-seven predecessors were under the Pope. Twenty-four have ruled since, and they have governed under the throne.

The Archbishop of Canterbury is both diocesan and metropolitan. In his metropolitan character and capacity he is guardian of every vacant see within his province—presents to all benefices which fall vacant while such see remains without a bishop, and by special commissionary exercises a bishop's ordinary jurisdiction therein. He has likewise appellate jurisdiction over all bishops of his province. As diocesan he exercises, through the Consistory Court of Canterbury, the ordinary jurisdiction of a bishop over that diocese.

Anent degrees he has, as primate, university powers invested in him. He can confer the degrees of doctor of divinity and laws, as also of B. A. and M. A. These are known as Lambeth degrees, and are valued according to the views entertained of the primate and the position occupied by the estimator. In social position he overranks all other subjects not of the blood royal. He crowns the Kings and Queens of England, and is the spiritual adviser of the royal family. He is ex-officio president of the convocation of the prelates and clergy of his province; and by royal writ summons it to meet whenever Parliament assembles, and dissolves it when Parliament prorogues. He is entitled to no less than eight chaplains, and is ex-officio an ecclesiastical commissioner, having also the right to nominate one of these commissioners. He has two palaces and £15,000 a year. Thus will be seen the importance of the office and the obvious influence which its incumbent must wield. His induction to office is not designated a consecration, but an enthronement which attaches almost regal dignity to it.

Dr. Benson, Bishop of Truro, in Cornwall, has been appointed to succeed the late Dr. Tait. It has been announced in the papers that Dr. Harold Brown, of Winchester, and Dr. Church, canon of St. Paul, were offered the position, and both declined it; but such statements require authentication, and have no certain basis. The Bishop of Winchester may have declined it, for he is "old and well stricken in years;" but it is not at all probable that Dr. Church would have done so, for his name was at once mentioned when Primate Tait died, and was kept before the public as the most likely and eligible appointment that could be made; and hence, if the choice of the Premier had been made in harmony therewith, it would have been eagerly accepted. Dr. Benson is a moderate High churchman, that is, he is not in sympathy with the Ritualists, nor will he grant them the same concessions that his Broad-church predecessor yielded to them. He signalized his advent to the diocese of Truro by proclaiming the Wesleyan ministry illegitimate, and has just signalized his departure from Cordwall by referring in courteous and gracious terms of recognition to the valuable labors of the Wesleyans in his late diocese.

He is a man of strong and earnest convictions; able at organization, able and firm as an administrator, untiring as a worker, and he imbues those with whom he has to do with much of his own spirit. He has liberal views as to church work, for he licensed many lay helpers in Cornwall to preach in unconsecrated buildings, and to do other and various kinds of religious work. He will be a great improvement upon his predecessor, and in many respects quite a contrast to him The Nonconformists need not expect much from Anglican dignitaries of any school. Dean Stanley, with all his catholicity and liberality, held intercourse with them in a one-sided and patronizing manner. When he invited ministers to preach in the Abbey he gave them the layman's desk, which Max Muller occupied, and not the pulpit. Dr. John Stoughton was so treated. Now, I would much prefer the attitude of High-churchmen to such recognition as that. Dr. Benson will be loyal to his position; but as it is probable he has a true and comprehensive discernment of the situation, its responsibilities and its needs, it is reasonable to conclude that he will subordinate his churchly sympathies and preferences to the spiritual and religious claims of the primacy, and that he will see that it will be the highest wisdom, as well as a principal duty, to recognize the fact that there are other churches in England than his own, and that combined they constitute a larger and stronger factor in the religious life and political influence of the nation.—London Cor. Western Christian Advocate.

An Anecdote of Gambetta's Mother.

As the "Bazar Genois" was in the market-place its business lay in a great degree with rustics. Leon got sick of dealing with haggling rustics, and prayed to be removed from behind the counter to the desk. As he was a quick accountant, and wrote in a neat, legible and flowing hand, this was granted. He did his best to give his mind to the business, but failed, and his health sank under the tedium of uncongenial pursuits. No device to which the watchful and tender mother resorted could get the better of his splenetic state. He had a fixed ambition which, as it appeared to him a chimerical one, made him restless, discontented and miserable; it was to study law and become a teacher to a Legal Faculty in a provincial city. One day his mother called him to her. She said she had been unhappy in witnessing his growing depression, and she handed him a bag of money which she had saved unknown to anybody—enough to defray the cost of his journey to Paris and enable him to study law there for some time. A trunk full of clothing had been prepared, and was at the office of the stage-coach, where a place was booked for him to the nearest railway. Madame Gambetta instructed him to slip quietly away, in order to avoid a painful scene with his father, who was determined that his son should succeed him in the business.

This communication was so unexpected and delightful that for the rest of the day Leon was in a state of bewilderment. He rose betimes next morning, and stole off as instructed. Before Madame Gambetta had instructed her son to follow his vocation, she had taken steps to keep him out of misery when the hoard placed in his hands should be exhausted. In 1856, the year in which Gambetta left Cahors, M. Emile Menier went there on a business tour. He had just opened the chocolate factory at Noisiel, and traded in medicated biscuits and sweet-stuffs. Calling at the "Bazar Genois," he was received by Madame Gambetta. In answer to his proposal to sell his goods on commission she, with tears in her eyes, met it with another. It was in the nature of the one enunciated by the unjust steward. "I have a son of great promise," she said, "whom I want to send to Paris against his father's will, to study law. He is a good lad and no fool. But my husband, who wants him to continue his business here, will, I know, try to starve him into submission. What I am about to propose is that if I buy your chocolate at the rate you offer it, and buy it outright instead of taking it to sell on commission, you will say nothing if I enter it at a higher price, and you will pay the difference to my son?" M. Menier, from whose lips I had this anecdote, agreed, and for some years carried out the arrangement.—The Century.

Hungarian Grass and Hay.

Hungarian grass is yearly growing in favor with dairymen and stock growers as a valuable substitute for hay as a winter feed, and in the place of, or in connection with, fodder corn for soiling in midsummer, or whenever grass fails from drought. The largest varieties are best, but all are valuable. It will flourish in any good corn land, but a sandy loam suits it best. If properly managed on such land it will produce more food value to the acre than meadow on the same land would do. Four tons of cured grass to the acre is no uncommon yield. The average quantity of seed to the acre is half a bushel, but some sow more and others less. The time for sowing is not till permanent hot or summer weather sets in—from June 1 to the middle of July. It is emphatically a hot weather plant, and sowing should always be delayed till frosts are all out of the way. It has a fine seed and special preparation of the ground is required or its minute roots and leaves dry up and perish if a ready and strong hold of the soil is not obtained.

A very fine tilth is absolutely essential to its successful growth. There is no use sowing it on cold and wet ground, nor on ground that is dry, hard and lumpy. On such ground the seed will not be likely to come up at all, and if it does, it will perish in its early growth and leave the ground free to the hardier weeds which will follow it. On light, fine and rich soil it makes a quick and heavy growth. The value of the crop for fodder depends very much upon the time of cutting. If left standing till the seed begins to fill it becomes so full of woody fiber as to make it harsh to the mouths and stomachs of animals and greatly to reduce its value. It is most profitably cut for fodder when the heads are well started out, but before they get their full size, and certainly before blossoming. If left till blossoms are out, it will be past its prime and will quickly become worthless as straw. When cut thus early it is an unusually rich fodder and makes excellent milk, butter and flesh. It is one of the best crops grown to mix with fodder corn for ensilage.—Professor L. B. Arnold.

HOME AND FARM.

—To cultivate the soil with success, requires both thought and study.

—It is easier to grow rhubarb from the seed than to get old roots, as these seldom give satisfaction.—N. Y. Herald.

—A plaster of soft lye-soap and cornmeal if applied in time will cure a felon. Renew the plaster every morning and evening until all soreness has disappeared.—Rural New Yorker.

—The farmers of Indiana are making rapid progress in draining and reclaiming their wet lands. The annual report of the Statistical Bureau shows that there are in the State 9,821,297 rods of tile drainage.—Chicago Journal.

—A dark colored soil, neither too sandy nor too clayey, overlaying a subsoil of sandy loam, makes the best ground for vegetables. A clay subsoil always matures its crop later than a sandy or gravely one. Land that is at all stiff or clayey can never be got in good condition if plowed or harrowed while wet.—Exchange.

—A sore neck is often caused by an ill-fitting collar or by the weight of an ill-made wagon tongue. The sore must be healed as the first part of the remedy, and the collar should be provided with cushions on the sides near the top to relieve the pressure. The parts should be dressed with solution of sulphate of copper and protected by a soft pad.—N. Y. Times.

—The Indiana Farmer says one of its subscribers kept a record of the time employed in cultivating fourteen acres of corn last season in the old-fashioned way, and finds he gave about two days to the acre. The yield was 800 bushels, over fifty-seven bushels to the acre. He estimates the value of his crop at $320, and the labor expended on it at $120, and deducting expenses he claims a profit of $11 per acre.

—To aid farmers to arrive at accuracy in estimating the amount of land in different fields under cultivation, the following table is given: Five yards wide by 968 long contains 1 acre; 10 yards wide by 484 long contains 1 acre; 20 yards wide by 245 long contains 1 acre; 40 yards wide by 121 long contains 1 acre; 70 yards wide by 69 1-2 long contains 1 acre; 80 yards wide by 62 1-2 long contains 1 acre; 60 feet wide by 726 long contains 1 acre; 110 feet wide by 397 long contains 1 acre; 130 feet wide by 363 long contains 1 acre; 220 feet wide by 181 1-2 long contains 1 acre; 440 feet wide by 99 long contains 1 acre.—Chicago Journal.

—Dr. Danford Thomas, in his capacity as Coroner, has directed public attention to the mortality which follows the neglect of measles. It is a common opinion that a child must have the measles, and that when it gets the disease it requires no treatment and but little care. This is a mistake. In the records of vital statistics it may be seen that it often proves more fatal than any other zymotic disease, more even than scarlatina. With medical and parental care the disease generally does well, but without this it is liable to serious complications and apt to leave disagreeable consequences.—London Lancet.

Specialties in Agriculture.

What are special crops? We think every product of the farm may be called a special crop if special care and culture is given to it. It is not some new and unheard-of crop; not hops, or teasels, or peppermint-oil, onions or melons, or fruit alone; but these when there is an opportunity for them, and when there are not special crops of wheat or oats or barley or corn or fodder, and special kinds of butter or cheese or milk, specially prepared for sale, or specially fed beeves or mutton or lambs or poultry, for all of which there is a market and a profitable sale if the product can be made as much larger or better or heavier than that from other and cheaper localities. The Eastern farmer has his market at his door, and if he can by special methods or culture produce as much larger or more valuable crops as will extinguish the advantages gained by cheaper land and culture elsewhere he will have all the benefits of the greater nearness of the markets. The Nebraska farmer is now considering if it would not pay him to borrow money at one per cent. a month to hold back his corn from twenty-six for thirty cents a bushel by and by. The Ohio farmer gets thirty cents a bushel more than that and the New York farmer forty to fifty cents more. If either of these can produce seventy-five or eighty bushels per acre by special culture against the forty bushels of the Nebraska farmer he may well consider this a special crop and a profitable one to grow. So with all other products of the farm.

But there are special crops, in the significance of the term—fruits, vegetables, fancy cheese, early lambs, and poultry and various other products—which have a high local reputation on account of their high quality, which has been gained by long and skillful cultivation and which gives them a high value in the markets. The market reports sometimes contain notices of these. There are Long Island potatoes, New-Jersey melons and sweet corn, Pennsylvania poultry, of which capons are especially highly valued; New-Jersey and Pennsylvania lands, many kinds of fancy cheeses, Delaware peaches, Kelley's Island grapes, Southern Illinois fruits and vegetables, the white Burleigh tobacco of Kentucky, the Berea (Ohio) onions, and others of which a long list might be given. Every locality offers some opportunities for enterprise in this direction; every city and town has its market, every village its select customers, and everything that is more than usually good or early or novel, its unusually large price. A market gardener undertook to grow strawberries under glass in the winter near a large northern city, and at once found customers for all he could raise at one dollar to five dollars a quart. Every year he built a new glass house, until he had a dozen of them and twenty-five acres of ground outside for later crops. A young farmer makes a special business of feeding light pork for family use and of making sausages, for which he gets a double price. And so it is all through; the man of one thing becomes known and succeeds because he devotes his attention to that one and excels in it. The secret is to find what the one thing needful is, and when this is found the genius which has enabled the man or the woman to find that will always enable him or her to make a success of it.—N. Y. Times.

—It is said that the art of making Damascus steel has been lost to the world, but no one need grieve over it. We have State Treasurers in this country who would steal Damascus herself if they could get a tow line fast anywhere.—N. Y. News.

—Lebanon County, Pa., has a man forty-eight years of age, who never had any hair or teeth. The Philadelphia Press, which tells this story, is very trustworthy on most subjects.

A Few Words About Words.

Prior to engaging in it one might imagine the study of words tedious and profitless, whereas it is interesting and instructive to the last degree. Particularly is this the case with respect to the words composing our own language, by reason of the variety of sources whence they are drawn.

The incomparable essayist, Macaulay, says: "Those revolutions that most influence mankind are noiseless;" and the sentiment is voiced by another eminent author when he remarks: "There are instances in which more knowledge of more value may be obtained from the history of a word than from the history of a campaign."

That constellation known as the Pleiades received its name from the Greek plein, "to sail," because navigation in Greek waters was considered safe after its appearance in and until its disappearance from the heavens. In Italy it appeared about the first of May, and was then called Virgiliæ, from virga, "a sprout," as May is the time of the year when sprouts start forth.

"Idiot," from the Greek idiotes, originally meant the private citizen, in distinction from the one who held official position. Then it was applied to him who, owing to his ignorance, was allowed no part in public affairs. From this secondary meaning it easily came to signify a person entirely destitute of intellect—a natural fool.

The Latin caballus "a pack horse," gave birth to "cavalry." "Infantry" originally consisted of the infantes—boys and servants—who ran beside their masters, themselves on horseback. "Dragoon," the soldier who is prepared to serve on foot or on horseback, as the occasion requires, was suggested by the fabulous dragoon—an animal furnished with wings and able either to run or fly.

The Roman soldier who suffered himself to be made a prisoner of war—captus—was considered a worthless fellow. From captus, through the Norman French caitiff, comes our "caitiff," a term that forcibly indicates the character of mean people.

The first "saunterer" was led by an earnest religious enthusiasm to visit la Sainte Terre, the Holy Land. Gradually, those idlers who preferred a ramble to the active duties of life took a staff and set out for the Holy Land, and thus the word lost its honorable meaning.

The family of Merode was distinguished in the history of the Netherlands. It had one member who made incursions into the enemy's country from which he always returned laden with spoils. From his time they who wander in quest of plunder have been termed Meroders, "marauders."

During a war between Germany and Austria, the most incredible rumors concerning the victory or defeat of the Germans were circulated. All of them were found to originate in Hamburg, and whenever unreliable news was announced it would be said: "That is a Hamburg," and eventually, a "humbug."

Mara was an elf of Finland, and she was accustomed to torment those whom she disliked with horrible visions. Hence our "nightmare."

A priory in London, "St. Mary's of Bethlehem," was granted to the city by Henry VIII. as a place of lodgment for the insane. Bethlehem, by degrees, was corrupted to "bedlam," the name now given to lunatic asylums.

"Gazette," is derived from gazetta, a small Venetian coin, which was the price of a paper containing commercial and military information, published by the Republic of Venice in 1563.

When the Moors ruled Spain they imposed duties on all merchandise carried past a certain town Tarifa—located at the extremity of a promontory extending far out into the Mediterranean, near the Straits of Gibraltar. These taxes were called tarifa, and then tariff.

Tantalus, a king of Phrygia, committed many deeds in opposition to the gods, and, after death, according to ancient mythology, in the under world, was condemned, as a punishment, to stand in a pool with apples, pears, figs and other fruit just above his head. Though parched with thirst, and almost famished, he was unable to satisfy his desire for drink and food. When he bowed his head towards the water, it receded; when he tried to seize the fruit, the winds whisked it beyond his reach. From this circumstance we have "tantalize," which means to torment by exciting hopes that are never to be realized.

The Danes have a word, Ghee, which signifies "go on;" and, formerly, French heralds, wishing to stop a knight in his course at a tournament, cried, Hola. "Ghee, whoa," used by teamsters, are derived from the above two words. Some authorities, however, say they are derived from Jehu, the celebrated charioteer.

But there is really "no end" to such things, and we may as well stop here as anywhere. We sincerely trust to have so interested our readers—especially the young—in "words," that they will continue the investigations which we have begun; for we are positive the result will compensate them for their time and labor.—F. F. Foster, in Christian Union.

The Degenerations of Old Age.

We have spoken of the atrophy of old age—the wasting due to the lessened power of the system to take up the proper nourishment of its respective parts. Were this all the loss that comes with years, most old persons would live to a hundred and over, and die by an almost imperceptible decay.

But there is besides—in part both a consequence and a cause of the former fact—a change, more or less, in the tissues, or substance, of the body.

In the place of muscular fiber there often is fat (resembling the fat of bacon) and hence called fatty degeneration. It is also called waxy degeneration from its wax-like appearance. This is not an accumulation of fat around an organ or between its muscular fibers, such as takes place in the corpulent, but a substitution of fat for the fibers themselves. Of course the toughness and elasticity of the muscles are thereby lost.

Sometimes the change is to a chalk-like substance which is known by the name of "cretaceous" degeneration. While the former renders the muscle soft and weak and easy to give way before unusual pressure, the latter renders it unyielding and brittle.

While all the organs are liable to these degenerations, the heart and the arteries are especially so. Such changes in these important organs greatly hasten on the decay which characterizes old age.

It is the opinion of Dr. Charles Murchison, LL.D., F.R.S., that these degenerations are due to the liver, the great sewer of the system. This, weakened by age, is no longer able so to act on certain waste matters that they can be properly eliminated by the kidneys. Hence they remain in the blood and juices of the body, and work, besides other harm, the above results.—Youth's Companion.

—Some of the European steamers last year cleared from $40,000 to $50,000 on each round trip of four or five weeks.

—The Philadelphia Press speaks of the coronation of Kalakaua as an "eblouissant spectacle." We had supposed it was to be something distingue, a sort of a royal rennaissance, as it were, but dear, dear, that it should be so aggravated as "eblouissant," we hadn't dreamed. If we had, we should have been there.—Hartford Post.

—Frederick Lunger, who died at Davenport, Iowa, a few days ago at the age of seventy-five years, ran the first passenger train out of Philadelphia and took the first train into Indianapolis. He was the guest of Thomas A. Scott at the Centennial Expostion.

—One of the gold-mining companies operating in Fulton County, New York, has cleaned up about two hundred tons of gravel, the amalgam yielding $750 in gold, resembling the Australian product.

A Fireman's Fortune.

The San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle, in an article on the Fire Department of San Francisco, gives the following from Asst. Chief Engineer Matthew Brady: "I have been subject to an aggravating pain in my chest for over four years. I resorted to various modes of treatment to obtain relief. I have had my chest terribly blistered. No physician could tell what was the matter with me. Two weeks ago I commenced using St. Jacobs Oil. It has cured me."

"AT last I know there is such a thing as a cold snap," remarked the burglar to the Sheriff, as he clapped the steel shackles on the shekel stealer.

LORD BYRON, in reference to a beautiful lady, wrote to a friend—"Lady —— has been dangerously ill, but now she is dangerously well again." American belles, when attacked by any of the ills that flesh is heir to, may be kept killing, and avoid being killed, by taking Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which banishes feminine weaknesses, and restores the bloom of health. By all druggists.

MANY a male brute who snarls and growls at his wife in public is very loving and tender when no one else is around. He has to be.—Philadelphia News.

"FIRST a cough, carried me off,
And then a coffin they carried me off in!"

This will not be your epitaph if you take your cough and Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" in time. It is specific for weak lungs, spitting of blood, night-sweats, and the early stages of consumption. By all druggists.

JUST imagine that you have given a friend something very handsome and you will know what it is to have presents of mind.—N. Y. Commercial.

Throat, Bronchial and Lung Diseases

a specialty. Send two stamps for large treatise giving self treatment. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N.Y.

A POINT has position, but not size. That is probably the reason why so many fail to "see the point."

An Undoubted Blessing.

About thirty years ago, a prominent physician by the name of Dr. William Hall discovered, or produced after long experimental research, a remedy for diseases of the throat, chest and lungs, which was of such wonderful efficacy that it soon gained a wide reputation in this country. The name of the medicine is DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and may be safely relied on as a speedy and positive cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, etc. Sold by all Druggists.

A PRIZE fighter should be paid in English money. The pounds are symbolic of his profession.—Philadelphia Chronicle-Herald.

It is said that Hanlan has made $80,000 by his good sculllership. Money could never purchase health. "All that a man hath will he give in exchange for his life." Mishler's Herb Bitters is a preparation that eradicates diseases from the human system. It is therefore an inestimable boon to mankind. This preparation cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nervous Debility, Rheumatism and all diseases of the Kidneys and Liver. All of these assertions are established as facts. The people believe them, too; hence the enormous sales.

THE dog who stepped on the disc over a coal hole stepped long enough to discover that it was only a slip pup.

THE patient suffering from dyspepsia is apt to imagine himself affected with consumption, organic disease of the heart or some other incurable disease. GASTRINE cures dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists.

THE new patent door closers are called "checks," because they prevent a draft.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

FOR burns, scalds, bruises, chapped hands, sores or piles, use St. Patrick's Salve.

NAIL-KEGS are now made of sheet-iron, and the old wooden ones are covered with felt and sold as high hats.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, March 16, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 25	@ 3 25
Choice butchers	5 00	@ 5 75
HOGS—Common	6 18	@ 6 75
Good packers	7 10	@ 7 60
SHEEP	5 00	@ 5 75
FLOUR—Family	5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 11	@
No. 2 winter red	1 09	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	56½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	46	@
Rye—No. 2	65	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@ 11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 25	@ 18 50
Lard—Steam	11½	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	43	@
Prime Creamery	40	@ 43
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 50	@ 2 65
Apples, prime, per barrel	3 75	@ 4 25
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$4 50	@ 4 60
Good to choice	4 60	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 20½	@ 1 21
No. 1 white	1 11	@ 1 12½
Corn—No. 2 mixed	70¼	@ 72
Oats—mixed	49½	@ 52
PORK—Mess	19 25	@ 19 50
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	3 50	@ 5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	94½	@
Corn No. 2	57¼	@ 58¼
Oats—No. 2	41¼	@
Rye	63½	@
PORK—Mess	18 30	@ 18 35
LARD—Steam	11-32½	@ 11-35
WHISKY	1 17	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 17	@
Corn—mixed	66	@ 66¼
Oats—mixed	52	@ 55
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	20 00	@
Lard—Refined	12¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	$ 9¾	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 10	@ 1 13
Corn—mixed	54	@
Oats—mixed	48	@
PORK—Mess	19 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 08	@
CORN	53	@
OATS—mixed	45	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 00

St. Jacobs Oil
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.
Relieves and cures
RHEUMATISM,
Neuralgia,
Sciatica, Lumbago,
BACKACHE,
HEADACHE, TOOTHACHE,
SORE THROAT,
QUINSY, SWELLINGS,
SPRAINS,
Soreness, Cuts, Bruises,
FROSTBITES,
BURNS, SCALDS,
And all other bodily aches and pains.
FIFTY CENTS A BOTTLE.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers. Directions in 11 languages.
The Charles A. Vogeler Co.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.)
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

A GUMDROP—Reduction in the price of Arctic overshoes.—Puck.

STRAIGHTEN old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again.

PROTECTION for home industries. A lock on the pantry door.

"BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES" will relieve Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Consumptive and Throat Diseases. Sold only in boxes.

THE electric light is so much superior to gas that it is a wonder politicians don't dispense with the latter.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar
Thoroughly cures a cough. Remember! Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

"OVER in Mexico, where the soil is poorer than an amateur concert," etc.—Texas Siftings.

REDDING'S Russia Salve is unequaled for chilblains, chapped hands, frost bites, etc. Try it.

YOU can never rely upon an echo. Does not Shakespeare speak of the cave where Echo lies!—Boston Courier.

HAVE you seen the Chrolithion Collars and Cuffs! Something new. Ask for them.

FASHIONABLE intelligence—Long dresses make clean-crossings.

Personal!
THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

An Internal Revenue Officer Saved

PROVIDENCE, August 21, 1882.

Editor of Boston Herald:

DEAR SIR—During my term of service in the Internal Revenue Department of the United States, at the time my office was in this city, I was afflicted with a severe attack of kidney disease, and at times suffered intensely. I received the medical advice of some of our best physicians for a long time, without being benefited by their prescriptions. Being discouraged by the failure of the doctors to help me, and being urged to use Hunt's Remedy by a friend who had tested its merits, although reluctant to try a patent medicine, I was finally induced to try it, and procured two bottles of it, and commenced taking it faithfully according to the directions.

Before I had taken it three days the excruciating pains in my back had disappeared, and before I had used two bottles I was entirely cured. Whenever, from over-exertion or a violent cold, the pains in my kidneys return, a few doses of Hunt's Remedy quickly effects a cure.

Before closing I beg to mention the remarkable cure of a friend of mine in New York City, to whom I recommended this valuable medicine. He was suffering severely from an attack which was pronounced by his physician a decided case of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. I obtained two bottles of Hunt's Remedy for him, and he commenced taking it, and began to improve at once, and was speedily restored to health, and he attributes the saving of his life, under the blessing of a merciful Providence, to Hunt's Remedy.

Another friend of mine in New York, to whom I recommended Hunt's Remedy, was suffering severely from kidney disease, and was entirely cured of it after using this wonderful medicine only a short period.

Feeling deeply grateful for the great benefits experienced by my friends and myself from the use of Hunt's Remedy, I feel it to be my duty, as well as a great privilege, to furnish you this voluntary and unsolicited statement of facts for the information of your large number of readers, many of whom are undoubtedly suffering from this widely-spreading scourge, and I believe that it is the best medicine now known, and that it will cure all cases of kidney diseases that can be cured.

I shall be pleased to confer with any one who may desire an interview regarding the statements herein contained.

Truly yours,
RICHMOND HENSHAW, 99 Messer Street.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS
Invalids who are recovering vital stamina, declare in grateful terms their appreciation of the merits, as a tonic, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does it impart strength to the weak, but it also corrects an irregular acid state of the stomach, makes the bowels act at proper intervals, gives ease to those who suffer from rheumatic and kidney troubles, and conquers as well as prevents fever and ague. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally

THE SUN EVERYBODY LIKES IT.
THE SUN'S first aim is to be truthful and useful; its second, to write an entertaining history of the times in which we live. It prints, on an average, more than a million copies a week. Its circulation is now larger than ever before. Subscription: DAILY (4 pages), by mail, 55c. a month, or $6.50 a year; SUNDAY (8 pages), $1 20 per year; WEEKLY (8 pages), $1 per year. I. W. ENGLAND, Publisher, New York City.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 21 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

AGENTS Make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., N. Y.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. Kruse, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING Co., Philad'a, Pa.

VIGOR RESTORED to invalids or no pay. Write to Dr. Hirley, Cincinnati.

$15 A Day at Home. No peddling: 12 Samples Free. Send 10c for postage, &c. C. E. BOWEN, Brockton, Mass.

ENGINES (Traction & Portable) for Farm, Saw Mill & Plantation. For prices, etc., write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

CONSUMPTIVES Last, Sure and Only Hope. Write, Dr. Hirley, Cin'ti, O.

AN ENGLISH VETERINARY SURGEON AND CHEMIST, now traveling in this country, says that most of the Horse and Cattle Powders sold here are worthless trash. He says that Sheridan's Condition Powders are absolutely pure and immensely valuable. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powders. Dose, one teaspoonful to one pint food. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for eight letter-stamps. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.
MAKE HENS LAY

MUSTANG
Survival of the Fittest.
A FAMILY MEDICINE THAT HAS HEALED MILLIONS DURING 35 YEARS!
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
A BALM FOR EVERY WOUND OF MAN AND BEAST!
THE OLDEST & BEST LINIMENT EVER MADE IN AMERICA.
SALES LARGER THAN EVER.
The Mexican Mustang Liniment has been known for more than thirty-five years as the best of all Liniments for Man and Beast. Its sales to-day are larger than ever. It cures when all others fail, and penetrates skin, tendon and muscle to the very bone. Sold everywhere.

Nowhere Else
Than in the establishment of OLIVER DITSON & Co. are published so large, so useful, so varied, so brilliant and every way satisfactory a set of MUSIC BOOKS for
SCHOOLS, SEMINARIES, ACADEMIES, COLLEGES.
We here mention, as among hundreds of others, our SONG BELLS, (50 cts.) for Common Schools, by L. O. Emerson, as a great favorite, and one that may be universally used. The older books, GOLDEN ROBIN (50 cts.), by Perkins; MERRY CHIMES (50 cts.), by Emerson, and others, have a good reputation and are always in demand. Send for lists!
The Welcome Chorus ($1), by Tilden, High School Choir ($1), and Hour of Singing ($1), by Emerson and Tilden, Laurel Wreath ($1), by Perkins, Song Echo (75 cts.), by Perkins, and School Song Book (60 cts.), by Everest, are all good and successful collections for HIGH and NORMAL SCHOOLS. Send for lists!
Wellesley College Collection ($1), by Morse, Vocal Echoes ($1), Choice Trios ($1), by Tilden, are new and first-class collections for Female Voices.
Five Hundred Instructors for all Instruments,
Including the world-famous Richardson's New Method for Pianoforte ($3.25), and many thousands of Songs and Pieces, always ready for the MUSIC DEPARTMENT OF SEMINARIES AND COLLEGES. Send for lists! Any book mailed for retail price,
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

STRONG POINTS ABOUT MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS
ARE AN ABSOLUTE CURE FOR KIDNEY TROUBLES, LIVER COMPLAINT,
Dyspepsia and all Bowel Disorders.
They supply tone to the stomach, reinvigorate the digestive organs, stimulate the secretions, promote a regular action of the bowels, and enable every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption. In use in U. S. since 1858, and in Germany for over 200 years. For the complaints peculiar to all of the FEMALE SEX, they are unequalled by any medicine in the world. With the trade mark "Hope," they have proved a boon to millions of distressed people. Compounded with as much care as any extract. Proved best.
A Reliable Household Remedy thoroughly adapted to assist nature. Highly commended as a general Tonic and Appetiser. Send for "Messenger of Health."
Mishler Herb Bitters Co. Lancaster, Pa. At Druggists $1.
Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup Never Fails.

LOOK HERE! Something New!
THE GOOD LUCK PRIZE CASKET.
Contains: 1 American Standard Prize Package, 50 French Transparent Cards, 25 I-cent Songs, 1 Champion Stationery Package, 1 Luminous Match Safe, 1 Pocket Slate, 1 Sample Transfer-Picture Album, 1 Pen-Knife and Tooth-Pick Combination. Remember that every Casket contains valuable prizes, and that every gross contains a $10 Gold-Piece. I will send the casket to any part of U. S. for $1 or 3 for $2.50; to Canada $1.10 or 3 for $2.85. Send money by Money-Order, Registered Letter, Draft on New York or Am. Ex. Co. (No postage stamps). Write your address plainly, and address D. D. ELLINGER, Allegan, Mich.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
POLYGAMY OR THE MYSTERIES of MORMONISM
This work gives a Full Account of their sacrilegious Doctrines and Practices, their blasphemous Rites and Ceremonies, and is the only authentic History of this vile Sect published. Send for circulars and extra terms to Agents. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

$60 5-TON JONES
Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warranted 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

WANTED—AGENTS.
To buy and sell the WANLESS DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1,000 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO., 186 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. 25 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

WE SELL THE BEST $65 ORGAN in the world. Address MILLER ORGAN CO. Lebanon, Pa.

JUST OUT. NEW STOVE PIPE SHELF.
One agent made $1400.00 in 56 days. Boxing and Freight Free. J. E. SHEPARD & CO., CINCINNATI & KANSAS CITY.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

OPIUM CURE I send a supply FREE and furnish the Recipe for a cure. 13 years experience. Send for circulars. W. F. GEORGE, LaPorte, Ind. (Formerly Confidential Secretary for Dr. S. B. Collins.)

PATENTS PROCURED! or NO PAY! Also—Trade marks, etc. Send model and sketch; will examine and report if patentable. Many years practice. Pamphlet free. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D.C.

DAKOTA WHEAT LANDS!
30,000 acres of choice selections on the line of the N. P. R. R. From $3 to $7.50 per acre; $1 payable in seven years. 6 per cent. For descriptions, etc. inclose stamp to GUYLER ADAMS, Deerwood, Minn.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Write for catalogue. Coleman & Palms, Prop'rs.

500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R. Full particulars FREE.
Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'ner MILWAUKEE, WIS.
LANDS IN WISCONSIN.

I CURE FITS!
When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post-Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.
Address DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

CANCER INSTITUTE. AURORA ILL.
Established 1872. Incorporated 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

$225 A MONTH—AGENTS WANTED—90 best selling articles in the world; 1 sample free. Address J. A. Bronson, Detroit, Mich.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28, 1883. NUMBER 22.

"NIGGER MIGHTY HAPPY."

PLANTATION SONG.

Hog start a-runnin' when de overseer callin';
Whipperwill holler when de jew-draps fallin';
Duck keep a-quackin' when de hard rain
po'in';
Crows flock togedder when de young corn
growin';
Pig gwine to squeal when de milk-maid
churnin';
Nigger mighty happy when de blackberries
turnin'!

Squ'el go to jumpin' when de scaly-barks comin';
Bee-martin sail when de honey-bee hum-
min';
Lean horse nicker when de punkin-vine
spreadin';
Rabbit back his ear when de cabbage-stalk
headin';
Rooster start a-crowin' when de broad day
breakin';
Nigger mighty happy when de hoe-cake
bakin'!

Big fish flutter when he done cotch de cricket;
Bullfrog libely when he singin' in de thicket;
Mule git slicker when de plantin'-time over;
Colt mighty ga'ly when you turn him in de clover;
An' it come might handy to de nigger man
natur
When he soppin' in de gravy wid a big yam
'tater!

Black-snake waitin' while de old hen
hatchin';
Sparrer-hawk lookin' while de little chicken
scratchin';
Big owl jolly when de little bird singin';
'Possum gwine to claim whar de ripe 'simmons
swingin';
Nigger mighty happy—ef he aint wuf a dollar—
When he startin' out co'tin' wid a tall stan'in' collar!

—J. A. Macon, in the Century Magazine.

AMERICAN MANNERS.

Nothing is more common than criticism of American manners, the causes assigned for their shortcomings being as various as the complaints are loud and frequent. One censor attributes all faults of decorum to the American's want of reverence, another to his lack of leisure; still a third finds a cause in his unpicturesque costume, and, with a fond glance backward at knee-breeches and lace ruff, holds the modern trousers and stiff linen responsible for the evils.

In all these cases there is an assumed disorder, the source of which is sought. That is, American manners are assumed to be bad manners, and society is probed to find the origin thereof. The search reminds one of the story of the wise men puzzling their beads over the problem why a jar of water weighed no more after the fish was put in than before. It was a long time before any one suggested that the jar be weighed to see whether the case was truly stated, whether the jar actually did weigh no more with the fish than without it.

We propose to ask in the outset: Are American manners bad, and, if so, in what respects? What, in the first place, is the standard comparison? Pressing the question closely, we shall be apt to hear a good deal about "gentlemen of the old school," about a "queenly carriage," "courtly grace," etc., with perhaps some references to "the good old times when George the Third was King"—from which we may infer that English society in the latter half of the last century presents itself as one model of politesse. If we accept this as the only or the best model of manners, we must resign at once any claim for our own time and country. The sweeping courtesy, the studied obeisance, the quaint ceremonials of those days are out of date; no one now attaches the same importance to the exact angle of the feet and elbows on entering a room; the "Art of being Easy at all Times and in all Places," the most popular work of the time, is now out of print. Along with these traditions, however, have come to us other traditions, also, which leave no doubt that this same imposing "gentleman of the old school," this model of deportment in the presence of ladies, or under the tranquilizing influences of a state dinner, sometimes used very ugly words when with those of his own sex alone, and it is quite certain that even that pattern of all the feminine graces and accomplishments of her time, the Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, was not wholly without reproach in the private relations of life.

Evidently, to consider the subject at all, we must first come to some sort of definition. We must know what we mean by manners before we can classify them as good or bad. In the first place, I think we must discard the Sunday-school theory that good manners are synonymous with certain virtues, as unselfishness, amiability, consideration for others and the like. Had I not long seen its fallacy, I could have had no more convincing proof of it than has come to me during the present writing. A gentleman called on me who commands my entire respect, both by reason of his able mind and his generous heart. Nay, more than this. When I think of the perseverance by which he has gained an education, despite of poverty, discouragement and difficulties of various kinds; of the industry by which, though still young, he has made for himself a place in his profession; of his goodness of heart toward the unfortunate and sorrowful, my respect quickens into admiration. Yet this man of true and tender soul, calling upon an errand which did credit to both head and heart, stood before me with his hat on his head and his hands in his pockets. When I had arranged to go with him at an appointed hour to co-operate in his benevolent mission, asked me "if it would be too much out of the way for me to call at his office!"

On the other hand, a gentleman (so-called), whom I have every reason to believe is a veritable scoundrel, places a chair for me with a grace that I have never seen equaled, and says "good morning, madam," with such empressement that I feel like a Princess for many hours thereafter. And this man of the gracious mien but wicked heart finds a welcome in society, and really good society, too, where my noble friend, if invited at all, would be laughed at, except by the few that knew him well enough to forgive his blunders.

Neither are fine manners synonymous with talent or education. You shall see the scholar of wide and accurate knowledge abashed and ill at ease the moment he leaves his study, while a mere simpleton will have the air of savoir-faire in every situation.

Plainly, this thing, which is neither virtue nor wisdom, but which, more than either, is the passport to the "best" society, is not of trifling import; but while always instantly recognizable, it is nevertheless so impalpable as almost to elude definition. Perhaps we can get no nearer to a definition than by saying that manner being the deportment of one person toward other persons, fine manners consist in suitableness. A really fine manner is susceptible of infinite shades and gradations, but each suitable to the time, place and person. A manner which is suitable in addressing a person of twenty years of age is not suitable toward one seventy years old. A gentleman does not address a lady with the same familiarity that he uses toward one of his own sex; a tone which is proper from a parent to a child is not proper from a child to a parent. An obtuseness as to the relations of things is the mainspring of bad manners, and makes life, for some people, one long, unconscious impropriety.

Suitableness, then, being the test of manners, we may apply it to ourselves and ask: Are our manners suitable to the age and to our social atmosphere? If we are to compare American manners with English manners, for example, we must first compare the two societies. In so doing, four important differences are at once apparent:

First. In this country there are no distinctions of rank; no titles of duke, earl, baron, knight, esquire, etc., and, consequently, no code prescribing with as much exactness as the number of pints in a quart or ounces in a pound, the exact amount of reverence due one man from another.

Secondly. The American man, unlike the Englishman, attaches small importance to etiquette and social forms; consequently, here, much more than there, society is in the hands of women.

Thirdly. In this country young people step upon the social stage at a much earlier age, and there is far greater freedom allowed them.

Fourthly. There is a vast difference in the home atmosphere of the two countries; there, the relation of parent and child being one of authority and deference; here, one of mutual good-fellowship.

For all these reasons, social intercourse is far less formal here than in England. Richard Grant White tells of an American who went to England, honestly desirous of getting acquainted with English people, whose design was completely frustrated by the kind letters of introduction he carried with him. He found that the presentation of one of these letters meant invariably an invitation to a very grand and ceremonious dinner, and there an end. In despair he said: "I don't want their dinners; I want them," and kept his remaining letters in his pocket. Had the case been reversed, and an Englishman presented similar letters here, he would very likely have found himself taken home to a mid-day family dinner, without ceremony or announcement; afterward, pater familias having hastened back to his office or counting-room, the guest would have had an hour's friendly talk with the ladies of the household, or the pretty daughter would have taken him to drive; then, if he had shown himself worthy, he would have been invited to come and pass an evening quietly or with friends, at his option. What manner can be more pleasing to a stranger than this which makes him feel instantly at home! And what hospitality can be finer than this which bears evidence of disturbing in no way the usual easy household ways!

We can well conceive the astonishment of the Prince Regent when, being a little slow in beginning the conversation after being introduced to the American belle, she said: "They say I am not to speak to you unless you speak to me; is that so?" This was not pertness on her part. If his highness was embarassed, as, being a man, he might be expected to be, it was her place, as a woman, to put him at his ease; nor, had there been occasion, would she have hesitated to add any words of advice upon his public or private duties that might have occurred to her. Why should she not? For society is her realm, wherein she is the absolute ruler, making its laws and enforcing them.

One may learn Greek or the planetary laws late in life, but a fine manner, like the correct use of one's mother tongue, comes only from early and habitual intercourse with refined people. In America, nurseries and governesses being the exception, children out of school hours are admitted to the society of the elders of the family. Such association is the best possible school of that tone and manner which we call "well-bred;" a child thus favored will possess a diction and a facility of expression impossible to acquire by study in later life; it learns, with some tact and patience on the part of parents, that most graceful of arts, the art of listening.

The rudest family of children I have ever known were the children of some wealty English parents living at a fine place on the Hudson. Until quite well grown they met their parents and parents' guests at table only once in the week, at the Sunday dinner; and they were on much closer terms of intimacy with either father or mother.

By contrast with these children I recall the charming courtesy of a little fellow of ten, accustomed to share in the hospitalities of his father's modest home. Seeing me coming one day he ran to open the gate and relieve me of the large books I carried. I told him he might take one, but more would be too heavy. "Pray, allow me," he said, gently taking the whole burden.

"Happy is the man," says Richter, "who reverences all women because he first learned to worship his own mother." In that home where the mother is center and authority—in that society where woman is the ruler and lawgiver—there shall you find men of the comeliest manners. Such is the rule of the American home and of American society. Therefore, too, as a rule, the real spirit of chivalry, that obligation by which the mediæval knight bound himself to the service, protection and defense of some lady fair, has nowhere else so close a parallel in modern times as in the relations of American manhood to American womanhood. For the exceptions women are themselves to blame.—Anna B. McMahan, in The Continent.

—Loren Blodgett has finished his census, and has discovered that there are 63,704 more persons employed by the industrial interests of Philadelphia than the United States census gave the city credit for.—Philadelphia Press.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The Nebraska bee-keepers, in convention at Wahoo, estimated that there were 20,000 stands of bees in the State. One bee-keeper reported harvesting 6,000 pounds of honey.

—If M. Risler has made correct observations, the wheat plant never grows upon any day when the temperature of the air does not for a period of several hours at least rise above forty-three degrees Fahrenheit.—Chicago Tribune.

—A land-owner on Cape Cod, Mass., says that he owns about a hundred acres of land, of which some was so poor that it yielded nothing but poverty weed. In 1858 he commenced planting pine seed, continuing for ten years, and now he has about eighteen acres of quite valuable woodland which was worthless before. —Boston Herald.

—A discovery of a deposit of cryolite has been made near Pike's Peak. The present supply of this mineral comes from Greenland, and is landed in Philadelphia by the ship-load. Not enough is known, however, of the quantity existing in Colorado to determine its commercial standing, but if the supply is satisfactory, it will become an article of commercial importance. It is used in the manufacture of carbonate of soda. —Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—An ink-maker of New York, apropos of the base writing fluids of the present day, says that the only permanent black ink known is said to be that made with vanadium. Vanadium is a rare and costly metal, found in one of the Swedish iron ores, and in the iron slag of Staffordshire. It is a white, brittle substance, which does not melt readily, and resists the action of strong acids, such as sulphuric and muriatic. Lately a quantity of the metal has been found in Ceylon, and now will come into the ma[illegible] Y. Sun.

—If those who must tramp about in the wet to do their work will saturate the soles of their boots thoroughly with hot pine-tar, they will find that the leather has been made perfectly impervious to water. The soles are rendered hard and smooth, resisting wear much longer than they could if not thus treated The tar holds the pegs or the stitches firmly, so that the sole will not rip from the upper. Care should be taken to have the soles as perfectly dry as possible before the tar is applied, and as hot as they can be made without burning the leather. The tar should be boiled for a time to expel most of the water it may contain, and be applied while hot. —Detroit Post.

—There is a peculiar but highly successful colony of immigrants in Kansas, who call themselves German-Russian farmers. They are probably agriculturists from the border country between Russia and Germany, or from one of the German settlements in Russian territory. The Kansas settlement is called Herzog, and is situated about a mile from the railroad station of Victoria, on the Kansas Pacific Railroad These settlers are frugal, sober, and industrious in a high degree, and display intelligence and practical sense in their labor. They show this particularly in the purchase of the best labor-saving machinery, without regard to its cost. They adhere with singular persistency to the attire to which they were accustomed in Europe, and the traveler passing through their settlement beholds costumes that belong to the past century.—Denver Tribune.

PITH AND POINT.

—An Iowa editor has a lengthy editorial entitled "A Month of Horrors," and he was married only about six weeks ago.—Toledo Sunday American.

—The Chicago underwriters want a law limiting the height of buildings. They say the line must be drawn somewhere in the sky.—N. O. Picayune.

—When a fellow gets a letter for his wife out of the post-office and he forgets to give it to her for a week or so, the safest way of letting her have it is to tie it on the end of a long fishing pole and poke it through a window to her.—Kentucky State Journal.

—The trade in mean coal is slack.—Glasgow Times. It's a grate business all the same.—The Drummer. When you flue in how did you know it would soot?—Glasgow Times. Well, we just thought if we couldn't fire it, kindling would.—Peck's Sun.

—"Those pies," explained one boarder to another at a table d'hote, as he endeavored to relish one, "were made for the Saratoga races of 1875, and were secured by the proprietor of this hotel at auction last autumn. They do not require mustard or vinegar."—Hotel Mail.

—A well-known journalist was taking a walk one evening with his wife when she, who is somewhat romantic and an admirer of nature, said: "Oh, Georgy, just notice the moon!" "Can't think of it, my dear, for less than two shillings per line," was the reply.—Chicago Tribune.

—"What makes old Bulger stick out so in front?" inquired one boy of another concerning a rather corpulent, protrusive neighbor. "I know," was the reply, "'cause I heard him tell father last night. He says he's been carryin' a secret a good while, an' he can't hold it much longer." "Shouldn't think he could," rejoined the interrogator; "but what an explosion there will be when it does go off."—Yonkers' Gazette.

—Dumpsey went hunting the other day and took Johnny with him. They saw a rabbit, and Dumpsey drew up and shot. The cap exploded and there was a long splutter, and finally, just as Dumpsey took the gun down, the gun went off. When they got home the folks asked Johnny what luck they had had. "Oh," said Johnny, "papa saw a rabbit, but his gun stammered so he couldn't hit it."—Burlington Free Press.

—There is such a beverage made and known as artillery punch. We are living witnesses to the fact that it is no misnomer. When it attacketh a man it layeth him low and he knoweth not whence he cometh or whither he goeth. Like death, it knoweth no age or station in life, or, in other words, "it is no respecter of persons." It lacks respect. There's where the trouble is. Its work is as quiet as the breathless working of wizard oil. Being so full of the subject we might write a lecture on it, but will forbear.—Columbus (Ga.) Times.

Our Young Folks.

ETHEL'S ADVICE TO THE BABY.

I'm five years old!
A little Dot,
Grandpa says. Indeed I'm not.
That's Baby's name there, crawling on the floor,
While I reach half-way up this door.

I'm five years old!
Baby, just see
How big I am! Look at me!
It's got to be days, an' days, an' days, my dear,
Fore you will ever reach up here.

Now I tell you,
For I know,
You've got to have lots of things—so!
Whoopin'-cough, an' meas'es, Baby dear,
An' somethin' makes your face stick out so queer.

An' scarlet fever,
Oh, an' croup,
An' chicken—chicken—no—can't coop,
Pox, that's it; you must have that, Baby dear,
Very hard, 'fore you can reach up here.

An' teeth comin'—
O Baby!
That'll be the very worst, may be,
An' they'll ache, an' ache, an' you will squeal;
Then Nurscy'll pull 'em out. How'll that feel?

Just awful. But then,
To be big like me,
You must have all these things, you see;
But never mind; you can pull folks' hair,
An' tweak whiskers, an' they don't dare;

Tweak back; 'cause you are
A baby; see?
Oh, an' when Nursey gives you catnip tea,
You can blow it if you're very quick;
I tried it once when I was sick,

An' I laugh now,
At Nursey's face;
I blew that spoonful in every place
Pretty nearly far as I could blow;
But you'll do it better, Baby dear, I know.

Now, 'member, Baby dear,
All I've said;
I'd think it over in your bed
When you have nothin' else to do,
An' study up new things, if I were you,

'Cause each baby does new things
Of her very own;
I did; an' see how big I've grown!
So you must think up things yourself, Baby
dear,
Else you will never reach up here!
—Margaret Sidney, in Wide Awake.

ZENA'S TROUBLES.

"Oh, I fink it is the dreffiest world I never saw!" sighed little Zena Halstead, from her low seat in the bow-window.

Sister Jessie looked up from her sewing with a smile half-amused and half-perplexed, but said nothing.

"Please give me another piece of cake, Jessie," continued the child, after a pause. "You only gave me the littleist, shriveled-up piece no bigger'n my thumb, and 'twon't hurt me—not a mite—for papa said this morning that fruit was healthy; and it's full of fruit—this cake is—don't you see 'tis, Jessie Halstead? P'raps you don't know much as papa does 'bout it."

"When mamma went away to take care of poor sick auntie, she said you must be a good little girl and do as I thought best," said Sister Jessie.

"But, Jessie, I should fink folks could have what was their own, and Cousin Lottie sent me this cake, all myself, 'sides I'm hungry—most starved"—persisted Zena, "and mamma wouldn't want me to starve to def, most likely."

"If you are hungry, you may go down and ask Nora for some bread and milk, or a molasses cooky," said Jessie, quietly.

"O, Jessie" cried the disappointed child, "I should s'pose you'd treat your little sister better'n a tramp, that ain't no relation, but I most know if a tramp should come and ask for something to eat, you'd tell Nora to give him some bread-and-milk, and a cooky. I can't be good no way, else I can have what I want."

"Come here, Zena," said Jessie, laying aside her work. Then she took her little sister on her lap, and pushing back the shining rings of golden hair, kissed the white forehead and red pouting lips. "O Zena," she said, at last, "if you only would believe that Jessie knows best."

"Nora's a great deal bigger'n you," said Zena, "and she lets me do as I like."

"Well," said Jessie, "if you had rather be Nora's little girl, you may, but you must go to her for everything, and do as she says, but if you are my little girl, you must do as I say and not be cross."

"Will I have to eat with Nora?" asked the child.

"Of course, and have your crib moved into her room to sleep," answered Jessie.

Zena was silent for a few minutes; then she made up her mind, as many older people do, to accept the present good without regard for the future, so she said, very low: "I guess I'll be Nora's girl, Jessie."

"Very well," said Jessie, putting her gently down. "You can go to the kitchen and stay. You must not come up here at all, unless Nora sends you, now remember."

"Yes, I'll remember," said the little girl, as she skipped away, and two minutes after she put her small face in at the kitchen door.

"Nora," she said, "I want a great piece of fruit cake—all I can eat."

"Who said you was to have it?" asked Nora, surprised at the unusual demand.

"Nobody did," answered the child, "but you see I'm going to be your little girl now, and do just what I like—you'll let me, won't you? I know you will, so please give me the cake."

"Sure, I'd rather take care of a steam engine," laughed the good-natured Nora, "but here's your cake; sit down there on the sugar-box and eat it."

It was a very small piece, but Zena did not ask for any more, for somehow it did not taste so very nice after all.

"What will I do now?" she asked, when the cake was all gone. "Guess I'll make some little biscuits to play supper with if you'll give me some dough—will you, Nora?"

So Nora gave the little girl some dough and a thimble, and she tried to think she was very happy, for this was one of the forbidden pleasures which she was always longing for, but seldom allowed, for Jessie always said: "Nora must not be bothered."

But now she was soon tired of it, and was very glad when she heard the door-bell ring. She slid down from her little chair very quickly and ran into the hall to see who had come, just as Jessie reached the door for the same purpose.

"O Zena," cried Jessie, "run into the kitchen, quick; your face is all covered with flour."

The little girl started to obey, but changed her mind and slipped in behind the door as Jessie opened it.

"Why, Cousin Alice," cried Jessie, "I am so glad to see you. Come right up stairs. I hope you've come to spend the day."

"No," said Cousin Alice, "I must not stop at all. I am going shopping, and I called to see if you could go with me."

"I shall be delighted to go," said Jessie. "I'll be ready in a minute."

"Can't I go, too, Alice?" asked Zena, coming forward.

"Why, who is this?" asked Alice, as she caught sight of the little girl, with patches of flour on her blushing face.

"Oh, that is Nora's girl," said Jessie. "No, dear, you can't go—of course not!"

"She is a dear little girl, anyway," said Alice, catching Zena up in her arms and kissing her. "Don't you think Nora could spare her an hour?"

"Oh, no," said Jessie, carelessly, "it wouldn't be proper for her to go with us. Now, Alice, I believe I am ready."

Poor Zena was nearly heart-broken. She had hoped until she heard the hall-door closed behind the two girls that Jessie would relent and let her go, too, but when she found that they had really gone, she ran into the parlor and hid her face in the sofa, and shed some very bitter tears.

Finally she concluded it was no use to cry any longer, so she wiped her eyes and went back to the kitchen.

"What can I do now?" she asked of Nora. "I should s'pose you'd try to 'muse me, if I'm your little girl—Jessie always does."

Nora laughed. "Sure, does your highness think I've nothing else to do but 'muse you? Run away, darlin', and don't bother—I'm in a hurry."

"Oh dear me!" sighed the poor child, "nobody loves me, and I don't s'pose Jessie will let me be her little girl any more, and I can't be Nora's little girl no way, for she don't try to make me happy, and I'm afraid I can't stand it much longer."

Just then her little kitten came in and jumped up in her lap as if she wished to comfort her forlorn little mistress, but Zena wouldn't be comforted.

"Kittie," she said, "you needn't s'pose I'm going to love you any more. Nobody loves me, and you won't think it's quite so nice when you grow up big as me, to have folks call you a bother, and nobody want you round in the way nor nothin'. You'll think its a dreffle world, Kittie."

The clock struck twelve. It was time for Zena's usual nap, and she could hardly keep her eyes open, so she took her kitten in her arms and climbed upon to the sofa, and very soon she was fast asleep. Here Jessie found her an hour after, when she returned.

"Poor little Zena," she said, kissing the tear-stained cheek and taking the child in her arms.

Zena opened her blue eyes wide, then threw her arms around Jessie's neck and sobbed out:

"Oh, Jessie, won't you let me be your little girl? If you only will, I won't never be cross no more, s'long as I live, And I shan't never tease for something 'tween meals 'cept bread and-milk and 'lasses cookies, forever and ever! Won't you, please, Jessie, darling?"

Jessie said "Yes," and very soon the little girl was singing to her dolly, as happy as if she had never had any trouble.—Youth's Companion.

Where Tom Found His Manners.

Tom's father was a rich man, and Tom lived in a large house in the country. He had a pony and many other pets, and wore fine clothes. Tom was very proud of all the fine things his father's money bought. He began to think that being rich was better than being good. He grew very rude, and was cross to the servants. Once he kicked Towser; but the dog growled, and Tom was afraid to kick him again.

One day when Tom was playing in the yard he saw a boy standing by the gate. He was ragged and dirty, his hat was torn, and his feet were bare. But he had a pleasant face. In one hand he carried a pail half full of blackberries.

"Go away from here," said Tom, running to the gate. "We are rich, and don't want ragged boys around."

"Please give me a drink," said the boy. "If you are so rich, you can spare me a dipper of water."

"We can't spare you anything," said Tom. "If you don't go away I will set the dogs on you."

The boy laughed and walked away, swinging the tin pail in his hand.

"I think I will get some blackberries, too," said Tom to himself. He went out of the gate into a lane leading to a meadow where there were plenty of berries.

Tom saw some fine large ones growing just over a ditch. He thought he could leap over it very easily. He gave a run and a very big jump. The ditch was wider than he had thought, and, instead of going over it, he came down in the middle of it.

The mud was very thick and soft, and Tom sank down in it to his waist. He was very much frightened and screamed for help. But he had not much hope that help would come, for he was a long way from any house.

He screamed until he was tired. He began to think he would have to spend the night in the ditch, when he heard steps on the grass. Looking up he saw the ragged boy he had driven from the gate.

"Please help me out," said Tom, crying. "I will give you a dollar."

"I don't want the dollar," said the boy, lying down flat on the grass. He held out both his hands to Tom, and drew him out of the ditch.

Tom was covered with mud, his hat was gone, and one shoe was lost in the ditch. He looked very miserable.

"Who is dirty now?" asked the boy.

"I am," said poor Tom; "but I thank you very much for helping me out of the mire. And I am sorry I sent you away from the gate."

"The next time I come, perhaps you will treat me better," said the boy. "I am not rich, but I am stronger than you are, and I think I have better manners."

"I think so, too," said Tom.

The next day, when Tom saw the boy going by the gate, he called him in, showed him his rabbits, doves and little ducks, and gave him a ride on his pony.

"You have good manners now," said the boy.

"Yes," said Tom, "I found them in the ditch."—Our Little Ones.

Religious.

TEACH ME TO LIVE.

Teach me to live! 'Tis easier far to die—
Gently and silently to pass away—
On earth's long night to close the heavy eye,
And waken in the realms of glorious day.

Teach me that harder lesson—how to live,
To serve Thee in the darkest paths of life;
Arm me for conflict now, fresh vigor give,
And make me more than conqueror in the strife.

Teach me to live! Thy purpose to fulfill;
Bright for Thy glory let my taper shine;
Each day renew, remold this stubborn will;
Closer round Thee my heart's affections twine.

Teach me to live for self and sin no more,
But use the time remaining to me yet;
Not mine own pleasure seeking as before,
Wasting no precious hours in vain regret.

Teach me to live! No idler let me be,
But in Thy service hand and [illegible]
Prepared to do Thy bidding cheerfully;
Be this my highest and my holiest joy.

Teach me to live! My daily cross to bear,
Nor murmur though I bend beneath its load;
Only be with me. Let me feel Thee near;
Thy smile sheds gladness on the darkest road.

Teach me to live! and find my life in Thee,
Looking from earth and earthly things away;
Let me not falter, but untiringly
Press on and gain new strength and power
each day.

Teach me to live! With kindly words for all;
Wearing no cold, repulsive brow of gloom;
Waiting with cheerful patience, till Thy call
Summons my spirit to her Heavenly home.
—Dublin Tract.

LOSING FAITH IN GOD.

* * * Can we, in fact, conceive of any calamity that could befall a rational man in this life greater than the blotting out of all faith, all trust, all hope in God? What would compensate a soul even here for such a loss? When the loss is total and irretrievable, what is left? No doubt it was both total and irretrievable in the case of Judas Iscariot; and to him there was nothing left but despair and a fearful doom. But in the case of the philosophical and literary skeptics of our unbelieving age, the strong probability is that, notwithstanding their professions, they are not quite as far from God as they aver. There is a lingering of the faith of childhood and of godly ancestry left which still supports and cheers the soul in the dismal outlook of the eternal future.

Still, the fact can not be denied, for it is a matter of record, that not a few highly-cultivated minds of our day have argued themselves into the conviction that there is no God in the universe and no life for man beyond the present world. They have not only lost all faith in God and immortality, but some of them, like Harriet Martineau, have reasoned themselves into the belief that this loss of faith is a great gain, a ground of satisfaction while living, and of heartfelt joy at the prospect of death. When near the terminus of her long life Harriet Martineau did not hesitate to say: "I feel no solicitude about a parting which will bring no pain. I am frankly satisfied to have done with life. I have had a noble share of it, and I desire no more. I neither wish to live longer here, nor to find life again elsewhere. It seems to me simply absurd to expect it." This tone of serene and self-complacent exultation in the prospect of annihilation, expressed by the aged atheist, is very far from being the experience of all who have renounced the God and the Heaven of the Bible. Far more natural, and probably sincere, too, is the estimate which another disciple of the new philosophy places upon this total loss of faith in God. He says: "The theory of Theism in any shape is, scientifically considered, superfluous; and I am not ashamed to confess that, with this virtual negation of God, the universe, to me, has lost its soul of loveliness; and when at times I think, as think at times I must, of the appalling contrast between the hallowed glory of that creed which once was mine and the lonely mystery of existence as I now find it, I shall ever feel it impossible to avoid the sharpest pang of which my nature is susceptible." This is but the creed of the heart protesting against its greatest loss.

When we read the histories of the great and good men, who, through all past ages, have lived and died with an unshaken faith in God, and a blessed hope of immortal life through Christ, it seems, indeed, a strange hallucination that leads so many educated people of our day to relinquish these exalted hopes for the unproved negations of what is at best mere speculation and conjecture. Well may this writer speak of atheism as a "superfluous theory." Impossible of proof in the very nature of the case, as John Foster and Thomas Chalmers long ago showed, it can never be anything better than a "superfluous theory," which solves no mystery, explains no existing facts, and brings no real satisfaction to a candid logical mind. Why, then, should an intelligent man sacrifice the historic and hallowed glory of the Christian creed, whose first postulate is: "Ye believe in God, believe also in Me," for the empty husks of this unsatisfying and superfluous dogma of no God and no immortality? It is alleged by the leaders of modern free-thought that Christianity has been discredited, that its facts and doctrines are not proved. What has discredited it? Have the mere theories and speculations of philosophy discredited it? Certainly there are no facts known to atheism or agnosticism, which have disproved the existence of God, or the reasonableness of a life to come. With all our advance in science, these two old doctrines of the Christian creed stand to-day where they have always stood—every principle of man's constitution attesting them, all the phenomena and analogies of the universe suggesting and confirming them, every page of inspired history in the Bible affirming them, and not a single fact known to science or philosophy discrediting them. In this state of the argument: is it the wise man, or is it the foolish, who loses faith in God, abandons the Bible and takes refuge in atheism? Where is the logic of such a surrender to atheism?

For what, then, should a man be willing to sell his birthright of faith in God? Atheism certainly has nothing adequate to pay for it. Nor has any other form of speculative unbelief. Said the eminent English scientist, Sir Humphrey Davy, when near the close of his brilliant career: "I envy no quality of mind or intellect in others, nor genius, power, wit, or fancy; but if I could choose what would be most delightful, and I believe most useful to me, I should prefer a firm religious belief to every other blessing; for it makes life a discipline of goodness, and creates new hopes when all earthly hopes vanish."

The eminent scholar and statesman of France, M. Guizot, a little before his death, said: "I have tried all the forms of conflicting opinions, and earnestly examined various systems of religious belief and unbelief. But I am content to come back to that simple faith in God, as the true rest of the soul, which I first learned in childhood from the lips of my devout Christian mother." The German poet, Heine, who, in his earlier life, had wandered far away into the dreary realms of unbelief, was at last brought back by the simple reading of the Sacred Book. "With right," says he, "is this named the Holy Scripture. He who has lost his God can find Him again in this Book, and he who has never known Him is here struck by the breath of the Divine Word. Yes, I have returned back to God, like the prodigal son, after having kept the swine with the Hegelians for some time. Was it my wretchedness that drove me back? Perhaps a less miserable reason—a sort of Heavenly home-sickness fell upon me and drove me forth." Doubtless the best, and perhaps the only antidote for the loss of faith in God, is the reading of the book of God. Try it, ye who doubt.—Chicago Interior.

Fretting.

There is one sin which seems to me is everywhere and by everybody underestimated, and quite too much overlooked in valuation of character. It is the sin of fretting. It is as common as air, as speech; so common that unless it rises above its actual monotone, we do not even observe it. Watch any ordinary coming together of people, and see how many minutes it will be before somebody frets: that is, makes more or less complaining statement of something or other, which most probably every one in the room, or on the stage, or the car, or the street corner, as it may be, knew before, and which most probably nobody can help. Why say anything about it? It is cold, it is wet, it is dry; somebody has broken an appointment, ill cooked a meal; stupidity or bad faith somewhere has resulted in discomfort. There are always plenty of things to fret about. It is simply astonishing how much annoyance and discomfort may be found in the course of every day's living, even at the simplest, if one only keeps a sharp eye on that side of things. Even Holy Writ says we are born to trouble as the sparks fly upward. But even to the sparks flying upward, in the blackest of smoke, there is a blue sky above, and the less time they waste on the road the sooner they will reach it. Fretting is all time wasted on the road.—Helen Hunt.

Ministerial Cleanliness.

In Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri in thirty years there have been but ten clergymen imprisoned for any crime whatever; that is to say, but one clergyman to each State in a period of twenty years. In the past five years but two in the seven States. Even the most hopeful friend of the clergy would not have dared to hope for such a clean statement. The facts came to light in this way. The Free-thinkers have long been full of insinuations that the clergy was rotten and must be put down, and have left no influence fair or foul unexerted to create a prejudice against the clergy. Their last and basest move was to publish in one of their journals that in these seven States, between May, 1876 and May, 1881, four hundred and seventy-seven ministers of the Gospel had been guilty of criminal acts. This led a Christain gentleman to correspond extensively with all the penal institutions in these seven large States, in which the charge was made, and the facts based upon the returns were as stated in the opening of this paragraph. But no Free-thinker will ever correct his libel, but if anything intensify his falsehood as the truth becomes more unwelcome.—Golden Rule.

Choice Extracts.

—Obedience always tends to strengthen faith.

—Happy those who, fearing God, fear nothing else.—Fenelon.

—We must do what we can for our neighbor, and leave the future to God. —Lacordaire.

—I wonder many times that ever a child of God should have a sad heart, considering what the Lord is preparing for him.—Rutherford.

—There is no nobler exercise of the human mind than belief in the truth, of the human heart than restful confidence in Him who is "the Way, the Truth and the Life."—Golden Rule.

—While it is well to be thankful one day in the year for blessings received, it is better to be continually grateful for the mercies daily bestowed upon us.

—Do not so desire to follow Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane as to refuse to follow him in the carpenter's shop, if Providence now calls you to it.—Fletcher.

—God's presence is enough for toil and enough for rest. If He journey with us by the way, He will abide with us when night-fall comes; and His companionship will be sufficient for direction on the road, and for solace and safety in the evening camp.—Maclaren.

—Many persons are skeptical as to the advantages of the Sabbath in a secular aspect. Here is a fact from Belfast, Ireland. The Omnibus Company resolved to discontinue running their vehicles on Sunday. They did this, and the result was that they saved their shareholders twelve and one-half per cent. in the outlay of money for horses during the first twelve months. The Divine law has reference to horses as well as men, and experience shows that the need of one day's rest in seven is necessary for the beast of burden. How much greater, therefore, is the need for man, whose physical and mental energies render the day of rest doubly necessary; yea, imperative?—Baptist Weekly.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGON, KY. MAR. 28, 1883

ADVERTISING RATES.

I Column	1 year	$80
1 "	½ "	40
1 "	¼ "	20
½ "	1 "	20
¼ "	1 "	10
"	½ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however to the action of the democratic party.

THE pneumonia has been very prevalent as well as quite fatal this winter.

THE pension commissioner expects to expend eighty-five million dollars in the payment of pensions this year.

AN effort is being made about Lexington to organize a boom for W. C. P. Breckinridge for United States Senator.

SOME of the counties have made nominations for representatives, while in other counties the contest waxeth warm.

IT is rumored in Washington that Secretary Fogler is slightly demented, but his friends stoutly deny the charge.

THERE is another a bad smell about the star route prosecution. It is said that the district attorney and his subordinates are only fleecing the government out of big fees.

A COUPLE of negroes who were broken out with the small-pox having gone into Hopkinsville on the cars, all trains are now stopped and investigated before entering the city.

QUEEN VICTORIA in descending the stairs at Windsor Castle one day last week, slipped and sprained her knee badly. The people became very anxious about her, and business was in a manner suspended for a day or so.

Senator Williams is stirring around in the State considerably, and he tells with pride that he cultivated and sold one hundred acres of tobacco, last year, at an average of $24 per 100 pounds. It strikes us that the General is a greater success as a farmer than as a senator.

IT is estimated by competent authorities that at least 200,000 barrels of whisky will be exported to Bermunda to avoid immediate payment of the tax now due. It can go abroad free, and return on the same vessel remain in custom warehouses for a year before the tax is collected.—Courier-Journal.

Senator Riddleberger is of the opinion that the debt issue in Virginia is closed as a judicial question, but remains open as a political question, and will continue to divide parties in the Old Dominion until the process of funding all classes of all State securities into the new Riddleberger bonds is completed.

IT looks somewhat like Grant and Pendleton counties are going to have a political wool-pulling over the office of state senator. Grant claims that she is entitled to the office during the approaching term, and has two or three citizens with senatorial bees in their bonnets, while Pendleton has said senator Clark must be returned.

TOM BUFORD talked in Jeffersonville, Ind., to a Louisville Commercial reporter about $50,000 of his the Court of Appeals has, and says they sent him to the asylum to keep from giving it up. He said: "As soon as Judge Jackson's successor qualifies, I will feel free to go back to Kentucky, and if any officer dares lay hands on me I'll settle his hash with a dose of buck shot."

JUDGE JACKSON, of Louisville, made a ruling in his court the other day, which is sanctioned by reason, and which should not be departed from. In organizing a jury he ruled that a man's having read an account of the case in a newspaper was not sufficient cause for precluding him from the jury. It is a fact that the men best calculated for jurors are those who read and keep posted in what is going on in the country, and excluding them from the jury-box is placing a premium on ignorance. A man, conscientious and mindful of his oath, will make a verdict according to the law and evidence in the case and not according to what he reads in a newspaper, and unless he can do this he is not fit for a juror, no matter whether he ever heard of a newspaper.

THE greatest paper published in this country is the New York Herald. Its edition a few Sundays since contained 28 pages, containing 4,622,000 letters. Ten tons of metal had to be melted to stereotype this edition of the paper. It took seven double perfecting presses to print the paper and have it ready for the mails. When the presses were in operation 2,338 perfect eight-page papers were printed a minute. The news men and carriers took from the Herald office that morning over 20 tons of papers.

SOMETHING of a sensation has been created among parents in Lynchburg, Virginia, by a recent occurrence and the declaration of a colored girl growing out of it. The occurrence was the sudden sickening of a child, the baby of a leading merchant, which was occasioned by a dose of laudanum administered by the nurse girl to quiet its restlessness and put it to sleep. The woman being taxed with the act did not deny it, and stated that the other nurses of the city were in the habit of doing the same thing; that they all had laudanum bottles.

WHEN it comes to the question of working for the party, Hon. Thomas L. Jones completely shuts his opponents out in the race for governor. Col. Jones has always responded to the calls of his party, and his voice has been heard in all parts of the state, and especially in doubtful districts, when a canvass was on. In times of need the party has never hesitated to call upon him, and in view of his past sevices and his qualifications, the democratic party of the state would only be rewarding a faithful servant by elevating him to the office of chief magistrate of state.

—Two Eddyville brothers aged respectively 12 and 14 years fought, and one killed the other.

—Mr. Green, a Barren county farmer has successfully grown rice in that county, and will raise another crop this year.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Normansville.

DIED—On Friday, March 16th, little Nannie Lee, infant daughter of Mr. Al Hamilton.

On Monday the 19th inst. Mrs. Emily Grimsley.

On Thursday the 22nd inst., of typhoid fever, Mr. John Riley. On the day following his funeral was preached by Rev. J. A. Kirtley at Big Bone church, where he had long been a faithful and consistent member.

Miss Anna Lee Johnson is in very delicate health.

Born— To Wm. Campbell and wife a girl.

Hebron.

Will Davis is preparing to build an addition to his house in Hebron.

The dance given at James Wilson's last week was well attended.

Miss Fannie Corbin, of Bellevue, is visiting friends and relatives at Hebron this week.

Walter Goodridge was thrown from a horse last week and considerably bruised.

Mr. Henry Crigler is able to be out again after being confined to his room most of the winter with rheumatism.

Miss Bell Scott was visiting at Michael Clore's Saturday and Sunday.

The best scene in the entertainment was when Reuben Quick crossed the stage.

The stockholders of the Hebron Hall say if those who were prying off window shutters to see the entertainment, will come to them next time a few days before the show, they will give them money to go inside and see it.

Quillersville.

Quillersville is still here.

Some plowing has been done.

Mrs. Will Roberts, who has been very sick, is about again.

Ben Records and wife rejoice because it is a boy. James Carroll and wife also have a fine boy. Ed Northcutt is getting to be grandpa right fast.

John Seniour has moved down to the log hut on the hill side. If he keeps grading, the house will be on level ground in the course of 175 years.

There was a party at James Hughe's, colored, last Saturday night week. Parties who had been at the chapel went up to see the negroes dance, and got into a row when pistols and knives came upon the scene. One pistol ball was shot through the door, but nobody was hurt. At the trial at Beaver the other day, occasioned by the row, Tom Ryan was fined $25 and ten days in jail. Dan Cummings, one of the boys who was in the fuss, has left the country.

Francesville.

Spring work has begun here in earnest, notwithstanding the continued cold weather. The farmers are breaking up their ground and making preparations for planting as soon as it becomes seasonable. Some few have planted potatoes and garden, but they are exceptions. Considerable tobacco will be planted in this vicinity this spring, and we hope it may be a good crop, as it is a great luxury with us.

F. L. Gordon and Billy Hayes were over in Indiana, a few days last week, buying up cattle. They purchased quite a drove on that trip.

Henderson & Beall, of Hebron, are building Allen Goodridge's house. They began work last Monday week, and on the Thursday following they had one room completed, and Mr. Goodridge was living in it. Jack and Dave are lightning on a greased pole.

Ground-hog weather is making it late for greens and sturgeon. We generally have a mess about easter times, but this year we failed to get any even for desert.

It is rumored that our stone mason is going to give up his trade this summer and go in partnership with Dr. Hayes, with a view to peddling a balsam the Dr. makes for sheep. Wilyum has prepared a lecture on the effects of the late flood with which to draw a crowd whenever he makes a stand. He will also continue to solicit donations for the flood sufferers at Francisville. We hope to be remembered by him.

Mr. Joe Graves is putting a new fence around his yard and intends remodeling his house this spring.

Mrs. Catherine Huron, of this place, has returned home from Indianapolis, where she has been spending the winter with her sister.

Mr. Scothorn is going to rebuild this spring on the site where his house was burned last year.

Petersburg.

Miss Lou Alden is visiting her sister Mrs. Fannie King, at Milton, Ky.

Mr. Henry North returned home from the Sunny South last Tuesday.

Miss Nora Jackson spent last Saturday and Sunday with friends in Aurora.

Lou Riddell is driving a team for J. F. Grant as Morgan Davis has quit to take charge of J. D. Norris' trotting horses.

Mr. A. Dean who moved with his family to Fayette county, this State, about a year ago, has moved back and rented part of Col. Wm. Appletons farm. We welcome you back in our midst, Mr. Dean.

The social given by the Sons of Temperance last Friday night was a grand success and enjoyed by all present. Elder Taylor led off in Prayer, after which there was singing by the choir and speeches by Bros. Taylor, Botts and others. Then came the supper which was hard to beat, and the ladies deserve much praise for the noble work they did in getting up the supper.

Levi Lemons sold his fat cow last week, and says he regretted to part with her so much that he sent her out to the stock yards in an express wagon. Levi's sympathy is great for anything he owns. It would take two cows like her to make a shadow.

Mr. Passons who moved to Illinois last August, contemplates returning to Boone on the account of health. His many friends are sorry to learn that the health of his family is so poor that it causes their return But what is Illinois' loss is our gain—or loss

F. M. Cox and Alonzo Green invoiced the stock of goods in Mr. Green's grocery last Friday.

Mr. S. G. Botts, our genial superintendent of the cemetery, with a force of 7 or 8 men has been at work cleaning the grounds for the past week. They have given them quite a different appearance. Mr. Botts is a man who likes to see every thing look clean that he has anything to do with, and will have it clean and nice if he undertakes it, even if he gets no pay as in this case

Rabbit Hash.

Potato planting has begun by our most enterprising farmers.

The family of James N. Stephens celebrated his 83d birth day the 14th inst.

The court of B. H. Ryle convened on the 23d with a full docket.

Messrs J. A. Wilson and C. G. Riddell are just from Cincinnati with a bran new lot of groceries, and in a day or two will have their store in running order.

S. Meek is having a new store house put up instead of having the old one repaired, as on examination it was too much damaged.

Mrs. Bell has a very severe attack of pneumonia, in consequence of which Mr. Bell was compelled to dismiss his school.

Mrs. Elizabeth Merrick has been seriously sick, but is improving at this time.

Constable Moody, of Bellevue, has had occasion to visit these parts many times lately, owing to the briskness of court business.

Milton and Fillmore Ryle have just gone to house-keeping—each with his new frau.

Rev. Hudson, of Louisville, preached at the Baptist church last Saturday and Sunday. Messrs J. Q. A. Stephens and J. P. Craig were elected deacons and will be ordained the 3d Saturday in April. It is the wish of the church to have brethren from the churches of Big Bone, Bellevue, Burlington, Bullettsburg and Sand Run present on that day.

Last Saturday Mrs. Mahala Happins was sitting in her chair quietly smoking her pipe, when she was attacked with paralysis and died in an hour and a half from the time she was taken. She was in the 63d year of her age. A large concourse of people followed her remains to the cemetery at the M. E. Church Sunday afternoon, which was evidence of the high regard in which she was held by her neighbors.

It seems to be an injudicious thing for a paper to have two correspondents from the same neighborhood, as this is the case with the Rising Sun Local. The two young men reside in these parts and the trouble grew so serious that a fight was the result. A trial will be held in regard to the affair—further particulars next week.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION
OF THE

Farmers & Traders National Bank AT COVINGTON,

In the State of Kentucky, at the close of business, March 13, 1883.

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts		$547,836 36
Overdrafts		237 29
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
Due from approved reserve agents		32,503 53
Due from other National banks	6,752 29
Due from State banks and bankers	2,856 39	9,608 68
Real estate, furniture and fixtures		4,661 66
Current expenses and taxes paid		2,076 59
Premiums paid		9,000 00
Checks and other cash items		1,167 11
Bills of other Banks		7,560 00
Fractional paper currency, nickels and pennies		156 51
Specie		7,310 00
Legal tender notes		17,000 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)		2,250 00
Total		$691,367 73

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in		$300,000 00
Surplus fund		1,200 00
Undivided profits		16,670 14
National bank notes outstanding		45,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check	314,454 95
Due to other National Banks	10,891 21
Due to State Banks and bankers	3,151 43	328,497 59
Total		$691,367 73

State of Kentucky, county of Kenton, ss: I, John L. Sandford, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. L. SANDFORD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th day of March, 1883.

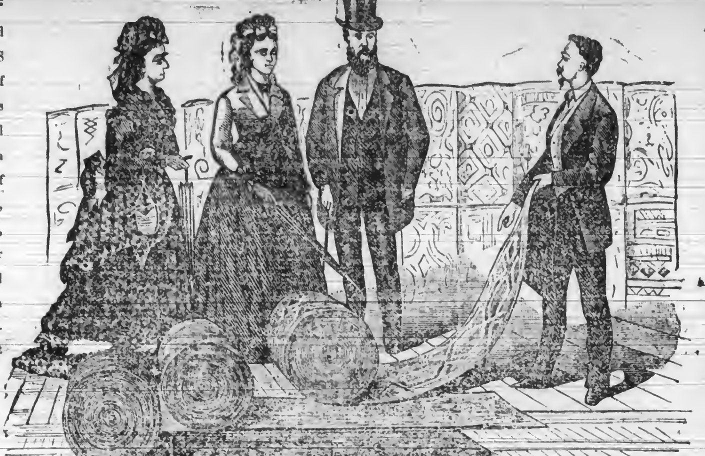
RICHARD H GRAY, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
L. C. STEPHENS,
J. H. MERSMAN,
E. J. HICKEY, } Directors.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON COLOGNE
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.
New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.



COLTER'S FOR CARPETS

☞ We now show the largest and most varied stock of CARPETS and OIL CLOTHS in this section of the country, including choice styles in Best Tapestry Brussels, and all grades. Also, a full line of Ingrain All Wool Carpets, many styles of Wool Mixed Ingrain, and Cottage, Hemp and Home-made Rag Carpets, and Mattings. In all, we have over One Hundred Pieces. Floor Oil Cloth of all grades and widths. In this [illegible] show some of the handsomest goods ever offered for sale, at prices to suit all.

We have just opened up

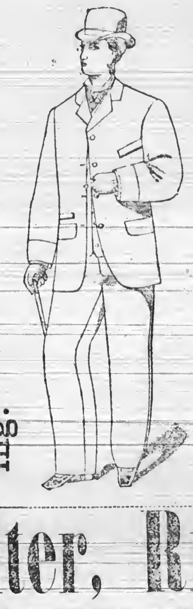
1000 Bolts of Wall Paper,

All Choice New Styles in Best Gilts, White and Brown. Also, complete line of

WINDOW SHADES AND LACE CURTAINS.

We Are Proud of Our Ready Made Clothing Trade.

Over two Hundred Suits sold in one week, at $2,50 to $21 a suit. Over three thousand whole suits already received and two large bankrupt lots arriving.



If you want a Suit of Clothing, no matter how fine, or how cheap, always come to our Mammoth Store, as we are constantly receiving Clothing bought at a snap, and we only add a small profit, and please our customers; by so doing we believe is the reason our sales are daily increasing Remember, we keep a full line of Goods, viz:

BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS,

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, DRESS GOODS and SILKS,

FULL LINE DOMESTICS, ALL KINDS, ALWAYS ON ☞.

And at prices less than any City will sell them.

Very Respectfully,

Wm. COLTER,

(And no partner to share the small profits with,)

Rising Sun. - Indiana.

N. B.—See future advertisements for our Millinery Department, which we promise to make one of the Grandest Showings, that any one would be pleased to see.

Wm. Colter, Rising Sun, Ind.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat, adjoining the lands of Allred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W NEEL, feb 28-3m Burlington, Ky.

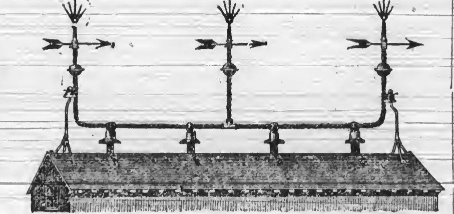
Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonahtan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.



Chambers' Lightning Protecti'n COMPANY.

Having purchased the right to put up the rods of the above company in Boone and Kenton counties, we solicit your patronage. These rods are constructed on the correct principle; it takes a less number of feet to rod a building and are consequently much the cheaper rods, besides they are ornamental and are the only rods that afford complete protection from lightning and are less liable to get out of repair. Their popularity is attested by the number now in use in Boone and Kenton. Those having buildings to rod will find it to their interest to have us give them a call and fix figuers.

W. E. PIPER, CHAS. A. FOWLER.
Burlington, Ky.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO. [illegible]

MOODY'S Boarding School For Teaching all Branches of Dress Cutting, and every garment worn by lady or child; also, SEWING, TRIMMING, DRAPING, and all the FINISHING PARTS of DRESSMAKING! Position Guaranteed if Desired. LADIES living out of the city BOARDED FREE while learning. Address: D. W. MOODY & CO. 31 West Ninth St. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price, selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

TRADE MARK,

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN. Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia. AGENTS WANTED. Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever use in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. L. McCAMIC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '18.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines. 2 to 100 Horse Power.

Established 1840

Reliable, Durable and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Local News.

Next Monday is County Court.

The "sasafac" peddler has made his appearance.

Bad colds have almost been an epidemic this month.

Mrs. R. C. Green lost a splendid milch cow one day last week.

Born—To Morgan Tolin and wife, on the 21st inst. a 12½ pound boy.

R. A. Brady's family have moved back to the farm on Middle Creek.

Michigan Salt, the finest in the world at Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Mrs. W. H. Pope, after a little over a week's illness, died Monday about noon.

Mr. John H. Smith had a very fine fresh milch cow gored to death the other day.

Friday is the last day for bringing suits for the next term of the Boone Circuit Court.

Reading the riot act to the groundhog last week brought the old fellow to his senses some.

The interest of the Commonwealth called County Attorney Tolin to Beaver again last Friday.

The early train for Cincinnati is now dew at Erlanger at 6:35 a. m. instead of 7:15 as heretofore.

Hall's Hair Renewer furnishes "the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of Hebron is their agent.

In explanation of the reason why Sidman left him, Bro. Dunlap says it was because they did not agree in their religious views.

There is a man in this town, 60 years old, who has lived in the county for at least forty years and never saw Cincinnati or Covington.

Rev. C. C. Conner commenced a series of meetings in the Universalist church here, last Friday evening, continuing over Sunday.

Leslie Combs will make application at the next term of the County Court for license to keep hotel and sell whisky at Big Bone Springs.

There were three confessions under Mr. Dunlap's preaching during his last visit here. Dr. Smith, Miss Lottie Reed and Mrs. W. E. Piper.

The proprietor of the Boone House gave the young people of the burg a party last Wednesday night. It was enjoyed by all who attended.

Mrs. Frances Lipp, who is in the 87th year of her age, was adjudged an imbecile, last Thursday, and Lewis Aylor was appointed committee for her.

Rev. C. C. Conner will preach in the Universalist Church at this place on the 1st Sunday in April. Subject in morning—"The Inevitable, Present and Future."

Do your own painting. Tebbs Bros. Lawrenceburg, Ind., have the cottage paint, warrented the best in use. One dollar and twenty-five cents per gallon. Try it.

Our patrons will please pardon our short comings this week, as our office will be topsy-turvy, caused by moving into the new building opposite Mr. Cowen's.

The youngsters of his neighborhood assembled at Mr. Alfred Cason's house a few nights since, where the hours were spent pleasantly tripping the light fantastic.

We hear that a couple of Rabbit Hash correspondents for the Rising Sun Local had a very unpleasant meeting the other day, occasioned by their contributions to the Local.

There is a notice on the court-house door that an application will be made next county court day for "licens to keep hotell with the privilege of retailing spiritus vinus and malt lickers."

The number of moves in which Burlington's population has figured so extensively this month, has produced a decrease in the number of inhabitants. Four vacant houses testify unto that fact.

As I am about to retire from the Hotel business, all those indebted to me are requested to call and settle on or before the 15th of April, or I wil, place their accounts in the hands of an officer for collection. Thanking my friends for their patronage, I am respectfully,

E. B. H. OWENS.

The uniform quietude of Constance was materially disturbed one day last week, by a hostile meeting of some of her citizens. Both sexes figured in the unfortunate affair. Wm. Wahl and Ered Zimmer tried conclusions, and Fred received an ugly wound on one side of his head and face. No further particulars.

Last Sunday, about ten a. m., a gentleman rode up to the Boone House, and said, pointing to the Central Hotel, "that house is on fire." There was no person on the street when the fire was discovered, but the cry of fire soon had a crowd out. Our junior was the first to reach the roof, and with two or three buckets of water he extinguished the flames which, in a few moments, would have been beyond control. It is thought that a shaving used in kindling a fire came out at the chimney and started the blaze.

The Steamer Will Kyle passed down last Saturday night week, and with her whistle, which has a very peculiar tone, frightened some of those living on the river nearly out of their wits. The people of the Petersburg country were certain Gabriel was blowing his horn as a warning of a final winding up of earthly affairs. At Bellevue one lady was very badly frightened, while Tony Rue, thinking the sound proceeded from his cistern, flounced out of bed and made a close examination to see what was in the cistern. Some darkies spent Sunday searching the country for the track of the supposed animal that made the racket, and Henry Jarrell, it is said, can not be convinced the cause of the rumpus was not flying through the air.

It becomes our painful task this week to record the death of Mr. John C. Riley, which occurred at his residence near Union on the afternoon of the 24th inst. Mr. Riley had out lived the time allotted to man some year or two, and had at all times during life been a remarkably healthy man. He was and had been for many years a member of the Big Bone Baptist church, of which society he was a leading member, and the community in which he lived and was best known regarded him in the light of a most worthy gentleman in whose integrity all had unbounded confidence. In the death of Mr. Riley the county loses an honorable and upright citizen; the church, a faithful and useful member; the family a kind and indulgent father.

Mr. C. McKinny is now in the county delivering D. J. Lake & Co's. atlas of Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties for which many of our citizens subscribed last year. We have a copy of the atlas before us, and find it to be exactly what the canvassing agents represented it would be. and just such a book as will always be very interesting for reference as regards the locations of towns, roads, farms and residences, &c., in the county. Besides a map of the three counties above named, it contains a map of the State of Kentucky and Tennessee, a map of the United States and a map of the eastern and western hemispheres. To appreciate the work it is only necessary to look through it, when its many advantages at once becomes apparent. This atlas is the first thing of the kind ever introduced in this county and we are confident that iti completness, and the neat style in which it is gotten up will be appreciated by those who subscribed for it. There is also much general information to be obtained by consulting this atlas; besides it contains many features to recomend it to the public. It will be a great accommodation to Mr. McKinny if those who subscribed for the work will be prepared to receive it so soon as he calls upon them.

Last Wednesday, in company with Mr. William Walton, Everett Walton and W. E. Vest, the County Surveyor, we made a flying visit to Bellevue, which place in the last few years has been metamorphosed into one of the leading business towns of the county. In fact the resident merchants claim that in their line she will now size-up with any place in Boone county. Be that as it may, these gentlemen all reported a brisk business. Mr. Kite was putting in new invoice of goods, and was as busy as a bee in May. Mr. Kelley was receiving some mammoth hams which his brother Zack brought up from East Bend, anyone of which was large euough to furnish the town meat for one meal. Mr. Corbin was making out a long memorandum preparatory to going to the city that night. In fact they all seemed full of business anticipations.

While in the town we met our old friend T. Jeff Akin, a man that has been honored with every trust within the gift of his district, and whose head has become silvered over while in the service of his people. He is now an occasional assistant in one of the stores, and he smiles as blandly from behind the counter as in days of yore.

Of course we met that genial fellow, Harry Botts, who, since his location in Bellevue has become quite a burley man and has a great propensity for dealing in the weed.

Among other old friends we seldom meet, were Boone Rogers, Hogan Presser and John Clore. Boone, thinking we are to have another installment of winter, was in search of somebody that had coal to sell.

On our return home we stopped with Mr. William Walton for dinner, and his estimable wife, who is an excellent cook, served up for our quartette and the rest of their family a good dinner which all hands did ample justice, and although in a great hurry to get home, we found it difficult to take our leave of such good company, and the sun was setting in the far West before we reached Burlington.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on businss or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Hogan Presser was here Monday.

Judge O. F. Roberts, of Aurora, was in town Monday.

John Sleet, the Beaver merchant, was in town Monday.

J. K. Armstrong, of Covington, was in town Thursday.

Samuel Rich, of Kenton county, was in town last Thursday.

Mrs. W. F. McKim is visiting her father's in Kenton county.

Mr. ——Carpenter, of Covington, was in town Friday.

Mrs. Gen. Wallace has been quite sick for several days.

Old Uncle Lystra Aylor has been seriously ill for some days.

Wood Maxwell has been very sick for the past week.

Geo. Sleet and Sam C. Johson were in town Monday. Both as handsome as usual.

Cyrus Kelley, a thriving merchant of Bellevue, was in town Monday.

Judge N. E. Hawes is yet confined to his room. The Judge has been in ill health for some time, but with the coming of settled weather we hope to see him out again.

Seeds! Seeds!! Seeds!!! we have a large variety of all kinds, best seeds by the peck or quart. Red and white onion sets, clover and timothy, at Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

One Fool Among Many,

Wrecked by his Untempered Ambition —A Lighthouse on the Shoals.

"I ought to have stopped five years before I did; but I thought it wouldn't amount to anything, so I kept on. I was a fool, of course—but who isn't, when ambition and the chance of making money spurs him on? I only hope I shall get well enough to digest another square meal some time without a rebellion in my stomach."

The speaker was one of the best known civil engineers and mining experts in this country; hardy by nature as a buffalo, but broken down by hard study and the marciless lashing administered to his mind and body by his own hand during the earlier part of his career. At fifty he is prematurely gray, bent in form and dispirited. Dyspepsia did it—Dyspepsia, the self-inflicted curse of the American in every department of toil.

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr. charles H. Watts, of West Somera, Putnam county, N. Y. and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Tried everything. At last gave PARKER'S GINGER TONIC a chance to show what it could do for It proved its ability by curing me. I recomend it to all who are suffering from this dreadful di- Mr. G. R. Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y. certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statment.

Gloom, despondency, hoplessness, disgust with all labor, sleeplessness, horrid dreams to render bed-time like the hour of execution to a criminal—these are some of dyspepsia's foot-prints. The Dyspeptic knows what Corleridge meant when he said: "Night is hell." PARKER'S GINGER TONIC cures Dyspepsia, purifies the Blood, disperses Rheumatism and all chronic ailments. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. HISCOX & Co., New York

FOUND.

Near Bellevue, Boone county, Ky., since the flood a lot of Stone Mason's tools. The owner can have the same by proving property and paying charges.

W. W. GRANT, JAS. SMITH,
Bellevue, Boone county, Ky.

Attention Farmers.

Charlie, my well known stallion will be on exhibition in Burlington, on Monday, April 2nd, 1883. I will on that day award a good saddle and bridle to the best colt of his get for general purposes. Look out for Charlie for he is a paragon of horseflesh. Ed Golaway, Florence, Ky.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE."
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world. JAMES MAYNARD."
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles, $5.

ALBERT M. ACRA,
BURLINGTON, KY.
HARNESS MAKER
—AND—
DEALER IN SADDLES.

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

Give me a call. feb-14-83
—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of John A. Marshall, deceased, will present them properly proven for payment as soon as possible, but before presenting the claim to me they must exhibit it to my attorney, F. Riddell, for examination.

HENRY ROSS, Adm'r.

STOCKHOLDERS, NOTICE

On the first Saturday in April, the 7th day, an election will be held at Dudley Rouse's store, in Burlington, for the purpose of electing for the ensuing year, a president and four directors for the Burlington and Florence turnpike road.

FEELDEN ROUSE, President.

STOCKHOLDERS, NOTICE

On the first Monday in April an election will be held in the towns of Burlington and Petersburg for the election of five directors for the Burlington and Petersburg turnpike road, to serve the ensuing year.

N. S. WALTON, Sect'y.

NOTICE.

The stockholders of the Woolper Turnpike Company are hereby notified that an election will be held in Burlington on Monday April 2nd, 1883 for the purpose of electing five directors.

J. FRANK GRANT, Sect'y.

FOR SALE.

GOLD WATCH.—By virtue of an order of the Boone Circuit Court, I will, as administrator of the estate of John Crosby, deceased, sell for cash to the highest bidder, on April 24, 1883, at the Court-house door in Burlington, between the hours of 12 m. and 1 p. m., a gold watch, the property of Jno. Crosby, deceased.

F. L. GORDON, Admr.

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to
GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office opposite the Boone House.

L. C. NORMAN. R. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J. P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared far. dec. 20-1y

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LOGAN GAINES, J. C. RILEY,
JNO. M. MOODY.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM, HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE,
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar2-4 J. W. Talbott.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
ROUSE.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, Jeans, Flannels, Nubias, Scarfs,
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at DUDLEY ROUSE'S.

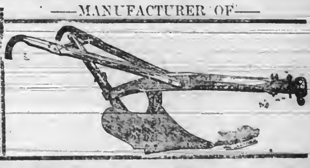
DRUGS & MEDICINES
I have [illegible] up my stock of
PURE DRUGS, MEDICINES & PATENT MEDICINES.
I also have Dye Stuffs, Sewing Machine Oil, Spices, Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powder in bulk so I can sell any quantity. I will add in a short time a nice line of
Stationary, Fancy and Toilet
—Articles. Also have a fine line of—
CIGARS AND TOBACCO.
I will keep Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical use, but will sell only on the Prescription of a Physician. Asking your patronage I remain,
Respectfully, S. C. BUCHANAN, Petersburg, Ky.
Third door from the corner, in Mr. Brady's building.
N. B.—PRESCRIPTIONS, FAMILY AND PRIVATE RECIPES A SPECIALTY

TO BUYERS.
I have for the spring trade a clean and carefully selected stock of Goods with prices marked to suit the times.
IN DRY GOODS,
Brocades, Cashmeres, Indigo Blue Calicoes, Prints, Ginghams, Cheviot Shirting, Brown and Bleached Muslins and double width Sheeting, Pillow Case Muslin, Jeans and Cottonades, Crashes, Table Linen and Napkins.
IN WHITE and FANCY GOODS,
Nainsook, Lawn, Swiss, Jackonet, Hamburg Embroideries, Laces, Ladies' Collars and Ties, Toilet towels, Ribbons and Buttons.
Floor and Table Oil Cloth in new Style Patterns.
Carpet Chain in fast colors.
Rubber Coats and Leggins—Overalls and Jackets.
In Hardware, Tinware, Queensware, Glassware and Woodenware my stock is complete.
Flour and Salt always on hand.
A Full stock of FANCY & STALPE Groceries.
Cash paid for country produce or will take in exchange for goods.
Orders for Goods not in stock, gladly and promptly filled.
Yours Truly, W. E. PIPER.

WILLIAM CLORE,
—MANUFACTURER OF—
Rover Steel PLOWS,
Side Hill PLOWS,



Single & Double Shovels,
Jumping Shovels, Gophers, Rolling Cutters, Harrows and Agricultural Implements Generally. Send for Price List.
RISING SUN, - - - INDIANA.

UNDERTAKING

We keep constantly on hand all sizes of
BURIAL CASEs AND CASKET.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES guaranteed less than city rates.
SOARDS & DAVIS, Hebron, Ky

A REMARKABLE STORY.

The following narrative is self-explanatory. The letter which precedes it is a true copy of the original, and was sent to us, together with the details, by an officer now in the United States Navy:

UNITED STATES FLAGSHIP NOMAD,
NAVY YARD, BOSTON, MASS.,
January 10, 188-.

My Dear Friend: Your kind favor containing congratulations on my restoration to health is before me. When we parted thirty months ago little did we imagine that either would be brought near death's door by a disease which selects for its victims those who present an internal field of constitutional weakness for its first attack, because you and I were in those days the personification of health; and can claim this to-day, thank God! Why I can do so now will be told to-morrow, when we meet at your dinner, as you only know that I have passed through a terrible illness; my delivery from death being due to the wonderful discovery in medical science, made by a man who to-day stands in the front rank of his fellow-workers; unequaled by any in my own opinion. That I, who heretofore have ever been the most orthodox believer in the old school of medicine, its application and results, should thus recant in favor of that which is sneered at by old practitioners, may startle you, but "seeing is believing," and when I recount the attack made on my old hulk, how near I came to lowering my colors, and the final volley, which, through the agency above-mentioned, gave me victory, you will at least credit me with just cause for sincerity in my thankfulness and belief. I will also spin my yarn anent my China cruise, and [illegible] to entertain as well [illegible] by you. With best wishes, Sincerely yours,

Rear Admiral U. S. Navy.

Hon. GEORGE WENDELL,
Sinclair Place, Boston.

An autumnal afternoon in the year 188- found the taut flag-ship Nomad rounding the treacherous and dangerous extremity of South America. And this day certainly intended to place itself on record with those of its predecessors marked stormy, its nastiness in wind and weather giving all hands on board the flagship their fill in hard work and discomforts. The record of the Nomad on this cruise, which she was now completing on her homeward bound passage to Boston, had been most disagreeable, when considered in the light of heavy weather work. From Suez to Aden, then on to Bombay, Point de Galle, Singapore, Hong-Kong, Shanghai, Nagasaki and Yokohama, the balance sheet stood largely in favor of old Neptune's rough characteristics, but with remarkable evenness the health and original roster of the ship's company stood this day as it did nearly three years ago—with one exception. Throughout the diverse and varied exposures incidental to cruising over the Asiatic station, where cholera, fevers, liver complaints, malaria, and colds of all degrees reign in full force, none of the crew had suffered more than temporary inconvenience, and thus it seemed very hard that now, in the closing days of the cruise, there stood nine chances for, to one against, a victory being at last scored for the destroying angel Death. When the Nomad reached Shanghai in the early portion of her cruise her admiral was the healthiest man aboard. A grand specimen of manhood was he. Over six feet in height, weighing two hundred pounds, broad in chest and strong in limb, he rightly claimed for himself a full share of Nature's blessings. While returning late one night from a diplomatic reception at the Consulate at Shanghai, through overheating and insufficient protection from the dangerous effects of the peculiarly damp and searching night air, he caught cold. "Only a cold," remarked the admiral to the doctors of his ship, "and easy to cure." So thought the medical officers, but with a quiet though insidious progression, this cold clung to the admiral in spite of their best efforts to eradicate it, and when the time came for leaving Yokohama, homeward bound, the admiral realized that his lungs and throat were decidedly out of order. The doctors advised returning home by mail steamer to San Francisco, so that greater means for curing this persistent cough might be found in the Naval Hospital there; but the admiral preferred to stick to his ship, still imagining that his trouble would eventually be overcome by the doctors' treatment.

No one who looked at the admiral even in those days imagined that he would fall a victim to lung trouble. But it was the old story again typified in this case. Only a cold at first; and in spite of orthodox treatment the peculiar climatic effects of China nursed it, and hastened the sure result of such a deep-seated trouble. Time passed after leaving Yokohama for Boston, bringing varying symptoms in the admiral's case, and the doctors imagined that they held the disease in check at least. But with the formation of tubercles, night-sweats and the now rapid consumption of lung tissues, which had set in with alarming symptoms, the patient realized that his cold had laid the seeds of that fell agent of Death, consumption. The hacking cough of the admiral had in itself been sufficient food for serious consideration, and now, as in the warm autumn days the flagship gallantly rode over the blue waters of the Pacific, bound for Cape Horn, the doctors hoped much for success. But this boisterous afternoon found the good ship struggling with gigantic seas set off from the Cape by a fierce northerly wind. Leaden were the heavens and sad the hearts of all aboard, for that morning the usual bulletin of the medical officers had set forth this intelligence: "The admiral is in same condition as reported last night. A burning fever has been slightly reduced, while other symptoms are as heretofore announced." All understood these words without questioning. The beloved admiral had during the past two weeks sunk very low. The symptoms of blood-poisoning, a torpid liver, intense pains throughout the body, eyesight and mental faculties affected, appetite gone, through inaction of that great regulator—the liver. These were the means which had reduced the admiral from the pinnacle of health to the valley and shadow of death. Consumption held full sway now, and the well-known skill of naval doctors was in this instance at least completely foiled.

The admiral had issued orders for the flagship to touch at Montevideo for coal, and it was the intention of the doctors to land the admiral there for treatment. But one man in the ship was wrapped in the gloom of despair, as standing by the weather rigging on the poop deck he gazed absently over the seething waste of waters. This was the admiral's son, a lieutenant, and attached to his father's staff. He feared that the wear and tear of ship-life would sap his father's strength beyond endurance, and before the ship could reach Montevideo. Among a group of sailors gathered around one of the great guns on the spar deck stood the captain of the fore-top, Brown, a slight but healthy looking man. His companions were listening to a recital of his sufferings from consumption, which had developed while he was attached to the sloop-of-war Ranger, lying in the harbor of Yokohama a year ago, this "yarn" having been started by a discussion about the admiral's condition. The men had just returned from some work around the deck, an order for which had interrupted Brown's story a few moments previously.

"A year ago this day I was hove to in the 'pill man's' sick bay in the Ranger, then off Yokohama, an' I tell you, pards, 'twas no use pipin' my number, 'cause I was nigh on passin' in my enlistment papers for a long cruise aloft," continued Brown. "Consumption had me flat aback, and the doctor says it was no use to stow away his lush in my hold seein' that my bellows was condemned by a higher power than he could wrastle with."

"How did you pucker out of it?" asked a gunner's mate.

"Wa'all," replied Brown, "my Chinee washman come to me one mornin' an' he says to me, 'me hab got allee same Melican man medikin, do you heap good?' I says bring it off, Chang, I buy all the same. That afternoon Chang hove up with fourteen bottles of a lush, enough to kill or cure the whole ship's crew, an' that looked fresh in their nice wrappers. Says Chang, 'China man doctor hab got plentee more, he make heap good well with my sick, this number one medikin allee same through Yokohama.' Wa'all, I took the bottles an' told the doctor I was goin' to try one as by the sailin' orders on the bottle, and the doctor he laughed and says 'twas no good, but I done as the regulations says from the first, an' here I am, sa'in the doctor's ideas to be sure!"

With this triumphant assertion Brown looked about the circle. Then, lowering his voice, said, "boys, I've four of those precious bottles left—ain't give 'em all away yet after I was cured—an' if you all think that it would not be too free with the 'old man,' suppose I go to his son there on the poop deck an' say what I have to you, an', askin' his pardon, say we want the admiral to try the stuff in my bottles, seein' that they cured my consumption."

This idea met with approval from all sides. Therefore Brown walked off for the interview with the admiral's son, with no little anxiety in his good heart as to the result of his mission. Approaching the lieutenant, Brown saluted, and asked for permission to state his reasons for doing so. This was readily granted, and Brown spoke out.

"Seeing that I was once cured of consumption, lieutenant, I make bold to ask if I can tell you how, an' why I've the reasons for wishing you to use on your father what was my salvation."

In a few moments the lieutenant had Brown's story out, and much to the latter's gratification, granted a ready permission to him. It did not take Brown long to run to his ditty box, get the bottles of medicine, and return to the lieutenant with them.

"I'm afeared that the doctors will kick ag'in the use of this blessed stuff, an' what wid you do, sir," said Brown, as he placed the medicine in the cabin orderly's hand to be taken into the admiral's room.

"I will attend to that Brown, and rest assured that your remedy will have a fair trial in spite of any opposition. It will not harm my father, judging from your statement and the opinion of the Medical officers of the Ranger."

"Thank you, sir, an' God help the admiral to weather his trouble, is the prayer of all the ship," said Brown, as the lieutenant turned to enter the cabin.

There was no cessation in the storm that evening. The gale howled through the rigging in wild, discordant tones; the great ship labored through the white-capped mountains of water that threatened to engulph her with each burst of their storm-whipped crests. Within the admiral's cabin the Argand lights, the comfortable furniture, and the numerous evidences of the admiral's wanderings over land and water, as displayed in choice bric-a-brac and trimmings, gave to the room a warm, snug appearance, most pleasing this wild night to those within. In his stateroom lay the admiral, made comfortable by all that loving hands and willing hearts could suggest. By his side sat his son who in quiet voice was recounting to his father the interview with Brown, and the opposition met with from the doctors when the idea of giving this new medicine was broached.

"You were sleeping at the time, father, and therefore missed a laughable scene, made so, in spite of your condition, by the intense dislike displayed by the doctors for this 'new-fangled stuff,' this 'patent liquid,' which they declared should never with their consent be given to you. Well, I cut the matter short by saying that I would take all the responsibility and with your permission would administer it. That I obtained when I found you awake, and now you are under way with the first bottle as per directions. I am satisfied, dear father, that it will do you good, a premonition filling my heart that at last we have found the means of arresting the burning fever and hacking cough which have been troubling you so much."

The admiral's reply was cut short by a severe spell of coughing, during which he spat blood, and when finished sank back exhausted. But the grateful look which he bestowed on his son was an additional assurance of belief in that which the admiral had at first dubbed as a possible but doubtful means of doing him any good. But laying aside his dislike for any but old-established remedies, the admiral acquiesced in his son's request, and now, after this last spell, admitted that the effect of the dose had softened the dreaded severity of the racking cough.

* * * * * *

Three weeks later found the Nomad making the harbor of Montevideo. After severe and prolonged weather she had rounded the Cape and now was standing in the harbor for the purpose of recoaling and watering. To one given to the study of human lineaments the faces of those aboard the flagship this bright morning would have afforded infinite scope for such pursuit. But the source of each man's happiness flowed from the same fountain of grateful joy. The beloved admiral was the cause of this. And why? If you could have seen the admiral this bright morning, dear reader, your answer would have been easily found in his face. A changed man was he. Victory was perched on his guidons; the dread enemy was slowly retreating! The fight was a severe one, but with no cessation in vigilant action and careful application of the contents of four bottles the admiral had turned the flank of consumption, and was slowly but surely driving him off the field with a power which astounded the doctors and filled all hearts with joy and thankfulness.

What was this then that had won the victory for the seaman Brown, and was now leading the admiral's shattered forces to the same grand result? When asked this question by one of his officers on duty, in Montevideo, the admiral, slowly lifting his hand, replied, "I would that in letters of gold, and so placed that all the world could read them, the name of this great remedy could be shown, coupled with the genius who discovered it—'THE GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY'—Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the man who has given to his fellow men the greatest relief from all ills that mortal flesh is heir to!"

"This is the name of the contents of that bottle on my table, and God bless the man who has found the secret of filling it with a medicine at once purifying and strengthening, wholesome and thorough in its results, and claiming, in my humble opinion, nothing for itself that it cannot reasonably perform. Nature's ally against the abuse of man!"

Well might the admiral sing the praises of that which had so unexpectedly rescued him from a fatal illness. When the ship anchored the first commission for the admiral's son to execute was a large purchase of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which, as the admiral sadly admitted, he had seen in every port the world around and had only admired as an evidence of the energy and enterprise of an American who could thus place his Golden Medical Discovery in every nook and corner of the globe. But now he was one more to testify to the wonderful power of this medicine, and certainly did so in Montevideo, by praising it up to all the high officials who visited him.

A week later and the Nomad sailed for Boston direct. What the condition of the admiral was when she arrived there is shown in his letter above. Let it be recorded to the credit of the doctors on the flagship that they were completely cured of all dislike for the Golden Medical Discovery, used it faithfully on the voyage to Boston, and landed, through its wonderful power, the admiral completely restored; and more than one poor fellow who started out in the sick bay of the Nomad. What staunch friends the Golden Medical Discovery made in that ship!

The above, reader, is an outline of the story spun by the admiral to his friend when they met at the dinner. We will not touch on other portions of his interesting recital of his cruise in general, our aim being to record his testimony for the greatest wonder in medical science that this nineteenth century of surprising developments has produced.

From the wonderful power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery over that terribly fatal disease consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought favorably of calling it his "consumption cure," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine that from its wonderful combination of germ-destroying, as well as tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, diuretic, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all chronic diseases of the liver, blood, kidneys, and lungs. Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the worst scrofula to a common blotch, pimple, or eruption. Erysipelas, salt-rheum, fever-sores, scaly or rough skin. In short, all diseases caused by disease germs in the blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great eating ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influences. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing tetter, rose rash, boils, carbuncles, sore eyes, scrofulous sores and swellings, white swellings, goitre or thick neck, and enlarged glands.

"The blood is the life." Thoroughly cleanse this fountain of health by using Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength and soundness of constitution are established.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from indigestion, dyspepsia, and torpid liver or "biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal as it effects perfect and radical cures.

For weak lungs, spitting of blood, short breath, consumptive night-sweats, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. In the cure of bronchitis, severe coughs and consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. The nutritive properties possessed by cod liver oil are trifling when compared with those of the Golden Medical Discovery. It rapidly builds up the system and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by wasting diseases.

* * * * * *

The reader will pardon the foregoing digression, prompted by our admiration for a remedy that performs such marvelous cures, and permit us to say that when the admiral returned to his home in New York the only cloud cast upon the happiness of the reunion with his family was caused by the continued illness of his eldest son, a young man of twenty-four, whose disease, when the admiral sailed from Montevideo, had been reported as succumbing to the treatment of the family doctor. But his father found it otherwise; the unfortunate young man was suffering severely from chronic disease of the kidneys and bladder. Before leaving Boston the admiral had purchased a copy of Dr. Pierce's book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." He read this valuable book thoroughly, and upon his arrival home had made up his mind as to the future treatment for his son. The latter was sent to the famous Invalid's Hotel, at Buffalo, N. Y., conducted by Dr. R. V. Pierce, and his competent staff of specialists, where, under skillful treatment, the sufferer soon found relief and a permanent cure.

In the library of his handsome home the admiral placed one of the four bottles sent him by the seaman Brown. Conspicuous in its pretty frame and stand it attracts all eyes, which can easily read the lines in golden letters inscribed on the tablet under the stand as follows:—"This bottle once contained the ammunition which secured for Admiral —— the victory in his battle off Cape Horn with the enemy consumption. His undying gratitude is thus shown for that which this bottle and its mates held."

Number and Orders of the Stars.

If we raise our eyes to the heavens on a clear moonless night, we shall see myriads of twinkling stars thickly studding the sky. It seems impossible to count them, but such is not the case. It is found that the total number of stars in the celestial sphere, visible to the average naked eye, is about five thousand, the number varying according to the perfection and training of the eye and the condition of the atmosphere.

When the sky is cloudless, and the air free from moisture and unstirred by the slightest breeze, several hundreds more may be seen, swelling the number to nearly six thousand. As only one-half of the stars are above the horizon at a time, it follows that the number to be seen at once varies from twenty-five hundred to three thousand.

The stars visible to the naked eye bear no comparison to those brought to view in the telescope. No less than twenty million stars were visible in Herschel's twenty foot telescope. The great telescopes of modern times show a much larger number, and though no reliable estimate has yet been made, the number will probably reach fifty millions.

The difference in the size and brightness of the stars is no less striking than their number. At a very early age in the history of astronomy, they were divided into classes on this account. The twenty brightest stars are said to be of the first magnitude. The fifty stars next in brightness are of the second magnitude, and so on, until we reach the stars of the sixth magnitude, which include the faintest stars visible to the naked eye.

The telescope greatly increases the number of classes as well as the number of the stars, so that the smallest stars visible in the largest telescope are of the sixteenth magnitude. No limit to the increase has yet been found. Every improvement in the far-seeing power of the telescope reveals the existence of myriad stars never seen before, until it seems as if the stars that people space are as nearly countless as the sands of the seashore, or the flowers that bloom in the primeval forests.

What an inconceivable number of suns, of many orders of size and brightness, belong to the grand universe of space in which our sun and his family of worlds find place! For these myriad stars that sparkle in the canopy of night are all suns like our sun, masses of matter at a white heat, but at such an immense distance that they look like shining points, just as our sun would look if he were as far away.—Youth's Companion.

An Adverse Arctic Summer.

The season of 1882 has, on account of the state of the ice in the Arctic seas, been one of the most adverse on record. Thus, while the Norweigan walrus and whitefish hunters were unable to get to the north of Spitzbergen and the Swedish meteorological expedition to Mossel Bay, no vessel succeeded in reaching the Siberian rivers. It appears from information just to hand that the summer along the coast of Siberia has been unusually cold, while incessant northeast winds have accumulated drift-ice on the shores to such an extent that the estuaries of the Yenissei and the Obi were not once navigable in the season. Thus the small steamer Dallman, of Yenisseisk, belonging to Baron Knop, was unable to get from Yennissei into the Obi. When we remember, however, the reports of Mr. Leigh Smith and Sir Henry George Booth of open water north and east of Novaya Zembia, it becomes apparent that some other part of the polar basin must have been very free from ice during the summer. It seems to be the opinion of several authorities, as, for instance, Baron Nordenskjold, that any vessel which had attempted to penetrate by way of Behring Strait, would, no doubt, have demonstrated the practicability of navigating the Siberian seas every summer from one end or the other. This year fresh attempts will be made by Mr. Sibiriakoff, Baron Knop, and Dr. Oscar Dickson to open up a trade route with Siberia from Europe; those, however, acquainted with the Arctic seasons would not be surprised to see the ice in the summer of 1883 as adverse to Arctic voyaging as it was in 1882.—Nature.

Out-Facing a Thief.

Recently a young lady who is a teacher in a Somerville, Mass., public school, was in Boston, and stopped on the street for a few moments to chat with a friend. Presently some one brushed rather roughly against her, and a second or two later she suspected trouble, and in an instant her suspicions were confirmed by the discovery that her portemonnaie had disappeared from her sack pocket. She glanced up and found that a rather hard looking man was standing on the curbstone a few yards from her, with both hands in his coat pockets, smoking a cigar with an air of excessive nonchalance. Acting at once upon her instinct, she walked straight up to him, and looking him squarely in the eyes, held out her hand. Whereupon, without hesitation, but slowly, the man thrust his right hand in his trousers pocket, fished out her purse, put it into her waiting palm, and deliberately walked away. The whole transaction probably occupied not more than ten seconds.

—The greatness of man dawneth as he dieth and waxeth as he groweth remote. The picture of George Washington adorns a joss house in New York, and is there adored by the Chinese population as the patron saint of the laundry. The Celestials actually believe Washington was a great washee-washee god, and honor him accordingly.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—A Southern correspondent of the Hartford (Conn.) Times says that there are three seasons in Florida — the orange, vegetable and invalid season—and that the last pays the best. Somebody had said before him that in the summer the natives of Florida live on sweet potatoes and sugar-cane, and in the winter on the Yankees.

—During his visit to Arkansas recently, to look after his railroad interests there, Mr. Henry G. Marquand, of New York, gave to the city of Little Rock the sum of $50,000 as the nucleus of a fund for establishing a public library and reading-room, to which he also promised to send collections of books from time to time.—N. Y. Sun.

THE DAIRY.

—Iowa continues to increase her creameries. They will soon be so numerous there if they keep on that every farmer will own one.

—The average of an ordinary fair dairy of native cows would be about a pound of butter to twelve quarts of milk with good feeding. Good feeding would be plenty of good hay or corn fodder with not less than four quarts of meal.

—The present season will see a big boom in the creamery business in Minnesota. The farmers are ready to embrace the new faith, and are anxious to have creameries established in their midst. With their cheap lands and feed they can produce milk cheaper than any of the other dairy States and will become competitors of the more eastern States.

—Good butter may be spoiled in churning. Over-churning, or churning at too high or too low a temperature, affects the texture and changes the proper waxiness to a sticky greasiness. The proper temperature of winter cream for churning will usually be found to be about sixty or sixty-five degrees.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

—When a calf is weaned from the cow it should always be fed with warm milk and sweet, and the stomach cannot adapt itself to the change from warm to cold food or from sweet to sour milk. If the milk is warmed to 99° and given in moderate quantity the change of food can be made safely in nearly all cases. Care should be taken not to permit the calf to swallow the milk too fast.

—The reason why creamery butter is better than the ordinary farm or dairy article is that at the factory there is enough to do to keep one or more persons employed all the time, and they are always on hand to perform each operation at the right time. They always have ice or cold spring water, so as to control the temperature, and every operation can be done at the best time. One reason why family butter can not be made as good as that at the factory or dairy is that there is not enough milk together. With one or two cows two or three days must elapse between the churnings, and in hot weather the cream can not, under ordinary circumstances, be kept good for this length of time, and if cream is allowed to become over-ripe, the butter can not have a good flavor.—Michigan Farmer.

—The Utica (N. Y.) Herald in a recent issue said: "It is claimed in the West that cold storage has been a blessing to butter producers, as well as consumers, during the past season, because the butter was put into refrigerators instead of allowing it to flood the market during the period of heaviest production, and prices were thus sustained. For three months past this stored-away stock has been dealt out by the commission men, until now it is pretty well consumed and no harm has come to her market. It is also claimed that this selling out has been 'on the sly,' so that dairymen were not aware of what was going on; otherwise the price of winter-made butter would have been higher, its price having been kept down under a belief that when the 'cold storage' butter came upon the market a break would inevitably take place. Chicago dealers are proverbially shrewd, but they have benefited the whole country as well as themselves by playing a little trick on the dairymen, and thus keeping the prices of Elgin butter, which sets the high-water mark for other butter markets, within reasonable bounds."

Demand for Dairy Cows.

A scarcity of dairy cows is reported in all parts of the country. The high price of milk the present winter is attributed to the small number of cows that are in a condition to supply the market. Very few calves are raised in any of the districts where dairying is the leading business. Dairy farmers think they can use their land and buildings to better advantage than in raising calves. They desire to keep all the milch cows possible. Many sell their calves as soon as they are of a size to make veal, while others kill them when they are only two or three days old. In some sections the calves are kept on skimmed milk till they are large enough to stand a journey on cars, when they are sent to some part of the country where land is plenty and feed cheap. Dairy farmers, as a rule, dislike to be troubled with raising calves or with fattening old cows. It suits their purpose best to dispose of their young calves and old cows and to buy young cows when they have occasion to replenish their herds. Recently they have had difficulty in obtaining them. Buyers go through all parts of the west picking up cows for eastern dairymen. Obviously there is money to be made raising first-class cows to sell to dairymen. The calves can be bred on western farms and kept till after they have had calves of their own, when they can be taken in car-load lots to the great dairy centers and sold. Female calves bred in dairy districts can also be bought at the stock-yards in Chicago and St. Louis, and kept on farms till they are of an age and in a condition to sell. Female calves can always be bought at lower prices than males, as there is more demand for them for producing beef. As these calves come from good milking stock the chances are that they will make good milkers.

Observation shows that cows that have dropped their first calf will bring as much as bullocks of the same age. Their calves are worth considerable, as they can be kept on the farms where they were dropped till they are old enough to market. Milch cows can be raised cheaper than bullocks, as they are generally smaller in size. The former are in the best condition for the market when they are in ordinary flesh, while the latter must be well fattened before they are sent to market. The markets for dairy cows are more accessible than those for fat cattle. Good milch cows are not only in demand in the districts where much butter and cheese are made, but in the neighborhood of cities where the milk is sold to customers for domestic use. There is also a steady demand for first-class cows to be kept in towns and cities. For the former purpose cows are required that will give a large amount of milk, and consequently Holsteins, Ayrshires, or short-horns of good milking stock are preferred. Persons in towns and cities prefer small cows that will furnish rich milk, and Jersey stock, pure or high crosses, suit the purpose best. Beef has been so high during the past few years that most stock-growers have given their entire attention to the raising of animals that will furnish a large amount of choice meat. The raising of cows for the dairy has been neglected in most parts of the country. In sections where it is difficult to raise large crops of corn and other kinds of food necessary for producing fat there is probably more profit in raising dairy cows than beeves. In some places it would be judicious to raise the female calves for the dairy and the males for the shambles. Many families of short-horns produce good milkers and furnish desirable animals for producing either milk or beef.—Chicago Times.

—Nothing is more certain than the uncertainty of politics.

The Great Gaul.

The history of France, indeed, of all nations, is a record of its great men. Apart from the revolution whenever France has attracted the attention of the world, it was when she was ruled by a Charlemagne, a Henri Quatre, a Richelieu, a Louis Quatorze, a Napoleon, or a Thiers. Gambetta, in recent years, was by all odds the foremost man in his country, yet he was not in office, but it was understood that whenever the effort was to be made to recover Alsace and Lorraine, he would be installed into power to lead France and her allies against the hated Germans. But he has passed away in the very prime of life, and for the moment the French people have no great leader whose flag they can follow. There is a mystery about the death of Gambetta. At any rate the affair is surrounded by a mystery which is unaccountable in view of the publicity which attends even the domestic doings of the foremost people of our times. The death of Gambetta would seem to insure the peace of Europe for this year at least. Russia would doubtless like to attack Austria and seize Constantinople if France were ready to co-operate with her, but the French people have shown themselves very prudent while Gambetta lived, and his death will induce even greater caution. There is no one now to commence a war, unless, indeed, Austria should take the initiative, backed by Germany. But Kaiser William is now very old, and Bismarck, the man of "blood and iron," feels the infirmities of age; and neither are likely to begin a war, standing as they do on the very verge of the grave. But the war must come. There seems to be no way of settling the Eastern question, and the relations of Russia, Germany, and France to the rest of Europe, without an appeal to the dread arbitrament of the sword. It will be a fearful and destructive conflict when it occurs, but its beginning may be postponed beyond the limits of the present year.—Demorest's Monthly.

—A statue to the first translator of the New Testament, William Tyndale—designed by Mr. J. E. Boehm, and to be cast in bronze—is to be erected soon at the west end of the garden of the Thames embankment. The names of the universities, counties, towns and societies in Great Britain, the colonies and this country, which have contributed to the expense, will be inscribed on the pedestal. Tyndale is represented in a doctor's gown, with his right hand resting on an open New Testament.

—A little balloon filled with hydrogen gas was recently sent up from Paris by a tradesman, who attached to it his card with his name and address. The other day he was surprised to hear tidings of the balloon all the way from Russia. M. Jarochowitch, a priest at Tchigi, in the government of Grodno and district of Bielsk, picked it up in that remote region only three days after it had been launched from Paris.

—On a West India schooner which came into New York harbor the other day there was a negro acting in the most absurd manner, and apparently suffering from convulsions. "All well on board?" asked the quarantine officer. "All but this confounded slowaway," was the reply, "he's swallowed most of my cargo." "What is your cargo?" "Sugar and Jamaica rum," said the skipper.—N. Y. Graphic.

—The sailors of a Cunard steamer at New York were very much disturbed recently, when they found that the "Mountain Evangelist" Barnes was on board and was to sail in the vessel. "We'll 'ave nothin' but bad weather from dock to dock," said one of them. "As sure's a parson's aboard, whether he's the Dean of Westminster or the false prophet, we are pitchin' and tumblin' and 'ave h'all sorts of trouble."—N. Y. Herald.

—At a german in Memphis six doves were placed in each of the six large centre cakes, and when the cakes were cut the birds flew out and perched on the window cornices and mantels.

Important Proclamation.

The Hon. Peter Bowe is Sheriff of the City and County of New York. Recently, in conversation with one of our reporters, Mr. Bowe proclaimed the following fact: "I consider St. Jacobs Oil an excellent remedy, and one that ought certainly to find its way into every household. Mrs. Bowe always has a bottle of it there, and makes a family remedy of it."—New York Evening Telegram.

A GOOD deacon in one of our suburbs is so much opposed to gambling that he refuses to shake off his lethargy.—Boston Transcript.

Three Jewels.

"The mother of the illustrious Gracci, when asked for her jewels pointed to her three sons." The proprietors of Mishler's Herb Bitters, Mishler's Green Label Bitters, Mishler's Red Label Bitters, point proudly to this triumvirate as embodying the essential remedial and curative properties claimed for these by proprietors and the people. Every one knows that the Herb Bitters cure Dyspepsia, Kidney, Liver, Lung, Throat and Heart troubles, Hereditary disease like Scrofula, Running Sores, Ulcers, White Swelling and Syphilis, require all of the stronger and essential ingredients which go to make the Green Label Bitters. The Red Label Bitters will cure every form, type and character of complaints peculiar to ladies. These three jewels or medicinal agents, are unrivalled in excellence of preparation, and without peers as absolute specifics in all diseases for which they are recommended.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, March 23, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—Common	$2 25	@ 3 75
Choice butchers	5 00	@ 5 75
HOGS—Common	6 25	@ 6 85
Good packers	7 15	@ 7 65
SHEEP	5 00	@ 5 75
FLOUR—Family	5 00	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Mediterranean	1 13½	@
No. 2 winter red	1 08	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	56½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	44½	@
Rye—No. 2	65	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	18 50	@18 75
Lard—Steam	11-15	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	43	@
Prime Creamery	40	@ 48
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per barrel, from store	2 50	@ 2 65
Apples, prime, per barrel	3 75	@ 4 25
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 70	@ 4 00
Good to choice	4 60	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 19	@ 1 19¾
No. 1 white	1 10	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	67	@ 68½
Oats—mixed	51	@ 52
PORK—Mess	19 25	@19 50
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 5 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	1 07	@ 1 08
Corn No. 2	58¾	@ 55¾
Oats—No. 2	39½	@
Rye	59	@
PORK—Mess	[illegible]	@
LARD—Steam	11-10	@11-12½
WHISKY	1 17	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 16¼	@
Corn—mixed	63	@
Oats—mixed	53	@ 54
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	20 00	@
Lard—Refined	12½	@
LOUISVILLE.
COTTON—Middling	9¾	@
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 08	@ 1 10
Corn—mixed	54	@
Oats—mixed	45	@
PORK—Mess	18 75	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—New	$1 06	@
CORN	50½	@
OATS—mixed	42	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle
Butchers' stock	2 70	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 00

TIMES must be good in Philadelphia. They are coining money there all the time.

Hold the Fort.

J. M. Fort, Monmouth, Ill., writes: Having used SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, OR BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP, according to the directions given, for the purpose of enriching and purifying the blood and regulating the liver, and having found the medicine to do all that you claim for it, I cheerfully recommend its use to all persons affected likewise.

A BALTIMORE beauty is mentioned as "this priceless gem in the matrimonial department of life."

COUGHS.—Use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." They possess real merit. Sold only in boxes.

REMARKABLE transformation of color—When the white stag turns to bay.

Gastrine.

A tablespoonful of Gastrine on retiring insures repose. Sold by druggists.

KIND words are like bald heads; they can never dye.—N. O. Picayune.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

THE average boy, when sent on an errand, developes wonderful "staying qualities."

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar

Will stop a wheezing cough. Pike's toothache drops cure in one minute.

A FOREIGN barber has written his autobiography. It is called "The Crowned Heads I Have Combed."

Personal!

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above. N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

TRY the new brand Spring Tobacco.

ST JACOBS OIL

THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Invalids who are recovering vital stamina, declare in grateful terms their appreciation of the merits, as a tonic, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does it impart strength to the weak, but it also corrects an irregular acid state of the stomach, makes the bowels act at proper intervals, gives ease to those who suffer from rheumatic and kidney troubles, and conquers as well as prevents fever and ague. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

PORTABLE
Soda Fountains!
Send for Catalogue.
CHAPMAN & CO.,
Madison, Ind.

WANTED---AGENTS.
To buy and sell the WANLESS DETACHABLE and SELF-LOCKING PILLOW-SHAM HOLDER; the most DURABLE and SIMPLEST in the market. Sample to any address on receipt of $1.50. Over 1,000 sold in Cleveland. Lady Agents find it very saleable. For terms address KENDALL & CO.,
156 ONTARIO STREET, CLEVELAND, O.

LANDS
500,000 acres on the line of the WISCONSIN CENTRAL R. R.
Full particulars FREE.
Address, CHARLES L. COLBY, Land Commiss'oer MILWAUKEE, WIS.
IN WISCONSIN.

THE SUN IS ALWAYS INTERESTING.
From morning to morning and from week to week THE SUN prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates and troubles. This story is more interesting than any romance that was ever devised. Subscription: DAILY (4 pages), by mail, 55c. a month, or $6.50 a year; SUNDAY (8 pages), $1.20 per year; WEEKLY (8 pages), $1.00 per year.
I. W. ENGLAND, Publisher, New York City.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc., Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 83 Fulton Street, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE HISTORY OF THE U. S.
BY ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS.
It contains over 300 fine portraits and engravings of battles and other historical scenes and is the most complete and valuable history ever published. It is sold by subscription only, and Agents are wanted in every county. Send for circulars and extra terms to Agents. Address,
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

YOUNG MEN If you want to become TELEGRAPH OPERATORS, and be guaranteed employment, address P W BEAM, Ada, O.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent c.o.d. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B.C.STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philad'a, Pa.

A KEY THAT WILL WIND ANY WATCH AND NOT WEAR OUT.
SOLD by watchmakers. By mail 25c. Circulars free. J. S. BIRCH & CO., 38 Dey St., N. Y.

ENGINES (Traction & Portable) for Farm, Saw Mill & Plantation. For prices, etc., write THE AULTMAN & TAYLOR CO., Mansfield, O.

AGENTS only! Send 50c. for the $1 Book, "Songs of an Idle Hour." Richly bound; cream paper; 214 pp., 14 cuts in 2 mos. Most fascinating, original and popular work in 20 years. Add. COUGHLIN & Co., Pub's, Lowell, Mass.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of MOODY'S NEW TAILOR System of DRESS CUTTING. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

THE BIGGEST THING OUT Illustrated Book Sent Free. (new) E. N. NASON & CO., 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

$50 a week selling my goods to storekeepers. Sample and cir. 25c. Stamps taken. G. P. Brown, Idaho, O.

CONSUMPTIVES Last, Sure and Only Hope. Write, Dr. Hirley, Cincinnati.

ELECTRIC BELT $3 or $1 BATTERY can CURE You. Book free. Agents. Future Remedy Co., Cleveland, O.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

If you are Interested

In the inquiry—Which is the best Liniment for Man and Beast?—this is the answer, attested by two generations: the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. The reason is simple. It penetrates every sore, wound, or lameness, to the very bone, and drives out all inflammatory and morbid matter. It "goes to the root" of the trouble, and never fails to cure in double quick time.

Nowhere Else

Than in the establishment of OLIVER DITSON & Co. are published so large, so useful, so varied, so brilliant and every way satisfactory a set of MUSIC BOOKS for

SCHOOLS, SEMINARIES,
ACADEMIES, COLLEGES.

We here mention, as among hundreds of others, our SONG BELLS, (50 cts.) for Common Schools, by L. O. Emerson, as a great favorite, the one that may be universally used. The older books, GOLDEN ROBIN (50 cts.), by Perkins; MERRY CHIMES (50 cts.), by Emerson, and others, have a fixed reputation and are always in demand. Send for lists!
The Welcome Chorus ($1), by Tilden, High School Choir ($1), and Hour of Singing ($1), by Emerson and Tilden, Laurel Wreath ($1), by Perkins, Song Echo (75 cts.), by Perkins, and School Song Book (60 cts.), by Everest, are all good and successful collections for HIGH and NORMAL SCHOOLS. Send for lists!
Wellesley College Collection ($1), by Morse, Vocal Echoes ($1), Choice Trios ($1), by Tilden, are new and first-class collections for Female Voices.

Five Hundred Instructors for all Instruments,

including the world-famous Richardson's New Method for Pianoforte ($3.25), and many thousands of Songs and Pieces, always ready for the MUSIC DEPARTMENT OF SEMINARIES AND COLLEGES. Send for lists! Any book mailed for retail price.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 867 Broadway, N. Y.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.
Prepared from a German formula. Is in use over 200 Years. Skilfully compounded and not to be compared a moment with the cheap concoctions which flood the market. FOR KIDNEYS AND LIVER. A CERTAIN REMEDY FOR Purifying the Blood and Regulating the Secretions! Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, [illegible] Fever and Ague, Cramps in the Stomach, Colic, Cholera Morbus, [illegible] It is a pure and wholesome Stomachic, [illegible] without a rival. A Famous Tonic for [illegible] Lungs, Throat and Heart. $1 per bottle.
Mishler's Green Label Bitters is a Specific for Scrofula, Syphilis, Old Sores or Ulcers, while Mishler's Red Label Bitters is a certain remedy for all female complaints of whatever character. $1.50 per bottle.
Send for book "Messenger of Health."
MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO., Lancaster, Pa. Sold by druggists.

No Worm Syrup so Pleasant as Parker's.

LADIES ATTENTION! We want 100,000 new readers for our paper, and in order to obtain them, and to introduce it into every home in the UNION, we are making extraordinary offers. We will send the best Family Paper published, entitled "Youth," for the next three months to all who will send us 30 cents, in one-cent postage stamps, to help pay postage and cost of this advertisement; and to each person we will send free the following: Our Combination Family Needle Package, containing 120 best English Needles, put up in improved wrappers. Each package contains the following: 4 papers, 25 in each; also, 2 steel bodkins, 3 long cotton darners, 2 short cotton darners, 2 extra fine cotton darners, 2 wool, 2 yarn, 1 worsted, 1 motto, 3 carpet, and 3 button needles. 1-2 dozen new style beautifully fringed Red Napkins, 1 Japanese Handkerchief, 1 beautiful Oriental Chair Tidy, 1 elegant imported Lamp Shade. "YOUTH" is a large 32-column Illustrated Literary and Family Paper, filled with Charming Stories, Sketches, Poems, Puzzles, Pictures, etc.; in fact, everything to amuse and instruct the whole family circle, from the ages of eight to eighty. Write to-day. Address
Youth Publishing Company,
Doane Street, BOSTON, MASS.

I CURE FITS!
When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again; I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.
Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

AURORA CANCER INSTITUTE.
Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or LOSS OF BLOOD, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address
DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

CONSUMPTION.
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
25 cts.

PENSIONS FOR SOLDIERS on any disease, wound or injury. Parents, widows and children are entitled. Millions appropriated. Fee $10. Increase pensions, bounty, back pay and honorable discharges procured. NEW LAWS. Send stamp for instructions and bounty table. N. W. FITZGERALD & CO., Attorneys, Box 588, WASHINGTON, D. C.

WE SELL THE BEST $65 ORGAN in the world. Address MILLER ORGAN CO., Lebanon, Pa.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, THRESHERS SAW-MILLS,
Horse Powers Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

GUNS Pistols, &c., at Wholesale Rates. A Good 7-Shot Revolver $1.00, Fine Twist Guns $10.25, &c., &c. Send for our new Price-List, FREE. Good Agents Wanted. Address
A. G. Alford & Co., No. 5 S. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.

$65 A MONTH and board for TEACHERS Students, Young Men and Ladies, in a light, pleasant Business, in your own county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., 915 Arch St., Philadelphia.

"MAUD S" HALTER cannot be slipped by any horse. Sent to any part of United States free, on receipt of $1. Special discounts to the trade. Send for price-list. J. C. LIGHTHOUSE & BRO., Rochester, N.Y.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR [illegible]

$15 A Day at Home. No peddling; 12 Samples Free. Send 10c for postage, &c. C. E. BOWEN, Brockton, Mass.

VIGOR RESTORED to invalids or no pay. Write to Dr. Hirley, Cincinnati.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

A. N. K.—E. 918 21—83

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1883. NUMBER 23.

TOLD WITH A KISS.

I know not how it happened,
Or what I had to say,
But clouds hid all the sunshine
On my darling's face that day.
I longed to ask forgiveness
For bitter words of mine,
But my pride was fierce and stubborn,
And so I gave no sign.

I saw the swift tears falling
Upon my darling's cheek,
And then the grieved lip quivered
With words she did not speak.
Then something whispered to me:
"What better way than this;
To tell her that you love her,
And tell it with a kiss?"

"Dear heart," I cried, "I love you!
Forgive the words I spoke."
Across her face the sunshine
Through summer showers broke.
"I'm most to blame," she whispered,
"For what has gone amiss."
And the troubles of the morning
Were ended in a kiss.

—Eben E. Rexford, in N. Y. Ledger.

THE PRIMA DONNA'S DAUGHTER.

One morning, before rehearsal, in the green-room of the opera-house, Von Tromp, the barytone, asked Signor Notti if he had yet seen the daughter of their prima donna. It is astonishing what a commotion this question, delivered in the sonorous tones of Von Tromp, aroused among those of the members of the orchestra and company who were standing and sitting around the greenroom stove.

Signor Notti was never very quick to answer a question in English, so Monsieur Laflip, the French tenor, had opportunity to remark: "It is that which harass me. They say she have but yesterday arrive to these shores. Now, my friends, to what position will they place her in this company here!"

"How can we tell what she will do when we have never seen her?" said Madame Hilary, the contralto. "If I could put my eyes on her, I would know in a moment what she would sing."

"But she may not sing at all," said Signor Paulo, the basso. "Perhaps she vill dance."

"In the ballet," sneered Madame Hilary. "That's very likely, and she the daughter of the manager. I believe she will prove to have a sort of low soprano voice."

"And vy?" cried Signorina Morine, who was announced in the bills as a mezzo-soprano.

"Because it is so easy," replied Madame Hilary. "Almost all green young things have that kind of a voice."

Here Von Tromp rolled in his barytone between these two. "It matters not so much," said he, "what she will sing as what is her adjective."

"For de boels. Yaas, dat is mohs eemportanteh," said Signor Notti, with a troubled air. Signor Notti generally had a troubled air. He cultivated it. He was one of those small tenors who appear in "Don Giovanni," where they are led about from scene to scene between Donna Anna and Elvira. He was not much afraid that it would be said that the young woman was anything grazia, but he thought (in Italian) that the matter might as well be settled.

"There are no adjectives left that I know of," said Madame Hilary. "'Talented,' 'brilliant,' things about a 'fine organ,' and such terms as would suit a beginner are already in use. But I expect her mother will do something very good for her."

"And so she ought," cried Madame Gandervoort, who sang in the soprani chorus, and was married to the triangles and cymbals, or at least to the performer on those instruments. "An' so vould I eef I had von daughter and von koompany."

Madame Gandervoort was a good woman. She always appeared before the foot-lights in a low-necked dress and red-heeled slippers, no matter what the rest of her costume might be; and at home she wore black woollen stockings, and washed dishes for five boys and a (sometimes very) triangular husband.

"She sall call hor figlia vot she sall pleezo, but she sall not say ze eminenteh mezzo-soprano from ze Conservatoire uf Botzen," remarked Signorina Morine.

"I don't think she'll be likely to want that," said Madame Hilary, "for I never believed there was any conservatory at Botzen. You ought to know, Von Heins," said she to the trombone-player, "for you came from that country. Is there a conservatory at Botzen?"

"Hum!" said Von Heins, stroking his beard—hum! Conservatory at Botzen, hey? Hum! Anybody ought to know about dat."

"But eet ees not the conservatoire, eet ees the adjectif," said Signor Paulo, who had his eye upon the whitening countenance of the eminent Morine.

"It is that she can not have the 'favorite,' because they know her not at all; and beside the 'favorite' it is mine," said M. Laflip.

"Perhaps they will give her 'most eminent,'" said Madame Hilary. "They say that 'most eminent' will be all the rage this season."

"Eef zay do—" cried Signorina Morine; and then she restrained herself. She knew her vocabularian weakness.

"She may be a real soprano," said Amanda Hastings, of the contralto chorus, the firm ally and spasmodically paid dressmaker of Madame Hilary; "and Madame Sohn may let her go on as prima donna seconda. They do that sometimes."

"They must have the very fine eye for the language if they to themselves say that," remarked Laflip. "For me, I think her good mother will to her give the adjective of 'brillant.' It is a good one for the beginners."

"But what then becomes of my solos?" inquired the cornet-a-pistonier, who had just got the drift of the conversation into his bald head. "Can anybody tell me that?" and he glared around for information. No one answered him, but Mr. Sylvester, the basso-profondo, looked over the stove at Madame Hilary and smiled.

"I have several adjectives," said he, "and I never use but one of them at a time. She can have any of them that she may choose. How would 'thundering debutante' sound?"

Here Mr. Sylvester smiled over the stove again, and everybody laughed, for the big basso-profondo was a great wit, and might have been a buffo just as well as not, and played Leporello if he only could have seemed as funny on the stage as he did off of it.

"Oh, you needn't all laugh so," said Amanda Hastings, "for there was a woman once with a bass voice, and she had a beard."

"I propose," said Von Tromp, "that we give her the name of zusammenschlag, for I expect she is of inferior note."

No notice was taken of this remark, for Von Tromp had not a reputation for brilliancy.

At this moment Madame Sohn, the manager as well as the prima donna of the troupe, made her appearance, accompanied by her daughter. Madame Sohn was a tall, dark woman, with a look about her mouth as if it would open very wide. She came in, leading her daughter by the hand. Evidently there was to be a state introduction. The young lady had not the commanding presence of her mother. She was scraggy, and had unmanageable yellow hair.

"Zounds!" said Mr. Sylvester, in a whisper to Von Heins, "you could turn her upside down and use her head for a horn mop."

"Ladiees and gentlemen of my koompany," said Madame Sohn, "thees is my daughter, Bertha Sohn. After this morning she vill be von of us. For the last ten year my daughter haf led the or—"

At this moment a call-boy clutched the prima donna, and she stopped to scowl upon him. But on hearing his message she turned again to her audience.

"Excuse me von minute," she said. "The trayuter sends for me. I am back right off away." And she swiftly left the room.

For a moment the Fraulein Sohn and her new acquaintances stared each other in the face, and then the young woman, abashed by so many strange and apparently frozen countenances, retired to a window, and with her back to the company gazed out upon the busy scenes of a back street.

"The skies!" exclaimed Laflip, in an undertone of horror, "is it that she will lead the orchestra?"

"I never heard of such a thing in all my born days," said Madame Hilary, regarding the mop head at the window with a glance of astounded scorn.

The first violin was a little man, and he stood in the middle of the floor aghast. He turned pale and green, like a man with a bilious chill, and his long fingers clutched and unclutched like gnashing teeth. But he said never a word. He was a Pole, and his little English fled dismayed from his despair and horror.

"Lead the orchestra!" exclaimed Amanda Hastings. "It's horrible. Like a Vienna woman!"

Von Heins, the trombone man, was a person of few words. He never spoke if he could help it, but he had a loud voice. And now he thundered out: "She shall never leat me! Ven it kooms to that, i vill take mine thrombone to mine house, and I vill lift him up to mine room, and I vill fill him mit goonpowder, and I vill blow him oop—bang! She shall never leat me."

"Oh no, Von Heins," said Mr. Sylvester, "not gunpowder. That's not the style nowadays. Fill your trombone with nitro-glycerine, my good fellow. That will blow it up much better."

"I tinks I can blow oop mine own thrombone mit vot i pleases, hey? I vill blow him oop mit goonpowder myself. He is mine own."

"But you wouldn't want to be behind the age, would you?" asked Sylvester.

"I shall be behinds vat I pleases," cried Von Heins, "and she shall never leat me."

In the meantime there was other sorrow than that of Von Heins. Mrs. Gandervoort had her husband by both his hands, and tears stood in her eyes. "Dere vas a voman in Anspach," she faltered, "who led an orchestrah mit a dryangle. Oh, mine Herr, vot vill becoom of de leetle vons? Oh, mine poys! mine leetle poys! an' Hans mit de measles, too."

Here the door opened, and Madame Sohn re-entered. The greenroom company instantly resumed the frozen look it wore when she left it, and the frowzy-headed daughter turned her face inward from the window. The prima donna had scarcely reached the middle of the room when the first violinist stepped before her. His despair had previously overwhelmed his English, and now his Polish was too much for his discretion. The language of Kosciusko sprang in vociferous fragments from his mouth. But if he had poured a scuttle of coals down the waterspout, it would have sounded just as much like talking to the prima donna. No one else understood a word he said, but, with the exception of Madame Sohn and her daughter, every person in the room understood very well what he meant. They knew he was saying, as he stood there with his pea-green face and his gnashing fingers, that he would never play under the leadership of that yellow-headed girl. No! He would pass away gradually by starvation, and his imitation Cremona should follow him to his lonely grave, but she—a girl—should never regulate his appoggiature, his cadenze-sospese, and his sdrucciolati.

"What does the man mean?" asked Madame Sohn.

No one answered. What the first violin disguised in Polish, they hid in silence. They were a unit in regard to the rebellion. The poor Pole essayed to speak again, but his words, with their sharp edges and corners, stuck fast in his throat. He turned on his heel, and with a sort of agonized foreign amble he retreated to a corner.

Receiving no answer to her question, Madame Sohn, who was accustomed to the eccentricities of string genius, wisely let the subject drop, and resumed her former discourse.

"Ladies and ghentlemen, zis is mine daughter, Bertha Sohn. For the last ten year she haf led the orphan's life, alone in the natif villitche vere she vas born. She shall belong to my koompany, but she do not sing, and as Heinrich Jhackson is sick, she shall to-day go under de stage to stomp mit de pole ven de commandant's ghost comes valkin' on. Zat vill do for her to begin mit."—Frank R. Stockton, in Harper's Bazar.

—An honest man is the noblest pursuit of woman.

Glass Eyes.

The data of the introduction of glass eyes is not recorded, but they have been found in the heads of mummies staring with unearthly fight. In olden days solid glass eyes were used, but the artificial eye of to-day is of shell-like formation, and in its construction remarkable nicety and skill is required.

With the exception of a few small modifications in detail and finish the manufacture of artificial eyes has not made any particular steps forward in the last half century. Each manufacturer has a secret of his own as to the combination of material used and the modes of applying them. This secret, which in most cases is handed down from father to son, is jealously guarded, and strangers are rarely permitted to witness any of the processes of manufacture. The artificial eye, being only a light shell of enamel without any precise form, since it has to be suited to the different sizes and shapes of eyeballs, is placed under the eyelid, and is composed of two parts, the one exterior, which gives the colors of the iris, of sclerotic, or white of the eyes, as well as the blood-vessels of the healthy eye; the other, the interior, which, fitting into and capping the stump, receives movement from it. The manufacture of artificial eyes consists in three very distinct operations, as follows:

The artist seats himself at his table with a lamp or gas jet before him, which is blown by a bellows and blow-pipe worked by the foot, and gives a pointed jet flame of the strength he desires. Within reach of his hand are placed rods of enamel of different colors. He begins by taking a hollow tube of colorless crystal, one of the extremities of which being soon melted in the fire of the jet forms a ball when blown. As the color given by the crystal has no resemblance to that of the sclerotic, usually called the white of the eye, his first labor is to color the ball in such a manner that it may be of the same hue as the natural eye. To attain this result he applies to the ball enamel of different colors, which, amalgamating with the crystal in a pasty state, gradually gives it the desired tint, which differs in each individual. This tint obtained he makes a circular opening in the center of the ball, destined to receive the globe of the eye. When the hole is made the ball is put on one side. The globe is made by first forming the iris, which is done by the use of several amalgamations of enamel, according to requirements of the case. The iris finished, a spot of black enamel is placed in the center to form a pupil, which is then encircled with its aureola. The infinitely small fibers found in the iris are then drawn.

The globe when finished is soldered to the sclerotic by means of the lamp, after which the artist rectifies any small imperfections that he may observe, and it only remains to pare the ball in order to obtain a shell, which, rounded at the edges, may perfectly resemble the living eye with which it is to be placed, not only in form, but also in color. The enameled surface of a well-made eye is really lovely, and when even closely examined it has every appearance of the natural eye, both in brilliancy, depth and light.—N. Y. Journal.

The Way to Do It.

In 1871 a farmer bought 400 acres of reputed poor land in Glynn county, Ga., and poor land there is poor land indeed, such as California farmers know but little, if anything, about. Upon this land he put 100 sheep. In 1873, by natural increase, he had 375 ewes, and had sent to market 75 wethers. He had a portable fence and penned his sheep nightly, and every two nights they manured two and a half acres well. In the first eight years he had 100 acres of land highly manured and in a state of cultivation, which, when he purchased it, was almost worthless. This man has always kept a book account of every dime and dollar spent upon his sheep, and by casting up a balance sheet after several years found that his sheep cost him exactly 75 cents per annum per head. They average him about three and a half pounds of wool each. Last spring he clipped in May and again in September, and the clip amounted to five and a half pounds per head. Last year he sold 800 pounds of wool, making an absolute net profit of $1,664. Last year he sold 92 wethers as mutton for $312, making a total of $2,289; besides this, from 81 acres of the fertilized poor land—41 acres in corn, averaging 31 bushels; 10 in sugar-cane, that made 50 barrels of sirup; 15 in oats, that averaged 42 bushels to the acre; besides growing other truck. Now if a man can take a poor piece of land and with good management bring it into a high state of productiveness at no expense, but on the contrary, make money all the time he is doing it, cannot a person take good land and keep it up to its present standard? Of course it can be done, with far less trouble than the poor land can be brought up; but the trouble is that when the ordinary tiller of the soil starts on good rich virgin soil he is prone to believe that with ordinary cultivation it will always remain so, and he puts forth no efforts to keep up the fertility of the soil, and as his land yields a little less year by year, he attributes the cause to the season or the seed, and never for a moment thinks that it is on account of the constant and gradual decline in the fertility of the soil. The proper way to farm is to keep your land in at least its original condition of fertility, and this can be done with anything like good management. Then it should be the object and effort of every landowner to so manage as to keep up the fertility. A bushel of wheat more to the acre on all the land in wheat last year in the United States would have made a difference in the aggregate crop of about 80,000,000 bushels, and this sold at $1.25 per bushel would have given to the producers $100,000,000 more than received. A general increase is desirable and can be obtained.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—Governor Waller, of Connecticut, confined his fast-day proclamation to the space of five and a half lines, and still found room in it for references to "the religious character of the people of this Commonwealth" and the "revered custom of our pious forefathers."

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Clifton, S. C., is sending shirtings to China. One of her cotton factories has received an order for five hundred bales.

—A valuable phosphate mine has developed near Kingston, Ont. There is one pit from which nearly three hundred tons of mineral have been taken.

—Two years ago the present site of Ketchum, Idaho, was a sage plain and nothing else. To-day there are numerous well laid avenues, a town park, and a main street with upwards of fifty business houses.

—Canning oranges is growing to be one of the industries of Florida. The fruit is peeled and broken into its natural sections before canning, which is done by a process similar to that used for preserving other fruits, and when taken out is ready for use.—N. Y. Examiner.

—There is a growing interest in the Connecticut Valley in the "mohair industry," involving the breeding of Angora goats. The only mohair goods manufactory in the United States is located at Seymour, Conn., and it is claimed that in the nine months of its existence it has made one hundred per cent. profit.

—An Indiana man has invented an instrument to make the deaf hear. It consists of a metalic plate, which is worn next to the body and covers the entire stomach, to which is attached copper wires, running from this plate to the instrument that is placed to the ear. The object of the metalic plate is to concentrate the electricity of the body.—Indianapolis Journal.

—A noted physiologist has just concluded a series of special observations which he says proves conclusively that wearing corsets makes women thick-waisted and dumpy. They weaken the muscles of the back, the back and body settle down, in some instances an inch and more. He concludes by citing the fact that all men agree that women look better in bathing suits than in stays.

—A Parisian dealer in fire-works has invented a sort of rocket which when introduced into a rabbit burrow will find its way downward and when well into the bowels of the earth explode like a shell, driving out the happy family in dire dismay. If this device succeeds as well in the ground as on paper, the ferret's occupation will be gone. For the discomfiture of larger game, like the fox or the coney, the rocket will be arranged with a chemical attachment, which, when the explosion occurs, will give off a poisonous vapor immediately fatal to the unlucky beast inhaling it.

—One of the principal engineering inventions, noticed of late in the foreign journals, is a device for the instantaneous formation of steam, which permits of its use at once in the cylinder of the engine. A pump sends the required quantity of liquid between two plate surfaces, which are heated, and between which there is only a capillary space. The effect of this arrangement is, that the liquid, spreading in a thin layer, evaporates at once, without going at all into the so-called spheroidal state, and this steam acts in the cylinder as fresh-formed steam. The speed of the pump is regulated by the engine, the pump being connected with the shaft of the engine, the arrangement operating very satisfactorily.

PITH AND POINT.

—Steele Mackaye is said to work eighteen hours every day.—Exchange. His motto is, evidently, "Mackaye while the sun shines."—Chicago Herald.

—"I'd have people know I'm nobody's fool," said Fenderson. "In other words," remarked Fogg, "you're your own master."—Boston Transcript.

—Queer! The cashier, who is short in his accounts, is universally condemned, while a reporter short in his accounts, is universally praised.—N. Y. Journal.

—The minuet is to be revived at fashionable dancing parties in New Orleans, and the Picayune says it will then be proper for the young lady who always must be dragged away to say: "O ma, let me stay one minuet longer?"

—"I don't want no rubbish, no fine sentiments, if you please," said the widow who was asked what kind of an epitaph she desired for her late husband's tombstone. "Let it be short and simple—something like this: 'William Johnson, aged seventy-five years. The good die young.'"—Detroit Post.

—No, Joseph, the New York Steam Heating Company was not formed for the purpose of heating steam. Steam is heated before it is made—that is to say, when you heat the steam—no, when you make the steam—no—well, confound you, don't you know that steam is hot, anyway, and doesn't have to be heated by a company.—Puck.

—Man is continually saying to woman: "Why are you not more wise?" Woman is constantly saying to man: "Why are you not more loving?" Unless each is both wise and loving there can be no real growth. And yet no woman is wise enough to put up a stove-pipe and no man loving enough to do it without swearing.—Chicago Tribune.

—A stylishly-dressed woman entered a restaurant. The waiter handed her a bill of fare and said: "Please mark off the dishes you wish to order." Could a woman in a sealskin confess that she could not read? Taking the pencil she made a few dashes, and her order read: "Dinner fifty cents," "Feb. 20, '83," "vegetables," "please pay at the desk," "co'cry." The waiter brought her beefsteak and onions and prune sauce, and she did not dare raise a word in protest.—Cleveland Voice.

—"I have made one human being happy to-day," said Fred Blanks to Bob Belt, an Austin lawyer. "Did you send a barrel of flour to a poor widow?" asked Bob. "No; my means do not allow me to be so extravagant, but I told an applicant for a position in the Legislature that I knew he was going to get it." "Well, that was one of those little courtesies that casts a ray of sunshine into the troubled life of a fellow traveler in this vale of tears and which does not cost anything." "The mischief it didn't cost anything! I borrowed two dollars from him on the strength of it."—Texas Siftings.

The Older Britain.

Britain formed part of the Continent in the remote age known by the geologists as pleistocene or quaternary, and the ancestors of our present wild animals, such as foxes, wild cats, martins, stags and roe-deer, passed freely into it from the adjacent regions of France and Germany, along with others which have been exterminated here within the historic period, but which still live on the mainland, such as the bear, wolf and beaver. The land then stood six hundred feet above its present level, and the sea-board now marked by the sunken cliffs at the one hundred-fathom line reached some two hundred miles to the west of Ireland, passing northward so as to include the Hebrides and Shetlands, hugging closely the shores of the Scandinavian peninsula, and forming a narrow fiord to the north of Denmark. Southward it swept across the mouth of the present English Channel, past the mouth of the Loire and Garonne, till it came close to the precipitous shores of the Bay of Biscay. To the west was the Atlantic and to the east and south the land extended as far as the Mediterranean and the steppes of Asiatic Russia. The North Sea was a broad open valley, studded with a few fresh water lakes, like the meres of East Anglia, traversed by the Thames and other eastern rivers, as well as by the Rhine and the Elbe, all of which discharge their waters northward into the Scandinavian Gulf, as it may be termed. A long line of chalk downs, reaching from Folkestone and Margate across to St. Pol and Sangatte, formed the watershed separating the valley of the North Sea from that of the Channel, through which the rivers of the southern counties and of northern France poured their waters into the Atlantic. A broad valley, too, stretched between Ireland and our western coast, with a deep and narrow loch, some hundred and fifty fathoms deep, severing it from Scotland. The wild beasts of the Continent, tempted by the woodlands and pastures of these fertile valleys, freely passed into Britain, and have left their remains in the river beds of gravel and loam, not merely on the land, but under the sea, from which they have been dredged in vast numbers. Beside the familiar animals above mentioned, there were lions, panthers, hyenas, hippopotami and others now only met with in warm countries; reindeer, musk-sheep and wolverenes, now only found in the far north; horses, bisons and elks, now living in temperate regions, as well as strange, extinct animals, such as the mammoth, the woolly rhinoceros, and the cave bear. These animals migrated north and south, according to the season, across the valleys of the North Sea and of the Channel, and, just as the migratory herds in America are followed by the red Indian and those of Northern Asia by the Siberian hunters, so were they followed by the river-drift hunter, whose implements lie scattered over the whole of Europe south of the latitude of Yorkshire. In the course of time, too, the highly equipped Caveman crossed over to this country and used the caverns for habitations. While Southern and Eastern Britain was the home of man and the animals he hunted, the higher parts of Wales, Cambria and of Scotland, and the greater portion of Ireland were covered by glaciers, which crept down into the lower grounds, offering an impenetrable barrier to migration, and leaving behind the transported blocks and grooved rock surfaces which enable us to map their ancient extent.—Contemporary Review.

Decline in Speculative Future Dealing.

There are evidences in the reports of the decreased speculative dealings in New York and other stock boards that the casual operators, the small dabblers in futures, the unsophisticated country investors, the class which card gamblers call "producers," are gaining a modicum of wisdom, and getting it in that school of which it is said fools will learn in no other. The regular dealers—the big fish in the great ocean of stock and produce gambling—are now engaged in the not very profitable work of trying to eat each other. It is not likely—it is indeed morally impossible—that the spirit of gambling among the people all over the country will disappear. But the mania has its seasons of inflammation and abatement. There is a slight cooling off now. The process of feeding the bloated gamblers of the boards of the great cities will be reduced to the minimum when all come to understand that the chances are a hundred to one against a "speculator" who puts in a few hundred dollars ever getting a cent back, and that this is especially true where he repeats the experiment and "tries his luck" several times.

It is not asserted that a small operator may not guess the market as well as another. It makes no difference whether he gets on the right or the wrong side. All sides are wrong for a man who has not plenty of money to cover his margins. He may, for example, buy April wheat now at a dollar a bushel. The grain may at the date for settlement be worth one dollar and twenty-five cents. But between now and then, upon some vague and senseless rumor, the price will drop for a moment to ninety-five cents, which wipes out his margin and sweeps his money into the common fund of the gamblers. He had guessed the market right, but for the purpose of taking the funds of all small fry like him the market always oscillates enough to take the margins of the scores, hundreds and thousands of little dealers located in every neighborhood, village town and city in the land. And thus the nabobs of the market are fed and fattened. The game of thimble-rig, three card monte and brace faro are fair and even in comparison with the "Heads I win and tails you lose" future dealing by small operators. Every young man, and old one, too, for that matter, should avoid these sink-holes of so-called speculation as they would a lazaret. All intelligent observers read with pleasure the reports that there is a dearth of this sort of "business" in the great trade centers.—St. Louis Republican.

—The readiness with which the foot of the modern man taketh him to the club would go far to prove that man is by nature club-footed.—Rome (N. Y.) Sentinel.

Religious.

SHOW ME THE WAY.

Show me the way that leads to the true life.
I do not care what tempests may assail me:
I shall be given courage for the strife;
I know my strength will not desert or fail me:
I know that I shall conquer in the fray—
Show me the way.

Show me the way up to a higher plane,
Where body shall be servant of the soul,
I do not care what tides of woe or pain
Across my life their angry waves may roll,
If I but reach the end I seek some day—
Show me the way.

Show me the way above all little aims,
All foolish sorrows and belittling pleasures,
Above small triumphs over little gains,
Above vain grieving for unworthy treasures,
Up to those heights where these things seem child's play.
Show me the way.

Show me the way to that calm, perfect peace,
Which springs from inward consciousness of right,
To where these conflicts with the flesh shall cease,
And self shall radiate with the spirit's light,
Tho' hard the journey and the strife, Lord, I pray,
Show me the way.

—Ella Wheeler, in Chicago Advance.

Sunday-School Lessons.

SECOND QUARTER.

April 1	—Simon the Sorcerer	Acts 8:14-25
April 8	—Philip and the Ethiopian	Acts 8:26-40
April 15	—Saul's Conversion	Acts 9:1-18
April 22	—Saul Preaching Christ	Acts 9:19-31
April 29	—Peter Working Miracles	Acts 9:32-43
May 6	—Peter Preaching to the Gentiles	Acts 10:30-44
May 13	—The Spread of the Gospel	Acts 11:19-30
May 20	—Herod and Peter	Acts 12:1-17
May 27	—Paul and Barnabas in Cyprus	Acts 13:1-12
June 3	—At Antioch	Acts 13:13-16 and 43-52
June 10	—At Iconium and Lystra	Acts 14:1-18
June 17	—End of the First Missionary Journey	Acts 14:19-28
June 24	—Review.

AN EVIL TONGUE.

Rev. J. H. Barrows, D. D., preached a very interesting sermon last night at Central Music Hall to an immense audience upon "Sins of the Tongue." The text was:

"If any man offend not in word, the same also is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body."—James, iii, 2.

The reverend gentleman said in substance:

What are the sins of the tongue which should be specified? Do I need to speak against profanity? It is a vulgar vice sadly prevalent. Those who do not realize its sinfulness ought not at least to forget that profane swearing is not the mark of a gentleman. Shall I refer to filthiness of speech? Only to say to the young that the beginning of this vice ought to be so carefully avoided that you will continue to be sensitive to any approach to vulgarity of language and learn to loathe and rebuke this abomination.

But perhaps the chief sins of an evil tongue are seen in untruthfulness and uncharitableness of speech. The foundation of good character is truth in the inner man. If this foundation is wanting, we may look for almost every evil development. A young man or woman who is getting into habits of insincerity of speech through petty falsehoods is undermining almost every virtue of life. If you know that in business as a salesman, a merchant, a manufacturer, in the home as a child, if in social life as a friend and in political life as a citizen you are getting accustomed to falsities of utterance, deviations from the exact truth, misrepresentations for the sake of fancied advantage of yourself or others, you are surely poisoning the fountains of personal morality. "An honest man's the noblest work of God." Would that such works were more numerous! Men feel their manhood cut to the quick when the epithet "liar" is hurled at them, but too often their anger is the rousing up of conscience and selfish pride rather than righteous resentment against an injustice. Men are right in being drawn out to those rare souls the Lincolns and Washingtons, Hampdens and Wellingtons, who have built their lives on "the brave old wisdom of sincerity."

The Greek philosopher Pythagoras, being asked when men are most like God, answered: "When they speak the truth."

But the tongue sins not only by untruthfulness but also by unkindness of speech. I scarcely need to refer to the quarrelsomeness of boys, the bad temper of girls, the angry disputes of married people, of which you may have read in books or newspapers, and the querulousness which sometimes deforms old age. Love has no better outlet than in pleasant words, than in gentle and cheering speech, and an evil heart never seems more repulsive than when it wags a rough tongue. There are people whose religion has never reached the second verse of the 15th chapter of Romans. "Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good unto edification." They believe it their duty to scold him or let him feel the chill of their ugliness, or, at least, to be very chary of commendation. One defect of many characters is a slowness of tongue to speak those pleasant words which are "sweet to the soul and health to the bones." How much more delightful our home-life and how much more attractive to each other and the outside world our church-life would be were the gospel of the kindly tongue more preached and practiced. It is frequently said that women are more often guilty of untruthfulness than men, but I think it more likely that men are oftener guilty of unkindness than women. I know that Solomon—who had a vast experience in domestic life—said: "It is better to dwell in the corner of a housetop than with a brawling woman in a wide house;" but a cross-grained man will often wear out a dozen ugly women.

When some men, who mistake impudence for frankness, presume to lavish on you the amenities of their speech, every word a slap or a stab, you would greatly prefer to meet a Rocky Mountain bear robbed of her whelps. I sometimes think that many people will be kept quiet in Heaven for about 500 years till they have forgotten the earthly tempers, and outgrown that surliness of spirit, those hedgehog peculiarities bequeathed, it may be, by generations of godly men who spent their lives in fighting the wild beasts and the savages, developed by a somewhat morose interpretation of the Old Testament Scriptures, and confirmed by the habitual use of bad pastry and old cider. There is every reason why we should cultivate the sunnier tempers of the Christian Gospel. The ideal man is not like the goat which the prophet saw in his vision striking out in all directions, striving to hit something or somebody, but he is the Christian gentleman of the Pauline pattern, "speaking the truth in love." A gentleman is a man of gentle words, and where courtesy is married to truthfulness, you approach the perfection of human habit and character. Solomon described the perfect woman, saying: "She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness;" and of all the inscriptions ever written upon a tombstone there is scarcely one more to be coveted than that which simply said of the departed: "She was so pleasant."

Allied to unkindness of speech with others is unkindness of speech about others. Some men will hardly allow a good man's name to be mentioned without fixing upon it some word of detraction. Is it not strange that men who value their own reputations so highly should continually contribute to the undermining of the reputations of their neighbors? God knows we are all imperfect enough, but is it the part of love to expose each other's imperfections and magnify them to the ruin of good influence. "If any man among you seem to be religious and bridleth not his tongue but deceiveth his own heart, that man's religion is vain." "The words of the wicked are to lie in wait for blood"—the blood of human reputation. "A hypocrite with his mouth destroyeth his neighbor;" "a whisperer separateth chief friends." Let uncharitableness of mind be joined to personal hate, and it creates that vilest of characters, the slanderer, the assassin of human reputation, the thief of that good name which is an honorable man's chief treasure. Paul said: "Speak evil of no man," which is doubtless the Christian's general rule to be deviated from only when benevolence requires deviation for the sake of some higher good. But O, the shameful contrast between this Pauline teaching and the habit prevailing, whether at the club-room or the tea party, of retailing and gloating over every item of scandalous gossip, of feasting like vultures on bits of precious carrion. Some people appear to have no relish for character unless it seems to them rotten. It is almost an argument for Darwinism that there remains in human nature so much of the buzzard.

Men kill their neighbors sometimes by a greediness to believe and report evil concerning them, by circulating as probable some story which may turn out to be the invention or perversion of an enemy. "Haven't you heard the news about Mr. A?" "No; what is it?" "Somebody says—" "Are you sure?" "Yes; but the fact is that Mrs. X. overheard Mrs. Y. say that she had a letter from Mrs. Z.'s aunt who said that she had heard a niece of hers declare that it was rumored in her town that Mr. A. was not what he ought to be." But this Mr. A. turns out to be another Mr. A. from the one originally referred to, whose reputation, however, has suffered all the same! There is no better habit to form than that of refusing to listen to scandal; or if this is impossible, of refusing to repeat it, and to join with this the habit of speaking well of one's neighbor. Several young ladies were once criticising an absent friend in the presence of a minister. They declared that she was very odd, very singular. He listened and then said: "She is, indeed, very odd, extremely singular. She was never known to speak ill of any absent friends."

What are the causes of these pernicious habits? First there is the human heart itself. "Out of the heart," said Christ, "come evil thoughts, wickedness, deceit, blasphemy." Much of the lying we deplore is human selfishness seeking to gain its end by the shortest cut. Men who lie imagine it is for their profit. They are willing to sell their souls for every falsehood is a bargain with the devil for a momentary selfish advantage.

Insincerity of speech is begotten, too, by another form of evil, namely, excessive self-love, or the love of flattery. How many young men think it a higher compliment to be styled "a good fellow" than "a good man." A good fellow too frequently is some one who out of the lust for human praise uses his tongue recklessly to win the cheap regard of everybody regardless of truth. Then there is the foolish self-conceit, which thinks it very "smart" and evidence of a high order of intelligence, to be able to reveal and show up the weakness and ridiculous aspects of other people's characters. This, however, is a mistake. The gift of finding fault and finding faults is the birthright or achievement of the crow, and some of the smallest minds are the most expert at it.

Other causes of these bad habits are ignorance about the beginnings of evil, bad education and bad example.

Let me say, in conclusion: First, make to yourself a clean heart, if you care to possess a clean tongue. Secondly, form good habits of speech early in life. And this means not simply to avoid lying, profanity, impurity and unkindness, but to use words of truth sincerely and good will. You are to root out evil by planting good. I should utterly fail of my purpose if I sent you forth with the notion that the only safe thing for you was to be eternally dumb. That is not the Christian way of moral improvement in anything. A fool may deceive the world into thinking he is wise by keeping silent and looking philosophical, but you will never arrive at sainthood, or even the reputation of it, by keeping your mouth always closed. Speak forth as God gives you opportunity the words of truth and helpfulness and kindness, which are the words of life.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

[illegible] Short.

A story is told of a school the pupils of which, on the eve of a summer vacation, got very weary of the long speeches with which the committee entertained them. When the President of the Board of Trustees at last arose to address them, he commenced by saying:

"Well, children, what sort of a speech shall I make?" and then halted a little, as if waiting for an answer. While gathering up his thoughts, to his surprise up went a little boy's hand in a distant part of the room. Thinking that there might be an idea behind it which could be turned to good account, he invited the owner of it to speak out; but was somewhat taken aback when the boy said:

"Make it short, sir!"

He proceeded to act upon the suggestion, to the great satisfaction of the children.

It requires great wisdom to speak short, and sometimes still greater wisdom not to speak at all. We remember a missionary meeting where an effort was being made to raise funds for the purpose of scattering gospel light and truth. At this meeting, after an earnest appeal had been made, and we thought that the prospect was fair for raising two or three thousand dollars, one or two men arose, and instead of opening their own liberal subscriptions, made speeches which seemed lengthy and tedious, exhorting other people to give money, some of which they might, perhaps, have given themselves. But before they had finished, the interest and enthusiasm of the meeting was so dead that it was utterly impossible to resuscitate it. We should judge that these speeches damaged the subscriptions to the extent of perhaps five or ten dollars a minute. Some man complaining of the high prices at Niagara Falls, said that it cost a dollar to pay a man for opening his mouth and another dollar to get him to shut it. In this case, we judge that a dollar invested in shutting each of these mouths would have been a profitable investment, so far as the interests of the collection were concerned. Blessed is the man who speaks short, for he shall be asked to speak again and when work is to be done, and a number of persons are to speak, the man who wearies the audience and absorbs an undue proportion of time, needs to be instructed in the simple elements of common sense, as well as to be reminded of the command: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Church Union.

Wise Sayings.

—Be at peace, without thinking of the future; there may be none for you.—Fenelon.

—Never swerve in your conduct from your honest convictions; decide because you have reason for decision, and then act because you have decided.

—Cultivate yourself in a worship of spirit both in church and out. He who is not reverent, who knows not how to worship, lacks one of the grandest essentials of manhood.—Golden Rule.

—When we ask for strength for the day, our thought is usually of that which is needed for our most important work. We should not so limit it. The grace that shall save us from evil thoughts, hasty speech, violent temper, or censorious spirit is as much needed as the other.

—One has somewhat quaintly, but very truly, said: "God looks not at the oratory of your prayers, how elegant they are; nor at their geometry, how long they are; nor at their arithmetic, how many there are; nor at their logic, how methodical they are, but He looks at their sincerity, how spiritual they are."

—We speak of business and pleasure as companionable. Indeed, the only real pleasure has something of service in it. Is it not true that business and religion may and should go hand in hand? We do our work better for the element of religion we put into it, and without doubt religion must be business-like if it would accomplish anything. Here is a good word which Dr. MacArthur, of New York, in the last Home Circle, speaks in the ear of business men: "If your business destroys your religion, either your business is very bad, or your religion is very weak. Attendance on your religious duties ought to make you a better man."—Chicago Standard.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGON, KY. APR. 4 1883

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$ 80
1 "	½ "	40
1 "	¼ "	20
½ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 5 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however, to the action of the democratic party.

CHARLES FOSTER says the State of Ohio will go republican next fall.

THE city of Cincinnati went democratic on the municipal election last Monday.

LOUISVILLE has put may Jacobs in the field for governor, all of which frightens Owsley and Knott.

COL. JAMES TAYLOR, died in Newport, last Thursday. He was of one of the oldest and best known families in this part of the country.

THE Enquirer of last Sunday was full of war news. In reading it one would almost imagine the country was in the midst of the rebellion.

THE democrats of Clark county have nominated Hon. Thomas G. Stuart, of the Clark County Democrat, for re-election to the legislature.

THE Yeoman of the 29th ult., presented its readers a cut of the new government building to be erected there. It will be an imposing structure.

THE libel suit of Sarah E. and George B. Hite for $25,000 damages against the Courier-Journal Company for alledged slander was decided in favor of the defendant.

MAYOR MEANS and J. D. Parker, president of the board of commerce, of Cincinnati, and other prominent citizens of that city, have invited the executive committee of the National Cotton Planters Association, to visit Cincinnati and confer with her people about holding the World's fair and the centennial cotton exposition there.

A NEW counterfeit dollar, having the exact weight, ring and appearance of the genuine, and resisting the acid test unless the outer coating is penetrated, is now in circulation. It is the most dangerous of counterfeits and would readily be accepted as genuine by merchants. Several of these coins have only been discovered to be counterfeit upon reaching a sub-treasury.

The Future Appears Favorable.

[Cincinnati Price Current.]

In regard to the present outlook for hog supplies we feel some hesitation in offering a well-defined estimate for the eight months ending the 1st of next November. We have the expressions of over 500 correspondents, recently submitted, from all sections of the West, on this subject. In collating this information we have reduced each return to a relative percentage, compared with last year, and we find for Ohio a prospect about equal to last year—possibly slightly less; for Indiana some increase, the indication being that up to June the movement will be about the same as last year, and later about 5 per cent. greater, on the average; for Illinois no gain over last year up to June, and perhaps about 5 per cent. decrease, but subsequently more than 10 per cent. increase; for Iowa there is a great variation in information, but the returns indicate an average of 10 or 15 per cent. decrease for the season; in Missouri, where there was a good corn crop in nearly all sections of the State, the average of returns indicate an increase of about 10 per cent. the first half of the season, and 20 per cent. later; in Kansas an increase is generally reported, though a shortage exists in some sections; in Nebraska corn is abundant, but there is a limited supply of hogs, not varying much from last year; in Kentucky there is promise of a material enlargment in supplies, and in Tennessee, also, some gain. Notwithstanding this showing, we believe there will be an increase of not less than 10 per cent. in the summer marketing. A year ago there was scarcity of feed. At the present time, with the exception of portions of Illinois and the eastern part of Iowa, there is generally abundance of corn, and hogs in demand for fattening on it.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Florence X-Roads.

Uncle Gus Weaver is quite sick again.

Mr. Geo. Rouse has finished plowing for corn.

Very few oats sowed. Wheat looks badly.

John Manning, of Carter county, started home from this place last Tuesday, taking with him Miss Rosanna Utz and her goods and chattels, with the intention of marrying her in his own county.

Mr. Russell has had some parts of his engine in Cincinnati for repairs. The mill will be in operation in a few days.

Our good natured citizen, John Utz, has a load of hay which has been standing on the roadside for several days, and from which the horses and cows have been feasing.

Mr. Robt. Rouse purchased a prize plug of Honesty Tobacco and got a watch.

John Aylor has graduated in the barber trade, and will locate at this place. Your patronage is solicited.

Taylorport.

Several of our young folks attended the dance at Stringtown last week.

Miss Page Grubbs has almost completed her musical studies in Cincinnati

Hugh Kennedy had began to erect a residence on one of the lots left him by Mrs. McNeil, deceased, and last week received a letter from some heirs that claim the property. He has stopped all operation to await futher developments

Mr. Burt Breed, an accomplished young gent of New York, has been a frequent visitor to this place since last Christmas. He departed last week for the West, but will return in the fall, it is rumored, to claim a bride from our midst.

Petersburg.

The Green Brothers have purchased the stock of groceries of the late Nathaniel Green, decd., and expect to start a first-class grocery.

Henry Chapman, who has been confined to his bed for several days with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, is some better at this writing.

E. V. Newman, of Rising Sun, Ind., was visiting friends here last Friday..

A fire broke out, last Tuesday morning, about 8 o'clock, in a house belonging to Mrs. T. H. Green and occupied as a grocery, but it was soon extinguished by the bucket brigade before much damage was done.

The black Marias keep things regulated. They have now given two of our brothers orders to keep straight or they will take them to the river and give them a cold bath. One of the brothers says if they molest him they will get hurt. He says; "Do you hear?"

Mrs. H. J. Marshall, of Aurora, and her sister, Miss Fannie Haward, of Gent, Ky, Mrs. C. W. Jenkins, of Lawrenceburg, Miss Hulda Dawson, of Guilford, Ind, Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan, Misses Sue and Ida Smith, Theresa McNeely and Cora Early were the guests of Mrs. Lizzie Bush, last Tuesday.

Squire Loder had a quite an interesting case tried before him on last Saturday. The parties to the suit being B. R. Gaines and J. T. Grant. It appears that Gaines brought suit against Grant for corn to the amount of $27 for which Gaines claimed Grant owed for on settlement. Grant being a better orator than Gaines and, also having notes and papers in his possession, the court instructed the jury to settle by the papers Therefore gave judgment against Gaines for $15 30. Bro. Grant, you ought to practice law. We understand Gaines is going to appeal to a higher court.

HON. J. G. CARLISLE, in a conversation with Gen. Williams, the other day, in regard to his senatorial successor, said to the General that if the people of Kentucky elected a legislature that should choose him as a United States Senator he would accept the trust, but that he does not intend going about over the state setting up county conventions and electioneering for the place. That was a center shot.

STATE NEWS.

—At the Prewitt sale, in Clark, a pair of work mules brought $300.

—Trimble county has not had a case of murder for ten years.

—Work will begin at once on the United States building at Frankfort.

—Evidences of the presence of petroleum have been discovered in Pulaski county.

—Six car loads of walnut logs were shipped to Germany from Frankfort last week.

—There will be an unusually large crop of tobacco raised in Owen county this year.

—Several German families, farmers and well-to-do, will probably leave their cold home in wintry Michigan and locate in Christian county.

—In Clark J. H. Hunt sold to Jas. D. Gay a pair of black work mules for $350, and D. T. Railsback sold to R. B. Redmon a four-year-old mule for $132 50.

—Robert H. Nutter sold to Richard Alford a pair of work mules for $400. Joe M. Hall sold to same party a single mule for $175.—Georgetown Times.

—Frankfort Yeoman: Richard Tobin, Stewart of the Institute for the Feeble-minded, brought to this office yesterday three eggs of different sizes that were all laid by one hen within the space of two hours.

—Sufficient dynamite to blow up half the town was discovered under the store of Mary Wills, at Winchester. It was evidently placed there by parties who intended to destroy the town. Considerable alarm is felt.

—A Frankfort thief, according to the Commonwealth, effected an entrance into Mr. Wm. Gaines and broke open the smoke-house, stealing a lot of bacon. Mr. Gaines must have felt very uncomfortable with a live thief as well as a smoke-house, in him.

—A remarkable family lives in Lee county about four miles from Beattyville. It is that of William B. Burnes. He and his wife were both born on the same day, the 25th of September, 1829 They have nine sons-in-law and a son for each daughter; they have ninety-nine grand children; they never saw all their children on the same day, the oldest of whom is forty-four years of age and the youngest twenty-four. Neither he nor his wife have a gray hair in their heads. He can split one hundred rails and lay them up in a day. He boldly asserts that he and his nine sons-in-law can throw down any other man and his sons-in-law in the United States for $100,000. He and his sons-in-law will be in Richmond on the first train on the Three Forks

Hon. Thomas L. Jones, candidate for Governor of Kentucky was addressed by a politician asking for a certain official appointment in the event of his election to the office of Governor. The aspirant indicated that he could, through his influence, secure the nomination of Col. Jones for Governor, and that he would do so, provided that he was promised the appointment. A reply was written to the letter by Col. Jones and it has leaked out that Col. Jones said; "I am astounded at your proposition. I have not, thus far, during my political career, awarded, upon principle, any act in or out of office, that compromise my honor as a man or as a public official. I will not now, by word or act, do aught for which I can reproach myself or be reproached by others, in case of my defeat or election to the office of governor of Kentucky. I would like to have your support on proper grounds; but rather than secure it as you propose, I must be content with your opposition."—JUSTICE in Lexington Transcript.

One Fool Among Many,

Wrecked by his Untempered Ambition —A Lighthouse on the Shoals.

"I ought to have stopped five years before I did; but I thought it wouldn't amount to anything, so I kept on. I was a fool, of course—but who isn't, when ambition and the chance of making money spurs him on? I only hope I shall get well enough to digest another square meal some time without a rebellion in my stomach."

The speaker was one of the best known civil engineers and mining experts in this country; hardy by nature as a buffalo, but broken down by hard study and the merciless lashing administered to his mind and body by his own hand during the earlier part of his career. At fifty he is prematurely gray, bent in form and dispirited. Dyspepsia did it—Dyspepsia, the self-inflicted curse of the American in every department of toil.

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr. Charles H. Watts, of West Somers, Putnam county, N. Y. and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Tried everything. At last one PARKER'S GINGER TONIC a ch[illegible] what it could do for It proved its ability by curing me. I recommend it to all who are suffering from this dreadful di- Mr. G. R. Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y. certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statement.

Gloom, despondency, hopelessness, disgust with all labor, sleeplessness, horrid dreams to render bed-time like the hour of execution to a criminal—these are some of dyspepsia's foot-prints. The Dyspeptic knows what Coleridge meant when he said: "Night is hell." PARKER'S GINGER TONIC cures Dyspepsia, purifies the Blood, disperses Rheumatism and all chronic ailments. Price, 50 cents and $1 a bottle. HISCOX & CO., New York.

SADDLES AND HARNESS AND

ALBERT M. ACRA,

BURLINGTON, KY.

HARNESS MAKER

—AND—

DEALER IN SADDLES

Best material used in all work done, and satisfaction guaranteed. A full line of everything needed by farmers in the harness line.

REPAIRING PROMPTLY DONE.

☞Give me a call. feb-14-83

—Shop over Rouse's Store.—

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF THE

Farmers & Traders National Bank AT COVINGTON,

In the State of Kentucky, at the close of business, March 13, 1883.

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts		$547,836 36
Overdrafts		237 29
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
Due from approved reserve agents		82,503 58
Due from other National banks	6,752 29
Due from State banks and bankers	2,856 39	—9,608 68
Real estate, furniture and fixtures		4,661 66
Current expenses and taxes paid		2,076 59
Premiums paid		9,000 00
Checks and other cash items		1,167 11
Bills of other Banks		7,560 00
Fractional paper currency, nickels and pennies		156 51
Specie		7 810 00
Legal tender notes		17,000 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)		2,250 00
Total		$691,367 78

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in		$300,000 00
Surplus fund		1,200 00
Undivided profits		16,670 14
National bank notes outstanding		45,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check	314,454 95
Due to other National Banks	10,891 21
Due to State Banks and bankers	3,151 43	—328,497 59
Total		$691,367 78

State of Kentucky, county of Kenton, ss: I, John L. Sandford, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. L. SANDFORD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th day of March, 1883,

RICHARD H GRAY, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:

L. C. STEPHENS,
J. H. MERSMAN,
E. J. HICKEY, } Directors.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

COLTER'S FOR CARPETS

☞We now show the largest and most varied stock of CARPETS and OIL CLOTHS in this section of the country, including choice styles in Best Tapestry Brussels, and all grades. Also, a full line of Ingrain All Wool Carpets, many styles of Wool Mixed Ingrain, and Cottage, Hemp and Home-made Rag Carpets, and Mattings. In all, we have over One Hundred Pieces. Floor Oil Cloth of all grades and widths. In this line we show some of the handsomest goods ever offered for sale, at prices to suit all.

We have just opened up

1000 Bolts of Wall Paper,

All Choice New Styles in Best Gilts, White and Brown. Also, complete line of

WINDOW SHADES AND LACE CURTAINS.

We Are Proud of Our Ready Made Clothing Trade.

Over two Hundred Suits sold in one week, at $2,50 to $21 a suit. Over three thousand whole suits already received and two large bankrupt lots arriving.

If you want a Suit of Clothing, no matter how fine, or how cheap, always come to our Mammoth Store, as we are constantly receiving Clothing bought at a snap, and we only add a small profit, and please our customers; by so doing we believe is the reason our sales are daily increasing Remember, we keep a full line of Goods, viz:

BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS,

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, DRESS GOODS and SILKS,

FULL LINE DOMESTICS, ALL KINDS, ALWAYS ON ☞.

And at prices less than any City will sell them.

Very Respectfully,

Wm. COLTER,

(And no partner to share the small profits with,)

Rising Sun. - Indiana.

N. B.—See future advertisements for our Millinery Department, which we promise to make one of the Grandest Showings, that any one would be pleased to see.

Wm. Colter, Rising Sun, Ind.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm containing 101 acres of land on the head waters of Middle Creek, Boone county, Ky., 2½ miles southwest of the county seat adjoining the lands of Alfred Cason and W. S. White, and known as the Thomas Neel farm, now occupied by R. W. Neel. This farm is well watered, well adapted for stock farm, and has all the necessary buildings in good repair. It has two good orchards, 2 barns on the premises. Title good. For further particulars inquire of the undersigned. R. W NEEL, feb 28-3m Burlington, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

75 acres of land on Gunpowder Creek, being part of the Jonathan Utz farm, is now offered for sale On this land there are a

BRICK DWELLING

of 6 rooms—a large cellar, and all necessary out buildings; and a good Orchard. For terms, enquire of Mack Aylor, on the premises; C. O. Utz, Constance, Boone county. Ky., or F. Riddell at Burlington, Ky.

C. O. UTZ,
MACK AYLOR.

FREE 25 USEFUL ARTICLES, & BEAUTIFUL FLORAL CHROMO CARDS, Size 5 x 8, and an illustrated Book, to all who send two 3c. stamps for postage and packing. Mention this paper. E. G. RIDEOUT & CO., NEW YORK.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

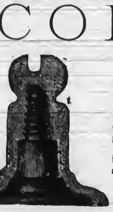
FLORESTON

Exceeds the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Chambers' Lightning Protecti'n

COMPANY.



Having purchased the right to put up the rods of the above company in Boone and Kenton counties, we solicit your patronage. These rods are constructed on the correct principle; it takes a less number of feet to rod a building and are consequently much the cheaper rods, besides they are ornamental and are the only rods that afford complete protection from lightning and are less liable to get out of repair. Their popularity is attested by the number now in use in Boone and Kenton. Those having buildings to rod will find it to their interest to have us give them a call and fix figuers.

W. E. PIPER, CHAS. A. FOWLER.
Burlington, Ky.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S

Indian Blood Syrup

Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.

TRADE MARK.

Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.

☞AGENTS WANTED.☜

Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines. 2 to 100 Horse Power.

Established 1840

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."

ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers

(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Local News.

April had a cold reception.

Vegetables will be late this spring.

Circuit Court commences Monday.

A heavy rain fell here last Thursday night.

Considerable stir among tobacco men Friday.

The protracted bad weather made the farmers rather restless.

W. M. Conner and wife, of Cincinnati, were in town, Monday.

Circuit Court commences Monday with 55 new cases on the docket.

Monday was a cold, damp day, but the crowd in town held its temper.

The population of the county will be somewhat decreased next week.

Miss Marry Ann Thompson contemplates teaching school here in the spring.

For foul stomach, constipation, and feted breath, Ayer's pills are a radical and entire cure.

W. E. Piper now occupies the residence adjoining his store, which is very convenient for him.

Miss Mary Light and mother, of Covington, were the guests of Mrs. F. Riddell, Sunday and Monday.

There have been a great many deaths in the county this winter, and quite a number of them very sudden.

Mrs. C. L. Latimer, of Saline county, Mo., is visiting her relatives in this place, having arrived last Saturday.

The best jumping and double shovel plows in the market are manufactured and for sale by S. A. Palmer, Burlington.

There was considerable talk about mules, Monday. H. A. Hicks was in town, and he is an enthusiastic mule trader.

Geo. Hurchart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., deal in handsome tombstones and monuments. John Beall, of H[illegible] is their agent.

Last Saturday Henry White was bitten by a dog, and Sunday he came to town and had the mad-stone applied, but it did not stick.

Friday Mr. W. L. Rouse brought to this office a ear of corn eight inches long that weighed one pound. It was nice, round white corn.

James Rogers, of Bellevue, has commenced work on his new house. Timothy How is doing the stone work, and W. J. Rice, the woodwork.

S. A. Palmer has on hand all kinds of plows, for sale at prices to suit the times Give him a call before purchasing elsewhere, all warranted to give satisfaction

This is the time of a year when the rural merchant is returning from New York City, in Cincinnati, where he has been buying his spring stock.

Dogs got into E. A. Hughes' sheep pasture and killed and wounded twenty sheep. A few nights since the dogs killed seven or eight sheep for the Blythe boys.

In last week's issue we said Rev. C. C. Conner would preach at this place the first Sunday in April, when we should have said the fifth Sunday in April.

The writer's little girl was very sick with measles three or four days last week, but is about well again. That is the only case in Burlington so far this winter.

Our friend Geo. Brown, of Constance, was "settin' 'em up" to the crowd, last Monday. It's an 8 pound girl and was born Sunday night. Geo. went home directly after dinner.

Our new sign which we flung to the breeze upon going into the new office, was executed by E. B. H. Owens, who we can recommend to those wanting work done in that line.

Thomas H. Corbette, of McCracken county, candidate for Register of the Land Office, was in town Monday, and made a short speech setting forth the reasons why he is candidate.

Judging from the rattle of the auctioneers' tongues, considerable stock was on the pike dust, Monday. Court day sales are getting more numerous, while horse swapping is on the increase.

The school commissioner desires that all school trustees that have not received blanks for making the census report, address him at Grant P. O., this county. The February draft is ready for distribution.

The whisky business was closed out in Owenton Monday week, and one house sold $450 worth of whisky, says the News. All hands and the dishwashers must got on a high—lonesome that day.

W. H. Pickett was in town last Friday making acquaintances, and looking after the interest of his father who is a candidate for re-election to the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.

A government agent was in town the other day to ascertain if the merchants were all straight on the question of destroying stamps on tobacco and cigars boxes. He found nothing neglected sufficiently of which to complain.

The dramatic fever has broken out in Burlington again. A club has been organized, and all things necessary to produce a successful result are now being done. Joseph Reed is the manager, so you may expect something rich, rare and racy.

One evening last week a ten or eleven year-old daughter of William Dempsey, of Verona, was so severely burned that she died before morning. Her clothes caught fire, and before the flames could be extinguished she was fatally burned

Some one has put in circulation a report that Miss Fannie Rice has increased her price for music lessons to 75c a lesson. Miss Fannie authorizes us to say that her price is yet 50 cents a lesson, and where a family furnishes more than one scholar she makes a reduction from that price.

Lewis Jenkins, of Verona, is twice happy. Upon the advent of the first Lewis hastened to send his mother-in-law a dispatch announcing the arrival, and when he returned to the house he found it necessary to duplicate the message. We failed to learn whether they are girls or boys.

There were several fine horses on exhibition here Monday. Among them were James Grant's Norman horse, Ed Golway's Charly Highlander, Riddell & Norris' Star of the West and Hambletonian, and several other fine animals the names of which we did not learn. The show was equal to that of any past April court day.

While in the city, last Saturday, we met Judge Major, who was on his way to this county to commence his court here last Monday. Being informed that he was a week ahead of time, he turned his steps towards the Kentucky river where he expects to spend the week fishing. The Commonwealth's attorney had also started for this place, and was turned back by a friend.

The family of Thomas Tapman, of Kenton county, has been sorely afflicted with measles the past month. There were nine children in the family, two of whom had the measles in Covington one has them at Danville, Indiana, and six of them were very sick with them at home, the youngest, a little boy, nearly four years-old, dying last Saturday morning.

The Recorder now occupies a commodious office, at which place its friends will, at all times, be gladly welcomed. It is now in better quarters than it ever has been, and no pains will be spared to make it a faithful recorder of local events, and while it is some distance from the temple of justice it is just near enough the jail to be repeatedly reminded that honesty is the best policy. We can't promise much of a paper this week but will try and get down to our knitting when we get things straight.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Rabbit Hash.

Farm work has been delayed by the late hard rains.

How many chickens have you got? is a common query among house-keepers.

A great deal of tobacco is leaving this part of the country daily for Bellevue.

Rev. Froh made his monthly round to East Bend last Sunday. His health is much improved since he was here last.

T. C. S. Ryle lost his meat house by fire a few nights since. It contained his year's supply of meat and lard, besides five barrels of salt and various other things, all of which were lost.

An attempt was made, last week, by the Masons of our neighborhood to raise means to build a hall, intending to start a lodge. This failed, then the Masons and Grangers tried to build a partnership hall, but the plan was doomed to meet the fate of turnpikes and all other public enterprises that are talked of.

An immense crowd gathered at Rabbit Hash the 24th ult., to witness the proceedings of court. Several cases were on docket but especial interest was taken in only two of them. One of these was known as the dog case in which one man was sued for shooting the dog of another. The jury failed to agree and the parties compromised. The other case of note was the Commonwealth vs. the Rabbit Hash Correspondent of the RisingSun Local. Defendant plead guilty, whereupon he was fined $5 and cost. Attorneys present were J. S. Jelly and W. W. Williams, of Rising Sun.

Mrs. Clara McKay returned to he home in Virginia last week, accompanied by her sister, Miss Ella Hastings.

Mrs. Minerva Ryle is visiting friends in Rising Sun.

Mrs. A. G. McConnell is on the sick list.

Wilson & Riddell have a nice stock of goods and seem to be doing a thriving business.

Bellevue.

When, how cold—March the last and out it goes like a lion after coming in gentle as a lamb. This has been a remarkable season thus far—neither an extremely cold or wet one, yet having produced the greatest flood on record, and judging from present appearances likely to produce one of the latest seasons in a number of years. We have now the 1st of April and not a garden planted in the whole town. The unfavorable weather is interfering very much with farm work—comparatively but little plowing has been done. The small grain, meadows and pastures have nearly the appearance of mid winter.

Some of our citizens are having fine sport on the river duck hunting, and are securing some fine birds, of which many are on the river at present.

The soft weather, last week, started the tobacco in this vicinity to moving, and such loads as we saw moving about our streets were enough to excite the oldest grower of the weed. Seemingly all three of the houses were receiving as much as they could handle.

A few days since our enterprising logging and lumbermen, Moore, Kidwell & Co shipped a large lot of black walnut lumber to the city.

Charley Gibbs has the contract to take down and move Frank Loring's barn from the river back to higher ground.

The Christian denomination are again making an effort to erect a house of worship in this place. We are not in possession of their financial condition, but hope the undertaking will meet with sufficient encouragement to erect the house.

Mike Clore is going to try the willow business again, having planted an acre to start with.

Jim Snyder is bumping around with the mumps. Jim says they are not so funny when you have many of them.

Scott Wingate has moved to Waterloo.

Mr. W. B. Dinsmore, of New York, and president of the Adams Express Company, is visiting at Miss J. S. Dinsmore's

One night last week sneak thieves went into Cy Kelly's garden and lifted a bank of potatoes for him, securing some six bushels of the fine tubers. Where is our law enforcer? would like to see him about!

Last Saturday night the young folks of the neighborhood assembled at H. P. Marshall's and enjoyed a very pleasant evening

Hebron.

Jeff Cloud and J. C. Clore left last week for Springfield, Ohio, where they are attending college.

Mrs. Thomas Huren has been quite sick for the past few days.

The first game of ball of the season was played at Bullettsville, last Saturday afternoon. The Bullettsville club will organize in a few days.

Some of our farmers have commenced planting potatoes.

Rev. Wagoner occupied the pulpit at the Lutheran church last Sunday morning and evening.

Born—To the wife of Wm. Clore, a fine daughter.

The Hebron Sunday-school will organize some time this month.

James Clore is quite sick at this writing.

Mr. Lytra Aylor gave the young folks of this vicinity a very pl[illegible] last Saturday night Those present enjoyed themselves hugely.

On the evening of the 24th ult., the dramatic club had a comfortably filled house to witness the closing of the series of performances.

Theodore Rouse is on the sick list.

Jeff Clayton has gone to Ohio to work.

J. C. Hankins and Mike Clore have been keeping "batch" for the past week. J. C. is the boss cook.

Several of our farmers sold their tobacco to Covington firms, last week.

The heavy rain, last week, stopped the plows.

Mike Clore's wife is visiting at Jeffarsonville.

James Loder's wife was called to Cin[illegible] week, to see her mother, who is not expected to live.

Hubble Davis commenced clerking for Davis Bros., at Hebron, Monday.

Dave Beall's horse, the finest horse that comes to this town, was badly crippled the other day.

Some of the goods that were recently stolen from Mike Clore's store, were found in a straw stack near this place.

Several of our boys were duck hunting last week. Ducks were scarce.

Francesville.

Gentle reader, we trust you will pardon us if we are mistaken, but there is a vague rumor afloat that Francesville is to have telephone communications with some city not yet determined upon. The reason we have concluded to have a telephone station is on account of the great abundance of news that accumulates here and becomes stale ere the outside world gets it. In an early day Francesville was known as a tobacco manufacturing town, and thereby became a place of considerable notoriety, but being isolated from other cities of its kind, it has almost sunk into oblivion. Its resources are as good or better now than they ever were, and if we can open up communications with other parts of the globe, and get a few more enterprising men of means among us, we will build railroads, turnpikes and establish telephone lines, and in a few short years Francesville will become a town of importance, a town of which Boone county will be proud.

Francesville comes to the front again with another new organ. Miss Nellie Graham is the happy recipient. We are pleased to see our citizens taking such an interest in having their children become musicians.

We regret that Rev. R. E. Kirtley has resigned as pastor of the Sand Run church. Mr. Kirtley has been its pastor for many years, and has labored ardently for the good of the church. The congregation will miss him, and his place will be hard to fill.

There has been a Sunday's paper line established between this place and the city via Hebron, enabling us to get the news almost as fresh as our neighbors along the railroad lines.

Judging from the preparations one of our estimable young friends is making, we would not be surprised to hear of his keeping house for himself before many moons. Good by, Charlie.

We hope everybody will subscribe for the Recorder and quit this thing of borrowing so much.

Plattsburg

Easter will not come again on the 25th of March till 1984, so says the knowing ones

Mr. Tom Baldon and wife, of Carroll county, visited friends and relatives here last week.

Died—Last Sunday week, Mr. Klopp, an aged german citizen.

We are pleased to know that Uncle Jim Westbay has secured a place so well suited for his business.

Preston Miller has the contract for building the new ferry boat at Lawrenceburg.

Nearly all the farmers are done sowing their tobacco beds, and a majority of them have their beds canvassed.

If it rains on Easter it is a sign of a good crop year.

Mr. Andy Huffman, son of ex-senator Huffman, of Indiana, is located in our burg

In attempting to cross the backwater just below here, Enis Nixon had a valuable horse drowned.

Proclamation of the Mayor of Plattsburg: "Know all men by these deeds that I, J. A. Tolin, Mayor of the city of Plattsburg, do hereby instruct the council of said city to stop all travel on New street, and trust that this will be sufficient warning to the Woolper Pike Company to vacate said street and build an out let of their own.

—J. W. Green has retired from the race for representative in "Sweet Owen," but Owen has three candidates left.

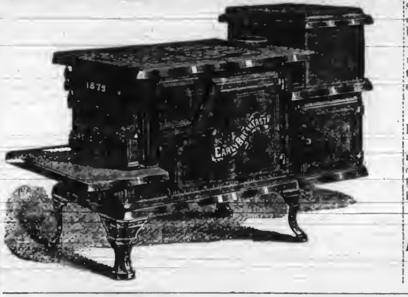
AT H. F. BLASE,

540 Madison St., - - - Covington, Ky.

You can find the best assortment of SUITINGS in the three cities. Thousands of elegant designs of all the leading European and American fabrics. Good, honest dealing and a perfect fit guaranteed.

540 Madison street, - Covington, Ky.

EARLY BREAKFAST STOVES.



Early Breakfast Stoves have been submitted to the severest tests and have successfully stood the trial of years. They have become, and are now, recognized as the standard Stove of America. They are guaranteed not to have a single ounce of scrap iron in them, and to have more labor saving conveniences than any Stove in the Land.

THE MONITOR COAL OIL STOVE

has far exceeded anything of the kind in the past, and this year it comes out with many New and valuable Improvements. No one should buy a Coal Oil Stove until they have examined the Monitor, no one should be without one. For sale only by

W. H. & J. M. McCLUNG,
537 Madison St., Covington, Ky.
All Kind of Stoves Repaired.
All Kinds of Roofing, Guttering.
DONE TO ORDER.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS

NATIONAL BANK,

Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green.
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm.
L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited [illegible] is Bank.

dec. 20-6m

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.

SWETNAM & NEAD,

(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE

AND TRANSFER LINE,

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

City Flouring Mills

RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar7-4f28

J. W, Talbott.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington. - - Ky.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of John A. Marshall, deceased, will present them properly proven for payment as soon as possible, but before presenting the claim to me they must exhibit it to my attorney, F. Riddell, for examination.

HENRY ROSS, Adm'r.

FOUND.

Near Bellevue, Boone county, Ky., since the flood a lot of Stone Mason's tools. The owner can have the same by proving property and paying charges.

W. W. GRANT, JAS. SMITH,
Bellevue, Boone conuty, Ky.

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - - OHIO.

Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

FOR SALE.

In Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

A BRICK HOUSE,

containing ten rooms, attic, cellar and out buildings, with four half acre lots attached. The late residence of Mrs. C. S. Tousey. The cellar contains a good kitchen, dining room and two other rooms. The buildings and premises are in good repair.

For terms apply to
GREEN & RIDDELL,
Burlington, Ky.

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to me are requested to come forward and settle at once, as I will leave Burlington in a short time. By coming up and settling you will save expense.

W. L. GEDGE.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

YOUNG, OLD, AND MIDDLE-AGED. All experience the wonderful beneficial effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Children with Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, or any scrofulous or syphilitic taint, may be made healthy and strong by its use.

Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

MOODY'S Boarding School For Teaching all Branches of Dress Cutting, and every garment worn by lady or child; also, SEWING, TRIMMING, DRAPING, and all the FINISHING PARTS of

DRESSMAKING!

Position Guaranteed if Desired.

LADIES living out of the city BOARDED FREE while learning.

Address:
D. W. MOODY & CO.
31 West Ninth St.
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

